SIX WILL GET DEGREES FROM SUFFOLK LAW

Walker Will Deliver Salutatory.

A group of six Brockton and district graduates will be among the 255 members of the class of 1930 of the Suffolk Law school to receive their bachelor of law degrees at the 21st annual commencement exercises at Tremont Temple, Boston, to-night. U. S. Sen. Simeon D. Fess of Ohio will give the commencement address, which will be broadcast from WBZ-WBZA at 7:30. Degrees will be conferred by Hon. Thomas J. Boynton, former attorney-general of Massachusetts and also a trustee, and Gleason L. Archer, dean of the school.

Thomas Edward Walker, 7 Goddard road, a member of the editorial staff of the Enterprise, will deliver the salutatory address. Mr. Walker has made an exceptional record in law school. The valedictory address will be given by Roger Adams Stinchfield of Clinton, Me.

In addition to Mr. Walker, the district graduates are Major Cornelius Francis Dineen of 118 Forest avenue; Edward Spillane of 72 Brook street; Raymond Eugene Harvey, South Easton; Frank Flalkow, Stoughton; and Robert Latham, Abington.

THOMAS E. WALKER WILL GIVE SUFFOLK LAW SCHOOL ADDRESS

To Speak on 'Intolerance in Citizenship' at Class Day Exercises--Is Employed in Editorial Department of Enterprise.

Thomas E. Walker, 7 Goddard road, this city, employed in the editorial department of the Enterprise, will deliver the salutatory address at the class day exercises of Suffolk Law School in Boston Tuesday afternoon, June 17. He will speak on the subject, "Intolerance in Citizenship."

Mr. Walker maintained throughout his four-year course in law a general average of 88 1-4 per cent. He was awarded a number of scholarships and prizes. In the freshman year he stood second in general average for all studies. Because of his scholarship up to the close of the third year he was awarded a special prize. One of the most coveted honors which he attained was highest general average for the course in constitutional law, with a mark of 94.5, one of the highest since the founding of the school. The course in constitutional law is considered one of the most difficult of the many branches of law.

Former Court Reporter.

A number of years ago Mr. Walker was a newspaper reporter covering courts, and it was then that he first became interested in the law as a study. The press of work in those days did not permit of much time for books. Later he entered the advertising department of the Geo. E. Keith Company, and in a few months was transferred to the company's traveling sales staff. He traveled for several years, but gave up that life on the death of a brother, in order to remain in closer touch with his mother. He has served in many editorial capacities, including city and managing editorships.

He became affiliated with the editorial department of the Boston Herald, where he was employed for several years. While there he found the opportunity to take up the systematic study of law which he had hoped to begin years before, but which circumstances always prevented. Some time after entering Suffolk Law School he left the Herald, because his duties required night work, and joined the Enterprise staff.

Mr. Walker was born in Brookfield, a son of the late William and Mary Walker. He first came to Brockton several years ago and has spent most of his time here since except when he worked in Boston or was traveling. He is a member of Brockton Lodge of Elks.

The graduation exercises will be held Tuesday evening with Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio as the orator.

BROCKTON MEN GIVEN DEGREES AT SUFFOLK LAW

Others in Nearby Towns Are Among Graduates.

Six Brockton and district graduates of Suffolk Law school received degrees of bachelor of law at the commencement exercises in Tremont Temple, Boston, Tuesday night. They were: Thomas Edward Walker, 7 Goddard road, a member of the Enterprise editorial staff, who delivered the salutatory address; Major Cornelius Francis Dineen of 118 Forest avenue; Edward Spillane of 72 Brook street; Raymond Eugene Harlow, South Easton; Frank Flalkow, Stoughton; and Robert Latham, Abington.

The afternoon exercises were in the large theatre in the Suffolk Law school building and the evening exercises in Tremont Temple. Atty. Wilmot R. Evans of the board of trustees presided, and gave a talk.

Law Office Romance Leads Pair to Altar

Hundreds at St. Edward's.

ATTY. AND MRS. WALTER J. MacDONALD.

A law office romance in which a brilliant young attorney and his equally gifted stenographer furthered their courtship and became engaged so casually that the senior member of the firm didn't realize that Dan Cupid was getting in his best work brought Atty. Walter J. MacDonald, son of Angus D. MacDonald, 90 Ellis street, and Miss Emma Marie Gies, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gies, 860 North Montello street, before Rev. Leo A. O'Leary on the altar of St. Edward's Roman Catholic church Monday afternoon.

There were hundreds of relatives and friends, including Mr. MacDonald's law partner, Judge Herbert C. Thorndike, and other members of the bar at the church. The sanctuary was a bower of floral bouquets, palms and fernery, and the path of the wedding procession was strewn with rose petals.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Louise H. Gies, and Atty. MacDonald's brother, George E. MacDonald, was best man. The bride was stunningly attired in ivory duchess satin with appliqued net yoke. Her veil, at least 10 feet long, was of silk net with cap of Irish point lace caught up with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and lilies of the valley. The only article of jewelry worn by the bride was a beautiful string of pearls, the gift of the groom. Her maid wore an attractive gown of peach chiffon and net, with hat palms and ferns. A beautifully decorated wedding cake was cut by the bride and distributed among the guests. A catered lunch was served.

Atty. and Mrs. MacDonald received a wealth of gifts from their many relatives and friends in and about Brockton. So costly was the array that police protection was afforded it during the afternoon and evening.

The bride's gift to her maid was a white gold wrist watch and the groom presented his best man a wrist watch. Combination nail-file and comb sets, monogrammed, were presented to the ushers, who included: Bernard MacDonald, cousin of the groom; V. Peter Gies and Adolph F. Gies, brothers of the bride; Albert F. Trosky, nephew of the bride; George S. Whelan and Harry W. Sherburne.

Atty and Mrs MacDonald left late in the evening for a motor trip to Canada and the Great Lakes. They plan to be away two weeks and upon return, will reside at 90 Ellis street.

Atty MacDonald is one of the most popular and capable of the younger law practitioners in Brockton. He is a graduate of the Brockton grammar and High schools and of Suffolk Law school. Since passing the Massachusetts bar, he has been a member of the law firm of Thorndike & MacDonald. The other member of the firm is Judge Herbert C. Thorndike. Atty. MacDonald is an active member of the Canadian Club of Boston, Div. 1, A. O.

Declaring that the police of Middlesex County are a fine body of upright citizens and that nothing like the Boston police scandal would come to pass in this neighborhood, Assistant District Attorney Warren L. Bishop of Middlesex County brought forth plenty of enthusiasm in a timely address to the members of the Woburn Kiwanis Club and their guests at the K. of C. Hall, yesterday.

INTRODUCED BY MAYOR

Mr Bishop was introduced by Mayor Philip J. Gallagher, who declared that Mr Bishop was the finest type of public official who merited promotion to the district attorneyship. Mayor Gallagher said that he was paying the compliment because of a past experience he had with Mr. Bishop, who in a very sincere, and straight forward manner addressed the members of the Suffolk Law School Alumni, to which Mayor Gallagher belonged. The Mayor declared that his practice of law did not contact him with the criminal courts, therefore he was paying the compliments without any few of favoritism in the eyes of the future district attorney.

Mr. Bishop returned the compliment to Mayor Gallagher, stating that Mayor Gallagher was rendering a splendid and unselfish service to his city, which was a credit to public service, and for which the people are highly grateful. Mr Bishop opened by stating that public life is not a bed of roses and the road was most difficult. But, he said, that compensations he received that he prized the highest from public service was the friendships made through it. He said that he was glad to come to Woburn for more than one reason, and the first one was the friendship to Mayor Gallagher, for whom he has the highest esteem. He stated that he was proud of the Mayor's friendship and one compensation that the Mayor could receive in public service was the friendships that he made possible.

He stated that he was proud of the Mayor's friendship and one compensation that the Mayor could receive in public service was the friendships that he made possible.

PRAISED CHIEF McCAULEY

Another reason, continued the speaker, was the fact that he went to expected to speak on Law enforcement, at every function he attends, and his definition of law and liberty is best conveyed in the words of a great President he had the pleasure of hearing at one time. Mr. Bishop said that he went to Tremont Temple to hear Woodrow Wilson, one of the greatest presidents of the country. His definition of law and liberty was fascinating, and in his wonderful voice, he urged his fellow men to go with him in the deserted island in the South Seas, where Robinson Crusoe lived alone. Not a single soul could tell him what to do. He was the government, he could do anything he wanted to do. But the day Friday came, Robinson Crusoe's rights stopped where Friday's began. It is the same at present, a person's rights come to a stop where his neighbor's begin. The rights of the neighbors are protected in the statute books, which give the measure to follow and provide for judges, police and district attorneys to see that the law is enforced.

NOT A POLITICIAN

Mr. Bishop said that he could state in all candor that never in his life did he play politics, never was a partisan politician and never cared to play politics when standing in court to administer justice. He stated that he never had a single thought except to enforce laws, to make the county a safer and cleaner place in which to live. Mr. Bishop stated that he might have a reputation for leniency and being merciful, but the professional criminal, the gangster, holdupman, people who make armed entry, who put a gun in a man's face are more than gangsters, etc. They are potential murderers and should be behind prison bars for a long term.

Mr. Bishop said that he read today of a purported interview with a Justice of the Superior Court of Massachusetts, Judge Dillon. He declared Judge Dillon was a splendid judge but he could not exactly subscribe to what he said, if he was reported correctly. Mr. Bishop said that he did not believe that Massachusetts should the school and present district trying to private valued course of Bishop said that Bushnell will accept the Cambridge courthouse in 1923, a green youth. He had never tried a criminal case in his life, and one of the first men he met and with whom he cultivated a lasting friendship was Chief Charles R. McCauley of the Woburn Police Department. That friendship came down through the years, and will last forever, Mr. Bishop said, as he found the local chief one of the fairest men he ever came in contact with.

The police of Woburn, and in fact, Middlesex County are a fine body of men. Here and there are a few sore spots; an instance of human indiscretion, but never with the Boston disgrace revealed in the Garret case he revealed in Middlesex County, said the assistant prosecutor.

POLICE FRIENDS OF MANKIND
The police are a friend of mankind, one of the greatest contacts to society, the speaker declared. The police befriend the little children, he said, and in his daily trip from his home in Wayland to the Cambridge courthouse he notices the big burly police officer leading the children, like a flock of chickens, to safety on the opposite side of the street. The kindness thus displayed and the encouraging words inculcates into the young people a wholesome respect and admiration for the police and the law and with such a respect in the hearts of the young folk, they can not help growing into law-abiding men and women.

Mr. Bishop said that he is hopeful that Massachusetts should not be turned into an armed camp. He did not believe the law had to be enforced by the gun and bomb. Mr. Bishop said that such enforcement would be all right in State of Texas and should not be undertaken in Massachusetts, the law and order state. He said that the law should be enforced but suggested doing it in an orderly fashion, through safe and sane channels, and not make every civilian a police officer. Such methods would be a crying shame of conditions. It would be an indictment against the court, and admission of weakness, an admission that the criminal was supreme.

MIDDLESEX AGAINST SUCH METHODS

The history of Middlesex County is against any such methods. The professional gangsters are in jail for long terms, the speaker declared. The prosecution of the carban murderers brought the era of gangdom to a close in Middlesex County, Mr. Bishop said. Just prior to that case, there were fifty cases of armed robbery in quick succession. Every day, when a person would pick up a paper, he would find a story of a hold-up, but after the jury found those three men guilty of murder in the first degree, armed robbery ceased in Middlesex County. A change came over night, and Middlesex County is now practically free of this lawlessness.

Mr. Bishop said that his office tried to enforce law at the least expense to the tax payers. When his chief, District Attorney Bushnell came into office, the budget amounted to $270,000. That was four years ago. A system of economy was inaugurated to cut down this figure. A system of examination and preparation of cases before presentation to the grand jury was taken up, and all private detectives released. State and city police officers were used to round up criminals instead and at the end of the year, $60,000 were turned back to the county treasurer. The second year, $20,000 more was cut from the budget and the next year $50,000 more was turned back making a total of $150,000 saved to the tax payer in three years.

POLICE SCHOOL INAUGURATED

During District Attorney Bushnell's regime, a police school was inaugurated, which was praised highly by the speaker. He said that the police officer is a professional person and should be trained like the lawyers and district attorneys. The school was taught by noted criminologists, and offered the opportunity for the officers to come to court prepared. Mr. Bishop said that in event he is elected district attorney he would continue

This year, once again, the Harvard crew goes to New London with more hope than confidence as far as varsity is concerned. The eighth Lea crew, so far all-conquering, looked too good to be beaten even by a Harvard crew which has improved vast since arriving at Red Top.

Leader has lost only one race Harvard—only four in all since coming to Yale—and with a veteran stroke one of the finest in the land, and with eight men who have had the advantage of rowing together without shift since the season started, back in April, once again should be a winner.

The Crimson, defeated by four crew and victor over two, has improved the record made last year by the late of the Ed Brown-coached eight. Still, when Harvard arrived at Red Top, pretty much disorganized as a result of various uncertainties, the L. Orville Wright

On Dec. 17, 1903, at Kill Devil Hill, North Carolina, Orville Wright sat in a crude airplane, turned a few levers and switches and then left the ground for a flight of one minute in the first successful heavier-than-air flying machine. He reached a height of 900 feet. When the world heard of this it gasped in amazement and incredulity.

It was said that his elder brother, Wilbur Wright, was the leading inventive genius, but it was certainly Orville whose daring spirit led him to undertake the first perilous flight.

Since that time Orville Wright and Wilbur Wright have been regarded as the real founders of the science of aeronautics. Wilbur died in 1912, but Orville, lean, tactiturn Yankee, has devoted his entire life for the past three decades to the advancement of aviation. Many of his achievements have been scarcely less important than his first great feat at Kill Devil Hill. He has flown little the past 20 years, devoting himself mostly to his laboratory.

EMMA MARIE GIES BRIDE OF ATTY. W. J. MacDONALD

Ceremony Performed at St. Edward's Church by Rev. Fr.
Leo J. O'Leary.

One of June's prettiest and most impressive wedding ceremonies was that performed late Monday afternoon at St. Edward's Roman Catholic church, when Miss Emma Marie Gies, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gies, 860 North Montello street, became the bride of Atty. Walter J. MacDonald, son of Angus MacDonald, 90 Ellis street. Hundreds of relatives and friends gathered for the rite at the church and 200 or more guests later greeted the popular young couple at the home of the bride's parents.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. Leo J. O'Leary with the complete marriage ritual of the Roman Catholic church. The sanctuary was a bower of floral bouquets, palms and fernery and the path of the wedding procession was strewn with rose petals.

THE ATTENDANTS

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Louise H. Gies, and Atty. MacDonald's brother, George E. MacDonald, was best man. The bride was attired in a gown of ivory Duchess satin with appliqued net yoke. Her veil, was of silk net with cap of Irish point lace caught up with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and lilies of the valley. The only article of jewelry worn by the bride was a string of pearls, the gift of the groom.

Her maid wore an attractive gown of peach chiffon and net with hat to match. She carried an arm bouquet of butterfly roses.

The bride's mother who assisted in receiving wore a gown of blue turquoise crepe with a corsage bouquet of gardenias. The bride's going away gown was of blue chiffon and lace with hat and chiffon velvet coat to match.

The wedding march was played by Mrs. Veronica English, organist at St. Edward's church. Prior to the procession to the altar, Fred D. Hendrick, tenor, sang "O Salutaris" and before the bridal party left the sanctuary, he sang, "Panis Angelicus."

RECEPTION IS HELD

Music at the reception was provided by a three-piece orchestra.

The reception rooms were tastefully decorated with cut flowers, potted plants, palms and ferns. A beautifully decorated wedding cake was cut by the bride and distributed among the guests. A catered lunch was served.

Atty. and Mrs. MacDonald received a wealth of gifts from their many relatives and friends in and about Brockton. So costly was the array that police protection was afforded it during the entire afternoon and evening.

The bride's gift to her maid was a white gold wrist-watch and the groom presented his best man with a wrist watch. Combination nail-file and comb sets, each monogrammed, were presented the ushers who included: Bernard MacDonald, cousin of the groom; V. Peter Gies and Aodolph F. Gies, brothers of the bride, Albert F. Trosky, nephew of the bride, George S. Whelan and Harry W. Sherburne.

Atty. and Mrs. MacDonald left late in the evening on a motor trip to Canada and the Great Lakes. They plan to be away two weeks and upon return, will reside at 90 Ellis street.

BOTH WELL KNOWN

Atty. MacDonald is one of the most popular and capable of the younger law practitioners in Brockton. He is a graduate of the Brockton Grammar and High schools and of Suffolk Law school. Since passing the Massachusetts bar, he has been a member of the law firm of Thorndike and MacDonald. Atty. MacDonald is an active member of the Canadian Club of Boston, Division I, A. O. H., and the Brockton Boiler Bake club.

The romance which culminated in the nuptials Monday afternoon had its inception in the office where Atty. MacDonald has worked since becoming a lawyer. Miss Gies for several years had been stenographer in the office and a friendship between her and Atty. MacDonald had ripened into affection before many of the young people's friends became aware of it. It was not until a month ago that even Atty. Thorndike learned of the approaching wedding.

Mrs. MacDonald is also a graduate of Brockton schools and is one of the cleverest court stenographers in this state. She is a member of the Twentieth Century Catholic club and is one of the few women in Massachusetts to possess the title of master of chancery.

Local Students Receive Diplomas

That Swampscott was well represented in the leading colleges and prep schools throughout the country during the past year is clearly shown by the large number of local boys and girls who are receiving diplomas this week and the many students who received their sheepskins during the past week. This year's list of Swampscott boys and girls who are departing from various institutions of learning is the largest ever.

Swampscott's representatives from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology were John Aurdias, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Andrias, 93 Burrill street, who received the degree of Bachelor of Science. He was also commissioned a second lieutenant of engineers in the Officers' Reserve group. During his four years at Tech he was a member of the Civil Engineering society, the Architectural society, the S. A. M. E., and the Archimedes club. Arioch Wentworth Erickson, J., son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Wentworth Erickson, Monument avenue, was awarded several high medals and received recognition in English composition and other activities at M. I. T. The other Swampscott representative at M. I. T. was Richard K. Phillips, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. One of the prettiest weddings of the summer season took place in St. John's church this morning at 8 o'clock when Miss Hazel Julia Smith became the bride of William Howard Reynolds of Mansfield. Rev. Thomas McLean celebrated high nuptial mass, and the double ring marriage service was used. Special music was rendered during the service. Mrs. Ethel Weimert, sister of the bride was matron of honor and Francis Fox of Mansfield was best man. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Smith of 291 South Main st., and the bridegroom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Reynolds of 25 Rock st., Mansfield. Guests were present from Providence, Taunton, Mansfield, Boston, New York and this city. A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents in South Main st. after the ceremony, and later the bride and groom left on an automobile trip to New York, Buffalo and other points of interest. They will reside in North Main st., Mansfield. The home was attractively decorated with cut flowers for the breakfast and reception.

The bride's gown was of white crepe with long tulle veil caught with orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. The matron of honor was attired in a dress of yellow crepe and picture hat and she carried an arm bouquet of pink roses.

Both the bride and groom are well known here and in Mansfield. Mrs. Reynolds was born in this city and attended the public schools. She has been employed at the C. H. Eden Co. Mr. Reynolds was born in Boston and graduated from schools in Boston and a military school in New York. He is employed as manager of the Mansfield Lumber Co. and is also a student at the Suffolk Law school in Boston. The young couple were the recipients of many gifts and congratulations.

Robert H. (Bunny) Ferrick who was graduated this week from Waltham High made a record for perfect attendance that probably no other member of the class can equal. Entering school in the Roberts District when six years old, he spent the first four years in the school in that section and continued his course at the Newhall and Banks Schools, often being obliged to walk the distance from his home on Hartwell street, about three miles, when the busses were delayed by storms. Not only has he never been absent but he has also never received a tardy mark and the only time out of the regular school sessions was when he attended the funeral of his grandfather. Then he went to school and registered, attended the services and returned to his building to avoid an absent mark. Young Ferrick, youngest of a family of four children, is son of Mrs. Ethel M. Ferrick and the late Henry Ferrick, his father having died when he was only four years of age. All four children, three boys and a girl, have been graduate from High School, the second boy, Henry, having just received his degree from the Suffolk Law School.

SUFFOLK LAW SCHOOL
Boston, Mass.

The school is one of the most widely known law schools in America. Students are no longer confined to the New England states, but are received from practically every state in the Union as well as from Canada and the British Isles. The fact that one may attend either the day or the evening classes while earning a living appeals to the ambitious youth who would otherwise be unable to secure a legal education. Men who occupy important positions in their home towns, teachers, superintendents of schools, bank officers, druggists, public officials and the like lay aside their honors and secure humble employment in Boston for four years while attending Suffolk law school. Such men prove exceptionally good students.

MANSFIELD ACCUSED OF INSINCERITY

Dean Archer Replies
Suffolk Alumni Dinner

Exception to the remarks of Frederick W. Mansfield, president of the Massachusetts Bar Association, was told the graduating class of E. Law School yesterday that "it is too easy to become a member of the bar in Massachusetts" was taken by one of the principal speakers last night at the fourth annual banquet of the Suffolk Law School Alumni Association in the Elks Hotel.

Dean Gleason L. Archer, who described Mr. Mansfield's remarks as reopening of the old question of "whether we shall have an aristocracy or democracy at the bar," accused the president of the Massachusetts Bar Association of insincerity in bewailing the fact that a bar applicant need only fulfill two years in an evening high school in order to be freed of passing an examination as to general education.

Dean Archer said that last year he presented to the Legislature a bill which would make it necessary for every bar applicant to have a high school education. At that time, he said, he invited Mr. Mansfield "to come up and fight for it."

"This," declared Dean Archer, "is the first he has said about it."

Dean Archer, offering a refutation of the charge that admission to the bar in this State is made too easy, declared that after watching the Massachusetts bar examinations for the past 25 years he had reached the conclusion that the examinations of today are much harder than those of a quarter of a century ago, that much more difficult requirements are demanded than the time when "Mr Mansfield and I were admitted to the bar."

Thomas J. Boynton, president of the board of trustees of Suffolk, told the 252 members of the 1930 class attending the alumni dinner, "You are every one a free thinker as to the affairs of this country, as to its laws and as to what the laws ought to be. In this there is great hope for the future."

"You haven't been 'milled' through certain prescribed university courses," he went on, "because capitalists have so dictated it."

James H. Brennan, past president of the Suffolk alumni, seconded the sentiments of the other speakers and told the graduates not to let "these men give you an inferiority complex." He pointed out the numerous Suffolk graduates who have won fame in their profession and said that Suffolk men challenge the graduates of any other law school in ability, integrity and character.

George H. Spillane of Lowell, president of the alumni association, was toastmaster. His greetings to the senior class were responded to by the class president, James A. Glynn. Other speakers included presidents of the various Suffolk Law School Alumni groups in communities throughout Greater Boston.

PROGRAM HIGHLIGHTS

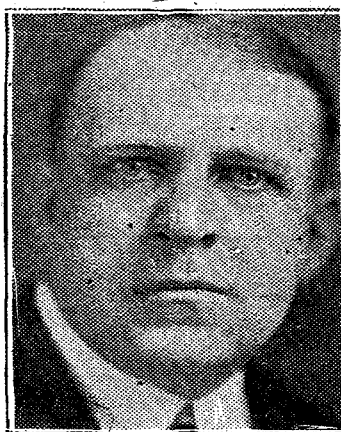

Senator David I. Walsh will tell listeners of WTA* and associated stations "How the New England Confederation Paved the Way for a Nation," in a broadcast this evening at 7.15 o'clock.

Senator Walsh will be presented as one of the speakers in the series entitled Heroes and Patriots which the National Broadcasting company is broadcasting under the direction of Dean Gleason L. Archer of Suffolk Law school, Boston.

Senator Walsh will trace the similarities of origin between the New England Confederation in 1643 and the confederation of the Thirteen Colonies more than a century later. John Winthrop, of the early group, and Samuel Adams, of the Revolutionary group, will be depicted, together with their chief associates in both of these nationalistic movements.

The Happy Wonder Bakers will present a new type of program featuring Frank Black's Singing Violins beginning with the broadcast at 9.30 p. m. The Singing Violins is a group which simulates the sound of human voices on the violin. Black is arranger and director. The instrumentalists will play "Allah's Holiday" from Rudolph Friml's operetta success of a decade ago, "Katinka."

As another feature of the new series there will be presented each week a medley of old songs by a popular composer. The July 1 program features five numbers by Irving Berlin, each of which contributed to his establishment as a modern composer.

...population, than it is in the Boston that is Boston, with a population (guessed at largely) of 776,000.

One of the most interesting speakers and writers of whom I have any knowledge is Gleason L. Archer, dean of the Suffolk Law School, who built up that institution against odds and who doesn't intend to allow anybody to speak slightly of the blushing young lawyers of today—I understand that some of them do blush—and not say something about it. On Saturday President Mansfield of the Massachusetts Bar Association, addressing the graduating class of the Boston University Law School, said that it was too easy to become a member of the bar in Massachusetts. That very evening, talking to the Suffolk Law School Alumni Association, Dean Archer accused Mansfield of insincerity and declared that, when he had presented a bill to the Legislature which would compel every candidate for the bar to have a high school education, he had invited Mansfield to "come up and fight for it," but he had heard nothing from Mansfield until his remarks to the Boston University's graduating class.

That strikes me as very fair criticism. I do not know whether it is too easy to become a lawyer in Massachusetts, but I know that it is too easy to remain a lawyer in Massachusetts, and I wonder why it is. I understand that the bar association of which Mr. Mansfield is the head, is house-cleaning as Mr. Mansfield's utterances would imply. My own opinion is that, if annually not more than fifty per cent of the crooked lawyers could be removed from competition with honest lawyers, there would be fewer complaints of over-crowding in the profession.

Notables of the concert and entertainment world, including Elizabeth Lennox, contralto, appear on the schedule of WTAG next week. Speakers are headed by Sen. David I. Walsh. Miss Lennox, and Frank Lapitino, harpist, are to be presented as guest artists on the Mobiloil concert.

Elizabeth Lennox is one of the most sought after radio stars today. Selected by a prominent newspaper as "the most popular radio contralto in America," her golden voice has been heard on many national programs.

Senator Walsh will tell listeners "How the New England Confederation Paved the Way for a Nation," Tuesday at 7:15 p. m.

Senator Walsh will be presented as one of the speakers in the series entitled "Heroes and Patriots" which the National Broadcasting company is broadcasting under the direction of Dean Gleason, professor of Suffolk Law School, Boston.

"I'm patriotic," says Ripley in his broadcast at 7:30, Monday. "And I'm going to celebrate the Fourth of July along with everyone else, but—"

"The Declaration of Independence was not signed on July 4. John Hancock was not the author. Massachusetts is not a state. In fact, there are only 44 states at the present time. The Liberty Bell is of English origin. The British still own a part of what is considered United States soil. Washington's birthday is not really on Feb. 22. There are spots in the United States which Volstead did not intend to make dry, and which neither U. S. federal authorities nor the state police can legally raid."

During the broadcast, Ripley will also ask Ed Whitney, veteran radio actor who is "leader" of the band, to play a song from which the word "Gringo" had its origin. He will also ask the boys to play the musical ancestor of "Yankee Doodle."

ON THE AIR
By Steve Fitzgerald

Two well-known songsters will be featured this evening during the Daily Record radio hour. They are May Blake, the popular warbler of "blues," and Frank Machado, one of Boston's favorite tenors. Both these stars have been heard frequently on the air and have a host of fans. Others who will entertain on this program are Irving Zathmary and "Little Mitzi." Base-ball scores and news flashes will be included in this broadcast, which will come to you via WLOE at 6:30 p. m.

The address of welcome to the ENKS' national convention, which opens today at Atlantic City, by Gov. Morgan J. Larsen of New Jersey and the reply by Walter P. Andrews, grand exalted ruler of the famous fraternal organization, will be broadcast at 10:15 p. m. over WNAC.

Paul Revere's severest rival, the Prince of Wales, will be heard over WEEL, WBZA and WNAC this afternoon at 4:25, the feature being relayed from London to the NBC system.

And Columbus' severest rival, Wendell Hall (who is hailed as the discoverer of many of the most popular radio entertainers of today), will be heard during tonight's Shell program.

Eden Phillpott's comedy of English country life, "The Farmer's Wife," will be broadcast at 11:30 a. m. today over WNAC, with Mr. and Mrs. Coburn performing the various roles. Mrs. Coburn will be heard as four different women, all wooed by a single Devonshire farmer with wooing as a hobby. Mr. Coburn will enact the part of the wooing expert.

The wedding ceremonies uniting Albert Crockett of the "Crockett Mountaineers" of Sharpburg, Ky., and Josephine Phillips of Pineville, Ky., will be broadcast Wednesday evening at 7 by WABC. In the studios of which the marriage will take place. While marriages on the stage, in tiger cages, in airplanes, in submarines, have often taken place, this is the first case I've ever heard of where a wedding will be broadcast.

At 7:15 p. m. the Icardi-Cher... on the air with a program of old time melodies, reels and waltzes such as have marked the presentations since they first took the air will make up the greater part of the program.

John F. Fitzgerald will be heard on the radio tomorrow evening as this week's guest speaker of the Hero and Patriots' stories conducted by Dean Gleason L. Archer.

Not to be outdone by his distinguished son, Ed Windsor, the Majesty King George V of England will be heard by radio listeners throughout most of the U.S. tomorrow morning if an attempted rebroadcast from London proves successful. Imperial prince and royal son will be heard by American listeners within 24 hours of each other if NBC's technicians can get the King's voice broadcasted air and into a mike at their American headquarters.

More than 150 applicants for the announcers' audition test... at the Columbia studios in New York last week. The applicants ranged from grocery store clerks to political orators and famous comedians. Ten per cent of the applicants were foreigners, some whom found it impossible to pronounce difficult English words. But they weren't going to let anything approaching correctness lack of trying, anyhow.

NEVER LATE OR TARDY

Waltham Senior Has Perfect Attendance Record

ROBERT E. FERRICK

Waltham High School boy, who terminated his school career last week without ever having been absent or tardy.

Among the members of the 1930 class of Waltham High School, there is one who stands out conspicuously for his perfect record of attendance during his school career. He is Robert E. Ferrick, 17, son of Mrs. Ethel M. Ferrick and the late Henry Ferrick of 9 Hartwell street, Waltham.

Entering school in the Roberts district when six years of age, he spent the first four years in the school in that section and continued his course at the Newhall and Banks schools, often being obliged to walk the distance of about three miles from his home, when the busses were delayed by storms.

His record is not only in general attendance. He has never received a tardy mark, and the only time he has been out of the regular school sessions was when he attended the funeral of his grandmother. Then he went to school and registered, attended the funeral services, and returned to school to avoid an absent mark.

Robert is the youngest of a family of four children, all of whom have graduated from Waltham High School. The second boy, Henry, has just received his degree from the Suffolk Law School.

REYNOLDS SMITH

Many friends and relatives attended the nuptial mass celebrated in St. John's Catholic church in Attleboro by the Reverend Father McLean last Saturday morning at 8 o'clock at which William Howard Reynolds of this town and Miss Hazel Julia Smith of Attleboro were united in marriage. The couple were attended by Mrs. Ethel Weimert, sister of the bride who acted as bridesmaid, and Francis J. Fox, of this town, who was best man.

After the single ring ceremony the guests returned to the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James P. Smith on South Main street, where a reception was held for the bridal couple, following which was a wedding breakfast, prepared by an Attleboro caterer.

The new Mrs. Reynolds is a native of Attleboro, having received her education in the public schools of that city. Mr. Reynolds is well known in this town, having attended the public schools; graduating with the class of 1924 at the High School. He is now attending Suffolk Law School in Boston. Having for some time been employed at the Mansfield Lumber Co. he was recently promoted to the position of manager for that concern.

After an automobile trip to New York Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds will be at home to their many friends after July fourth at 89 North Main street in this town.

[Special to The Standard.]

Harwich, July 7—Among the 252 graduates of Suffolk Law school to receive L.L.B. degrees at commencement exercises were four who had already passed the bar examination. One of these was Gershom D. Hall of this village, who is now a candidate for the Legislature from the second Barnstable district.

Mr. Hall and the three other students, with special permission of the bar examiners, took the tests in December and passed successfully, thus being eligible to practice before receipt of their degree and completion of their college course. Mr. Hall has opened an office at the Harwich inn, of which he is manager. He is well known here, being a native of this village and for several years conducted the G. D. EIGHT CANDIDATES Saugus may have the unusual distinction of presenting eight candidates for the House of Representatives in the coming primaries of the Republican and Democratic parties this September. From present indications five of them will seek the Republican nomination with three in a mad scramble upon the Democratic side of the ledger. The district includes Saugus, Lynnfield and Wards One, Six and Seven of Lynn.

The five Republicans will doubtless be Welcome W. McCullough, Central street, Saugus Centre; Harry Woodward, 72 Spencer avenue, East Saugus; Wallace Campbell, 373 Lincoln avenue, Cliftondale; C. F. Nelson Pratt, 3 Johnston terrace, Cliftondale; and Albert C. Day, Emory street, Saugus Centre.

The three Democrats are expected to be Tony A. Garofano, Summer street, Saugus Centre; Charles M. O'Connor, Ernest street, Cliftondale; and M. Edward Hayes, Lincoln avenue, Cliftondale.

McCullough, who made the run for the Republican nomination two years ago, came very close to winning at that time. He has seen many years of service upon the school committee and is generally well known throughout the town.

Woodward has seen four years of service upon the Board of Selectmen and several years upon the Finance Committee.

Campbell is serving his second year upon the Board of Selectmen and is a former member of the Board of Aldermen in the city of Medford.

Pratt is now completing his fourth year of service in the House of Representatives. He has also seen several years of service previously upon the Board of Selectmen.

Day has never held political office in Saugus but is fairly well known throughout the town.

Garofano is now serving his seventh year in the House of Representatives. He is well known throughout the district and is undoubtedly the strongest of the eight candidates from Saugus.

O'Connor is the present director of State Aid and Soldiers' Relief. He has lived in Saugus for many years and has a wide acquaintance.

Hayes is an instructor of civil government at the local senior high school. He is a graduate of New Hampshire State University and of Suffolk Law school, Boston.

Of the eight candidates only two are veterans of the World War. They are McCullough and Hayes, the former serving in the army during the war and the latter in the navy.

A white satia canopy with a profusion of summer flowers decorated the living room at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Shulman of the Eastern Promenade this afternoon when their daughter, Miss Ida Shulman, became the bride of Herbert W. Rosen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Rosen of Vine Street, Everett, Mass. The Rev. Hyman Shapiro officiated, using the single ring service, and the wedding marches were played by Miss Anne Sletnick.

The bride wore a gown of pink chiffon with hat and accessories to match. She carried a shower bouquet of roses and sweet peas. Mrs. Abraham Lamper of Pessenden Street was the matron of honor, her gown being of flowered chiffon, with hat and shoes in harmony. She wore a corsage of roses.

Mr. Rosen had as his best man, his brother, Sidney Rosen, of Everett, Mass.

An informal reception and wedding breakfast followed the ceremony which was attended by about 60 immediate relatives of the couple and their friends. The dining room was decorated with pink and white.

Mr. Rosen and his bride will go on a trip to the White Mountains, Mrs. Rosen wearing an ensemble of yellow and black for traveling. Upon their return they will reside at Everett, Mass.

Mrs. Rosen is a graduate of the Portland High School and Gorham Normal School. For the past few years she has taught in the South Portland schools. She has been prominent in Y. W. H. A. affairs in this city.

Mr. Rosen attended the McDonnell School of Pharmacy and was graduated from the Suffolk Law School. He is prominent in the Knights of Pythias order of Boston and Bellingham Lodge of Chelsea, Mass., also being a member of the executive board of the New England Y. M. H. A., and Y. W. H. FIELDING'S CANDIDACY FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL

Henry P. Fielding, Democratic candidate for Attorney General of the Commonwealth, has been a practicing attorney for over a quarter of a century. He is married and resides with his wife and children at 15 Montague street, Dorchester. Mrs. Fielding is the daughter of Inspector John W. Deehan, retired, of the Cambridge police Department. One son is a chemical engineer with the Goodyear Tire Company at Akron, Ohio; another son has just finished at Harvard, a daughter is a senior at Emmanuel College (Notre Dame), and a third son attends Boston College High School.

Mr. Fielding served for fifteen years as assistant district attorney in Suffolk County under three district attorneys including the late Joseph C. Pelletier for whom Mr. Fielding always entertained a most loyal affection. Mr. Fielding resigned voluntarily under the administration of District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien to engage in the private practice of his profession and now maintains an independent suite of offices at 53 State street. While serving as assistant district attorney, in fifteen years Mr. Fielding tried and handled many important cases. At one time he tried cases for the Commonwealth almost continuously for a sustained period of five years. He prepared many of the Commonwealth's briefs for the Supreme Court, and argued a number of cases before the full bench. While in the district attorney's office, he performed a major part of presentation of cases to the Grand Jury, and prosecuted a number of murder cases, including the case of Commonwealth v. Dascalakis, which was before the Supreme Court three times, resulting in final decision for the Commonwealth. While in the district attorney's office Mr. Fielding disposed of many routine cases by recommendation to the Court, and his recommendations were uniformly accepted by the Court without question.

Mr. Fielding has also sat as auditor and master on references from the Supreme Judicial Court and from the Superior Court. In addition to his many professional duties he has lectured on the subject of criminal law and the subject of agency for ten years at Suffolk Law School.

He is a member of the American Bar Association, Massachusetts Bar Association, Boston Bar Association, Spanish War Veterans, Knights of Columbus, Bishop Cheverus Assembly, Elks, Charitable Irish Society, Catholic Alumni Sodality, Boston University Law School Association, Suffolk Law Alumni Association, Savin Hill Yacht Club and Boston City Club.

Igmus and Intellec, whose quaint spirituals and lively harmonizing of popular tunes have won them a large radio following, will combine their vocal chords as the feature of tonight's Daily Record hour over WLOE. May Blake, who moans a mean blues number, will also be heard on this program, together with Irving Zathmary, Ann Demirjian and Dorothy Faine. Final baseball scores and Daily Record news flashes will complete the hour, which starts at 6:30 p. m.

Rear Admiral Byrd may have decided to go exploring in New Hampshire during his vacation, but his exploits will still be recited on the air when George W. Tennant, chief cook of the Byrd South and North Pole expeditions, gives a talk this morning during the Canny Cook program over WBZA. George is a "natural" for this radio featured, sponsored by the National Cannery Association as due to his officiating in such inaccessible places he has probably opened more cans than any other cook of his high reputation.

Chick Endor, vaudeville and musical comedy, will be the star in this evening's Mardi Gras which WNAC will broadcast for the local listeners.

Dance numbers from the first Bohemian opera, "The Bartered Bride," will be played over WBZA tonight at 10 by the Rochester Civic Orchestra.

George Gershwin will be guest pianist and William M. Daly will be guest conductor of the General Motors Family Party this evening. As one feature of George's air work, he will play for the first time over the radio several of his better known numbers, including "Liza," "Fascinating Rhythm" and "Wonderful." He will be accompanied by the orchestra in this melange of melodies.

ly watch the Daily Record's radio popularity poll with eagle eye, judging from many letters received. For instance, Agnes Nicholas of Deering, Me., sends the following missive:

"I read in On the Air recently that Rudy Vallee was to be in Boston July 28. If you are talking to him that day, please wish him a happy birthday for me. He comes to Westbrook today—that's only a little way from here, and you can't imagine how excited the people are. I'm following the poll very intently and you can tell who I'm hoping to win. And don't forget to tell every little item of news about Rudy."

Well, here's one little item that should interest Miss Nicholas and the other folks down that way. "What a Perfect Night for Love," Rudy's latest — and they do say, greatest — song hit, will be found, words and music, with every copy of tomorrow's Daily Record. And no advance in price! For two cents you get tomorrow's Record — also Rudy's new song, which report says is likely to eclipse even the Stein Song in popularity.

A selection from Victor Herbert's Indian grand opera "Natomma" (one of the few successful American grand operas, by the way) will be played by the A & P. Gypsies this evening over the air.

Dean Gleason L. Archer of Boston's Suffolk Law School, whose talks are always straight and to the point, will tell over WBZA tomorrow evening why no act can be a crime unless committed with criminal intent. This will be the third of Dean Archer's series of radio talks on "Laws That Safeguard Society."

SUFFOLK LAW ALUMNI AT ANNUAL OUTING

Dunlop Hits Back at Bushnell Report

DRACUT, July 24—Speaking at the banquet tonight which climaxed the annual outing of the Suffolk Law Alumni Association, Kenneth Dunlop of Newton, candidate for the Republican nomination for district attorney took occasion to reply to a purported statement recently made by Dist Atty Robert Bushnell.

Charging that Mr Bushnell, speaking in behalf of Warren L. Bishop's candidacy said that other candidates were trying to ride into the office on his reputation. Mr Dunlop stated: "I want to inform Mr Bushnell and all others that I am not trying to secure the office on his name or reputation. I am standing solely on my qualifications and I hope this declaration will dispel any report to the contrary."

Other speakers included Dean Gleason L. Archer of Suffolk Law School, George H. Spillane of Lowell, president of the association; Secretary Alden H. Cleveland of Boston, James O'Hearn, president Lowell Suffolk Law; Thomas J. Finnegan, vice president of the association, and William J. Kelley, president of the Malden Suffolk Club.

During the afternoon a program of sports was carried out, prizes being awarded the winners. In the ball game the single men captained by Joel Miller of Boston, defeated the married men captained by James Glynn, Boston, 11 to 10.

George E. Murphy, Lowell, won the golf driving contest; Milton I. Smith, Boston, captured first prize in the 100-yard dash. Teams known as the Lightweights and Heavyweights engaged in a tug of war with the little fellows winning the cup.

FIELDING GOES FOR BALLOT

Former Dist-Atty. Henry P. Fielding of Suffolk County has filed 1930 certified signatures with Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook for the Democratic nomination for attorney general.

This action assures his name going on the ballot in the primary. Although Fielding has been a practicing lawyer for more than a quarter of a century and has been a resident of Boston for 20 years, he lived for long periods in Worcester and Middlesex counties, where he has many friends.

The candidate lives with his wife at 15 Montague st., Dorchester. They have four children: John, a graduate of M. I. T. and now with a tire company in Ohio; Robert D., who has just completed four years at Harvard; Louise, R. senior at Emanuel College, and Edmund K., a junior at Boston College high school.

He is a member of the Boston Bar Association, Massachusetts Bar Association, American Bar Association, United Spanish War Veterans, Knights of Columbus, Bishop Cerverus Assembly, 9th Massachusetts Volunteers, Catholic Alumni Society, Boston University Law School Association, Suffolk Law Alumni Association, Savin Hill Yacht Club and Boston City Club.

Democratic Candidate for the United States Senate

Communication

June 26, 1930.

To the Editor Whitman Times:—
As a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the office of United States Senator in the Primaries in September, I felt you might wish to use a cut and I am enclosing one herewith which I hope you may be able to use in connection with whatever attention you may feel my candidacy is entitled to.

It is my intention to wage a vigorous campaign from this time on and I shall appreciate the privilege of being allowed to send you, from time to time, such material concerning the campaign as I think will be of interest and which you may feel may be of sufficient public importance to carry in your paper.

I also include herewith a brief sketch for your files.

Thanking you for whatever courtesies you may extend to me in this matter, I am,

Very respectfully yours,
JOSEPH F. O'CONNELL

SKETCH OF LIFE

Hon. Joseph F. O'Connell was born in Boston December 7, 1872, the son of James and Elizabeth O'Connell; attended Boston College, receiving the degree of A. B. in 1893, and Harvard Law School, receiving the degree of LL B in 1899;

Former Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell, one of the candidates for the Democratic nomination for United States senator who has announced he will remain in the race irrespective of what decision today's conference makes, is a native of Boston and a graduate of Boston College in 1893 and of Harvard Law School in 1896.

He served in Congress from 1907 to 1914, resuming practice of law with his brothers, one of whom is Judge Daniel T. O'Connell of Superior Court, when his second Washington term expired. He spent three years, 1918, 1919 and 1920, in the Massachusetts Constitutional Convention and was appointed by the then Gov. David I. Walsh a member of the commission on uniform state laws, being succeeded by Gov. McCall, Gov. Coolidge, Gov. Cox and Gov. Allen. He served as national vice president.

He is a member of the American Bar Association and a life member of the American Law Institute, serving the last four years on the committee to draft a uniform criminal code. Former Congressman O'Connell is also a member of the Massachusetts Bar Association, the City of Boston Bar Association, the Harvard Clubs in Boston and in New York and the University Club of Boston. He is also a vice president of the American-Irish Historical Society and a member of the Moose, Elks, A. O. H., and the Young Men's Catholic Association of Boston.

Former Congressman O'Connell served with President Hoover when the latter was secretary of Commerce on the National Safety Council in 1927-28-29. He is an incorporator of the Suffolk Law School in Boston and a founder of the Fibernia Savings Bank of Boston.

He is married and has 11 children. Former Congressman O'Connell favors repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act and favors state control of liquor. He is against the "Hoover-Grundy" tariff which he charges raises the cost of living and is making enemies of foreign countries. He is also against alliances with other nations and favors curbing the growth of the chain store and the chain bank, claiming they are stifling the country's individuality and growth.

He would readjust and broaden the Federal Reserve Bank's powers that a financial panic such as gripped the country last fall might be averted and he opposes giant consolidations of railroads. He would also liberalize the World War veteran treatment.

ACCUSED OF INSINCERITY

Archer Replies at Suffolk Alumni Dinner

Exception to the remarks of Frederick W. Mansfield, president of the Massachusetts Bar Association, who told the graduating class of B. U. Law School yesterday that "it is too easy to become a member of the bar in Massachusetts" was taken by all the principal speakers last night at the fourth annual banquet of the Suffolk Law School Alumni Association in the Elks Hotel.

Dean Gleason L. Archer, who described Mr. Mansfield's remarks as a reopening of the old question of "whether we shall have an aristocracy or a democracy at the bar," accused the president of the Massachusetts Bar Association of insincerity in bewailing the fact that a bar applicant need only fulfill two years in an evening high school in order to be freed of passing an examination as to general education.

Dean Archer said that last year he presented to the Legislature a bill which would make it necessary for every bar applicant to have a high school education. At that time, he said, he invited Mr. Mansfield "to come up and fight for it."

"This," declared Dean Archer, "is the first he has said about it."

Dean Archer, offering a refutation of the charge that admission to the bar in this State is made too easy, declared that after watching the Massachusetts bar examinations for

Thomas J. Boynton, president of the board of trustees of Suffolk, told the 252 members of the 1930 class attending the alumni dinner, "You are every one a free thinker as to the affairs of this country, as to its laws and as to what the laws ought to be. In this there is great hope for the future. 'You haven't been milled' through certain prescribed university courses," he went on, "because capitalists have so dictated it."

James H. Brennan, past president of the Suffolk alumni, seconded the sentiments of the other speakers and told the graduates not to let "these men give you an inferiority complex." He pointed out the numerous Suffolk graduates who have won fame in their profession and said that Suffolk men challenge the graduates of any other law school in ability, integrity and character.

George H. Spillane of Lowell, president of the alumni association, was toastmaster. His greetings to the senior class were responded to by the class president, James A. Glynn. Other speakers included presidents of the various Suffolk Law School Alumni groups in communities throughout Greater Boston.

On the Air Tonight.

That tenor you have been hearing on Tuesday nights in Columbia's series of Grand Opera Concerts is Theo Karle, who began his musical career at the age of fifteen in a church choir at Olympia, Washington. Three years later he became a member of the Standard Opera Company, and several years later he came East to appear as soloist with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra under Joseph Strinsky. After appearing in opera in Italy, he returned to this country to sign-up with the CBS.

The Grand Opera Miniature tonight (WABC and associated stations from 10:15 to 11 o'clock) will present Verdi's "La Traviata."

An all-Boston program by orchestra, trio and soprano soloist under the direction of Nathaniel Shilkret is Eveready's next contribution to radio entertainment (WEAF at 9). An abridged version of the "Fifth Symphony by the great composer of Bonn, and a portion of the chorus Ninth, are included on the program."

Further adventures of the old Cape Cod sea captains, Barzilla Wingate and Jonadab Wixon, will be recounted in the sketch over WITC stations at 7:30. In the "Old Home House," story of Joseph C. Lincoln which is the basis for this sketch, the pair seem to lack courage to fire Mrs. Gallup, the cook at the hotel which an aged aunt has bequeathed to them.

Ho Hum. R-K-O announces that its broadcast tonight (WEAF at 10:30) will be dedicated to the "optimists." A very wise dedication it is, in our opinion, for only the optimists have been enjoying most of R-K-O's recent air shows. Even the presence of Ruth Etting failed to save last week's.

"Ignorance of Law No Defence," an address by Gleason L. Archer over WEAF this evening at 7:15, is the first in a series of legal discussions intended to acquaint the layman with the fundamental laws that safeguard society.

Syndicate Radio Scenarios.

Radio scenarios written by well-known writers, including Irvin Cobb, Albert Payson Terhune, Wallace Irwin, and Samuel Hopkins Adams are to be syndicated, starting August 1, to small radio stations, according to reports. The Judson Radio Program Corp. is organizing the service, patented after newspaper syndicates, and the first effort of its kind in the radio field.

Judson believes a number of the 600-odd broadcasting stations outside the major networks, with their 140 outlets, will be attracted by the syndicate continuity idea. The range of subject-matter will be comprehensive and celebrities in many fields will be used. Included in the latter group already are Gene Sarazen for golf, Vincent Richards for tennis, Benny Leonard for boxing, Gertrude Ederle for swimming, Charles K. Harris for old-time songs, Burton Holmes for travel, Charles Paddeck for field sports, and Ernest Schelling for classical music.

In addition to the scenario or script form for the guidance of local stations desiring to stage their own programs, the completed programs will be given electrical transcriptions on discs.

LAUD OTIS AS FATHER OF LIBERTY

Legal Lights Honor Lawyer-Patriot of Colony

HYANNIS, July 26—Voices of leading legal lights of the present day were raised today in praise of James Otis, Jr., Revolutionary patriot-lawyer, in two programmes arranged in conjunction with the Massachusetts Bay tercentenary observance. Judge George W. Sanderson of the Massachusetts Supreme court and Judge Daniel T. O'Connell, of the superior bench, were among the principal speakers at the affairs, which has been arranged by the Barnstable County Bar Association.

AT OTIS BIRTHPLACE

The first programme was staged at 11 o'clock at the boulder at West Barnstable which marks the birthplace of Otis. After a band concert provided by musicians of the First Corps of Artillery, comprising the 21st Artillery corps, now encamped at South Sandwich, John D. W. Bodfish, Otis attorney and chairman of the committee, introduced Dean Gleason L. Archer of the Suffolk School of Law, Boston.

After speaking of various phases of the tercentenary celebration, Archer made a spirited attack on the "privileged" class which is seeking to raise the standards for law students. "Had there been conditions in my own youth such as prevail today, I could never have qualified to meet the requirements that the Association of American Law Schools is seeking to impose on the youth of America," he said. "The system which they advocate is known and discredited, the system of privilege from which our ancestors won freedom in the war of the Revolution." Dean Archer went on.

Emma F. Schofield, an assistant attorney general, was another speaker in the morning session, as was Heman A. Harding, president of the Barnstable County Bar Association.

At 7 o'clock dinner was served in the Oyster Harbors Club, at Osterville, after which there were speeches by Judge Heman, who used "The Spirit of Liberty" as his title; Judge O'Connell, with the theme "James Otis Citizen, Lawyer and Patriot," Judge Frederick T. Swift of the Barnstable district court; Judge Walter Welsh of Provincetown; and James Otis of Hyannisport, a grandson of the man honored today.

Judge O'Connell in his speech pointed out that the spirit of the whole British empire was challenged by Otis, a man who feared not the power of the empire of which he was then a citizen, nor the King who demanded obedience. John Adams, Judge O'Connell said, wrote of Otis and his challenge to empire and King: "I do say in the most solemn manner that Mr. Otis' oration against the Writs of Assistance breathed into this nation the breath of life."

"James Otis spoke as a lawyer and to a body of judges in a courtroom. Otis has been pictured, in large measure by historians, as a patriot of oratorical talent. His legal attainments have been glossed over by those who more keenly admired the power of speech that gave greater force to the appeals to the reasoning of the mind and the keenness of intellect."

Judge O'Connell then paralleled Otis with Lord Mansfield, who was acclaimed by historians of law and courts as the greatest chief justice the courts of the British empire ever produced.

Otis, Judge O'Connell told his hearers, had been graduated from Harvard, and after a few years practice at Plymouth, and then 10 years at Boston, found himself at last elevated to the office of advocate general.

"The courage of Otis found expression in his resignation from the office charged with supporting the power of England to enforce the writs of assistance. He at once became the advocate of the people, his fellow colonists needing a fearless champion to challenge the might of an empire to exercise a questioned right."

Wins in Hostile Court

"From that date the legal mind of Otis was pitted against the legal mind of Mansfield, for the attorneys who before the highest court of the colony argued in behalf of the crown, simply sought to uphold principles of law which the crown authorities in England said were sound and must be enforced. Perhaps no other court argument in the history of America during the colonial period, or since the establishment of the United States of America, has been referred to so often or quoted from by historians or biographers as the argument of Otis."

Judge O'Connell told how the colony judges were awed by the majesty of Otis' mind, the power of the king, the king's cabinet and the empire not being sufficient to sway them to a decision adverse to Otis and the people he spoke for. No judgment was ever pronounced, historians disputing whether writs of assistance were issued afterward.

"Thus did Otis, the lawyer, establish his mastery of mind and law over that of Lord Mansfield. What availed it to England that Mansfield advised George III, and the cabinet that the writs were legal. Otis prevailed, even in a hostile court, in establishing that they could not be enforced."

"The cause to which Otis gave life to triumphed. The man who first saw the light of day at Barnstable, enlightened the world. His challenge to the best legal mind of England did not remain unanswered. It was answered, but in vain. Might sought to prevail over right. It failed. Otis was the victor over Mansfield."

"I hope some Barnstable county man within my hearing, or the son or daughter, if the father is too busy, will compile and write for some one or more of your excellent newspapers, a series of articles on the services which James Otis, the son of Barnstable county, rendered to the United States of America in giving birth to the cause of liberty."

CAPE HONORS HERO'S MEMORY

Memorial Services Held for James Otis Jr., Revolutionary Patriot--Brewster Has Old Home Day

(Standard Cape Cod Bureau)

Hyannis, July 26—Memorial exercises for James Otis Jr., the Revolutionary patriot, and Old Home day at Brewster were features today on Cape Cod.

In the Otis memorial exercises, services were held at 10:45 A. M., at the boulder in West Barnstable marking his birthplace. The program consisted of a concert by the First Cadet Corps band, 211th coast artillery, which is encamped at South Sandwich. Then followed addresses by Heman A. Harding, President of the Barnstable County Bar association; Dean Gleason L. Archer of Suffolk Law school and Mrs. Emma Fall Schofield, assistant attorney general.

This afternoon at 2 P. M. in the Oyster Harbors club, Osterville, a banquet was to be held in the memory of Otis. At this affair, attended by the bar of this county and many other citizens, the chief speakers scheduled to be heard are: Judge George Augustus Sanderson

Supreme Court, and Judge Daniel Theodore O'Connell, Superior Court. The Hyannis Boys' band provided music for the dinner.

Otis, outstanding Cape Codder of history, was noted as an attorney and pre-Revolutionary firebrand. Born in West Barnstable, he set the colonies toward rebellion 10 years before outbreak of the Revolution.

A complete report of this occasion with the addresses of Justice Sanderson and Judge O'Connell in full will be found in The Sunday Standard.

Law Reduced by London Pact

Ohio Senator Tells Suffolk Law Graduates Hoover Will Call Senate in Session Next Week to Consider Naval Treaty

The London naval treaty will be considered by the United States Senate in special session next week, Senator Fess of Ohio declared in an address before 3000 persons at the 21st annual commencement of Suffolk Law school at Tremont Temple last night. He said that the Senate will be called into special session the day after adjournment of Congress.

Senator Fess confined his address to the attempts of the world nations during the past several years to bring about naval disarmament. He did not mention the tariff. The address was broadcast on the air by stations WZZM and WBZ.

The Senate and the House have about completed the program for which the Congress was assembled in special session some 15 months ago, he said, the legislation to be considered including domestic and foreign problems. The domestic part of the program has been completed and only awaits the signature of President Hoover. Of the foreign problems all that remains is the London naval treaty.

Though it was very warm the large audience of men, women and the graduating class of 255 seniors in their caps and gowns listened with marked attention as the senator explained the various manoeuvres since the Washington treaty seeking means to end war and in these he included the Geneva conference, the Kellogg-Briand pact and the latest treaty now before the Senate.

He pointed out that the London pact by declaring a holiday in capital ship building among Britain, America and Japan and reducing naval rivalry has lessened the possibility of war, reduced the burden of taxation, and ended the unhappy Anglo-Saxon alliance.

CONFER DEGREES

"Why should not the United States show a little patience," he demanded. "Britain has agreed to stop building altogether until America builds up to her and so has Japan. Britain has departed from her 20-year naval policy in order to make the conference a success. The question is will the Senate ratify what these men did at London. The field of peace is a cultivation of the will to peace." He paid high tribute to the members of the American naval commission and declared that their patriotism and leadership could never be doubted.

William R. Evans, president of the Boston Five Cent Savings Bank presided. Other speakers included Prof. George H. Spillane, Thomas J. Boynton, president of the board of trustees, who declared that no man is so high as to be above the law and no man is to decide whether he deserves the punishment of the law, and Dean Gleason L. Archer, who scored universities for attempting to create class distinction between the college man and the self-educated. He declared that Washington, Franklin, Jefferson, Jackson and Lincoln were self educated men and Edison is self educated. Dean Archer and Mr. Boynton conferred the degrees. The dean conferred the degree on his brother, Harold N. Archer of Augusta, Me. William F. Donovan, clerk of the municipal court, received an honorary degree.

Pacts Do Not Bring Peace

Senator Fess of Ohio comes to us and tells our graduates of the Suffolk Law School that these Leagues of Nations and these disarmament conferences do not bring permanent peace to the world.

Of course they don't. Pacts, in one form or another, are as old as history itself. They are labeled in the name of peace, always. And always they are formed not for peace but either to conserve the spoils of the last war or to band Nations together for the next. We have a law to brand impure foods. We ought to have one for these pacts, reading:

"Peace Food. Contains 99 per cent war and other deleterious substances."

The unfortunate thing is that men presumed to have the intelligence of Senator Fess go on voting for them.

Given Degree

Armand LeBlanc, formerly of this city, now practicing law in Westbrook, Me., was given LL.B. degree this week from Suffolk Law school. Mr. LeBlanc was admitted to the bar in Maine before he had received his law degree.

A native of Fitchburg, he came to New Bedford when a child and attended the public schools here. After passing the Maine examinations, Mr. LeBlanc first opened an office in Portland and then moved to Westbrook.

By special permission of Dean Gleason I. Archer of Suffolk Law school, Mr. LeBlanc was able to go to Boston and take the regular examinations without attending classes. Notice that he had successfully passed the examinations, making him eligible for the degree, this commencement, came to him a week ago.

SUFFOLK LAW HEARS FESS AT GRADUATION

Brother of Dean Archer
 19 Awarded Degree
 Honorary LLB Conferred on Clerk of Municipal Court

A defense of the steps taken by American delegates at the recent London conference, a vindication of the oft-cited Kellogg Peace Pact and an assurance that real progress has been made in the direction of lasting world peace were contained in the address delivered last night by Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio at the graduation exercises of Suffolk Law School in Tremont Temple. The American delegates, declared Senator Fess, are able and patriotic men who, contrary to criticism directed against them, would not permit this country to be placed at a disadvantage in the settlement of armament quotas. Already, he said, much has been accomplished in the cultivation of a will to peace. The Kellogg Pact, the speaker pointed out, has played a prominent part in the cultivation of this spirit. "It has been criticized as a gesture without force," he asserted. "I admit it has no force back of it other than public opinion, but I will not agree that it has no significance. It is a long step toward the lasting peace of the world."

Outlines Conferences
 Senator Fess told the graduating class of 252 members and the throng of persons filling the auditorium and galleries about the various conferences between the World Powers, beginning with the Washington Conference in 1921 and 1922 which resulted in the formation of the Pacific Pact. Step by step he outlined the work accomplished at the League of Nations, the conference at Geneva and the succeeding conferences, pointing out the difficulties encountered and the mix-ups that sometimes resulted. In conclusion he said: "In the cultivation of understanding between nations and the fostering of the will to peace none have a greater influence than our educated young men, especially those trained in the law."

Senator Fess' speech was broadcast over stations WBZ-WBZA. Among those who received their degrees from Thomas J. Boynton, president of the board of trustees, and Gleason L. Archer, dean and founder of the Suffolk Law School, was the dean's brother, Harold Norman Archer. An honorary LL B degree was conferred upon William F. Donovan, clerk of the Municipal Court; Wilnot R. Evans, secretary of the board of trustees, was the presiding officer, and opened the exercises with an address in which he warned the graduates against feeling that with their graduation their education at the bar had been completed. "You have yet to learn in active practice," he said, "the application of the ideals of your profession and the ideals of public service. It is a fallacy to say that the fundamental thing in the making of a lawyer is his education. You can't get real character training in school. It is far better for you to know how to be honest than to know your Blackstone. It is far better to have the ideals of your profession at heart than the technique. "It is an American boast that no man is so high as to be above the law. I might add, in answer to the sentiment of the Chief Justice in Chicago, that no man is too low to receive the shelter and care or the punishment he deserves at the hands of the law. If this Government is to continue the high and the low alike must be subject to its laws."

Dean Archer attacked the growing theory that self-educated men must take the way to the university educated men, citing the examples of Washington, Benjamin Franklin, Andrew

Gershom D. Hall, Harwich, Recent Law Graduate, Seeks Legislature Post

(Special to The Standard.)

Harwich, July 7—Among the 252 graduates of Suffolk Law school to receive L.L.B. degrees at commencement exercises were four who had already passed the bar examination. One of these was Gershom D. Hall of this village, who is now a candidate for the Legislature from the second Barnstable district.

Mr. Hall and the three other students, with special permission of the bar examiners, took the tests in December and passed successfully, thus being eligible to practice before receipt of their degree and completion of their college course. Mr. Hall has opened an office at the Harwich inn, of which he is manager. He is well known here, being a native of this village and for several years conducted the G. D. Hall corporation, a wholesale candy business.

Six Brockton and district graduates of Suffolk Law school received degrees of bachelor of law at the commencement exercises in Tremont Temple, Boston, Tuesday night. They were: Thomas Edward Walker, 7 Goddard road, a member of the Enterprise editorial staff, who delivered the salutatory address; Major Cornelius Francis Dineen of 118 Forest avenue; Edward Spillane of 72 Brook street; Raymond Eugene Harlow, South Easton; Frank Flakow, Stoughton; and Robert Latham, Abington.

The afternoon exercises were in the large theatre in the Suffolk Law school building and the evening exercises in Tremont Temple. Atty. Wilnot R. Evans of the board of trustees presided and gave a talk in which he stressed the necessity of character and ethical conduct of a lawyer. Former Atty.-Gen. Thomas J. Boynton of the board of trustees gave a pleasing talk in which he spoke in a fatherly manner to the graduates as one rich in the experience of a practicing attorney, inviting them to come to him at any time for advice which he would be glad to give without charge after they entered practice.

Dean Gleason L. Archer, LL. D. founder of Suffolk Law school, addressed the gathering, stressing the importance of unrestricted educational opportunities for all. He cited the cases of Lincoln, Chief Justice Marshall, Thomas A. Edison and many other outstanding figures, as men who became great through their own efforts in spite of lack of early schooling at formal studies.

United States Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio was the orator of the evening. He discussed the world-wide movement for peace and declared that public opinion would prove one of the strongest factors in bringing it about. He spoke at length about the London naval treaty proceedings, explaining the aims of the countries involved. At the conclusion of his address diplomas were presented to 255 graduates.

BIRTHPLACE OF OTIS HONORS HIS MEMORY

Barnstable Bar Conducts Memorial Event

Special Dispatch to the Globe
WEST BARNSTABLE, July 26.—James Otis Jr, patriot famous for his speech against the writs of assistance in pre-Revolutionary Boston, was memorialized today with exercises sponsored by the Barnstable County Bar Association.

The program opened at the Otis Boulder, marking the site of his birthplace. John D. W. Bodfish of Hyannis, Heman A. Harding, president of the Bar Association; Dean Gleason L. Archer of Suffolk Law School, Boston, and Emma Fall Schofield, Assistant Attorney General of Massachusetts, were speakers. Edward W. Childs of Centerville, 87-year-old Civil War veteran, responded for the Grand Army. This afternoon there was a dinner at Oyster Harbors Club, Osterville, with addresses by Justice George A. Sanderson of the Supreme Judicial Court, Judge Daniel T. O'Connell of the Massachusetts Superior Court, Judge Frederick C. Swift of 1st Barnstable District Court, president emeritus of the Bar Association, and Judge Walter Welsh of 2d District Court.

Incorporated in the program today was a sketch of James Otis prepared by a kinsman of the same name who is a resident of Hyannisport and present today.

Award Degrees

Suffolk Law School will award Bachelor of Law degrees to 255 graduates of the class of 1930 at its twenty-first annual Commencement exercises to be held at Tremont Temple this evening. Honorable Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, United States Senator, will give the Commencement address, which will be broadcast from Station WBZ-WBZA at 7.30. Wilmot E. PAY TRIBUTE TO MEMORY OF CAPE HERO

Exercises Held at James Otis Jr. Monument at Barnstable

West Barnstable, July 26—The memory of James Otis Jr., the Revolutionary patriot and greatest son of Cape Cod, was recalled today in exercises at the boulder which marks his birthplace here and following a dinner at the Oyster Harbors club.

