SGA: What's the problem?

by Joinda Mattison

When Student Government Association (SGA) members voted themselves and their leaders, they did it in a fairly 50-50 split. One of the five interviewed said they believed the Christmas vacation retreat had created a more solid SGA which would, in the words of Junior Class Representative Margaret Binda staff, "getting down to the business it was created to do."

Today, with less than six weeks of school left and with SGA elections next week it's time to determine just how effective the Association has been.

News Analysis

Despite all the optimism and predictions made at the beginning of the semester, things don't appear to have changed that much. The same people seem to be doing most of the work, and the problems of apathy and absenteeism that have plagued the SGA since September have not been lessened, but in fact have increased. The financial and lobbying campaign which was called the biggest issue we have facing us now, by Freshman Class President Susan McCarthy, got off to a great start with the Temple Mall rally. The highly touted Phonathon was a disappointment, however. The SGA was not solely to blame for the failure. The phones were not available during the first planned call your congressman campaign, and when they were finally able to schedule the calls, the SGA tried to put signs up directing students to the phones on the 8th floor of the Sawyer Building and they were told by the maintenance crew that nothing could be taped or hung on the walls. As a result, only 20 calls were made to Massachusetts representatives. The letter campaign fared better with over 200 letters sent to Congressmen from Suffolk students.

For some weeks, the behavior of some members during the weekly meetings resembled that of a rowdy circus crowd more than that of supposedly adult SGA members. They were abusive to each other and the foul language which seemed to punctuate every other sentence did not help the situation.

In an interview, Junior Class Representative Colleen Doyle accused SGA president Darren Donovan of being one of the main reasons for the "bad behavior" during the meetings. Darren is well rehearsed in parliamentary procedure, she said. "When things are not going his way, he manipulates the dispute with parliamentary procedure. There are times in the meetings when things need to be said, the anxiety level rises, everyone gets excited and Darren shuts everybody off. Many meetings turn into dictatorships."

However, regardless of how the meetings go, Darren Donovan cannot be held responsible for the behavior of other SGA members.

When told of Doyle's comments, Donovan said, "There's one thing I've learned as president: you can't please all the members all the time and there are some you can never please. I certainly don't run a dictatorship. Everyone is given plenty of opportunity to express themselves. However, some comments can be off the track and then I feel it's my responsibility to set the discussion back on focus."

Regarding the manner in which the meetings are run, other SGA members had the following comments.

Junior Class Vice President Cennill said, "The meetings aren't going right. People are just leaving all the time. There are too many personal conflicts that shouldn't be brought into the meetings."

Junior Representative John McDonnell said that people tend to get off the track. "We have an hour, and some people try to discuss committee business. Darren has an agenda to follow and must control the meetings."

McCarthy said, "Sometimes everything gets out of hand and the president is the one who has to keep things under control. Personally, I'm not upset with the way meetings are run."

Concerning the apathy problem, Donovan said, "It's our biggest problem. I feel it's the mood of the times. Students are very career oriented."

Area schools increase tuition

by Carol Caramanna

Tuition will increase in several private colleges and universities in Massachusetts next year. According to a random survey of private institutions in the Boston area, Suffolk University's (SU) undergraduate tuition will remain the lowest.

SU's undergraduate tuition for the 1982-1983 school year for full time enrollment is $3,630. That is $420 more than SU's 1981-1982 tuition. SU announced the 13 percent increase in February.

Two schools have not announced their 1982-1983 tuition. However, spokespersons for those two schools said that increases are expected. The schools polled were Emerson College, Bentley College, Emmanuel College, Babson College, and Boston College.

Emerson College, which has cross registration with SU, had the highest increase among the schools polled. It raised its tuition from $4,900 to $5,650, a 15.3 percent increase.