Distinguished jurists, members of the Barnstable county bar, and citizens joined in the tercentenary event to pay tribute to the patriot who was born in West Barnstable. In the exercises at the Otis boulder, approximately 300 persons gathered near the site of the patriot's birthplace to hear his praises sounded.

The scene, overlooking the great marshes of Barnstable, with Sandy Neck and the blue waters of Barnstable harbor off in the distance, was simple and impressive. A military touch was added by the band of the 211th Coast artillery, National Guard, which is encamped at Sandwich; it gave several numbers as a prelude to the speaking program.

Speakers at the boulder were: Herman A. Harding, president of the County Bar association; Dean Gleason L. Archer of Suffolk Law school, Mrs. Emma Fall Schofield, assistant attorney general, and Commander Edward W. Childs of the Barnstable County G. A. R. post. John D. W. Bodfish of Hyannis introduced the various speakers. All the speeches were stirring tributes to the memory of the great Cape Codder who so eloquently aided his countrymen in gaining liberty. Former Senator Harding, in his address, traced the history of the Pilgrims; their search for religious freedom; their Mayflower compact; and the great influence of Otis. "I love to think of James Otis," Mr. Harding said, "coming back at the age of 18 to spend two years in reading and study; of Otis seeing these very fields, this sunlight, the glories of early morning here and the long level height of evening, to go to the outside beach for contemplation."

The memorial service at the Otis boulder took about 1½ hours, and the addresses were made from a small raised platform. An arm's length from the boulder itself, the audience clustered around a second part of the tercentenary feature was a dinner at Oyster Harbors.

FIELDING'S CANDIDACY FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL

Henry P Fielding, Democratic candidate for Attorney General of the Commonwealth, has been a practicing

HENRY P. FIELDING

attorney for over a quarter of a century. He is married and resides with his wife and children at 15 Montague street, Dorchester. Mrs. Fielding is the daughter of Inspector John W. Deehan, retired, of the Cambridge police Department. One son is a chemical engineer with the Goodyear Tire Company at Akron, Ohio; another son has just finished at Harvard, a daughter is a senior at Emmanuel College (Notre Dame), and a third son attends Boston College High School.

Mr. Fielding served for fifteen years as assistant district attorney in Suffolk County under three district attorneys including the late Joseph C. Pelletier for whom Mr. Fielding always entertained a most loyal affection. Mr. Fielding resigned voluntarily under the administration of District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien to engage in the private practice of his profession and now maintains an independent suite of offices at 53 State street. While serving as assistant district attorney, in fifteen years Mr. Fielding tried and handled many important cases. At one time he tried cases for the Commonwealth almost continuously for a sustained period of five years. He prepared many of the Commonwealth's briefs for the Supreme Court, and argued a number of cases before the full bench. While in the district attorney's office, he performed a major part of presentation of cases to the Grand Jury, and prosecuted a number of murder cases, including the case of Commonwealth v. Dascalakis, which was before the Supreme Court three times, resulting in final decision for the Commonwealth. While in the district attorney's office Mr. Fielding disposed of many routine cases by recommendation to the Court, and his recommendations were uniformly accepted by the Court without question.

Mr. Fielding has also sat as auditor and master on references from the Supreme Judicial Court and from the Superior Court. In addition to his many professional duties he has lectured on subject of criminal law and the act of agency for ten years at Suffolk Law School.

is a member of the American Association, Massachusetts Bar Association, Boston Bar Association, Irish War Veterans, Knights of Columbus, Bishop Cheverus Assembly, Charitable Irish Society, Catholic Alumni Sodality, Boston University Law School Association, Suffolk Alumni Association, Savin Hill Club and Boston City Club.

GOODHUE—MURPHY

A nuptial mass, at 9 o'clock, in St. Peter's Catholic church Wednesday morning, Miss Anna M. Murphy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Murphy, of 29 Vassal lane, became the bride of Edwin Goodhue of Quincy. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Stephen F. Moran

The bride, gowned in white satin, with veil of tulle trimmed with orange blossoms, was attended by her sister, Miss Mary G. Murphy, who wore pink chiffon, picture hat, with blue shoes. William Goodhue, brother of the groom, was best man. Ushers were John P. Murphy and Thomas J. Murphy. Solos were sung by Thomas Quinn.

Following the mass a reception was tendered the couple at the Hotel Commander. The bride is a brother of Thomas Murphy, Rindge football coach

The bride and groom left on a motor tour of the South, after which they will make their home at 64 Gilbert road, Belmont.

Miss Murphy attended the High and Latin school. The groom is a graduate of Quincy High and the Suffolk School. He is connected with John A. Conkey & Company of Boston.

Fess Says War Chance Reduced by London Pact

Ohio Senator Tells Suffolk Law Graduates Hoover Will Call Senate in Session Next Week to Consider Naval Treaty

The London naval treaty will be considered by the United States Senate in special session next week, Senator

Fess of Ohio declared in an address before 3000 persons at the 21st annual commencement of Suffolk Law school at Tremont Temple last night. He said that the Senate will be called into special session the day after adjournment of Congress.

Senator Fess confined his address to the attempts of the world nations during the past several years to bring about naval disarmament. He did not mention the tariff. The address was broadcast on the air by stations WBZA and WBZ.

The Senate and the House have about completed the program for which the Congress was assembled in special session some 15 months ago, he said, the legislation to be considered including domestic and foreign problems. The domestic part of the program has been completed and only awaits the signature of President Hoover. Of the foreign problems all that remains is the London naval treaty.

Though it was very warm the large audience of men, women and the graduating class of 255 seniors in their caps and gowns listened with marked attention as the senator explained the various manoeuvres since the Washington treaty seeking means to end war and in these he included the Geneva conference, the Kellogg-Briand pact and the latest treaty now before the Senate.

ARTHUR E. SANTRY FATALLY STRICKEN

Body Is Found Floating at Fisherman's Beach

Swampscott Man Was Personnel Chief of United Shoe Machinery Co

SWAMPSCOTT, Aug 3—The body of Arthur E. Santry, 49, of 23 Minerva st, who was fatally stricken while swimming this morning at Fisherman's Beach, was found floating off shore this afternoon by three boys who were rowing. Dr Nathaniel Martin, life-guard at the beach, attempted to resuscitate Santry, but was unsuccessful. He was rushed to the Lynn Hospital, where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Mr Santry was well known in this section, having formerly been associated with his brother in a law firm here. He was graduated from the Suffolk Law School in 1902. In 1915 he relinquished his law practice and became associated with the United Shoe Machinery Company, of which he was chief of personnel.

Medical Examiner Loring P. Grimes said that death was due to natural causes, and not drowning. Mr Santry had been subject to heart attacks, and it is believed that this was the cause of death.

Mr Santry had gone swimming with two of his sons in the morning and disappeared while swimming in shallow water. He is survived by his wife, Catherine C. Santry, and six children, Joseph Arthur, Joseph Arthur, Joseph Arthur, Joseph Arthur, Joseph Arthur, Joseph Arthur.

DEAN ARCHER TO SPEAK

The committee in charge of the tercentenary exercises at West Barnstable, which is chaired by John D. W. Bodfish of Hyannis, has secured Dean Gleason L. Archer of Suffolk Law school, and Mrs. Emma Fair Schofield, assistant attorney general of Massachusetts, as speakers on Saturday July 28 at 11 o'clock.

The Hyannis Boys' Band will furnish music and Honorable Herman A. Harding of Chatham will also speak as previously announced.

These exercises will take place in the vicinity of the tablet marking the site of the birthplace of James Otis.

After 18 Years of Night School at B. U., Caldwell Looks for More Work to Do

Eighteen years ago Leo F. Caldwell of Arlington, Mass., decided that he would like to take some evening school work. Seventeen years ago he decided he would have some more. Sixteen years ago he thought, "I guess I'll go on with this." And so on and so on. And this year, at Boston University commencement exercises, it turned out that "commencement" was just the word to apply to Mr. Caldwell's status, inasmuch as he had come to the conclusion, as he received his degree of Bachelor of Business Administration, that he would immediately embark upon a new three-year course which, in the end, will give him another Master's degree. In 1924 he received his LL.B. from Suffolk Law School, which he has found very useful, for he is occupied in the legal department of the Gillette Safety Razor Company.

Now, on the basis of this new decision, Mr. Caldwell is what the boys would call "set." For three years. But the balance of probability is that, after three years, there will be some more years for Mr. Caldwell and so he says now "I don't know what I shall do then." Mostly men, having applied themselves industriously to 18 years of night school study would consider they had earned the right to sit and gaze about with a certain degree of leisurely contemplation.

Not Mr. Caldwell. "I don't know what I shall do, but I won't terminate my academic work."

Horatio Alger liked boys that were like Leo Caldwell when he was a boy. An errand runner, when he was in grammar school . . . a course in a school to learn how to work. (Nowadays it is business college.) A job as order clerk. . . . An office boy. . . . An assistant to someone, without too much responsibility but with enough to keep the wind up. . . . A new job that "might turn into something if you work hard. . . ." And then, night school. And more night school. And still more night school. And finally night school work that was almost a profession in itself.

"A man can get on a ship and sail around the world and see things and people and learn a lot. But there can be a day when there is no ship to suit his pocket or his freedom. But books. A man can begin to live with books, and the learning they hold and his life will not suffice to come to the end of the books there are for him."

While Caldwell was at work as an office boy he overheard things; one was said by a singularly prosperous business man, who remarked that the average business man knew too little about law, and the average lawyer too little about business. And so Leo Caldwell, in case he should become either one of those men, began to go to school. He doesn't go about much advising others to do likewise. But what man has done man may do.

TRIBUTES TO OTIS PERPETUATE HIS MEMORY

The memory of James Otis, Jr, the Revolutionary patriot and greatest son of Cape Cod, was recalled Saturday in exercises at the boulder which marks his birthplace at West Barnstable and followed by a dinner at the Oyster Harbors club.

Distinguished jurists, members of the Barnstable county bar, and citizens joined in the tercentenary event to pay tribute to the patriot who was born in West Barnstable. In the exercises at the Otis boulder, approximately 300 persons gathered near the site of the patriot's birthplace to hear his praises sounded.

The scene, overlooking the great marshes of Barnstable, with Sandy Neck and the blue waters of Barnstable harbor off in the distance, was simple and impressive. A military touch was added by the band of the 211th Coast artillery, National Guard, which is encamped at Sandwich; it gave several numbers as a prelude to the speaking program.

Speakers at the boulder were: Heman A. Harding, president of the County Bar association; Dean Gleason L. Archer of Suffolk Law school; Mrs Emma Fall Schofield, assistant attorney general, and Commander Edward W. Childs of the Barnstable G. A. R. post. John D. W. Bodfish of Hyannis introduced the various speakers. All the speeches were stirring tributes to the memory of the great Cape Codder who so eloquently aided his countrymen in gaining liberty. Former Senator Harding, in his address, traced the history of the Pilgrims; their search for religious freedom; their compact; and the great influence of Otis "I love to think of James Otis," Mr Harding said, "coming back at the age of 18 to spend two years in reading and study of Otis seeing these very fields, the sunlight, the glories of early morn- ing and the long level height of the sea, to go to the outside beach for contemplation."

The memorial service at the Otis boulder took about 1 1/2 hours, and the addresses were made from a small raised platform. An arm's length from the boulder itself the audience clustered around.

Second part of the tercentenary feature was a dinner at Oyster Harbors club, Osterville, attended by about 150 persons. After the dinner, the meeting was adjourned to the blue room where addresses by Judge George A. Sanderson, Supreme Court, Judge Daniel T. O'Connell, Superior Court, and remarks by Heman A. Harding, Judge Frederick C. Swift, James Otis, Judge Walter Welsh and John D. W. Bodfish featured the afternoon.

The addresses of Judges Sanderson and O'Connell were scholarly summaries of phases of Otis's career as a lawyer and advocate of colonial independence.

Judge Sanderson, opening his address, said he had the honor of being a member of the Superior Court.

have qualified to meet the requirement that the association is seeking to impose on the youth of America," he said

"If it should come to pass that a boy who is unable to go to college, either because of poverty or because the colleges are so crowded that he can not get in, if such a boy is to be denied the right to educate himself, the right to aspire to greatness, the right to prove his worth in the great arena of life then this priceless heritage of democracy bequeathed to us by James Otis and the patriots of the Revolution has been taken from us by the foes of democracy."

Dean Archer further said that "the system advocated by these college professors is the outworn and discredited system of privilege from which our ancestors won deliverance in the American Revolution." He closed with a plea for lawyers to reject propaganda which would mislead them into surrendering the legal profession.

Mrs Schofield, last speaker at the boulder, made some interesting remarks on politics, and a plea for interest of citizens in good government. She asked that politics be considered in its true sense, an interest in good government, and said that James Otis was in the true sense of the word a politician as well as lawyer and statesman.

Many members of the Otis family were present at both exercises and the dinner affair.

It reminded one of Lincoln campaigning against Douglas, or of orators on soap boxes, to see the speakers at the boulder exercises, perched upon a low platform, surrounded by listeners. Perfect weather, a warm sun and a cool breeze typical of Cape Cod summer favored the affair.

The town of Barnstable aided the financing of the celebration. It was sponsored by and credit goes to the Barnstable County Bar association, and its committee of John D. W. Bodfish, chairman, Walter Welsh, Heman A. Harding, Collen C. Campbell, Paul M. Swift and Thomas Otis, all too well known to require repetition of their titles.

A neat souvenir program of the day carried a fine picture of the Otis boulder, of James Otis, Jr, and a short sketch of his life by James Otis of Hyannisport, a kinsman or one might term it collateral descendant of the same name Otis, the patriot, had but one son, who died at the age of 18 on a British prison ship in the Revolutionary war.

ELI M. LEVINE

Eli M. Levine of 81 Blossom st., who came to this country in November, 1922, at the age of 17, not knowing a word of English, but determined to acquire an American education, is a good example of the unlimited possibilities in educational lines for ambitious young men.

In January, 1923, he entered the day division of the Edward Devotion school in Brookline, and was the only foreign born boy who graduated that year. While attending that school he washed dishes in a Brookline restaurant till late at night. His work did not, however, interfere with his studies, for he graduated with high marks in all his subjects. He then attended the Northeastern Prep school, taking several courses in English and commercial law. While at the prep school he worked hard at his job in the restaurant, and received A's in most of his papers.

In the fall of 1926 he obtained a bookkeeping position in this city and then entered the Laskey Commercial College, and in June, 1927, graduated from the college, completing the bookkeeping and typewriting courses. He was the first student to complete the above two courses from the school last year.

Judge O'Connell confessed to an ardent admiration and long study of the life of Otis, and touched extensively on the facts of Otis's career as a lawyer.

The afternoon session wound up with remarks by Judge Swift, Mr Harding, Mr Bodfish, James Otis, of Hyannisport, and Judge Walter Welsh. In the name of Otis was recalled, praising and his great career relived for two hours.

Dean Archer of Suffolk School, after touching upon phases of the tercentenary celebration and its significance, took occasion to launch a dissertation upon what he termed a "dramatic struggle for supremacy between the principle of government by a wealthy and well born minority and that other principle, so strikingly demonstrated at Plymouth, of government of the people, by the people, and for the people."

This thought was developed by Dean Archer into an attack upon the efforts that the Association of American Law Schools is making to raise the standards of colleges of law instruction. "Had conditions in my own youth been what they are today I could never myself

Santry Stricken While Swimming

Swampscott, Aug. 4.—The body of Arthur E. Santry, 49, of 23 Minerva street, who was fatally stricken while swimming yesterday morning at Fisherman's beach, was found floating off shore in the afternoon by three boys who were rowing. Dr. Nathaniel Martin, life-guard at the beach, attempted to resuscitate Santry, but was unsuccessful. He was rushed to the Lynn hospital, where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Mr. Santry was well known in this section, having formerly been associated with his brother in a law firm here. He was graduated from the Suffolk law school in 1902. In 1915 he relinquished law practice and became associated with the United Shoe Machinery company, of which he was chief of personnel.

Medical Examiner Irving P. Grimes said that death was due to natural causes, and not drowning. Mr. Santry had been subject to heart attacks and it is believed that this was the cause of death.

Mr. Santry had gone swimming with two of his sons in the morning and disappeared while swimming. The bodies were found yesterday.

W. F. SHANAHAN IS CANDIDATE FOR SENATOR

Atty. William F. Shanahan today announced he will again be a candidate for state senator in the First Essex district.

He stated in part: "In the campaign of 1928, as the candidate of the Democratic party for state senator, even though I was defeated by a small margin, I received nearly 20,000 votes. In fact, the closest contest so far as Lynn was concerned in the election of 1928, was between the Republican senator which my Republican opponent carried by 12 votes.

"Many substantial citizens in this senatorial district, regardless of party affiliation, complimented me upon receiving what they termed a very flattering vote, and ventured the prediction that should I become a candidate in 1930, I would be successful."

"In response to many requests for information and asking that those who gave him valuable support before again do so, Mr. Shanahan promises to place before the people of the senatorial district to the best of his ability, issues with which they should become familiar."

"It seems to me," says Atty. Shanahan, "there are many issues of tremendous importance to be presented to the voters in the approaching election. These issues are too vital to be ignored by any candidate, and the public should demand each and every candidate state his or her position in clear and positive language. Prohibition has had a tendency to claim the spotlight with the result that many interesting matters such as unemployment, old-age pensions and other important bills affecting public welfare have been overlooked. It shall be my purpose during the campaign to discuss these matters in a manner which should leave no doubt in the minds of the voters as to where I stand."

Atty. Shanahan during the 1928 campaign waged vigorous campaign and the large vote he received was a feature of the election in this district.

He is a graduate of Holy Cross and of Suffolk law school and is associated in the practice of law in this city with Associate Justice Edward B. O'Brien. Mr. Shanahan belongs to many clubs and fraternal organizations and is especially well known in musical circles, at present being organist of St. John's Church, Swampscott.

He has been a resident of Swampscott for the past 10 years and prior to that lived in Lynn for 12 years.

SUFFOLK LAW WILL START YEAR WITH MANY IMPROVEMENTS

Upper classmen returning to Suffolk law school in September will find several changes in the interior of the school intended to provide greater facilities for the students.

Principal among the alterations is the removal of the bookstore from the first to the second floor across the hall from the library and on the west side of the building. The change was necessitated by the cramped quarters on the lower floor. The new bookstore is in larger and more commodious quarters, and the principal, Harold Archer, will be better able to take care of the needs of the students.

The rooms vacated on the ground floor will be used by the review department which has outgrown its present quarters. Four reviewers are now regularly engaged in marking papers of the growing classes.

The arrangement of volumes in the library also has been changed to provide easier access for the students.

At present he is engaged in working at his father's store on Broadway. Mr. Doyle believes that a great many changes are needed in the proper development of Ward Four and pledges his efforts if elected for the fulfillment of that end.

LAW STUDENT SUIT UPHELD BY COURT

Asking Educational Questions by Bar Committee Banned WHO DISCOVERED AMERICA

Special Group May Examine on Character Only

John T. Brennan, a middle-aged law student, yesterday won a legal contest before the Appellate Division in Brooklyn, in which he challenged the right of the Bar Committee on Character and Fitness to compel him to answer such questions as "Who discovered America?" and "What are the powers of the Federal Government under the Constitution?"

Brennan contended that when he had passed the bar examinations and other preliminary requirements his educational qualifications were proved and that the committee had no right to exact replies to the questions he had refused to answer. He appealed to the Appellate Division directly for admission to the bar after the committee had refused to certify him as eligible.

The Appellate Division referred the application back to the committee in accordance with an opinion written by Presiding Justice Lazansky, which leaves little doubt that Brennan will be admitted to practice.

"While the committee has undoubtedly acted in good faith," Justice Lazansky wrote, "and possesses a keen sense of responsibility, it has in good faith trespassed upon a province where it does not belong. Neither this court nor its committee may assume authority to which it has no right."

Under the scheme of legislation governing admission of bar candidates, the decision declared, scholarly attainments are to be determined under rules of the Court of Appeals, legal learning by the State Board of Law Examiners, and general character and fitness by committees created for that purpose.

"The words general fitness have no reference to scholarly accomplishments as that term has been used here," the opinion continued.

Under the Rules of Practice, Justice Lazansky added, it is necessary for each candidate before certification by the committee to demonstrate satisfactorily that he believes in the form of, and is loyal to, the Government of the United States.

"This provision does not call for inquiry into one's learning," the opinion added. "In the opinion of the court it is the duty of the Committee on Character and Fitness to certify to this court an applicant for admission who has been certified by the State Board of Law Examiners and if the candidate satisfies the committee as to his moral character and general fitness, and that he believes in the form of, and is loyal to, the Government of the United States."

"This court does not propose to define the limitation of questions which may be propounded to a candidate in these respects. The power of the committee having been defined, there can be no doubt that the committee, members of which are lawyers of high standing and who are rendering a fine voluntary public service, will adopt procedure and practice accordingly."

The change was necessitated by the cramped quarters on the lower floor. The new bookstore is in larger and more commodious quarters and will be better able to care for the needs of the students.

The rooms vacated on the first floor will be used by the review department, which has outgrown its present quarters. Four reviewers are now regularly engaged in marking papers of the growing classes.

The arrangement of volumes in the library also has been changed to provide easier access for the students in Upper classmen returning to Suffolk Law school will find several changes in reading cases.

A. E. SANTRY IS DROWNED AT SWAMPSCOTT

Body Found Floating at Fisherman's Beach—Was Connected With U. S. M. C.

The body of Arthur E. Santry, 49, of 23 Minerva street, Swampscott, who was fatally stricken while swimming Sunday morning at Fisherman's Beach, Swampscott was found floating off shore Sunday afternoon by three boys who were rowing Dr. Nathaniel Martin, life-guard at the beach, attempted to resuscitate Santry but was unsuccessful. He was rushed to the Lynn hospital, where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Mr. Santry was well known in this section, having formerly been associated with his brother in a law firm in Swampscott. He was graduated from the Suffolk Law school in 1902. In 1915 he relinquished his law practice and became associated with the United Shoe Machinery Corporation of which he was chief of personnel.

Medical Examiner Loring P. Grimes said that death was due to natural causes, and not drowning. Mr. Santry had been subject to heart attacks, and it is believed that this was the cause of death.

Mr. Santry had gone swimming with two of his sons in the morning and disappeared while swimming in shallow water. He is survived by his wife, Catherine G. Santry, and six sons, Philip, Thomas, Joseph, Arthur E. Jr., John and Pryce Santry.

OPPOSE PROGRAMS BY RACIAL UNITS

Tercentenary Committee Will Hear Arguments Report on Events on Common and Franklin Park Approved

Requests of racial units for specific appropriations to cover expenditures for their pageants or other historical presentations, in some cases running into thousands of dollars, did not meet with unanimous approval at yesterday's meeting of the executive committee of the Boston Tercentenary celebration committee.

There was an expression of sentiment opposed to racial unit programs; some comment on the large amounts racial units believed necessary to cover the expense of their presentations; expression that racial group programs should not have a place and that Boston's Tercentenary program be American in scope and contributions of drama, music, etc. be not segregated as to races.

Racial Groups to Be Heard

It finally was decided, on motion of Chairman John F. Fitzgerald, that the various groups be given an opportunity to come to headquarters next week and offer arguments in justification of their plans for separate racial celebrations for which the city is asked to pay.

The discussion followed a reference to the meeting in the office of Mayor Curley last week when representatives of Irish and Jewish groups charged that the State committee had denied them representation. It was said that Jewish groups want $25,000 to cover their expense and that German groups have asked for $12,000 of the Boston committee to defray expenses of the programs they are preparing.

Ex-Lieut Gov Edward P. Barry believed that the committee should record itself as opposed to apportioning money from the general fund for the specific use of particular groups. John Jackson Walsh supported him in the stand against units, and insisted: "We are celebrating as Americans, despite the fact that the background is of many peoples"

Judge Leveroni said that various racial groups, depending upon the tercentenary committee for support, have arranged pretentious programs. Chairman Fitzgerald then interposed and it was voted to have the various groups heard by the executive committee.

Charter Cavalcade

Regarding a suggestion that Boston contribute $300 as its share for the putting on of the Charter Cavalcade, starting from Salem, June 12, and arriving in Boston, June 14, it was declared that historians disagree in regard to the accuracy of this historical feature. John Jackson Walsh ridiculed the Cavalcade, calling it an exhibition of historical ignorance. It was generally believed at the meeting that, instead of coming over the road in a Cavalcade, the charter came over the water from Salem in the Arbella. The sentiment was, however, that the Cavalcade would be an interesting spectacle, and that Boston would give the $300.

Julius Daniels of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston said that electric, gas, and telephone company officials had been in conference, and they would not only put on their own pageants, but were prepared to contribute a considerable sum of money to the committee, to help along the Tercentenary celebration.

George S. Mumford, president of the Atlantic National Bank, has agreed to act as treasurer of the finance committee, according to chairman Fitzgerald.

Broadcasting Program

The broadcasting committee report was furnished by Dean Gleason L. Archer, who announced Nationwide hook-ups. Tonight at 7:15 Gov Allen will open the series with a talk on "John Winthrop and the Puritans." Dean Archer will talk at the same hour Tuesday, June 10, on "A Banished Man Who Caused an Indian War," the story of John Oldham and his adventurous career in the Plymouth colony and in the settlement of the Massachusetts Bay colony.

Mayor Curley will speak Tuesday, June 17, on "The Spirit of Independence in Colonial Boston."

Pageant Committee Plans

Mrs. Eva Whiting White's pageant committee made its report yesterday to the Boston Tercentenary Committee, and the program met with prompt and hearty indorsement. Mrs. White asked $8000 for the events on Boston Common, and $2000 to cover the expenses of entertainments at Franklin Park. These amounts were voted.

The program calls for 32 distinct presentations during July and August, the first on July 16 and the last on Aug. 29.

Each chorus will contain from 150 to 300 persons and there will be three concerts by the Handel and Haydn Society on Boston Common and one at Franklin Park; a chorus by St Paul's Cathedral Choir, as well as various pageants.

Atty. Henry P. Fielding So Qualifies as Candidate

HENRY P. FIELDING

Looking over nomination papers he filed yesterday, seeking Democratic nomination for Attorney-General.

Attorney Henry P. Fielding of 15 Montague street, Dorchester, who served as assistant district attorney of Suffolk County for 15 years, yesterday was assured of a place on the ballot in the September primaries as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Attorney-General.

He qualified to have his name go into the primary by filing with the Secretary of State's office the certified signatures of 1986 registered voters representing the various counties of the Commonwealth.

In addition to being a practicing attorney for more than a quarter of a century, the former assistant district attorney has been a lecturer on criminal law at the Suffolk Law School for the past decade. As a private soldier he served in the Spanish war and is now a member of the old Ninth Regiment Association, as well as a number of legal and fraternal organizations.

O'Connell to Recommend Uniform Hours of Labor

Former Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States senator, will leave Sunday to attend the American Bar Association convention in Chicago on Tuesday. He will be a member of a local group headed by Dean Gleason L. Archer of Suffolk Law School. Others in the party will be former Attorney General Thomas J. Boynton, who with Mr. O'Connell are members of the board of trustees at Suffolk Law School, former State Senator James P. Brennan and George F. Hogan, members of the faculty. Accompanying Dean Archer will be two of his children, Miss Marian, a sophomore at Colby College, and Gleason L. Archer, Jr.

Commenting on his trip, Mr. O'Connell said that he would present to the conference a request that the uniform laws commissioners recommend to all the other States of the Union "a law to uniform the hours of labor so that whatever the laws of labor in Massachusetts may be, they will be exactly the same in other States."

"If England has found it possible to enact a forty-eight-hour law, with a further provision that there is no night work, then, I believe every State in this Union can afford to enact legislation of the same character," said Mr. O'Connell.

REAL CLASH AVERTED BY FITZGERALD

Racial Groups' Plea Threatens Tercentenary Split

Racial groups demanding public funds to finance their features in the tercentenary celebration here threatened to split the Boston committee headed by former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald at the meeting held last night at City Hall.

MEASURE TABLED

But following a bitter debate upon a resolution urged by former Lieutenant-Governor Edward P. Barry to bar the distribution of funds to racial groups, Chairman Fitzgerald averted a clash by ordering the measure tabled until next Monday.

At that time the leaders of the racial groups will confer with the executive committee under Chairman Frank Chouteau Brown to present their reasons for special recognition. He reported to the committee an account of the conference recently held at the Mayor's office when it was charged that the Jewish and Irish societies were given no recognition on the committee headed by Mrs. William Lowell Putnam.

Barry Voices Opposition

When it was brought to the attention of the executive committee that the Jewish group was seeking $25,000 from the tercentenary funds and that the German group wanted $12,000 to help defray the expenses of their programmes, former Lieutenant-Governor Barry voiced his strong opposition.

In his attempt to place the committee on record as being opposed to giving out money along racial lines, he was supported by Chairman John Jackson Walsh of the Massachusetts Bay Tercentenary, Inc., who declared: "We are celebrating as Americans, not withstanding the fact that our background is formed by many peoples."

Leveroni Pleads for Groups

Exception to the resolution was voiced by Judge Frank Leveroni, who declared that many racial groups had already spent a great deal of money in arranging their demonstrations for the tercentenary and that they should not now be abandoned through the refusal of the committee to apportion aid to them. Chairman Fitzgerald appealed to the members of the committee to consider the matter in a broad way and through his insistence the resolution was put over until next week.

A second dispute arose over the proposal to grant $300, along with a dozen other cities and towns, towards the expense of the charter cavalcade which will leave Salem on June 12 and arrive here two days later in a flourish of pageantry, depicting the carrying of the original charter from Salem to Boston. John Jackson Walsh ridiculed the road trip as historically erroneous, stating that the charter came by water from Salem on the Arbella. Everett B. Mero pointed out that the cavalcade committee was well aware of the history of Massachusetts Bay and he reported that communities between Salem and Boston insisted upon the road pageant. As a result, the Boston committee voted the award of $300 to the feature.

Progress in $300,000 Campaign

Chairman Fitzgerald reported that the finance committee was making progress in the campaign to raise $300,000 by public subscription for the celebration, announcing that President George S. Mumford of the Atlantic National Bank had agreed to act as treasurer of the fund.

That the public utility corporations of Greater Boston will make a substantial contribution to the fund and in addition present special pageants in the programme was announced by Julius Daniels of the Edison company.

To Broadcast Talks on Heroes

Speaking for the broadcast committee, Dean Gleason L. Archer announced that the National Broadcasting Company will feature a series of talks on "Heroes and Patriots," by the Boston committee over a coast-to-coast network, starting tonight, when Governor Allen, at 7:15, will tell of "John Winthrop and the Puritans."

An appropriation of $500 was voted to the educational exhibit, which will be held all summer at the High School of Commerce at Avenue Louis Pasteur, Fenway, under the direction of the committee on education.

Manager Frank S. Davis of the Maritime Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce suggested the appropriation of $15,000 for the use of a steamer with which to entertain distinguished guests on harbor trips, and former Mayor Fitzgerald urged him to take the matter up with the State Commission, which recently was granted $75,000 additional for special tercentenary features.

BY O. M. STATIC

It seemed to be sort of a jazzy night early in the evening the Ward's Tip Top Club, CBS-WNAC, with snappy orchestral accompaniment, furnished some new songs and some not so new. "I Hate to Lose You," sung by Irene Bearsley, seemed to be the best of them.

Through the crooning of Rudy Vallee in the Fleischmann hour, WEAJ-WEEI; the Knox-Dunlap orchestra, WJZ-WBZ-WBZA, and Freddie Rich and his orchestra, CBS-WNAC, the lighter and faster tunes met the listener as the dial was turned from one station to another.

RADIOLOGUE

An important subject just now is the condition of the crops as result of the drought and some estimates will be given this afternoon during the National Farm and Home Hour from Washington and Chicago through WJZ and associated stations.

Arthur M. Hyde, secretary of agriculture, in charge of the drought-relief problem, will discuss the situation in a coast-to-coast hookup of the Columbia system at 9:30 Thursday night.

"Oh Dem Golden Slippers" by James Bland, writer of "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny" and other American Folk songs, will open the Mountaineers' program on the WJZ family at 8:30 tonight.

The most beautiful radio artist in America will be chosen prior to the annual Radio Fair and she will be enthroned at the fair. She will have an exclusive suite, chaperon, chauffeur and motor car. Olive Shea, last year's winner, went into the movies.

Tribute will be paid to Cincinnati as a music center on WJZ, WBZ and other stations at 10 tonight. A little symphony and band will provide a program. Dean Gleason L. Archer will discuss "Laws that Safeguard Society" at 7:15 on WJAR, WEAJ and other stations. He will talk on malice as a constituent element of crime.

The episode of Frontier Days on WEAJ and a group of other broadcasters at 8:30 tonight is to provide some action from Shotgun Whson and Hog McConn according to forecasts. A night roundup of wild cattle is carded.

Laurance Gratton, the badman in Columbia sketches, says he enjoys the villain roles because they provide an outlet for otherwise suppressed desire to be wicked.

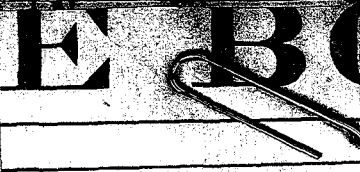

Listening to the surf at Atlantic City over WPG was said to be helpful to some during the recent hot spell. The reception only made others feel the humidity the greater.

Federal Farm Board, the man who has been in the papers so much lately in the fights over farm relief measures, brought to us here, through CBS-WNAC, proved interesting and also was helpful in explaining to those of us who know little of farming. His argument for reducing wheat acreage sounded reasonable.

Another of those interesting talks came from Dean Gleason Archer of the Suffolk Law School through WBZ-WBZA. He makes the seemingly dull subjects of law lively and entertaining.

In the more serious music of the night we liked the martial strains of the "Soldiers' Chorus" from Faust, played by Nathaniel Shilkret in the R.C.A. hour, WEAJ-WEEI. And that futuristic sketch near the close of the same hour was done in realistic fashion. We enjoyed it, with all the blood-curdling screams.

Elmer Boeske, oldest candidate for a place on the United States polo team, rode The Turk, a 31-year-old pony.

The first of a series of historical talks entitled "Heroes and Patriots," over the National Broadcasting Company chain, was given last night by Gov. Allen, who chose as his topic "John Winthrop and the Puritans." A similar series entitled "Founding a Nation," under the supervision of Dean Gleason Archer of the Suffolk law school were recently completed and the great response from the public led the broadcasting company to offer a second.

The new series will continue on every Tuesday at 7:15 P. M. until July 3. Dean Archer will again supervise and will give one of the scheduled talks. The latest series, will in a vivid manner portray some of the great personalities who figured in stirring events prior to the revolution.

Gov. Allen told the story of the coming of the first Governor of Massachusetts and the great Puritan migration to the shores of New England in 1630. He traced the development of Gov. Winthrop's character in the wilderness and how he learned to lay aside old world ideas and to accept democracy.

He said in part:
"The great Puritan migration that came to the shores of New England in 1630 was one of the most remarkable movements in the history of this continent. For the first time, a completely equipped colony was transported over the ocean and set down on the new land, ready to function in all respects as a self-governing state."

JOHN ARCHETTI IS CANDIDATE

John Archetti, a prominent local young man has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for representative of the fourth Essex district, which includes wards 3 and 4 of this city.

Mr. Archetti was educated in the local public schools and studied law at the Suffolk Law school in Boston. His principal aim, if elected, will be to endeavor to help the unemployment situation by suitable legislation, which will give work to needy citizens.

He is conducting a vigorous, personal campaign and intends to hold several outdoor rallies within the district.

Mr. Archetti was born in Lawrence May 13, 1902. He is the oldest of eight children and resides with his parents at 7 Cantillon street.

SUFFOLK LAW

Boston, Mass.

The school will open its 25th year on Sept. 22.

Recruited from the ranks of the best practising lawyers in the state, the faculty of Suffolk Law school boasts some of the best trained lawyers available. Each professor is a specialist in the subject he teaches.

Dean Gleason L. Archer, head of the school, has gained a wide reputation for his text books and case books on various subjects, which he has written. He is nationally known as a radio lecturer on law.

The course at Suffolk covers a four-year period with graduates being awarded LL.B. degrees. The course covers every branch of the law and specially fits students for general practice.

While the object of the school is the preparation of students for practice, the student body comprises a large number of men, whose principal object in taking the Suffolk course is to provide themselves with a knowledge of law to aid them in their present business or profession.

Several changes have been made in the school this year. The book store, formerly located on the ground floor, has been moved to the second floor and is now housed in more commodious quarters. The review department, somewhat limited for space in its old quarters on the ground floor, will now occupy the space vacated by the book store.

Registrations for the 1930-1931 class are now being received and accounts struction Registration may be obtained or information secured from the principal, English J. Westborn, at his office this week.

SUFFOLK LAW SCHOOL OPENS 25TH YEAR

With a distinguished faculty of practising lawyers and authors of legal textbooks, the Suffolk Law School will open for its 25th year on September 22. The school already has a national reputation for the training of lawyers through the distinguished personnel of its faculty, each professor being a specialist in the subject which he teaches. This faculty is headed by Dean Gleason L. Archer, himself well known for text books and case books which he has written on various aspects of law, and for his radio lectures on the same subject.

The course at Suffolk Law School covers a four-year period, ending in the award of the AB degree. The course covers every phase of law especially fitting the graduate for general practice. The student body, however, always includes a large number of men whose object in taking the course is to get a knowledge of law which will aid them in their business or profession.

Several changes have been made this year in the school. The book store, formerly located on the street floor, has been moved to the second floor and given more commodious quarters and the review department, which was cramped for room in its old quarters, will now occupy the space vacated by the book store. Registration is now going on for the class of 1930-1931.

ing, speech mistakes, and forgetting words and names. This course will be supplementary, probably coming one day each week of the school year.

Suffolk Law

Suffolk Law School, which opens its fall term Sept 22, is gradually extending the scope of its influence throughout the entire Eastern States. For years the number of students from other States, particularly New England, is constantly growing and Dean Gleason L. Archer, well known law writer and radio lecturer, says that the number from out of the State this year is unusually large.

Of course, Massachusetts is far ahead in the number of students now enrolling for the fall term and Dean Archer says that the freshman class this year will be of very high character.

Suffolk Law School faculty, composed almost entirely of practising lawyers, will contain some new faces this year.

Dean Gleason L. Archer of the school has been accorded the very great honor of being chosen by the National Broadcasting Company to give the first coast to coast series of talks on law ever offered to the American public. Dean Archer's series, entitled "Laws That Safeguard Society," began on July 15th and will be given on Tuesday evenings for 10 weeks, except during the week of the American Bar Association convention, when Dean Archer will be in Chicago. The talks are given over station WEAJ in New York city and go out over a network of more than 30 stations from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast. Dean Archer is also continuing his popular radio talks on criminal law over WEEB-WBZA which have been a regular feature of the Westinghouse stations for nearly a year.

FIELDING OUT FOR ATTY.-GEN.

HENRY P. FIELDING

Henry P. Fielding, Boston lawyer and Democratic candidate for attorney-general, today issued a statement in which he said, "I believe that the office of attorney-general should be filled by a lawyer of matured years, judgment and ripened experience. I am informed that one of my opponents for the Democratic nomination for attorney-general has been a member of the bar for about five years. I have been an active practicing lawyer for 26 years, with large trial experience."

While Mr. Fielding has been for the last 20 years a resident of Boston, he formerly lived for long periods of his life time in Worcester and Middlesex counties. Mr. Fielding served for 15 years as assistant district attorney in Suffolk county under three district attorneys. He is well known to the bar throughout the Commonwealth. While in the district attorney's office in Suffolk county, he performed a major part of the presentation of cases to the grand jury of that county and conducted a great number of trials in court as well as disposing of routine cases by recommendation to the court, his recommendations being uniformly accepted by the court without question. He has also argued a number of cases before the full bench of the Supreme court of the Commonwealth and has also sat as auditor and master on numerous occasions on references from the Supreme Judicial court and from the Superior court. In addition to his many professional duties he has lectured on the subject of criminal law and the subject of agency for 10 years at Suffolk Law School.

In the Spanish War Mr. Fielding served as a private in Co. E, 9th Massachusetts regiment, U. S. V. He is a member of the American Bar association, Massachusetts Bar association, Boston Bar association, United Spanish War Veterans, the Knights of Columbus, Bishop Cheverus Assembly, 9th Massachusetts Veterans War with

LOCAL MAN IS AGAIN HONORED

The August 1930 Bulletin issued by Suffolk Law School, Boston, New England's largest law school devoted exclusively to the training of men for lawyers, contains an announcement of great interest to many local people.

To promote competition within its academic ranks and to reward those who distinguish themselves for excellence in their school work, Suffolk Law School makes various awards in the form of scholarships.

RALPH W. WILSON.

Each year the Steinberg scholarship is awarded to the student who has maintained the highest general average for his first two years' work. This scholarship for 1930-31 was awarded to Ralph W. Wilson, of Vine street, this city, who maintained a general average during his freshman and sophomore years of 89.1-2 per cent. The subjects given during the first two years at Suffolk Law School and upon which Mr. Wilson's general average was determined, include the law of torts, legal ethics, workmen's compensation, contracts, criminal law, agency, equity, trusts, bills and notes, landlord and tenant, and real property.

It will be remembered that Mr. Wilson also received very high honors during his freshman year when he out of a class of approximately 925 men, he ranked second place with an average of 90.1-12 per cent., thereby winning the Archer scholarship awarded annually by Dean Gleason L. Archer, founder of the school. He is to be congratulated for his fine showing in thus winning first place over a period of two years in a class of 36 men during the second year as well as 925 the first year.

Mr. Wilson is well known to residents of East Gloucester whom he served for several years as a Times newsboy while attending the Point Grammar school. At present he is employed in the capacity of instructor of accounting, mathematics and income tax procedure in the business administration department of Lynnardett college.

COUNSELOR NAMED AT SUFFOLK LAW

Atty. Kenneth B. Williams
Freshman Adviser

Atty. Kenneth B. Williams, for several years attached to the review department at Suffolk law school, has been named student counselor for the freshman class according to announcement by Dean Gleason L. Archer.

The plan of student counselor was adopted because of the large number of casualties in the first year. It is believed the new system will reclaim many students who might otherwise be forced to give up their law studies.

Atty. Williams, who is a graduate of Suffolk law and an editor on the Alumni Monthly, is a native of Maine and attended school in that state. Previous to graduating from Suffolk he was department clerk in the United States court of appeals here. He is also a member of the Maine and Massachusetts bars.

Suffolk Law School, with a national reputation for training lawyers, will open its 25th year on Sept. 22. Recruited from the ranks of the best practicing lawyers in the State, the faculty of Suffolk Law School boasts some of the best trained lawyers available.

Dean Gleason L. Archer, head of the school, has gained a wide reputation for text books and case books on various subjects, which he has written. He also is nationally known as a radio lecturer on law.

The course at Suffolk covers a four-year period with graduates being awarded A. B. degrees.

Several changes have been made in the school this year. The book store, formerly located on the ground floor, has been moved to the second floor and is now housed in more commodious quarters.

AIR TALK EXPLAINS EXTRADITION LAW

Dean Gleason L. Archer in Seventh of Series Tuesday

Dean Gleason L. Archer will explain the difficulties that arise when a person who has committed a crime flees into another state or nation in the seventh of his series, "Laws That Safeguard Society" over WTAG, Tuesday, at 7:30 p. m.

Such state or nation has of course no right to punish him for a crime committed elsewhere. The right of extradition from one state to another in such cases is guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States. But suppose the governor of the asylum state refuses, as they sometimes do, to surrender the fugitive? The law as to extradition and the exact meaning of the term will be discussed in simple and non-technical language.

The kidnaping of fugitives and their forcible return to the state where their crime was committed is a very live question for it sometimes results in international or interstate complications.

Last Night on the Radio

BY O. M. STATIC

Our interest in Dean Gleason L. Archer's discourse on the criminal law last night was entirely emotional and non-legal, WBZA. What gave us an awful wallop was the tragic aspects of the case of "The State versus Baker." Here was a white woman who had married a Chinese and went to work at his side in the laundry. Children in the neighborhood came to the open door of the shop and taunted and humiliated her. She was scrubbing the floor with boiling hot soap suds.

Along came another lad and his mother, innocent of this, and he stopped for a moment to open the door. The unfortunate in the shop, supposing the boy was tormentors, set fly the pall of water. That act was the excuse for a harassed and a desperate woman. The boy lost the sight of both eyes and the woman went to prison for a long term. We missed up on the legal connotations of the case but what a grim and bitter story!

WEDDING
WILLIAMSON
Milton Edward Williamson of this town was united in marriage to Miss Sarah Maude Kelley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Kelley of West Falmouth, at an attractive early fall wedding in the Methodist Episcopal church at West Falmouth Tuesday afternoon at 3. The ceremony was performed in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives of the couple by Rev. Mr. Bemis of North Falmouth, a cousin of the bride. The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, Edward E. Kelley, who gave her in marriage. The church was decorated with orange gladioli and ferns.

The wedding march was played by Mrs. Gordon Haman of Wareham, a sister of the bride. Dr. A. Dent Williamson of Mansfield, brother of the groom, acted as best man, and the bride was attended by her sister, Miss Helen Kelley, as maid of honor, and Miss Doris Gay of Mansfield, Miss Virginia Platt of Troy, N. Y., and Miss Lillian Warner of Atlantic, as bridesmaids. Little Russell Williamson of Mansfield, nephew of the groom, was the ring bearer, and Martha Williamson, niece of the groom, was flower girl. Alton Williamson, brother of the groom and Mr. Bemis of Westport, cousin of the bride, were the ushers.

The bride was gowned in white satin with bridal veil of lace and carried a bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor wore a gown of pink tulle and horsehair hat and carried pink gladioli. The bridesmaids were gowned respectively in yellow, blue and orchid tulle, and carried bouquets of orchid, pink and yellow gladioli. The little flower girl wore a yellow dress.

After the ceremony at the church, a reception was held at the bride's home, which was attended by over 200. The couple were assisted in receiving by the best man, maid of honor, and the parents of the bride.

The groom's gifts to his best man and ushers were cuff links, and the bride gave her attendants pendants and chains, a tie to the ring bearer, and a bag to the flower girl. The groom's gift to his bride was a pendant set with a diamond, and chain, and the bride gave the groom a set of military brushes.

Mr. and Mrs. Williamson left on an extended wedding trip, and upon their return will reside in Jamaica Plain. The groom is a graduate of the Suffolk Law School in 1929, and is employed in a Boston law office.

The bride is a graduate of the Bryant & Stratton Business College, and recently taught in Troy, N. Y.

Miss Sarah M. Kelley Bride of M. E. Williamson

MANSFIELD, Sept 4—Milton Edward Williamson of this town was united in marriage to Miss Sarah Maude Kelley, daughter of Mr and Mrs Edward E. Kelley of West Falmouth, in the Methodist Episcopal Church at West Falmouth yesterday afternoon. The ceremony was performed by Rev Mr Bemis of North Falmouth, a cousin of the bride.

The bride's father, Edward E. Kelley, gave her in marriage.

The interior of the edifice was decorated with orange gladioli and ferns.

The wedding march was played by Mrs Gordon Haman of Wareham, a sister of the bride. Dr A Dent Williamson of Mansfield, brother of the groom, was best man. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Helen Kelley, as maid of honor; also by Miss Doris Gay of Mansfield, Miss Virginia Platt of Troy, N Y, and Miss Lillian Warner of Atlantic, as bridesmaids. Russell Williamson of Mansfield, nephew of the bridegroom, was the ring bearer, and Martha Williamson, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl. Alton Williamson, brother of the bridegroom, and Mr Bemis of Westport, cousin of the bride, were the ushers.

The bride's gown was of white satin with veil of lace and her bouquet consisted of roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor was in pink tulle and carried gladioli. The bridesmaids were gowned respectively in yellow, blue and orchid tulle with similar bouquets of gladioli. The flower girl wore a yellow dress.

A reception in the bride's home was attended by more than 200. The couple were assisted in receiving by the best man, maid of honor, and the parents of the bride.

The bridegroom's gifts to his best man and ushers were cuff links. The bride gave her attendants pendants and chains, a tie to the ring bearer and a bag to the flower girl. The bridegroom gave the bride a pendant set with a diamond and chain and she gave her husband a set of military brushes.

Mr and Mrs Williamson left on an extended wedding trip and upon their return will reside in Jamaica Plain. The bridegroom is a graduate of the Suffolk Law School in 1929 and is in a _____ office.

It seemed to be sort of a jazzy affair. Early in the evening the Ward's Tip Top Club, CBS-WNAC, with snappy orchestral accompaniment, furnished some new songs and some not so new. "I Hate to Lose You," sung by Irene Bearsley, seemed to be the best of them.

Through the crooning of Rudy Vallee in the Fleischmann hour, WEAF, WEEI, the Knox-Dunlop orchestra, WJZ-WBZ-WBZZ, and the orchestra and his orchestra, CBS-WNAC, the lighter and faster tunes met the listener as the dial was turned from one station to another.

Suffolk Law School

Suffolk Law School, whose Fall term begins on Sept 30, is gradually extending its influence throughout the Eastern United States, according to Dean Gleason L. Archer. In addition to a large number of students from Massachusetts, the number of those entering this year from other States, particularly New England, is larger than ever before. Other students are appearing from as far as Ohio and Pennsylvania and are being assisted by the school in procuring work in Boston to enable them to attend these classes.

The Suffolk Law School faculty, composed almost entirely of practicing lawyers, will contain a number of new members this Fall, according to Dean Archer. Enrollment is now going on for the freshmen classes at 20 Deyne st. Catalogues may be obtained by writing to that address.

TIDES! WET AND DRY

BY HENRY W. HARRIS
VI—Drying Kansas
With a Hatchet

"MEN, I have come to save you from a drunkard's fate." A score or so, lounging about the bar, looked up to see a tall but stocky woman in her fifties striding in through the door, waving a hatchet, followed by a mob of women. "Take up your consecrated hatchets," she shouted, "rocks, and brickbats and everything that comes handy, and you can clean out this curse. Don't wait for the vote! Smash!"

A wave of the hatchet, and the bar-keeper rushed out the back door, white apron and all. A sweep, and a half dozen glasses went crashing to the floor. A tomahawk flung, and the glass mirror behind the bar shivered in pieces. By this time the customers had disappeared and the women sharp-expect his sister to receive. The two-step she considered "a hugging school incompatible with a true woman." "I never saw anything that needed rebuke, exhortation or working," she said on one occasion, "but that I felt it my duty to meddle with it."

Though a vision, seen at a revival meeting in 1884, first gave her the idea that she had a mission, she did not begin her saloon smashing until 15 years later, at the beginning of the 20th century. It started in her home town, Medicine Lodge, Kansas. And it worked.

Kansas at the time had Prohibition in her Constitution, but the law was openly violated. Carrie's campaign caused the authorities great embarrassment. Though she destroyed much valuable property, she claimed (with a show of reason), she saw a law enforcer. And she developed strong political support.

Though she was arrested dozens of times, though she openly defied court decrees, though she addressed judges on the bench as "Your Dishonor," it was impossible to punish her severely. It was difficult to use the machinery of the law effectively against her. She went to Topeka, where a Prohibition Convention greeted her with enthusiasm. She dried up Wichita, the wettest city in the State, where, only in this year 500 people suffered paralysis from drinking Jamaica ginger.

Carrie visited New York, where Broadway named after her a drink with a peculiarly heavy kick. John L. Sullivan, former heavyweight champion of the world, promised to "throw her down the sewer," when he heard that she was to pay his saloon a visit. Luckily he was asleep when she arrived at his place. Generally, in New York, she confined herself to remonstrating with saloon owners, and with at least one keeper of a cigar store. The worst they could do was to arrest her for blocking traffic.

Harvard students took comfort from her visit to New Haven, which resulted in her statement that Yale men were the most unregenerate on earth. Then she visited Cambridge and found she had been mistaken—Harvard men were as bad.

Whatever must be said of her methods, it must be admitted that she gave an outlet of activity to a movement that made Kansas the driest State in the country. Attacks of mobs on saloons were no new thing. The women of Rockport, Mass., destroyed a bar in 1856. Nor has Carry Nations technique died entirely, at least in the eyes of critics of certain Boston policemen. Injunction proceedings are now pending against various officers, who, according to those in charge of certain premises, raided often without warrant in search of liquor, and, finding none, carried off a door each time in the hope of tiring the owner to such an extent that he would leave.

Tomorrow: The Wet Weakness

ened their hatchets on the mahogany surface of the bar. The leader, stopping for breath, saw a drunk in the corner, and began praying loudly for his soul.

Such were the hatchet raids which went far toward making Kansas seriously dry. Such was Carrie Nation, who signed letters, "Your Loving Home Defender." Carrie's first husband, whom she loved, was a drinking man and died early. Her second, whom she did not love, seems to have tried to treat her decently, and divorced her only when she became too much of a national figure.

She was always a peculiar woman. On one occasion she rose in church and insisted that the congregation sing a hymn of her choice rather than one picked by the minister. Whenever she saw a couple sitting close together in a buggy, she stopped them, outlined to the girl the horrors of the primrose path, and reminded the young man of the treatment he would on him in hard times. Saloon-keepers crowded State Legislatures. At one time they numbered a seventh of Tammany's membership.

The consolidation of liquor and beer manufacture in a few hands—a result of the Civil War tax—eventually did away with all this. Brewers and distillers bought out the saloons; employes of absentee corporations took the places of the saloon-keepers, and destroyed liquor's best friends in the communities.

Brewers and distillers lobbied, bribed and issued propaganda, as did other interests. Their power was reasonably complete until they met an opponent who knew the game. Then a latent weakness showed. It is hard to fight a well organized moral issue with a thirst. Liquor could disguise itself behind "straw" organizations, but everyone knew their financial basis. And its salesmanship did it infinite political damage.

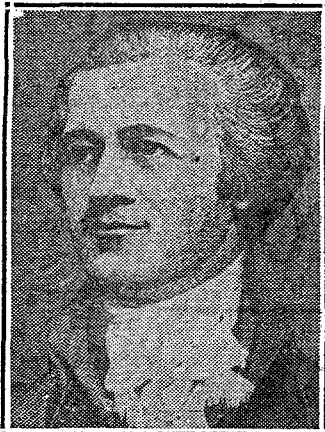

A Kentucky distilling company, on going out of business, offered its mailing list for $500 to the Keeley Institute for the cure of drunkards. "Our customers are your prospective clients," said the sales letter. "We can put on your desk a mailing list of over 50,000 individual consumers of liquor."

Before the Ohio Retail Liquor Dealers in 1912, a speaker urged that "we must create the appetite for liquor in growing boys. Men who drink will die, and if there is no new appetite created our counters will be empty as well as our coffers. The open field for the creation of the appetite is among the boys. Nickels expended in treats to boys now will return in dollars to your tills after the appetite has been formed."

A certain gin company showed the picture of a scantily clad white woman on bottle labels. Photographs of this "the Dries" spread through the South, with questions as to the combined effect of the pictures and the gin on the colored man. That these manifestations were the work of individuals and companies, and not of the official liquor organizations did not save the traffic from public odium. Extremists and salesmanship dug the graves of the liquor business, just as the slave-holders, who, after the Dred Scott decision, boasted that they would auction slaves on Bunker Hill, hurried the defeat of their interest. And liquor also dug its legal grave by fighting regulation. A blacklist issued by the liquor interests attacked the Blackstone Hotel in Chicago because it obeyed the Sunday closing law.

Dean Archer to Discuss Assassination of Garfield

Dean Gleason L. Archer will continue his exposition of crimes committed across state boundaries in his series entitled "Laws that Safeguard Society" over WTAG Tuesday at 7.15 p. m.

The portion of this broadcast that will attract the greatest public interest will be Dean Archer's discussion of the legal aspects of the assassination of President Garfield. In this case the mortal wound was inflicted in Washington, D. C. July 2, 1881, and the President died in New Jersey Sept. 19, 1881. The question of whether a man might be legally punished for murder when the victim did not die within the jurisdiction of the court seeking to punish him was decided in this case by the Supreme court of the United States. Another vexing question also will be discussed by Dean Archer, the ethics of a lawyer defending a known murderer such as Guiteau.

M. J. HORAN CANDIDATE FOR REGISTER OF PROBATE

Michael J. Horan, who is a candidate for Register of Probate in Suffolk County, is well known both in the newspaper field, where he was employed for 25 years and in the legal circles of this city, where he has practiced law for 17 years.

After graduation from the Martin Grammar School in Roxbury Mr Horan entered the employ of the Globe as a cashier in the Mailing Department. While so employed he attended Suffolk Law School in Boston and was graduated with honors in 1913 and was admitted to the Massachusetts Bar the same year.

In 1915 he was appointed a bail commissioner for Suffolk County by the Justices of the Superior Court, and held that position until 1925.

Mr Horan is married and has eight children, his two youngest sons now studying for the priesthood in the Dominican Order. His wife, who was Julia D. Walsh, has been connected with several of the Irish societies in Boston and is well known for her work in behalf of Ireland. Mr Horan lives at 123 Nottingham road, Brighton. Attorney Horan spoke at the "All Boston" Women's Democratic Club meeting at the Hotel Statler last evening and was indorsed by those present. Other speakers included Mrs Horan, formerly Julia S. Walsh, who urged the nomination of her husband.

A meeting to which all candidates are invited to attend has been arranged by the club for Friday evening at 123 Nottingham road, Brighton. Entertainment has been arranged. Committee includes Mrs Horan, Mrs Margaret R. Burke and Mrs Katherine Clark.

LAWYERS PLAN AN EXPOSE OF WET FALLACIES

State-Wide Drive to Oppose Repeal of Baby Volstead Act

Addressing a mass meeting at Corliss Hall in the Y. M. C. A. at Newburyport on Sept. 9, Prof. Edwin H. Hall of Harvard University announced that the Opposed-to-Repeal Committee between now and election will conduct a state-wide campaign against the repeal of the State Enforcement Law with the aid of prominent lawyers and business men, in which the legal and business aspects of repeal will be made public.

Statistical and legal broadsides containing material prepared by such authorities as Professor Carver of Harvard University and H LeBaron Sampson of the Suffolk Law School will be used. An illustrated list of fallacies, commonly used by wets advocating repeal, will be published, and public oral debates will be held under the auspices of "well-established and impartial bodies" such as Chambers of Commerce and Rotary Clubs. In announcing this program Professor Hall said:

"The Opposed-to-Repeal Committee will soon issue a broadside against repeal. This will consist in part of statistical matter, for which Professor Carver will be responsible; in part of a comprehensive discussion of the legal aspects of repeal, by Mr. Sampson; in part, perhaps, of an illustrated list of fallacies commonly used by the wets in advocating repeal. Furthermore, this committee has enlisted a body of well-known men, lawyers for the most part, who will undertake to meet in public oral debate advocates of repeal, wherever and whenever satisfactory arrangements for such debates can be made. This does not, of course, mean that these men, everyone of whom has a high professional reputation, will agree to meet any and every person who may volunteer to speak on the wet side. 'Satisfactory arrangements' must include the assumption by some well established and impartial body, such as a Chamber of Commerce or a Rotarian Club, of responsibility for conduct of the meeting."

The speakers thus far enrolled for this service are J. Weston Allen, Prof. T. N. Carver, Damon E. Hall, Joseph Earl Perry, H. LeBaron Sampson and Edmund A. Whitman. Designating the leadership of the Constitutional Liberty League, which is sponsoring repeal, as both "arrogant and ignorant," Professor Hall said:

"When one examines this repeal proposition carefully he is likely to ask how such an illogical and mischievous move ever came to be made. The answer is this: It was made under the leadership of the Constitutional Liberty League, a leadership both arrogant and ignorant. Its arrogance is shown by the following declarations made by its president as reported in the Boston Traveler of May 20, 1929: 'We and most of our fellow-citizens will not submit' (to prohibition). 'We are against the enforcement of any law which we heartily disapprove as unjust and unwise.' It is shown also in the oft-repeated statement of league officers that 'nobody' or 'practically nobody' wants the return of the saloon, a statement which should read, 'Nobody in our set wants the saloon back, our set neverhaving frequented saloons to get their liquor.'

"The ignorance of this leadership is shown," Professor Hall continued, "by the fact that the lawyers who are prominent in it have tried in vain to make an effectual reply to Mr. Sampson's arguments as to the legal effects of the proposed repeal. If they were sincere when they initiated this movement, they simply did not know what they were doing, did not know what the legal effects of repeal would be."

Regarding the effects of repeal Professor Hall said:

"H. LeBaron Sampson, member of the Suffolk Bar, in his most recent discussion of the legal aspects of the proposed Massachusetts repeal makes this statement:

"The proposed repeal would have the following effect: (1) it would take out of the statutes of Massachusetts every provision which makes manufacture, transportation or importation of intoxicating liquors an offense; (2) while every police officer in the State would still be charged under the remaining state statutes with the duty of preventing the sale of intoxicating liquor; he would be deprived of an effective means of performing this duty which he now has, namely, cutting off the supplies of the seller; (3) the police of the State would be under no duty whatever by virtue of their office to enforce the federal law against the manufacture, transportation and importation of liquor and would have no legal standing which would enable them effectively to interfere with rumrunning; (4) all charges of manufacturing, transporting and importing liquor, which may now be tried in the 75 state courts which are available, would have to be tried in one court, the District Court of the United States."

This statement of Mr. Sampson is approved by other leading Boston lawyers, including former Atty.-Gen. J. Weston Allen and Cliff Rogers Clapp.

Among the prominent men who are named as members of the opposed-to-repeal committee are: Roland M. Baker, Arthur H. Brooks, Winthrop M. Crane Jr., Col. B. A. Franklin, Henry I. Harriman, Arthur S. Johnson, the Rt. Rev. William Lawrence, the Rev. Harry Levi, Arthur Perry, Bernard J. Rothwell, Dr. David D. Scannell, F. Goldthwaite Sherrill and Frank W. Stearns.

He Wouldn't Take It

Mayor Curley was asked whether he knew that Mr Avery was a Republican. "That makes no difference," Mr. Curley said; "he would make a good Governor and that is why I have added him to my list. The two candidates we have now have been out in a thunder shower and have got all wet, and we must pick someone else." "How about Mayor Curley?" the reporter asked.

"I did not attend the conference held at Worcester because I am a firm believer in the primary system, and, provided the health of John Fitzgerald permitted, his continuing a candidate—since it is admitted everyone that he is eminently qualified to fill the office—I would not be advocating his nomination in order that a competent candidate might be placed in nomination after the primaries by the Democratic State Committee."

"I have stated that in my opinion there is no dearth of available material and I beg to submit a list of 50 men of standing, character and good reputation for any one of whom the people of the State could cast their vote without closing their eyes or breaking point of their pencil, or for whom it would be necessary to close their eyes or break point of their pencil."

Ely Again Attacks Mayor Cummings Scores Ely

By JOHN D. MERRILL.

Mayor Curley added last night to the literature of the current political campaign by sending out a statement in which he defended his action in asking the Democratic voters of the State to nominate John F. Fitzgerald for Governor in order that Mr Fitzgerald might then refuse to run, in which case the Democratic State Committee would be called on to select a candidate in his place. The Mayor said that his position was unselfish and that his only desire was to help the Democratic party.

In passing, the Mayor said that if what Joseph B. Ely and John J. Cummings said about each other was true, neither would be a strong candidate for Governor.

Mayor Names 50 Men

Having made that point, Mr. Curley submitted a list of 50 possible candidates for Governor for any one of whom he would use the Mayor's words. "The people of the State could cast their vote without closing their eyes or breaking point of their pencil."

Rothfuchs-Hall

Emanuel church, West Roxbury was the scene of a charming wedding Thursday evening August 28, when Miss Kathryn Roberta Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lane Hall of Stevens rd., was united in marriage to Charles Christian Rothfuchs, Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Charles C. Rothfuchs of West Roxbury, with the subsequent reception at the home of the bride in Needham.

Two hundred guests witnessed the nuptials, they coming from many distant cities, Needham and Greater Boston. Among those attending was the 83 year old grandmother of the bride, Mrs. Georgianna Hall of Candia, N. H., Prof. and Mrs. Phelps of Marshall College, Virginia, and Mrs. Allen Butterick of Long Island, N. Y.

Preceding the entrance of the bridal party, Mrs. Frieda Reidel, an aunt of the bride, sang "Because." The wedding processional and recessional were played by the organist of the church, and Rev. H. S. Wilkins officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was in a lovely picture in her wedding gown of ivory satin with a flourish of chantilly lace and short train. Her veil of chantilly lace was draped from a princess crest of pearls, and she carried a showy bouquet of bride.

MAYOR SUGGESTS 50 FOR GOVERNOR

or breaking the point of their pencil, both of which it would be necessary to do to square with one's conscience provided either one of the candidates now in the contest became the nominee of the Democracy.

The most striking feature of the list was the omission of Ex-Mayor Andrew Peter's name, which has been mentioned as much as any other in connection with the Democratic nomination for Governor. It is common knowledge that the present Mayor and his successor do not think highly of each other, but the fact that Mr Peter's name was not in the list caused comment. Mr Peters, however, subsequently ended further consideration of his name when he issued a statement saying that under no circumstances would he be a candidate for public office this year.

Three or More Republicans

A glance at the Mayor's list showed that it contained the names of Republicans. One story is that there are 11 Republicans on it. There are three at least—Maj Gen Clarence R. Edwards, Edward Avery of Braintree and Mayor Braden of Lowell.

When Gen Edwards was asked how he felt about the inclusion of his name in the list, he said: "I have been a Republican all my life, but of course I am highly flattered by the Mayor's suggestion that I am qualified for the Governorship."

Mr Avery is chairman of the Board of Selectmen of Braintree and a candidate for the Republican nomination for the State House of Representatives from the 6th Norfolk District.

Mayor Braden gave out last night a statement in which he endorsed William A. Butler as a candidate for the Republican nomination for the United States Senate.

He Wouldn't Take It

Mayor Curley was asked whether he knew that Mr Avery was a Republican. "That makes no difference," Mr Curley said; "he would make a good Governor and that is why I have added him to my list. The two candidates we have now have been out in a thunder shower and have got all wet and we must pick someone else."

"How about Mayor Curley?" the reporter asked. "I would not take the nomination," he said.

should be easy to select a good man from the list I have suggested."

The Curley Statement

Mayor Curley's statement, which accompanied his list of names, follows: "It is most unfortunate that the personal equation cannot be set aside in the present gubernatorial contest within the Democratic party. The position taken by me is absolutely unselfish, my sole desire being the party, welfare and the welfare of the working man who looks to the Democratic party for that leadership through which their welfare may be safeguarded from industrial depression, for which they are in no measure responsible, but because of which from time to time their families are obliged to endure an exceedingly great hardship.

"I assume that Mr Ely and Mr Cummings, the contesting Democratic candidates, are both honest men. If we are to accept this assumption it will require an elastic mind to vote for either upon election day in view of what they have said with reference to one another.

"If we are to believe Mr Cummings, Mr Ely is not only a failure as a vote-getter, but in addition is a member of the law firm which transacts the bulk of the business of the power trust, not only in Massachusetts, but in New England and Canada.

"If, on the other hand, what Mr Ely and his friends say of Mr Cummings is true, he is absolutely unfit to fill even the position of messenger at the State House.

Believes in Primary System

"Under the circumstances, that is, providing both are honest—and I have no reason to assume otherwise, and that what they state of one another is the truth—a nomination secured by either would mean certain defeat.

"I did not attend the conference held at Worcester because I am a firm believer in the primary system and, provided the health of John W. Fitzgerald permitted, his continuing as a candidate—since it is admitted by everyone that he is eminently qualified to fill the office—I would not now be advocating his nomination in order that a competent candidate might be placed in nomination after the primaries by the Democratic State Committee.

"I have stated that in my opinion there is no dearth of available material and I beg to submit a list of 50 men of standing, character and good repute for any one of whom the people of the State could cast their vote without closing their eyes or bending the point of their pencil."

one of the candidates now in the contest become the nominee of the Democracy.

"A vote cast for John F. Fitzgerald upon primary day will serve two very important purposes; one, the selection after primary day by the Democratic State Committee of a candidate who can be elected, and the other the reassuring message that should prove most beneficial to a very sick man, whose present illness may be traced to his labors in behalf of the Democratic party."

Talbot Out for Ely

Joseph B. Ely, one of the candidates for the Democratic nomination for Governor, made a conservative address over the radio last night and did not refer to Mayor Curley's latest statement.

Mayor Edmond P. Talbot of Fall River came out for Mr Ely last night. "Mr Curley is trying to cloud the issue," Mr Talbot said.

Congressman William P. Connery Jr of Lynn said last night: "In my speech at the Worcester Democratic conference I declared that I had no preference for any particular candidate for Governor or United States Senator, that I was interested solely in Democratic success in November and that I would wholeheartedly support the Democratic nominees after primary day. My position is exactly the same today. I do not believe any leaders have the right to dictate who shall be the party nominees. That is the sole right of the voters at the primary. Whoever is nominated on Tuesday next on the Democratic ticket will receive my hearty loyal support."

Lomasney on Ely's Side

Martin M. Lomasney of the West End, leader of the Hendricks Club, has come out for Ely for Governor. Mr Lomasney also supports ex-Dist Atty Thomas C. O'Brien as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate. The politicians believe that the attitude of the Hendricks Club, as represented by Mr Lomasney, will add to Mr O'Brien's strength in the western part of the State.

John J. Cummings, the other candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, spoke last night at open air rallies in South Boston and Roxbury. He paid no attention to Mayor Curley, but directed his attacks toward Mr Ely, whom Mr Cummings accused of bolting the Democratic ticket in 1919 because Richard H. Long, the Democratic nominee for Governor, would not repudiate the party platforms which contained a plan demanding the recognition of the state's labor unions and the repeal of the anti-union laws.

Cummings, in support of his contention, read quotations from the newspapers of that time.

Daniel H. Coakley added to the interest last night by a speech over the radio in which he bitterly attacked Mayor Curley. Then Mr Coakley took up the Senatorial fight. He made no mention of himself as an independent candidate in that contest, but considered the candidates for the Democratic nomination. He praised Ex-Gov Eggs, but said he could not be nominated because he opposed Alfred E. Smith in the 1928 Presidential campaign. Thomas C. O'Brien was disposed of on the theory that he is a Republican, Marcus A. Coolidge's votes for McAdoo in the Democratic national convention of 1928 were brought to light again. Thus only Ex-Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell alone was left. Mr Coakley praised him highly as a fit running mate for Ely, who, according to Mr Coakley, will be nominated Tuesday.

Efforts to involve Senator David I. Walsh in the existing troubles of the Democrats in this State will probably be unavailing. The Senator is in Cuba, and a message received from Havana last night stated that he intended to prolong his stay there. He may not return in time to vote in the primary. At any rate, he will not be in Massachusetts in time to take part in the draped affair now going on.

RENEW THREE YEAR SEARCH

Miss Beatrice Steele Last Heard of in Florida

Miss Beatrice Steele, 21 of 104 Newhall street, notified from since she left home for St. Augustine, Fla., three years ago, is the object of an intensive search that extends from the Canadian line to the Gulf of Mexico today.

Renewal of the search began at the request of her mother, Mrs. Blanche Steele, a widow of three days. Her father, John S. Steele passed away Saturday, one of his final requests being that his missing daughter return to take care of her mother. Mrs. Steele, tearfully in her sorrow, expressed hopes today that some good fortune might send her daughter home so that she might be present at the funeral.

According to friends of the family Miss Steele left home in January, 1927, to go to St. Augustine, Fla.

AND A

MISS RUTH J. MARTIN TO WED W. GRAVES
SATURDAY THE 20TH

Miss Ruth J. Martin.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Howard Martin of Melrose have issued invitations for the wedding of their daughter, Ruth Janet, and Wallace K. Graves, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace H. Graves of Linden street. The wedding is to take place Saturday, Sept. 20, at the Martin home in Melrose and some 200 guests have been bidden to the ceremony and the wedding supper which will follow.

The bride is to be attended by her sister, Mrs. John Stetson Allard of New York city and her cousin, Mrs. Robert Shanley of Chicago. Walter T. Wilson of New Haven, formerly of this city, will serve as Mr. Graves' best man. It is of interest that Mr. Graves acted as best man for Mr. Wilson at his wedding a year ago. Both young men were classmates at Boston University.

Miss Martin graduated from Mrs. Somers' School, Mt. Vernon Seminary, in Washington, D. C., and the Katherine Gibb School in Boston.

Mr. Graves was graduated from Holyoke High School with the class of 1919 and Boston University in 1923. He then took post graduate work at Suffolk Law School. Mr. Graves is associated with the International Paper Company in Boston.

Suffolk Law School

Suffolk Law School, with a national reputation for training lawyers, will open its 25th year on Sept. 22. Recruited from the ranks of the best practicing lawyers in the State, the faculty of Suffolk Law School boasts some of the best trained lawyers available.

Dean Gleason L. Archer, head of the school, has gained a wide reputation for text books and case books on various subjects, which he has written. He also is nationally known as a radio lecturer on law.

The course at Suffolk covers a four-year period with graduates being awarded A. B. degrees.

Several changes have been made in the school this year. The book store, formerly located on the second floor, has been moved to the second floor and the dining room has been moved to the first floor.

FERRY-McLAUGHLIN.

(Special to the Courier-Citizen.)
LOWELL, N. H., Sept. 10. Mr. Richard Perry of Lowell and Miss Frances Elizabeth McLaughlin, the daughter of Mr. Thomas P. McLaughlin of 20 Himes street, this city, were married this morning at 7 o'clock at a nuptial mass at St. Patrick's church by Rev. Matthew Creamer, the pastor. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Mildred McLaughlin, as maid of honor and the best man was her brother, Philip McLaughlin.

The wedding reception and church were Mr. Frank Remos of this city and Mr. Peter Remos of Lowell and Mr. Frank Santos of Lowell. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast and reception was held at the home of the bride's father, Lawrence Spurgeon, in Boston.

Mrs. Perry was graduated from the Nashua high school with the class of 1922 and from the Kimball school, Lowell, with the class of 1926. She has been employed in that city in office work for some time. Mr. Perry, who is a graduate of the Suffolk Law school, is manager of the Standard Stores branch in Lowell.

The bride wore a wedding gown of ivory satin, fashioned in the modern period, with a veil of tulle lace. She carried a bouquet of bride's roses. The maid of honor wore a gown of peach-colored satin with her accessories of soft brown. She carried a bouquet of peach-colored gladioli.

The couple left during the day on their trip by automobile to New York. They will reside at 649 West street, Lowell.

CURLEY QUOTES OMAR AGAINST ELY

Also Raps Coakley—Archer
And Others at Rally

Mayor Curley, continuing his strenuous efforts to have John F. Fitzgerald named Democratic candidate for Governor declared last night at a rally in the Statler Hotel that Joseph B. Ely "signed his own political death warrant" by his hostility to the league of nations plank in the 1919 Democratic state convention.

Producing newspapers quoting Ely's animosity to the Irish, Mayor Curley quoted the stanza from Omar Khayyam, which reads:

The moving finger writes, and having writ
Moves on, nor all your piety nor wit
Shall lure it back to cancel half a line
Nor all your tears wash out a word of it.

The stanza, Mayor Curley said, is peculiarly applicable in the case of Mr. Ely, the candidate for Governor.

The mayor took a slam at Daniel Coakley, chief Ely supporter, by mentioning that in Coakley's campaign for mayor, "the vote received by the mighty Coakley was one per cent. of the total cast, or actually less than the scattering vote which is not recorded."

Turning to the indorsement of Ely by the mayors of Fall River, Peabody, Waltham, Everett, Somerville and Chelsea, Mayor Curley pointed to the large vote piled up in those cities in 1922 for Fitzgerald and the small vote for Ely.

Other speakers at the rally were Chairman Henry E. Lawler of the Boston Democratic city committee, Traffic Commissioner Joseph Conry, Dean Gleason L. Archer of the Suffolk law school, John Murphy of Worcester, candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, former Representative Vincent Brogan, Thomas Mullen, director of the city publicity department, others on the speakers' platform were Mrs. Colin McDonald, election commissioner; former Fire Commissioner Theodore A. Glynn, and City Treasurer Edmund L. Dolan.

Dean Archer said in part, "I come here because I respect and honor Mayor Curley of Boston. I regard him as the ablest statesman in the Democratic party in Massachusetts. I believe the remedy he has suggested is a wise suggestion."

The political storm now raging in Massachusetts, with its centre in Boston, touched Lowell on two distinct occasions yesterday and brought residents of this city into the forefront of discussion in the state and national campaigns.

Last evening Mayor James Curley of Boston named Mayor Thomas H. Braden and former Mayor Thomas J. Corbett of this city as two of the 50 men of the state whom he would prefer as governor of Massachusetts to either Joseph B. Ely or John J. Cummings, the Democratic candidates. Braden is a Republican, Corbett, a Democrat.

Earlier in the day the forces of Eben S. Draper, Republican candidate for the nomination for United States senator, accused William M. Butler, his opponent, of having claimed credit for certain legislation in behalf of veterans which Hon. Edith Nourse Rogers of this city is said to have initiated and followed through to enactment.

BOSTON, Sept. 11 (AP)—Mayor James Curley today named 50 potential candidates for Governor, including: Cambridge, General Clarence Edwards, a republican, Edward Pileus, Boston merchant; James Phelan, Boston banker; Judge E. B. Carroll of Springfield; Judge C. Crosby of Pittsfield; Judge

ELY RAPS CURLEY

Says He Is Bringing Pressure on City Employees to Have Them Vote for Fitzgerald

A charge that Mayor James Curley is seeking to force city department heads and employees against their will to support him in his efforts to nominate John F. Fitzgerald for Governor, despite Fitzgerald's withdrawal statement, was made by Joseph B. Ely of Westfield, at rallies in Hyde Park, Roslindale, Roxbury, Charlestown and East Boston, last night.

Ely contended in all of his speeches that the bulk of the Democrats of the State are with him and that the Mayor has with him in his plan to force a Fitzgerald nomination nobody but the city workers.

Mr. Ely said in part: "The report filters in that the city employees are to be put on the line for the Curley plan to forsake the direct primary and I presume that a great deal of pressure will be exercised to that end."

"But we have a primary and an Australian ballot. The Australian ballot was adopted in order that when a man goes into a booth he may be alone with his conscience and no man is to know how he votes.

Cummings Raps Ely

Says He Is the Candidate Picked by Daniel H. Coakley—Also Hits at Curley and Lomasney

John J. Cummings, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, last night attacked Joseph B. Ely as the "hand-picked candidate of Daniel H. Coakley," and said that the Democrats of the State will not stand for such a man to lead their party in the coming campaign.

He also branded Coakley, Curley and Lomasney as "political scoundrels" for indulging in professional religious propaganda for the past 30 years.

"The Democrats of Massachusetts," he said "will not allow Dan Coakley to hand pick former District Attorney Ely as their pliable tool in the hands of Coakley. The voters remember Coakley's connection with three former Massachusetts district attorneys, one, universally loved and highly respected, sent heartbroken to an early grave, another to State prison and the third an exile in another State, while Coakley, the master mind, has the impudence to want to pick a Governor of Massachusetts."

"The united effort of such political characters as Coakley, Curley and Lomasney is being used to wreck the Democratic party and to re-elect Governor Allen."

BOSTON, Sept. 11 (P).—Major Edward H. Cooper, who has been touring the state in the service men's dugout on wheels for Eben S. Draper's candidacy for the Republican Senatorial nomination, today accused William M. Butler, Draper's opponent, of claiming falsely credit for veterans' legislation.

Mrs. Rogers Given Credit.
Cooper said Butler's men had been following the dugout on wheels and distributing literature claiming that Butler while in the Senate secured certain legislation whereas the credit really belong to Representative Edith Nourse Rogers of Lowell, Henry L. Bowles of Springfield and others.

Among the claims, Cooper said, was that Butler secured Bedford the new veterans' hospital. In reality, Cooper asserted, Mrs. Rogers secured it. The same was true, he said of the retention of Camp Devens and the improvements there. Bowles, not Butler, he claimed, kept the veterans' bureau offices in Springfield open.

Butler for 48-Hour Law.
Butler meanwhile continued his advocacy of a national 48-hour law to meet unemployment and equalize labor costs throughout the country. He spoke at Taunton, while Draper was touring Taunton, New Bedford, Fall River and Webster after delivering another arraignment of prohibition before the Crusaders Inc. in Boston.

In the Democratic camp John J. Cummings, candidate for the gubernatorial nomination, attacked his opponent Joseph B. Ely of Westfield, charging him with bolting the ticket in 1919 over the League of Nations and Boston police strike issues.

O'Connell Hits at Lomasney.
James E. O'Connell, speaking for his brother, Joseph, former congressman, candidate for the Democratic nomination to the Senate, said his brother was the only one of the four candidates in the party to have had experience at Washington and that he was independent of the bosses and of the money power. He accused Martin Lomasney, Boston politician, of putting Thomas O'Brien in the senatorial contest as a spite fight against O'Connell because the latter stood up to Lomasney.

Braden Endorses Butler.
Among the endorsements made public during the day was a letter from Mayor Thomas H. Braden of Lowell backing Butler for the Senate.

The total vote cast was in excess of 200,000, and the vote received by the mighty Coakley was 1 percent of the total cast, or actually less than the scattering vote which is not recorded.

"The Mayor of Fall River has announced his support of Mr Ely and in 1922 Ely in Fall River was 213, while John F. Fitzgerald received 1156. Mayor Sullivan of Peabody, who has likewise announced his support of Mr Ely, was not very good at delivering in 1922, Mr Ely receiving but 54 votes, while John F. Fitzgerald received 1370. The mighty Mayor O'Neill of Ely has announced his support of Mr Ely. In 1922 the vote for Mr Ely in Everett was 23, while that of John F. Fitzgerald was 514. Mayor Murphy of Somerville has announced his support of Mr Ely. The total vote received by Mr Ely in Somerville in 1922 was but 57, as against 779 for John F. Fitzgerald. In the city of Waltham where Mayor Duene has announced his intention to support Mr Ely, Mr Ely received 20 votes—John F. Fitzgerald, 624. In a sentimental and stirring plea to the voters of Massachusetts to nominate John F. Fitzgerald at the primary tomorrow, Mayor James M. Several Changes Made in Faculty at Law School

Several changes in the faculty at Suffolk law school to become effective at the opening of the 1930-31 school term Sept. 22 were announced today by Dean Gleason L. Archer. Atty. Thomas Finnegan of Malden, for three years instructor in sales has been appointed professor of bankruptcy to succeed Prof. Harry E. Thomason who resigned because of ill health. Atty. Finnegan has taken a prominent part in alumni affairs since his graduation in 1925 and at present is vice-president of the Suffolk Law School Alumni Association. He is a Boston College graduate, class of 1916. Atty. Alexander Smith, for several years instructor in deeds, mortgages and other real estate law, has been appointed professor of the history of the law and a member of both the Massachusetts and New York bars. He succeeds Prof. Downes as resigned. Atty. Leo W. Higgins of Quincy, Suffolk law 1925 has been named instructor in carriers to assist Prof. Dillon.

Mayo INTENDED TO LIST FIFTY 'ELIGIBLES'

Emphatically Denies Omitting Own Name From Roll for Governor

By BERT FORD
Mayor Curley in a statement issued today flatly denied rumors that he would be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor in the event that John F. Fitzgerald is nominated on Tuesday.

"The point I wish to stress," said the mayor, "is that I am not a candidate myself, and, as a Democrat I am interested solely in the selection of the best Governor." The Mayor's statement was promoted by criticisms which had reached him from the Ely camp because he named several Republicans in his list of 49 eligibles for Democratic nomination for governor in case Fitzgerald, who is still confined in a hospital, is successful in the primary.

Mayor Curley slipped back at his Ely critics and hit at Daniel H. Coakley without naming him, alluding to the "sinister oracle."

MEANT TO NAME 50.
The fact that only 49 names appeared in the Mayor's honor list instead of 50 also gave rise to whisperings that the missing name was probably the Mayor himself.

Curley made it clear today that he supposed he had named 50 and that it was merely an error in adding. Everybody wanted to know who the 50th citizen was, but the Mayor said because of an inadvertence, the 50th man hadn't been listed.

John J. Cummings, Ely's rival in the Democratic race for gubernatorial nomination, at a noon rally in Cambridge today charged that the 50th man was Curley, whom he accused of "running by proxy for a sick man."

The Mayor's statement follows: "There is no particular significance in the fact that there are only 49 names in the list. In fact I thought there were fifty."

"Friends of Ely are stressing the fact that I mentioned Keppeler among those in the list. They forget that Alvan T. Fuller, who was Governor of Massachusetts, was also mentioned."

Drowned in Boston Professor

Archibald M. Coakley, professor of English at Boston College, was drowned in a small boat on the coast of Massachusetts yesterday. The boat was capsized by a spring tide. Coakley, 47, was with his wife and two children. The boat was carrying a party of five. The cause of the accident is being investigated. Coakley was a well-known figure in the Boston literary world. He had been in the city for several days on a visit. His death is a great loss to the college and to the city.

Marcus A. Coolidge, Charles S. Ashley, mayor of New Bedford, Richard M. Russell, mayor of Cambridge, Gen. Clarence B. Edwards, Edwin A. Flynn, James J. Sullivan, and others were present at a meeting held in the city yesterday.

Women's Better Government League. The hall was crowded to the doors and scores stood in the ballroom foyer. Mayor Curley talked only eight minutes after those Zulliani had prepared "Sweet Adeline" and "My Hero," addressed to ex-Mayor Fitzgerald who was supposed to be listening in from the hospital.

Mayor Curley defended his accusations against Mr Ely concerning the latter's stand on the League of Nations and indicated his hostility by speech the statement, "I have been in the public life of this Commonwealth for 30 years and no man has ever challenged successfully a single statement made by me in a political campaign."

Fitzgerald, vote for him Tuesday, he will win the primaries by a larger majority than that given any man previously in the history of Massachusetts.

"We go forth from here tonight with the strains of 'Sweet Adeline' and victory resounding in our hearts determined that on Tuesday next through our united efforts and the assistance of the intelligent electorate of Massachusetts, that such cheer and comfort shall be brought to our candidate that he, in the quiet shades of the hospital, will also be found singing his familiar melody.

"In the city of New Bedford, a great Democratic leader, who held the office of Mayor for more than 20 years, was in a similar position, and during the campaign he was unable to appear before the public and plead his own case, yet when the votes were counted, Charles Ashley of New Bedford had been reelected Mayor and the news of victory proved more beneficial than the services of physicians and surgeons combined. We have an opportunity to render a like service to John F. Fitzgerald."

Warnings of "Withdrawals"
Mayor Curley also warned the audience against last-minute rumors about the withdrawal of candidates, declaring that Fitzgerald's name was on the ballot and that he would win.

Mrs Mary A. Costello presided at the meeting. The crowds examined newspaper files in which statements of Mr Ely in 1919 were published.

Traffic Commissioner Joseph A. Conry, who preceded Mayor Curley, likened Boston's Mayor to such leaders as Napoleon, Washington, Jackson, Lincoln, Roosevelt and Smith, in a fiery plea to follow Curley's leadership.

He said all were victims of abuse from their own.

"We have a situation in Massachusetts now," he said, "which requires a degree of leadership comparable to that displayed by those leaders of other years."

Archer Not Candidate
Gleason L. Archer, dean of Suffolk Law School, one of the 49 men named by Mayor Curley as eligible for Governorship, said he was not a candidate, either potential or in esse, but thought Mayor Curley's suggestion a good one.

The other speakers, all of whom paid tribute to Ex-Mayor Fitzgerald and urged the voters to follow Curley's leadership, were Henry B. Lawler, president of the Boston Democratic city committee; Charles S. Murphy of Worcester, candidate for the nomination for Lieutenant Governor, and Thomas A. Mullen, director of city of Boston publicity.

Mr Mullen denied that there was a shred of religious bigotry in Curley's forces.

sets, was at one time a Democrat.

"Eugene N. Foss, another former Governor was not only a Republican but a prohibitionist at all times an independent and at present is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate.

"Mr. Ely's chief spokesman, the sinister figure, at one time in legal circles, overlooks the fact that he is an independent candidate for Senator and the only purpose of his candidacy is to add the Republican party to retain control of that seat."

Distinctly ignoring Joseph B. Ely and John J. Cummings, aspirants for the Democratic nomination, Mayor Curley also left the name of Andrew J. Peters from the list.

The latter is considered the choice of the Democratic State committee and would be its choice if John F. Fitzgerald is nominated Tuesday despite his withdrawal from the race.

PETERS WON'T RUN
But Peters' complicated matters further in a flat statement that he could not be induced to make the run against the Republican re-election of Gov. Frank G. Allen.

"In view of statements which have appeared recently in the newspapers, it seems necessary for me to reiterate that I shall not be a candidate for public office this year under any circumstances," he said.

The Curley drive to nominate Fitzgerald opened today with rallies scheduled for many strategic points. Mayor Curley will make his first two speeches on the stump for the whirlwind effort to defeat Ely and Cummings.

The Mayor will address a big meeting of men and women Democratic leaders at Hotel Bellevue at 8 o'clock. Later he will deliver a radio address from Station WEEI.

He is scheduled to make another radio speech from Station WEEI at 7:05 tomorrow night and a third radio speech from the same station tomorrow afternoon.

Arthur S. Martin, president of Executive Senate of Boston, Charles A. O'Connell of Boston, Thomas A. Landers, mayor of Woburn, William J. Granfield, member of Congress, Ray, Roland J. Sawyer, of Ware, Edward A. McLaughlin, Jr., of Boston, William F. Connerly, Jr., of Lynn, John F. Malley, of Newton, Edward F. Barry, of Boston, Philip J. Gallagher, mayor of Woburn, John A. Kelliher, sheriff of Suffolk County, Edward H. Larkin, mayor of Medford, Thomas J. McGrath, mayor of Quincy, Arthur Lyman, of Waltham, Charles S. Hamlin, Federal Reserve Board, George W. Anderson, Justice, U. S. Circuit Court, Charles S. Murphy, of Worcester, Gen. Thomas F. Foley, of Worcester, Dean Gleason L. Archer, Suffolk Law School, Boston, Edward Avery, of Braintree, T. Frank Joyce, of Braintree.

BOSTON, Sept 12—James M Curley, Boston's Democratic mayor, believes there are at least 49 Massachusetts men, any one of whom would make a better governor than either Joseph B Ely or John J. Cummings, candidates for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

The third candidate for the nomination, former Mayor John J. Fitzgerald of Boston, recently withdrew from the contest on the ground of poor health. Nevertheless, Mayor Curley is campaigning for Fitzgerald and should the latter win at the polls next Tuesday it would be possible for the Democratic state committee to name a substitute for Fitzgerald. In a statement last night Curley said that if Fitzgerald should be nominated the state committee would encounter no difficulty in finding a candidate stronger than either Ely or Cummings.

Supporting his contention that there was no dearth of good gubernatorial material, the mayor published a list of names of possible candidates. Democratic leaders were surprised, on perusing the list, to discover that Mayor Curley had named three out-and-out Republicans and eight other men generally listed in the G. O. P. column. Among the known Republicans was Maj Gen Clarence R. Edwards, wartime commander of the 26th (Yankee) division.

CURLEY NAMES 50 MEN HE "PREFERS" FOR GOVERNORSHIP

Boston Mayor Says Ely and Cummings Are Not of Right Calibre to Hold Office.

JUDGE HANIFY ON LIST

Several Republicans Mentioned—Statement Throws Political Stage Into Up roar

Boston, Sept 11.—(AP)—Mayor James M. Curley tonight threw the political stage into an uproar by naming 50 men including several Republicans whom he would rather see Governor than either of the present Democratic aspirants for the office, Joseph B. Ely of Westfield and John J. Cummings of Boston.

With only five days remaining until primary day Curley has been in the midst of a battle with other Democratic leaders of the State since John F. Fitzgerald, former Mayor of Boston, withdrew from the campaign because of illness. Only yesterday a split developed between the Curley forces and those of Martin Lomasney, Boston Democratic leader and considered one of the czars of Boston politics. Lomasney came out in favor of Ely and opposed a plan advanced by Curley that the Democrats insist on Fitzgerald's nomination and then, if he declines to run for election, the Democratic State committee pick a candidate.

In a statement issued with his list the Mayor said neither Ely nor Cummings were of the right calibre to hold the office of Governor and they had carried on such a vigorous campaign against each other their supporters could never be reconciled to supporting the victorious candidate in the primary.

The list included several Republicans. Those named in the Mayor's list were Sherman L. Whipple, Boston lawyer; Gen. Charles H. Cole, Gen. Edward L. Logan, Marcus A. Coolidge, who seeks the United States senatorial nomination; Mayor Ashley of New Bedford, Mayor Russell of Cambridge, Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, a Republican; Edward A. With only five days remaining until primary day Curley has been in the midst of a battle with other Democratic leaders of the State since John F. Fitzgerald, former Mayor of Boston, withdrew from the campaign because of illness. Only yesterday a split developed between the Curley forces and those of Martin Lomasney, Boston Democratic leader and considered one of the czars of Boston politics. Lomasney came out in favor of Ely and opposed a plan advanced by Curley that the Democrats insist on Fitzgerald's nomination and then, if he declines to run for election, the Democratic State committee pick a candidate.

MISS M'LAUGHLIN A CHARMING BRIDE

Weds Richard Perry of Lowell at St. Patrick's Church

NASHUA, Sept. 11.—A pretty fall wedding was held Wednesday morning from St. Patrick's church when Miss Frances Elizabeth McLaughlin, daughter of Thomas McLaughlin of 20 Haines street, was married to Richard Perry of Lowell. Rev. Matthew Creamer, P. R., officiated before a large gathering of relatives and friends. Miss Mildred McLaughlin, sister of the bride, acted as maid of honor, and Philip McLaughlin, brother of the bride, was best man. The ushers were Frank Guest of this city and Peter Remos and Frank Santos of Lowell.

After a wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's father the couple left on a wedding trip to New York, following which they will reside at 50 Westford street in Lowell. Mrs. Perry was a graduate of the 1922 class of the High school here and has been employed at the office of the American Mutual Liability company in Lowell, recently. Mr. Perry attended the Suffolk Law school and is now manager of the Standard Gas of Lowell.

JUNCTION AND WEST CAMBRIDGE

James Walsh Passed
Bar Examination

James J. Walsh, son of Mr. and Mrs. David L. Walsh, of 8 Madison ave. was among those who passed the recent bar examinations. He graduated from Suffolk Law school in the mid-year class of 1930 and was vice-president of the class. For the past two years he has been associated with the law office of Lyne, Woodworth, and Everts.

Mr. Walsh was born in Cambridge, March 25, 1906, and graduated from the Ellis Grammar school and the Cambridge High and Latin school. During his high school career he played baseball, football and basketball. His father has been a police officer for the past 31 years and is known throughout the city. He is also a nephew of Joseph M. Walsh, popular attendance officer in the school department and of Edward M. Walsh, prominent North Cambridge municipal director.

Statuti Is A Strong Factor

The candidacy of Charles V. Statuti, attorney and well-known leader in American and Italian activities, for the Democratic nomination for the House of Representatives in Ward 1, is gaining added impetus every day.

He was born in the North End, has spent practically all of his life in East Boston. During the last presidential campaign, he served on the East Boston Italian Al Smith Club. In the Mayoralty fight, Mr. Statuti served on the James M. Curley Club in East Boston, and in September, 1929, was one of the first to lead the fight against the erection of gas tanks in Orient Heights section of East Boston, and took a leading part at the five mass meetings called to protest against the petition for the erection of these gas tanks, he also appeared at City Hall, in this matter, before the Street Commissioner. In April, 1930, he was one of the first to oppose the plan of the Boston Elevated, to place one man cars on the Gladstone Street car line.

Mr. Statuti is the president of the Orient Heights Lodge Sons of Italy in America, was president for 2 years of the Legal Circle of Boston, an organization composed of Italo-American attorneys and law students, Board of Director of the Italo-American Citizens' Club of East Boston, member of the East Boston Suffolk Law Alumni Association, member of the St. Lazarus Holy Name Society, and the St. Lazarus Holy Name Club.

DISTINGUISHED PARTY AT COURT OF HONOR

English Visitors Amazed at Great Parade

By A. J. PHILLIPS
"I am amazed at it all," said Reuben Salter, Mayor of Boston, Eng, as he turned to Mayor James M. Curley of Boston, Mass, after they and Gov Allen had been reviewing for a couple of hours the great Tercentenary parade from the Court of Honor on the Common yesterday afternoon.

"I am speechless," said Lord Mayor Lee of Coventry, Eng, who also stood nearby with a host of other dignitaries. These two comments by eminent Englishmen just about expressed the feeling of all those in the Court of Honor as that wonderfully picturesque parade, rolled by for six hours. The thing was hypnotic. People in that Court of Honor just stood there hour after hour totally unconscious of time as they watched the ever-changing character of that human tide which flowed along Tremont st past the grandstand with flags and banners, to the strains of music from 100 or more bands and in the full sunshine of a perfect September afternoon.

There have been great parades in Boston in the past, but none quite equal to this one was ever before staged in the city and certainly no such crowd of people ever before witnessed a parade or anything else in this city. Naturally, it was the best as it passed the reviewing stand. The whole scene—the crowd as well as the parade—was unforgettable. Curley was a patient, good-natured, enthusiastic crowd.

Lots of interesting things happened in that Court of Honor during the afternoon.

In the first place, Mayor Curley's good nature was contagious. The kind of official dignity that usually prevails on a reviewing stand went overboard at the start. A free-and-easy, give-and-take spirit was in the air and it affected Gov Allen just as much as it did the red-robed Reuben Salter, Mayor of Boston, Eng, and William Randolph Hearst and Rear Admiral L. M. Milton, U. S. N., as it did all the others in the court. And the court was crowded.

Guests in the Court.

Let's look over a few of those who were present in the court besides those mentioned. There was Mme Schumann-Heink, there was Councillor James Tait, a former Mayor of Boston, Eng. He said the parade was the greatest thing of the kind he had ever seen. There was E. A. Bailey, the Deputy Mayor of Boston, Eng, and his wife. There was Councillor Jabez H. Mountain of Boston, Eng, and George Robinson, editor and manager of the Lincolnshire Standard. He got almost enough yesterday afternoon to fill the volume he is going to write about this visit when he gets back to England. Today he was amazed at what he saw is putting it mildly.

Then there was Commandatore Mayotti, the Italian consul; W. G. Clark, Mayor of Fredericton, N. B.; Ex-Mayor E. C. Eddy of Kidderminster, Eng; P. Jones of Stourbridge, Eng. There was James McConnell, Mayor of Sydney, N. S.; Adj Gen Stevens of the State; His Lordship Henry Oswald Crockett, Justice of the Supreme Court of New Brunswick; Hon. Louis Gastonguay, Mayor of Halifax, N. S.; Charles Howard of the Canadian National Railway; Thomas J. A. Johnson, Boston's official writer; Pres Gaspar G. Bacon of the State Senate; Elliot Wedgworth, Carl Dreyfus and Mrs Dreyfus, Mayor Fernand W. Hartford of Portsmouth, N. Curley beckoned to the grandstand. The Major stopped while the Mayor and his comrades applauded.

Mayor Tossed Bouquets

The Mayor tossed bouquets to sor the floats and he received a few from the floats. The Chinese units, the Governor and the Mayor, the bouquets, and this colorful unit, the great applause.

That bit of the Far East reproduced the assets of Boston in such a way made a deep impression on the units of Boston, the Greek and the units from near and far countries—from Syria, Greece, Bulgaria, Lithuania. He said these were the remarkable power of assimilation in America.

The Syrians did a sword dance, in front of the Court of Honor that looked like a leaf out of the Arabian Nights, and the colorful floats of a group of athletes—Lithuanians—some fine tumbling.

The many splendid young women in the parade created a great deal of comment among the Englishmen. Mayor Salter said he was deeply impressed by the way in which both the young men and the young women marched.

When it was all over one of the Englishmen said:

"I never expected to see anything so wonderful. I've heard somebody say Mayor is an iron man. I think they made of steel."

A few more outstanding features in the parade as noticed from the reviewing stand were the Aleppo Temple Band, the Firemen's Band, the French floats, the German floats, the Chinese floatmen with the Oriental masks, and the wonderfully picturesque float containing the Chinese children. The Greek and Syrian floats also shared a good deal of applause in the grandstand; also the Lithuanian floats and the Polish floats.

The units of schoolgirls all through the half of the parade also caught the eye.

The police had their hands full trying to keep boys from climbing up the backs of the grandstands—as it was more of them got over.

Contest Expected Primary Vote Tuesday

Want Repairs Made on Cleveland St. Building

The Selectmen Tuesday evening voted to authorize the Town Manager in behalf of the Selectmen to request the Chief of the fire department to take whatever steps might be necessary to remedy the conditions in the dangerous building on Cleveland street, between Railroad avenue and Gas avenue.

The inspector of buildings was also requested to take action regarding the display of a business sign on Phillips avenue, which is in the residential district and violates the zoning laws.

Draper-Butler Battle To Feature Primaries

Campaigns in years, and although the contests have been raised from time to time, the generally recognized one is the "dry wet" affair. But the cause is the ardent defender of prohibition, while upon the broad banner of Draper rest the hopes of those who favor modification or repeal of the famous amendment.

Draper Strong Here

Since Norwood has evidenced distinct tendencies whenever the opportunity presented itself at the polls during the past few years, there is a feeling that Draper will carry a large number of prominent Republicans have declared for him, and General Clarence R. Ed. Westwood neighbor is actively engaged in his success. It is generally supposed, however, that the nomination of Butler would be pleasing to the town, who like Butler, is an ardent prohibitionist.

There is a possibility that the Democratic Norwood may decide the result here, strange though it may seem. A large number of those who habitually vote most of the Democratic ticket, are registered as Republicans since the time that Frank G. Ed. Westwood was running for office because naturally not anxious to have a success and rather than to be on primary day, since they habitually vote Democratic candidates for Butler on the Republican ticket. The theory is that if Butler would prove a weaker opponent against the Democratic nomination would Draper, they will endeavor to assist in his nomination, either by not the number of such votes as large as some assume, but it is one of the subjects of current gossip.

No question...

Republican Vote Here Be Manipulated by Ine Democrats Who istered For G. O. P. Ticket

The Butler-Draper race is the Republican senatorial nomination and the Coughlin-Bennett in the honor of carrying the Democratic banner in the fight for representative are apparently contests that will carry the most interest locally, as Norwood voters go to the polls for the primary voting Tuesday afternoon the Nickerson-Cleary battle in state committee nominations is attracting wide attention.

The two contestants for Republican choice, both nationally known names, have waged one of the most bitter battles.

OD, MASS.

Although a young man, he has been in and out of Democratic politics for years, and has been prominent in town affairs.
He is an attorney, and is widely known and popular throughout the town.
Coughlin bears the endorsement of the Norwood Democratic Town Committee.

Bennett is younger than Coughlin.
He is in the insurance business, and was educated at Harvard, North eastern, and Suffolk Law Schools.
He is known as a public speaker, and was secretary of the American Bar Association. Bennett was born in West-pole, and his wide acquaintances there may give him an advantage in the town over Coughlin. During his high school course, he was prominent in athletics and was a four letter man.

Although Bennett may surprise experts, Coughlin is believed by those conversant with party affairs to have the inside track.

Cleary - Nickerson Race

It is more difficult to even the outcome of the Cleary - Nickerson race for the Democratic State Committee nomination, because of the large number of towns that will help to tide the issue.

John J. Cleary, a well-known and an active official of various associations, is widely popular among voters of the Democratic party in Norwood, and to speak plainly, there appears to be a strong effort being displace Nickerson in his favor, and will, undoubtedly receive a large vote here.

Nickerson on the other hand, through his many years of participation in state wide political affairs, in office and out of it has built up a large acquaintance in all sections. He will, perhaps, have the advantage in that respect over Cleary in the outside towns. In addition he is an old campaigner, and knows all the book of political tricks.
It is not an easy contest to figure.

After Tuesday, with all such questions settled, the two parties can square away with clean decks for the November battle.

SELVITELLA TO MARRIAGE TONIGHT

Boston Man Wins Election by 7 Votes

Selvitella, well-known attorney and president of the East Boston Italian Association, who yesterday was officially awarded the nomination for the House by seven votes following the amount at City Hall under supervision of the Election Commissioners, is the Italian-American to be honored in that section of the city. The reported vote stood: Selvitella 2059; Alexander Sullivan 2052.

HENRY SELVITELLA

News of his victory was received with genuine approbation throughout the ward, particularly by his large corps of workers, who immediately held a coffee and made plans for a victory parade of autos through the district tonight. The procession will form at 7 o'clock at Boardman and Saratoga streets, North Heights.

Mr Selvitella was born in the North End, Boston. He was educated in the public schools of East Boston and completed his legal education at Suffolk Law School. He earned his tuition to law school by selling newspapers and shining shoes.

During the last Presidential campaign Mr Selvitella served as secretary of the Smith Italian-American League in Massachusetts and organized several Italian clubs for Gov Smith throughout the State. In the last May-day campaign he was in charge of the James M. Curley workers in East Boston.

President of the East Boston Italian Association, Mr Selvitella has freely of his time to public meetings, and has often aided needy persons financially.

Mr Selvitella is married and has two children. He is a member of the Boston Italian Association, Lieut Lawrence's Post, A. L.; Sons of Italy; Italian Council, K. of C.; St Lazarus Forename Society, and Federation of Italian Employees.

In the presence of over 200 guests who will gather in the Martin home in Melrose this evening, Miss Ruth Janet Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Howard Martin of 9 Stratford road, will become the bride of Wallace K. Graves of Linden street. The ceremony is to be performed at a candle light service at 8 o'clock by Rev. Henry T. Sechrist of the Melrose Unitarian Church, who will use the single ring service.

The ceremony will take place in the living room, where one end will be banked with cedar trees and smilax and nearby will stand large urns filled with gladioli, dahlias and lilies. An unusual feature of the decorations will be the lighting effect in which seven branch candelabra will be used.

The music for the ceremony and the reception which will follow will be furnished by a group of Boston Symphony musicians. Miss Martin is to be attended by her sister, Mrs. John S. Allard of Bronxville, N. Y., as matron of honor and the bridesmaid will be her cousin, Mrs. Robert K. Shanley of Highland Park, Ill. Walter T. Wilson of New Haven, formerly of this city, is to serve as best man for Mr. Graves.

Miss Martin will wear a beautiful wedding gown of cream satin designed with simple lines and a long court train edged with tulle and her veil is to be of tulle and arranged about the head with bands of the same material. Her flowers are to be orchids and swansonia arranged in a gorgeous mass.

The bride's attendants are to wear turquoise blue crepe designed period style and carry large arm bouquets of autumnal flowers. After the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Graves are to receive on a wedding trip not announcing their destination and they will return to make their home at 34 Salisbury road, Winchester, where friends will be received after Nov 1.

Mrs. Graves graduated from the Melrose High School with the class of 1923 and Mt. Vernon Seminary, Washington, D. C., in 1925, and later attended the Katherine Gibbs School and the Pierce School in Boston.

Mr. Graves graduated from Holyoke High School with the class of 1919 and from Boston University in 1923. He then took a post graduate course at the Suffolk Law School. He is connected with the International Paper Company in Boston.

CURLEY IN CALL UPON COLLEGES

Invites Their Leaders to Forum on Un- employment

Intellectual leaders of the State will be drafted to work out a solution of the unemployment problem at an organization forum to be held Thursday noon at the Parker House upon the suggestion of Mayor Curley. Invitations sent out to the presidents and economic experts of the leading educational institutions of Massachusetts, the Mayor last night declared the politicians had failed to provide a remedy for economic depression and called upon the scientists to lend their aid.

Invasion of industry by 10,000,000 women workers, invention of labor-saving devices and promotion of efficiency programmes, he said, robbed the average liberty-loving citizen of the opportunity to earn a livelihood and secure peace and comfort for their families.

The task of providing a panacea has been delegated to organized labor alone, he said, adding that the time had arrived for the best minds of the nation to join in the effort to reach a solution of the menacing problem.

The Mayor declared that through the leadership of Bay State citizens substantially every great problem affecting the welfare of humanity has been settled during the past 130 years, and declared that this would be an appropriate time for Bay State leadership, inasmuch as the American Federation of Labor is coming to this city for its national convention next month.

Those Invited

The opening forum will be but a preliminary session for conferences to be held, possibly weekly. To the first luncheon the Mayor has invited but 33 college presidents and economic experts as a nucleus of the proposed group.

Invitations to attend the Thursday luncheon were sent out last night to President Arthur S. Pease, Amherst College; President Chester S. McGown, American International College, Springfield; the Rev. C. Serleix, president, Assumption College, Worcester; the Rev. James S. Dolan, S. J., president of Boston College.

Demands by Unemployed

Want All the Money in the City Treasury to Be Turned Over for Distribution

Demand was made upon the City Council yesterday by the Unemployed Council of Boston, with headquarters at 22 Harrison avenue, to turn over all the money now in the city treasury for distribution among the unemployed workers.

The group, which is affiliated with the Trade Union Unity League, demanded a public hearing on the proposal to create an emergency unemployment fund through the use of money appropriated for the extension of the airport, the entertainment of the American Legion, American Federation of Labor and other conventions and the cash balance in the treasury.

Under its plan the Unemployed Council with factory committees would take over the money for distribution among the unemployed workers, who would then receive not less than $25 a week, with $5 additional for each dependent, as well as free rent, free gas, free electricity and free food and clothing. They would also reduce the salaries of city officials to not more than $5000 a year.

Members of the City Council stated last night that under existing laws, they had no authority to carry out the wishes of the Unemployment Council.

Mayor Says Labor Should Not Carry Entire Task

A selected group of distinguished Massachusetts educators have been invited by Mayor James M. Curley to a preliminary meeting at the Parker House, Oct 2, where unemployment, termed by Mayor Curley "the most important problem confronting America," will be considered.

In a letter to those invited Mayor Curley said that various theories and programs have been advanced with a view of providing a solution, but up to the present time nothing really tangible has been developed.

Labor-saving devices, efficiency programs and the invasion of industry by upward of 10,000,000, in the opinion of the Mayor, make the problem sufficiently acute to warrant the serious thought of leaders in every walk of life, rather than the delegation of the all-important work of providing a solution to organized labor alone.

WEDDINGS

O'Neil-Cairnes.

The wedding of Miss Helen Philippa Cairnes, daughter of Mr and Mrs Edward Cairnes, of 10 Mossland street, and Bernard Francis O'Neil, of South Boston, was solemnized on Saturday morning at 9 o'clock in the Church of St. Catherine of Genoa, Spring Hill, in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends. The ceremony was performed by the pastor of the church, Bishop John B. Peterson, who was also celebrant of the nuptial mass that followed. In the sanctuary during the ceremony and the nuptial mass were the Rev. Fr. James V. Cronin, Rev. Fr. John M. Manion, and Rev. Fr. Thomas M. Foley, all of St. Catherine's Church, and the Rev. Fr. Thomas Lane, of St. John the Evangelist Church, Winthrop.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and was attended by her sister, Miss Rose J. Cairnes, as bridesmaid. John Francis Sweeney, of Boston, was the best man. The bride was gowned in white ivory satin with flowing train, and carried a bridal bouquet of calla lilies. The bridesmaid was in pink chiffon, with hat to match, and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Music was furnished during the mass on the church organ, with harp, cello, and violin accompaniment. The soloist was Mr. Burke. The ushers were Joseph and Francis Cairnes, brothers of the bride, William J. Dee, Jr., of Boston, and John Gaffney, of Cambridge.

A wedding breakfast and reception followed the church ceremony at Longwood Towers, Brookline, which was attended by 200 relatives and friends. After the reception Mr. and Mrs. O'Neil left on a wedding trip to New York and Washington, and on their return will reside at 12 Wendell street, Cambridge.

The bride is a native of this city and graduate of St. Joseph's Girls' High School, Union square. She is a sister of Miss Elizabeth J. Cairnes, a member of the Somerville School Committee, and of Brother Gilbert, principal of Mission Church High School, and brother Samuel, of the Xaverian brothers. The bridegroom is a graduate of Boston Latin School, and of Suffolk Law School, and is connected with the Atlantic National Bank in Boston.

John J. Constable—Lang.

Stanton R. White of West Roxbury, secretaries to Mayor Curley, and Arthur V. Corbett, former secretary and now a Transit Commissioner, are among the nine hundred freshmen enrolled at Suffolk Law this year.

With the real opening today of the football season, Greater Lynn fans should this year be much interested in Tufts, Harvard, Holy Cross, Boston University, Middlebury, Lafayette, Wesleyan, Bates, and New Hampshire University. This section is represented on these teams. Yes, dear reader, this column is open for suggestions and for contributions of football news items or gossip of interest.

BIG UPSET IN HOUSE RECOUNT

Selvitella Declared A Winner By A Margin Of 7 Votes Over Al Sullivan In Represent- ative Contest

Recount of the ballots cast in the recent State primaries produced the first upset Wednesday when Henry Selvitella of East Boston was returned a winner over Alexander Sullivan in the contest for the Democratic nomination for Representative in Ward 1, a strong Democratic district, where the party nomination represents positive election in November.

Wins By Seven Votes

In the initial tabulation made on primary night the seat in the House was given to Sullivan by a margin of 9 votes, but when Election Commissioners at City Hall late Wednesday completed the second counting, it was revealed that Selvitella, for the first time in the history of the district, had broken into the combination to win by seven votes.

Both Selvitella and Sullivan had been prominent in the activities of the East Boston Betterment Association for the past several years, making several bids for elective office which finally resulted in Selvitella's victory.

As East Boston votes now stand in the final count, Representative William H. Barker has 3105 for a total, Representative William H. Hearn, 2447, and Selvitella, 2059, all three to take their places in the 1931 Legislature.

Selvitella Active

Mr. Selvitella was born in the North End, Boston. He was educated in the public schools of East Boston and completed his legal education at Suffolk Law School. He earned his tuition to the law school by selling newspapers and shining shoes.

During the last Presidential campaign Mr. Selvitella served as secretary of the Smith Italian-American League of Massachusetts and organized several Italian clubs for Gov. Smith throughout the State. In the last Mayoralty campaign he was in charge of the James M. Curley workers in East Boston.

As president of the East Boston Betterment Association Mr. Selvitella gave freely of his time to public improvements, and has often aided persons financially.

Mr. Selvitella is married and has two children. He is a member of the Boston Bar Association, Lieut. Lawrence J. Flaherty Post, A. L.; Sons of Italy; Ausonia Council, K. of C.; St. Lazarus Holy Name Society, and Federation of Federal Employees.

CONFER ON RELIEF OF WORKLESS

College Heads Meet With Mayor to Seek Cure

WOMEN EMPLOYEES CALLED ONE CAUSE

Legion and Labor Are Praised by the Mayor

Pointing out that women and modern day machinery have been vital factors in the displacement of men in the matter of employment, Mayor Curley yesterday afternoon at a conference of leading Boston educators called by him in the Parker House, warned that "something must be done immediately in regard to the unemployment situation if the American Republic is to endure."

COLLEGE HEADS MEET

Nearly 50 college department heads from Greater Boston attended the conference. The group was advised by the Mayor that it is time educators and similar agencies, who have been devoting years to the study of industrial and economic problems, in theory at least, apply their knowledge to help labor.

The Mayor continued that no section of the country is richer in brain power than here, referring to the colleges and schools and their professors and students. He urged that this brain power be put to work to help solve the problem. "The Legion and the American Federation of Labor are to have conventions in this city next week," the Mayor began. "Both have been vital factors for the continuance of the American republic. We are glad to have them here and possibly they will bring with them ideas for the solution of the present period of depression, so that America may be preserved from a dole system and from the destruction of initiative and independence.

"It's pretty near time," the Mayor declared, "that a programme for the solution of the present situation was developed by agencies other than organized labor. Organized labor has done a mighty good job, but it appears at this time as if outside help were needed. Every programme in the nature of reform legislation on our statute books practically has been effected through the efforts of some branch of organized labor.

Heads Gather Unemployment Discussion

MAYOR'S UNEMPLOYMENT CONFERENCE

They attended Mayor's conference to consider the unemployment problem. Driscoll, S. J., of Boston College; Mayor Curley, President Edith Comstock of Wheaton College, Edith Steadman of Radcliffe, Sarah Stiles of Tech., and President Karl T. Compton of Tech.

divided into three branches. One will try, he said, to determine just exactly what the present situation is, the second to find the cause, and the third to determine upon a remedy. He said the hardest job confronting his department is the finding of work for the "white-collar type" of man over 45 years of age, despite the fact this man may be far more capable than a younger man for the job.

Before introducing the next speaker, Mayor Curley remarked that 25 years ago women were practically unknown in industry, yet, today, he pointed out, here are thousands of them so employed. He said this is important in the consideration of the unemployment problem, maintaining that the jobs of men these women have taken are gone forever to the men.

The Mayor also emphasized the vital part modern-day steam shovels and endless belts and other similar equipment and machinery has in the construction of roads or other public works projects, have played during the last 10 years with regard to unemployment. He stressed that as a result of all this, thousands of men have been forced out of work and that no substitute jobs for them to step into have been created

Employers Must Help

Simon Hecht, chairman of the Boston Board of Public Welfare, urged the co-operation of employers, so that every member of one family, for example, will not be out of work at one time, while another family in its entirety might be employed.

In response to questions from the Mayor, Hecht said that at present about 25,000 are receiving aid from the city. Mothers' aid is being provided, he said, for 350 families and he also remarked that dependent aid is being given nearly 6,000 families. Besides this, he referred to the several hundred men who daily appear at the city's wood yard.

President John A. Comstock of Tufts College said that at his college "business concerns" as to what business or men displaced in fields of industry.

"The world has never before been in a more receptive mood," President Comstock declared, "for the solution of this problem of depression. Employers now know, it seems, that when labor-saving devices force men out of work, business is subsequently bound to suffer through this creation of unemployment. Things cannot go along unguarded."

Before presenting President Ada L. Comstock of Radcliffe College, Mayor Curley emphasized that we are now facing a "stark, deadly and dangerous proposition from the dictators that assert themselves in emergencies." The Mayor also emphasized that no constructive programme for the solution of the unemployment has as yet been advanced.

Competition in Europe

Mr. Curley warned that there are at present some 1700 branch manufacturing agencies operating on mass production principles in Europe, with the result that American industry is bound to feel the result.

President Comstock told the gathering that Radcliffe has actually felt the results of the current period of depression. She said that this year the percentage of older students returning to college has been the smallest in the institution's history. She attributed this directly to the inability of the girls' parents further to finance the studies of their daughters.

Mayor Curley then spoke with reference to the Boylston street subway extension. He said that if all cities and towns throughout the country had fully co-operated with President Hoover's advice to promote public works projects, the picture would have changed earlier.

The Mayor mentioned that shortly men will be working in three eight-hour shifts right through the 24 hours of the day on that project. On July 1, he said, 125 men were employed there, that now 300 are working there on double shifts, and when the triple eight-hour shifts are introduced, there will be work for 450 men there. All employees on the projects, he pointed out, are ex-servicemen.

Meet Again in Week

The Rev. Francis J. Driscoll, S. J., professor of economics at Boston College, said a classical education is all right for a young man, but that upon it practical contacts should be built. He pictured the misery that results in homes from unemployment. Father Driscoll also appealed to have laborers treated as rational creatures, warning against "going blind in search of gold."

Gleason L. Archer, dean of the Suffolk Law School, was the last speaker. He said the present situation has reached alarming proportions, adding that his institution, which is made up largely of working men, has been clearly affected.

He pointed out that a previous suggestion of Mayor Curley's for consideration of the possibilities of a more even system for the distribution of wages and working hours might help. He also advocated emergency employment and an immediate survey of all industries in Massachusetts to ascertain the exact conditions.

The group present agreed to meet at 10 p. m. next Thursday in the Parker House, further and more completely to discuss the problem.

of interest than ever before, and 4,000,000 persons hopelessly and helplessly seeking work. If the American Republic is to endure, something must be done immediately. Labor needs assistance.

"Other agencies can and should help. Many believe it impossible in this connection to develop a helpful programme. Yet when we reflect and realize how much has been accomplished in this country in the last 15 years, it seems quite likely something definite and tangible can be done. If we have more students and professors and schools than ever devoting their time to the study of these and allied problems, we ought to be able to accomplish something. The United States does not want a dole system."

E. LeRoy Sweetser, State Commissioner of Labor and Industries, mentioned that the Legislature at its last session provided for the investigation of labor conditions, particularly with reference to individuals over 45 years old.

Commission at Work

"We are busily engaged gathering information at this very moment," Commissioner Sweetser remarked. "We are getting reports from all over the country relative to the situation generally, for comparison and the development of ideas with a view to solution. No efforts are being spared to get all possible information on the subject. It is valuable data and detail for the future as well as the present."

GUZZI TO BE CANDIDATE IN WARD THREE

Alfred R. Guzzi of 8 Mague place, West Newton, announced today that he will be a candidate for ward alderman in Ward 3 at the coming city election. He will oppose Alderman Chester A. Prior, who has been ward alderman for the past three years and will be a candidate for re-election. At the last two elections, Alderman Prior was unopposed. A meeting of Guzzi's campaign committee will be held at his home this evening for the purpose of formulating plans for the coming campaign. Guzzi was born in West Newton, was graduated from the Newton High School in 1927 and attended Suffolk Law School for one year. He was treasurer of his class at Newton High. He is the first citizen of Italian extraction to be a candidate for the Newton Board of Aldermen. He recently won a single-handed fight of eight years' duration for the construction and acceptance by the city of Mague avenue, Mague place and Thomas street. Nomination papers were taken out in Guzzi's behalf yesterday.

The names of 234 applicants for admission to the Massachusetts bar have been recommended by the Board of Bar Examiners. The group was selected from nearly 800 applicants who took the bar examination in July. Only 13 of those recommended are girls and the total is exactly 100 fewer than were recommended a year ago. The applicants will be examined individually by the county committees on character between now and Oct 18 and, if no objection is made, the examiners will report to the Supreme Court that the candidates are qualified. The new lawyers will be sworn in on Wednesday, Oct 22, in the Supreme Judicial Court. One group will take the oath at 9:30 in the morning and the other at 11:30. EDUCATE 50 DISCUSS CRISIS WITH CURLEY

College Heads at Luncheon
Opening Unemployment Relief Campaign

Boston's famous educational resources today were thrown into the campaign of Mayor Curley to obtain relief from the unemployment situation.

Nearly 50 prominent educators, representing most of the universities and colleges in the Greater Boston area, pledged their assistance at a luncheon tendered by the mayor yesterday at the Parker House.

The gathering was devoted to acquainting the college heads, professors, and research workers with details of the unemployment situation and its consequences in this district. A second luncheon will be held at the Parker House next Thursday at which suggestions for a relief program will be advanced and discussed.

LABOR LAUDED

In addressing the gathering, Mayor Curley lauded labor for its accomplishments in workers' relief. He declared that nearly every bit of reform legislation designed to aid the working man could be traced to some labor organization.

Educators and others who have been viewing the problem from the seclusion of their studies must now come forward with definite assistance, he asserted, if America is to be saved from the dole system.

Mayor Curley declared that the widespread influx of women into industry and the phenomenal development of mechanical equipment were responsible in a large measure for the unemployment crisis.

SURVEY STARTED

Gen. E. LeRoy Sweetster, State Commissioner of Labor and Industry, said his department was compiling data from every section of the country for an exhaustive study of the situation.

Dr John A. Cousens, president of Tufts College warned industry against ignoring the havoc wrought by lay-offs of hundred of men at a time.

President Ada M Comstock, of Radcliffe College, declared that the effects of the unemployment situation were clearly visible in the classroom. She said many older girls had been unable to return to college because of the drain on family finances.

Dean Gleason L. Archer, of Suffolk Law School, also said that the situation had affected the entry of new students into the school.

Asks Governor for State-Wide Action on Labor

Mayor's Group of Educators Would Broaden Scope of Unemployment Needs

Resolutions embodying the request that Governor Allen call a conference of mayors of Massachusetts cities and selectmen of towns for discussion of a general program of public works to meet the industrial depression and that the governors of States be requested to establish industrial planning boards that would have always at hand the necessary data to meet recurrent periods of distress, were passed at the third conference of educators and other leaders called by Mayor Curley at the Parker House this afternoon to discuss a course of procedure to allay suffering.

Present at the conference were Frank P. Speare, president of Northeastern University; President John A. Cousens of Tufts College; Jeremiah E. Burke, superintendent of schools; Miss H. Adele Howe of the State Department of Labor and Industry; Professor Harry A. Woos-boards that work could go on uninterrupted year after year.

Miss Sara Landau of Wheaton College made two suggestions, to meet the industrial emergency. Her first suggestion was that the mayor and his department heads take account of stock as to what public works could be started at once and that in carrying forward such improvements the work be not confined to any particular group as was the case at Governor square, where veterans are preferred. She spoke of thousands of young men who were mere boys at the time of the signing of the armistice who are now out of work with families to support, men just as worthy of employment as any other group. Her second suggestion was that the mayor broaden the scope of his conferences by inviting leading bankers and manufacturers to meet with the others to see if work cannot be speeded up. Another thought from Wheaton was that long-time programs of employment be mapped out for submission to the Federal planning board, if appointed.

Mayor Curley deplored the fact that so much time must elapse from the time a project is developed to the actual time of starting, illustrating his thought by reference to the East Boston tunnel, when months elapsed before permission of the Government could be obtained. Though Boston was more fortunate than other cities, where the elapsed time is from a year and a half to two years, the delays are almost unbearable. In Boston, he said, plans were under way to prepare for the winter and he thought the governor should call a conference of other mayors and selectmen to see what is being planned, so that the Legislature might have all possible data on its assembling in January.

It was Professor Doten who thought the conference should go a step farther than the Federal Planning Board idea, by recommending a planning board for Boston and other places.

VIVIAN GRAY AND EARL RYAN MARRIED

Ceremony Performed Saturday at Portsmouth

Miss Vivian Gray of Islington street, Portsmouth, N. H., and Earl Edward Ryan, 10 Dudley street, were married Saturday morning by Rev James H. Brennan at a high mass in the Immaculate Conception church, Portsmouth, N. H.

The bride wore a white satin gown in period style with a veil of chantilly lace caught up with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of roses and lilies-of-the-valley. The bride was attended by Miss Lucille Gray as the maid of honor. The bridesmaid wore a coral pink satin gown with a black velvet hat, shoes and black gloves. Herbert L. Ryan, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The ushers were Joseph Lennon of Haverhill and George Gray of Portsmouth, N. H.

The decorations at the church were cut flowers and palms while at the Portsmouth City club, where the wedding breakfast was served, the decorations were in autumn colors. The single ring service was used and the wedding march was played by the church organist as the bridal party entered and left the church. Late of Haverhill, catered at the reception. The bride's gift to the bridegroom was a silver cigaret lighter and to the bride a crystal necklace. The bridesmaid presented his bride with a string of crystal beads in a platinum setting, and to the best man a gold pipe. The ushers both received penknives.

In the receiving line at the Portsmouth City club, where the reception was held, were the bridal party, Charles M. Ryan, father of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Susan Gray, mother of the bride. Mrs. Gray was gowned in seal brown crepe with hat and shoes of the same color.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Susan Gray and attended the Portsmouth High school. She is a graduate of the Gale Hospital Nurses' training school and has been engaged in private nursing. She is a member of the Massachusetts State Nurses' association.

Mr. Ryan is a graduate of St James High and attended Boston College two years. He later graduated from Suffolk Law school in Boston. He is a member of the Knights of Columbus, Suffolk Law School Alumni association, and vice chief ranger of the Catholic Order of Foresters.

The bride's going away gown was a blue tweed ensemble trimmed with gray fur. She also wore a blue velvet hat. The couple will visit Canada and New York on their honeymoon and will return by the Mohawk Trail by automobile. The couple will reside in their newly furnished apartment at

EDUCATORS ASK GOVERNOR PUSH JOBLESS RELIEF

Urge He Confer with Mayors to Plan Public Works Program

TO CLEAR WAY FOR LEGISLATIVE ACTION

Curley to Seek Federal Planning Board at Hoover Conference

Gov Allen will be asked by the group of educators co-operating with Mayor Curley in a study of unemployment to invite the mayors of all Massachusetts cities and selectmen of towns to discuss the wisdom of the formulation of individual programs of public works requiring legislative authorization which it is intended to obtain as quickly as possible after the opening of the 1931 session.

At the third of a series of conferences at the Parker House, yesterday there was unanimity of opinion that intensive concentration on public works should be continued.

For the first time, a woman educator offered definite suggestions, but a particularly specific declaration of Miss Sara Landau of the economics department of Wheaton, pleading for some consideration for young men who were not old enough to enter the military service during the world war, but who are now suffering from unemployment, provoked no discussion.

Privately the educators concede that Miss Landau had opened up a question affecting the right of war veterans to preference in public employment which must be recognized. She called attention to the fact that men up to 28 years of age, with dependent families, are feeling the effects of unemployment as severely as are war veterans, and while she offered no criticism of the preference extended to veterans, she voiced a plea for recognition of the predicament of men who are denied a chance to work because of lack of status as veterans.

TO URGE U. S. BOARD

Mayor Curley revealed that at a conference with President Hoover arranged to attempt to sever the red tape which prevents the transfer of Governor's island to the city, to make possible the proposed extension of the airport, he will urge on the President the advantages of a federal planning board, which the conference of educators strongly recommended.

Other suggestions at yesterday's meeting included the idea of an industrial planning board in every state to work in close relationship with a federal board.

The director of Technical Education pointed out the need for conferences on unemployment or industrial depression and called attention to the fact that many conferences, organized in previous periods of depression, have failed to achieve results because of lack of permanency. He expressed the belief that unemployment or industrial conferences should continue after business recovers from depression, in order that adequate provisions may be made to meet recurring situations when business cycles swing away from prosperity. He believes that constant planning to cope with unemployment when it occurs is the solution of the recurring situation.

HITS BUDGET BUYING

Prof Thomas N. Carver of Harvard declared that stability of industry is dependent on stabilization of purchasing power. He offered the opinion that too much buying on the budget plan is one of the fundamental reasons for the disappearance of the purchasing power of the public.

"Buying what you can't afford with money you haven't got" was the way that Prof Carver described the "orgy of instalment buying."

BOSTON LAWYERS GOING TO BAR CONVENTION

Dean Gleason L. Archer of the Suffolk Law School will head the group leaving Sunday to attend the American Bar Association convention in Chicago Tuesday.

Ex-Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell, a candidate for the Democratic Senatorial nomination, will be a member of the party. It is understood that Mr O'Connell will present to the conference a request that the Uniform Law Commissioners recommend to all other States of the Union a law to make uniform the hours of labor so that whatever the laws in Massachusetts may be, they will be exactly the same in other States.

Other members of the convention party are Ex-Atty Gen Thomas J. Boynton, Ex-State Senator James P. Brennan, George F. Hogan, members of the Suffolk Law School faculty; Prof Joseph H. Beale of the Harvard Law School and Hollis H. Bailey.

REP. McDONOUGH'S ELECTION ENDORSE- MENT OF HARD WORK

The candidacy of Representative Timothy J. McDonough of Jamaica Plain, who has served the people of the Eleventh Suffolk House District so conscientiously for the past four years, is one that should interest every voter of the district who believes in progressive representation. Since Representative McDonough first entered the House in 1927 his time and energy have been at the complete disposal of his constituents.

He is rated as one of the ablest Democrats in the House and has taken part in every major legislative battle in the House this term, as well as being responsible for much minor legislation of great importance to those it helped, which he has guided through proper channels himself.

Representative McDonough has aided in solving important taxation problems as a member of the committee on taxation and is considered a conscientious worker.

He rarely missed a session and no one could be more attentive to the demands of the people of their district than Representative McDonough. Many times a day he met people of Jamaica Plain who came to him on matters pertaining to his district and he was always courteous and willing to give them the fullest measure of service. His evenings have been far from his own and much of the time that should have been his has been spent solving problems of his district.