Bentley College raised its tuition

| SCHOOL | '81-'82 | '82-'83 | Increase |
|--------------------|---------|---------|----------|
| Emerson College | $4,900 | $5,650 | $750 |
| Bentley College | $4,550 | $5,100 | $550 |
| Emmanuel College | $4,700 | $4,950 | $250 |
| SUFFOLK UNIVERSITY | $3,210 | $3,630 | $420 |
| Babson College | $5,360 | | |
| Boston College | $5,180 | | |

In comparison with other private institutions in the Boston area, SU will have the lowest tuition for undergraduate full time enrollment in the 1982-1983 school year. Traditionally, SU has been the lowest cost private institution in the area.

Five area institutions were polled. Three schools had announced increases ranging from $250-$750 from $4,550 to $5,100, a $550 increase. Emmanuel College raised its tuition from $4,700 to $4,950, a $250 increase.

Boston College, whose 1981-1982 tuition was $5,360, had not yet announced its 1982-1983 tuition. However, an Admission Office

Corner View—The Boston Media Thoughts of a news addict

by Lisa Camenker

I'm what you would call a news addict, says Channel 7 reporter Mike Macklin. I feel the more news on the air the better, he said referring to possible expansion of the network news to one hour.

Macklin came to Channel 7 approximately four years ago. He began his career as a news reporter on WCCM radio in Lawrence, being a native of the Greater Boston area. Macklin loves working in the city.

Boston is a political town, he pleases Macklin. His main interest is politics and he is happy being the State House reporter for Channel 7. He covers all the stories dealing with the legislature and the governor's activities. Although most stories he covers are politically neutral, Macklin also covers many hard political hard news stories.

Looking tall and handsome in his blue pin striped suit, Macklin displays a great deal of confidence, as he speaks about his job.

He loves the frenzied pace of being a reporter and says, "I love the same reporting is the best because it is current, up to the minute, and spontaneous—that's what television is all about." He goes on to say that television has a big advantage over newspapers because of its live reporting coverage whereas newspapers have deadlines.

With Macklin's politically based reporting, he gets to travel a great deal throughout the suburbs. I like to be moving and on the go, says Macklin. "What I really love is being out in the field, meeting people and Macklin's idea of a good news reporter is one who gets the news and reports it. He says, "The public needs all the information, decisions it, and explains it to the public so that they can make sense and then they can make decisions on the information given to them." He says that a reporter has to prove himself every day because he starts new every day.

His motto is to "take one day at a time," and this includes his feelings about the much publicized ownership problem of WNEC. Macklin feels that Channel 7 will stay on the air because the FCC has the public's interest in mind and it is not in the public's interest to take Channel 7 off the air.

As William being a reporter, Macklin also is a substitute anchor. He loves to anchor because of the visibility and recognition but he feels that "to be a good anchor, you

The SGA discussed a banquet to honor outstanding students.

SGA plans awards dinner

by Gina Russell

A student leadership banquet which will be held to honor the achievements of juniors and seniors will be sponsored by the Eastern Sophomore Conference, a committee of the Student Government Association (SGA) which is meeting this week.

It may be the start of a new tradition, said Director of Student Activities, Thomas Anderson, who elaborated that it would be the sophomore and freshmen members of the SGA and seniors.

The event is a tradition at the Eastern Sophomore Conference, which the banquet passed by a 100-0 vote. The banquet will occur the first of the last banquet and however the banquet will be held in May 14 at the Suffolk University.

President Daniel Donnell said that he has received specific inquiries to the banquet from members of the SGA and seniors.

The SGA is to honor the evening banquet will be held at the Suffolk University.

Power outage cancels classes

by Mike DiRamo

An hour-long power outage in the Ashburton Building on Monday morning prompted the cancellation of many continuing classes held in the building.

Professor Charles Edward Farina said that the blackout, which occurred around 9 a.m., may have been the consequence of an overload of the electrical system caused by the heating system going on all at once. The heat normally is started on several stages.

Carnal disapproved. Apathy is no problem. The desire is there, but everybody is waiting for outside jobs.

McDonnell said. Very, there is apathy. Last year I tried a lot, but when I see some people missing a lot of meetings it bothers me.