Representative McDonough led the fight for an investigation by a special commission of ways and means of relieving traffic conditions at Forest Hills and his fight has resulted in a decided improvement in the regulation of traffic at that point.

No one realizes the good work Representative McDonough did on Beacon Hill more than the widows and persons for whom he fought the burden of local taxation by giving the exemption on property belonging to them from $1,000 to $10,000. In fact wherever he found but resting heavily on the people he fought to lighten them.

His labor record is such that working man and woman in his district should feel it their duty to the polls and vote for him they might be assured of continued progress in labor legislation.

The bill to increase weekly pension under the Workmen's Compensation law to twenty dollars a week maximum was a big step forward and sponsored by him.

Equally important to the thousands employed as domestics was his bringing that class of work within weekly payment law.

Still seeking to make the world a little better he demanded legislation to provide guards and elevators in the State House with uniform at the expense of the State.

Believing that those who take upon themselves the responsibilities of citizenship are entitled to the benefits fought for legislation to compel their preference in employment in State institutions.

He sponsored the measure to compel the Boston Elevated to maintain better street car transportation facilities within Boston. It is interesting to note that Governor Allen recently called attention to the fact that should be improved.

Representative McDonough sought to prohibit the use of steam locomotives within a certain radius of Boston. This would do a lot to abate the smoke nuisance.

There was much benefit to the taxing public in his bill calling for a reduction of fees for the registration of certain types of automobiles.

Representative McDonough is an able proponent for legislation giving Home Rule to Boston and he has worked to that purpose continually.

He seeks the suffrage of his constituents this year with a record service that represents four years of hard work. It is a record of accomplishment and progress.

Representative McDonough led the fight, in 1929, to have the Elevated structure on Washington street, which he considers obsolete, removed.

Chapter 306 of the Acts of 1927 which allows the Commissioner of Civil Service, at his own discretion to appoint or employ persons convicted of misdemeanors such as minor automobile infractions, cases where fines were imposed under $100 and cases where sentences served were under 6 months was enacted from his bill. He fought hard to obtain its passage and was successful.

He has been favorable to all legislation benefitting the Veterans and has worked unceasingly in their behalf.

The question the people of his district have to decide for themselves is whether they will endorse his good work by approving its continuance or cast their votes with a degree of uncertainty for an opponent who would be four years behind Representative

McDonough at the start.

One of the rewards of legislative service is the experience gained without it a district has hopeless representation.

Ambition is a sterling quality and should never be discouraged.

Asks Governor for State-Wide Action on Labor

Mayor's Group of Educators Would Broaden Scope of Unemployment Needs

Resolutions embodying the request that Governor Allen call a conference of mayors of Massachusetts cities and selectmen of towns for discussion of a general program of public works to meet the industrial depression and that the governors of States be requested to establish industrial planning boards that would have always at hand the machinery and necessary data to meet recurrent periods of distress, were passed at the third conference of educators and other leaders called by Mayor Curley at the Parker House this afternoon to discuss a course of procedure to allay suffering.

Present at the conference were Frank P. Speare, president of Northeastern University; President John A. Cousins of Tufts College; Jeremiah E. Burke, superintendent of schools; Miss H. Adele Howe of the State Department of Labor and Industry; Professor Harry A. Wooster boards that work could go on uninterruptedly year after year.

Miss Sara Landau of Wheaton College made two suggestions, to meet the industrial emergency. Her first suggestion was that the mayor and his department heads take account of stock as to what public works could be started at once and that in carrying forward such improvements the work be not confined to any particular group as was the case at Governor square, where veterans are preferred. She spoke of thousands of young men who were mere boys at the time of the signing of the armistice who are now out of work with families to support, men just as worthy of employment as any other group. Her second suggestion was that the mayor broaden the scope of his conference by inviting leading bankers and manufacturers to meet with the others to see if work cannot be speeded up. Another thought from Wheaton was that long-time programs of employment be mapped out for submission to the Federal planning board, if appointed.

Mayor Curley deplored the fact that so much time must elapse from the time a project is developed to the actual time of starting, illustrating his thought by reference to the East Boston tunnel, when months elapsed before permission of the Government could be obtained. Though Boston was more fortunate than other cities, where the elapsed time is from a year and a half to two years, the delays are almost unbearable. In Boston, he said, plans were under way to prepare for the winter and he thought the governor should call a conference of other mayors and selectmen to see what is being planned, so that the Legislature might have all possible data on its assembling in January.

It was Professor Doten who thought the conference should go a step farther than the Federal Planning Board idea, by recommending a planning board for Boston and other places.

VIVIAN GRAY AND EARL RYAN MARRIED Ceremony Performed Saturday at Portsmouth

Miss Vivian Gray of Islington street, Portsmouth, N. H., and Earl Edward Ryan, 10 Dudley street, were married Saturday morning by Rev James H. Brennan at a high mass in the Immaculate Conception church, Portsmouth, N. H.

The bride wore a white satin gown in period style with a veil of chantilly lace caught up with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of roses and lilies-of-the-valley. The bride was attended by Miss Lucille Gray as the maid of honor. The bridesmaid wore a coral pink satin gown with a black velvet hat, shoes and black gloves. Herbert L. Ryan, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The ushers were Joseph Lennon of Haverhill and George Gray of Portsmouth, N. H.

The decorations at the church were cut flowers and palms while at the Portsmouth City club, where the wedding breakfast was served, the decorations were in autumn colors. The single ring service was used and the wedding march was played by the church organist as the bridal party entered and left the church. Lane of Haverhill, catered at the reception.

The bride's gift to the bridegroom was a silver cigaret lighter and to the bridesmaid a crystal necklace. The bridegroom presented his bride with a string of crystal beads in a platinum setting, and to the best man a gold piece. The ushers both received penknives.

In the receiving line at the Portsmouth City club, where the reception was held, were the bridal party, Charles M. Ryan, father of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Susan Gray, mother of the bride. Mrs. Gray was groomed in seal brown crepe with hat and shoes of the same color.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Susan Gray and attended the Portsmouth High school. She is a graduate of the Gale Hospital Nurses' training school and has been engaged in private nursing. She is a member of the Massachusetts State Nurses' association.

Mr. Ryan is a graduate of St. James High and attended Boston College two years. He later graduated from Suffolk Law school in Boston. He is a member of the Knights of Columbus, Suffolk Law School Alumni association, and vice chief ranger of the Catholic Order of Foresters.

The bride's going away gown was a blue tweed ensemble trimmed with gray fur. She also wore a blue velvet hat. The couple will visit Canada and New York on their honeymoon and will return by the Mohawk Trail by automobile. The couple will reside in their newly furnished apartment at

Gov. Allen will be asked by the group of educators co-operating with Mayor Curley in a study of unemployment to invite the mayors of all Massachusetts cities and selectmen of towns to discuss the wisdom of the formulation of individual programs of public works requiring legislative authorization which it is intended to obtain as quickly as possible after the opening of the 1931 session.

OFF THE ANTENNA

Two waiters hurried to clear a dinner table lined by 13 faces, each devoid of expression, in a small restaurant of lower Manhattan. A miniature of the Great Sphinx of Gizeh would have seemed at home with them, these 13 blank faces.

But that was when the waiters were present. Eyes beamed and mouths were framed with smiles as the men began talking, just after the waiters departed. Apparently these men maintained silence before strangers; apparently they sought a quiet refuge for their dinner.

And so it was. It was the weekly dinner attended by 11 secret service detectives of the National Surety company, a police department sergeant and, lastly, a former police reporter. The latter had a pad of paper and pencil at his fingers' tips.

"Well, Detective Harkness," said the former newspaper man, "I understand you are to tell the story of your two-years' search for ~~James~~, who stole $20,000 from a London business house. Sergeant Connolly and the rest of you gentlemen can elaborate later."

Detective Harkness and Sergeant Connolly, you may know, are the two major characters who broadcast for National Broadcasting company listeners each Wednesday night from 7.15 to 7.30 o'clock. They relate actual secret service stories from the files of the National Surety company.

And each week these detectives and the sergeant, all familiar with many old criminal cases solved by the company's secret service force, meet with the former newspaper man. And the latter, Stuart Ayers, now continuity writer of the National Broadcasting company, writes their story for the weekly broadcast.

The weekly crime-story program was first broadcast in the latter part of August, 1930, and has gained many zealous supporters since. One radio columnist termed it the "best criminal story series on the air," shortly after its inception.

Much of its success is attributed to these weekly dinners. Ayers sits at the head of the table, at not infrequent intervals questions those astute secret service story tellers, and goes away full of notes. And then, too, he consults the files of the company.

The National Surety company's offi-icals, in instituting the program, expressed the belief that stories of long man hunts as conducted by their secret service department, would tend to discourage crime. Their records show that 98 per cent of all crimes coming under their jurisdiction have been solved and the criminals apprehended.

To these 11 secret service men who meet weekly there is one truism familiar to each: "The trusted man must be watched; he is in a position to commit forgery, theft, embezzlement."

In their opinion these same trusted men are not criminals at heart, but first bow to temptation by taking a small sum. This is soon repaid. Again they may embezzle a slightly larger sum, again repay. And each time they cover the shortage in manipulating bookkeeping records, but the temptation to take a large sum for speculation or gambling leads to their ultimate downfall.

Paul Wing, who plays Uncle Toddy in the National Broadcasting company program known as "The Toddy Parties," which is heard every Thursday afternoon, expounds the "living cycle" theory.

This theory, he says, was nurtured from his own experiences. As a young man, married and with two children, he encountered financial difficulties and was often unable to keep the pantry well supplied. Then he began writing children's stories.

"When my first stories were published," he relates, "I fancied that my troubles were over. But the more food I bought my children the more they grew, and as they grew they demanded more food, and this required a greater volume of stories. And that is the 'living cycle.'"

Today Wing writes his own stories for "The Toddy Parties" program. He has published many of these stories in book form, and has written such children's books as "The Did and Didn't Book for Boys and Girls Who Should But Don't" and "The Boy Who Burned the Bridge to Buncombe."

Wing's two children, Lorraine and David, inspired the characters by the same names in "The Toddy Parties." Recently this led to family difficulties. Lorraine, being an accomplished little actress, protested that she should play her own part. Her father could only insist that her school hours at Darien Ct., the Wing home, would not permit. As for David, a new pair of skates soothed his injured feelings.

As "Uncle Toddy," Wing has received more than 35,000 letters from boys and girls in the past four months. During one week he received 5810 messages. There are quaint, childish requests, such as "Please send me one of your story books," or "Please give me a good name for a girl puppy."

Wing decries the fact that children are known everywhere in the vernacular as "kiddies." Such a term, he protests, could only have been given by some childless Aunt Matilda. To Wing it represents an elderly term of condescension, a thing which children resent.

Wing spends his idle hours sailing his sloop, Pampero, along the New England coastline of Long Island sound. "It's a care-free spirit," he says, "that one acquires sitting at the tiller of a sail boat on salt water. There's the high seas before you with no traffic signal but . . . the wife and children are waiting at home."

Dean Gleason L. Archer, whose talks on "Laws That Safeguard Society" are heard each Tuesday night, had the unusual experience, a short time ago, of receiving a radiogram from the captain of a steamship out on the Atlantic, who had picked up the broadcast quite by accident. The sea captain had been a student under Dean Archer at Suffolk law school, 15 years before. His message was: "Received great kick listening to my old dean out here on the Atlantic."

STATE-WIDE ACTION SEEN

Public Works Program Study May Result From Meeting of Educators Furthered by Mayor Curley

REV. FR. SULLIVAN IS SPEAKER TODAY

Special Dispatch to The Gazette
BOSTON, Oct. 17.—A state-wide discussion of the wisdom of formulating individual programs of public works requiring legislative authorization, to be participated in by the mayors of all cities and the selectmen of all towns in the commonwealth, may result from action yesterday by the group of educators co-operating with Mayor Curley in a study of unemployment in the state.

The gathering voted to ask Governor Allen to invite the mayors and selectmen to the conference. One aim of this discussion will be to obtain as quickly as possible the authorization necessary for construction programs, when the Legislature convenes next year.

Rev. Fr. Joseph F. Sullivan, S. J., of Holy Cross college, Worcester, was one of the speakers at the conference yesterday which was held in the Parker house. It was the third the educational group has held on the subject.

Miss Sarah Landau, of the economic department of Wheaton, opened up a subject for discussion when she said that some consideration should be shown for young men who were not old enough to enter the military service during the World War, but who are now suffering from unemployment.

Mayor Curley said that at a conference with President Hoover relative to expediting the transfer of Governor's Island to the city, for an extension to the Boston airport, he would urge the advantages of a Federal planning board, which this conference recommended last week.

Other suggestions yesterday included the idea of an industrial planning board in every state, to work in close relationship with a federal board.

Prof. C. W. Doten of M. I. T. spoke on the need of permanent conferences on unemployment or industrial depression. He said such conferences should continue after business recovers from depression, in order to make adequate provisions against the time when the swing in the cycle is away from prosperity.

Budget Plan Declared

Prof. Thomas N. Carver of Harvard, declaring that the stability of industry is dependent on the stabilization of purchasing power, declared the present system of buying on the budget plan. "Buying what you can't afford with money you haven't got" was the way he described the "orgy of instalment buying." He also denounced the policy of manufacturers in calling a large group to rush production of orders and then discharging employes. He contrasted this method with that of a nationally known Cincinnati industrial firm which has worked out a plan of permanent employment.

Others who spoke were Miss Elizabeth M. Herby, secretary of the City Planning board; William H. Taylor of the Overseers of Public Welfare; John Van Vaerenwyck of the Boston Central Labor union, and Rev. Fr. Sullivan.

At the conference were: Frank P.
Speare, president of Northeastern university; Supt. of Schools Jeremiah
E. Burke, Prof. Harvey A. Wooster of Tufts, Miss H. Adele Howe of the State Department of Labor and Industry, Gleason L. Archer, Ralph W.

UNEMPLOYMENT LUNCHEON HELD

Speaker Tells of Plight of
"White Collar Men"

Mayor Curley in opining the luncheon in the interests of unemployment relief today at the Parker House outlined his recent trip to Washington and devoted considerable time to the "billion dollar" Mississippi River project. The latter project is the one he presented to President Hoover for the development of an inland empire with great power possibilities and deepening of the river bed, making possible low-cost transportation and helping relieve industrial depression.

Prof. Frank P. Speare spoke on the predicament of the "white collar man" and referred to acute situations caused by mergers. He cited a recent bank merger which put 400 men on the street.

The fate of the middle-aged woman, thrown upon her own resources, he said, is a grave problem. Prof. Speare spoke of a great combination about to be formed which would throw more persons out of employment and is causing him grave concern.

Miss Emily C. Brown declared that Boston and Massachusetts needed cooperation of business men, chambers of commerce, welfare departments and unemployment committees in a practical manner.

Prof. Roger Babson was the guest speaker.

Among those present at the luncheon were: Dean Arthur W. MacLean, Folia Law School; William F. Taylor and Simon Hecht, Board of Public Welfare; Prof. T. N. Carver, Harvard University; Prof. John J. Murray, Boston University; R. W. McNeel, Mc-Neel's Financial Service; Prof. Sara
Landau, Wheaton College; Prof. Morris
Freidberg, Simmons College; Prof.
Emily C. Brown, Wellesley College;
Prof. Roger Babson; Prof. Frank P.
Speare, Northeastern University; Patrick T. Campbell, assistant superintendent of schools; Gen. E. Leroy

MALDEN NURSE BRIDE OF ATTORNEY

Miss Mary F Savage, Nurse at Office of Dr C F Lynch, Becomes Bride of Thomas E Regan of Mattapan. Rev Daniel Reardon Officiated.

Miss Mary F Savage, nurse at the office of Dr C F Lynch, 440 Pleasant st, and daughter of Mr and Mrs Jeremiah Savage, 142 Palfrey st, Watertown, became the bride of Atty Thos E Regan of Mattapan at St Patrick's church, Watertown, last evening. The ceremony was performed by Rev Daniel Reardon, the pastor.

Lawrence Regan, a brother of the groom, was best man, and the bride's sister, Miss Dorothy F Regan, was bridesmaid.

The bride was attractively attired in white lace and satin with tulle trimmings. She wore a veil caught up with orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

The bridesmaid wore turquoise blue chiffon and satin with blue velvet bonnet trimmed with pink and she carried an old fashioned bouquet. The ushers at the church were Dr Leo F Lynch of this city and Joseph Regan of Mattapan, a brother of the groom.

A reception followed at the home of the bride and the couple were the recipients of many remembrances. Late in the evening Mr and Mrs Regan left for a honeymoon and on their return will reside at 8 Fremont st, Mattapan. They will be home to friends after Nov 15th.

The bride is well known here and is a graduate nurse of the Boston City hospital. The groom received his training at Tech and Suffolk Law School.

EDUCATE 50 DISCUSS CRISIS WITH GURLEY

College Heads at Luncheon Opening Unemployment Relief Campaign

Boston's famous educational resources today were thrown into the campaign of Mayor Curley to obtain relief from the unemployment situation.

Nearly 50 prominent educators, representing most of the universities and colleges in the Greater Boston area, pledged their assistance at a luncheon tendered by the mayor yesterday at the Parker House.

The gathering was devoted to acquainting the college heads professors, and research workers with details of the unemployment situation and its consequences in this district. A second luncheon will be held at the Parker House next Thursday at which suggestions for a relief program will be advanced and discussed.

LABOR LAUDED

In addressing the gathering Mayor Curley lauded labor for its accomplishments in workers' relief. He declared that nearly every bit of reform legislation designed to aid the working man could be traced to some labor organization. Educators and others who have been viewing the problem from the seclusion of their studies must now come forward with definite assistance, he asserted, if America is to be saved from the dole system.

Mayor Curley declared that the widespread influx of women into industry and the phenomenal development of mechanical equipment were responsible in a large measure for the unemployment crisis.

SURVEY STARTED

Gen. E. LeRoy Sweetster, State Commissioner of Labor and Industry, said his department was compiling data from every section of the country for an exhaustive study of the situation.

Dr John A. Cousens, president of Tufts College, warned industry against ignoring the havoc wrought by lay-offs of hundred of men at a time.

President Ada M. Comstock, of Radcliffe College, declared that the effects of the unemployment situation were clearly visible in the classroom. She said many older girls had been unable to return to college because of the drain on family finances.

Dean Gleason L. Archer, of Suffolk Law School, also said that the situation had affected the enrollment at his school.

GUZZI TO BE CANDIDATE IN WARD THREE

Alfred R. Guzzi of 8 Mague place, West Newton, announced today that he will be a candidate for ward alderman in Ward 3 at the coming city election.

He will oppose Alderman Chester A. Prior, who has been ward alderman for the past three years and will be a candidate for re-election. At the last two elections, Alderman Prior was unopposed.

A meeting of Guzzi's campaign committee will be held at his home this evening for the purpose of formulating plans for the coming campaign.

Guzzi was born in West Newton, was graduated from the Newton High School in 1927 and attended Suffolk Law School for one year. He was treasurer of his class at Newton High.

He is the first citizen of Italian extraction to be a candidate for alderman on the Board of Aldermen. He recently won a single-handed fight of eight years' duration for the construction and acceptance by the city of Mague avenue, Mague place and Thomas street.

Nomination papers were taken out in Guzzi's behalf yesterday.

BAR EXAMINERS RECOMMEND 234 BE ALLOWED TO PRACTICE LAW

Chosen From About 800 Who Took Bar Examination in July—Only 13 Girls in List—100 Fewer Approved Than Last Year

The names of 234 applicants for admission to the Massachusetts bar have been recommended by the Board of Bar Examiners. The group was selected from nearly 800 applicants who took the bar examination in July.

Only 13 of those recommended are girls and the total is exactly 100 fewer than were recommended a year ago.

The applicants will be examined individually by the county committees on character between now and Oct 18 and, if no objection is made, the examiners will report to the Supreme Court that the candidates are qualified.

The new lawyers will be sworn in on Wednesday, Oct 22, in the Supreme Judicial Court. One group will take the oath at 9:30 in the morning and the others at 11:30.

ARREST EX-POLICEMAN ON ASSAULT CHARGE

Boston City Councilor Alleges Attack Declares It Was Result of Talk He Made at City Hall

As a result of an assault upon City Councilor Francis E. Kelly, which his friends declare was the result of a speech made in the Boston City Council Monday, Martin E. McCarthy, a former Boston police officer, was arrested last night on a charge of assault and battery upon Councilor McCarthy.

FRANCIS E. KELLEY
Boston City Councilor, Who Prefers Charges

Accompanied by an attorney and bail commissioner, went to the Hanover-st Station last night, where he surrendered to Sergt Louis Di Sessa. Police say that the alleged assault took place on Union st, North End, yesterday. Kelly, youngest member of the City Council, told police that he was assaulted because of the speech, and secured a warrant charging McCarthy with assault and battery. McCarthy, 33, lives at 306 Cummins Highway. He resigned from the Police Department in July, 1922. City Councilor Kelly was born in Dorchester and lived there during the 27 years of his life. Bereft of his father at 16, the second oldest in a family of nine, he was forced to work selling newspapers, later engaging in a variety of labor to support his mother and young family. Despite his handicap, he completed his high school education and took a four-year evening course at Suffolk Law School, graduating with the degree of LL.B. He lives at 24 Toplift st and represents Ward 15. He is a member of the Dorchester Associates and Robert Fulton Council, K. of C. He was captain of the Dorchester Town football

SHANAHAN WINS SEAT LONG HELD BY G. O. P.

First Essex Senator-Elect Breaks Tradition There

Special Dispatch to the Globe.
LYNN, Nov 10—The election of William F. Shanahan of Swampscott as State Senator in the 1st Essex District over the present incumbent, Frank P. Osborne, marks the first time that a

WILLIAM F. SHANAHAN

Democrat has been chosen to this position for more than 30 years, and the first time that a Democrat has represented this district since it was re-districted, 20 years ago. Senator-elect Shanahan two years ago lost to Mr Osborne by 2000 votes. He kept at the campaign and was successful this year, winning by more than 500 votes. Ex-Mayor Asa T. Newhall was the last Democrat in the State Senate from this district, 35 years ago. At that time the district included only five wards of Lynn. When it was changed over, Ward 6, a Democratic ward, was included, along with Ward 7, giving the Democrats a little better margin but never enough to overcome the strong Republican vote. Senator-elect Shanahan attributed his election to the independent vote. He has made no public announcements as to his policies, merely maintaining that he will vote for all measures that are for the benefit of the Commonwealth and its citizens. Mr Shanahan was born in Rockland but has spent practically all of his life in Lynn and Swampscott. He was graduated from Lynn Classical High School and in 1913 from Holy Cross College. In 1925 he received a degree from Suffolk Law School and passed the Massachusetts bar a few weeks later. He was one of the first employees of the United States Treasury Department to go to Boston, where the regional office of the War Risk Bureau was established, and was prominent in assisting wounded veterans in obtaining compensation. He has been engaged in the insurance business as a broker and since passing the bar has been practicing law in the office of Associate Justice Edward B. O'Brien.

CHARLES GILFIX CANDIDATE FOR COUNCILMAN AT LARGE

Charles Gilfix of 102 Campbell avenue, who has been a resident of this city for the past 16 years, has announced his candidacy for the office of Councilman at large. His announcement has been hailed with extreme pleasur in many quarters, since he has been urged for many years to run for office, but has invariably declined because of the great pressure of his many business interests. In 1928, during the first campaign for Mayor Andrew A. Casassa, Mr. Gilfix, allowed the use of his name as a candidate for this same office, stating that the city required a sacrifice on the part of its loyal citizens for the community's welfare, seeing in the candidacy of Mr. Casassa an opportunity to restore Revere's financial condition along mo-

Mayor Casassa appointed Mr. Gilfix as the first Chairman of the Revere Traffic Commission, which instituted the system of traffic lights and ordinances, which has resulted in promoting the safety of Revere from automobile hazards.

As Chairman of the Ward Two Republican Committee during the past two years, and for many years prior to that, Mr. Gilfix has spoken on many occasions at the Revere City Council and on Beacon Hill, whenever the civic interest of the City of Revere was involved.

Mr. Gilfix, is a director in many civic and business institutions in Greater Boston and Revere, including the North Shore Finance Corporation, the Revere Credit Union, Nautical Gardens, Inc., and the First National Bank of Revere, of which he is Vice President. He is also an active member of numerous social and fraternal organizations, including the Eagles, Odd Fellows, Elks, Masons and Mystic Shrine. He is also an honorary member of Revere Post 940, Veterans of Foreign Wars, having thus been honored for his many activities in the interest of the ex-service men of this Post. Mr. Gilfix is married to the daughter of Mrs. R. L. Aisner, one of the oldest Revere residents, and has two sons who attend the local high school.

dern business lines. It was noticeable during the whole of that campaign that Mr Gilfix was more insistent that the voters elect Casassa for Mayor than to send him to the City Council, with the result that although a candidate for the first time, and hardly mentioning his own name, he received the handsome vote of 2891, coming in fifth in a field of eight candidates of whom four were elected.

Mr. Gilfix is 40 years of age, and a graduate of the Newton Grammar and High School, and of Harvard College in 1913, where he specialized in the science of government, economics, statistics, business administration and accounting. He is also a graduate of the Suffolk Law School, having studied there for two years.

Among THE STUDIOS

BY HOWARD FITZPATRICK

A Methodist preacher in a little town in Maine, the victim of an accident which has confined him to his bed for several weeks, recently wrote the Chicago offices of the NBC complimenting them on one of their broadcasts, and admitting that he had never been so discouraged in his life as he was during his illness, until he heard "Lead, Kindly Light" come over his radio.

This particular hymn he wrote was responsible for his rapid comeback even more quickly than his doctors predicted. "Radio is a miracle," he concluded, "a much greater one than any of us realize. I'm sure I can never thank you enough for what it had meant to me during those days of illness."

Lillian Morton, youthful prima dona appearing at Loew's Orpheum Theatre this week, will present a special programme over WBZ-WBZA at 11:30 tomorrow evening. This former pupil of Walter Damrosch who has achieved success in grand and comic opera, on the concert stage and in the radio field, has only recently returned from a tour around the world. In the South and West Miss Morton is a prominent figure on the air for her interesting programmes of semiclassical numbers interspersed with popular releases of the day.

Many members of the Lucky Strike dance orchestra heard thrice weekly over NBC networks are talented soloists, concert masters, and orchestra leaders "on their own hook." Ross Gorman can perform expertly on 21 instruments, Andy Sannella is the master of 17, while E. A. Rolfe, director of the orchestra, is an accomplished cornetist.

Roger Ellis, formerly operator with the Edison station WEEI, is evidently heading for Hollywood and the talkies, judging from the progress he has made to date. Some time ago he resigned from WEEI to take charge of plant operations at WTAG in Worcester, now comes the word that he is in Detroit, Mich., where today he will commence new duties with station WWJ there.

Six cities in the country on six different nights in the week furnish late evening dance music over the Columbia Broadcasting System. For example, on Monday Sammy Watkins and his orchestra is heard from Cleveland; Tuesday, Mickey Alpert and his Coconut Grove Orchestra from Boston; Wednesday, Raymond Faige and his KHJ orchestra from Los Angeles; Lloyd Huntley and his Hotel Lowry Orchestra from Minneapolis on Thursdays, Friday brings Romanelli and his King Edward Orchestra from Toronto and on Saturday evening Jack Denny and his orchestra from the Mt. Royal Hotel, Montreal, entertain.

The new Chicago headquarters of the NBC houses the largest broadcasting studio in the world. Six studios occupy more than 240,000 cubic feet of space, with 55,000 square feet of sound-proof material used to insure quiet operation. In this modern radio plant erected atop the world's largest building, the Merchandise Mart, a staff of 200 employees and 400 artists and entertainers find employment.

Speeches delivered over the air by Dean Gleason L. Archer who speaks over the NBC System each Tuesday evening on "Laws That Safeguard Society" are written in a little log cabin, near Norwell. The dean of Suffolk Law School, Boston, spends much time in this ideal spot, for when not writing he is fishing in his privately stocked trout pond or entertaining prominent statesmen.

DANA C. BREED MISSING FROM SISTER'S HOME

Law Student Disappeared Ten Days Ago. Illness Believed Cause

An intensive search for Dana C. Breed has been started in the principal centers in New England and New York. Dana C. Breed who is a Suffolk Law School student has been missing from the home of his sister, 21 Clinton rd., East Weymouth since last Wednesday. Relatives fear that the young man may have become stricken with a sudden illness.

Breed formerly made his home in Arlington and had just terminated his affiliations with a well known Boston concern and was about to become connected with another company. He is 24 years old and is described as being 5 feet 10 inches in height and weighs about 145 pounds.

Not a word has been received by relatives to indicate that Breed had gone on a vacation trip, and they fear that he may have become stricken within a short distance of his home here.

Mayorality Campaign To Open In Earnest Next Wednesday; McVann To Start Fireworks Council President Promises To Inform Citizens Of What Has Been Happening in City Hall

The big news of the week in the mayorality campaign now going on is that things will start to hum directly after the state election next Tuesday. Candidate James E. McVann told The Times last evening that he is going to challenge Mayor Sullivan's record and go after him strong on several matters that he thinks the average voter will be interested in. Mr. McVann spent quite a little time yesterday in city hall, part of it with the city treasurer, Elmer J. Foley, whom he said co-operated with him in digging out the information desired, and the remainder of the time with city auditor John A. Lynch, who was also helpful in furnishing data as the candidate asked for it.

Mr. McVann went to city hall with a long list of items in which he desired accurate information, and when he launches his campaign next week he will use no hearsay information, he says, but only facts that he himself has verified by personal interviews with city hall officials, such as the auditor and treasurer.

"I will conduct a clean but vigorous campaign," was the substance of McVann's interview with The Times, "and I believe that the mayor's record for the past two years is open to criticism in a great many spots, and I will go after him hard on his record alone, avoiding personalities entirely.

Mr. McVann filed his nomination papers yesterday, sending to the city clerk only two hundred signatures out of the fifteen hundred his workers had collected. Mayor Sullivan will probably file his today, and expects to file just enough out of his large collection to assure his name being on the ballot.

The primaries are November 12, the day following Armistice day, and interest in the coming city contests is increasing daily as the time draws nigh for balloting. Organization work has occupied the attention of both mayorality candidates for the past several days, and both men express themselves as much satisfied with the way things are going. Mayor Sullivan claims to have practically all his former organization intact, and held his first meeting last evening in the new headquarters over Woolworth's store. His campaign manager is Fred Shea, as last year, and his secretary is Edward B. Neenan. The mayor intends to open branch quarters in every ward in the city, the first time this was ever done, which may be taken as an indication that he realizes he has a hard fight on his hands.

The McVann committee is headed by Wilbur Merrill as chairman, which signifies that a veteran in things political is at the helm. The several ward committees will be organized this evening, at the McVann meeting which is to be held at 8 o'clock in the campaign headquarters over the Royal candy shop.

Mayor Sullivan claims that very few omissions from the ranks are noted thus far, and states that the few who have left his crew are the "regulars" who get on each new prospects bandwagon every two years.

Councillor McVann is much pleased with the increasing expressions of confidence in his candidacy, and it seems to be a fact that each week the McVann sentiment is stronger than the previous week.

New names for the council race announced since last Friday are Timothy Dorgan, who nearly was elected four years ago; John Devaney, James Linehan, former member of the board of health, Arthur Teague "the electrician," and Bernard Nangle, who has made the run a couple of times before. The list now numbers about nineteen, of whom ten will qualify a week from Wednesday.

The eighteen council candidates are Tracey, Harrigan, Tumelty, Craig, Brown, Regan, Nagle, Dorgan, O'Shea, Cassidy, McNamara, Husein, Duggan, Clancey, Puska, Linehan, Teague and Devaney.

The school committee list remains the same, and all had filed their papers yesterday, namely Osborne, Birmingham, Hallowell, Isaacson, Ryan, and Kiley.

The time for filing nomination papers closes at five this afternoon.

We Might Mention

William F. Regan, council candidate, first ran for office when he was on the slate for member of the governor's council, and polled several thousand votes. He was in city hall as secretary to Mayor Bakoman for a long time. Mr. Regan was graduated from Peabody High school, St. Anslem's Prep school, Burdett college and Suffolk Law school, and passed the bar a few years ago. He is a practising attorney with offices in Peabody square. Mr. Regan has covered the city with placards and should poll a handsome vote.

Morris Isaacson, well known Peabody business man, is making a vigorous campaign for the school committee. He has a host of well-wishers who believe he would lend strength to the school board.

Mamet Husein, Americanized Turkish-born council candidate, has filed his nomination papers.

Friends of Daniel L. Tumelty predict that he will be one of the first five to qualify as councillor-at-large candidates, as his record while in the council before was mighty good.

Another name has been listed with the candidates who are seeking the office of councillor at large in the person of John H. McNamara. "Buck Mack" is a name well known to the sporting public of this city, as he managed the Peabody town team composed of local men for several years. Friends of this popular young man have urged him to seek the office which the citizens award to this coming election.

Mr. McNamara resides at 10 Little's lane with his wife and 4 children, and is a member of Post 153 American Legion. If elected, he will be fair and square with matters that pertain to the citizens of this city.

BODNER HAS BEEN ACTIVE IN THIS CITY

Frank Bodner, candidate for Councilman from Ward Two, is well known in this city where he has resided for many years and where he has taken active interest in civic affairs.

Born in Boston on September 7, 1897 and educated in the Boston schools, Bodner then went to Suffolk Law School, where he received his degree of L.L.B. in 1920 and was then admitted to practice law in this Commonwealth in 1922, having offices at 24 School street, Boston. Since being admitted to the bar he has tried cases before all courts in the Commonwealth and is considered a very experienced trial lawyer.

He was a candidate for the office of Councilman in 1924, and after receiving approximately 942 votes was defeated by less than 150 votes. He withdrew from the contest for the sake of harmony in 1926 and 1928.

He is a member of the Republican City Committee, of the Law Society of Mass., of the Chelsea-Revere Bar Association, and was president of the Educational Center in 1928-1929 and is at present chairman of its Board of Directors.

Mr. Bodner is a Past Chancellor of the Knights of Pythias, Crescent Lodge of this city and is Deputy Grand Chancellor, having jurisdiction over Crescent Lodge and the Winthrop Lodge. He is a member of the Revere Aerie of Eagles, and has been a resident of Ward Two for 11 years, always actively affiliated in civic and charitable organizations in the city.

During his residence here he has devoted his time, energy and experience in aiding and assisting the needy and poor who were in need of legal assistance.

Mr. Bodner is married and resides at 6 Fitzhenry square. He is the father of two boys, one four and one-half years old and the other two and one-half years old.

What Post Readers Say

Contributors to this column are urged to use brevity in their communications. Occasionally over-long letters are not used because of lack of space. Short letters—the shorter the better—are recommended.

FROM DEAN ARCHER

To the Editor of the Post: Sir—it is unnecessary to explain to my radio audience that the letter published in the Boston Post of Saturday morning, entitled "Dean Archer's Stories," was entirely inaccurate and misleading, but for the benefit of your readers who did not listen in, as well as in the interests of truth, I wish to make this correction.

The letter states that all the illustrations used by me in my Wednesday evening broadcast were "Pat and Mike" stories. This was entirely inaccurate since but one case was discussed where Pat and Mike were mentioned. I cited the case of Comm. vs. Eagan, 103 Mass. 71, in which three persons were accused of assault and battery upon a neighbor. The head of the house was named Michael and I jestingly referred to him as "Mike," and remarked that the neighbor might well have been "Pat" but I certainly had no intention of reflecting upon the splendid Irish race, for which I have a very sincere admiration. Many of my best friends, certain members of the board of trustees of Suffolk Law School and its members of the faculty are of that ancestry. I should be distressed to have any of my friends think that I would intentionally be guilty of such bad taste as the letter in question imputed to me.

Very truly yours,
GLEASON L. ARCHER,
Dean Suffolk Law School.

Dean Archer Meets Former Boston Man in Chicago Asks About Ely's Chances

From Our Special Reporter
Boston, Aug. 26—Dean Gleason L. Archer of Suffolk Law school, while at the American Bar association convention at Chicago last week met Harry J. Dooley, formerly of Boston, who greeted him with a query as to what is doing among the Democrats of Massachusetts.

"What are Ely's chances?" was his next query. Dooley is the former taxi driver who confounded Democratic leaders of Massachusetts four years ago by defeating Joseph B. Ely of Westfield for the party nomination for lieutenant-governor, after having withdrawn from the contest in favor of Ely.

Dooley is now vice-president of the Gray Line tours and arranged for a tour of Chicago for Dean Archer, his son and daughter. Dooley graduated from Suffolk Law school in 1924.

7:15 p. m., on "John Winthrop and the Puritans."

The latter address, as previously announced, is the initial NBC historical talk in a new series entitled, "Heroes and Patriots." Other speakers in this series will be Gleason L. Archer, dean of Suffolk Law School in Boston, and Mayor James M. Curley.

In three dramatizations, the Soconyland Sketch Players will give the entire story, "Shavings," a Cape Cod novel by Joseph C. Lincoln. The first of these radio dramas to be heard through WEEI at 7:30 p. m., will open the story of Ted Winslow, quaint, lovable toy-maker in a seaside village. In his workshop, the village gossips gather, and here the major portion of the story is unfolded. Each of these three weekly presentations is so arranged as to be complete dramas, but when finished the whole story of "Shavings" will have been told over the air.

Dean Archer Series on WTAG Tuesday

The 10th in his series of talks on "Laws That Safeguard Society," Dean Gleason L. Archer will discuss the criminal liability of married women over WTAG Tuesday at 7:15 p. m.

The word "obey" in the marriage covenant was formerly of such significance that the law recognized obedience of the wife as a valid defense to crimes committed by her as a confederate of her husband. Dean Archer traces the development of the law governing the criminal liability of married women and offers a very illuminating discussion as to coercion of the husband as a defense in criminal cases.

REP. THOMAS J. LANE

Rep. Thomas J. Lane, candidate for reelection in the Sixth Essex district, comprising Andover and Ward 6 in South Lawrence, has served the people of this district faithfully and well during his two terms in office.

As a member of the state legislature during his two terms in office, Representative Lane voted for and championed the following measures: The reconstruction and the widening of North Main street in the town of Andover from Andover square to and including Stimpson's bridge; the placing of Lawrence and the town of Andover in the same telephone district in order to eliminate the five cent toll charge; the abolition of the Parker street grade crossing; Representative Lane strenuously supported the passage of the old age pension, and also favored a reduction in the age from 70 years to 60 years of age for women and 65 years for men, and favored a resolve for the payment of $100 to Gold Star Mothers; supported the bill to authorize cities and towns to make appropriations for advertising the advantages of their municipality; he also spoke in favor of an order for a special commission to investigate the business depression and unemployment now existing in textile cities; he also opposed the raising of the compulsory school age and the bill to compel Essex county to pay in the apportionment of cost on the Northern Artery.

Representative Lane filed the following bills at the last session of the legislature:

Bill to authorize the Department of Public works to install traffic signals at Wilson's corner; bill to make Salisbury beach a state reservation; bill to change and increase the time for sitting at Superior court for civil business at Lawrence in the county of Essex; bill to exempt from poll tax all persons over the age of 50; Mr. Lane vigorously opposed the repeal of the 48 hour law and also the legislation extending the hours of labor for women and children in the textile industry, which bill is passed to compel women and children to work in the mills until 10 o'clock in the evening.

As a member of legislature, he was appointed to the committees on Cities' constructional law and also acted as clerk on the special recess commission making a study of the Salisbury and Duxbury beaches relative to the establishment of reservations; he also was honored by being appointed secretary and treasurer of the Essex county legislators.

Mr. Lane is affiliated with the following organizations: Lawrence Council, 87, K. of C.; Lawrence Lodge of Elks, 65, B. F. O. E.; Division 8, A. O. H.; South Lawrence A. DISTRICT DEPUTY OF QUINCY COUNCIL, K. C.,
ANDREW J. GOREY

Quincy council, K. of C. is fortunate in having for its District Deputy Grand Knight this coming year a man who has had wide experience in the order. Andrew J. Gorey will have jurisdiction over the 27th Massachusetts district, which includes Quincy council, Jamaica Plain council, Braintree council, and Amsonia council, all active organizations. Braintree council has been under his direction the past two years.

Andrew J. Gorey is an attorney at law with offices at 185 Devonshire street, Boston, and resides at 68 Westmoreland street, Boston. He was born in Marlboro, his parents, Thomas P. Gorey and Frances M.

ANDREW J. GOREY

Gorey. He is married. A graduate of Cathedral school, High School of Commerce, Boston College, Suffolk Law school, and has a Bachelor of Laws degree, being admitted to practice in March 1921. He was associated with the law offices of David I. Walsh for eight years. At present he is connected with the firm of Morin and Gorey.

He is a member of Boston council, K. of C.; Francis G. Kane post, American Legion, Catholic Alumni Sodality of Boston College, Catholic Union of Boston, Suffolk Law school Alumni, and the Wollaston Golf club. He was a representative in the General Court of Massachusetts in 1923-1924, and is a member of St. Brendan's parish, Ashmont.

Mr. Gorey is an ardent golfer and served as chairman of the National K. of C. Golf tournament held in Wollaston during the supreme convention in August of this year and is chairman of the Massachusetts State Council Golf committee. He played in the golf tournament sponsored by Quincy council last month at the Scituate Country club.

He is also a motorist and a student of highway conditions. In the Legislature he was a member of the Committee on Highways and Motor Vehicles.

Among THE STUDIOS

BY HOWARD FITZPATRICK

At least three great American Legion ceremonies to be staged in Boston the week of October 6 will be broadcast by the NBC over a selected group of affiliated stations including either WEEI or WBZ-WBZA in this territory. Foremost of these events will be the address of President Hoover the morning of October 6 at 11:30, officially opening the Legion Convention here.

In the evening General John J. Pershing will be the featured speaker at a dinner tendered O. L. Bodenhamer, national commander. This address, the first in several years which the commander of the A. E. F. has made to the Legion, will be broadcast from 10 to 10:30 p. m., direct from the banquet hall of the Hotel Statler over WEEI and another national hook-up.

The breakfast to be given in honor of the national and State commanders and adjutants Tuesday morning, Oct. 7, at the Boston Chamber of Commerce, at which a man prominent in America during the war period will be the principal speaker, will also be broadcast through WEEI and an NBC network.

As the famous "Old Ironsides," or the S. S. Constitution, recently reconditioned at the Charlestown navy yard, leaves its mooring and sails down Boston Harbor the afternoon of Wednesday, Oct. 8, the ceremonies attending the rededication of this grizzled old man-o-war will be heard through a network of stations including WBZ-WBZA in Boston beginning at 4 o'clock. While under power of her own sail, a squadron of army planes will escort "Old Ironsides," down the harbor, as guns of warships stationed in Boston thunder a salute to her.

Featured on the WNAC Noon-Day Revue programmes for the remainder of this week are three talented artists in their own line. Today Miss Freddy Rosenthal, Boston soprano, has been billed; tomorrow, Mickey Alpert, popular Boston crooner and leader of the Coconut Grove orchestra, will perform accompanied by Joseph Solomon, and on Saturday Grace Cronin, pianist, will play a group of Chopin works including the Black Ket Etude, Waltz in A flat and the Prelude in C Major.

Louis Mason who has the principal part in "Moonlight and Honey-suckle," and is featured on other NBC programmes, might never have been the actor he is had he taken an old school teacher of his seriously. When Louis was a small boy in Danville, Ky., he used to be given minor parts in school theatricals. His teacher, who was directing one of these plays, once remarked to him, after a particularly strenuous job of coaching, "Louis, you'll never be an actor."

Beginning Tuesday evening, Sept. 30, E. A. Rolfe and his Lucky Strike Dance orchestra will be on the air three times a week over NBC networks. The Tuesday broadcast at 10:15 p. m., will be of 45 minutes' duration.

With this new programme Rolfe and his band will present three and three-quarter hours of Lucky Strike programmes each week. One hour is heard Saturday nights over WEEI at 10, another on Thursday evenings via WBZ-WBZA at 8 and repeated again from midnight until 1 o'clock for Western and Pacific Coast listeners.

Dean Gleason L. Archer, of Suffolk Law School in Boston, who broadcasts each Tuesday evening over an NBC network, earned the necessary money for his law education by working in a Maine lumber camp at the age of 13.

RADIO Personalities

It was six months after his birth before a given name was definitely assigned to GLEASON ARCHER, the NEC legal expert. Too many relatives wanted the child named after him, and finally no one won out. Dean Archer who was 50 the other day, is the head of the Suffolk Law School. PHIL COOK, the Quaker Man, has a brother, BURR, who writes the continuity for the NBC "Harbor Lights" program. TOM, DICK AND HARRY, the harmony trio, were once associated with the Ringling circus. BENIAMINO GIGLI, heard tomorrow on the Atwater Kent hour, is known as the "Babe Ruth of Opera". DAVID ROSS traveled 2,000 miles to act as announcer of the Lutheran program. FRED-DIE RICH'S career as a pugilistic director has fallen a bit flat. Fred's protege, YOUNG LYONS, lost his first fight the other night. The trombones in E. A. ROLFE'S orchestra have discarded the derby for shading tone and now use silk toppers.

Opens Law Office In Gladstone Block

Charles D. Burke, Well Known Young Man of Rockland a Graduate of Boston University, and Suffolk Law School

The many friends of Charles D. Burke, son of Mr. and Mrs. David J. Burke of Bigelow avenue, will be pleased to learn that he has opened a law office in the Gladstone block, Union street, over the furniture store of Higgins & McRoberts, formerly the C. Rice Co.

Mr. Burke, who is favorably known in this section as an athlete of much prominence, is a graduate of the public and high schools of his native town, later attending evening sessions of Boston University, where he graduated in 1925, with a Bachelor of Business Administration degree. He also attended Suffolk Law school and graduated from that institution in 1929, in the evening division, with a degree of Bachelor of Laws.

Mr. Burke during his terms at the various institutions of learning worked as a laundryman, railway mail clerk, public accountant and as clerk in the finance office in the Boston Water department.

He is eminently qualified to carry on the duties of a lawyer and his many friends in this section wish him every success.

Primaries for city election of mayor, councillors-at-large and school committee and library trustees will be held Wednesday, Nov. 12. Polls open 5.45 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Thumb nail sketch of each candidate for city council in the order they will appear on the ballot:

James J. Linehan

Served six years on Board of Health, being chairman in 1925. Familiar with municipal affairs as a result of his service in the health office. Is a skilled leather worker in the employ of the L. B. Southwick Co. Married, father of four children. Belongs to George Peabody Court, Foresters of America. Resides in Little's lane but is a native of the East End. Made a good showing in the councillor race two years ago. Has good qualifications for office.

Atty. Daniel L. Tumelty

Has served four years in council from ward 4 retiring last year with a good record. Independent, has a mind of his own. Loyal to his friends and making good as an attorney. Is a bachelor brother of Supt. P. J. Tumelty of the electric light plant. Well versed in city affairs and without taint.

William E. Tracey

Has served two years in the council with much credit and reserves a second term. Is frequently on the floor and expresses himself with poise and logic. Has earned the sobriquet of watchdog of the treasury. Two of his brothers were killed in action in France. Is manager of the Foster St. Filling Station, opposite the Enterprise, formerly being in employ of National Calfskin. Has built up good business by close attention to budget details. Married, father of two children left motherless several months ago. Is a brother-in-law of John and Paul Gallagher, prominent Peabody men.

Daniel F. Harrigan

Supt. of St. Mary's cemetery which he has greatly improved by his supervision. Lives on Lynn st., father of penmanship teacher D. Francis Harrigan. Has been in the council for four years where he has shown ability sufficient to merit his re-election. Independent and has good business judgment. Fair play is his motto like that of his colleague Tracey.

Mohammed E. Hussein

Eastern for the past 25 years, been president and legislative agent for the past 15 years for the street car men union. Endorsed by Central Labor Union. Is a past president of the Peabody Father Mathew Society of which he has been a member for 31 years. Belongs to Peabody Elks. Talks dry and notes dry. Married and lives on Margin st. Good debater and well posted. Born and educated in Peabody.

Cornelius W. Clancy

Affable and efficient starter for Mass. Eastern in Salem. Married with Rooseveltian family. Lover of children and their ideo. Made a good try for seat in council from ward 4 two years ago. Great leader of committees and a close student of politics and municipal business.

Gust J. Puska

Operates a taxi, despite his crutches necessary because of infantile paralysis. Possesses plenty of ambition and has always worked hard to get ahead. Is 38 years old, lives at 59 King st. Took course at Suffolk Law school, in business for self for 15 years.

Timothy F. Dorgan

Came near being elected to council four years ago this fall, winning in every ward but one. Enlisted in marines in World War giving up a grocery business to join the colors. Took business courses in Salem Commercial and in Boston. Dealer in upper leather. Father of twin daughters and a sprightly son. Married Marion McBride, premier soloist. Lives at 29 Chestnut st. Has real qualifications.

Henry J. Brown

Never says die. Defeated twice for council, is back in fight with fine record as publicity man for tercentenary. Is an expert accountant, holds responsible position at A. C. L. Co. Married and father of four children, home on Oak st. Likes printer's ink and has a clever touch at typewriter in turning out "copy" for the papers. Is correspondent for Salem Sunday paper. Served as councillor in Salem.

James A. O'Shea

Handsome man in the race for councillor. Is associated with brother-in-law Charles R. Coan, Main st. haberdasher, lives at 17 Stevens st. Member of Democratic city committee. Married with family. Working member of S. A. S. Club. Fine personality.

William F. Regan

His talks, educational as well as entertaining, are heard by an audience estimated well up in the millions—the largest audience of any New England radio speaker. Because of the popularity which his weekly law talks over WBZ gained, he was invited to be the guest speaker of the National Broadcasting Company over its nation-wide network. He now speaks each Thursday night at 7:15 from WEAJ as the key station on "Laws That Safeguard Society." The thousands of letters coming in from all over the country testify to the popularity of his talks.

Editor of the Times:
Dear Sir:—

Fully appreciating the use of the space allotted by your valuable paper to candidates I wish to make the following statement regarding my candidacy for councillor at large. I am 36 years of age and have resided at 59 King street for 21 years. I was educated in the Public Schools of Peabody and Suffolk Law School. I have been in business 15 years. In so much as the tax rate is based on the annual expenditures of the city, competent and matured judgment is essential. I believe I have such qualifications and promise if elected to give the people of Peabody an honest administration.

JOSEPH P. KELLY DIED MONDAY

Native of Charlestown, Well Known Lawyer and C.P.A.

Joseph P. Kelly, of 25 Walnut road, Somerville, died Monday morning at 9 30 at his home after one week's illness. Death was due to lobar pneumonia. Mr. Kelly was widely known throughout Charlestown and the news of his death was received in this District with profound sorrow and regret.

He was born on Lawrence street 39 years ago, the son of Jeremiah and Catherine Kelly but during the greater part of his stay here lived on Summer street. He received his early education in the Harvard Grammar school and was a graduate of Charlestown High School, Pace Institute, Walton School of Commerce and Suffolk Law School, 1928. He became a certified public accountant in 1915, and was admitted to the Massachusetts bar in January, 1929. Mr. Kelly had offices at 40 Court street, Boston, and up to the time of his death had enjoyed an excellent reputation and wide practice as a lawyer and accountant. He served in the Navy during the war as an ensign. Before retiring from the service in 1920, he was promoted to the rank of lieutenant.

In 1917 he married and moved to Milton where he resided until four years ago, when he moved to his late address. He was a member of Post 19, American Legion of Somerville, and a former member of the Catholic Literary Association of Charlestown.

The funeral took place Thursday morning from his late residence with a solemn requiem high mass in St. Ann's church, Somerville, at 9 o'clock. Rev. Fr. McCarthy was celebrant of the mass. He was assisted by Rev. Fr. Barry, as deacon, and Rev. Fr. Frawley as sub-deacon. Rev. Dr. Mark C. Driscoll, pastor of St. Francis de Sales' church, was seated within the sanctuary. Interment was in the family lot at Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden. Prayers were read at the grave by Rev. Fr. Gately.

The pallbearers were: Mayor John Murphy of Somerville; John J. McCarthy, John Flanagan, William C. Bradley, George Elliott and Lindsey Caldwell. The latter two were business associates of Mr. Kelly.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Adelena Torreano Kelly; two daughters, Amelia, 2, and Theresa, 4; his parents; three sisters, Mrs. Mary E. Johnson, and Misses Margaret and Julia Kelly, and a brother, Bernard Kelly.

Senator Shanahan 40 Won Against Odds

Outstanding among the political victories of last Tuesday was the election of Atty William F. Shanahan to the State Senate. Waging a battle against tremendous odds in a district which has always sent a Republican to the senate, Senator-elect Shanahan went, after this seat of honor in a manner which aroused the entire electorate to action.

Well-versed as to his opponent's record and a convincing and eloquent speaker, Mr. Shanahan attracted hundreds to his support by his enthusiasm and plea for the opportunity to represent this district. His energy seemed inexhaustible, for beginning immediately after the primaries he labored from early morning until late into the night. His analysis of his opponent's record was merciless and severe, and yet he conducted a clean and dignified campaign. Senator Frank W. Osborne, his opponent, has been a resident of Lynn all his life and has held public office for many years, yet Mr. Shanahan piled up a plurality of nearly 2200 votes in Lynn, and made important inroads into his opponent's strength in Republican precincts. Unquestionably Senator-elect Shanahan brought strength to the entire Democratic ticket and it is not to be wondered that his brilliant and popular victory has been the talk of not only Lynn and vicinity but the entire Commonwealth.

William F. Shanahan was born in Rockland, was educated in the public schools there, and was graduated from St. Joseph's High school in Manchester, N. H., being valedictorian of his class. He entered Holy Cross college and continued his brilliant record as a student, being graduated from that institution in 1913 with the degree of A. B. Suffolk Law school graduated him and conferred upon him the degree of LL. B., and he was admitted to the practice of law in the courts of Massachusetts. He has made a splendid record as a practicing attorney and is associated with Judge Edward B. O'Brien. Mr. Shanahan is well known locally as an accomplished musician, and at present is organist at St. John the Evangelist church, Swampscott.

In 1918, Mr. Shanahan was associated with the Bureau of War Risk Insurance in Washington, D. C., where he was stationed for several months. He was appointed to establish what is now the Veterans' Bureau in Boston, and was the first regional director of that bureau, where he served with distinction.

Mr. Shanahan is a member of the Lynn Lodge of Elks, Holy Cross club of Boston, Boston City club, Oxford club, and the Tedesco Country club. He is also a member of the Massachusetts and Essex County Bar associations and of the executive committee of the Lynn Bar association.

Mr. Shanahan has had an unusual opportunity for travel, having visited every state in the Union when connected with the U. S. government and having had an opportunity to go to the Pacific coast in 1926 as delegate to the Kiwanis convention. Last year Mr. Shanahan accompanied a party led by His Eminence Cardinal O'Connell to Rome, where he was granted a private audience with the Holy Father. At this time Mr. Shanahan availed himself of the opportunity to travel extensively in Italy, France, England and Ireland.

Hundreds of congratulatory messages have been received by Mr. Shanahan, among the number being congratulations from Gov.-Elect Joseph B. Ely, U. S. Senator-Elect Marcus A. Coolidge and Senator David I. Walsh. A bright future is predicted for this young man by all who know him.

Possessed of a splendid education and blessed with great natural ability, Mr. Shanahan will serve as senator from the First Essex district with honor and distinction.

Maj. McCabe Leaves Bay State Troops to Attend Staff School

By MAJ. ALDICE G. EAMES
When Gov. Allen took the review of the 3d battalion, 372d infantry, M. N. G., at Camp Devens, Aug. 31, it was the last review of that organization for Larkland F. Hewitt, the battalion commander, and also for Maj. Frank McCabe, its regular army instructor, each of whom insists that the credit is due to the other for the excellence that the Negro battalion has developed since its reorganization of the national guard. Maj. Hewitt will turn over the command, by virtue of the tenure of office law, in December. Maj. McCabe leaves Boston this morning, to go to Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, as a student of the command and general staff school.

MAJ FRANK T McCABE, 30

A Boston boy and an infantryman, Maj. McCabe gained his early soldierly training as a cavalryman. He was born March 30, 1882, enlisted in the 14th U. S. cavalry Feb. 19, 1901, served at Fort Slocum, New York; Fort Leavenworth and Riley, Kansas; Fort Huachuca, Arizona; the Presidio of San Francisco, Cal.; Fort Walla Walla, Washington; Fort Clark, Texas, all as an enlisted man, in the grades of private, corporal, sergeant, quartermaster-sergeant, first sergeant, and color sergeant, for more than 11 years. He was commissioned as a second lieutenant of Philippine scouts of the army June 10, 1912, passed through the grades of first lieutenant and captain, and was commissioned a major July 1, 1920, and was transferred to the 36th U. S. infantry at Camp Devens in 1921.

After two years on duty with the R. M. C. at Boston University, a year as headquarters commandant at the army center, and a year in charge of reserve affairs at 1st corps area headquarters, he was assigned to the advanced class of the infantry school at Ft. Benning, where he was graduated in 1926. He was assigned to duty as instructor of national guard, with the 372d infantry, M. N. G., July 1, that year.

He has made five round trips to the Philippine islands, serving there almost 14 years, five of them in the islands of Mindanao and Jolo, among the picturesque and warlike Moslem Moro folk. As an enlisted trooper he took part in the campaign against the irreconcilable Datu Ali and in many less conspicuous but arduous expeditions and movements by which the friendly natives of the Moro provinces were protected from outlawry.

He was on duty in San Francisco in 1906 at the time earthquake and fire well nigh destroyed that city. He married Miss Anna M. Murphy, a graduate of the Boston Normal school, in 1909, and they have a daughter, Theresa, and three sons: Murray, a soldier in the 6th U. S. cavalry, at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga. who has an eye on West Point for 1931; Robert, a member of company "C," 101st infantry, M. N. G., who has similar intentions; and Arthur, who hopes to be an aviator.

While Maj. McCabe is starting on the course that leads to a general staff assignment, he will be abundantly satisfied if his future career is one of duty with troops and brings him back to 1st division, his native town, where he leaves many true friends.

Mayor Appoints Two Assistant Corpora- tion Counsel

Attorney J. Burke Sullivan, secretary of the Boston College Alumni Association, was appointed last night by Mayor Curley to serve as assistant corporation counsel in the city law department, at a salary of $4500.

BOTH APPOINTEES YOUNG

At the same time the Mayor announced the appointment to a similar position of Attorney John A. Brennan of Charlestown, brother of Governor's Councillor James H. Brennan. Both appointees are quite young for the positions but have established records in legal fraternities.

At Boston College, young Sullivan was a leader in the debating societies as well as president of the Dramatic Club and a member of the editorial boards of the college publications. At Boston University Law School, from which he was graduated in 1927, he was a member of the Woolsock Society, comprising honor students.

Both Active in Fraternities

He is the son of Attorney John F. Sullivan, residing at 7 Alveston street, Jamaica Plain, and since his admission to the bar has been associated with Attorney James M. Graham in the practice of law. He is now but 28 years of age and in addition to his alumni activities at Boston College he is a member of the Boston Bar Association, B. A. A., Bostonia Court, M. C. O. F., Jamaica Plain Council, K. of C., and the Charitable Irish Society.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Brennan was graduated from Suffolk Law School and has been supervising clerk in the office of clerk of the Superior in the office of clerk of the Superior in Civil Court. He has been active as a member of the Bunker Hill Council, Knights of Columbus, and Hamilton Court, M. C. O. F., is 38, married, and has a son, John A. Manning Will Practice Law

Mayor J. Fred Manning has decided to hang out his shingle as a barrister and will do so within a few days. He will enter the office of Atty. James E. Connor in the Lynford building, 25 Central square, one of the leading lawyers in the city.

The mayor has been a member of the bar for a number of years, but never before was established in an office. He is a graduate of Suffolk Law school. When he was elected as chief executive of the city, he had planned to start a law practice, but owing to the press of city business, which kept him on the job many hours a day he allowed a year to pass before making the move. The mayor intends to follow a liberal career when he enters the profession.

DENOUNCES MUSHROOM LAW STUDY

Bushnell Says Bar Ad- mission Standards Too Low

Former District Attorney Robert T. Bushnell last night took a fling at what he declared to be the low standards of admission to the bar, and what he termed "mushroom law schools" which he charged have led many young men away from other business for which they are better suited than law, and benefited only the proprietors of such law schools.

LAW "TOO CARELESS"

Bushnell was speaking before the Boston Chapter, National Association of Cost Accountants at the Hotel Brunswick, on the phases of accounting he had contact with while county prosecutor.

The law has been altogether too careless of the character and ability of those admitted to its ranks. There has been much agitation in recent times due to the appalling number of unqualified men who regard the admission to the ranks of a profession the equivalent of a ticket to Elysian fields and untold wealth without work. The ideals and traditions upon which any profession must rely for its foundation thousands of lawyers have utterly ignored. The profession, as a whole, down through the years, has failed to recognize this fundamental fact.

"Profession in Danger"

"By the dishonest or incompetent or unworthy acts of a few, a whole profession is frequently judged, and when the few become many the profession is in danger. Fabulous reports as to the easy income of lawyers, of fortunes to be made by placing one's feet upon a desk and lying back in indolent ease while clients rush in to place their wealth in the safe, have deceived and attracted thousands of misguided youths who were equipped neither mentally nor ethically to handle affairs of great importance, sometimes involving the making or breaking of a client.

Mushroom law schools, existing solely for the purpose of profit to individual founders, have sprung up through the country by the scores. Their advertisements have led many a young man, otherwise gainfully engaged, to neglect a business for which he was fitted, pay his tuition, the greater part of which went to the proprietor of the school, and by a system of cramming become able to pass bar examinations of a moribund grade. Members of the legal profession, as a whole, at least, for the 50 years during which your profession has been in existence, that of accountants, have been directly responsible, more by the sins of omission than commission."

LEWISTON EVENING JOURNAL

All About Prohibition and Then Some

The Boston News Bureau asserts that for years, those favoring prohibition have set up a claim to a sort of moral superiority over those who dare question it.

The News Bureau, we think, confuses temperance with prohibition in this inference. The person who favors temperance undoubtedly holds a superior moral position to one who favors intemperance.

But, prohibition is not the only way to secure a larger measure of temperate living. Intemperance carries on in many other ways, also. Many excellent people eat themselves to death. Many others indulge in wasteful habits besides those of eat and drink, and rob their community of their greater usefulness.

The News Bureau hails with some show of reason the recent addition of President Hopkins of Dartmouth to the number of prominent educators who oppose the present system of warfare against intemperance in drink. Dr. Hopkins adds respectability to a cause that the News Bureau infers has hitherto needed it. And it HAS needed it, because people do confuse Temperance with prohibition.

And, herein lies the weakness of the "repealists". They content themselves with seeking the repeal of the government attempt to control the traffic and offer no better method. To begin with the whole issue amounts to a broad social question viz: either keep the hands of the Federal Government wholly off the entire matter; or else keep up the effort to control. They doubt the constitutional right even to control, a right that we exercise in respect to narcotics, also.

Of course, prohibition of alcohol succeeds fully as well the prohibition of morphia, heroin, opium etc. In some respects it succeeds better. Control of beverage is easier by than control of drugs, which come in such small packages. We make no contention over the right of the government to control the distribution of opium. We make no objection to the control of immigration. But do contend that there is a right, inherent in the people to have distribution of beverage.

Passing over that question and assuming the right of the Government to control or prohibit manufacture, sale and transportation of alcohol, we overlook the real issue of temperance in assuming that the question is prohibition and anti-prohibition. We do not believe that President Hopkins advocates free and unlimited manufacture, sale, distribution etc of alcoholic beverages.

The excellent Mr. Roosevelt of New York proposes to go back to the conditions before the Volstead act. The excellent Senator Morrow of New Jersey does the same.

This is a very doubtful procedure. We have certainly seen vast improvement as to temperance among wage-earners, in the past ten years. We have thought that one of the causes of over-production is the greater efficiency of workers in mills and factories, due to sobriety. No one who ran a printing-office thirty years ago, need proof of this; nor does any officer or paymaster of a cotton-mill. Help has become steady.

The ONE great fault in the Volstead act and in absolute prohibition is in the brood of law-breakers it has created. If you read "Chicago Surrenders" you perceive what we mean. This amounts to a cancer in the social system. This is undoubtedly the occasion for the withdrawal of such sociologists as Dr. Hopkins, from a support of the Volstead Law. Certain moralists also feel that the people who purchase liquors do so, in protest against the law; thereby becoming lawless, and teaching lawlessness to youth.

Think the entire system of control over and one can hardly say that it fails as a reasonable effort. It works fully as well as laws against theft. It works better than the narcotic act. But it has created an army of underground law-breakers, who insist that they are not criminals.

One must perceive that a duty lies with those who are in opposition to the law, and the 18th amendment, to find something that will work as well and eliminate the bootlegger. And they stop short of that. Granting the fundamental right of the Federal Government to control, what method may be taken, that shall work as well, and at the same time eliminate the Capones and the Zutas and the rest of their Sicilian relatives?

If the 48 States are willing to get together and sensibly consider the matter something might be reached. But the Roosevelt and the Morrow plans are anarchy, so far as the issue of temperance is concerned. It is puerile to suggest that the State desiring to prohibit alcohol shall call on the Federal Government to assist itself against laws made by that same government.

None of these statesmen seeking office out of the emotions, prejudices and bitterness of the issue, seem to have dared to offer any such substitute as Sweden has tried and is trying, with fair results.

Without personally suggesting it and in no wise offering it as a substitute, what would be the reply to a suggestion that the Federal Government be made responsible for introducing something similar to the Bratt system?

Suppose the Federal Government make, distribute and control the sale of all alcoholic beverages, at prices reasonable or unreasonable?

Suppose someone suggested that the Federal Government supply the beverages in approved purity, at prices most unreasonable—in other words exceedingly expensive. At present the high-cost of spirits keeps them out of common-distribution. The bootlegger does not go to humble home or to the factory to sell his stuff—certainly no farther than the office of the executives. He wants to deal with the well-to-do, only.

Make sales a matter of public record. List the purchasers and enable the public to inform itself of the purchases. Charge very high prices. Put the profits into road-building; not into colossal fortunes for Al Capone. The answer would be probably that the rich would buy and the poor could not buy. But the rich can buy $1,000 fur-coats; $50,000 diamond brooches and $25,000 automobiles. And the desire is to prevent buying. Nine-tenths of the kick would be taken out of the possession of beverages, when all it means is purchase in open-market. A good many people get their kick out of boasting about their bootlegger, just as they boast about taking a bath.

Another answer is that bootleggers would still exist and would cut prices. But the Government would then be in a position to hunt bootleggers with approval of all the present-day objectors, who claim the right to have what they want. Their position would be offensively nasty. Think of it! Law-breaking for the sake of saving a few dollars!

All this is mere fancy on our part. But IF the people want temperance and do not want prohibition, they must work out a better way than prohibition. We see no progress at all, in the matter, of both being the present laws, or of modifying them, as our public men, especially the politicians, handle the matter. Surely, they must perceive that the present law, economically, has been a blessing to the wage-earner. And under the present system, local or State option prevails as it is proposed and the plans of Gov. Roosevelt and Senator Morrow. No community in Sweden is forced to have places for government sale. And infractions of the law, become acts against the State and Nation, that were serious matters in the old days of Maine enforcement, and would be the same under National license.

Of course, this is not the last day on earth, tho it is the latest day. It is a very narrow view-point of what civilization needs as regards temperate living, to insist on any ONE way to keep one's neighbors sober, to the exclusion of all other ways.

Teetotalism may be very intemperate, and temperance may be altogether too teetotal, to be tolerant. The most intemperate talk is made by shallow thinkers about the present laws, which would be ideal, would the people accept them. It has generally been considered good practice to go around mountains and arrive at the destination by a little longer route. What is desired is progress in temperate living, decency, lawful-behavior, and obedience. Justice is the goal; and justice is the largest measure of personal liberty, consistent with the rights of others.

CLUB SPLIT BY VOTE AGAINST DISPLAY OF PORTUGUESE FLAG

ONE FLAG FOR HIM

JOHN B. NUNES.

Reconsideration Slated at Meeting Called for Next Thursday

JOHN B. NUNES DEFENDS ACTION

Two Members Resign, Protests Pour in on President Moniz

A vote to omit display of the Portuguese flag beside the United States flag at gatherings of the Portuguese American Civic association was passed by the club at a meeting last Tuesday. A special meeting to reconsider that vote has been called for 8 P. M. next Thursday, at Monte Pio hall.

Nunes Stands His Ground.

John B. Nunes, attorney, who made the motion against display of the Portuguese flag with the American on the ground that it symbolized a divided allegiance, stands his ground in the face of a storm of protest which has resulted in the call for a special meeting.

Some of those at the meeting Tuesday evening expressed dissatisfaction with the vote, and one resigned in protest at the time Elias De Barros Camara, another member, has resigned since Mr. Camara inserted a notice in Thursday's Diario de Noticias, Portuguese daily, that he would not belong to an association which repudiates the flag of his mother country. Claims are made that only 32 were present Tuesday, too small a number to be representative of the sentiment of the organization.

At the installation of the newly elected officers recently, it chanced that the Portuguese flag was not displayed on the platform alongside the American flag. A member arose during the evening to ask if he might ask a question offered by Mr. Nunes, who in a rage, he inquired as to the reason for the absence of the Portuguese flag. The answer he received was that it was not a matter to be considered at that time, but might be brought up at a regular meeting of the association. That meeting was held Tuesday evening last, resulting in a vote to exclude the Portuguese flag on the motion. When he received that preliminary statement he considered that in taking his oath as an American citizen he owed allegiance to no other flag.

Mr. Nunes gave to The Standard today this statement:
"I have no statement to make. The matter is to be settled in the meetings of the Portuguese American Civic association. I have nothing to retract and nothing to deny. I still hold that my oath of allegiance to the American flag is binding, as I intended it to be. No man can serve two masters. With me there were no mental reservations."

President John Moniz said today he had been overwhelmed with telephone calls and personal visits on the part of members of the association who desire to go on record opposing the exclusion of the Portuguese flag at the meetings.

President Moniz said he had received many telephone calls from members of the club protesting against the action taken at the Tuesday evening meeting. He said he had even received a number of calls from those who voted for the motion and who now desire to retract their former stand.

As the president of the association, I have no statement to make as bind-

Big Firms Find Bright Prospects

Inform Mayor Curley They Expect No Layoffs and See Prosperity in Spring

Optimism Urged

Mayor Tells Economists and Others Faith Will Solve Country's Troubles

Reports from some of the largest firms in Boston and vicinity, informing Mayor Curley that they expected no layoffs of employees during the winter and were looking forward to good business in the spring, were read by Mr Curley to a group of thirty or more college economists and social workers at the fifth of the luncheon-conferences instituted by the mayor, at the Parker House today.

"So you see," the mayor added amid applause, "we are not so badly off after all. As I said at the beginning of these meetings all that seemed to me needed was the banishment of the psychology of fear. I wish to reiterate that sentiment now. If we all had faith in ourselves, in our city, our country and in God, we should not be experiencing the period of unemployment of today. I have passed through three of these economic disturbances as mayor of Boston and this is the least distressing of all. When we come to analyze the situation and observe the signs of good cheer, we really have cause to be cheerful."

Mayor Curley sat at a large semi-circular table stretched through the Dickens room and the adjoining apartment at the Parker House, with Professor Joseph H. Beale of Harvard on his right and Professor Thomas Nixon Carver of Harvard on his left. Across the table sat several women representatives of institutions which are doing much to relieve the distress of unemployment. Representatives of the Public Welfare department were present to inform the gathering what is being accomplished by the funds of the city.

In starting proceedings, the mayor remarked that "so far as Boston is concerned we have little cause for worry." He then read the survey he had caused to be made in business circles as follows:

16 ARE SEEKING PUBLIC OFFICE

Six Ward Councillors and Two Members of School Board Will Be Chosen in City Election

In the municipal election Tuesday, Dec. 2, the citizens will be called upon to elect a councillor from each of the six wards of the city, and two members to sit in the school board, and in all wards, but Ward 4, there is a contest. There are four running for the school board and 12 for the council.

Councillors Arthur J. Smith and James W. Ryan are seeking re-election, and on the school board, Norman Russell is a candidate for re-election. Peter I. Lawton, a member of the board for a number of years, decided not to again enter the contest. A light vote is predicted. The candidates with a brief sketch of each are as follows:

James W. Ryan, 26 Madison street, is completing his first term in the city council, and seeks re-election. He was born in the lower ward, and has always resided there. Mr. Ryan has been engaged in the grocery business on Madison street for several years, is a member of the Neptune Veteran Firemen's and Newburyport Shellfish associations. He is married. Herbert W. Simmons, 260 Waterland bridge and a clammer. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. David Simmons. He served in the common council under the old form of government from Ward 1, is a Republican and a member of the city committee from the Dummer Academy, Hebron and Kent's Hill schools in Maine and played football on teams of those institutions. He is a member of the Neptune Veteran Firemen's, the Newburyport Shellfish associations and Newburyport Lodge of Elks. Mr. Simmons is also interested in the reopening of the clam flats.

Ward 2

Thomas J. Coffey, 27, 24 Beck street, was high man in the primary election in the ward. He was born in this city, and has always resided here. He was educated in the public schools, and has been employed at Kennedy's store on State street for several years, being recently made its manager. He is president of the Newburyport Twilight Baseball League. He has always taken an active part in sporting events in the city, and for three years was a member of the Newburyport A. A. basketball quintet. It is his first entrance into politics. He is married and has a family. Forrest E. Collins, 10 Parsons street, the other successful candidate in the primary election, is a bookkeeper by occupation, being employed at the Newburyport Garage on State street. He was employed some time in a end of the city. He is married and has three children. He is a member of the Newburyport Post, American Legion.

Richard A. Noyes, 57 Jefferson street, is an insurance agent with offices at 21 Pleasant street. He was born in Winchester street. He was a member here five years ago. He was a member of the 26th division, A. E. months. He is a member of the front for mite Lodge, A. F. & A. M., King Cyrus Chapter R. A. M., Newburyport Lodge of Elks, the American Legion, St. Paul's Men's club and is an alumnus of Colorado college. He is married and has two children.

School Board Candidates

William P. Soucie, 34 Woodland street, is making a second try to serve on the school board of his adopted city. He was a candidate two years ago, but failed in election. He was born in Northampton and has been a resident here for 12 years.

Norman Russell, 52 Woodland street, is one of Newburyport's well-known citizens. He was born here and is president of the Albert Russell & Sons Company foundry. He was graduated in the public schools and is a graduate of Newburyport High school, graduated from Dartmouth College. He was a candidate for mayor in 1921 and was defeated by a small margin of votes by Michael Cashman. He is seeking re-election to the school board. He is a member of many fraternal and social organizations.

Dr. Frank W. Snow, 24 Essex street, is one of the city's leading physicians. He is a World War veteran having served in France in both the English and American medical corps. He holds the rank of colonel in the reserve and is a past commander of the American Legion post. He is a member of the Anna Jaques hospital staff and belongs to many leading medical societies. He served a few years ago as a member of the board of health. He is married.

Albert D. Titcomb is married and resides on Ashland street. He is a son of Albert A. Titcomb, 34 Milk street. He was born in this city and is a graduate of Newburyport High school. He is one of the organizers of the Loyal Boosters that helped to stage the comeback for athletics at the high school. He has always taken an active interest in all matters pertaining to the schools. J. P. Coyne Succeeds Robert As Attache To Mayor's Office

Joseph P. Coyne, of 299 Broadway, has been chosen as successor to Ralph W. Robert, formerly attached to Mayor Russell's office and who resigned to take an appointment as director of the division of the necessities of life. The new appointee to the mayor's office was selected from the schools of this city following which he took a law course at the Suffolk Law school. Finishing his course there he took a position with William L. Baxter, in the law offices of Bussey & Vahay.

In carrying out his new duties Mr. Coyne will follow to some degree the plan mapped out by his predecessor. He has some definite plans which will be incorporated...

PARK STREET CLUB 40 WINS EAR DEBATE

By a vote of 2 to 1, members of the Park Street Club upheld the negative side of the question, 'Resolved, That the Education Standards for Admission to the Bar in Massachusetts Should Be Raised,' at the debate last evening that featured its 57th monthly meeting at the Boston City Club.

Tough not one of the debaters, Dean Gleason L. Archer of the Suffolk Law School stressed the moral rather than the academic requirements of applicants to the bar.

Speakers for the affirmative were William E. Corkum of West Roxbury and Michael J. Mulken of Dorchester. Those for the negative were Henry N. Andrews of Melrose Highlands and William H. Taylor of South Boston.

NEPHEWS BEARERS AT JAMES M. MURPHY FUNERAL

The funeral of James M. Murphy, 52, of 28 Cordis st, Charlestown, who died at the Relief Hospital, Haymarket sq, of injuries received Tuesday evening when he was struck by an automobile while crossing Warren st at Monument av, Charlestown, took place this morning.

A solemn requiem high mass was celebrated in St Mary's Church, Warren st, at 9 o'clock by Rev Andrew J. White, assisted by Rev Lyman Merrill as deacon and Rev James Hamilton as subdeacon. The church was filled, those present including fellow workmen and fellow members of fraternal and labor organizations in which Mr Murphy occupied important offices.

There was a profusion of beautiful floral pieces. The pallbearers were nephews of Mr Murphy, Francis Foley, Gerard Hawkins, Michael and Dennis Cobane and Cornelius and Eugene Murphy.

Interment was in Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden, where prayers were read by Rev Daniel Donovan of Our Lady of Presentation Church, Brighton, a cousin of Mr Murphy.

Mr Murphy is survived by his wife, Mrs Bridget A. Murphy; a son, James M. Murphy, a law student at the Suffolk Law School; a daughter, Miss Mary C. Murphy, who is attached to the plant department of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company in Cambridge; five brothers and two sisters, Eugene, Cornelius, John, Timothy and Dennis Murphy, and Mrs Julia Cobane and Mrs Anna Hawkins, all of Norwood.

Mr Murphy had resided in Norwood and removed to Charlestown about 30 years ago. He was employed as a clerk by the Boston & Maine for many years and was a member of Hamilton Court, M. C. O. F. He was recording secretary of both Division 5, A. O. H., and of International Longshoremen's Union.

KILBY W. SHUTE.

A Little Boy's Opinion of Him.

I came out of church Friday afternoon as the shadows were lengthening. We had all of us, by our presence indicated our regard for him who had gone beyond and there we parted, each to go his different way to take up his separate task.

I turned the corner into Mason street, bound home. I can visualize that I was taking no particular attention of anything that was transpiring because my thoughts were of the good fellow who had gone on and the splendid eulogy of the minister, whose cultured words were a fitting benediction to an unselfishly useful life.

I was aroused from my thoughts by a small piping voice: "Say, mister, was you in there with the rest of em?" I said, "Yes, sonny, I was, and I feel pretty bad." "Say, mister, he was a fine man that 'Kib' Shute wasn't he?" And I said to him, "Yes, he was." He looked up at me with big round eyes; he couldn't have been over eight or nine years old and he remarked in the vernacular of the day, "You said it; ne sure was."

I went home and sat down to think things over, because this man whose body we had consigned to Mother Earth and whose worthy soul was then with his Maker, was a good friend to me. And as I sat back in the old easy chair my thoughts ran to the north and the south where the best of sculptors and artisans are chiselling in the imperishable granite of their giant hillsides the pictures of great men, thus to perpetuate their fame throughout the coming generations. And I thought to myself, "Kib" Shute; he wasn't a great man as the cold, sordid world figures greatness, but he was a good man. Gloucester isn't the whole country, but it is a loving, discerning, loyal part of it and in my opinion Gloucester will never forget "Kib" Shute.

The little boy was right; he was truly a fine man. A. L. M.

SENATOR SHANAHAN BRINGS HOME BRIDE

Swampscott Man Weds Miss Harrell of Virginia

SWAMPSCOTT, Jan. 20.—Following an announcement today at the State House that Senator William F. Shanahan of this town and Miss Ella Mae Harrell of Portsmouth, Va., had been married Saturday in New York city, the couple arrived here tonight at the home of the Senator and confirmed the announcement.

The wedding was by no means unexpected, since the romance had been known to the Senator's colleagues and friends for several years. The couple met several Summers ago at Bass Springs, Canada. At that time Miss Harrell was secretary for the North Carolina Pine Association of Norfolk, Va.

Senator Shanahan was the first Democratic Senator to be elected from this district since the election of Asa T. Newhall more than 50 years ago. He is a graduate of Holy Cross College, 1913, and of Suffolk Law School in 1924, and has practiced law in Lynn since.

He said tonight, when interviewed, that he thought it best to have a private ceremony in order not to interfere with the work he has to do in the Legislature. They plan to postpone their wedding trip.

They were married at the rectory of St Stephen's Church by Rev William A. Courtney. Mrs Arthur Guthrie, a classmate of the bride, attended her, and the groom was attended by Mrs Guthrie, who is a New York attorney. The bride is a graduate of a Southern university. Hundreds of congratulatory messages poured into the Senator's home last night and open house was held to all his friends.

LEGISLATOR WOULD PIPE OCEAN TO FIGHT CAPE FOREST FIRES

Bill, Introduced by Taunton Man, Proposes Maze of Pipe Lines, Distilling Plants and Towers to Fight Fire and Drought with Distilled Sea Water

To Harness Floods.

Fighting Cape Cod forest fires with water distilled from the adjacent brine of the Atlantic ocean is the novel idea suggested in a bill filed in the Legislature Friday by Representative James T. O'Neil, Taunton.

The limitless floods of the sea would move inland to deluge burning forests via a network of pipe lines, towers, pressure tanks, pumping stations, reservoirs, distilling plants, and other apparatus," according to the picture conjured up by the provisions of the bill. And the expense of such an undertaking would be met by a proviso that the state Department of Conservation may spend as much as $1,000,000 a year for five years "to make available the water of the Atlantic ocean for the purpose of preventing further ravages of fire and drought on Cape Cod."

After the project has been successfully worked out for Cape Cod, the bill would have the Department of Conservation "study and develop plans for like operations in other parts of the commonwealth."

The bill was filed by Representative O'Neil on a petition signed by William F. Coughlin and George F. Murphy, Boston, but he informed The Standard today, represents his own initiative towards remedying a situation in which he has a strong personal interest through residence in southeastern Massachusetts and summer visits to Cape Cod when forest fires were raging.

First Year in Legislature.

Mr. O'Neil is serving his first term in the Legislature and is practicing law in Taunton, having been admitted to the bar in June, 1929, and received his bachelor of laws degree from Suffolk Law school in February, 1930. He stated the object in filing the bill is to get some legislation started to help meet the Cape Cod forest fire situation. He is not set upon having done all the various things set forth in the bill, but hopes to focus attention upon the necessity for action and bring about some concrete assistance for Cape Cod.

The sponsor of the bill stated that he has read books on forest fire control and conferred with fire wardens and other persons who might be termed experts on the subject. He declined, however, to cite any names.

"After seeing forest fires recur on the Cape year after year, I have been impressed that a great deal needs to be done, both in the way of prevention and control," said Representative O'Neil. "We have valuable forest reserves there that should be protected, and other property is also endangered year after year. Besides, if we could get some work started, it would help relieve the unemployment situation."

Representative Alexander Sullivan, East Boston, co-operated with him in drafting the bill, Mr. O'Neil said, being interested in the Cape Cod situation as an occasional visitor to the Cape. Mr. Coughlin and Mr. Murphy, friends of Mr. Sullivan, signed the bill. It is Mr. O'Neil's impression that they may be conversant with fire control methods through their own business, or through friendship with specialists in that line. Mr. O'Neil said he spent a summer in Harwichport in 1925 during which he

James R. Feeley Dies Suddenly

Amesbury, Jan. 20—James Ryder Feeley, 23, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Feeley, 84-A Friend street, died suddenly at the family home yesterday afternoon, the victim of a heart attack. He was a student at Suffolk Law school and was to have been graduated next June. He was born here in 1907, attended and was graduated from St. Joseph's school and was graduated from the Amesbury High school with the class of 1926. He participated in many high school activities as an undergraduate and served his class as treasurer.

He is survived by his parents and one brother, J. Richard Feeley, Jr., of this town. Funeral services will be held from the home tomorrow morning at 8.30 and from St. Joseph's church at 9.

A Tribute.

The passing of a man as prominent as the late Kilby W. Shute brings sadness to the entire community; for his prominence was based not only on his gift for leadership, as evidenced by the number of offices he held, but was founded upon the sincerity in friendship which made everyone with whom he came in contact trust and honor him.

The dominant thought in his life was the desire to help others; his untiring endurance made it possible for him to carry out his thought, and that is why not only a beloved family, not only the employees of the Cape Ann National bank, of which he was director and cashier for so many years, not only the church and the clubs of which he was so faithful a member, but all Cape Ann sorrows at the loss of one who has devoted his life to the betterment of his city.

His sphere of influence was more than local; he was made president this last year of the Massachusetts branch of the National Bank Cashiers association, a great honor for a man in a small city, and one which shows the appreciation which his trustworthiness and ability inspired. One of the monuments he leaves is Ravenswood park; through his trusteeship of the Sawyer fund for preservation of the park, and through his love of the beautiful, it was plotted out with the grace and artistry which is visible in its winding roads. The development of that park was one of his treasures. In his boyhood, Mr. Shute was a born woodsman; his vacations were spent in fishing and hunting, his favorite relaxations.

He entered the Cape Ann National bank, then a small institution as a teller under Hiram Rich. He was promoted rapidly, and has twice aided in making over the bank. To some extent he was its architect, for he knew all the details, and helped in the planning of its enlargement, and even followed the contractor's work as it progressed. Mr. Shute was a gifted draftsman, with artistic talents. On the walls of his home hang two paintings which testify to his talent; one is a sunset, the other a field of haystacks, new mown, revealing the nature lover and the artist at the same time. One of his paintings hangs on the walls of the Cape Ann Camera club, of which he was an ex-president.

Long summer nights this past season were spent in planning a system for the Addison Gilbert hospital campaign, of which he was treasurer. This year was his fourth in Suffolk law school, which he attended to make himself more valuable to the bank for which he worked so indefatigably. After the day's business hours, the time which many men spend in rest or play, was utilized by him in achieving the high standard he attained in his classes at the law school. He was ever adding to his store of knowledge.

Added to all this, he was possessed of a fine social nature, which made his companionship much sought, and his friendship even more highly prized. He was a friend to everyone, in every walk of life. His high standing in the Unitarian church, of which he was benefactor and constant attendant, in Tyrian lodge, A. F. and A. M., and Bethlehem Commandery K. T., reveals again how widely his loss will be felt.

The home which he was renovating for his wife is still in the process of completion, and his task is finished; but the love of all those to whom he gave so unstintingly will endure, and the good works that he has done will remain as ageless and beautiful as the trees he loved, in Ravenswood park.

MOURN PASSING OF KILBY W. SHUTE

Well-Known Bank Man and Prominent Leader in Welfare Work Succumbs After Illness Since October 31

Kilby W. Shute, cashier of the Cape Ann National bank for nearly 30 years, passed away at the Phillips House of the Massachusetts General hospital, Boston, at 10.30 o'clock last night. He was 62 years of age.

Mr. Shute has been ill since October 31, when he was stricken at his home, following his return from Boston.

He was removed immediately from his home, 53 Summer street, to the Addison Gilbert hospital and recovered sufficiently to be taken to the Phillips House, where he could receive special treatment.

Mr. Shute was born in Gloucester. His parents were Henry Shute of Newmarket, N. H., and Adella (Witham) Shute of this city. He became affiliated with the Cape Ann National bank on January 1, 1897, a short time after completing his education. He became cashier on September 20, 1901 and began a career of far-reaching influence throughout the community. He has been a director of the bank for about 30 years.

He was president of the Massachusetts National Bank Cashiers' Association; member of Tyrian lodge A. F. and A. M., of William Person, Royal Arch Chapter, and of Bethlehem Commandery, K. T., and a trustee of Ravenswood Park, also an ex-president of the Cape Ann Camera Club, and trustee of the Addison Gilbert hospital. He was a regular attendant and an enthusiastic supporter of the First Parish church, Unitarian, and was clerk of the society.

He was active in community welfare work, being prominently identified with all the important campaigns for a quarter of a century. He was treasurer and particularly active in the recent Addison Gilbert hospital campaign.

Mr. Shute is survived by his wife, a daughter Natalie, and a brother, Frank H. Shute.

The petition originated, according to Mr Rich, with the National World Court committee of which Maj Gen John F. O'Ryan is chairman. verse, written by Mrs. Archer during the past two years. As pointed out in the foreword by Mrs. Grace Hastings Sharp, widow of Prof. Dallas Lore Sharp, "these transcripts of the poet's own life are here thrown upon the screen with purpose to uplift, to stay, to stimulate, to soothe and quicken the reader into better thinking and higher living. The mother's guiding counsel here, the crusader speaks out; the wise social tactician gives a valuable 'do' with an invaluable 'don't.'" The author deals with a wide variety of subjects and the phrasing is everywhere marked by settled conviction. Those who have been fortunate enough to receive the volume confidently predict a brilliant future in the realm of poetry for Mrs. Archer.

Another difference between John D. Rockefeller and the rest of us is that it becomes front page news when he quotes Nixon Waterman's poems to his friends.

A January announcement that brings special joy to Emille Loring and her many friends is that the first edition of 15,000 copies of "Lighted Windows" has been entirely sold and that a second large edition is now on the press.

IT IS SAID

That Thos J Finnegan of the West Side has been elected head of the Suffolk Law School Alumni ass'n.

That Mayor Clarke of Maldon, England, has just been unanimously re-elected by the councillors of that venerable city.

That Charles I Woodside, former chairman of the Republican City Committee, has developed one of the best collection of lamps in New England.

That the enrolment at the Commercial school is large and a number of registrations are on file for students who will enter next month.

That it has been suggested among some of the doctors that they reduce their fees to what they were a few years ago in order to relieve the general depression and unemployment.

That in 1930 the firemen at the Maplewood station, Engine two and Ladder two, held the record for runs in any one year, 389 runs and used over 60,000 feet of hose.

That Rt Rev Mgr Richard Neagle has been re-elected a director of the Home for Destitute Catholic Children, a position he has held for more than a generation.

That Dr Frank A Thompson who died in Philadelphia Saturday was for some time a member of the old Ward Six Republican Committee being elected at the same time as the late Frank Schumaker.

That while the law provides that all applicants for sportsmen's licenses who are over 70 shall receive them without cost there is yet to be an applicant for a free license at the city clerk's office.

CHATTER AND COMMENT

By JOHN CLAIR MINOT

The world of books loses one of its most active and interesting figures in the death of Mrs. L. Adams-Beck. She died in that far east where she has lived most of the time for many years and which she has tried in many of her books to interpret to the western world. Her books in this field, both fiction and non-fiction, appeared under her own name. She was even better known to the reading world by the name of E. Barrington, under which she wrote that remarkable list of biographical novels—"The Divine Lady," with Lady Hamilton as its central figure; "The Glorious Apollo," built around the career of Lord Byron; "The Thunderer," with Napoleon in the leading role; and more recently "The Duel of the Queens," in which she told the story of Queen Elizabeth and Mary Queen of Scots, writing as a warm partisan of the latter. She was less known under the name of Louis Moresby, which she used earlier in her literary career and under which she wrote novels of romance and high adventure of the "shilling shocker" type. Fields of authorship more utterly diverse than these three cannot well be imagined, yet this remarkable woman, who did not begin her literary career until she was on the western slope of middle age, not infrequently brought out in a single year three books under her three different names.

There is much about what may be called prehistoric New England in a little book, "The Indians of the Winnepesaukee and Pemigewasset Valleys," by Mary A. Proctor of Franklin, N. H. The author began her book primarily with the purpose of furnishing local historical material for the school children of Franklin, but it has grown far beyond that scope. Her father when he was a small boy, began hunting for Indian relics in southern New Hampshire, and passed on to his children the interest in that hobby. Miss Proctor has seen her own collection grow from a handful of specimens to more than 500, and during the process of making it has gathered much information about Indian life and lore, which she puts together in this volume. There are many illustrations. The scope of the work often extends beyond the writer's native state.

verse, written by Mrs. Archer during the past two years. As pointed out in the foreword by Mrs. Grace Hastings Sharp, widow of Prof. Dallas Lore Sharp, "these transcripts of the poet's own life are here thrown upon the screen with purpose to uplift, to stay, to stimulate, to soothe and quicken the reader into better thinking and higher living. The mother's guiding counsel is here, the crusader speaks out, the wise social tactician gives a valuable 'go' with an invaluable 'don't.'" The author deals with a wide variety of subjects and the phrasing is everywhere marked by settled conviction. Those who have been fortunate enough to receive the volume confidently predict a brilliant future in the realm of poetry for Mrs. Archer.

Through it John Gordon brings out a unique little volume, "Confessions of Sandy McWhiffe, Famous Inventor." The author and publisher, who is a veteran printer with numerous earlier books to his credit, tells us that he set by hand this book, which runs to 96 pages, and that the numerous woodcut illustrations were made with his pen-knife. Also that the book was printed on a seven by 11-foot power press. Even so, it would do credit to a much more pretentious establishment, and there is much of quiet humor and quaint philosophy in Sandy's reminiscences of the good old days.

Once in a blue moon some enterprising publisher reverts to the good old custom of giving a novel a goodly number of illustrations. Thus Ludwig Lewisoohn's new novel, "The Last Days of Shylock," just published by Harper & Bros., has a dozen beautiful drawings by Arthur Szyk.

The Scientific Book Club makes a new departure in book club policy when it selects a single work to serve as its offering for two months. However, the book chosen may well serve that double purpose, and no subscriber is likely to complain. It is "The Science of Life," a monumental work in two volumes which the tireless H. G. Wells has written with the assistance of his son, George Philip Wells, and Julian Huxley. This work, which the club makes its choice for February and March, will be published Jan. 30 by Doubleday, Doran & Co., and Prof. Kirtley P. Mather of Harvard will review it Saturday, Jan. 31, for Herald readers. It is expected that it will do for science what Mr. Wells did for another field of scholarship in his "Outline of History." It is a much longer work and the publishers tell us that Mr. Wells has been engaged on it for five years, though he has managed to give the world a book of two each year during that period. His son, who collaborates with him, is a research worker in comparative physiology at University College, London. Julian Huxley, a grandson of the great Thomas Huxley, is one of the most distinguished men of science in contemporary England, with numerous books on biology and zoology to his credit. He is also author of "African View," published this month by Harper & Bros., which is the result of a journey he made through Africa on behalf of the British government.

It is strange, considering the deluge of novels each year, that the titles of earlier novels are not more often duplicated. Among the early 1931 novels we note two titles which have recently been used by other writers. The new Upton Sinclair novel, "Roman Holiday," has a title that Don Ryan used last year in a novel published by the Macaulay Company, "Fiddler's Green," by Albert R. Wetjen, which is on the spring list of Little, Brown & Co., has a title that Clara Endicott Sears of this city used a few years ago.

It is of special interest that "Gentlemen All," by William T. Fitzgerald of this city, is one of the novels that William Lyon Phelps will discuss in Steinert hall this afternoon in the third lecture of his course under the auspices of the Women's City Club of Boston. Other novels on his list are "Years of Grace," by Margaret Ayers Barnes; "The Waters Under the Earth," by Martha Ostenso, and "The Open Secret," by Oliver Onions. His non-fiction list will include "Daniel Webster," by Claude M. Fuess; "As We Were," by E. F. Benson; "Sidelights on Queen Victoria," by F. Ponsonby; "John Wesley," by J. D. Wade, and "The Mysterious Universe," by Sir James Jeans.

Friends of Elizabeth Glenn Archer, wife of Dean Gleason L. Archer of Suffolk law school, are in receipt of a handsomely bound little volume of president, Fred Gillespie, prominent lawyer and lumber merchant; secretary, Alden M. Cleveland; treasurer, Atty. Martin W. Powers of Boston and Belmont; executive committee, Maurice H. Cavanaugh of Somerville and Joel L. Miller, president of the Dorchester-Mattapan Suffolk Law Club. President Finnegan, who will take office immediately is planning an intensive membership drive and an extensive social program during the remaining winter months.

MARLBORO MAN TAKES BRIDE

Wedding of Gordon J. Flink and Miss A. E. Hollis in Brockton

Gordon J. Flink, son of Mr and Mrs. Gustaf Flink, of 67 Mechanic street Marlboro, was married Saturday evening in Brockton, according to information from that city. The wedding ceremony took place at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. Flink's bride was the former Miss Alma E. Hollis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvah E. Hollis, of Brockton. The couple were attended by B. G. Flink, of Philadelphia a brother of the groom and Mrs. Catharine Smith of Westfield. Little Miss Evelyn Ostrand, of Springfield a cousin of Mr. Flink acted as ring bearer.

Mr. Flink was raised in Marlboro and attended school here for the earlier part of his education. The family moved to Brockton however before he graduated from High School, and he was graduated from there. He is also a graduate of Suffolk Law School.

The bridal pair left for Washington, D. C. on a honeymoon trip immediately after the wedding last night. They will make their home in Brockton. Mr. Flink is now connected with the Coast Guard.

The wedding was a pretty affair. A number of friends and relatives of the two families were present. The bride wore a gown of blue chiffon trimmed with shadow lace and carried white roses. Mr. Flink's gift to his bride was a string of crystal beads and to his best man he gave a set of diamond studded cuff links. The bride presented her bridesmaid with a platinum necklace. The ring bearer received a string of crystal beads.

A buffet luncheon was served at the reception which followed when numerous gifts were presented to the newlyweds.

THORNDIKE AND MacDONALD IN PARTNERSHIP

Atty. Herbert C. Thorndike, special justice of the Brockton district court, and Atty. Walter J. MacDonald, prominent young lawyer, have joined in Brockton's latest law partnership to be known as Thorndike & MacDonald.

Atty. MacDonald and Atty. Thorndike have been associated since shortly after the former passed the bar in 1924, but the partnership was not formed until the first of this year.

JUDGE THORNDIKE

Judge Thorndike has been practicing law in this district for about 27 years and since 1907 has had offices in this city.

Judge Thorndike was born in Newport, R. O., Dec. 17, 1879, but in 1884 moved to East Bridgewater, where he now resides. He was graduated from the East Bridgewater High school in 1897 and after working for newspapers in that town began his study of law.

In 1902 he was graduated from Harvard college and two years later was graduated from Harvard Law school. After practicing law in East Bridgewater for three years Judge Thorndike opened an office here.

In 1915 Gov. Walsh appointed Atty. Thorndike as an associate justice of the district court. Judge Thorndike is a member of many organizations, including the Brockton and Plymouth County Bar association, the Massachusetts Bar association and the American Bar association.

He is also a member of the Harvard Law School association, the Odd Fellows, Grange, Masons, the Southeastern Fish and Game association, the Commercial club, University club, Brockton Country club and Harvard club.

On April 22, 1908, Atty. Thorndike and Miss Bessie Ellsworth Perkins of East Bridgewater were married.

ATTY. MacDONALD

Atty. MacDonald is one of the leading young barristers of the city. He was born here April 19, 1899, and is a graduate of the Brockton High school, class of 1917.

Following completion of his High school education he was employed by the government as a stenographer at Fore River and at the Army base, Boston. He was graduated from the Suffolk Law school in 1924 and a few months later became associated with his present partner.

He is a member of the Brockton Bar association, the Canadian club of Boston and Div. 1, A. O. H.

Atty. MacDonald and Miss Emma Gies, then secretary to Atty. Thorndike, were married June 23, 1930. Atty. MacDonald is the son of Angus B. MacDonald, secretary-treasurer of the Lasters union, and the late Agnes B. MacDonald.

TAKES BRIDE

The bride wore a gown of blue custom-made with a lace and carried a flower bouquet of white roses, while her bridesmaid was attired in Nile green chiffon and carried pink roses. Mr. Flink's gift to his bride was a string of crystal beads. The best man received a set of diamond cuff links, while Mrs. Flink presented her bridesmaid with a platinum necklace. To Reside in This City After the Honeymoon.

In a pretty ceremony at her home, 152 Green street, Saturday afternoon, Miss Alma E. Hollis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvah E. Hollis, became the bride of Gordon J. Flink of 45 Highland avenue, Cambridge, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gustaf Flink of Marlboro. The ceremony was performed at by Rev. Horace F. Holton, D. D. The young couple were attended by Birger G. Flink of Philadelphia and Mrs. Catherine Smith of Westboro, Mass., brother and sister of the groom, with his cousin, little Miss Evelyn Ostrand of Springfield, acting as ring-bearer.

The bride wore a gown of blue custom-made with a lace and carried a flower bouquet of white roses, while her bridesmaid was attired in Nile green chiffon and carried pink roses. Mr. Flink's gift to his bride was a string of crystal beads. The best man received a set of diamond cuff links, while Mrs. Flink presented her bridesmaid with a platinum necklace. The ring-bearer received a string of crystals.

A buffet luncheon was served at the reception which folled when numerous gifts of linen, electrical appliances, silver and cut glass were on display. Relatives and friends were present from Philadelphia, Washington, D. C., New York city, Marlboro, Springfield, Westboro, Brockton and surrounding towns. Immediately after the reception, the couple left on a wedding trip, after which they plan to reside in this city.

Both young people are natives of Brockton and are graduates of the local High school. Mr. Flink was also graduated from Suffolk Law school at Boston, and is employed as secretary in the Custom House office of the coast guard. Mrs. Flink is well known here as assistant in the studio of a Campello photographer.

GARRETT EX-AGENT OF WATCH, WARD NOW FREE

Former Bondsman, Jailed With Him in Ritz Case, Still at Deer Island

By BERT FORD
Release of Nicholas J. Cockinos, former Watch and Ward agent, from the House of Correction at Deer Island, stirred lively speculation today relative to the stand he and Albert K. Sidlinger will take at the trial of Oliver B. Garrett, former police raider, which is set for January 5.

Rumor has it that overtures are under way to recruit both Cockinos and Sidlinger as witnesses for Garrett. Cockinos is hostile, but Sidlinger admitted he was "neutral." Counsel for Garrett is said to be anxious to induce Sidlinger to appear as a witness for the defense.

OFF FOLEY'S LIST.

Dist Atty. William J. Foley said today he positively would summon neither as a government witness. "They are not in our case," said Foley. "Both Cockinos and Sidlinger have records now, and I'm not interested in them."

Sidlinger told a Boston Evening American reporter at Deer Island that he could "tell plenty." "At last I am in the driver's seat," he declared. "I fear no one and am courting favors from no one. I never spilled my full story and certain persons in Boston wouldn't care to have me make it public. I kept my mouth shut at the State House hearing because I didn't like the looks of things. Now I'm neutral."

FRIENDS AID COCKINOS

"Nick" Cockinos left the harbor institution yesterday, having completed the two-year sentence imposed on him and Sidlinger in March, 1929, for alleged conspiracy to "shake down" John F. Sullivan, then proprietor of Hotel Ritz on Columbus ave.

Friends supplied $500 to pay Cockinos' fine imposed in addition to the two-year term, but Sidlinger was unable to meet the fine, and, at midnight last night, began to serve 90 additional days.

Sidlinger watched Cockinos go with a heavy heart, glad for Cockinos, but grieved to think he would have to work out the extra time, when he longed to pain his little, sick son, Albert, for Christmas.

WIFE DIED LAST YEAR

Since his implication in the Ritz case, Sidlinger, a former bondsman and graduate of Suffolk School, has had nothing but hard luck at Yuletide. A year ago his wife died on Christmas eve and Sidlinger wept like a child when Deputy Arthur J. McCarthy broke the news to him on Christmas morning.

This year his only child, whom he worships, is critically ill with relatives at 14 Chambers st., West End. "I've walked the floor 10 nights in a row worrying over my baby boy," said Sidlinger. "Albert was taken down with double mastoids a few weeks ago. The authorities at Massachusetts Eye and Ear Hospital had to have my signa-

MILES APPOINTED ROXBURY JUSTICE

Named by Governor After Meins Refuses Post

Frankland W. L. Miles, Roxbury attorney and president of the Roxbury board of trade, was yesterday nominated by Gov. Allen to the position of special justice in the Roxbury district court. Under the rules the nomination will be held over for a week by the executive council before taking formal vote.

Miles' name was submitted to the court after the man originally picked for the position, Walter R. Meins of Roxbury, had declined the appointment. Mr. Meins requested that his nomination be withdrawn because the duties involved would conflict with his present responsibilities and work as state income tax assessor.

Mr. Miles, whose home is at 103 Walnut avenue, Roxbury, is a graduate of Suffolk law school and has been a practicing attorney seven years. He is actively identified with American Legion affairs.

Harassed motorists who have had the misfortune to run afoul of the law for motor automobile infractions should find an understanding friend on the bench in Mr. Miles.

Last June it was disclosed yesterday, he figured in a "run-in" with a Stoughton police officer which grew out of a minor infraction of the motor vehicle laws, as a result of which he stood trial in Stoughton court and was found guilty of operating at night with a tail light, unlighted and also of disturbing

Mr. Miles, feeling that he had been unjustly dealt with and that he was the victim of personal animosity, appealed the cases and was prepared to seek acquittal in Dedham superior court. The district attorney's office, following an investigation of the case, however, found that it was wholly trivial and that the officer concerned had "lost his head," according to Asst. Dist. Atty. Edmund Dewing, and if it has not been not passed already, will be so dealt with today. The charge of disturbing the peace, ensued from an argument which resulted from the traffic officer and his demands for his license and registration.

of the union at the convention in Toronto, Can., six years ago, died yesterday at his home, 35 Allston st., Charlestown, from a shock suffered two weeks ago. He had been in poor health for some time.

Mr. Desmond was born in Charlestown 59 years ago. He was educated in the schools of his district and learned the trade of compositor, after which he was employed in the United States Government printing shop at Washington for 12 years. Returning to Boston, he went to work on the Globe where, for the past 25 years, he has been employed.

Had he lived until next Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Desmond would have observed the silver anniversary of their marriage. He is survived by his wife, Nellie E. (Downey) Desmond, a daughter, Mrs. Alice Sullivan of Charlestown, and six sons, Francis X., and John E., both employed in the Globe composing room; Matthew L., a student at the Suffolk Law School; Gerald A., a student in the High School of Commerce, and Joseph A. and Richard Desmond, both pupils of St. Francis de Sales School, Charlestown.

He is also survived by three brothers, Jeremiah of Washington, Timothy, a resident of the State of Washington, and Richard Desmond, a resident of Medford and two sisters, Sister Mary Matthew of the Dominican Order, a teacher in St. John's High School, North Cambridge, and Mrs. Mary Murphy of Everett. He was the son of Matthew and Mary (Paul) Desmond. He was a cousin of Rev. James Leary, S. J., of St. Mary's Church, North End.

The funeral will be held Wednesday morning from his home, with a solemn requiem high mass in St. Francis de Sales Church at 10. Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden.

in for Boston police officers, it was said and his actions last Tuesday were in effect, a disguise.

The two nights that Capone was in this city he spent in a private home where he knew he would be safe. It was said that the home was that of a man whose own connections with liquor business have been scrutinized by the police on private occasions. Capone, however, felt himself safe there.

Conferred in Private Home

It was at this home, it was learned that the Chicago man held his conferences with the three Boston men Thursday, after two nights in the city. Capone rode nonchalantly to the North Station and went directly back to New York, where he once more felt the security of his gunmen at his back. That Boston's bootleg business has extolled his success.

Notwithstanding his extensive law practice attorney Miles managed to find time to play first base for the Dudley Street Baptist baseball team last season.

The entire Boston Braves' roster is personally acquainted with attorney Miles, for he is one of the most ardent supporters of the team. In fact, attorney Miles played ball with several of the Braves in exhibition games. He never played baseball professionally, however.

Began as Bank Clerk

Attorney Miles was born in Brockton, the son of Mr and Mrs W. F. Miles. His father is now in the real estate business in Roxbury. His mother died while he was in the navy during the war.

Miles attended Shurtleff Grammar School in Chelsea and was graduated from Chelsea High School. He attended Boston University School of Liberal Arts, but was forced to forego further educational plans, as he felt it incumbent upon himself to aid in the support of his family.

For a time he was employed as a clerk by the Federal Reserve Bank and later rose to become one of the 12 department heads of that bank, having supervision of more than 100

DEAN ARCHER TO HAVE NEW SERIES ON WBZ

The return of Dean Gleason L. Archer of the Suffolk law school to WBZ Wednesday night, in the first of another series of law talks from that station, received a warm greeting, judging by the amount of fan mail received the last few days felicitating the genial dean on renewing his appearances from a New England station.

Dean Archer's return comes almost on the anniversary of his first law talk over WBZ. That was only a year ago last month, but since that first lecture he has travelled fast over the road to radio fame.

For the last nine months he has been one of the features on the NBC network, giving a weekly series of talks over a nation-wide network on "The Laws That Safeguard Society." Letters from all over the country testify to the popularity of this series; with the result that NBC is making plans for an indefinite continuance of this feature.

Frankland W. L. Miles of Roxbury 34

Attorney Frankland W. L. Miles, recently appointed special justice of the Roxbury Municipal Court by Gov. Allen, will be one of the youngest jurists in the Commonwealth when he takes his seat on the bench late this month. He is just 34 years old, yet is soundly versed in the law and is of the type that would make a most judicious trial justice. Attorney Miles will appear before the Governor's Council tomorrow for confirmation of his appointment.

Since his appointment several days ago attorney Miles' office has been deluged with telegrams and congratulatory messages from members of the bar, business men and friends, extolling his virtues and wishing him success.

Notwithstanding his extensive law practice attorney Miles managed to find time to play first base for the Dudley Street Baptist baseball team last season.

The entire Boston Braves' roster is personally acquainted with attorney Miles, for he is one of the most ardent supporters of the team. In fact, attorney Miles played ball with several of the Braves in exhibition games. He never played baseball professionally, however.

Began as Bank Clerk

Attorney Miles was born in Brockton, the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Miles. His father is now in the real estate business in Roxbury. His mother died while he was in the navy during the war.

Miles attended Shurtleff Grammar School in Chelsea and was graduated from Chelsea High School. He attended Boston University School of Liberal Arts, but was forced to forego further educational plans, as he felt it incumbent upon himself to aid in the support of his family.

For a time he was employed as a clerk by the Federal Reserve Bank and later rose to become one of the 12 department heads of that bank, having supervision of more than 100 employees, disclosing excellent executive ability.

With a view to broadening himself mentally, Mr. Miles decided to pursue a course of law, and matriculated at Suffolk Law School under Dean Archer. He was graduated in 1923, and decided to enter the practice of law, severing his connection with the bank.

He located his office at 144 Dudley st., Roxbury, where he still is, and has become a most successful lawyer.

Miles enlisted in the navy shortly after the outbreak of the World War and made several trips back and forth across the Atlantic on a convoy.

Mrs Miles Church Organist

Attorney Miles has been married for 19 years. His wife was the former Louise Grother of 57 Blue Hill av., Roxbury. The couple now have two children, Frankland Jr and John Grother Miles. Mrs Miles is organist for the First Free Baptist Church, Warren st., Roxbury, and is also organist for the Keystone Chapter, O. E. S. She was president of the class of 1916, Roxbury High School. Mr. and Mrs Miles reside at 53 Walnut av., Roxbury.

For 17 years, Mr. Miles has been most active in Roxbury affairs. He is a member of many fraternal organizations in the section and is also a member of the Roxbury Historical Society, Roxbury Civic League and Improvement Society and is president of the Roxbury Board of Trade after having served several terms as vice president.

Friends of attorney Miles are most pleased with his elevation to the bench and are loud in their praise of Gov. Allen for appointing a young man of such outstanding ability.

Attorney Miles is one of the best-known attorneys before the Roxbury Court and is known as a skilled trial lawyer and noted for his forceful arguments in pleading a case.

The Roxbury Court is the busiest court in the Commonwealth, outside of the Boston Municipal Court. Annually more than 15,000 cases are disposed of, requiring the services of three, and sometimes four judges daily.

The appointment of attorney Miles was a most popular one in Roxbury.

ORANGE, Jan. 10—An article determining the sentiment of the majority of the townspeople concerning the showing of moving pictures Sunday in the town hall will be inserted in the warrant for the next town meeting Feb. 2.

The question was given prominence by negotiations by an unannounced operating company who have applied to the board of selectmen for the privilege of showing talking pictures in the town hall. The company, which Town Manager E. E. Lothrop declares is a reputable concern, desires to operate 14 shows a week, and have promised to give Orange people the highest grade screen entertainment obtainable. The plan has the approval of local merchants' association, and is hoped that townspeople will be able to see and hear the most up-to-date entertainment without trouble of going to surrounding larger towns for it. The remainder of the warrant is confined mainly to the appropriation of money for regular expenses.

ALMA HOLLIS THE BRIDE OF GORDON FLINK

Miss Alma E. Hollis, daughter of Mr and Mrs Alvah E. Hollis, 182 Green street, became the bride of Gordon J. Flink, 43 Highland avenue, Cambridge, Saturday night at her home. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Horace F. Holton, pastor of the Porter Congregational church.

The couple was attended by Mrs. Catherine Smith of Westboro and Birger G. Flink of Philadelphia, Penn., a brother of the bridegroom. The home was decorated in pink and white, greenery and white bells. Following the ceremony the couple received under an arch of wedding bells and roses. Guests were present from Atlantic City, New York, Spencer, Springfield, Westboro, Marlboro, Boston, Cambridge, this city and surrounding towns.

The bride wore a blue chiffon gown, trimmed with shadow lace, and carried a shower bouquet of roses. Her attendant wore a Nile green chiffon gown and carried a bouquet of roses. A catered supper was served following the ceremony.

The bridegroom presented his attendant with a pair of diamond studded cuff links, and the bridesmaid received a platinum necklace. The flower girl, Evelyn Ostrand of Springfield, a cousin of the bridegroom, received a string of crystals.

The couple received many beautiful gifts, including cut glass, silver, linen and electrical appliances. Late in the evening the couple left on a short wedding trip, after which they will reside in this city.

Mrs Flink is well known in this city where she has resided for a number of years. She was born in Holbrook. She is employed at the Hudson studio, 1144 Main street. Mr. Flink is a native of Cambridge and is employed as secretary in the Coast Guard office in Boston. He graduated from Suffolk Law school last June.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10 — (AP) — Those funny men of the stage for a half century, Weber and Fields, soon are to open up with a network broadcast. It will not be their first radio experience, for they have been playing WOR, New York, on Monday nights for some time and have been heard over WABC and stations on an occasion or two. But it will be their first weekly stunt on a regular hookup, that, it is planned, will include stations as far west as Denver. The distributing group will be the WEAJ network at 8 p. m. (EST) on Saturdays, the start to be made Jan. 31.

Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy was well pleased with his New Year's broadcast to America from Rome, it was indicated by a radiogram to M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting company, made public today. He said: "We wish to thank you for the wonderful co-operation of your company which made possible for me to speak to the American people and for your kind telegram which I have appreciated very much." Ideal reception marked the broadcast, which also was heard in the Hawaii and the Philippine islands.

Try these your radio sets tonight: Talk by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, on "Overcoming Unemployment" via WABC and stations at 6:30 (EST). The series by Dr. Gleason L. Archer on laws that safeguard, having been moved from Tuesday night, at 7:15 on WEAJ and chain, followed at 7:30 by Snop and Peep. Dolores Devine before the grand jury, another sequel to the trial of Vivienne Ware, to WJZ only at 9, with the network stations distributing the Campus, a college life sketch, at the same time.

The National Radio Forum, WABC network at 9:30, presenting a talk by Senator Gerald P. Nye on "The Influence of Money in Political Campaigns." Part of the opera "Mefistofele" in the Chicago Civic Opera hour at 10 over WJZ and stations, beginning with act 2.

ALMA HOLLIS THE BRIDE OF GORDON FLINK

Miss Alma E. Hollis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvah E. Hollis, 182 Green street, became the bride of Gordon J. Flink, 43 Highland avenue, Cambridge, Saturday night at her home. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Horace F. Holton, pastor of the Portei Congregational church.

The couple was attended by Mrs. Catherine Smith of Westboro and Birger G. Flink of Philadelphia, Penn., a brother of the bridegroom. The home was decorated in pink and white, greenery and white bells. Following the ceremony the couple received under an arch of wedding bells and roses. Guests were present from Atlantic City, New York, Spencer, Springfield, Westboro, Marlboro, Boston, Cambridge, this city and surrounding towns.

TRANSCRIPT, BOSTON, MASS.

OCT 28 1930

DEAN GLEASON L. ARCHER of the Suffolk law school, who brings something novel to the radio. His talks, educational as well as entertaining, are heard by an audience estimated well up in the millions—the largest audience of any New England radio speaker. Because of the popularity which his weekly law talks over WBZ gained, he was invited to be the guest speaker of the National Broadcasting Company over its nation-wide network. He now speaks each Thursday night at 7:15 from WEAJ as the key station on "Laws That Safeguard Society." The thousands of letters coming in from all over the country testify to the popularity of his talks.

Old Dean Heard by Students.

Dean Gleason L. Archer, whose talks on Laws That Safeguard Society, are heard each Tuesday night on an NBC network, had the unusual experience, a short time ago, of receiving a radiogram from the captain of a steamship out on the Atlantic, who had picked up the broadcast quite by accident. The sea captain had been a student under Dean Archer at Suffolk Law school, 15 years before. His message was: "Received great kick listening to my old dean out here on the Atlantic."

BAPTISTS MAY HOLD EVANGELISTIC DRIVE

Ministers Vote to Have Meeting Called

A city-wide evangelistic campaign on the part of Baptist ministers in Greater Boston was proposed this morning at their weekly meeting in Tremont Temple. It may take place early next year.

As proposed by Rev. A. A. Forshee, superintendent of the Baptist City Missionary Society, this campaign would take the place of the Kernahan Visitation Campaign, which had been planned for last month but was abandoned because of lack of support on the part of the churches.

Rev. Arthur T. Brooks, pastor of Dudley Street Baptist Church, in seconding Dr. Forshee's motion, stated that the Baptist churches generally regretted the failure of the plans for the Kernahan Campaign, and felt that some sort of an evangelistic effort ought to be made by the churches this winter.

It was voted by the ministers that Dr. Forshee call a meeting of the evangelistic committees of the four associations of Baptist churches in Greater Boston, to formulate plans for a campaign.

The speaker of the morning was Roy S. Agencies, who described what is done at the present time to relieve distress caused by unemployment.

The other ministers' meeting this morning, Dean Gleason L. Archer of Suffolk Law School addressed the Metropolitan clergymen in Wesleyan Hall, on 'The Law and the Gospel.' He traced the history of law from the code of Moses to the present day, discussing also the relation between such codes, or the common law, and the continuous legislation.

Christmas devotions were held at other meetings. Presbyterian ministers took part in a 'retreat' at Westminster House, on Bay State road. Congregational clergymen also held such a session in Pilgrim Hall on Beacon st. with Rev Raymond Calkins of Cambridge conducting the devotions and speaking. Universalist ministers, in the Church of the Redemption, were addressed by Rev Albert C. Dieffenbach on 'My Recent Trip to Iceland.'

MILES IS UNFIT, SAYS CONNOLLY

Files Protest Against Nominee for Roxbury Bench

Representative John P. Connolly of Roxbury yesterday filed formal protest with the Governor's Council against Governor Allen's recent appointment of Frankland W. L. Miles, Roxbury attorney, to be a special justice of the Roxbury District Court, charging that Miles is not qualified by legal or social training, or judicial temperament, for the post.

A 'CARPET-BAGGER'

Miles was appointed after Walter L.

Miles, originally named for the place, had declined to accept the nomination.

Connolly was emphatic in his protest. Although Miles maintains offices at 144 Dudley street and resides at 53 Walnut street in Roxbury, Connolly said he has only been there some eight years or so, and has failed to sense the temper of the district.

"He would be a puppet for Judge Hayden, and a tyrannical one," Connolly said. "He would try to bring Cape Cod justice into this metropolitan, cosmopolitan section. He does not comprehend the temper of the people out this way."

Rebuked by Judges

"He doesn't know enough law, and I don't rate him a good lawyer. He has been frequently rebuked by the judges in the very court he is nominated to sit in as a special justice. His social training is insufficient to enable him to understand the people in the district. And he's a 'carpet-bagger.' He only recently came into the district."

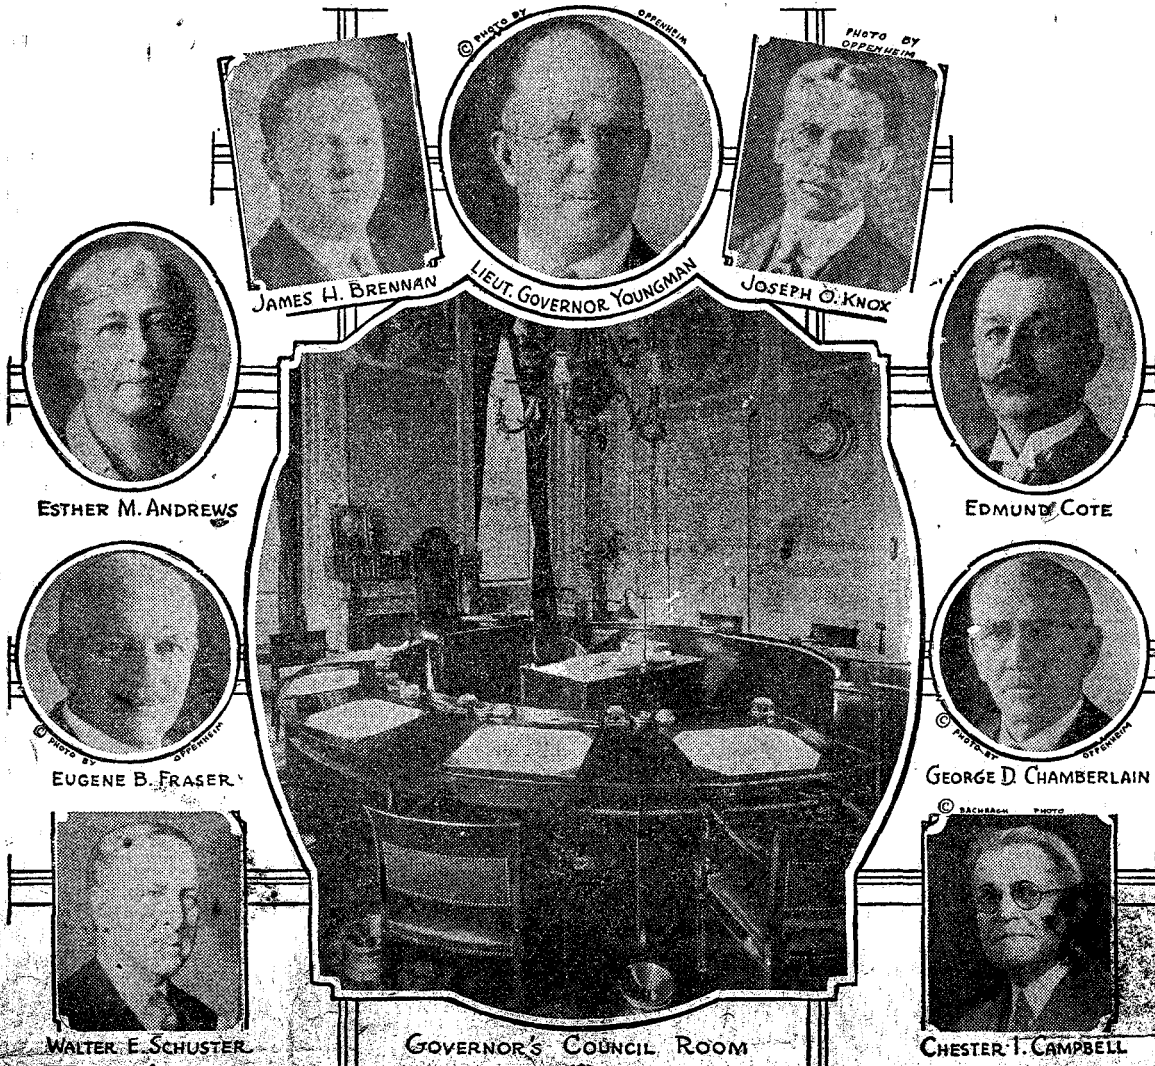

"The Roxbury court is the busiest district court, outside the central municipal court, in the city. And in this Roxbury district Miles has been twice defeated at the polls, which I call repudiation by the people of the district. They don't want him."

Go Before Council

Connolly said he would appear before the council at its meeting next Tuesday to voice his protest. The executive council meets on Tuesday next week, instead of the regulation Wednesday, because of the close approach of Christmas.

JAMES L. W. REYNOLDS

James L. W. Reynolds, a former Chelsea resident, died yesterday at 12:30 p.m., following a short illness.

Stricken Sunday afternoon with acute appendicitis, he was treated by his family doctor until Christmas eve, when he was removed to the Cambridge hospital, where an operation was performed. He rallied, but had a relapse Friday noon and passed away.

Mr. Reynolds was born in this city and was a graduate of the Shurtleff school in the class of 1907. Soon after leaving school he entered the employ of the Eastern Storage Co. as an office boy and steadily grew up in the warehousing business.

At the time of his death he was a director and clerk of the corporation, having been 23 years in its employ last July. His sterling qualities, his pleasing disposition, and his Christian attitude made for him countless friends who mourn his loss. He was ever ready and willing to aid others and was extremely modest about doing these kind acts.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Margaret Cecelia Reynolds, and two sisters, Mrs. Patrick Doyle, of Cambridge and Mrs. Patrick Landers of Watertown.

He was a graduate of Bentley School of Accounting and Finance and for the past three years had been attending Suffolk Law School.

He was a member of Council 74, K. of C., of Cambridge.

Funeral services will be held from St. Patrick's church, near Watertown sq., Monday morning at 9. Burial will be in the family lot at Holy Cross cemetery.

Many other activities of the Governor have to be approved by this client body which was never deemed for our modern American political scheme—but was planned to meet an entirely different situation 238 years ago, when the Governor was a feared and dreaded despot sent over by the British King Massachusetts colonists be-

Democrat Supported Allen
Allen has been intimidated by high Republican authority that there will be no disposition on the part of the Governor's Council to hamper the administration of Gov Ely by refusing to confirm his appointees on political grounds. Republican Chief Executive do not have to worry on this point, as the Council is always over-ridingly of their party and almost invariably rubber stamp the appointments of their titular leader. During the past two years, the Council has been unanimous in its support of the Governor.

The sole Democratic member, James H. Powers of South Boston, has been an enthusiastic supporter of Gov Allen, politically and personally.

His successor, James H. Brennan of Charlestown, is a militant Democrat, and Gov Ely will, it is believed, have in him an able defender and champion. In former days the sole Democratic member of the Council from the Boston district usually was an outstanding member of that party, but since the direct primary that honor has been won by less distinguished members. In 1896, when the Democracy was torn between the silver men and the gold bugs, John H. Swan, the Democratic member of the Council, declined to follow the flag and the Bryan men pup-

Dates Back to 1692
The Executive Council, the legal name of the Governor's Council, has been a part of the frame of the Government of Massachusetts from early Colonial times dating back to 1692 and yet many know little about it or its duties and are reminded that such a body exists only when it disagrees with the Governor. Originally it was created as a concession by the mother country to the colonists. The King of England appointed the Governor, Lieutenant Governor and the Secretary, and allowed the people to elect the Councilors or, as they were termed, Board of Assistants. They played an important part in watching legislation and often prevented the passage of laws regarded as inimical to the best interests of the colony and in advising the Governor, sometimes without his solicitation or invitation.

When Massachusetts broke away from kingly rule and set up a Government of its own, the Council was dropped in the first Constitution, but was put back again in the second and has been retained ever since. It is a sort of a Privy Council in a Republican form of Government, transacting most of its business behind closed doors. Only two other States have retained the Council, Maine and New Hampshire. The former, having been a part of Massachusetts until its separation in 1820, clung to the idea

Advice Rarely Asked
In Massachusetts, the council has been regarded by many as a haven for unrequited political aspirations, a respectable burying ground for those unable to make the higher political grade. Election to the council carries with it the title of "honorable" and a salary, in these days, of $1000.

The councilors are charged with the duty of visiting the prisons, hospitals and other institutions of the State, with keeping a sharp watch on the treasury of the Commonwealth, with tabulating the vote cast at elections. They meet once a week and lunch at the expense of the taxpayers. There is no question but that the councilors perform certain public service and can be of assistance to the Governor in the conduct of the public business, but it is argued that these duties could be performed by other State officials and thus save the State the cost of maintenance of the council. From time to time movements have been started to abolish the council, giving the Governor a freer rein in the conduct of his office. In the constitutional conventions of 1820 and 1853 there was vigorous opposition to the continuance of the council, but in both instances the convention voted to retain that body on the ground that the change would lodge too much power with the Chief Executive.

In the latter convention the Council abolitionists were led by Benjamin F. Hallett, one of the prominent Democrats of his day, who would have the Lieut-Gov preside over the Senate and give the confirmation power over gubernatorial nominations to the Senate, arguing that the people would be better represented in such matters by 40 senators than eight councilors.

of bringing his influence to bear on the Councilors to confirm an appointee concerning whom there is no doubt, or to bring the members around to his way of thinking on some administrative policy that must be approved by the Council.

Gen Butler's Battles
Gen Butler's experience with the Council was not happy. His most memorable fight with them was over the appointment of Edward G Walker, a colored lawyer and a Democrat whom he named as a judge of the Boston municipal court. Walker was rejected because of his politics, Butler claimed, and he submitted the name of another colored lawyer, Ruffin, by name, a Republican, who was promptly confirmed.

Gov Russell's three terms were marked by sharp clashes with the Republican Council over appointments and removals of State officials. His most notable contest with them was over his attempted removal of Police Commissioner Osborne of Boston, whom he charged with using his office as an adjunct to the Republican State machine. It was a long drawn out dispute. The Council stood by Osborne, but at the expiration of his term, they confirmed Robert Clark, Russell's appointee, an inoffensive Democrat. Several other of Gov Russell's appointments met with vigorous opposition, and some of them were rejected by the Council.

The Council's treatment of the young and popular Democratic Governor made a good campaign issue for him, and Russell used it effectively on the stump. The leader of the opposition was David Hall Rice of Brookline, an uncompromising Republican. One of the Republican papers who took the Governor's side on the question used to refer to him as "David Hall Rice." In his second inaugural address Gov Russell touched on the friction between the Council and himself, saying that the Council was "for advising the Governor, not for tying his hands, not for dictating appointments, nor for exercising coordinate and equal powers" with him.

Gov Russell's Views
"I assert," said Gov Russell, "that the full responsibility for nominations rests with the Governor. I have resisted the attempts of the Republican candidate for Governor and the Republican Executive Council to usurp this power and to dictate nominations and I have denounced their rejection of nominations, admitted by them to be fully qualified, but rejected because I would not nominate others at their dictation. I believe that the Constitution makes one and not 10 Governors. Its only powers are to advise and consent to appointments, to advise in pardon cases to audit accounts, to act as supreme returning board in the election of State officers." He declared that he believed in the confirming power, "if not abused and made a power to dictate and doesn't infringe on the Executive's responsibility."

One of the few times that the Council arrayed itself against a Republican Governor was when Roger Walcott sought to dismiss Gen A. P. Martin, chairman of the Boston Police Commission. The Governor based his action on the testimony before a public hearing by the Council on charges made by "Col" Roger F. Scannell, a well-known political figure and manufacturer of soda water, who alleged that Gen Martin used his office to further the sale of a rival mineral water and that he had induced liquor dealers and brewers to take stock in the company. The commissioner's son was the agent in some of these transactions. Gen Martin admitted that he had been indiscreet, but denied that he was influenced in his duties as police commissioner by his interests in "Col" Scannell's business. The Council refused to consent to the removal of the commissioner.