One thing though is clear for whatever reason a majority of the SGA seems content to remain that way.

One of the main problems the SGA has faced this year has been membership. Chronic absenteeism to meetings, McDonnell said that many of the people who have a high degree of absence are new members. Of the people up on charges there are new and two not interested.

David said he believes that a lot of the conflict surrounding absence was caused because of people allowed some members because they were good friends with McDonnell.

Donnell said that the SGA has a successful year. It was this year's SGA was plagued with personal difficulties and a majority of members were not willing to do their share of the work. It was not just party, but it still felt the SGA was essential due to those who did work.

within seconds of the power failure the emergency backup lights were working.

A P.A. announcement notified students and faculty that all classes held in the Ashburton Building were called off until further notice.

The building's five elevators (in mechanics) descended as they are programmed to do to the second floor lobby, where passengers were let out. The emergency electrical system did provide for one elevator to remain in service.

The Registrar's Office reported that the University's computers were out of service during the blackout, but that a backup retrieval system prevented the loss of information from the storage bank.

After full power was restored to the building a little more than an hour after it went out, students and faculty were informed that classes would resume at 11 a.m.

Ellen termed the incident a fluke and said there is no reason to believe it will happen again.

Tuition

free spokesperson said that a 12 percent to 15 percent increase is expected.

Boston College's tuition for 1981-1982 was $5,180. A Registrar's Office spokesperson said that tuition would probably increase and it may go up to $6,000. Their tuition is expected to be announced as soon as April.

Also tuition will increase 11 percent next year at Massachusetts public colleges and universities, according to a recent Boston Globe article. Tuition at those schools will range from $614 to $1,129. Those schools include the state's community colleges and four-year colleges.

These figures are based on full time undergraduate enrollment. They do not include the cost for room and board.

Council exec. board proud of its unity

by R. Scott Reedy

The four members of the Council of Presidents' executive board are in agreement that the single most important accomplishment that they have made this year is in establishing greater unity.

Council Chairperson, Nicholas Babanikas (Government '82), said that although there are different points of view, we still seem to be able to be united. Babanikas said that from the different points of view there can be one good answer. At Boston Babanikas is found on the executive board. He was vice-chairman of the Council during the last academic year. He is the president of Boston's Hispanic Cultural Club and the Vice President.

There is a good sense of unity within the Council. I see that in supporting each other, which one of the main goals of the Council is to support each other.

David Sorrenti, who is the vice president of the Council, said that the Council is a very good group. He said that the Council is a very good group. He said that the Council is a very good group. He said that the Council is a very good group.

David Sorrenti, who is the vice president of the Council, said that the Council is a very good group. He said that the Council is a very good group. He said that the Council is a very good group. He said that the Council is a very good group.

The Council is now seriously considering plans for a spring retreat. The plan is being considered so that outgoing club presidents can meet with and advise new members. The last retreat is one of a reflexion course, according to Fallon who

—Nick Babanikas

—Don Carriger

—David Sorrenti

—Mark Fallon

said the spring retreat will help new club members and presidents to feel they can plan last activities.

The Council's budget for this year was $21,000, an increase of about $9,000 over the previous year due to the increase in the Student Activities Fee. The Council presently has 35 member clubs. Carriger said the Council's budget increase was due to the body's reputation for financial integrity.

The executive board as a whole feels there is room for improvement as far as its relationship with the SGA is concerned. Council Treasurer David Sorrenti (Business Management '82) said the problem was one of unity between the Council, the SGA and the PBC (Program Board). He described the problem as one which must be remedied. Sorrenti is serving his first year on the board having been elected as a member of the Chess and Game club.

Carriger suggested that the SGA should send a delegate to the Council to keep them informed, however he said relations with the SGA have improved over the last two years.

Carriger, who was Chairperson of the Council last year, is the SGA senior class representative. He said he had been able to maintain the difference between the two things.

Babanikas endorsed the ideal of an SGA liaison to the Council. We're part of the SGA and we've proven ourselves. As a result, I think we've earned the respect of the SGA as a whole, he said.

Fallon said. The Council is really autonomous. We follow our own constitution. The only time we have problems is when we change our mind about our constitution. The SGA should have a representative at our meetings to report to us what is going on. Publicity is a problem. But if Council members were more aware they would become more involved. Then next year the SGA will realize more that they can and should come to the Council. We can't have the same number of people in the Council.

In general, the executive board's individual grading at the Council reflected their personal feelings toward Carriger and the Boardman. The Council has been able to prevent any. Always and it is because we have an informal system of checks and balances to stop them. In phase with the board as a whole. It is united in spirit because of a good feeling of working together, he said.

Babanikas graded an A minus to the board. He said it has done a very good job. He said his reason for the A minus stemmed from his belief that in everything there is always room for improvement. The Council is better unified than it has been in the past. He said that the Council is better unified than it has been in the past. He said that the Council is better unified than it has been in the past.

Sorrenti chose to grade the board an F for incomplete. He did so, he said, on the basis that the school year is not over and it would be inappropriate to grade on only two-thirds of the total performance. He said he would be more than glad to grade the Council's performance when the semester is over.

Fallon graded the Council a B plus. He said his grade was based on the fact that members are concerned about each other. Not everyone is always in agreement but they still have something to say. If any problem does arise the executive board gets things together.

According to Babanikas whatever obstacles have come before the Council, the executive board has tried to work out. I'm very optimistic about the Council as a whole, he said.

Tuition increase: It could be worse

While it is going to be difficult for many Suffolk students to pay next year's tuition of $56.50, it may be of some solace to note that with recent increases, tuition at most area colleges will be about $10,000 next year.

For example, tuition next year will be $10,000 at the University of Massachusetts at $500 to $1,000 at Boston College, and $1,000 to $1,500 at Boston University.

While it is true that the Suffolk College tuition is a $56.50 increase, it is also true that the college is a public institution and the tuition is set by the state. The college is also a public institution and the tuition is set by the state.

Nuclear war: a threat?

Commentary

by John Atabio
April 5 is Science Week. The topic is "Nuclear War." The years ensuing Truman's decision to use the atom bomb were filled with a nationwide fear a fear which became known as the Red Scare.

Now the Red Scare is somewhat revised. Many people all over the world understand the implications of a possible nuclear war.

In Europe, West Germans marched in protest when Reagan and Breshnev spoke of a limited nuclear war in Europe.

Students at universities across the country have held rallies to get signatures in their attempt to curtail building of nuclear weapons.

Hollywood has produced many movies emphasizing dangers of a full nuclear strike and assault.

News magazines, newspapers and news shows have approached and reported on every angle of the story.

It has come to a point where many have some fear of the future if war is ahead. We all may not think of it, but within minutes our world can become a living inferno as living hell.

The US and USSR have the most knowledge of what would happen in the event of war. They comprehend all the different factors involved including statistics of approximately how much of the population of the Earth will survive.

This knowledge so far has prevented nuclear war and it will continue to prevent it as long as the US and the USSR are the only two countries which possess superior nuclear capabilities.

The knowledge of the consequences is a great deterrent. Neither country desires to destroy the other for sole reason that there will be nothing left except for ruins of a great civilization once called Earth.

Such thinking does not apply to every country. The Soviet Union (SUA) members reacted at a Massachusetts House hearing on a bill to reduce MBTA fares for college students.

The bill, if passed, would allow college students to pay one-half the regular adult street car fare, currently 75 cents. College students would be issued a special identification card by the MBTA, entitling them to the special fare.

The bill's chance of passage, however, is seen as slim. But the bill will only have a chance if it is heavily lobbied for. The SCA took the first step and they were the only college to attend.

Now it is up to Suffolk students to contact their state senators and representatives and urge them to vote for this bill.

With students' costs continually escalating, any possible financial help is certainly worth loyally for.