Foss, Douglas, Walsh
Gov Foss got along swimmingly with his councilors. When he had something he wanted to put over in the Council he managed to get his side of the case in privately before a majority of the members before the meeting day. He instituted the "open door" policy at the State House. Cards were not necessary to get in to see the "old boy." He did his fighting with the Legislature and kept both branches busy discussing his messages and vetoes, but he treated the Council with deference. Only one of his judicial appointments failed to receive the OK of the Council and that was withdrawn by request of the nominee himself after a hearing by the Council.

Gov Walsh, Foss's successor got along fairly well with his hostile Council, but was obliged to use great care in the

ABLE DIRECTOR SECURED FOR COMING PLAY

Dr. Staley Coaching
"Peg O' My Heart" For Dramatic Assn.

When St. Stephen's Dramatic Assn. thought of bringing Dr. Delbert Moyer Staley to Framingham to coach their first play, "Peg O' My Heart," they aspired high but, as one member remarked, "He who builds beneath the stars builds low." This seemed to express the feeling of the group when they invited Dr. Staley to coach their coming production.

Dr. Staley, a man of magnetic personality, is not content with teaching fine-spun theories but sees the wisdom of developing talent with an original, artistic expression which will be appreciated by everyone who sees the play on Feb. 15. From the largest to the smallest part he has discouraged any slavish aping of others and endeavored to inculcate a reflection of personality to the highest degree of excellence in each member of the cast.

Few, in Dr. Staley's particular profession, are able to offer the background that he can. For nine years he was professor of voice training, public speaking and Bible reading at St. John's Seminary, Boston; professor of Forensic oratory at Suffolk Law school, Boston; coach for the Komians society, Brown University; director elocution and public speaking and debate, Fairfield Seminary and Military Academy, New York; educational director, Cambridge Y. M. C. A., Cambridge; professor of public speaking, voice and Bible reading, Novitiate House, Tewksbury; besides being a reader, lecturer and author of international note.

Among his many distinguished graduates and former pupils are Hon. Alva F. Fuller, ex-Governor of Massachusetts; Hon. James M. Curley, Mayor of Boston; Hon. P. Fielding, LL.B., former assistant district-attorney, Boston; Madame Mimi Aguglia, world-renowned tragedienne; Ernest Sherburn, Christian Science Monitor; Alexis B. Luce, Belasco star; Albert Spaulding, great American violinist; Mme. Schuman-Heinck; Professor Felix Forte, A. M., LL. M., Boston University; Hon. William H. McDonnell, judge of Municipal court, Suffolk county, Boston; Harold Lindau, Grand Opera star; Cecelia D'Andrea, featured dancer in the "I'll Say She Is" company; Frank Farrara, stage manager and director; Jane Gormley, teacher of English and spoken word, Dorchester High school; Gertrude Ward, teacher spoken word, Roxbury High school; Theresa A. Dace, superintendent speech department in the public schools of Boston; Philip Kaplan, business manager of Moving Picture Corporation and Rev. M. E. Borders, D. D., president of board of trustees, Olivet University, Chicago.

One of Dr. Staley's most recent large productions was William Butler Yeat's modernized English version of the ancient Greek tragedy, Oedipus Rex, which was presented for the first time in America. Before an audience which filled every seat in Symphony hall, Boston, and flowed over into the aisles, an able cast presented what is said to be the greatest of Greek tragedies, written by Sophocles, in a finished manner, that won generous and prolonged applause from the audience and great praise from the critics.

Ideal

NEW YORK, Feb. 2—Miss Marie McClench, president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, has given an idea of the characteristics of the ideal business woman. This is her conception.

"First, good grooming, a pleasant smile, an approachable manner, a clean-cut appearance. Sidney T. Strickland, whose term is completing this year, also expires, is not seeking re-nomination. Kendrick is completing three years and Nicolls has served two terms or six years. They are opposed by Messrs. Burchard, Burrage and Wightman. Kendrick is chairman of the sub-committee on hygiene while Nicolls heads the sub-committee on buildings of the school committee. Both are graduates of the high school.

Mr. Burchard is a member of the playground commission and is a town meeting member. Dr. Burrage has been a resident of the town for nearly 10 years and is a practicing physician in Brookline and Boston and Mr. Wightman is a lawyer and a former town-meeting member. He has resided in town for 34 years.

Two vacancies have occurred in the board of assessors, one for the two, and one for the three-year term. The candidates for the two-year term are George W. Delano, lifelong resident of the town; Fergus J. Hickey, real estate broker and town auditor for five years; John H. CAPITAL PUNISHMENT ISSUE ARGUED BEFORE COMMITTEE

The Legislative Committee on the Judiciary gave hearings yesterday on bills to abolish capital punishment and to authorize a special commission to study the situation and make recommendations to the next Legislature.

Representative C. F. Nelson Pratt of Saugus, proponent of one of the measures, quoted Holy Scripture in arguing against capital punishment. Prof Zachariah Chafee Jr of the Harvard faculty suggested a commission to investigate the efficacy of the death penalty. Attorney William G. Thompson and Herbert D. Ihmann also favored the commission's idea.

The opposition, led by Edwin W. Burnstead of the Massachusetts Civic Alliance, opposed altering the present law.

Collins Graham of the National Surety Company urged a voters' referendum. Letters were introduced by Mr Graham from Dist Atty Warren L. Bishop of Middlesex County, Ex-Dist Atty Robert Bushnell, John J. O'Brien, Belmont chief of police, and Damon E. Hall, a Boston lawyer all favoring retention of the present law. Asst-Dist Atty Ralph W. Stearns of Middlesex County called attention to the sudden end of payroll holdups after the "carbarn murders" were executed several years ago.

Dean Gleason L. Archer of Suffolk Law School suggested that the capital punishment abolitionists take as much interest in the families of the murdered persons as they seem to take in the murderers.

Brookline Caucus to Nominate Slate Tuesday

38 Candidates in Field for 14 Places—Active Campaign Being Waged by Their Friends—Election Is March 3

With contests for selectmen, school committee, assessor, planning board and auditors, the annual citizens' caucus in Brookline will take place Thursday with 38 candidates seeking the nomination for 14 places. For the past fortnight active campaigns have been waged in the interests of the candidates by various groups.

The annual election takes place March 3. The Brookline citizens' committee, of which Robert S. Weeks is chairman, was formed two weeks ago in the interests of a slate of candidates for selectmen and school committee. It is endorsing Charles F. Rowley and Theodore G. Bremer, present members of the board of selectmen for the two-year terms; Stewart Burchard, Dr. Walter S. Burrage and George W. Wightman for school committee and for assessor, Michael D. Mealey for the two-year term and Edward B. Miles for the three-year term.

LOST BY 100 VOTES

Opposing Rowley and Bremer for the two-year term are William J. Hickey, Jr. and Joseph S. Rice, both attorneys. Hickey was a candidate last year and failed of nomination by less than 100 votes. Hickey is giving a radio address from WEEI at 6:20 tomorrow night. Dr. George W. Goode is chairman of the committee supporting Hickey.

Bremer has served on the board for seven years and Rowley for eight years, seven years as chairman. A contest developed at the last minute for the three-year term for selectmen, the present incumbents, who are candidates for that term being Judge Daniel A. Rollins and Philip G. Bowker. Leslie G. "Let" Rich filed papers for that office. This is Rich's first appearance for public office. He has been a resident of the town for many years. Rollins has served on the board for the past seven years while Bowker is completing his second year.

Walter J. Cusick, who is a candidate for renomination for the one-year term of selectman, is unopposed. Dr. Thomas B. Kendrick and Francis A. Nicolls, whose terms on the school committee expire this year, are candidates to succeed themselves. Sidney F. Strickland, whose term is completing Strickland, whose term also expires, is not seeking renomination. Kendrick is completing three years and Nicolls has served two terms or six years. They are opposed by Messrs. Burchard, Burrage and Wightman. Kendrick is chairman of the sub-committee on hygiene while Nicolls heads the sub-committee on buildings of the school committee. Both are graduates of the high school.

Mr. Burchard is a member of the playground commission and is a town meeting member. Dr. Burrage has been a resident of the town for nearly 10 years and is a practicing physician in Brookline and Boston and Mr. Wightman is a lawyer and a former town-meeting member. Lacy, Jr., also a real estate broker, who is running on a platform calling for fair valuation of property on prevailing conditions; Scott Mc-

Neilly, local contractor and builder for 15 years, and Michael D. Mealey. Mealey is a practical builder, has been a town-meeting member for 10 years and is a member of the board of appeal.

SEEK THREE-YEAR TERM

The candidates for the three-year term for assessor are: David B. Church, real estate broker for 17 years and town auditor for 10 years, a candidate for selectman last year; A. John Halfenstine, architect and a lifelong resident of the town; Thomas F. Messitt, real estate man, lifelong resident; Edward B. Miles, real estate and insurance broker, has lived in town 40 years; Edward O. Mallowney, attorney, lifelong resident of the town; Max Orlick, who has lived in town 12 years and is a real estate operator; Walter W. Paige, for 35 years in the real estate business and is now a trustee, has always lived in Brookline; Dr. David H. Sheehan, son of Edward P. Sheehan, superintendent of parks, and a lifelong resident of the town.

James D. Henderson and Frederick Law Olmstead are seeking renomination to the planning board and are opposed by Dr. Edmund C. Dow and Martin Hamilton. Henderson is a real estate broker. He has been a member of the planning board two years. Olmstead is a veteran landscape architect. He is a former chairman of the planning board. Dow has lived in town five years. He is president of the Putterham Community Association. Hamilton is a graduate of Suffolk law school. He is connected with the veterans' bureau.

The candidates for auditors with three to be nominated are Robert M. Boehner, Henry F. Bell, Stewart Dalzell, Jr., John J. Fahey, William G. Kendrick, George L. Lee, Arthur J. Meade, William F. Troy and Sidney E. Whitman. Boehner and Dalzell are seeking renomination.

All of the candidates for the various offices have committees actively engaged in arousing interest among the voters in their candidacies.

NEW HAVEN MAN

A robbery has been committed here. Goods from the Innis store to the value of about $3000 were ready to be carted away when the discovery was made by Chief of Police William Needham of Southbury. The Hudson sedan in which they intended to place their loot was left behind when they made their escape and is still at the Blassburg garage. Gilbert Hunter, son of Mr and Mrs E. Hunter of Mechanic street, left today to enter the Suffolk Law school in Boston. The young man is a graduate of Arms academy.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT ISSUE ARGUED BEFORE COMMITTEE

The Legislative Committee on the Judiciary gave hearings yesterday on bills to abolish capital punishment and to authorize a special commission to study the situation and make recommendations to the next Legislature. Representative C. E. Nelson Pratt of Saugus, proponent of one of the measures, quoted Holy Scripture in arguing against capital punishment. Prof. Zachariah Chace of the Harvard faculty suggested a commission to investigate the efficacy of the death penalty. Attorney William G. Thompson and Herbert D. Ihmann also favored the commission's idea.

The opposition, led by Edwin W. Burnstead of the Massachusetts Civic Alliance, opposed affixing the present law.

Collins Graham of the National Surety Company urged a voters' referendum. Letters were introduced by Mr. Graham from Dist Atty Warren L. Bishop of Middlesex County, Ex-Dist Atty Robert Eushnell, John J. O'Brien, Belmont chief of police, and Damon E. Hall, a Boston lawyer, all favoring retention of the present law.

Asst. Dist Atty Ralph W. Stearns of Middlesex County called attention to the sudden end of payroll holdups after the "car barn murders" were executed several years ago. Dean Gleason L. Archer of Suffolk Law School suggested that the capital punishment abolitionists take as much interest in the families of the murdered persons as they seem to take in the murderers.

For example, if you should come upon an offender struggling with a prisoner, you could not legally refuse his demand for assistance, even though it exposed you, a peaceful householder with a growing family, to grave danger. However, if a fireman should command you to help him, you could laugh and walk on—that is in most places. FIVE SEEKING ELECTION AS NAHANT SELECTMEN

Veterans Phillips, Delano in Race With Deveney, Finn and Haight

JAMES J. DEVENEY

THOMAS A. FINN

NAHANT, March 17—The annual town meeting and election will be held here next Saturday and although there are not many items of paramount importance in the warrant there are several interesting contests for town officers.

Harry C. Wilson, who for 25 years has been a Selectman, is not a candidate for reelection this year, but there are five candidates for the board of whom three will be elected, for one-year terms.

Charles A. Phillips, who has been elected to the board every year since 1919, with the exception of 1924, is again a candidate, as is Leon M. Delano, who has been a member of the board since 1922. The three new candidates are James J. Deveney, Thomas A. Finn and Fred R. Haight.

Commended by Long

Mr Deveney was born in Nahant and for more than 50 years has made his home here. Starting as a carpenter at the age of 17, he attended night school and University Extension courses and for several years has been a construction superintendent and in charge of many large New England building operations. Since 1927 he has been located in Boston in the general building and appraisal business.

He has held several town offices—auditor, School Committee for six years, being chairman for two years, and has been chairman of the Board of Assessors for the past two years.

Upon becoming chairman of the Board of Assessors in 1929, he single-handedly instituted an innovation in the workings of that department and personally conducted a survey which unearthed many acres of land and a number of buildings which were conspicuous by their absence from the valuation book of the town.

Appraisal and revaluation of real estate increased the list total so that a $41 tax rate was succeeded by one of $34, and last year the rate dropped to $26, the lowest in many years. Henry F. Long, State Tax Commissioner, publicly commended Mr Deveney for his work as assessor.

Finn Twice a Candidate

He is married and makes his home on Sunset Hill with his wife and two children. He is a member of the Massachusetts Association of Assessors, the Essex County Association of Assessors, the Maolis Club and the Nahant Golf Club.

Thomas A. Finn was born in Boston and has been a resident of the town for 12 years. He is a former member of the School Committee, and is a graduate of Suffolk Law School. He is an insurance claims adjuster in Boston and is a member of the Knights of Columbus and of the Maolis Club of which he is a past treasurer.

He is married, lives at 4 Ocean st, and is the father of five boys. He has been a candidate for election to the Board of Selectmen the past two years.

Fred R. Haight lives at 131 Castle road, and has lived in the town for many years. He is engaged in business in Lynn, and has been active in politics in Nahant and Lynn. He is a member of the School Committee and was a candidate twice for the House of Representatives and received the largest vote ever given a candidate for political office by the residents of the town.

Haight Politically Active

He is a graduate of the Lynn English High School and attended Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute and also Boston University.

Mr Haight is a past president of the Maolis Club. He is married and has one child.

There is no contest for the office of town moderator. Fred A. Wilson, who has held that office for many years is unopposed, as is also William S. Waters for town clerk, Charles Cabot Johnson for town treasurer, Fred A. Phillips for library trustee, James J. Deveney for assessor and Charles A. Stoner for sewer commissioner.

Three candidates are in the field for highway surveyor, including A. Stacy Godell, who has held the office the last two years, George H. Green and Fred Pusterino.

Two vacancies there are two candidates, Herbert Coles, who has held the office for many years, and Joseph Hyde.

Everett D. Lewis is again a candidate for the office of constable, being opposed by William T. White.

For the two vacancies on the School Committee there are four candidates, Ralph M. Lewis, Walter H. Dance, Laura C. Miner and Arthur G. Tim-

Saturday evening over WEEI and the chain Mr. Archer has selected as his subject "Excusable Homicide—Accidental Killing of Another" in his series, "Laws that Safeguard Society." In this broadcast he will discuss interesting cases ranging from the killing of a bystander while shooting a mad dog to death resulting from automobile accidents, by way of illustrating the distinction between justifiable and excusable homicide.

Do not be alarmed this week while listening to WEAF, New York, to hear during the 14 second station announcement period, the call of station WTIC, Hartford. Beginning this morning WEAF and WTIC will synchronize in the same fashion as WEBZ, Millis, and WEZA, Springfield, are at the present time. Up until now WTIC has been alternating with WEAL, Baltimore, on 1000 kilocycles; the former on the air four nights a week until 1 a. m.

Under this new arrangement, WTIC may operate seven evenings a week; Sunday, Monday, Wednesday and Friday on 1000 kilocycles, and Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday in synchronization with WEAF on 900 kilocycles. On the latter three evenings, WTIC will, of course, relay the entire schedule of WEAF, the key station of the NBC red network, beginning at 4:15 and continuing until 1 a. m. Each WEAF station announcement period will be split between New York and Hartford, seven seconds being allotted each station to identify themselves.

Radio announcers have their troubles spluttering tongue-twisters as well as the average listener. No doubt some can recall Frank Knight's dilemma recently on the Arabesque broadcast when instead of saying "lawny tiger," he stuttered "tiny lawyer." As the announcer of the "Early Bookworm" programme, Alexander Woolcott is fearful lest Knight refer to him as "Burley Bookworm."

All radio programmes do not run with clocklike precision, as station press agents would have us believe, for the Washington NBC studios recall the time when President Hoover was kept waiting 15 minutes before he was "given the air." The President was scheduled to broadcast at 9 o'clock one evening but unfortunately the programme in a Washington auditorium, where he was to speak, was completed 15 minutes before nine. The network was, however, not available to the chief executive at that hour, and upon being so informed graciously consented to wait 15 minutes.

PERSONAL RIGHTS VAGUE

Statute Regarding the Defence of One's Home is Cited as Example.

Gleason L. Archer, dean of the Suffolk Law School of Boston, has found the statutes involving personal rights in many cases so involved and vague that they puzzle law students quite as much as they do laymen—as was shown by the words of a student who was in his office when I called upon him recently, says John Griffin in the American Magazine. "The law on burglary," the boy was saying, "states that if a man breaks into your house, threatening your life and property, you have the right to kill him

Then here it says that when a person's life is threatened he must retreat to the wall before shooting. Now, what if there isn't a wall handy? Do you just have to throw up your hands and wait helplessly for the fellow to kill you?"

"The wall mentioned there," Dean Archer explained, "has been interpreted as being merely figurative. It means, do all you can to avoid killing an assailant. However, it does not apply if the attack takes place in your own home."

"The most obscure section of the United States Constitution," he told me as the student departed, "is that dealing with the personal rights of citizens. Is it any wonder that the layman has difficulty in obtaining a clear picture of his own rights?"

"Many anomalies occur in the practical application of statutes. For example, if you should act upon an officer struggling with a prisoner, you could not legally refuse his demand for assistance, even though it exposed you, a peaceful householder with a growing family, to grave danger. However, if a fireman should command you to help him, you could laugh and walk on—that is in most places. But some small towns have ordinances calling up all citizens to lend a hand to volunteer firemen."

"Many folks believe they have the legal right to defend their home even against police officers, especially if they are without a search warrant. That is not true in an Eastern State not long ago. Policemen entered the home of a laborer who had inflicted a minor stab wound on a fellow worker. The man, standing on a stairway leading to a room where his wife lay ill, ordered the police out of the house. When they refused, he fired a shotgun at them, killing one. Subsequently, in spite of strong public opinion in his favor, he was sent to the electric chair."

L. V. GOSSELIN FUNERAL CONDUCTED AT MILTON

MILTON, March 24—The funeral of Louis V. Gosselin, well known in the printing trades of Boston and for 45 years estimator for the printing firm of Wright & Potter, was held yesterday afternoon from his home, 3 Bunt-ton pk.

Services were conducted by Rev Horace Robson, pastor of the East Congregational Church, and were attended by Milton and Macedonian Lodges of Masons as well as Lafayette Lodge of Roxbury, of which Mr Gosselin was a former member. Burial was in Milton Cemetery. There was a wonderful profusion of floral remembrances, including a number of handsome set pieces from the Masonic lodges and the printing firm with which he had been connected.

Mr Gosselin was born in Montreal, but had lived most of his life in and around Boston. For the past 22 years he had been a resident of Milton. He always had taken a keen interest in the town affairs of Milton and served as a member of the Warrant Committee and a member of the Town Meeting Committee from Precinct 4. He died last Friday at the Deaconess Hospital, Brookline, after a fall Thursday evening in which he dislocated his shoulder.

Mr Gosselin is survived by his wife

Mrs Emily H. M. Gosselin; a son, Louis L. Gosselin of this town; a daughter, Mrs George Hopkins of Washington; three grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs Caroline Fitzgerald of Eliot, Me., and Mrs John Frederick Gay of Center Falls, N. Y., and two brothers, John Gosselin of Eliot, Me. and Clarence Gosselin of Brighton.

Fontaine returned to Haverhill to recover the car but when she arrived there was no automobile. A complete search of all highways in the Kennington failed to locate the missing machine.

The report received by local police was made by a woman whose name is not known.

BAR EXAMINATIONS ARE PASSED BY 199

Stein, Magison, Shyavitz and Hanscom Included

Two Haverhill men and two former local men were among the 199 men and women who successfully passed the bar examinations taken in December. A total of 754 men and women took the examination. Of the 199 who passed 24 are women. Motion for admission to the bar of applicants will be made in Boston Friday, May 1. The percentage of candidates who passed is about the same as in other years. Each candidate took an oral test in addition to the written test, this being the first time the oral test was tried out.

Maurice C Stein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Stein, 2 Boston road, and Moses Shyavitz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Shyavitz, 214 River street, are the two local men who successfully passed the examination.

Earl H Magison, 107 Summer street, Malden, son of Carroll E Magison, 88 Laurel avenue, and Homer W Hanscom, Boston, son of the late Homer Hanscom, are the two former local residents who were successful.

Mr Stein is a graduate of Haverhill High school and Suffolk Law school. He has been associated with his brother in the shoe business since graduating from law school.

Mr Shyavitz is a graduate of Haverhill High school and graduated from Suffolk Law school last June.

Mr Magison, a nephew of Atty Frederick H. Magison, is an employe of the Boston postoffice department of the Boston postoffice.

Before leaving this city four years ago he was a clerk in the local postoffice. Born in this city, Mr Magison lived here all his life, with the exception of a brief while he spent at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., until he moved to Malden. He graduated from North-eastern university.

Mr Hanscom has been living with his stepfather and mother, Mr and Mrs. Laurence D. Poore, Boston, since moving from Haverhill. They formerly lived on Colby street, Bradford, and Boston road, Ward Hill.

FOLLOWING THE children and the nurse went to the auditorium to see the musical comedy, "Little Nellie Kelly," as guests of the Y. M. C. I., which made a happy ending to the holiday. Transportation was provided by the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Co.
Perhaps the most enjoyable day of the year was Christmas, when a turkey dinner was provided and partaken of by all the children. Previous to this an entertainment was given by the children entitled, "Ourselves and Others," which was followed by the distribution of gifts of clothing and toys, which were abundantly provided for each child.

SCHOOL CANDIDATE

To the voters of Danvers: I desire to submit for your consideration my name as a candidate for election to your school committee. As a graduate of the local schools, Georgetown University, Washington, D. C., and Suffolk Law school, I believe that I possess the necessary background for the proper consideration and solution of scholastic and educational problems. Together with the foregoing I have had five years' business and legal experience with Stone & Webster, Inc. of Boston.

The most important problem confronting the school committee at this time is to bring about a considerable reduction in the cost of education without impairing the high standard now enjoyed by our schools. I pledge myself to that end.

As the first candidate publicly to favor Danvers applicants for Danvers positions, I wish to reaffirm my stand of last year on this point.

During a school committee's term of office, he is confronted with various problems that he did not consider before election; on such problems I promise the citizens of Danvers proper and unbiased consideration along with conservative and constructive policies.

I assure the voters of Danvers that if elected to the school committee, I will work for the best interests of the taxpayers and children, and will at all times and on all matters have the welfare of the town of Danvers at heart.

Yours very truly,
James H. Sullivan

Miss Aurore C. Dionne Will Be Bride of Leonard Oliver, Feb. 16

Bridegroom to Receive Di- ploma from Suffolk Law School

Much interest is centered about the coming marriage of Miss Aurore C. Dionne, daughter of Mrs. Adelia Dionne, 220 Wood street, and sister of Assistant U. S. Attorney Oscar U. Dionne, to Leonard Olivier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Israel Olivier, 70 Irving street, a member of the graduating class this month from Suffolk Law school, Boston.

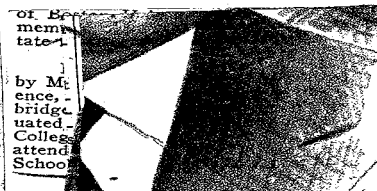

The ceremony is to take place in St. Joseph's church at 8:30 A. M. Monday, Feb. 16, the Rev. William Smith officiating. Acting as attendants will be the bride's brother, Assistant U. S. Attorney Dionne; the bridegroom's father, Mr. Olivier, and Miss Donalds Dionne and Miss Germaine Maranda, cousins of the bride and members of the Children of Mary Sodality. Miss Dionne is a member of this organization, and the marriage will be performed with its special ceremonies. The double ring service will be used.

Following the church ceremony, a buffet lunch will be served at the home of the bride's mother, 220 Wood street, and early in the afternoon the couple will leave for Boston where Wednesday, Feb. 18, Mr. Olivier is to receive a bachelor of law degree from the Suffolk Law school. From Boston the couple will visit New York city and Washington, D. C., on their honeymoon.

Both Miss Dionne and Mr. Olivier are natives of this city and have always lived here. Miss Dionne's father, the late J. Ernest Dionne, was president of the Common council at the time of his death about 20 years ago. She was graduated from St. Anthony's parochial school and the Academy of Jesus Mary, Fall River, and is a member of the Parisian club, this city.

Mr. Olivier was graduated from St. Joseph's boarding school for boys, Berthierville, P. Q., Canada and the New Bedford High school, class of February, 1927. He has completed a course at the Suffolk Law school.

RUBE KNOWS LAW, GETS BESS PUT UP

Has Hotel Manager Guessing When Quarters for Mare Are Demanded, but Things Are Adjusted

REUBEN CURTIS AND BLACK BESS

Reuben comes from Chatham Four Corners, New York. He came to the Hotel Brunswick seeking shelter for man and beast. The hotel had some little trouble arranging for Black Bess.

Reuben Curtis and "Bess" came to town yesterday, and what a satchelful of woe they deposited on the doorsteps of the Boston police department and Hotel Brunswick officials! Chatham Four Corners may be tucked away in an obscure corner of Columbia County, New York State, but when their sons go out into the world—gosh, all hemlock!

FOLLOWING PAP'S ADVICE

Rube met "Chief Constable" James J. Walkins. In fact, he did more than meet him, he told the Walkins man things. Up around Berkeley street the "chief constable" is known as Captain Walkins of police headquarters. And before Rube finished last night he had thrown the headquarters staff into a furore, halted traffic on one of the main roads—Boylston street—and driven the Hotel Brunswick officials completely to cover.

It all happened like this. Wait a minute, it's really due to the fact that Rube's "pap" reckoned as how Rube should seek fodder and lodging at that there Brunswick, and Rube, being an obedient boy, he insisted on following Pap's orders.

Bess Was Outside

Henry Nelson was clerking in his usual efficient manner behind the desk at the Brunswick when Rube strolled up. "Reckon I'll put up here, stranger," and Rube's glance swept the big lobby. It was but a matter of seconds before Rube scrawled across the register, and Clerk Nelson was staring at Rube's satchel.

"Now where'll I drive Bess, stranger?" "What's that?" and Nelson wondered if he was hearing things.

"Bess, why, there she are," and Rube pointed out the big bay window. Bess was none other than Rube's mare, tied to an electric light pole in front of the Brunswick. Head drooping, Bess was oblivious to the unending stream of traffic that raced by, and the screech of the traffic officer's whistle.

"Why, I'm sorry, Mr. Curtis, but we don't put horses up."

"Well, I reckon you all will put Bess up. My Pap told me reckoned I'd best come to this here tavern. I never know'd him to say wrong afore. He put up some 35 year ago and folk here took care of Nell."

When Nelson had recovered his astonishment he was apprised of the fact that Reuben had just returned from the Brighton stockyards where he had sold 35 head of cattle. He drove over the road with Bess from his little home in New York State, a distance of 275 miles, being on the road the past week.

When the clerk insisted he could not care for Rube's mare the new guest grew indignant and declared the tavern was compelled to. He demanded that he be taken to the "Chief Constable." Completely nonplussed, the clerk called Manager J. Edward Downes. When the story was explained to him he instructed a bell boy to escort Reuben to police headquarters.

Rube Was Right

He was greeted inside the big bronze doors by Patrolman Dick Southworth, and Rube tackled him regarding his rights to stable his horse in the Brunswick. Patrolman Southworth dodged the issue and referred Reuben to Captain Walkins.

The situation developed even more ludicrous when the captain looked up the law and found that Rube was right, that the hotel license set forth that the hostelry was to provide fodder and lodging for its guests, and "stable, hay and provender for horses of the guests."

Captain Walkins was aware of the fact that this law has never been changed, and he tried to diplomatically suggest that Rube stable the horse in one of the big stables on Northampton, Malden or Pitt streets.

Rube couldn't see Bess being so far away from the tavern, however, and he didn't hesitate to tell the "chief constable" what he thought of the big city.

"Why don't you sell the horse and buy an automobile?" asked Captain Walkins.

"I reckon I'd kill someone and you folk would all be the first ones to come along after me. Old Bess'll hold me, I reckon."

"Say, Rube, how old is Bess?" queried one of the reporters.

"Oh, Bess, she's coming on seven years now, I reckon."

"Say, that horse is 30 years old or I'll eat her!"

"I reckon you better all commence I ain't so all-fired young I can't fix that 'ere day old Bess came along."

Coming on 47

"How old are you, Reuben?"

"Aye, oh, I'm coming 47 year or so."

"Hey, 'Reuben, married yet?" questioned another.

"Not yet, no telling, though, how soon. You got some fine gals here in Boston."

After several hours of chaffing back and forth the matter was settled peacefully when the Hotel Brunswick officials assigned Rube a room for the night.

OWEN D. YOUNG STUDIED LAW IN HAVERHILL

Once Burned Midnight Oil
in Office of Atty.
Frank Keezer

If Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of the General Electric Co., who once read law in this city, and who is frequently mentioned as the next Democratic candidate for president of the United States, should be nominated for that high office he will get at least one Republican vote in this city.

Atty. Frank Keezer, 134 How street, lecturer at Suffolk Law school, Boston, in whose office the nationally known business executive and leader once burned the midnight oil poring over law books, has never lost his regard for Young and says, "Although I have always voted the Republican ticket, if Owen Young is the Democratic candidate for president, I think I will vote for him." Attorney Keezer, who regarded Young very highly as a young law student, still retains his admiration for the man who has now achieved national fame and success.

Attorney Keezer, who now has an office with Joseph Hennessy, at 3 Washington square, in addition to teaching law in Boston, had an office in the Davis block at 204 Merrimack street, when Young availed himself of the opportunity to read law here about 33 years ago. Attorney Keezer cannot remember the year that Young studied in his office, and neither can he remember exactly how long it was that the possible Democratic candidate traveled daily back and forth to Boston. Attorney Young graduated from Boston University in 1896 and it was probably in 1898 when he was a daily visitor to Haverhill.

Attorney Keezer was a partner with the late W. Scott Peters before he had an office alone at 204 Merrimack street. Attorney Young, who was a native of Van Hornesville, N. Y., where he was born Oct. 27, 1874, studied law at Boston University and while there became a close friend of Via Goldwaith, a Haverhill youth attending the same school.

"Via Goldwaith brought Young to my office," Attorney Keezer said. "They went to law school together about 33 years ago and every night they came to my office to read law. I don't remember how many months Young continued reading law in my office. It was less than a year."

"Owen Young was a very bright young man. He was exceedingly bright, in fact, the smartest young fellow I ever knew. I said then that he would make his mark in the world and he certainly has. He traveled back and forth between Boston and Haverhill every day so that he could read law. After leaving here he studied in a Boston office and after graduation practiced law in Boston."

"Owen made his start and got his reputation as the first lawyer to bring suit against the Boston Elevated which had just built its elevated tracks, establishing the fact that the racket and noise made by the cars was a nuisance and he collected for his clients."

"He was a diligent student, one that could tell why a thing was so. The ordinary fellow looking at a door would say, 'That's a door.' Not Owen Young. He would take everything into consideration, as to how it came to be a door. He would visualize that the door was once a piece of lumber and that a tree had to be chopped down, lumber sawed and planed and joints made to put it together. He overlooked nothing."

"It was not enough for him that a thing was so, but he had to know why it was so. He never took anything for granted. He was thorough in everything. In the short time he was reading law in my office he showed to me that he was a brilliant student."

Attorney Keezer has not seen Owen Young since the latter left Boston in 1913, but he has never forgotten him and cherishes the memory of the studious days the famous man spent in his office.

BY O. M. STATIC

Something in the interesting talk last night of Dean Gleason L. Archer, of the Suffolk Law School, indicated the importance of consulting a good lawyer in the event one has any immediate prospects of shooting at an intruder, because, it seems, shooting at him within the walls of your home and shooting at him out on the lawn, makes a subtle legal difference, WEAFF-WEEI.

Dean Archer helps to clarify to the sometimes bewildered lay mind some of the curious mental phenomena that have developed from the decaologue to Blackstone and Massachusetts statutes in the effort through the centuries to define the soft nuances between what is right and what is wrong.

There was even the question last night whether one's vegetable shed is part of one's home and if so is the shooting of an intruder in that place manslaughter or defence of the home. And is a merely angry neighbor, come to have it out, in the same classification with a burglar after the death-dealing bullet has done its work? Self-defence, you learn, is a term with many meanings.

View of Niagara Falls

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

NIAGARA FALLS, which lost part of its rim on the American side a few weeks ago in a gigantic cave-in, has only two rivals for magnitude and grandeur, according to Theodore W. Noyes, who has visited the outstanding waterfalls of the world. The two selected to rank with Niagara are Victoria Falls in the Zambezi river, Africa; and the Falls of the Iguazu in Brazil.

In describing Niagara, Mr Noyes says:

"In the interior of the North American continent, between Lakes Erie and Ontario, over a precipice bisected by the United States-Canadian boundary line, falls Niagara, the world's most famous cataract.

"A million springs pour half the fresh water of the world into the basins of the four great lakes which are Niagara's sources. As the vast inland sea of Superior fills and overflows its basin, the waters descend and mingle with those of Huron and Michigan, and the three lakes pour the combined flood of their overflow into Lake three years behind in their work. It is absolutely impossible to have an accident case tried before a jury for three years, said Judge Hayden, and in that time the entire evidence in the case could easily vanish.

Judge Hayden welcomed Judge Miles to the judiciary. He declared no appointment in recent years had met such high approval.

City Councillor John F Dowd presented. More than 500 were present.

Walter R Meins of the Roxbury Historical Society complimented Judge Miles. Other speakers were Rev Ambrose D. MANY AT BANQUET TO JUDGE MILES

Real Tribute of Esteem and Affection Shown Guest at Hotel Bradford

More than 400 attended a testimonial banquet to Frankland W L Miles, recently appointed associate justice of the Roxbury Court.

Judge Hayden said juries may have to be drawn by the District Courts in order to help out the situation.

The Superior Court civil sessions are three years behind in their work. It is absolutely impossible to have an accident case tried before a jury for three years, said Judge Hayden.

Judge Hayden welcomed Judge Miles to the judiciary. He declared no appointment in recent years had met such high approval.

City Councillor John F Dowd presided. More than 500 were present.

Walter R Meins of the Roxbury Historical Society complimented Judge Miles. Other speakers were Rev Ambrose D. Walker of St Joseph's church, Roxbury, who represented the pastor, Rev Charles J Ring; James H Brennan of the Governor's Council, Dean Gleason L. Archer of Suffolk Law School, Ex-Mayor Malcolm E Nichols, President Gaspar G Bacon of the State Senate, President Thomas F. Phelan of the Mt Pleasant Improvement Association, Rev Dr Arthur T Brooks of the Dudley Street Baptist Church, Capt Joseph McKinnon of the Dudley Street Police Station, Mr and Mrs William P Miles, parents of the judge; Mrs Louise Miles, wife of the judge; Henry Lawler, representing Mayor Curley, and Representative John V. Mahoney.

Mr Mahoney presented bouquets to Judges Miles' mother and to his wife. Judge Miles was presented a library desk by Councillor Dowd in behalf of those present.

An entertainment was presented by Jacques Renard, an old school chum of Judge Miles.

The committee included Dr Leon B Balicer, chairman; Charles H Savage, Esq, secretary; Morris Elterman, treasurer; William J Barry, Joseph G. Baxter, Albert Blank, David M. Brackman, Felix Carroll, Edward V. Donovan, John F. Dowd, Harry Haddock, Nathan Haffer, William Hasson, John F. Kenney, Matthew Leary, Max N. Lebowitz, Dr Julian D. Lucas, John V. Mahoney, Walter R. Meins, William F. Messinger, John C. O'Donnell, Bernard F. O'Rourke, Rev Charles L. Page, Henry Pearlman, Thomas F. Phelan, Louis E. Restieri, George E. Savage, Charles Worden, Constantine Voss.

RADIO NOTES

Everett R. Campbell Newest Candidate for Selectman; Y and Lucky Strike Bowlers Break Even; Woman's Club Guest Night Friday; Lenten Services in the Churches

Marblehead, Feb. 17—Everett Ryder Campbell, 7 West street, Clifton, well known Lynn attorney, will be a candidate for the Marblehead board of selectmen, and his nomination papers are being circulated in the downtown section of the town today. Mr. Campbell, although a resident of Clifton is no stranger in the older portions of the town. His wife was the former Miss Gertrude Day, daughter of the late William H. Day, and Mrs. Day, who now makes her home with her daughter. The Day family have been well known in Marblehead for many years.

Mr. Campbell is a native of Lynn. He is a graduate of Classical High school and took courses in law at the Boston university and Suffolk Law schools. He prepared for the bar under the tutelage of Charles Innis of Boston. He received his degree at the Suffolk school and was admitted to the bar in 1914.

In his early career he was associated with the firm of Niles, Stevens, Mayo & Underwood, and the Massachusetts Bonding and Insurance company of Boston, in the legal department. Later he opened an office in the Bergengren building in Lynn. He took a prominent part in the Hon. Neil Barney's congressional fight. He is a member of the Essex County Bank Attorneys association and the Massachusetts and Essex Bar associations. He is also junior warden of Mt. Carmel lodge, A. F. & A. M., and a member of the Oxford club and the Ionic club of Swampscott. He has one daughter.

BUILDERS OF CHARLESTOWN

When the average citizen of Charlestown turns in his mind the question as to what men of his community may be termed great, as measured in services rendered the community, his mind naturally places the name of James H. Brennan, present member of the Governor's Council, in that category of Charlestown up-lifter. Every role Mr. Brennan has played in Charlestown politics has been replete with meritorious good works done in the interests of the district which has repeatedly elected him to public office for the past twenty years.

JAMES H. BRENNAN

"Jim" Brennan was born Dec. 21, 1881, on Benedict street, in the very heart of the Valley section which produced many well-known personalities now famous in different walks of life. Among Jim's classmates at the Harvard school of that district were numbered John P. Buckley, John Mahoney, assistant-secretary to Mayor Curley, Bill Cummings, maintenance engineer in the B. & M. R. R.; Jim Mulligan, clerk of court, and Ed Cushing, popular local druggist.

At the age of 22 the voters of Charlestown elected Jim Brennan to the legislature, the youngest member of that body during the years 1911 and 1912. While serving in this capacity, he immediately showed his ability to procure necessary improvements for the district that elected him. He was the author of the bill which transferred the care and maintenance of the monument to the commonwealth. For this achievement he was presented a quill by the then Governor of the State, Calvin Coolidge. This is a cherished memento in the Brennan home.

On the completion of his two year term, Mr. Brennan was returned again to office in 1914. This time to the senate, the only local man thus honored, with the exception of Tim Buckley and Postmaster Murray, both of whom are now dead. From this time on, his career was a succession of upward steps. He was chairman of the Apportionment Board in 1916 and a member of the Constitutional Convention the following year.

While a member of the legislature he was largely responsible for the passing of the bill providing Suffolk Law school with its charter. Just think of how many local boys have since made use of this institution as a stepping stone to success. He himself attended Suffolk Law school, being graduated in 1921. Later he went to return to this school as an instructor.

BY O. M. STATIC

Something in the interesting talk last night of Dean Gleason L. Archer, of the Suffolk Law School, indicated the importance of consulting a good lawyer in the event one has any immediate prospects of shooting at an intruder, because, it seems, shooting at him within the walls of your home and shooting at him out on the lawn, makes a subtle legal difference, WEAJ-WEEL. Dean Archer helps to clarify to the sometimes bewildered lay mind some of the curious mental phenomena that have developed from the decaologue to Blackstone and Massachusetts statutes in the effort through the centuries to define the soft nuances between what is right and what is wrong.

There was even the question last night whether one's vegetable shed is part of one's home and if so is the shooting of an intruder in that place manslaughter or defence of the home. And is a merely angry neighbor, come to have it out, in the same classification with a burglar after the death-dealing bullet has done its work? Self-defence, you learn, is a term with many meanings.

BY O. M. STATIC

Something in the interesting talk last night of Dean Gleason L. Archer, of the Suffolk Law School, indicated the importance of consulting a good lawyer in the event one has any immediate prospects of shooting at an intruder, because, it seems, shooting at him within the walls of your home and shooting at him out on the lawn, makes a subtle legal difference, WEA-F-WEEI.

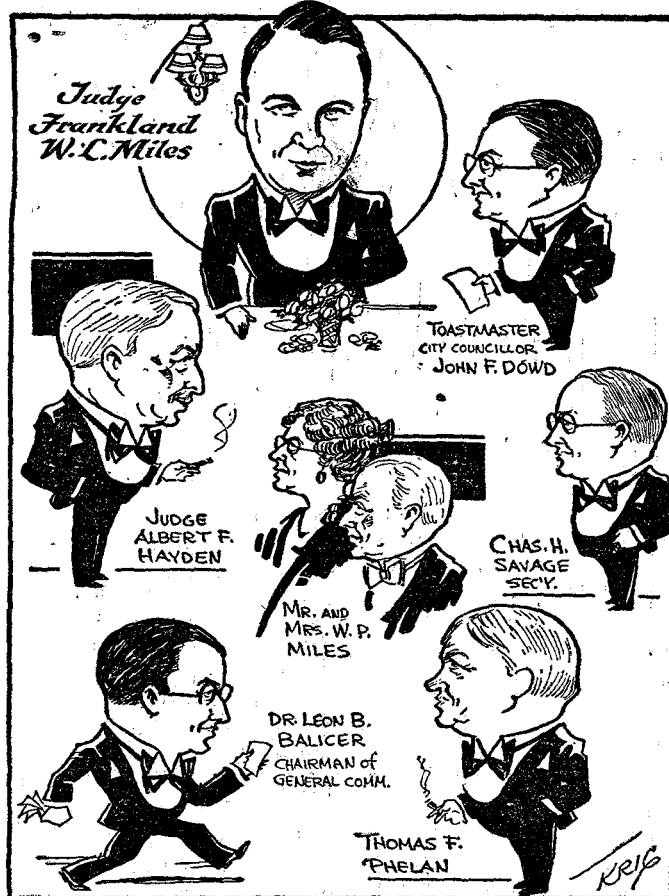

Dean Archer helps to clarify the sometimes bewildered lay mind some of the curious mental phenomena that have developed from the decalogue to Blackstone and Massachusetts statutes in the effort through the centuries to define the soft nuances between what is right and what is wrong.

There was even the question last night whether one's vegetable shed is part of one's home and if so is the shooting of an intruder in that place manslaughter or defence of the home. And is a merely angry neighbor, come to have it out, in the same classification with a burglar after the death-dealing bullet has done its work? Self-defence, you learn, is a term with many meanings.

Judge Hayden Advocates Relief of Superior Civil Docket By District Courts

PROMINENT PERSONAGES AT BANQUET TO JUDGE MILES

A plea for relief of the clogged Superior Court civil docket by utilizing the District Court system was made last evening in Hotel Bradford by Justice Albert F. Hayden of Roxbury Court at a testimonial banquet tendered to Judge Frankland W. L. Miles, a new member of that tribunal.

Judge Hayden said juries may have to be drawn by the District Courts in order to help out the situation. He pointed out that the District Courts under the law have jurisdiction over many matters now brought before Superior Court tribunals. It would be comparatively easy to have additional District Court judges appointed and give them salaries commensurate with the work they would perform, he said.

The Superior Court civil sessions are three years behind in their work. It is absolutely impossible to have an accident case tried before a jury for three years, said Judge Hayden, and in that time the entire evidence in the case could easily vanish.

Judge Hayden welcomed Judge Miles to the judiciary. He declared no appointment in recent years had met such high approval.

City Councillor John F. Dowd presided. More than 500 were present. Walter E. Meins of the Roxbury Historical Society complimented Judge Miles. Other speakers were Rev. Ambrose D. Walker of St. Joseph's Church, Roxbury, who represented the pastor, Rev Charles J. Ring; James H. Brennan of the Governor's Council, Dean Gleason L. Archer of Suffolk Law School, Ex-Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols, Pres Gaspar G. Bacon of the State Senate, Pres Thomas F. Phelan of the Mt Pleasant Improvement Association, Rev Dr Arthur T. Brooks of the Dudley Street Baptist Church, Capt Joseph McKinnon of the Dudley-st Police Station, Mr and Mrs William P. Miles, parents of the judge; Mrs Louise Miles, wife of the judge; Henry Lawler, representing Mayor Curley, and Representative John V. Mahoney.

Mr Mahoney presented bouquets to Judge Miles' mother and to his wife. Judge Miles was presented a library desk by Councillor Dowd in behalf of those present.

An entertainment was presented by Jacques Renard, an old school chum of Judge Miles.

The committee included Dr Leon B. Balicer, chairman; Charles H. Savage, Esq., secretary; Morris Eiterman, treasurer; William J. Barry, Joseph G. Baxter, Albert Blank, David M. Brackman, Felix Carroll, Edward V. Donovan, John F. Dowd, Harry Had-dock, Nathan Haffer, William Hasson, John F. Kenney, Matthew Leary, Max N. Lebowitz, Dr Julian D. Lucas, John V. Mahoney, Walter E. Why Dangerous Personal Secrets Are Said

Common Sense of Judges, Hub Leaders Say, Would Prevent the Fining of a Minister Close a Confidence--Criticism of Minneapolis Judge, Now Story

By David Brickman

As an ominous silence settled over a courtroom in Minneapolis, a few days ago, the judge leaned forward on the bench, looked squarely at the defendant before him and, in clear tones, said:

"I judge you in contempt of court and fine you $100."

This sentence, simple and unimportant as it may seem on the face of it, has brought a storm of indignation from all over the United States and has caused doctors, lawyers and ministers throughout the country to rise up in defence of their rights.

For the Minneapolis judge was fining a Lutheran minister for contempt of court because the clergyman, the Rev. Emil Swenson, had refused to testify in a divorce trial what the husband, one of his parishioners, had told him in confession!

The judge had said that if the Lutheran minister had been a Catholic priest, he would not ask him to reveal the confession because the Catholic Church has formal confession, but since a Lutheran was involved, and the Lutheran Church has no formal confession, he insisted that the Rev. Swenson reveal what his parishioner had told him, despite the fact that the man had come to the clergyman for mental aid and in strict confidence.

The Rev. Swenson had refused to reveal the confidence on the ground that his duty as a minister did not permit him to do such a thing. So he was adjudged in contempt of court.

New England is as much stirred over the decision as the rest of the United States, for now a minister knows not how he stands. Some States have specific statutes to give ministers privilege from revealing confession, but Massachusetts is not one of them!

And doctors, too, feel that there is a principal involved with them. Will they have to divulge the confidences of their patients to the court? There is no law of Massachusetts which says they can withhold it.

What can be done? What's the reaction? What is the law here, and why?

"The only professional secrets that are regarded as absolutely privileged at common law," said Gleason L. Archer, dean and founder of the Suffolk Law School, in commenting on the Rev. Swenson case, "were communications made by a client to his attorney while consulting him in a professional capacity. In all such cases it was considered imperative that the person seeking advice should feel free to state his case fully and frankly, without fear of subsequent exposure by the person consulted."

Rev. Emil Swenson

Lawyers Exempt

"The lawyer could not be compelled to testify as to such confidential communications, although he might be obliged to reveal the identity of his client, to identify his client's handwriting and to reveal such other items of knowledge that could not be said to have been gained through the confidential relation of attorney to client."

"In the absence of statute, therefore, physicians or clergymen may be obliged to reveal confidential communications even though such were imparted to them while they were acting in a professional capacity," Dean Archer explained.

"A case exactly similar to that of the minister in Minneapolis was decided in England in 1893. In a divorce suit between a couple, man and wife, the vicar of the church was obliged to testify as to confidential communications made by one of them in seeking spiritual advice. The court ruled that the evidence was admissible."

"In New Jersey in 1922 in a murder case it became material to prove a confession made by the defendant to a major in the Salvation Army. The court held that if the major were to be considered a clergyman, the communication would not be privileged since there was no statute in the State on the point. The common law rule prevailed here."

An Early Decision

"An early decision in Massachusetts," continued Dean Archer, "involved the question of whether a confession made by a defendant to the members of his own church, before whom he had been called for reproval and admonition, could be used against him in a court of law. The Supreme Court declared that the common law rule would apply, hence the evidence was admissible."

"It is clear, therefore, in view of the current of decisions in England and in this country, that in all States in which there is no statute forbidding it (and Massachusetts is one of these States) a clergyman is obliged to testify as to confidential communications made to him by a parishioner. This would be true of all clergymen whether Catholic or otherwise."

"It is apparent from the language of the judge in the Minnesota case that secrets of the confessional are protected by statute in that State but that no such protection is afforded to voluntary confessions to Protestant clergymen. Assuming this to be the law in Minnesota, the clergyman in this case would be guilty of contempt of court and liable to punishment accordingly."

"So far as the law of Massachusetts is concerned, there seems to be no statute on the point. The common law rule applies and our courts apparently have no right to oblige clergymen of all denominations to disclose confidential communications made to them in their official capacity by parishioners. The fact that such power has not been exercised is no warrant that it might not be under extraordinary circumstances."

Admires the Spirit

"Aside from law, however," concluded Dean Archer, "we cannot fail to admire the spirit that is manifest by the Reverend Swenson. A clergyman should keep faith with his parishioners. It is unfortunate that no statute exists to protect him in this matter. We should take heed in Massachusetts and speedily enact a statute that will exempt clergymen of every religious faith and denomination from disclosing confidences imparted to them in their professional capacity."

But Mr. Fairchild, a minister who has given up active preaching in order that he might devote all his time to assisting Dr. Daniel L. Marsh, president of Boston University, and a man who is in close touch with both the academic and practical sides of the ministry, condemned the action of the Minneapolis judge in fining the Lutheran minister who refused to divulge the confidences made him by his parishioner.

A Clergyman's View

"Every clergyman, in the regular pursuit of his duties," stated Mr. Fairchild, "is confronted from time to time with the necessity of advising the members of his parish who look to him for help and leadership in their critical moments."

"As a result of such contacts, he frequently comes into possession of information that should never be divulged except by the person who gave it to him. At the same time the person in need would never have come to him unless it was believed that the clergyman's position, professional ethics, and fine sense of values would guarantee that the information once given would be held in strictest confidence. To take away such a trust is to rob the clergyman of one of the most distinctive and important functions of his office, and to sharply curtail his sphere of usefulness in the community. What is true of the clergyman is likewise true of the administrator in educational institutions, who is frequently called upon to advise students, parents and members of the faculty in matters involving the utmost privacy."

The Reason

"Anything that tends to break down the confidence of people in those who are placed at the head of institutions charged with the responsibility of spiritual and intellectual leadership should be carefully scrutinized. Information given in confidence is a sacred trust, and with the possible exception of treason or an attack upon life, should be so considered. I, for one, should be sorry to see anything happen that

A Doctor's View

Dr. Donoghue said that a Minneapolis incident was considered to him as if the law in making the mirror judge him in contempt of court.

"I don't believe such a thing would happen here in Massachusetts. Judges have considerable influence," he pointed out. "Yet I feel that any law should be enacted that would give doctors and ministers equal footing in courts what found out in confidence for patients, because it might be worse than the disease. Quack doctors and frauds are protected by such a step."

"Up until now, we have need for such a law and I personally, feel that because on the bench may be indelicate enough to force a minister to testify or suffer for it, there is an excellent reason in the matter. Justices are brilliant and strong and they would never, I think, minister or doctor to divulge confidences unless the confidences had a very grave bearing on a case."

His Reason

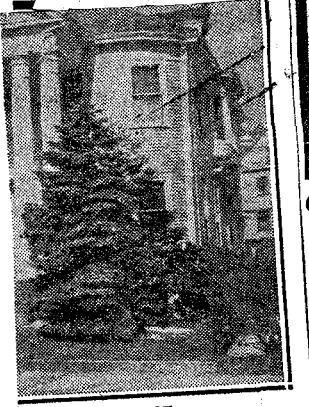

"In such an instance," Dr. Donoghue, "it would be a disadvantage to the community; the professional man divulges, and after all that the law aims to achieve, I judge may have been tacit action, is no reason why should be passed. For your tactlessness by statute 'Rotten!' exclaimed Proterro Hall, well known an experienced Boston sociologist, mingling up in one word his reaction toward the fine Lutheran minister for refusal to testify in the court what his parishioner confessed."

"I don't for a moment think a thing could happen anywhere in Minnesota," he continued, "could not happen here in Massachusetts, for, fortunately, we bench in this State a group think in straight lines and good sense to appreciate the position to a minister of the confidence and revelation to a lawyer, are matters involving

A Sociologist's View

"In Massachusetts they exist a tacit understanding not actually recognized by confidences of an individual lawyer, or priest are not to be asked a Catholic priest in Massachusetts, for example, to reveal a confession made to him in church. If a priest were placed in a dress, he would rather take a jail sentence in contempt of court than tell what had been given in confidence. The Rev. Emil Swenson, minister in Minneapolis, was right in refusing to tell the

Mrs. Annah F. Osgood served as club president until 1910, when she was taken sick and died in the home which she loved and in which she was founder and first president. Mrs. Carolyn E. Bell, first vice president, was her successor and served the club until 1919, during her administration the war was on and it was a struggle to keep the home going, but before she retired she arranged for another room so as to admit another person.

Obstacles Overcome

Mrs. Maud M. B. Nichols succeeded Mrs. Bell and took the home over, bravely in debt and without funds. These obstacles were overcome, however, and a new building fund was established, aided by legacies left which the officers a nucleus for the foundation of a new home. In 1927 Mrs. Arthur W. Hurlburt succeeded Mrs. Nichols, keeping up the work and adding to the fund, stimulated by a gift from the Alpha Club of Worcester of $500. In April, 1930, Mrs. Arthur Rogers Limbach succeeded Mrs. Hurlburt and in the August following she moved her home at 18 Melville av was purchased.

Alterations were started in the Fall of last year and the work of making over the house to meet the needs of the club today was finished recently. Mrs. Blanche Osgood Mansfield worked with the color scheme. Through the interest and efforts of A. Neill Heggood, grandson of the founder-president, Annah F. Osgood, the new Dorchester home was furnished.

The new Annah F. Osgood Home for Aged People was opened to the public for inspection on Sunday afternoon, March 1. Next week 12 aged persons will be taken in.

"It is our aim and desire to give the aged all the comforts of home," said Mrs. Limbach last evening.

The building is very spacious, is surrounded with growing trees and as large as any which may be seen

Information given in confidence is a sacred trust, and with the possible exception of treason or an attack upon life, should be so considered. I, for one, should be sorry to see anything happen that would force any person, much less a clergyman or a doctor, to treat it otherwise."

Although he expressed the opinion that he thought it was and would be a tactless action for a judge to insist that a minister reveal a confession given him in his professional capacity, and also that in some cases it might be unfair and brutal to make a doctor give away information which he had gained in his professional pursuits, nevertheless it seemed like a good thing for the community that the courts did not extend privilege to doctors and ministers, said Dr. Francis D. Donoghue, medical adviser to the Massachusetts Department of Industrial Accidents

A Doctor's View

Dr. Donoghue said that as far as the Minneapolis incident was concerned, it seemed to him as if the judge may have been tactless, but he was within the law in making the minister testify or judge him in contempt of court.

"I don't believe such a thing might happen here in Massachusetts, for our judges have considerable discretion," he pointed out. "Yet I don't believe that any law should be enacted to give doctors and ministers exemption from testifying in courts what they have found out in confidence from their patients, because it might be a cure that is worse than the disease. Think of the quack doctors and frauds who would be protected by such a step "Up until now, we have not felt the need for such a law and I don't, personally, feel that because some person on the bench may be indiscreet and tactless enough to force a doctor or minister to testify or suffer a penalty for it, there is any necessity for legislation in the matter. Massachusetts justices are brilliant and sensible men and they would never, I think, call a minister or doctor to divulge professional confidences unless those confidences had a very grave and vital bearing on a case

"In such an instance," concluded Dr. Donoghue, "it would be to the advantage of the community at large that the professional man divulge what he knows, and after all that is what the law aims to achieve. Because one judge may have been tactless in his action, is no reason why new laws should be passed. For you can't correct tactlessness by statute!"

"Rotten!" exclaimed Professor Guillermo Hall, well known and widely-experienced Boston sociologist, thus summing up in one word his attitude and reaction toward the fining of the Lutheran minister for refusing to tell the court what his parishioner had confessed.

"I don't for a moment believe such a thing could happen anywhere but in Minnesota," he continued. "It certainly could not happen here in Massachusetts, for, fortunately, we have on the bench in this State a group of men who think in straight lines and have the good sense to appreciate that a confession to a minister of the church, or a confidence and revelation to a doctor or a lawyer, are matters inviolate

"In Massachusetts there seems to exist a tacit understanding, although not actually recognized by law, that the confidences of an individual to a doctor, lawyer, or priest are not to be revealed. It would be preposterous for a judge to ask a Catholic priest in Massachusetts, for example, to reveal a confession made to him in church. I am sure that if a priest were placed under such duress, he would rather take a fine or jail sentence in contempt of court than tell what had been given him in strict confidence.

The Rev. Emil Swenson, the Lutheran minister in Minneapolis, was not right in refusing to tell the court what his parishioner had confessed to him

"The judge has jeopardized his own position by holding the minister in contempt of court and then fining him $100, because the court has revealed that his logic is completely confused. Why do I say that?" explained Professor Hall. "The answer is obvious. In the first place, the judge who passed the contempt of court sentence said that if the minister had been a Catholic priest, he would not press him for a revelation of the confidence because the Catholic church recognizes formal confession. Then this judge went on to point out that the Lutheran church does not recognize formal confession and that the minister, therefore, has no right to withhold the requested information which seemed to have so much bearing in the divorce suit.

His Reason

"Now, the laws which a judge in the state of Minnesota upholds are the laws of the state, and not of any church. Yet he says he recognizes the law of the Catholic church which definitely says that confession is part of the life of the Catholic and must be considered inviolate.

"The judge in this case admits he recognizes a canon of a specific religion, a law which is extra-legal as far as the United States is concerned, yet he refuses to recognize the duty of a minister to his flock, and the law of public opinion insists that the confidence of a parishioner to his minister must not be violated.

"This judge has indicated nothing less than religious discrimination. He lays himself open to attack as an administrator of the law who will discriminate in favor of one church in preference to another; he lays himself open to attack because he indicates that he cannot think logically, and he lays himself open to attack because he is attempting to undermine the age-old principle of honor in man-to-man relations

"A lawyer receives a client and is told things in confidence." Professor Hall went on. "This confidence is sacred. If a patient goes to his doctor and tells him about himself in confidence, that information is sacred. No lawyer or doctor who has any self-respect would reveal these confidences to anyone. No court could make them, under any duress. Certainly a minister whose duty it is, because of the nature of his calling, to aid the mentally ill and receive their confessions, would never and should never give out to anybody what has been told him in strictest confidence.

"If the courts tried to extract the confessions of parishioners to their ministers, there would be a terrible uproar from all of us. Such procedure would constitute an attempt to undermine the sacredness of spiritual law and any step in the direction of forcing ministers, doctors or lawyers to reveal information given them in the line of their professional duties, must be checked promptly.

"Whether a church does or does not recognize the confessional is not the point. The essential duty of a minister is to aid those troubled souls who seek help. If the minister is not protected by law, then legal steps ought to be taken to protect him. To make a man of the church violate his obligations is criminal," concluded Professor Hall

'DISHONORED' NOT ART, BUT AN ENTERTAINMENT

Marlene Dietrich's New Picture Deals With War in Fascinating Manner

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

By MOLLIE MERRICK

Special Dispatch to the Globe and the North American News Service, Alliance
HOLLYWOOD, Calif., March 5—Marlene Dietrich's new picture, "Dishonored," viewed here, is a swell evening's entertainment. It's interesting, pictorially diverting, and deals with that perennially fascinating subject—the spy system of the World War.

On the other hand, it's entertainment, not art; possibly because of the elements above mentioned. Had it been sheer art, dealing as it did with a story which ended with the death of a beautiful woman at the hands of a firing squad in the bare, snowy quadrangle of a Viennese prison, I would have gone forth hideously depressed. I felt fine. You've got to charge such things up to the picture. Marlene Dietrich is still the girl calculated to give Greta Garbo the closest run for leadership which this film colony can offer. Her work in "Dishonored" is excellent. Her beauty is telling. Her comedy touches deft, her repression magnificent. She is a woman of provocation, of subtlety. She shines forth even in the very theatrical moments of the picture—and this picture is thoroughly theatrical from start to finish.

From its inception you are never allowed for a moment to forget that this is a story being made on gelatin strip with sound effects. You are reminded forcibly of the fact by the very obvious dissolves which continually throw you into the angle of the artisan; and indispensable as the artisan is in motion picture making one should never be reminded of him. The sound effects, too, do not become integrated into the fabric of the tale, but to one of the scenes. Von Seyffern was intended by fate for a stern heroine. The picture doesn't bother other women, and doesn't need this. This one is enough to keep you interested for the evening, and because you realize you're watching a play, to pore see it will not make it popular.

plementing the recent statement issued by the Hamburg-American Line announcing a reduction of the minimum rate of the March 23 Easter cruise to the West Indies by the S. S. Reliance, effective March 11, the steamship company, pioneers in the pleasure-cruising field, now has made striking reductions in the rates for its summer cruise of the S. S. Reliance to the northern wonderlands and Russia and for the 1932 Resolute world cruise. The new rate is the lowest minimum rate for a world cruise offered by the Hamburg-American Line since the company re-entered the pleasure-cruising field after the war. The cruise, as announced, will be of 143 days duration; 30 countries will be visited, and a distance of more than 38,000 miles will be covered by the passengers on land and sea. Drastic reductions in the rates for higher priced accommodations on this de luxe cruise ship, carrying first-class passengers only, have also been announced.

Ware Praises French Line for Hub Sailing

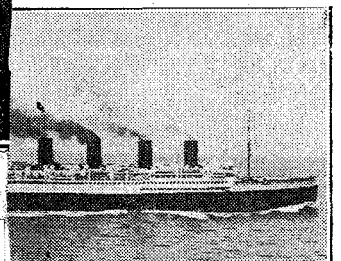

Charles E. Ware, Jr., president of George E. Marsters, Inc., emphasizes the importance of the announcement of the French Line in berthing their beautiful de luxe liner S.S. "France," in Boston, to take passengers for their Mediterranean-Morocco sailing, March 21. This is said to be the first step toward the establishment of a regular European service by this line, so that the people of New England should welcome it in no uncertain terms. For the balance of the cruise season Marsters' are featuring the West Indies cruise of the "Reliance," sailing from New York, March 23; the Mediterranean cruise of the de luxe "Carinthia," sailing from New York on April 14, and the 14-day club cruise of the first class Cunard liner "Caledonia," sailing from Boston April 15 to Bermuda, Nassau and Havana. On the latter cruise the George E. Marsters Co. will have a personally conducted tour.

Republic Sails to West Indies

The Republic of the United States Lines sailed from Philadelphia yesterday on its fifth and last West Indies cruise of this season. The Republic again sailed with a capacity list, and with many passengers who are residents of New England.

SUFFOLK LAW SCHOOL CHANGES ANNOUNCED

Lecture-Work Per Week to Be Increased a Third

Wheeler Preparatory School to Train Students for Courses

Three changes of importance were announced yesterday by Dean Glesson L. Archer of Suffolk Law School, to become effective next September, in connection with the 25th anniversary of the founding of the school.

Lecture work per week will be increased by one-third, a five-year course for all except honor students will be required, and the Wheeler Preparatory School, recently acquired, will be substituted for the school's present Summer preparatory department. All candidates for entrance who have not a complete high school education will be sent to the preparatory school and will not be admitted to the law school until they have completed their high school requirements.

Dean Archer's statement is as follows:

"For some time past school authorities have been desirous of increasing lecture periods from an hour and a half to two hours in each school day. Beginning next September the freshman class, and eventually all classes, will operate under a two-hour schedule, thus receiving 25 percent more instruction than previous classes have enjoyed. This will permit more time for review and discussions of illustrative cases than has been possible heretofore. All this will be accomplished without increasing the tuition rate.

"The second change in contemplation will be to rearrange our schedule of courses for all students entering hereafter so that the burden may be somewhat more evenly distributed. Under the new plan every student who demonstrates during the first two years that his daily employment so limits his opportunity for study that he needs five years proper to pass a law course, or who, for other reasons has failed to maintain a certain scholastic average, will automatically go into the five-year class without the sometimes disastrous experience of having to repeat one or more years of work, as is so often the case under our present schedule.

"We are also strengthening our faculty to ensure more complete teamwork and efficiency in the training of our students.

"But there is another great advance that should make memorable this silver jubilee year of Suffolk Law School. The school, from its inception has ever been the militant champion of the boy who has to make his own way in the world. While the majority of our students have been high school graduates of college men, yet we have felt it our duty to receive a united number of students, comprising a very small proportion of our regular enrollment.

"For no fault of their own, and usually because of noble self sacrifice for those they loved they have been unable to complete their high school training. We have hitherto had no means of giving them that training in a regular school. But now, as one of the plans for our great anniversary celebration, we announce the acquisition by Suffolk Law School of the Wheeler Preparatory School. This school has been in operation for 24 years and will form the nucleus of a new department that will relieve us of the necessity of receiving special students.