The bill's chance of passage, however, is seen as

Deathtrap full of fun and sophisticated mystery

by R. Scott Heedy

Deathtrap Starring Michael Caine, Christopher Reeve, and Dudley Moore. Directed by Sidney Lumet. Running time 104 minutes. R. For the Screen and Subtitled.

Playwright Sidney Lumet has produced his latest work London on the Edge. His fourth such film, he is not only frustrated, but also he is also his downward course. He is desperate, so much so that he considers killing for the money. It is another hit play.

Director Sidney Lumet has brought Deathtrap the still running Broadway play by Ira Levin to the silver screen in a faithful adaptation of the stage production. Lumet's fast paced direction serves up this film, replete with startling plot twists in a way that should keep you on the edge of your seat.

Bruhl receives a manuscript from a student he had in a playwriting seminar. He is impressed by it, and envious of a student who could contribute with the student and share the royalties from the play's anticipated success. Bruhl is a little more greedy though, he wants to tell the young writer and take full credit for the play. The real idea is enticed by the fact that no one else knows of the work.

Bruhl invites the young student to his country house in East Hampton, Long Island so that they can further discuss the play. What happens next is a series of cleverly written plot twists that should surprise even the most sophisticated of thriller fans.

To reveal anyone would be to spoil the fun. Let's just say that whenever you think you've got Deathtrap figured out, something happens to prove you wrong. You can never really be completely sure of what is about to happen or what has already happened for that matter.

The film is suspenseful enough, however, in its translation to film.

Zilch.

If you're a senior and have the promise of a $10,000 career-oriented job, do you know what's stopping you from getting the American Express® Card?

You guessed it. Nothing. Because American Express believes in your future. But more than that. We believe in you now. And we're proving it.

A $10,000 job promise. That's it. No strings. No gimmicks. And this offer is even good for 12 months after you graduate.

But why do you need the American Express Card now?

First of all, it's a good way to begin to establish your credit history. And you know that's important.

Of course, the Card is also good for travel, restaurants, and shopping for things like a new stereo or furniture. And because the Card is recognized and welcomed worldwide, so are you.

So call for a Special Student Application or look for one at your college bookstore or on campus bulletin boards.

The American Express Card. Don't leave school without it.

Baseball off to a good start— Rams slaughter Curry 16-4 in series

by John Atabiso
and Steve Bonanno

The Rams won their season opener by whipping Curry in a 4-run 16-4 win last Thursday. Curry took the loss by bringing in Espino for the first run of the game in the second inning. They added two more in the third for a 3-0 lead. The Suffolk nine were stopped for the first three but came alive in the fourth when Clancy doubled to left. Suffolk rallied for seven runs to last the lead, a final which they would never give up. 7-3.

After Curry went out in order, Espino started another rally with a single to left field. He'll now doublet bringing in Romano. Passatempo brought in Espino, a single to right most. Nantz brought Passatempo in with a sacrifice fly to center to advance the lead 11-3.

Eight innings in the bottom of the fifth, all bases on base. John Wood walked the bases with walks went out of the bases for three runs with a sacrifice at the plate. The sixth inning, after two additional Suffolk hits, Espino loaded the bases with walks and then threw a wild pitch allowing McHout to score with the other basemen to advance. Price packed up two of his four RBIs with a single to center to put the increase Suffolk's lead now 13-3.

Curry went out in the sixth leaving two on base which were walks by Wood would be relieved by Blanchard in the 7th. Romano doubled bringing in Curry and McHout to put the lead up 15-3.

Jubilant Rams are quite satisfied with their performance in the winning rally. Suffolk avenged last year's 10-0 loss to Curry.

Curry left two runners in the eighth, shutting them off. Curry advanced the bases in the eighth on errors but left the man stranded. The Rams added to the score when Murphy brought in Passatempo on a hit to right field. Curry picked up a single run in the ninth on a single to left for the final score on 16-4.

After the game was played with mace and salt great job and he to continue to E