"This preparatory department will have as its headmaster Carrol N. Wheeler who has been its leading teacher since it began under whose name it has operated for many years. The Wheeler Preparatory School will continue to train students for the long list of colleges that it has hitherto served and it will maintain high standard of scholarship. But it is being reorganized and its day and evening program of studies revised under the advice of the most competent experts in Massachusetts.

"This new preparatory department will have a special building of its own but not from the law school itself. It will continue under its own name but it will be the official Preparatory Department of Suffolk Law School. The headmaster of the new department will be a member of our new committee on admissions to the law school itself."

ROGER A. SALA IS CLASS PRESIDENT

Honored by Juniors at Suffolk Law School

Roger A. Sala of this city has been elected president of the class of 1932 of the Suffolk law school in Boston. This is the first time that officers have been elected by any but the senior class at the school and Mr. Sala's victory in a keen competition is regarded as a signal honor for him. The officers just elected will serve until they complete their course.

In order to participate in the election all students had to be in good scholastic standing and candidates for the presidency were required to have an average of 80 per cent or more. The campaign was waged along the lines of a real political campaign with posters and rallies and furnished considerable excitement for the student body.

Mr. Sala is one of North Adams' best known young men. After studying in local elementary schools, he worked for some years in Hunter's machine shop. Of an ambitious nature, he desired to better himself and took up the study of law at an age considerably above that of the average law student. He was in the office of former-Senator William A. O'Hearn for three years before entering law school and also attended the private school conducted by the late I. F. ... was superintendent of school for many years.

Mr. Sala was unusually prominent in fraternal circles here, having served as chief ranger of the Posters, president of the ... club and exalted ruler of ... Adams lodge of Elks. He also served for several years as an election officer in Ward 7.

MISS DIONNE IS MARRIED

Becomes Bride of Leonard Olivier in Ceremony at St. Joseph's Church Given Away by Brother, Assistant U. S. District Attorney

Much interest attached to the marriage this morning at 8:30 at St. Joseph's church of Miss Aureore Cecile Dionne, daughter of Mrs. J. Ernest Dionne, 220 Wood street, and Leonard Olivier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Israel Olivier, 70 Irvington street.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. William Smith. The bride was given away by her brother, Oscar U. Dionne, United States assistant district attorney and former representative. Misses Donaldia Dionne and Germaine Maranda, cousins of the bride, were bridesmaids.

Vocal and Violin Solos Given.

Nuptial music by the church organist was augmented by vocal solos by Miss Blanche Payette and Germaine Dionne, uncle of the bride, and a violin solo by Miss Beatrice Moreau. Palms and flowers adorned the altar.

The bride made a graceful picture in her princess effect frock of white taffeta, over which fell her veil of silk net bordered with Alencon lace and caught with orange blossoms. She carried an arm bouquet of calla lilies and lilies of the valley.

The bridesmaids wore frocks of moire taffeta with harmonizing slippers and mafine hats. Miss Dionne's blue and Miss Maranda's pink bouquets were composed of spring flowers.

Will Live on Wood Street.

A wedding breakfast and reception at 220 Wood street followed the ceremony.

After a honeymoon to be spent in New York and Washington, D. C., Mr. and Mrs. Olivier will be at home at 220 Wood street. Mr. Olivier was graduated from St. Joseph's boarding school, Berthierville, Quebec, Canada, and New Bedford High school, class of 1927. He has completed a course at Suffolk Law school.

Mrs. Olivier was graduated from St. Anthony's parochial school and the Academy of Jesus and Mary, Fall River.

KRIGGER DENIED REINSTATEMENT

Hearings on Discharge by State Were Long

Anselmo Krigger, a Massachusetts Institute of Technology graduate, who had been employed as junior civil engineer in the Department of Public Works at Commonwealth Pier in the employ of the State, was denied reinstatement to his position in a decision handed down today by Judge Thomas Weston, in Roxbury Court.

The petitioner is 38 years old. He is colored and lives at 39 Forest st. Roxbury. He had been in the employ of the State from 1917 until Nov. 14, 1930, when he was notified of his discharge on the ground that he had been insubordinate to his superiors.

Mr Krigger, who had applied for a hearing before the Public Works Commissioner Frank Lyman, who had ordered his discharge, made the request was granted and the hearing was a lengthy one, covering a period of 17 days, from Nov. 24 until Dec. 12.

After the taking of voluminous testimony Commissioner Lyman ruled that Mr Krigger's removal was fully justified. This ruling was made Dec. 12.

In accordance with his rights in the matter, Mr Krigger applied for a hearing in the Roxbury Municipal Court. Mr Krigger, a graduate of Suffolk Law School, but not a member of the bar, conducted his own case. The hearing consumed eight days.

The petitioner questioned all witnesses in the case very closely and attempted to show that the office where he had worked was conducted in a more or less lax manner; and that employees of the office without reporting to their superiors.

Frequent Absences From Work

It was brought out at the hearing in court that Mr Krigger, a second lieutenant in the Massachusetts National Guard, was at Camp Devens from July 21 until Aug. 4, and thereafter was absent from work frequently, sometimes for half a day and sometimes for a whole day.

Asst Atty Gen Charles F. Lovejoy appeared for the Commonwealth. It was advised by the Commonwealth that due to Mr Krigger's absences, work being done by him was not fast enough. It was necessary, it was said, to take the work away from him and have other men perform it.

Mr Krigger was notified by Commissioner Lyman of complaints made about him, and a short time afterward Commissioner Lyman sent him formal notice of his discharge insubordination being given as the ground.

Judge Weston, in making his finding, said: "I have reviewed the action of Commissioner Lyman, and I have heard the witnesses. I find that the commissioner's decision removing the petitioner from his position as junior civil engineer in the Public Works Department, was for a proper cause and without bad faith, and I therefore affirm that decision."

Mr Krigger was in court today.

PAY TRIBUTE TO ROBERT J. GILLIS

Noted Editor Who Started Career in This City Laid to Rest

Loyal friends of Robert J. Gillis, late assistant managing editor of the Boston Evening American and active of this city, returned here today after paying last tribute to the beloved editor, who was laid to rest yesterday in Evergreen cemetery at Brighton, Mass.

Scores of his newspaper friends, and in addition numerous civic, state and fraternal dignitaries attended the solemn high requiem mass which was sung at St. Mary's church of the Assumption in Brookline, by Rev. Daniel F. Herlihy.

They included practically the entire office staff of the American as well as acting Mayor Joseph McGrath, Police Supt. Michael H. Crowley, and Chief Assessor Henry L. Dailey.

Manchester people who were at the funeral included Commissioner of Motor Vehicles John F. Griffin, Joseph Nolan, Thomas Fellows, Patrick Dowd, Miss Mary Gleason, P. L. MacClellan, and Mr. Gillis' two sisters, Misses Eva and Mary Gillis.

Mr. Gillis, who began his career as a printer's assistant on the Manchester Daily Mirror 28 years ago, rose from the ranks to a foremost position in New England journalism. Although he left Manchester 24 years ago, he had a host of friends in this city.

Besides his sisters, he leaves a wife, the former Mary Connor of Manchester, a son, Robert J., student in Suffolk Law school, and a daughter, Dorothy.

Others attending the funeral from here were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur F. McLane, Mrs. James D. Cash and Catherine Maloney.

OBSERVE 25TH ANNIVERSARY OF MARRIAGE

Mr. and Mrs. Dorn Are Recipients of Many Gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dorn of 26 West Elm terrace entertained a host of friends and relatives on Wednesday night on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary. They were married in Boston, Feb. 18, 1906, and have lived in Brockton since that time.

Mrs. Dorn is a native of Roxbury and Mr. Dorn a native of Johnstown, N. Y., where his uncle, Abraham Harrison, was formerly mayor. They have two sons, Kenneth, an attorney and Lester, who is a law student at Suffolk Law school.

At the anniversary party friends and relatives from Brockton, Brookline, Dorchester and Boston were present and in the group were many who attended the wedding ceremony of the couple 25 years ago.

A mock wedding was performed with all the appropriate ceremony and Mrs. Dorn wore a wedding gown very similar to that in which she was married. The house was beautifully decorated with American beauty roses and cut flowers of all kinds and the couple were the recipients of many gifts.

The sons of Mr. and Mrs. Dorn furnished entertainment with piano selections and violin solos, and Miss Esther Daniels of Dorchester sang. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

During the day Mr. and Mrs. Dorn received many telegrams and cards of congratulation from their friends near and far away.

The couple are well-known in Brockton in the clothing business and have been owners and managers of the Ladies' Shop on Main street for many years and of the hat shop on Centre street since their coming to Brockton. They belong to several organizations in Brockton and other cities, among them being the Odd Fellows, Rebekahs, the Congregation Israel of Brockton, the Beth Israel Hospital of Boston and the Y. M. H. A. and Y. M. C. A.

Mrs. Dorn is also a member of the committee of the Home for the Aged in Boston and the Roxbury Ladies' Aid and Fuel Society.

Death of Rob't J. Gillis of Boston American

Robert J. Gillis, assistant managing editor of the Boston Evening American, died early today at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital following a short illness. He was forced to give up work several weeks ago and advised by physicians to take a long rest. Acting on this advice, Mr. Gillis went to the hospital for treatment. While there he seemed to gain strength, until last night when he suffered a serious relapse.

Besides his wife, Mr. Gillis is survived by a son, Robert J. Gillis, Jr., a student at Suffolk Law School, and a daughter, Miss Dorothy Gillis.

Mr. Gillis was born in Manchester, N. H., and received his early education there. Later he moved to Worcester, where he became a member of the staff of the Worcester Telegram. After several years there he came to the Boston Evening American, about fifteen years ago. Through successive steps he advanced from the position of copy desk man, assistant city editor, city editor, and finally assistant managing editor.

ROBERT J. GILLIS DIES IN HOSPITAL

Asst. Managing Editor of Boston American

Robert J. Gillis, assistant managing editor of the Boston Evening American, died early today in Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, following a short sickness.

His death, coming at the height of a newspaper career that had stamped itself indelibly on New England and especially Boston journalism, was a distinct shock to hosts of friends.

ROBERT J. GILLIS

He was forced to give up work several weeks ago and advised by physicians to take a long rest.

Acting on this advice, Mr. Gillis went to the hospital for treatment. While there he seemed to gain strength, until late last night when he suffered a serious relapse. Physician summoned his wife to the bedside. She arrived before he passed away at 5:40 a. m.

Besides his widow, Mr. Gillis is survived by a son, Robert J. Jr., a student at Suffolk Law School, and a daughter, Dorothea.

Mr. Gillis was born in Manchester, N. H., and received his early education there. Later he moved to Worcester, where he became a member of the staff of the Worcester Telegram.

Helped Out Many

After several years there he came to the Boston Evening American, approximately 15 years ago. Through successive steps he advanced from the position of copy desk man, assistant city editor, city editor and finally assistant managing editor.

While assistant city editor, Mr. Gillis was responsible for the establishment and subsequent success of the Cambridge edition, the Merrimack Valley and the Lynn and North Shore editions of this paper.

Perhaps the most outstanding characteristics of Mr. Gillis were a keen sense of news values, an ability to translate his ideas into instant action, and above all an ever present humanity—a feeling for and a desire to help the other fellow in the many difficulties incident to everyday life.

Many a cub reporter owes his start to that feeling of responsibility for the other fellow that was part of "Bob" Gillis.

Funeral services or requiem will be celebrated at 9:45 A. M. in St. Mary's of the Assumption Church.

Born 46 years ago at Manchester, N. H., he received his early education in that city. He later moved to Worcester, where he became a member of the staff of the Worcester Telegram. He came to the Evening American about 15 years ago.

Advanced from the position of copy desk man to assistant city editor, city editor and finally to assistant managing editor. During the time he was city editor he established editions of the paper in various suburbs.

Suffolk School of Law to Expand

A one-third increase in weekly lecture work at the Suffolk Law School, a five-year law course and the acquisition of the Wheeler Preparatory School were announced yesterday by Gleason L. Archer, dean of the Suffolk Law School. This announcement was made in connection with the school's twenty-fifth anniversary.

The freshmen classes, and perhaps all classes, Dean Archer said, will operate on a daily two-hour lecture period schedule, instead of on a 1½-hour program. There will be no advance in tuition charges, he added.

Students who do not maintain certain scholastic standards will be required to take a five-year law course, he declared. This will also be available to those who show after two years that their daily employment affords them little time for study.

The Wheeler Preparatory School, the dean went on, will be used as a training school for those who have not completed high school. This, he explained, will relieve the Suffolk Law School of the necessity of taking in special students whose changes will take effect in September.

Although not a new element to movie pictures, extra players are beginning to play a more important part in talking pictures and recent productions tend to show that directors are paying more attention to securing "atmosphere players" as the background for pictures. One player out of mood in a crowd can now make a talking picture seem out of key, and whereas appearance alone counted in the old silent pictures, directors class talkers are careful to select extras who are capable of reflecting the proper atmosphere through the short speeches. "Distorted" and extras were secured to play the minor parts in scenes depicting wartime crowds in Vienna and over 2,500 characters were passed upon before the selections were made.

The youngest cast ever assembled for a feature-length moving picture will be presented to the public when "Skippy," Paramount's production from the famous car-teen by Percy L. Crosby, is released. The juveniles are all under ten years old, even to the extra, Jackie Cooper and Robert Coogan, Jackie's brother, head the cast of ninety-five youngsters.

Directors have finally found an efficient way of staking an automobile for a race. The picture more care was required. The picture more care was required. The picture more care was required.

YOUNG LAWYER WORKED WAY UP

Krawzun Had Few Spare Moments to Himself While in School

ATTY WILLIAM J KRAWZUN

William J Krawzun, one of few among several hundred applicants who successfully passed the recent bar examinations, worked his way through Suffolk Law and Chelsea high schools in order to obtain the education which fitted him for becoming an attorney-at-law.

Of Polish extraction, young Krawzun attended the Williams junior high school and entered Chelsea high in the fall of 1923. He secured a position with the A G Walton Shoe Co. about that time and worked for this concern after school hours each afternoon.

He was graduated in 1926 and entered Suffolk Law School in September of that same year, taking the night course. He remained with the A G. Walton Co. in the meantime and is at present employed in the credit department. He received his law degree last year.

Atty Krawzun is the son of Mrs Eva Krawzun and resides with his mother at 90 Shawmut st. He has two brothers and two sisters. His father died about five years ago. The family formerly resided in Lowell, moving to Chelsea shortly after the fire of 1908.

guest artist on the program to be heard over an N. E. C.-WEAF network Easter Sunday.

The voice of this new coloratura will be brought to radio listeners between 7:30 and 8 p. m.

In her radio debut, Pons will again give her famous rendition of "Caro Nome." Opera goes, in the next five years, will probably hear her in many old coloratura operas that have lain in the archives of the Metropolitan library for want of artists to sing them.

Dean Gleason L. Archer of Suffolk Law school, Boston, in his series, "Laws that safeguard Society," will discuss "Murder at Common Law" over station WTIC-WEAF to-night at 7:15.

"East Lynne," postponed from February 7, will be presented aboard Hank Simmons' mythical show boat, "Maybelle," and broadcast over WDRG and the nationwide Columbia chain from 10 to 11 o'clock to-night. Although considerably cut down for the hour's broadcast the piece will be given a real old-fashioned interpretation.

Reasons for President Hoover's pocket veto of the Wagner unemployment bill will be explained to-night by Secretary of Labor William N. Doak in an address in the National Radio forum, arranged by the Washington Star and broadcast over a coast-to-coast network of the Columbia Broadcasting system.

Doak will explain plans for expansion and strengthening the U. S. employment bureau of the labor department, decided upon following the president's adverse action on the Wagner bill and expected by him to outdo plans proposed in that bill. Enlargement of the bureau is made possible through increased appropriations for unemployment relief.

The first game of the round robin to determine the season's championship of the Indoor Polo association will be reported over an N. E. C.-WJZ network from the Squadron A armory in New York to-night at 9 o'clock. The Realists of New York, led by Raymond Guest, and the Commonwealth team of Boston, captained by Tim Clark, will be the contestants in this class A elimination match.

Marian Anderson, colored contralto, will be heard in a program of spirituals and favorite concert songs as guest artist of the "Garden Party" to be transmitted Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock by the synchronized stations WTIC and WEAF.

Miss Anderson first won wide attention in 1925 by stepping forward as a competitive unknown and winning from 300 contestants the coveted New York Stadium contest. This gained her the right to sing with the New York Philharmonic orchestra of the Lewisohn stadium of the College of the City of New York. Since then she has appeared in concert with singular success, both as an interpreter of the racial songs of her people and as a singer of the world's finest opera and concert songs.

Bainbridge Colby, secretary of state of the United States during the Wilson administration, will be speaker of the evening during Radio hour, over WBZ-WJZ network, Sunday, at 8:15 p. m.

"The Resurrection," a sacred selection composed by Dana S. Merriman, former musical director of station WTIC who is now associated with the National Broadcasting company headquarters in New York city, will be featured during the Melody hour slated for 8:30 o'clock Easter morning from station WEAF. Alma Kitchell, contralto who has been guest soloist of WTIC broadcasts, will be the soloist of this program.

A program of spring and Easter music will be played by the Detroit Symphony orchestra, conducted by Victor Kolar, during the concert broadcast at 9:30 p. m. Sunday over the WDRG-Columbia network.

The program will be opened with Rimsky-Korsakov's Easter Overture, originally published under the title of "La Grande Paque Russe," which draws freely upon Russian folk tunes to supply the colorful background of the Easter season in the steppe country.

A chorus of sixteen feminine voices will augment the instrumental ensemble in a special Easter presentation to be staged in the studios of station WTIC during the "Orchestral Gems" period at 9:30 o'clock Sunday night. Rubin Segal, Hartford violinist, will also be present as a guest soloist.

Napoleon Bonaparte will be hailed before the radio bar of justice Sunday night to face a charge of murder. His will be the second a series of "Famous Trials of History."

In the first of this series Benedict Arnold was tried for treason. He was prosecuted by James M. Beck and defended by Clarence Darrow.

The radio trial of Napoleon also will see celebrated counsel participating. Dudley Field Malone, assistant secretary of state in the cabinet of President Wilson and noted lawyer, will defend the Little Corporal. Arthur Garfield Hays, distinguished leader of the New York bar, will prosecute him.

WTIC and associated stations of the National Broadcasting company will broadcast this unusual radio feature beginning at 10:15

When Jolly Bill and Jane open their early morning juvenile program over an N. E. C network Monday, April 6, at 7:45 o'clock, the occasion will mark their third anniversary on the air together with their numerous mythical characters.

Jolly Bill, otherwise William Steinke, cartoonist-humorist, estimates that during the past three years he and Jane, little Muriel Harbater, have appeared together in 1,000 radio performances, to the tune of approximately 1,650,000 words.

BRADY - BIGLEY

Attorney John J. Brady, former chairman of the Board of Selectmen and Miss Mary M. Bigley, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Bigley, Washburn Avenue, Wellesley Hills, were married Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the rectory of St. Mary's church, Newton Lower Falls by Rev. Fr. Flood.

They were attended by Miss Constance Manning of Wellesley Hills as bridesmaid and Policeman Leonard Clinton of Framingham as the best man. The bridesmaid was gowned in antique ivory satin trimmed with princess lace. Her bouquet was of calla lilies. The bridesmaid's gown was of turquoise blue chiffon and she carried a bouquet of talisman roses.

A reception followed at the home of the bride in Wellesley Hills after which the happy couple left on a wedding trip to New York, Pennsylvania and Washington. On their return they will reside at 153 Arlington Street. The bride traveled in a dress of ashes of roses silk and a beige coat with hat to match.

Mr. Brady attended the Framingham public schools and graduated from the Suffolk Law School. Since his admission to the Massachusetts Bar he has been engaged in the practice of law in Framingham and maintains an office in the Hemenway building. He is a member of the Elks, Eagles and American Legion. He has been prominent in town affairs, has thrice been the nominee of the Democratic party for representative and he served three years on the Board of Selectmen, two as chairman, retiring in March when he declined to be a candidate for re-election. Mr. Brady was chairman of the town's committee in charge of the observance of the Massachusetts Bay Tercentenary.

Mrs. Brady is a graduate of Wellesley High school and has been a secretary at the Broadbent Medical Company in Boston.

FINDS POLICE ARE NOT INTELLIGENT

William G. Thompson, Counsel in Sacco-Vanzetti Case, Declares They Lack Mental Qualifications to Combat Expert Criminals—Dean Archer Opposes Board to Study Capital Punishment.

(Special to the Courier-Citizen) STATE HOUSE, BOSTON, April 23.—Under pressure of aroused public sentiment if they are unable to convict the right man in a murder case, police endeavor to convict the wrong one, was the charge made before the legislative committee on ways and means this afternoon by William G. Thompson, prominent Boston lawyer, counsel in the Sacco-Vanzetti case, in favoring the resolve calling for an investigation by a special commission on the merits and demerits of the present system of capital punishment.

Criminals Too Highly Trained.
A prominent group of citizens, including a trial lawyer in several murder cases, appeared before the committee to support the legislation, which in various forms has been before the General Court for many years and so far has been unsuccessful of passage.

Mr. Thompson felt that the present system is inadequate to meet modern conditions by reason of the fact, he said, that police have not the mental qualifications necessary to combat successfully the activities of highly trained criminals, with the result that the prosecution system, as far as murder cases are concerned, has fallen down.

Wendell P. Murray, Boston trial lawyer, who has handled several murder cases, appearing in favor of the investigation, called attention to the Waltham carbarn case in which three young men went to the electric chair and the fourth, captured later, received a second degree sentence, although, according to the speaker, the circumstances in the case were of singular nature.

Not Qualified as Trial Lawyer.
Herbert B. Ehrmann, also one of the counsel in the Sacco-Vanzetti case, called attention to the fact that the proposed commission would be appointed by the governor. "Governor Ely," he said, "is a brilliant trial lawyer and could be depended upon to select the right type of men for the commission."

B. Loring Young, former speaker of the House, who always voted against abolition of capital punishment when a member of the legislature, said that he had done so with misgivings and now that a plea for an inquiry has been started he favored such a course.

Dean Archer Opposes Study.
Dean Gleason L. Archer of Suffolk Law school strongly opposed the creation of a commission to study capital punishment.

"You are asked," he said, "to delegate to a commission . . . one of the greatest questions now before the American people—the problem of coping with the gunman and the murderer."

"It is short-sighted mercy that can see only the criminal in the dock and fail to see the desolated home of his victims or the welfare of the general public that should be our chief concern."

VENING TRIBUNE—L

FORM COMMISSION ON CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

BOSTON, April 23. (AP)—Opponents and proponents of capital punishment joined ranks today, with but a few dissenters, in favoring a legislative resolve for a special commission to consider the question of a death penalty in this state. They spoke at a legislative hearing at the State House.

Among the speakers were William G. Thompson and Herbert B. Ehrmann, lawyers in the Sacco-Vanzetti case. Thompson said the police of today lack the mental qualifications to combat successfully with highly trained criminals with the result that the prosecution system, as far as murder cases are concerned has fallen down. He claimed that police, under the pressure of aroused public sentiment, convict the wrong man in a murder case if they are unable to convict the right one. Ehrmann quoted several opponents to the abolition of capital punishment as being in favor of an investigation to definitely settle the question in this state.

B. Loring Young, former speaker of the house who always voted against abolition of the death penalty, said he favored an investigation and Rev. Spence Burton, a former prison chaplain, agreed with him. Father Burton said he favored capital punishment until he came in direct contact with murderers about to die. "I found," he said "that murderers are not especially interested in death, either for themselves or others."

Dr. Samuel A. Elliot of Boston and Dr. Winfred Overholser, a deputy commissioner in the department of mental diseases, both favored a commission.

Senator Newland H. Holmes of Weymouth and Eben W. Burnstead of the Massachusetts Civil Alliance felt an investigation was unnecessary.

Dean Gleason L. Archer of Suffolk Law school strongly opposed the creation of a commission to study capital punishment.

"You are asked," he said "to delegate to a commission . . . one of the greatest questions now before the American people—the problem of coping with the gunman and the murderer."

"It is short-sighted mercy that can see only the criminal in the dock and failed to see the desolated home of his victims or the welfare of the general public that should be our chief concern."

DEATH PENALTY DISCUSSED AT LEGISLATIVE HEARING

Opponents and Proponents of Capital Punishment Join in Favoring Investigation—Other Hearings at State House—House Sustains Ely's Veto of Bird-Baiting Bill

Boston, April 23.—Attorney William G. Thompson, in favoring a resolve calling for investigation by a special commission into the merits and demerits of capital punishment, declared today before the Senate Committee on Ways and Means that police, under the pressure of aroused public sentiment, endeavor "to convict the wrong man, if they can't convict the right man." Mr. Thompson, who was of defense counsel in the Sacco-Vanzetti case, asserted that the present system is not adequate to meet modern conditions because, he said, the police have not the mental qualifications necessary to combat the activities of highly-trained criminals. The result, he maintained, is that the prosecution system as far as it concerns murder cases, has fallen down.

Mr. Thompson was one of a group of prominent citizens appearing before the committee in support of the proposed legislation which, in various forms, has been before the general court for several years without success.

Referring to the Cero and Gallo murder case, in which Cero was convicted of murder in the north end of Boston, the speaker recalled that Cero was sentenced to the electric chair and finally was given his liberty after the crime had been fastened upon Gallo.

"Here was a man found guilty and the verdict later set aside," said Attorney Thompson. "If no other reasons were advanced for the beginning of an investigation of the subject, this alone would justify such action."

Mr. Thompson was questioned by Senator James Warren of Lawrence, a member of the committee, as to reasons why justice appears to be more swift and certain in England than in the United States. Mr. Thompson replied that the situation is due to the fact that conditions in this country are radically different.

"We cannot emulate England unless we make fundamental changes," said Mr. Thompson. "In many of our states the system of justice is antiquated and a played-out one. In addition the personnel is different. Until you can get first-class men handling cases here you had better not risk capital punishment—an irreparable action."

Recalls Trial of Tongmen.
Wendell P. Murray, Boston lawyer who has appeared in several murder cases, in favoring an investigation, called attention to the Waltham car barn case in which three young men went to the electric chair and the fourth, captured later, received a second degree sentence, although, according to the speaker, the circumstances in the case were of a similar nature.

Herbert B. Ehrmann, also one of the counsel in the Sacco-Vanzetti case, called attention to the fact that the proposed investigating committee would be appointed by the governor.

"Governor Ely," he said, "is a brilliant trial lawyer and could be depended upon to select the right type of men for the commission."

The speaker quoted Attorney General Charles B. Rugg of Worcester, formerly district attorney of Worcester county, as being in favor of the investigations even though he still believed in the retention of the death penalty.

Senator Warren asked the speaker if he believed "that gunmen should be knocking off gas station employes and others and getting away with it?"

"Well," Ehrmann replied, "the people of Maine don't believe in gunmen knocking off people there, either, yet the state does not believe in capital punishment and the murder rate there, as it is in New Hampshire and Vermont is low."

"Yes," interposed Senator Donald Nicholson of Wareham, a member of the committee, "but don't the people there come from a different stock than those in the more congested sections? Aren't they less agreed with the senator and suggested this would be a fruitful subject which the investigating committee might inquire into."

Dr. Samuel A. Eliot noted that inasmuch as countries such as Sweden, Denmark and Norway have abolished in the past recorded in the Legislature. Eben W. Burnstead, representing the Massachusetts Civic Alliance, said he felt that conditions in Massachusetts are satisfactory and should not be changed. Mr. Burnstead read a list of other states where, he said, public capital punishment had been abolished and later again put on the statute books.

Dean Gleason L. Archer, of Suffolk Law school strongly opposed the creation of a commission to study capital punishment.

"You are asked," he said, "to delegate to a commission * * * one of the greatest questions now before the American people—the problem of coping with the gunman and the murderer."

Aren't they less agreed with the senator and suggested this would be a fruitful subject which the investigating committee might inquire into."

Dr. Samuel A. Eliot noted that inasmuch as countries such as Sweden, Denmark and Switzerland have abolished capital punishment Massachusetts at least should go as far as making an investigation into the merits of the question.

B. Loring Young, former speaker of the House, who always voted against capital punishment abolition when a member of the Legislature said that he had done so with misgivings and now that a plea for an inquiry has been started he favored such a course. Mr. Young said that his work as a member of the board of parole and of the state board of probation had impressed him with the fact that the deterrent effect of capital punishment is negligible. Most crimes, he felt, are committed either in the heat of passion or because the offender cannot seriously weigh the consequences. "The men who calmly plan a murder and deliberately commit it after weighing the consequences to themselves are so small that they might well be ignored," he remarked.

Herbert Parsons, chief of the division of probation, flatfootedly in opposition to capital punishment, felt that the Legislature had indulged in a sufficient number of "annual bouts" on the subject and that a committee should be named who could hear the views of persons qualified because of their callings to give well grounded opinions on the subject. Such men, such as judges, prison officers, etc., cannot come before the Legislature because of the nature of their work, he said.

Rev. Mr. Spence Burton of the Cowley Fathers, a former prison chaplain, said that he favored capital punishment until he came in direct contact with prisoners. "I found," he said, "that murderers are not especially interested in death, either for themselves or for others." Dr. Winfred Overholser, deputy commissioner in the Department of Mental Diseases, favored the investigation. Dr. A. Warren Stearns, commissioner of correction, also was reported in favor of the investigation.

Senator Newland H. Holmes of Weymouth, in opposition, said the inquiry is absolutely needless and called attention to the few votes in favor of abolition of capital punishment that can see only the criminal in the dock and fail to see the desolated home of his victims or the welfare of the general public that should be our chief concern.

"If by executing a worthless scoundrel we can save to society valuable citizens, I believe it is our duty to do it. I appear before you as an advocate of the right of the public to defend itself against murderers by the only weapon that murderers fear—the death penalty."

Dean Carver of Suffolk Law School Tells Legislators to Beware

Dean Gleason L. Archer of the Suffolk law school strongly opposed the creation of the commission.

He declared in part: "You are being asked to delegate to a commission a part of your duties as law makers of this commonwealth. Refer to one of the greatest questions now before the American people—the problem of coping with the gunman and the murderer.

"Now who are urging you to do this? Why the identical group that have been fighting in season and out of season for the abolition of capital punishment. Every year they come before you and are defeated. But they will not take no for an answer. Do you think for one minute that an adverse report of their project by a commission would silence their clamor? No, indeed. Then we must conclude that they see in the commission a hope of getting the question into a corner of overwhelming the commission with eloquence and securing a decision favorable to their contention.

"Remember, gentlemen, that this group are organized. They are carrying on a more or less practical belief that Massachusetts made a mistake some years ago in electrocuting Sacco and Vanzetti for whom they fought through long years of legal delays and commissions of investigation. Remember also, gentlemen, that the public has no one but volunteer defenders. Unless the Legislature stands between it and any interested group the public interest must inevitably suffer."

"Life imprisonment is a sardonic joke to the modern murderer. He is sure of a vacation free from care or responsibility of any kind. The cold and hunger and hardship that honest folk are obliged to endure in these lean years of depression mean nothing at all to the non-paying guests of our jails and prisons.

"Racketeers and gunmen and murderers have already organized themselves in many of our great cities. They are waging organized warfare in many of our great cities. They are

Wendell P. Murray, Boston trial lawyer, who has handled several murder cases, in favor of the investigation, called attention to the Waltham carbarn case in which three young men went to the electric chair and the fourth, captured later, received a second degree sentence, although, according to the speaker, the circumstances in the case were of similar nature.

Herbert B. Ehrmann, also one of the counsel in the Sacco-Vanzetti case, called attention to the fact that the proposed commission be appointed by the governor. "Governor Ely," he said, "is a brilliant trial lawyer and could be depended upon to select the right type of men to the commission."

B. Loring Young, former speaker of the house, who always voted against capital punishment abolition when a member of the legislature, said that he had done so with misgivings and now that a plea for an inquiry has been started he favored such a course.

Dean Gleason L. Archer of the Suffolk law school strongly opposed the creation of the commission.

He declared in part: "You are being asked to delegate to a commission a part of your duties as law makers of this commonwealth with reference to one of the greatest questions now before the American people—the problem of coping with the

Gunman and the Murderer
"Now who are urging you to do this? Why the identical group that have been fighting in season and out of season for the abolition of capital punishment. Every year they come before you and are defeated. But they will not take no for an answer. Do you think for one minute that an adverse report of their project by a commission would silence their clamor? No, indeed. Then we must conclude that they see in the commission a hope of getting a question into a corner, of overwhelming the commission with eloquence and securing a decision favorable to their contention.

"Remember, gentlemen, that this group is organized. They are carrying on a more or less practical belief that Massachusetts made a mistake some years ago in electrocuting Sacco and Vanzetti for whom they fought through long years of legal delays and commissions of investigation. Remember also, gentlemen, that the public has no one but volunteer defenders. Unless the legislature stands between it and any interested group the public interest must inevitably suffer."

"Life imprisonment is a sardonic joke to the modern murderer. He is sure of a vacation free from care or responsibility of any kind. The cold and hunger and hardship that honest folk are obliged to endure in these lean years of depression mean nothing at all to the non-paying guests of our jails and prisons.

"Racketeers and gunmen and murderers have already organized themselves in many of our great cities. They are waging organized warfare in many of our great cities. They are

Odd Items From Everywhere

Ed Boyd, who lives down near Paola Kan, crossed his laying hens with parrots so he wouldn't have to make so many trips to the henhouse in freezing weather to see if there are any eggs. When one of his parrot-crossed hens has laid, she walks up to Boyd and says, "Ed, I've laid an egg."

The big wind back in May, 1900, at Vineyard Haven is recalled by this accident. Capt Jeremiah Weeks, a coasting skipper, was freighting a steam boiler to the island. He had it lashed amidships on the deck of his schooner. Caught in a black squall, the wind took him off the poop and slapped him up against the head of that boiler. When he died, 30 years later, the words "Made in Taunton" were still to be seen stamped in his back.

Asy Wood, still living at Wickford, R. I., at quite an advanced age, but still erect, helped erect the Flatiron Building at New York. He was putting shingles on the roof when the wind blew him off. He felt himself going and at first he was so surprised he could hardly think things out. But at about the 10th floor he made a plan and when he got to the second floor he looked for an open window where the carpenters had left a pile of shavings on the floor. He made a quick twitch in the window, lit on the shavings and saved his life.

With the advent of Spring, the people of Salem, Conn. are gradually thawing out from the effects of the unusually cold spell they had this past winter. Why, Ed Hagen came out of his house to do the chores, but before he could get to the barn, his toes were frost-bitten. He tried to jump up and down to warm them, but the first jump he took he froze into the air. It took the hired man three hours to chop him down. It's warmer now, and Aunt Mary Hubbard, who lives on a party line, has been having the time of her life listening to the telephone conversations come through as they were thawed out. She says she got two weeks' scandal in the first three hours.

As usual, Mace Liverwurst had the floor at Altoona, Kan. He was telling about an experience he witnessed during the Civil War. It was during a fierce battle, the enemy was advancing, coming north, shooting as they came, when suddenly a strong wind sprang up from the north, and in a few minutes it was terrific and kept getting stronger. When Mace said he suddenly saw every man in the rebel ranks fall over dead. He stopped talking about the affair long enough to borrow a pipeful of tobacco from a bystander. Then he resumed his story and said that upon investigation it was found that as the enemy fired, the wind blew the bullets right back into their own bodies.

At one time Old Harrison Rundlett's establishment sold most everything, including grain, and it was bothered greatly by rats. Mr Rundlett declared war on the rodents and loaded upon old musket with powder. Then—but let Old Harrison tell it himself: "I see the biggest ole rat I ever see. I grabbed the gun 'n' remembered I hedn't no shot, so I grabbed a handful uv seed peas, poured 'em intew the gun, fammed in a wad uv paper and up 'n' let flicker. She went off like a cannon and set me daoun intew a basket of eggs and bruck 'bout thirty dozen of them. After I hed got cleaned up I hunted but couldn't find thet rat. Wa-a-a, pt., 'bout six weeks later I seen thet rat again 'n' ye wont believe this, but may I be struck dead this minute if 'tain't jest ez I tell it—thet gummed ole rat hed a pea wim more'n tew feet long sprouting from his back with blossoms 'n' pods on it."

Monitor Editorial For Drunkenness

Prosecuting Counsel Declares —Presiding Magistrate to Five D

SPECIAL TO THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR, APRIL 23.—The prosecuting counsel D MacLellan, in police court here, yesterday, during the trial of a citizen arrested on a charge of drunkenness read a lengthy list of cities and towns should be permanently relieved of all expenses connected with construction and maintenance of state highways, a large group of legislators told the Legislative Committee on Ways and Means yesterday. They went a step farther than the bill they were supporting, which seeks relief for the municipalities for a period of two years only.

Senators Donald W. Nicholson of Wareham and Cornelius F. Haley of Rowley, sponsors of the measure, insisted that municipalities were at a distinct disadvantage because of the maintenance assessment for state roads which are constructed, not for the residents of those municipalities only, but also for motorists all over the State. The expense should be distributed throughout the State, they declared.

Legislation to extend rapid transit facilities from Harvard Square to Arlington and from Lechmere Square to Davis Square, Scoville, was favored by the Legislative Committee on Transportation in reporting two bills.

The House sustained Gov. Joseph B. Ely's veto of a bill which would make lawful the baiting of birds. The prohibitory law was passed only last year.

The bill raising the maximum age limit under which delinquents are classified as juveniles from 17 to 18 years was passed in the Senate.

BOSTON EVENT

Dial Twists

By Elisabeth Hall

DEAN GLEASON L. ARCHER of the Suffolk Law School, Boston, observed last week the first anniversary of his series of talks on the fundamentals of law which he gives over an N. B. C. network.

Ernest La Prade, who used to be a violinist in the old New York Symphony Orchestra and who wrote the program notes when the orchestra played during the summers at Chautauqua, N. Y., is now assistant to Walter Damrosch, and a regular N. B. C. orchestra conductor. In addition he is the author of two music books for juveniles, the first of which, "Alice in Orchestralia," is now entering its twelfth printing. In this the musical instruments explain their functions in an orchestra, and in the other, called "Marching Notes," the notes themselves present an exposition of music.

Both books are built around the childhood tale of "Alice in Wonderland" which the late Ted Hus- ing, Columbia sports announcer, describes the events of the Pennsylvania Relay Carnival this afternoon. Tomorrow afternoon, he will be walking all over the field carrying a miniature transmitting set in a knapsack between his shoulder blades. The apparatus sends out his voice on short waves, which are picked up in a booth in the grandstand and amplified and re-broadcast.

The Simmons programs over W.A.P.C. have introduced into radio a rule of etiquette to accord with the weekly appearance of opera stars. The procedure is something like this: the orchestra rises when the guest artist enters the studio; the singer or player is introduced, upon which the musicians applaud; when the program ends the artist thanks the orchestra and it returns the compliment with considerable applause, the violinists tapping the backs of their instruments with their bows and the other players crying out the traditional "bravas."

Sentenced to Jail for Warrant Theft

Rocco Marabile of 12 Cottage street, East Boston, a former student at the Suffolk Law School, was sentenced to two months in the House of Correction by Judge Joseph H. Barnes in the East Boston court today on the charge of larceny of a piece of paper, to wit, a search warrant, valued at $1 and the property of the East Boston District Court. He also was fined $100 on a charge of keeping and exposing liquor for sale. On his appeal he was held in $300 for the Superior Court.

Sergeant Frank E. Gilman of the Boston police department testified that he and three other police officers went to Marabile's home March 23 with a search warrant, planning to look for liquor. The door was locked and barricaded, and they broke in, and after Gilman had handed his warrant to Marabile, the latter tossed it in the kitchen fire, the officer testified. Gilman said that a quantity of liquor was found hidden in the kitchen.

MUNICIPALITIES ASK RELIEF FROM STATE ROAD COST

Legislative Committee Is Told the Two-Year Plan Should Be Extended

Cities and towns should be permanently relieved of all expenses connected with construction and maintenance of state highways...

Legislation to extend rapid transit facilities from Harvard Square to Arlington and from Lechmere Square to Davis Square, Somerville, was favored by the Legislative Committee on Transportation in reporting two bills.

The House sustained Gov. Joseph B. Ely's veto of a bill which would make lawful the baiting of birds. The prohibitory law was passed only last year.

The bill raising the maximum age limit under which delinquents are classified as juveniles from 17 to 18 years was passed in the Senate.

The bill authorizing the City of Boston to borrow money for construction of a municipal building in Dorchester was substituted for an adverse committee report and given a first hearing. An adverse report on the measure providing state reimbursement of small towns for loss of taxes on properties used for charitable, educational and religious purposes was overruled by the House and the measure passed to a second reading.

Dean Gleason L. Archer of the Suffolk Law School spoke forcibly against abolition of capital punishment at a resumption of a hearing before the Senate Ways and Means Committee. He classed the capital law that racketeers feared.

RENEE CHEMET.

Renee Chemet, noted French concert violinist, will be guest artist on the program to be broadcast over WEAF network Sunday from 7:30 to 8 p. m.

Has your radio set been acting queerly lately? Have you been blaming the broadcasting stations and the radio makers and dealers?

Very likely none of them is to blame, but only Old Man Ether, now on one of his regular eleven-year sprees, superinduced by a sunspot minimum! Funny things have been happening to radio the past few months. Long distance reception is now the best ever in the history of radio.

But from all parts of the country, listeners located thirty to fifty miles from stations report annoying "fading" and also "mush" distortion and garbling of voices and music, for a few seconds or minutes at a time.

How to diagnose these troubles in your set, and the relation of these curious phenomena to the present sunspot cycle, will be explained over WEAF and the Columbia Broadcasting System this evening at 8:30 o'clock by Orestes H. Caldwell, former federal radio commissioner, whose topic will be "Present Extraordinary Radio Reception—and Sunspots."

Helene Madison, champion girl swimmer, will be the guest speaker on Ted Husing's "Sportslants" at 6 p. m. tonight over the WDRC-Columbia network.

Dean Gleason L. Archer of Suffolk Law School, Boston, will discuss "The Atrocity Element in First Degree Murder" in his series, Laws That Safeguard Society, to be broadcast over WEAF network to-night at 7:15.

Leopold Damosch's orchestration of Schubert's "March Militaire" will be presented by the conductor's son and successor, Walter Damosch, during a concert over the synchronized stations WTIC and WEAF to-night at 9 o'clock. This composition suggests the bright, joyous, parade-ground aspect of war rather than the bloody and gruesome battles.

Damosch will include also the finale from Cesar Franck's "Symphony in D Minor," the only work in this form by the Belgian organist. It is a dramatic work of unusual sonority, including a long and stirring crescendo.

"My Jim," or "The Girl He Left Behind," a war play centering around a farmer boy who has been called to his colors by Abraham Lincoln, will be enacted before the WDRC-Columbia microphones by Hank Simmons' Show Boat stock company from 10 to 11 o'clock to-night.

Hans Hanke, noted German concert pianist, will be the guest artist during the program featuring Jesse Crawford and the Columbia chain from 10 to 10:30 p. m. Sunday. Hanke is also well known as a linguist and connoisseur of the arts.

"Love in April" has been chosen as an appropriate feature of the "Tone Pictures" program to be transmitted over a network linked with WJZ of New York city at 8 o'clock Sunday morning. It is a composition of Christian Kriens, Dutch-American musician who is musical director of Station WTIC of Hartford, and will be sung by Mary Merker, soprano. The program will emanate from the organ studios of Lew White, who will offer several organ solos. Curt Peterson, N. B. C. singing announcer, Helen Jenke and George Simons will also participate in the broadcast. Among the speakers offering the program will be W. B. of Baltimore, W. R. of Detroit and W. S. of Chicago.

When Sir Johnstone Forbes-Robertson, most famous Shakespearean actor of the last fifty years, made his farewell lecture tour of the United States in 1919, he declared his voice would never be again heard here. During Columbia's international broadcast Sunday however, he will be heard once more, radio bridging the ocean which he said he never would cross again.

Also in the program, which is scheduled for 12:30 p. m. on WDRC and the nationwide Columbia chain will be the English Singers, who recently were heard in America in a presentation of a Columbia concert.

Obediah Becker of Allentown, Pennsylvania, a colorful Pennsylvania Dutchman and shoemaker, who used to spend most of his time away from the bench and at the bar, will be the featured radio music meeting of the Federal society during Tom Noonan's broadcast this Sunday over WDRC.

Helen Oelheim, contralto, heard in several WTIC broadcasts, the Gondoliers quartet and Gus Haenschen and his orchestra, will take part in the "Garden Festival" slated for 3:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon over the synchronized stations WTIC and WEAF.

Miss Oelheim has participated in the New York stadium contests, appeared as guest soloist with the Buffalo Symphony orchestra and the Rochester, N. Y. Philharmonic orchestra, and sang as assistant artist to Matinee at the Carnegie hall recital this year. She is now being heard in several sustaining broadcasts over national radio networks and has been guest soloist of "The Hour of Music."

The "Gondoliers" quartet consists of Frank H. Luther, Jack Parker, Phil Dewey and Daniel Woodyard. Gus Haenschen is now being heard with his orchestra over N. B. C. networks.

Music of the time of Mozart and Gluck, two of the greatest figures in musical history, will be presented in the fourth Deems Taylor N. B. C. series, which will be broadcast Sunday afternoon between 2 and 3 o'clock over combined WEAF and WTIC nets.

The last of twenty-seven Sunday afternoon concerts by the New York Philharmonic Symphony society orchestra will be broadcast Sunday from 3 to 5 p. m. over WABC and Columbia nationwide network. Arturo Toscanini will be the conductor. This occasion will mark the end of the first in the eighty-eight years' history of the organization during which concerts have been heard through the medium of radio by people all over the United States.

For the final concert, which will be broadcast from Carnegie hall, Toscanini has selected a program including a favorite Mozart symphony, one of the greatest of all works in the form of pictorial music.

A new series of broadcasts will be featured over WDRC Sunday evening at 8:45 o'clock by the Imperial orchestra according to the local station organist, well known to radio audiences, will be assisted in this role, and will be assisted by a soloist, "The Coronation March" from Meyerbeer's opera. "The Prophet" will be the identifying signature of this new series, which will consist of well known concert favorites, classics and favorite ballads.

Davis, young American soloist of the Philadelphia Opera company, will hold the spotlight as featured soloist with the Auditions quartet of past National Radio auditions. In the second special by this group to be heard over C.-WEAF network Sunday at 9:15 p. m. The concert will be composed of American music.

FORM COMMISSION ON CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

BOSTON, April 23. (AP)—Opponents and proponents of capital punishment joined ranks today, with but a few dissenters, in favoring a legislative resolve for a special commission to consider the question of a death penalty in this state. They spoke at a legislative hearing at the State House.

Among the speakers were William G. Thompson and Herbert B. Ehrmann, lawyers in the Sacco-Vanzetti case. Thompson said the police of today lack the mental qualifications to combat successfully with highly trained criminals with the result that the prosecution system, as far as murder cases are concerned has fallen down. He claimed that police, under the pressure of aroused public sentiment, convict the wrong man in a murder case if they are unable to convict the right one. Ehrmann quoted several opponents to the abolition of capital punishment as being in favor of an investigation to definitely settle the question in this state.

B. Loring Young, former speaker of the house who always voted against abolition of the death penalty, said he favored an investigation and Rev. Spence Burton, a former prison chaplain, agreed with him. Father Burton said he favored capital punishment until he came in direct contact with murderers about to die. "I found," he said "that murderers are not especially interested in death, either for themselves or others."

Dr. Samuel A. Eliot of Boston and Dr. Winfred Overholser, a deputy commissioner in the department of mental diseases, both favored a commission.

Senator Newland H. Holmes of Weymouth and Eben W. Burnstead of the Massachusetts Civil Alliance felt an investigation was unnecessary.

Dean Gleason L. Archer of Suffolk Law school strongly opposed the creation of a commission to study capital punishment.

"You are asked," he said "to delegate to a commission... one of the greatest questions now before the American people—the problem of coping with the gunman and the murderer."

"... It is short-sighted mercy that can see only the criminal in the dock and failed to see the desolate home of his victims or the welfare of the general public that should be our chief concern."

"If by executing a worthless scoundrel we can save to society valuable citizens, I believe it is our duty to do it. I appear before you as an advocate of the right of the public to defend itself against murderers by the only weapon that murderers fear—the death penalty."

Sacco-Vanzetti Counsel Charges That Police, Under Pressure of Aroused Public Sentiment if They Can't Convict Right Man in Murder Case, Endeavor to Convict the Wrong One

(Special to The Post)

BOSTON, April 24—Police, under the pressure of aroused public sentiment, if they can't convict the right man in a murder case, endeavor to convict the wrong one, was the charge made before the legislative committee on ways and means yesterday afternoon by William G. Thompson, prominent Boston lawyer, counsel in the Sacco-Vanzetti case, in favoring the resolve calling for an investigation by a special commission on the merits and demerits of the present system of capital punishment.

A prominent group of citizens, including a trial lawyer in several murder cases appeared before the committee to support the legislation, which in various forms has been before the General Court for many years and so far has been unsuccessful of passage.

Mr. Thompson felt that the present system is inadequate to meet modern conditions by reason of the fact, he said, that the police have not the mental qualifications necessary to combat successfully the activities of highly trained criminals, with the result that the prosecution system, as far as murder cases are concerned, has fallen down.

Wendell P. Murray, Boston trial lawyer, who has handled several murder cases, in favor of the investigation, called attention to the Waltham car barn case in which three young men went to the electric chair and the fourth, captured later, received a second degree sentence, although, according to the speaker, the circumstances in the case were of similar nature.

Favors Inquiry

B. Loring Young, former speaker of the House, who always voted against capital punishment abolition when a member of the Legislature, said that he had done so with misgivings and now that a plea for an inquiry has been started he favored such a course.

Dean Gleason L. Archer of the Suffolk law school strongly opposing the creation of the commission.

He declared in part: "You are being asked to delegate to a commission a part of your duties as law makers of this commonwealth with reference to one of the greatest questions now before the American people—the problem of coping with the gunman and the murderer."

"Now, who are urging you to do this? Why the identical group that have been fighting in season and out of season for the abolition of capital punishment. Every year they come before you and are defeated. But they will not take no for an answer. Do you think for one minute that an adverse report of their project by a commission would silence their clamor? No, indeed. Then we must conclude that they see in the commission a hope of getting a question into a corner, of overwhelming the commission with eloquence and securing a decision favorable to their contention."

"Remember, gentlemen, that this group is organized. They are carrying on a more or less practical belief that Massachusetts made a mistake some years ago in electrocuting Sacco and Vanzetti for whom they fought through long years of legal delays and commissions of investigation. Remember also, gentlemen, that the public has no one but volunteer defenders. Unless the Legislature stands between it and any interested group, the public interest must inevitably suffer."

Sardonic Joke

"Life imprisonment is a sardonic joke to the modern murderer. He is sure of a vacation free from care or responsibility of any kind. The cold and hunger and hardship that honest folk are obliged to endure in these lean years of depression mean nothing at all to the non-paying guests of our jails and prisons."

"Racketeers and gunmen and murderers have already organized themselves in many of our great cities. They are waging organized warfare in many of our great cities. They are waging organized warfare with Al Capone as president. They might suitably name it the American Brotherhood of Bandits' or Amalgamated Association of Assassins."

GIVE LAW TRAINING OF VARIOUS STATES

26 Ask More Education Than Massachusetts

Equivalent of High School Study Demanded in Some

Twenty-six States and the District of Columbia require more education from a candidate for the bar than Massachusetts demands, according to the annual review of legal education just issued by the Carnegie Foundation For the Advancement of Teaching.

Massachusetts requires the equivalent of two years in an evening high school. The American Bar Association requires the equivalent of two years in college. States that meet this requirement are Colorado, Connecticut, Kansas, Montana, New York, Wisconsin and Wyoming. Idaho will meet it in 1933.

The equivalent of a high school education is demanded in Delaware, District of Columbia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Vermont, Washington and Nebraska.

Massachusetts evidently follows the request of the American Bar Association by admitting members only after examinations by a central board. It is of course impossible to compare the difficulty of these examinations or the strictness of their marking. The last bar examinations here resulted in 1929 passing out of 754, or 28 percent.

Legal Education

It is almost as difficult to place this State with regard to the legal education required. Massachusetts requires three years full time under proper direction for those who study in offices, three years at a day law school and four at a night school.

In general, when one studies for the bar in a law office alone, the Massachusetts period is the average, though some States require four years, and others require the candidate to register before he begins his study. Colorado, Kentucky, West Virginia and Wyoming follow the request of the American Bar Association that such method of study be not admitted.

Certain States do not permit admission to the bar to candidates who have no office training. Pennsylvania requires at least six months work in an office, six hours per day, which can be interpolated into the law school vacation.

New York demands six months in an office for those who have studied in a full-time day law school. In the three-year training in New Jersey at least 12 months must be in an office and the rule is the same in Rhode Island.

Three Years Needed

In general the training for day and full time law schools required is three years, as in Massachusetts, and for night or part-time schools four years. The American Bar Association asks three years of full time or a longer course equivalent in the number of working hours of part-time study.

The Massachusetts day law schools which prepare candidates in three years are those of Harvard, Boston University and the day course at Boston College. Those which require four years are the afternoon and evening schools at Boston College, Northeastern University, Portia Law School (for women) and Suffolk Law School in Boston, the Northeastern University School of Law at Springfield and Worcester.

GIVE LAW TRAINING OF VARIOUS STATES

26 Ask More Education Than Massachusetts

Equivalent of High School Study Demanded in Some

Twenty-six States and the District of Columbia require more education from a candidate for the bar than Massachusetts demands, according to the annual review of legal education just issued by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching.

Massachusetts requires the equivalent of two years in an evening high school. The American Bar Association requires the equivalent of two years in college. States that meet this requirement are Colorado, Connecticut, Kansas, Montana, New York, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

The equivalent of a high school education is demanded in Delaware, District of Columbia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, New Mexico, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Vermont, Washington and Nebraska. Massachusetts evidently follows the request of the American Bar Association by admitting members only after examinations by a central board. It is of course impossible to compare the difficulty of these examinations or the strictness of their marking. The last bar examinations were held in 1929 passing out of 754, or 28 per cent.

Legal Education

It is almost as difficult to place this State with regard to the legal education required. Massachusetts requires three years full time under proper direction for those who study in offices, three years at a day law school and four at a night school.

Certain States do not permit admission to the bar to candidates who have no office training. Pennsylvania requires at least six months work in an office, six hours per day, which can be interpolated into the law school vacation.

New York demands six months in an office for those who have studied in a full-time day law school. In the three-year training in New Jersey at least 12 months must be in an office and the rule is the same in Rhode Island.

Three Years Needed

In general the training for day and full time law schools required is three years, as in Massachusetts, and for night or part-time schools four years. The American Bar Association asks three years of full time or a longer course equivalent in the number of working hours of part-time study.

The Massachusetts day law schools which prepare candidates in three years are those of Harvard, Boston University and the day course at Boston College. Those which require four years are the afternoon and evening schools at Boston College, Northeastern University, Portia Law School (for women) and Suffolk Law School in Boston, the Northeastern University School of Law at Springfield and Worcester.

Massachusetts requires the equivalent of two years in an evening high school. The American Bar Association requires the equivalent of two years in college. Legal Education

It is almost as difficult to place this State with regard to the legal education required. Massachusetts requires three years full time under proper direction for those who study in offices, three years at a day law school and four at a night school.

In general, when one studies for the bar in a law office alone, the Massachusetts period is the average, though some States require four years, and others require the candidate to register before he begins his study. Colorado, Kentucky, West Virginia and Wyoming follow the request of the American Bar Association that such method of study be not admitted.

Certain States do not permit admission to the bar to candidates who have no office training. Pennsylvania requires at least six months work in an office, six hours per day, which can be interpolated into the law school vacation.

New York demands six months in an office for those who have studied in a full-time day law school. In the three-year training in New Jersey at least 12 months must be in an office and the rule is the same in Rhode Island.

CONRY CALLS HULTMAN 'MATTRESS VOTER'; HITS RAIDS AS 'PUBLICITY'

Pension of $1300. For many years the police commissioner was an employe of the Boston Elevated and the present affluent condition of that venerable relic may be traced to his invaluable services. He himself considered that he was entitled to a pension of $1300, out of the slender treasury of the Elevated, the same pension granted to a police sergeant on his retirement. By his own action he establishes his own qualifications to be entitled, if any, to perform the services at least to collect the pension of sergeant of police. In his address of last night Conry devoted considerable time to the value of controversy, and ridiculed the police

Conry said in opening his attack: A certain public official, police commissioner of Boston, unable to answer public criticism of the conduct of his department, said he had "no desire to engage in newspaper controversy." In Jeremiah, a book which I read many years ago, in my early days of political activity, I found the words "The Great Jehovah hath a controversy with the nations." Attack Delivered at Dinner To Councillor Brennan, Attended by Ely

Traffic Commissioner Joseph A. Conry, officially silenced yesterday noon after a heated meeting of his board, burst out anew last night in his private quarrel with Police Commissioner Hultman

He branded his associate on the commission "a mattress voter—one who lives in the city for eligibility for political appointment, but who pierces another centre for the delights of social life"

"He is an alien of class, not race; he doesn't know the city of Boston and is now too old to learn," declared Conry

CLIMAXES FEUD

The traffic commissioner's attack was made in the course of a speech at a testimonial dinner at the Hotel Bradford to James H. Brennan of the Governor's Council, at which Gov. Ely was the principal speaker

His remarks concerning the police commissioner climaxed a long standing feud between the two city officials resulting from differences over the cooperation of the police in enforcing parking regulations

Earlier in the day, after the traffic commissioner's meeting, Mr. Conry announced he will make no further statements to the press unless his associates concur. At the executive session, Conry is said to have been "censored" and "silenced," by other members, among them Commissioner Hultman

A more withering attack on the police commissioner was contained in a release sent by Conry as an abstract of the address he was to deliver at the Brennan dinner

In this statement Conry cited "three grand achievements of the police department" under the Hultman regime.

PREPARED ADDRESS

In his prepared address, which he omitted at the dinner last night, he said:

The three grand achievements of the police department may be readily summed up; first there was the dashing raid on the dark tenement down here behind this hotel, the gathering of the movie picture batteries, the glare of colored lights, the sledge man to the right, the reporters to the left, as the commissioner burst in to discover the art of making undiluted and non-synthetic gin.

The picture was printed in all the papers. It is rumored that a former Governor of Massachusetts purchased the original and is having it done over, enlarged to heroic proportions to be placed in his immortal annals.

Last Night on the Radio

BY O. M. STATIC

Some nights music seems to predominate on the various programmes and again it is oratory! Yesterday there seemed to be an unusual amount of the latter, beginning with the Prince of Wales early in the afternoon and going on to the Harvard-University of Chicago debate, the story of the Associated Press and other matters.

But, notwithstanding, there were many tuneful melodies. Pleasing to listen to was a programme in the early evening over Station WEEI. Marguerite Porter, soprano, with a voice of the sounds melodious even in its high range (something that not all sopranos accomplish) sang "Melody of My Heart" Stanley Benson, violin, played several obbligatos, the furnishing beautiful accompaniment.

the voice Sarah Miller, the pianist o the programme, also came through w

"Around the Samovar" (WNAC). The name itself suggests the music that might be expected on this programme. Yes, Russian of course, with all the plaintive quality as well as the fire o the melodies played on strange looking stringed instruments capable of muc expression in the hands of a skill performer. Somehow this writer alway associates Russian music with Russia dancers wearing boots into which the trousers are tucked, dancing on the heels with nimble skill and abando. Russian music seems as typically Russian as the music of the steel string guitar in Hawaiian.

Something of a more strictly classic nature than anything we heard earlier in the evening came (WEEI) when the General Electric Orchestra went on the air. Walter Damrosch introduced selections, declaring that wherever people go, no matter whether they like it or not, they are bound to hear jazz. The orchestra played what Damrosch described as a "novelty." The piece sounded to us like slow but glorified jazz, the time being accentuated by the drums. But for the most part the programme was purely classical, with such composers as Wagner, Haydn and Debussy featured.

Dean Gleason L. Archer (WEEI) in "Laws that Safeguard Society," gave his radio audience some legal facts in regard to what might be expected if some person in defending himself from an attack, retaliated with more vigor than necessary. He indicated that a person has a right to defend himself to a certain point. Beyond that point, which must be determined by the nature of the attack, danger lurks for the person who may be too strenuous in his or her defence. As we understood the broadcast, one may only use a deadly weapon in defence if such a weapon is in the offensive. In other words, there are circumstances where a person may be held for manslaughter, even if the other person was slain in defence, or what was considered a defence. In his talk last night he used several citations from the law to illustrate his thoughts.

And who ever knew a clam to engage in controversy?"

Conry said in opening his attack: A certain public official, police commissioner of Boston, unable to answer public criticism of the conduct of his department said he had "no desire to engage in newspaper controversy."

In Jeremiah, a book which I read many years ago, in my early days of political activity, I found the words "The Great Jehovah hath a controversy with the nations." It was controversy with Great Britain, led by Boston men, Adams and Otis and their illustrious associates, that ended in the establishment of the American republic—some 30 or 40 years later it was controversy in England that led to Catholic emancipation, it was controversy carried on by Boston men that led to the abolition of slavery in America, it is controversy carried on by a noble band of men and women, leaders of thought in Massachusetts, that will lead to the repeal of the 18th amendment, it was controversy that made Alfred E. Smith the foremost private figure in America's political history, it was controversy that made James M. Curley mayor of Boston, it was controversy that made Joseph B. Ely Governor of Massachusetts and controversy that made your distinguished guest member of the Governor's council.

A man who is not prepared to engage in controversy to answer charges against his department, has no place in the public life of America.

Boston is the sacred centre of controversy. The police commissioner of Boston is not a Bostonian, therefore he does not understand controversy. He is what we call a mattress voter, one who lives in the city for eligibility for political appointment, but prefers another centre for the delights of social life. He is alien of class, not race, he doesn't know the city of Boston and is now too old to learn.

ELY PAYS TRIBUTE

The reception and banquet was attended by more than 1000 friends and guests and more than a score of dignitaries.

Gov. Ely said that he was pleased to pay tribute to Councillor Brennan because he typifies what the Democrats have wanted to see for a long time, a young and vigorous member of the party in high political office. He said that Brennan, at the Wednesday conferences, helps him to "understand the intricacies of a metropolitan democracy, because up in the sticks we have a lot to learn. We're doing the best we can," he continued, "to persuade seven Republicans to come along with us. And we're not so bad."

He expressed the hope that in the near future the Democrats would have the House and Senate and said that then "there'll be sane and constructive legislation."

Concluding his remarks he said, "I have learned from a short experience you get more of a kick out of a Boston audience than anywhere else in the state. I might say that if the evening lasted long enough I do not believe in the 18th amendment."

Other speakers who eulogized the guest of honor included Dean Gleason L. Archer of the Suffolk law school; Fire Commissioner Edward P. McLaughlin; Asst. Dist. Atty. David Lasker of Suffolk county, Asst. Dist. Atty. Daniel J. Gillen; Mrs. Esther M. Andrews of the Governor's council; the Rev. Dr. Mark C. Driscoll, the Rev. Ralph W. Many Yale Students Seek Summer Jobs

NEW HAVEN, April 16 (AP)—Unemployment, according to the Yale Alumni Weekly, has spread even to the Yale campus, resulting in increasing applications to the bureau of appointments for part-time employment during the school term or for summer employment.

"Each afternoon anxious undergraduates, including many men who had previously spent their summers yachting on the sound or golfing at the various expensive resorts, form long lines outside the various offices of the employment departments in the search for money-making jobs for the summer," the weekly said.

According to the men who wait in the 'job lines' every afternoon, seven-eighths of the university is seeking employment, and only a small fraction is finding it."

BY PAULA PATTERSON

Patriots' Day nuptial calendar is blossoming with bridals, and the double holiday observance will be marked by interesting nuptials. At St. Gregory's, Milton, Miss Celeste Young and Mr. Daniel Francis Neville of Dorchester will wed at a nuptial mass for which the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Young, have issued invitations.

The bridegroom will be attended by his brother, Mr. Timothy Neville, to whom the ceremonial will be very familiar, as on Wednesday he was united in marriage with Miss Elizabeth G. Shaw at St. Ann's Church, Dorchester.

Miss Mary Breau of Mattapan will be maid of honor; and in the bridal procession also will be a cousin, Miss Marguerite Chippendale of Dorchester, and Mrs. Clarence Laverty (nee Harman). The ushers will be Messrs. Thomas K. Young, brother of the bride; Francis Breau, brother of the maid of honor; Florence and Henry McCarthy, cousins of the bridegroom-elect.

Of widespread interest throughout Greater Boston will be the announcement by Mrs. Mary A. McGrath, Salem, of the engagement of her daughter, Irene Catherine to Mr. Richard H. Rockett of Marblehead.

Miss McGrath was graduated from Roxbury Academy of Notre Dame and Emmanuel College. Her betrothed is a graduate of Boston College, and received his degree in law from Suffolk Law School. The wedding day has not been named.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver L. Plunkett, Dorchester, announce the engagement of their daughter, Mildred Lorence, to Mr. Richard J. McLaughlin, attorney, son of Mrs. Mary J. McLaughlin, Somerville.

DEATH CHAIR IS DEFENDED

Dean Gleason L. Archer of the Suffolk Law School in appearing before the Senate ways and means committee, vigorously opposed any proposal that would result in the abolition of capital punishment in Massachusetts.

He was speaking in connection with a hearing on the question of creating a special commission to study capital punishment in Massachusetts. Dean Archer argued that criminals do fear the electric chair but do not shudder equally as much at the thought of going to prison for life.

Atty. William G. Thompson, who favored a resolve calling for the creation of a special commission to study the merits and demerits of the present system of capital punishment charged that police, under the pressure of aroused public sentiment, would convict the wrong man in a murder case if they could not apprehend the real killer.

With an attendance of over 200 representing most of the towns of Greater Boston, a miscellaneous shower was given last night in the N. E. Spin Silk Hall, Brighton, for Miss Mary Cirignano of Allston, who will soon become the bride of Saro Campisi of 20 High street, Waltham.

The hall was pleasingly decorated with festoons and novelties in gold and orchid and an abundance of spring flowers. Miss Cirignano was presented with gifts of silverware, cut glass, electric appliances, linens, kitchen utensils and many other things.

During the evening there was a program of vocal and instrumental music and social dancing was enjoyed to orchestra music. Refreshments were served. The party was planned and successfully carried out by the Misses Lucille, Annette and Jane Ciriguano, sisters of Miss Mary. A graduate of the Brighton schools, Miss Cirignano is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Octavio Cirignano of 5 Callahan place. GEORGE E. MURPHY TAKES UP DUTIES

Lowell Man Sworn in as Deputy State Auditor After Confirmation by Council.

(Special to the Courier-Citizen.)

BOSTON, April 15—The appointment of George E. Murphy of Lowell to the position of first deputy state auditor was approved this morning by the governor's council. The appointment was made by State Auditor Francis X. Hurley. He succeeds Daniel C. Denniston of Waltham, who will become assistant to the director of the state division of accounts. Mr. Denniston's appointment to his new position was approved by the council at its session today. Mr. Murphy was sworn in by Governor Ely this afternoon.

The action of the governor's council in approving the appointment of Mr. Murphy is of more than ordinary interest. Shortly after taking office, State Auditor Hurley appointed Mr. Murphy to the position of first deputy auditor. The governor's council questioned the legality of the action with Mr. Denniston already holding the position. The matter was taken to the Supreme court, which ruled that Mr. Hurley was acting within his rights in appointing his first deputy. The salary for this position is $4500. The position to which Mr. Denniston was appointed carries a salary of $3180 a year.

Mr. Murphy is well known in Lowell. He graduated from the Lowell high school in the class of 1916 and later graduated from Wood's business college here. He received the degree of bachelor of commercial science from Northeastern university in 1920 and in 1923 was graduated from the Suffolk Law school. He is a member of the bar and a certified public accountant with offices in the Fairburn building in Lowell.

Death Penalty Worst Fear of Killer, Says Dean Archer in Scoring Its Foes

The death penalty is the one punishment that murderers fear, declared Dean Gleason L. Archer of the Suffolk Law School yesterday in urging that the state Senate committee on ways and means report adversely on the petition for a resolution calling for an investigation by a special commission on the merits and demerits of the present system of capital punishment.

He took the opposite view expressed earlier in the day by William G. Thompson, lawyer in the Sacco-Vanzetti case, who stressed the side of the defendants and went so far as to charge police, aroused by public sentiment and unable to convict the right man in a murder case, with attempting to convict the wrong man. Dean Archer spoke in behalf of the murdered victims.

"Who is asking you to do this?" he queried relating to the resolution. "Why the identical group that has been fighting in season and out of season for the abolition of capital punishment. Every year they come before you and are defeated. But they will not take 'no' for an answer. Then we must conclude that they see in the commission the hope of getting the question into a corner, of overwhelming the commission with eloquence and attaining a decision favorable to their contention."

"Remember, gentlemen, that this group is organized. They are carrying on in a more or less practical belief that Massachusetts made a mistake some years ago in electrocuting Sacco and Vanzetti, for whom they fought through long years of legal delays and commissions of investigation. Remember also, gentlemen, that the public has no one but volunteer defenders. Unless the Legislature stands between it, and any interested group the public interest must inevitably suffer."

He said that in Boston alone in the last 12 years, 12 policemen had been murdered, and in not a single incident had the killer been made to answer for the crime. Former Representative Samuel W. Mendum, W. Churchill of Arlington and Collins Graham of Belmont opposed the resolution. A letter from Police Chief William J. Quilty of Springfield also the resolve, was read.

Atty. Thompson told the committee that the system of handling capital cases was inadequate for present conditions, because the police have not the necessary mental qualifications to combat successfully the activities of the highly trained criminals. This has resulted, he added, in the collapse of the system of prosecuting murder cases.

OPPOSED TO ABOLISHING THE CHAIR

Archer Claims Fear of Death Deters Criminals

Declaring that there is a "carnival of murder" going on throughout the country, Dean Gleason L. Archer of the Suffolk Law School appeared late yesterday afternoon before the Senate ways and means committee and vigorously opposed any proposal that would result in the abolition of capital punishment in this Commonwealth.

SAYS CHAIR IS FEARED

He was speaking in connection with a hearing on the question of creating a special commission to study capital punishment in Massachusetts. The hearing lasted the entire day. Dean Archer argued that criminals do fear the electric chair but do not shudder equally as much at the thought of going to prison for life.

"Racketeers and gunmen and murderers," Dean Archer said, "have already organized themselves in many of our great cities. They are waging organized warfare upon society. Soon we may expect them to form a national federation with Al Capone as president. They might suitably name it the 'American Brotherhood of Bandits,' or the Amalgamated Association of Assassins."

It is an alarming fact that murder is becoming a safe and profitable occupation in the United States," he continued. According to statistics presented last year by the advocates of abolition, as an argument why we should abolish the death penalty, it was shown that only one murderer out of 90 or more is now executed for his crime. In other words, a man who commits a murder today knows that the chances are 90 to 1 that he will not be punished.

Life imprisonment is a sardonic joke to the modern murderer. He is sure of a vacation free from care or responsibility of any kind. The cold and hunger and hardship that honest folk are obliged to endure in these lean years of depression mean nothing at all to the non-paying guests of our jails and prisons.

Attorney William G. Thompson, counsel in the Sacco and Vanzetti case, who favored the resolve calling for the creation of a special commission to study the merits and demerits of the present system of capital punishment, charged that police, under the pressure of aroused public sentiment, would convict the wrong man in a murder case if they could not apprehend the real killer.

He also said that police today are not sharp and intelligent enough to cope with skilled criminals. He referred to the recent Cero and Gallo murder case in which the former was first convicted and then freed and Gallo was sent to the chair. The speaker declared that the system of justice in many States in this country is antiquated.

Young Changes View

Wendell F. Murray, a Boston trial lawyer, who has handled several murder cases, speaking in favor of the investigation, referred to the so-called Waltham car barn murder case in which three men went to the chair and another who was caught later received a life sentence despite the fact, according to the speaker, that the circumstances in the case were the same throughout.

In the opinion of B. Loring Young, former Speaker of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, the deterrent effect of capital punishment is "negligible." Young is a member of the State Board of Probation and thenceforth he has always been opposed to the abolition of capital punishment. He expressed the conviction that few murderers plan the crime, explaining in his opinion most murders are committed spontaneously in the heat of passion.

Herbert Parsons, head of the State Probation Board, and the Rev. Spence Burton, a former prison chaplain, also favored creation of the special commission. The former said that it is time the Legislature discontinues holding "annual bouts" on the subject. The committee took the matter under advisement.

PUTS POLICE ABILITY BELOW CRIMINALS'

Thompson Speaks on Bill for Death Penalty Inquiry

Dean Archer Says Murder Becoming Safe and Profitable Occupation

Police have not the mental qualifications to combat the activities of highly trained criminals, William G. Thompson, Boston lawyer, declared yesterday before the Ways and Means Committee of the State Senate, which was considering a bill suggesting that a special recess commission investigate the advisability of doing away with capital punishment in Massachusetts.

Other speakers charged that the police, under pressure of public sentiment, often try to convict innocent men when they cannot convict the guilty.

"Life Imprisonment a Joke" Gleason L. Archer, dean of the Suffolk Law School, said: "It is an alarming fact that murder is becoming a safe and profitable occupation in the United States. Life imprisonment is a sardonic joke to the modern murderer. He is sure of a vacation free from care or responsibility of any kind when he is given a life sentence. The cold and hunger and hardship that honest folk are obliged to endure in these lean years of depression mean nothing at all to the non-paying guests of our jails and prisons. We wax sentimental over the sanctity of human life if it is the life of a murderer."

In the last 12 years, Dean Archer pointed out, 12 policemen have been murdered in Boston, "and not a single killer of these brave defenders of the people has ever been made to answer for his crime," he said.

Dean Archer expressed the opinion that capital punishment should remain.

Clergymen Favor Inquiry

Dr. Samuel A. Elliot of Boston pointed out that Denmark, Sweden and Norway have abolished capital punishment and he thought Massachusetts should at least investigate the merits of the question.

Rev. Spence Burton of the Cowley Fathers, a former prison chaplain, said that he favored capital punishment until he came in direct contact with prisoners. "I found," he said, "that murderers are not especially interested in death, either for themselves or for others."

Dr. Winfred Overholser, deputy commissioner in the department of mental diseases and well-known psychiatrist, favored the investigation and Representative P. J. Moore of Pittsfield, Dr. A. Warren Stearns, commissioner of correction, was recorded also in favor.

Needless, Declares Holmes

Senator Newland H. Holmes of Weymouth, in opposition, said the inquiry is absolutely needless and called attention to the few votes in favor of the abolition of capital punishment in the past recorded in the Legislature.

Samuel W. Mendum, ex-member of the Legislature, W. Churchill of Arlington, Collins Graham of Belmont spoke in opposition.

Eben W. Burnstead, representing the Massachusetts Civic Alliance, read a letter from Chief of Police William J. Quilty of Springfield in which the latter declared that he desired to go on record as opposed to any amendment to the law that would do away with capital punishment. Mr. Burnstead felt that conditions in Massachusetts are satisfactory and should not be changed. He read a list of States where, he said, capital punishment had been abolished and later again put in the statutes.

BOSTON SUNDAY POST, MARCH 8, 1931

BY O. M. STATIC

Something in the interesting talk last night of Dean Gleason L. Archer, of the Suffolk Law School, indicated the importance of consulting a good lawyer in the event one has any immediate prospects of shooting at an intruder, because, it seems, shooting at him within the walls of your home and shooting at him out on the lawn, makes a subtle legal difference, WEAF-WEEL.

Dean Archer helps to clarify to the sometimes bewildered lay mind some of the curious mental phenomena that have developed from the decalogue to Blackstone and Massachusetts statutes in the effort through the centuries to define the soft nuances between what is right and what is wrong.

There was even the question last night whether one's vegetable shed is part of one's home and if so is the shooting of an intruder in that place manslaughter or defence of the home. And is a merely angry neighbor, come to have it out, in the same classification with a burglar after the death-dealing bullet has done its work? Self-defence, you learn, is a term with many meanings.

DRYS DO HONOR TO DR. CABOT

He Thinks Anti-Saloon League Should Be Popular Even With Wets

COURTENAY GUILD PRESIDES AT FEAST

Dr. Richard C. Cabot at a luncheon given in his honor yesterday at the chamber of commerce, declared that he held "one of the most fortunate positions in the world as president of the Massachusetts Anti-Saloon League." Courtenay Guild presided at the luncheon which besides honoring the president of the league had as its purpose the outlining of the dry program for this state, and the financial support needed.

The statement by Dr. Cabot that the 18th amendment is not in danger of repeal in spite of Massachusetts voting wrong and being wet, met with considerable cheers. Applause also followed the remark of his address that "the privileged class which is opposing prohibition has created the lawlessness of which it now complains and which it gives as the reason for repealing the 18th amendment." The appointment of a finding committee was asked by Dr. Cabot to devise some means of discovering "why the big business men of the country believe in prohibition and patronize bootleggers."

Dr. Cabot's address, in part, was: I feel that I am in the most fortunate position in the world as president of the Anti-Saloon League of Massachusetts. This league stands against the saloon and it should be very popular, for today every one stands against the return of the saloon. The wets have taken this position, and we cannot accuse them of insincerity until they have proved themselves insincere. The drys have always held that position, therefore the organization which helped to banish the saloon should be very popular.

In spite of Massachusetts voting wrong and being wet, the 18th amendment is not in danger of being repealed. The danger is not to the amendment, it is to the community from the reign of lawlessness brought by the wets.

Among those who attended the luncheon were: Dagn Gleason, L Archer, Mrs. Roland W. Baker, Alexander Bill, Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, C. O. Blood, Mrs. Julian Lowell Coolidge, Miss Frances G. Curtis, Mrs. W. S. Day, John C. L. Dowling, Miss Eugenia B. Frothingham, John L. Grandin, Courtenay Guild, Mrs. Francis B. Dr. Cabot Honored at Luncheon by Drys

Dr. Richard C. Cabot told more than a hundred prominent men and women yesterday at a luncheon at the Chamber of Commerce that he believed that he holds "one of the most fortunate positions in the world as president of the Massachusetts Anti-Saloon League." The luncheon was given in Dr. Cabot's honor, its purpose being to greet him as the new leader of the dry forces of Massachusetts, to listen to the program that the drys have outlined for this State and to secure financial support for this program.

Dr. Cabot was cheered when he declared that "the privileged class which is opposing prohibition has created the lawlessness of which it now complains and which it gives as the reason for repealing the Eighteenth Amendment." He was again cheered when he stated that the Eighteenth Amendment is not in danger of repeal "in spite of Massachusetts voting wrong and being wet," and also when he stated that a finding committee be appointed or some means devised to discover "why the big business men of the country believe in prohibition and patronize bootleggers."

"They know," said the speaker, "that prohibition is essential for the business and economic welfare and progress of the nation. Recently I talked to a personnel director of one of the big corporations. He told me that in this corporation nearly all the personnel directors were in favor of retaining prohibition as a welfare and safety measure, and yet many of their officials appear as wets. I think part of the program of the drys should be to smoke out these men who believe in prohibition and patronize the bootleggers."

Dr. Cabot said that the Anti-Saloon League stands against the saloon, "and it should be very popular, for today everybody stands against the return of the saloon. The wets have taken this position, and we cannot accuse them of insincerity until they have proved themselves insincere. The drys have always held that position, therefore the organization which helped to banish the saloon should be very popular."

Arthur J. Davis, State superintendent of the league, said that the danger to prohibition is not in the presidential election, but in what the coming generation knows of the nature and effects of alcohol on the human system. Deleware King of Quincy made an appeal for wider financial support of the league program, to show enthusiasm in terms of dollars and to back up Dr. Cabot in his work.

Among those who attended the meeting were: Dean Gleason L. Ancher, Mrs. Roland W. Baker, Alexander Bill, Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, C. O. Blood, Mrs. Julian Lowell Coolidge, Miss Frances G. Curtis, Mrs. William S. Day, John C. L. Dowling, Miss Eugene P. Frothingham, John L. Grandin, Courtenay Guild, Mrs. Francis B. Boston, April 14—Dr. Richard C. Cabot told more than 100 prominent men and women yesterday at a luncheon at the Chamber of Commerce that he believed that he holds "one of the most fortunate positions in the world as president of the Massachusetts Anti-Saloon league."

The luncheon was given in Dr. Cabot's honor and its purpose was to greet him as the new leader of the dry forces of Massachusetts; to listen to the program that the dries have outlined for this state and to secure financial support for this program. Courtenay Guild presided at the luncheon, and introduced Dr. Cabot as one of the leading men in his profession and one of the greatest social welfare figures of the time.

The affair was in the nature of a social gathering and many men and women whose names appear in the social register were present. Dr. Cabot received an ovation and when in the course of his address he declared that "the privileged class which is opposing prohibition has created the lawlessness of which it now complains and which it gives as the reason for repealing the 18th amendment," he was greeted with a burst of cheers. He was again cheered when he stated that the 18th amendment is not in danger of repeal "in spite of Massachusetts voting wrong and being wet."

Tremendous enthusiasm was shown until they have proved of themselves insincere. The dries have held that position, therefore the organization which helped to create the saloon should be very popular. It is popular with me because my interest for many years has been bound up with the less privileged class of the country which prohibition has helped. As a physician and teacher of social ethics I have had the necessity for this reform forced upon me. I have yet to meet anyone whose job has brought him face to face with the less privileged class who does not hold as I do.

He was again cheered when he stated that the 18th amendment is not in danger of repeal "in spite of Massachusetts voting wrong and being wet."

Tremendous enthusiasm was shown throughout the luncheon. One of the greatest bursts of applause came when Dr. Cabot asked that a finding committee be appointed or some means devised to discover why the big business men of the country believe in prohibition and patronize bootleggers.

"They know," said the speaker, "that prohibition is essential for the business and economic welfare and progress of the nation. Recently I talked to a personal director of one of the big corporations. He told me that in this corporation nearly all the personnel directors were in favor of retaining prohibition as a welfare and safety measure and yet many of their officials appear as wets. I think part of the program of the dries should be to smoke out these men who believe in prohibition and patronize bootleggers." Dr. Cabot said in part:

"I feel that I am in the Most Fortunate Position in the world as president of the Anti-Saloon League of Massachusetts. The Anti-Saloon league stands against the saloon, and it should be very popular, for today everybody stands against the return of the saloon. Wets have taken this position, and they can not accuse them of anything, until they have proved themselves insincere. The dries have held that position, therefore the organization which helped to banish the saloon should be very popular. It is popular with me because my interest for many years has been bound up with the less privileged class of the country which prohibition has helped. As a physician and teacher of social ethics I have had the necessity for this reform forced upon me. I have yet to meet anyone whose job has brought him face to face with the less privileged class who does not hold as I do.

The wets and dries are facing an entirely different set of facts. The wets are asking repeal because of the lawlessness brought about by the privileged class. The dries face the facts of the great good that prohibition has done to the less privileged class.

"The task of the Anti-Saloon league as I see it should be divided into two parts, first to make a much-needed survey of why the business men of the state, knowing that prohibition is an economic and welfare measure are wet themselves, and why the newspapers which are controlled by business men are wet. Why is it that we do not find our business men who are today reaping financial benefits which have come from closing the saloons, standing for this law. We face the need of understanding the strange state of mind of these men who believe in prohibition and believe in bootleggers.

"The next job is the age-long, perpetual job of education. I do not know what the dries can do that is more in keeping with the spirit of this country which bases its faith upon education, than to continue to give the facts about the nature and effects of alcohol to the people and give them an understanding of the benefits that have come from the law even imperfectly enforced.

"In spite of Massachusetts voting wrong and being wet, the eighteenth amendment is not in danger of being repealed. The danger is not to the amendment, it is to the community from the reign of lawlessness brought about by the wets."

Dean of Law School Addresses Men's Club

Gleason L. Archer, dean of the Suffolk Law School, Boston, and well known as a radio speaker, addressed the April meeting of the Revere Men's Club in Butler Hall Monday night on "Laws and Law Enforcement." He talked and answered questions for about an hour. In opening his interesting and instructive address, Dean Archer mentioned that his broadcast takes in 38 stations and reaches from 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 people. He has received thousands of letters from listeners in the United States, also letters from Canada, Scotland, Bermuda and a South American country.

The speaker asserted that without law enforcement civilization would collapse like a house of cards. The underworld is a seething volcano ready to break out if enforcement of laws stopped. Men must surrender some of their personal liberty for the benefit of all other men and women. The welfare of all the people must take precedence over that of the few. Bootleggers would have to stop business if their customers became law-abiding citizens. Every person is entitled to protection from the lawless. The Boston police strike of 1919 was an instance where law was released and amounted to an invitation to the criminal class to loot stores and commit other offenses. Instead of coddling criminals they should be treated as criminals. If a police officer in discharging of his duty and in self-defence shoots a person, he is branded by the yellow press as a coward, but if an officer is shot by a bandit there isn't much comment on the tragedy. Only one murderer out of 90 is put to death.

A rising vote of thanks was given Dean Archer. A donation of $10 was voted the Revere Visiting Nurse Association.

The May meeting of the club will be observed as ladies' night with a banquet, speaker and entertainment.

829 COMPLETE NIGHT CLASS STUDY

8450 Awarded Certificate of Proficiency at Exercises

A grandmother and a score of men and women more than 40 years old were among the 829 given diplomas for completion of elementary and high work at graduation exercises in the city's evening schools.

A total of 8450 certificates of proficiency in study were also awarded. The grandmother who was graduated was Mrs. Emma Saperia, 56, of 14 Chelsea st., East Boston, who has four sons and three grandchildren. She was graduated from the Joseph H. Barne evening school, East Boston, in a class that totaled 56. One son and two granddaughters of Mrs. Saperia attend day school. Mrs. Saperia was also the oldest known elementary school graduate.

HAS SON STUDYING LAW

The second oldest to graduate was Mrs. Fannie Pollack, 54, mother, who received her diploma from the Washington evening school, West End.

The third oldest graduate, Mrs. Lily Borison, 49, of 10 Hildreth, st. Mattapan, attained the highest grades possible in all her subjects. She was termed an exceptional student at the Roger Wolcott evening school, Dorchester.

Mrs. Borison is the mother of two boys who are attending Suffolk Law School and the Boston University College of Business Administration. Though born in New York, she never had the opportunity to go to school, being the oldest child in a family of 22. Though ambitious, she had put herself in the background until her sons, now 26 and 22, had their start. She says she will go to high school and then to Boston University.

MAN AND WIFE GRADUATE

A checkup of similar names on the lists of graduates revealed that there were about 22 sets of brothers and sisters.

A husband and wife were among those graduated from the Comin' evening school, Roxbury Crossing, Entering Theodore Roosevelt school-branch near Egleston sq. last fall. Hovhannes Murgditchian, 42, and his wife, Beatrice, 33, who are of Armenian descent, finished their course in one year. The couple have three children attending day school.

He served at the Mexican border as second lieutenant of the 5th Infantry, and was transferred in July, 1917, to Co B, 101st Infantry, serving 18 months with A. E. F. He was twice wounded and sent to the hospital, and each time required to be sent back to his company.

Mr Irving always avoids talking of his service in the war. He wears a bronze button which identifies him as a World War veteran, but he is entitled to wear the silver button of the wounded and gassed veterans. Capt Irving took part in the Chateau-Thierry, Meuse Argonne and St Michel battles, being wounded in the first two.

He was appointed an assistant clerk at the Charlestown Court eight years ago. He is a member of the Army and Navy Club. He attended the Bunker Hill and Charlestown High Schools.

RECEIVER OF 5 BANKS IS MISSING

Accounts in Muddled Shape—Huge Sum Is Involved

Guy L. Vaughan of 24 Pinckney street, Beacon Hill, with offices in the Exchange building, who was removed yesterday by the Supreme Court from his receivership of five defunct private banks, and whom the bank commissioner declared to be missing, was reported last night by his family in Melrose as being in Washington.

Vaughan's accounts in the five bank receiverships were found by the bank commissioner to show an intermingling of assets, and a generally involved condition, but no charge was filed against him.

Frederick D. Bonner of the law firm of Hill, Ferrick & Bonner was appointed temporary receiver in his place, with instructions to straighten out the tangle and take whatever action might be found necessary.

The five banks of which Vaughan was receiver, and whose accounts now are in a muddle, according to the bank commissioner, are the Andrea DiPietro Company of Boston, the First Bankers Union, Inc., of Boston, the Nonantum Bankers Company and Amato Pescosolido & Co. of Newton, and Fabrizio Pitocchelli of Lawrence. The liabilities of the closed banks totaled some $427,000, the bank commissioner said. Vaughan was bonded for $125,000.

Lived in Fine Style

Vaughan lived in comparative luxury in his rented house at 24 Pinckney street, where his principal living quarters was a large studio, and where he maintained a Japanese man servant. He had lived there three years, moving from the Back Bay. Up to five years ago he lived with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Vaughan, at 83 Cedar park, Melrose.

The bank commissioner, Arthur Guy, in announcing to the court the absence of Vaughan, said that he had been missing since April 1. No trace had been found of him, and it was stated that crumpled papers, ostensibly pertaining to the records of the defunct banks under his care, had been found in his Beacon Hill apartments.

Reported in Washington

Vaughan was said last night by his father to have been in Washington a month on business, but was ill when last heard from. His address there was not known, the elder Vaughan said, and although it was confidently stated he would return as soon as his business was finished, no date had been mentioned in Vaughan's letters home.

Vaughan is a graduate of the Suffolk Law School, and was considered one of the keen young minds in the legal profession in Boston. He is only 35 years old. He had assisted Henry O. Cushman, the liquidating agent, in winding up the affairs of the Cosmopolitan Trust Company. He had been awarded a fee of $18,000 for acting as counsel for the former bank commissioner, Roy A. Hovey, in the liquidation of the Hampshire County Trust Company in Northampton, and his ability was recognized generally.

Bank Commissioner Guy informed Supreme Court Justice Edward F. Prince yesterday, in petitioning for the appointment of a temporary receiver to straighten out Vaughan's bank records, that an investigation into them, made upon receipt of a complaint, showed evidence of negligent management and maladministration.

RECEIVE DEGREES AT SUFFOLK SCHOOL

Among those who graduated last night from Suffolk Law school in Boston were three Lowell men, Hubert L. McLaughlin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert A. McLaughlin of 367 High street; Archie Barlofsky of 71 Dover street; and Ralph P. Coates of Chelmsford. Mr. McLaughlin however will not receive his degree until June 22 because he is not yet 21 years of age, which is requisite by law for the reception of a bachelor of law degree.

Mr. McLaughlin is a graduate of the Lowell high school and has been connected with the state department of labor and industry while studying law nights. While a matriculant at Suffolk, he excelled in all his studies and attained a place on the dean's list at graduation. He was also active as secretary of the class finance committee and delivered the class prophecy at the class day exercises which were held in Tremont Temple yesterday. For the present Mr. McLaughlin will remain in his state position.

Mr. Barlofsky, who is a well known local grocer, is also a graduate of the Lowell high school and of the Lowell Textile Institute, holding a degree of bachelor of textile engineering. His high scholastic record at law school kept him on the dean's list for the major part of his four years of study.

Ralph P. Coates, who resides in Chelmsford, has his business connections in this city. He is a graduate of Easthampton high school and of Bates college where he received the bachelor of arts degree in 1919. He was principal of the Chelmsford high school for nine years. While at Suffolk, he excelled in all his studies and

ELY APPOINTS MORGAN T. RYAN AS MOTOR VEHICLES REGISTRAR

Governor Names His Assistant Secretary to Succeed Parker—Raymond J. Kenney, Lowell, Promoted from Chief Warden to Head of Fish and Game Division

(Special to The Standard)

Boston, June 25—Morgan T. Ryan, 33 year old Boston attorney and one of Governor Ely's assistant secretaries, was nominated by the governor yesterday to be registrar of motor vehicles.

Kenney Succeeds Adams.

His name was submitted late in the afternoon to the Executive council assembled in special session after the governor had engaged in a day-long quest to persuade several others to accept the position. The council will act on the nomination next week.

Earlier in the day at the regular council meeting the governor nominated Raymond J. Kenney of Lowell to be director of the division of fisheries and game in the state Department of Conservation. He also reappointed Chester E. Gleason of Pittsfield to the Industrial Accident board.

Kenney has been serving as chief warden of the division in which he now becomes head. He will succeed Director William C. Adams whose resignation, submitted to accept a similar post in New York states, becomes effective next week. Representative Ernest J. Dean of Chilmark was a candidate for the game directorship.

Ryan worked his way through Boston college, Harvard, and Boston university schools as a private chauffeur. His employer was a New York millionaire, "who liked to get there in a hurry," but Mr. Ryan filed his job so capably that he was only arrested once for speeding. That was in in Knight of Columbus circles when he won the oratorical contest conducted by that organization in 1922.

Following his graduation and admission to the bar, he took up practice with B. H. Greenwood. He is a member of the Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters, Phi Delta Phi legal fraternity, and Boston College Alumni association. His recreations are golf, tennis and swimming.

Kenney Is Chief Warden.

Mr. Kenney is at present chief warden of the division of fisheries and game, Department of Conservation, at a salary of $3,100. His promotion to be chief of the division means a substantial increase in income, as the director's salary is $5,000.

He will be in complete charge of the administration of the fish and game laws, controlling four game farms and six fish hatcheries, and directing the activities of the state supervisor of Marine Fisheries and the state inspector of fish.

Mr. Kenney was born in Lowell May 26, 1898. He resides at 1 West View street, that city, and is single.

He has had an extended education, beginning in the public schools of Lowell, including the High school from which he was graduated in 1915 with honors. He was graduated from the Lowell Textile school in 1917. Later he attended the Morgan School of Accounting and Finance in Boston, being graduated in 1926. He then took a postgraduate course in advanced accounting in the College of Business Administration at Northeastern university and is now a member of the junior class of the Suffolk Law school where he is preparing for admission to the bar.

Employed by Bank.

After his graduation from High school Mr. Kenney entered the employ of the Merrimack River Savings bank in Lowell and in 1915 became secretary of the chemistry department of the Lowell Textile school, remaining three years.

In September, 1918, he entered the employ of the state as assistant to the chief deputy under the old Board of Commissioners on Fisheries and Game. On June 1, 1921, he became deputy chief warden of the present division and June 1, 1930, chief warden in charge of enforcement at

The special committee on grading and other work at the Junior High School voted last night to recommend the awarding of a contract for the work to James E. Gray of Cambridge, who was third from lowest bidder, at a cost of $15,234.90. The low bidder was P. J. Joyce & Son of Cambridge, with a figure of $13,429.47, and the second bidder was the Wellesley Excavating Company, $13,951.60. The difference between the low bidder and James E. Gray was $1604.33. There was a long drawn out discussion over the awarding of the contract. The session of the committee lasted for nearly three hours, Chairman John R. Joyce and Miss Gertrude Shea being in favor of James E. Gray, and Michael J. Curran and James F. McLaughlin being in favor of the lower bidder. Mr. McLaughlin finally voted in favor of awarding to Mr. Gray. The vote is in the form of a recommendation to Mayor Peterson, who will award the contract.

...nowadays no... years" in politics...
...state. Maybe this ought to be an off year, because there is no election in it; but it is nothing of the kind. Down at this end of the state, certainly, politics is seething, in both parties.

Over on the Democratic side opinion is divided as to whether or not Alfred Emanuel Smith of New York is to be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President. The strongest indication that he is not in the race—that is, that he will refuse to let himself be considered a candidate,—is the open activity of certain influential and ambitious Democrats in behalf of the candidacy of Franklin Delano Roosevelt—who also has not yet said that he is a candidate, though few doubt it. When James Michael Curley comes forth in active championship of the Roosevelt cause, and when such a group as the new Roosevelt-for-President League of Massachusetts files its list of officers at the State House, it is a fair inference that the Smith candidacy is not to be. The best that David Ignatius Walsh, than whom no Democrat could be more cautious, could do at the luncheon given by Edward Mandell House at Magnolia this week, was to say that "next to Smith, of course, I am for Roosevelt." Senator Marcus Allen (not Aurelius) Coolidge is in a similar frame of mind.

It's a Smith State

Now, there is not the slightest doubt that this is, Democratically speaking, if not more so, a Smith state. If Governor Smith allows the use of his name as a candidate, there will be no two ways about it in Massachusetts, and the Roosevelt boom here will blow up like a toy balloon. There is every indication now, however, that Governor Smith will not allow his name used. Hence the activity in behalf of Roosevelt in Massachusetts. A good deal of his strength among the Democrats of this state comes from the work he did in Al Smith's behalf.

Meantime, what about the prominence given to our own James Michael Curley in the national arena? There are some "Roosevelt-Curley" buttons still around. Geographically it looks bad, of course, as the Mayor was quick to point out in undertaking to squelch the talk of running him second place on the ticket. Still, you never can tell. These are strange days politically. Meantime we may recall, despite the Mayor's sincere condemnation of the Roosevelt-Curley boom as "unwise," the engaging story, which we may have told before, of the parishioner who warned his pastor that so much flattery as was showered upon him might turn his head. "There's no danger of that," said the good man. "It all runs off me like water off a duck's back."

"Sure," said the other, "but the duck likes it."

That politics is warming up is shown by the tenor of some of the speeches and addresses we have heard hereabouts lately. For instance, when Mr. Curley spoke in the Charlestown armory on the eve of Bunker Hill day—a patriotic and presumably non-political occasion—he took the opportunity to whack the President. Also, when United States Senator Daniel O. Hastings of Delaware, Republican, was addressing the graduation class of the Suffolk Law school—likewise a presumably

...three or four ballots have failed to ident Hoover, the idea apparently being that would stampede the convention. Maybe it uld, maybe not.

An inference has been drawn from Mr. Coolidge's speech at Marion, Ohio, to the effect that his warm praise for President Hoover meant that he is not to be considered at all. It's risky work, drawing inferences from what Mr. Coolidge says in his speeches. When he has anything definite to say he makes himself very clear. We cannot find in the reports of his Marion remarks anything that necessarily means he is irrevocably out of all presidential consideration. Of course he would not allow his name to be placed before the convention against Mr. Hoover; but that's quite different from refusing (by quick telegram) if someone should rise on his hind legs among the assembled delegates and shout "Coolidge and Prosperity."

All of which is not idle chatter, but a translation of a good deal of talk that is going on around among the frequenters of various parts of the State House. The only unsympathetic interpretation of the Marion speech that we have heard up here is that his rather generous praise for President Harding won't do him (Mr. Coolidge) any good at all. Warren Gamaliel Harding is dead, and he was President of the United States, but there is no great glory in extolling him for what he was not.

The weeks roll around, and still the state registrar of motor vehicles continues to register. It's a guess if the savage attack made upon him by his predecessor in that office, Frank Goodwin, will or will not expedite the appointment of a new registrar. The best guess is that it clinches Captain Parker in his post for a time—at least until the dust settles. If Governor Ely were now promptly to put a new man in Captain Parker's place the word would certainly go about these Beacon Hill corridors that Frank Goodwin had pushed him into action. Governor Ely is a hard man to push.

Hard for an "Ex" to Forget

It is a curious fact of politics that one of the hardest things for any man who has held public office to do is to forget that he is no longer in that office. Frank Goodwin, a man of exceptional energy and the most positive opinions, quite naturally finds himself thinking as registrar of motor vehicles. He cannot help it. There is the even more notable case of former Governor Fuller, who undoubtedly chafes at inactivity, and who has demonstrated frequently that he still thinks with a gubernatorial mind. Another notable instance this year has been Henry Shattuck, one of the ablest men who have sat on Beacon Hill in this generation. He showed during the session the eagerness of a former ruler still to rule.

Frank Gilman Allen is an exception to this. He has been out of office nearly six months, but he has avoided every opportunity to say a word on the way things are going in the State House or in the Republican party. We have heard him make several addresses since his retirement from the governorship, and in none of them have we detected even the slightest political flavor. Maybe this is good judgment, too. The whirligig of time works political wonders, and though there is not a vestige of any present sign that there will be a call for the re-entry of Mr. Allen, this is entirely possible.

Luce to Face Dallinger

Battle Royal in Prospect for Republican Congressional Nomination as Result of Redistricting — Politics Warming Up—The Roosevelt-Curley Talk

By BEACON HILL

BOSTON, June 20.—Frederick William Dallinger is back from ten weeks spent in observing various matters in Europe, possibly the political problems thereof, and though he has issued a pungent statement regarding the redistricting bill which tosses him and Congressman Robert Luce into the same district, he has not a word to say about any plans for his entrance to the lists as contender (a) for the lieutenant-governorship or (b) the governorship.

What will happen in the district is this: Both Mr. Luce and Mr. Dallinger will go before the voters for the Republican nomination to Congress, and the voters will decide which is the one to remain in Washington. There will be no withdrawals, no diversions, no digressions, no "promotions" and no bargains.

Well, why not? Here are two men particularly fitted for the offices they hold. Mr. Dallinger has been continuously in Congress from 1915 to date, except for a brief interlude when he was one of the three candidates for the Republican nomination for the Senate—the others, it will be recalled, being Frederick Huntington Gillett (we hope you'll accent the first syllable, because that's right, or used to be) and Louis Coolidge. It will be also recalled that the successor to Congressman Dallinger died soon after his election, and that Mr. Dallinger was then promptly re-elected to his old seat.

Robert Luce has served in Congress since 1919. It is a queer freak of circumstances that these particular two men should, now have the disagreeable necessity of facing each other, one to win, one to lose; queer, because they represent quite similar ideals in public life. Both are of conspicuous integrity, exceptional ability, and unusual diligence. Both are dry—and neither is a fanatic on the question. Both have been dry since long before there was any special political significance in it. Both have written authoritative works on government. Both have held important committee positions. Both have large influence in Congress, due to their personal qualities and to their long service with its consequent familiarity with national legislative problems.

So we are to have what may fairly be called a battle royal. It is at least a gratifying thought to the Republicans concerned by residence in the new district, and to the state at large which they also serve, that whichever wins, he will be eminently worthy of the office.

non-political occasion,—he prophesied a Republican victory in 1932

Incidentally, why do occasional Senators and Representatives join in the chorus of swatting Congress? After expressing the thought that "nothing could be worse for business right now than an extra session of Congress," Senator Hastings added that it might not do any great harm if the next Congress did not meet at all.

Congressman Joseph William Martin, Jr, not long ago expressed his antipathy to the idea of a special session, but forebore to say that Congress ought to quit altogether. Congressman Charles Aubrey Eaton of New Jersey, however, improvising on the same theme, went farther and said that "it would be a great advantage to the country if we could omit the next regular session of Congress, let alone a special session."

We have had an abundance of presidential possibilities in and about Boston lately, — Franklin Roosevelt, Newton Diehl Baker, John William Lewis, for instance. Also, Dwight Whitney Morrow. And of course Calvin the Silent we have ever with us

Senator Morrow has been up at Hanover gathering in an honorary degree from Dartmouth—LL. D. There's a good story of Senator Morrow, that we commend to any man who has been scoffed at for forgetfulness. The story is that Mr. Morrow was traveling on a railroad train in New Jersey and could not find his ticket. "Oh, that's all right, Mr. Morrow," said the conductor, "you can let me have it some other time. It's all right."

"No, it isn't all right," said the Senator, "I've forgotten where I'm supposed to be going"

There's a lot of satisfaction in that story.

Boston's Bid for Convention

How far will Amos Taylor get with his plea for holding the 1932 Republican convention here in Boston? There are three reasons for hope, that used not to exist: The city has an adequate auditorium in the Garden. It has added hotel facilities. It has demonstrated its ability to handle a great crowd, in the case of the American Legion gathering. It may be added that Boston's climate is endurable in June—which is more than can be said for some of the places that have been picked for conventions—by both parties—in the past.

It has always seemed too bad that political conventions are held in conditions of physical discomfort, as usually is the case. If it is of any value to keep the nerves of delegates reasonably calm, and their health good, why not pick out a convention city with that thought in mind?

Perhaps the possibility that the name of Mr. Coolidge might come before the convention may operate against a Boston choice. That possibility still exists, and we plan to get

FINGER WINS ESSAY CONTEST

Gives Local A. Z. A. Head Right to Enter National Contest

Alexander Finger, president of the local chapter of A. Z. A. was awarded first prize in the annual essay contest of the Y. M. and Y. W. H. A.'s of District No. 2, according to an announcement made at the monthly meeting of the district held in the Everett Community Center Sunday evening

He is now entered in the New England competition which entitles the winner to be entered in the national contest "The Future of Judaism in America" was the subject of Finger's thesis and in it he expounds the belief that even though the three recognized divisions of modern Jewry, Orthodox, Conservative and Reform, may differ widely in the ritual performance of Judaism, nevertheless they still maintain those ethical and moral obligations which every Jew assumes, for its background, and these moral and ethical obligations will never fail to bind into one common brotherhood the three different classifications of Judaism.

Finger is a sophomore in the Hebrew Teachers' College of Boston and is a second year student in the Suffolk Law School. He is active in extra-curricular activities in the former institution, having served on the Student Council. He was a member of the Chelsea Maccabee Club, which when in existence was one of the outstanding intermediate clubs meeting at the local Y. M. H. A.

He was a delegate to the first Eastern District A. Z. A. convention held in Springfield a year and a half ago and for the past six months has been president of the local chapter.

It is interesting to note that a precedent is being established in the local chapter by the president being a winner of one prize or another. Last fall, Harry Cushing, at that time president of the local chapter of A. Z. A., was awarded the Harry H. Lapidus Award for being the outstanding communal worker in the country, taking into consideration his youth and experience. Finger now follows with an essay prize which points to possible success in the future competitions.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Finger of 91 Sixth st.

Massachusetts Women's Clubs at Work

XXIV — Concord — XXIV

Fusing New Citizenry with Old Ways, for a Future Worthy of Concord's Past

By Rebecca Farnham

HOW times do change! Thirty-six years ago Concord was so far from Boston for all practical purposes that the Woman's Club of that town was formed by Mrs. Edward C. Damon to supply for the 184 charter members a few of the cultural and social advantages of the big city. Today automobiles, busses and improved train service have cut the distance to a fraction. Trips to Boston theaters and concert halls no longer need be occasional treats. The original object—to furnish "educational and social" advantages—is outgrown. And Concord has changed, too. Alcott, Emerson, Thoreau are treasured memories, and an aristocracy of New England letters has given way to an aristocracy of the soil. For isn't the market garden the blue blood of agriculture? Or has that nothing to do with the price of strawberries and asparagus?

The vineyards of Italy, the berry fields of Finland and Norway have contributed good husbandmen. Peoples who have a "genius for making things grow," as admiring Anglo-Saxons often have been heard to comment are now represented in large numbers in this prosperous community. The inevitable problems of adjustment result, and in trying to solve these the Woman's Club has broadened its aim to add "philanthropic" to the "educational and social" object as originally stated.

Mrs. Edward H. James, chairman of interracial unity, whose husband, nephew of William James, is in India as an aide to Gandhi, watched the infusion of rich peasant blood from countries where art has flourished for centuries. Vitally interested in preserving and cultivating the new values which had come to Concord, Mrs. James influenced the club along lines of Americanization work.

First the Concord night school came into being in 1923. It was the Concord Woman's Club which established that night school and furnished volunteer teachers from its own members. Rudiments of history and English, necessary for passing the examinations for United States citizenship, were taught. From an enrollment of about thirty-five pupils to begin with, the school rapidly grew, welcoming the foreign-born from both Concord and West Concord.

By 1927 public attention had been caught and public conscience aroused to such an extent that the school committee sent the volunteer teacher, Miss Emma F. Clahane, to Hyannis for a summer course in methods of teaching the foreign-born. Upon her return she was put in charge of the Americanization classes under town management. The club's responsibility was at an end.

Returns from the investment are now beginning to trickle in. Women graduates of the night school are invited to join the club, as soon as they have won their citizenship privilege. Last year there were two new members, from this source, Mrs. Pina Colauri and Mrs. Francesca Rizzitano. A third new citizen has just accepted an invitation to join. Perhaps, as Judge Forte says, America can not be a "melting pot," but the Concord club has some ideas of its own on that subject.

But what about the parents who haven't the time or inclination to go to night school? For a long time Italian-speaking homes enter primary school unable to understand what it is all about. Perhaps to "get even" in a situation that puts them in an inferior position, they cling together in defiant little bands. The "gang spirit" is born. With some such theory as that in mind the club opened a kindergarten two years ago. It was designed to remove some of the disadvantages under which these children enter school and to keep them out of gang breeding street life for at least a few hours a day.

The response was so great that it was necessary to open another kindergarten his past year. The financial burden, partially borne by the club, grew heavier but, in two years the need for such pre-school training had become so generally recognized that again the club was able to convince the school authorities of their duty. In fact it recently put through an appropriation for a six-months' supplementary training which will hereafter be an effect as part of the town's educational system.

Mrs. James opened her own home last summer for several parties for the immigrant youngsters and their parents. Again at Christmas time gave a big celebration. On her own hook she makes frequent calls in the homes of the foreign-born of Concord to offer help or advice and is active in leading in the work of the Ellis Memorial in Boston.

In the immigrant homes are pieces of embroidery, weaving and other treasured relics of handicraft, revealing a rich native art. Concord is something of an art center and its women sense the value of fostering and encouraging art in all forms. Again Mrs. James's influence was shown. Last year a crafts exhibit, especially for the foreign-born, was introduced as an annual feature of the club program.

Mrs. H. Whittemore Brown was in charge of the second exhibit, this past season. Women were invited to display handmade rugs, specimens of embroidery, weaving, dyeing, china-painting and other crafts. Judges were brought from out-of-town. Money prizes were offered. The response was all that could be desired and the aim of the committee that these women from other lands should not lose the skill the art and loving workmanship that went into their native crafts, seems well on the way to being realized.

That is the new Concord, with which in recent years the Woman's Club has been chiefly concerned. Twenty years and more ago the club was more interested in old Concord with its historic homes and literary shrines. The late Mrs. Henry C. Rolfe, whose daughter, Mrs. William M. Cole, is now a member, was the guiding spirit then. She was president for eleven years in all, from 1906 to 1909 and from 1904 to 1911. Mrs. Cole remembers that when she was a little girl Mrs. Damon often came to the Rolfe home to talk over with Mrs. Rolfe her plans for organizing the club.

It was Mrs. Rolfe's executive ability that brought about the restoration of the Alcott home on Lexington road, according to club records. Twenty years ago the house had fallen into decay and was rapidly going to pieces. It was owned by Mrs. Daniel Lothrop, founder of the National Society, Children of the American Revolution, and a member of the club.

Grieved at the prospect of this cherished Concord shrine falling into ruin the club wrote letters to organizations and individuals, appealed to the school children and roused such sympathy for the cause that contributions flowed in from all parts of the country and from England and other places besides. It was possible to restore the house and maintain it from the resulting fund. The club undertook the work and had charge of the house for several years until the job became too much for it. Then the Louisa May Alcott Memorial Association was formed and the club was relieved of further responsibility.

Mrs. Woodward Hudson, a member of the club, is now president of the association and another member, Miss Rebekah Briggs, is head custodian. Club members are admitted to the house free of any charge. From 14,000 to 16,000 persons visit the home annually. The idea of restoring the house as a public shrine for the countless admirers of "Little Women" was brought to the club by the president at that time Mrs. Anna H. Burrell.

During Mrs. Rolfe's first term as president the club became interested in the Hindman School in the Kentucky mountains and began to give money in varying amounts to make it possible for more mountain children to attend the school. After Mrs. Rolfe's death ten years ago the yearly gift became a memorial scholarship under the name of the Abby F. Rolfe Scholarship Fund. The money is raised by special means, such as the vaudeville show this past year, and it now is maintained at $750 a year, enough to support one student. The club keeps in touch with its protégée by mail and often receives grateful letters from her.

Other features of the club's life which have been maintained continuously since the start, include the study classes. In the early years there were classes in an amazing variety of subjects—current events, literature, civics, child study, cutting and sewing, ornithology, botany, Dickens, Shakespeare, travel, history of art. And there have always been study classes in every imaginable field, according to the executive board takes charge of arranging the year's program.

This year under the art committee, of which Mrs. Oscar E. Beckhold was chairman, there was a class in aspects of design, conducted by Professor Henry L. Seaver of M. I. T., a docent at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. Subjects discussed included furniture, glass, pottery and metal ware, jewelry, and lacquer, gardens and design and sculpture. Prof. Seaver took the class on a visit to see examples of these things. For three years the club has also arranged trips to see the collection of rare and embroideries in the C. H. Blackall, the Boston. He is the father of Mrs. I. C. R., retiring club president.

Mrs. Frederick W. Allen has a fall of a course of lectures on an appropriate subject of model homes. Experts in such A. Elliot, director of Street School, Dean Gleason of Suffolk Law School, Miss both of the Judge Baker were obtained as the special

At the Miss Sarah S. Godwin conducted through the Gardner Museum to top off the experience her fellow clubwomen say, has of making people want to look for themselves and as a result in the class contributes something or bit of knowledge.

This year all study classes free to members and anyone else might come as well but small fee. This the club was to accomplish by carefully paring of the year's program to be proportion allowed. Even siders were able to hear and Gandhi and other able s travel, architecture, garden literature, sociology, as well as a musicale by guest artists are held in the high school.

The literature committee Mrs. Moore was chairman has ducts its classes in the su "Tercentenary book, "Builders of Concord," by Samuel Elliot, M. chosen as the timely subject of season. As yet plans for this not complete.

Some distinctions in literature and art have come to club Mrs. Lothrop was Margaret I wrote the stories of the "Five pens." Mrs. Miller, retiring, is a newspaper woman on the local, Mrs. Allen French (E) Roberts) founded the Concord and receives gratifying attention paintings of Annquam Mrs. A. Bosley (Emilie Schenck) is artist of note. Her husband, signed from a position at the School to open a school of Piermont N. H., in the sunn ton in the winter.

Still another pointer, Alice won a scholarship at the Boston for study abroad. She was a habit at Jordan Marsh Camp during art week this past winter to contribute to a collection of the various governor chusetts.

In State and county organizations two members have been outstanding. George M. Baker president from 1917, former president of the Station from 1919 to 1922. He was chairman of the Middle Woman's Christian Temperance some years.

Anyone regardless of residence the club. Among the 390 members are some from Bedford, Acton, Carlisle, Sudbury, Haverhill, another in New York is a native though she never lived in Concord. The same is true of her mother, Cambridge. Until recently the no restriction on the length of the proper president of the club were only twelve presidents, but some rather long terms been changed now to restrict president's service to not more than restrictive terms of two years on Restrictions and regulations seem to figure very largely in this liberal-minded club.

Perhaps those two bogies of the head of "chaff," in the "Leave the Club and Take it." The four women interviewed—Mrs. Cole, Mrs. Moore and Mrs. H. Orendorf, who was the first of the club and knew every address of members in 13 days, if neglected to explain is wheat and what is chaff? But, from what we have seen of club, we think its judgment trusted.

MAYOR'S NIECE IS BRIDE IN ROXBURY

Throng Attend Wedding of Miss Curley to S. R. White; 1000 at Reception

Six women fainted today in a crush of several thousand persons who crowded into St. Patrick's Church, Roxbury, at the wedding of Miss Sally Paula Curley, niece of Mayor Curley, to Stanton Reid White, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. White of Boston.

The crowd, containing practically every city official and many other notables with their families, overflowed to the church steps and the sidewalk, while a detail of police kept traffic moving.

MAYOR IS PRESENT

The six women, caught in the body of the church, were overcome by the heat, and were carried out and revived. The services were not interrupted.

Headed by the mayor and President Joseph McGrath of the city council, the entire city government attended the ceremony, together with Police Commissioner Hultman, Traffic Commissioner Conry, Supt. of Police Crowley and many others.

Nuptial mass was celebrated by the Rev. William Casey. Miss Margaret T. Curley, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Mrs. Harold D. Savage was matron of honor.

BRIDE'S ATTENDANTS

Other attendants were Misses Rita, Mary and Eileen Curley, also sisters of the bride; Eleanor M. Murphy, Brighton; Kathleen B. Mahoney, West Roxbury; Mary D. Curley, daughter of Mayor Curley; Mary G. Murphy, Roxbury; Frances X. Curley, Arlington; Margaret Gargan, Ashland, and Audrey White, sister of the bridegroom.

Paul G. Curley, son of the mayor, was best man. The ushers included J. Burke Sullivan, Richard H. Nolan, William Doyle, James Alphen, W. Arthur Reilly, Leo Curley, Jamaica Plain; Lieut. Bartley Hogan, U. S. N., Washington; Frank J. Long and Eugene Doherty, Brighton; William J. Bulman, Brockton; Cornelius O'Callahan, Dorchester, and John A. Sullivan, Dorchester.

1000 AT RECEPTION.

After the ceremony the parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Curley, gave a reception at the Copley Plaza, which was attended by 1000 guests.

Motorcycle officers escorted the bridal couple from the church to the hotel, and fire apparatus along the line saluted them with sirens.

The bride, who lived with her parents in Winthrop st., Roxbury, is a graduate of Mt. St. Joseph's Academy and the Mt. Ida School of Newton. She has been active in the New England Club and the Riding Club of the Mt. Ida School. She is prominent in the summer colony of Hull, where her parents have a summer home.

DEAN ARCHER TO PUBLISH TALKS ON LAW—ICE OUT OF POND—OTHER NEWS

Moose Hills, April 14—Friends may interested to know that 32 talks about "Laws That Safeguard Society" broadcasted Saturday evenings at 7:15 over station WEAF by Dean Gleason Archer of Suffolk Law School, Boston, are now in the hands of his publishers, and will soon be ready for distribution. His sister, Mrs. Roger Gordon says that the "Good Night" talk to father, who is in very feeble health at Great pond, recently given by Dean Archer, was distinctly heard by the former.

Dr. G. F. Avery of New York, a former resident here, is now a member of the male glee club of Yonkers. The club will broadcast over station WEAF from 2 to 2:30 p.m. April 25.

The ice left Moose Hill pond Monday. Phoebes and flickers have arrived and the hylas are singing. Men and horses are at work on several of the roads, smoothing with scrapers and drags, and improving travelling conditions.

O. Gagnon, Livermore Falls, who has rented the place here which is owned by G. R. Grua, moved his family and household goods there, Monday.

A tag day was held here Saturday in connection with the annual appeal for funds for the Salvation Army.

AUDITOR HURLEY HITS PATRONAGE IN STATE OFFICE

Says Civil Service Law Hinders Elected Official Because It Gives Him Office Filled with Predecessor's Appointees.

DECLARES GOVERNMENT NEEDS SANER METHODS

Delivers Criticisms of Red Tape at Banquet Here in Honor of George E. Murphy, Recently Confirmed as Assistant—Others Laud New Deputy.

Francis X. Hurley, state auditor, last night struck out at political evasions of the Civil Service law and scored, as well, the appointment of unsuccessful politicians to places of importance in the state government. These factors, he claimed, were largely responsible for the impossibility of reducing costs of government, so far as personnel is concerned.

150 Democrats Honor Murphy.

The state auditor was the principal speaker in Liberty hall, where nearly 150 prominent Democrats in this section gathered for a testimonial banquet to George E. Murphy of this city, who was recently appointed first deputy state auditor. Mr. Murphy was presented a traveling bag by Edward J. Tierney, toastmaster of the evening.

Besides Mr. Hurley, other speakers included de Witt C. de Wolfe, secretary to Governor Joseph B. Ely; Daniel J. Kelly, deputy auditor, and George H. Spillane, general manager of the John Hancock Insurance Co. and an instructor at the Suffolk Law school, where Mr. Murphy studied. Each speaker and the toastmaster took occasion to plead for unity in the Democratic party and to prophesy greater political victories in the next state election than in that of last fall.

Appointee's Ability Lauded.

Praise for the guest of honor, whose appointment was the reason for the banquet, was voiced by all speakers, who commended his years ize that the ruler knew what he was talking about, who, so the story goes, told his son that the thing which would amaze the latter most in life was the small amount of intelligence with which government is carried on. I feel quite sure that if the standards of private business were enforced in the official service, the cost of government, so far as personnel is concerned would be greatly reduced.

"The causes are not hard to discover. One has already been hinted at—the appointing to positions of importance in the public service men who have competed in the field of politics, often without much success, and are then placed in positions of responsibility which they are incapable of administering properly. Another cause, perhaps, is the circumventing of the Civil Service law. I have seen this in my own office, and the effect is not only disrupting, but almost fatal to good public service.

"A still further cause is the atrociously low salaries which are paid to some of the people in the state employ. Top heavy with rules and regulations which leave very little to the discretion of the department head, the state service offers very little to the man who would advance himself by his own initiative. In my own office I have a World War veteran who is married and has four children, and who is incapacitated in the use of one of his arms because of a wound he received during the war. The Commonwealth of Massachusetts pays that man the magnificent salary of $960 a year, and because of official red tape that salary can only be increased after considerable delay and a lot of explanation, although the person in question is very capable. An honorable private employer would hang his head in shame if he paid that man the same salary under the same circumstances.

"The Democratic party while it is in power will have an opportunity to break with this folly of the past and make public service a responsive and intelligent thing.

"In elective offices in which there should be the highest degree of confidence between the employees and the head of the department, there should be no application of the Civil Service law. What responsibility can be asked of a man if he is forced to use employees in such an office who were appointed by his predecessor, whom he may have defeated after a bitter political campaign? In such a situation it is logical to assume that the employees will be none too friendly, and it is obvious that no matter how sincere the elected official may be, he cannot be any more successful in the administration of his office than his inherited staff will allow him to be such a condition is incompatible with any theory of governmental responsibility.

"Personally, I believe in giving the head of any department, the work of which is not of a routine nature, all the power he wants. We must assume that the people have elected a man to office because they believe in him and that his record, should he again seek political honors, will be scrutinized to see if he has made good. This may be a re-statement of the 'spoils theory,' but even though it is, I fully believe in it. That belief caused me to appoint Mr. Murphy and to bring to my office as much ability and fidelity as possible. Nothing that has happened since I took office last January has in any manner caused me to change my opinion."

Ely Sends Congratulations.

Mr. de Wolfe brought the congratulations of Governor Ely to Mr. Murphy and his well-wishers to the Democratic gathering. He recalled his last visit to Lowell, nine years ago, and sketched briefly some of the most notable state and national Democratic figures.

The speaker characterized Al Smith as the "ablest man in political life in the western world" and said that he was, like Governor Ely, "a Democrat from the top of his head to the soles of his feet." He showed that the governor was an ardent admirer of Smith and "as loyal a supporter of him as there is in the state."

Concerning the governor's accomplishments in office, he stated that "Ely has accomplished more constructive work in two months than any predecessors in two years and this in spite of an antagonistic legislature." Mr. DeWolf lauded the abilities and accomplishments of the guest of honor and showed that his youth is an asset although some consider it a liability.

Ely Working Hard.

In conclusion, he said that the people of Massachusetts are "passing through a terrible time; one that has not been over-estimated." He said there are "no words to describe the suffering about us" and that the condition "is a disgrace to us all." He stated that Governor Ely was doing everything possible to meet the circumstances without playing politics.

Deputy State Auditor Kelly said that affairs in his department were a "mess" when taken over by Mr. Hurley and intimated that an exposure of conditions was possible within six months.

Mr. Spillane, a former instructor of Mr. Murphy at the Suffolk Law school, paid tribute to the guest of honor. He brought, he said, greetings from dean and faculty of the school to Mr. Murphy.

Tierney Calls for Harmony.

Toastmaster Tierney spoke at some length on the advantages of a unified party and appealed to his hearers to assist in furnishing the co-operation which would result in political strength. He described Lowell as the "best Democratic city in every state, in proportion to population" and expressed the hope that Democratic victories of the last state election would be repeated in the future.

Mr. Murphy was the final speaker. He thanked the men present for their interest in him and expressed his pleasure at working under Mr. Hurley. In the introduction of his short talk, he said that he owed the greatest part of his success to his father, who was present, and asked him to stand and make himself known.

The banquet, which was served by the Lydon Catering Co., was arranged by a committee made up of Thomas F. Duffy, chairman, Terrence Higgins, J. E. Carroll, Dan O'Dea and Edward J. Tierney.

Guests at the head table included

Edward J. Tierney, George E. Murphy, Dr. James B. O'Connor, George H. Spillane, Dr. Michael A. Tighe, Edward J. Gallagher, Frank P. McGilly, Judge James E. O'Donnell, Francis X. Hurley, DeWitt C. DeWolf and Daniel J. Kelly.

PROPER SHARE FOR EMPLOYEE

Senator Hastings Advises in Suffolk Law Address

Admitting that there are many difficulties presented in solving the economic depression, Senator Daniel O. Hastings of Delaware, in an address to the graduates of Suffolk Law School in Tremont Temple, Boston, Tuesday night, declared that the "employee in many instances does not get his proper share in the unusual and unexpected profits made by his employer during the prosperous years."

"The employer," he continued, "ought not to answer that he could get men to do the same job for less money. Opportunity plays a large part in life in America, and the man who is employed by a prosperous business concern, and who is faithful and does his work well, should be given some opportunity to share in the profits of such business. If the wealthy business concerns would refuse to cut wages or reduce the number of employees in times of depression, it would do much toward bringing us back to our normal position. They have already reaped the benefit of an unprecedented prosperity. In times of depression, they should be willing to forego further returns in order that others less fortunate may not be left in want."

His address was delivered after degrees had been awarded to a class of 161 members. The graduates, headed by First Marshal Ernest E. Covey and Second Marshal John Joseph Muldowney, entered and took their seats in the main aisle of Tremont Temple, amid loud applause from relatives and friends, who crowded the main floor and the two balconies.

Joseph F. O'Connell was presiding officer, and Thomas J. Boynton, president of the board of trustees, spoke for his associates.

Dean Gleason L. Archer

Dean Gleason L. Archer of the Suffolk Law school of Boston, will discuss "Manslaughter" in his series "Laws that Safeguard Society" which will be heard over WTAG, Saturday evening at 7:15 o'clock. The speaker will explain why manslaughter courts divided homicide into murder and manslaughter, the technical significance of manslaughter as it exists today and certain phases of voluntary manslaughter.

Debunking Big Game Hunting
Carveth Wells, adventurer, author, and humorist known as the Mark Twain of natural history, will conduct his audience on an hilarious tour through the African jungle when he speaks over WTAG this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock.

The title of his radio adventure in "Debunking Big Game Hunting," Wells will present his idea of modern methods of so-called big game hunters who go to Africa and shoot up the country from motor cars. He finds the African jungle as dangerous as Central park, New York.

Wells is a Fellow of the Royal Geographical society and kindred groups. After forsaking a career as an engineer surveying Canadian railways and designing wiggle-woggles for a London amusement park, he began adventuring in strange lands to discover the comical things in nature.

He spent six years in the Malay jungle. There he found fish that wink from tree tops, deer seven inches tall and other fish that bounce themselves like balls on the beach. In Lapland he observed the lemming rodent which every 21 years swarms from the country side to drown by millions in the sea. Africa's Mountains of the Moon where glaciers exist at the equator are among other wonder lands visited by Wells.

The wedding of Miss Geneva Reed, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Reed of 97 Elliott street, and J. Lee Hughes, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Hughes of 89 Essex street, Lynn, has been set for early June. The ceremony is to take place on Saturday, June 13, at a nuptial mass in St. Edward's church.

Rev. Thomas F. Brannan, the pastor, will officiate and there will be two little altar boys, Jack and Bobbie Condon, nephews of the bride-elect. They are sons of Mr. and Mrs. John Condon of Crescent street. The ceremony will be followed by a wedding breakfast at the Commercial Club.

Miss Reed will be attended by her sister, Miss Betty Reed, as maid of honor, and by another sister, Miss Mildred Reed, as bridesmaid. The flower girl will be little Betty Jane Skahill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Skahill of 48 Hillberg avenue.

Joseph Hughes of Waltham, brother of the intended groom, will be best man, and the ushers are Parker Reed, Jack Skahill, Leonard Dunn and John Donovan of Lynn.

Miss Reed is popular with a wide circle of friends and prominent in many local activities. She is assistant to Mae McGee Holmes, dancing instructress, and was one of Mrs. Holmes' most talented pupils. She is a teacher at the Ashland school and during last summer was a supervisor of playgrounds here. She was graduated from Brockton High school in 1925 and from Bridgewater Normal school, class of 1927.

Mr. Hughes was graduated from Lynn English High school and Suffolk Law school of Boston. He is connected with the Travelers' Insurance Co. of Boston.

Galvin lingered nearer the car while forged ahead to discover the body on the edge of the road. Graemiger's move was to go to the home of J. Platt and telephone a report to Portsmouth barracks. When he returned to the scene, no one was there, he said, but the victim's head lay at a slight different angle, while the clothing, before, was disarranged, the coat for a pillow for the head.

After that the trooper went to Winward house nearby to make another telephone report. Then he returned to the body and remained on duty all without relief. He found Mr. and Mrs. Platt there when he first went back.

With some hesitancy, following consent of the attorney general, Graemiger turned over to Atty. Hurley memoranda consisting of orders and notes. After court adjourned the defense counsel held a prolonged parley scrutinizing these penciled original records.

The testimony of the first witnesses presented a picture of Hatway employing devious social methods to arrange the fatal date Joseph Eug. Roy, a comparative youngster, described how he fell into the scheme to the extent of sympathizing with Hathaway, officially recorded lonesomeness.

Nothing would be worse for business right now than an extra session of Congress, and it might not be a bad thing or business. "If the next Congress didn't meet," he said, with a smile. He assailed those senators who are contently pandering to the grandstand business men need nothing so much as be let alone to work out their problems at the present time, he added.

"I expected business to pick up as soon as the Congress adjourned," he said. "I looked for a somewhat more rapid recovery than has actually taken place. Consequently, I am a little more hesitant about making future predictions. There can be no question but that business men are filled with a spirit of pessimism which should be shaken. They should hire more workers if they can afford it. The man who is building a house should not feel obliged to stop the work because of apprehension concerning the future. I look for a 20 per cent. increase in production next year."

DEcries Tariff Foes

There is no chance that the leaders of the movement against the Smoot-Hey tariff will be successful, he said. He questioned whether many of the tariff critics really wanted it changed.

"Men who have interests abroad would like to be able to flood the country with cheap foreign goods, but those who have invested their money at home do not want it." Conditions would have been much worse if the tariff had not been passed, he declared.

At St Angela's Church in Mattapan last Monday Miss Dorothy Rose Dacey, daughter of William I. and Mary E Dacey of Aberdeen road, was married to Paul Revere McLean, son of Mr and Mrs John McLean of North Cambridge. The mass was celebrated and ceremony performed by Rev. Edward W. Conroy, an old friend of the bridegroom.

The bride was attended by Miss Mary McLean, a sister of the groom, and Frank E. Dacey performed a like service for the groom. Miss Marion Dorothy Dacey, niece of the bride, made a dainty flower girl and her brother Billy acted as ring bearer.

The bride wore a white satin and lace dress with a lace veil caught with orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of white roses and orange blossoms. The bridesmaid was dressed in pink taffeta and large light blue hat and carried an old fashioned bouquet.

The ushers were Thomas Ahern and Edward J. Sullivan of North Cambridge.

Mr McLean, the bridegroom, is a graduate of Suffolk Law School. He has been employed in the department of Audit of the Boston Elevated Railway Co for a number of years. The bride, a graduate of Milton High School, also has been employed in the same office.

A large delegation from the department was present, as well as friends from Cambridge, Somerville, Chelsea, South Boston and Worcester.

Miss Yvonne Fortin sang several hymns including Ave Maria and O Salutaris during the mass, accompanied by Miss Munier at the organ.

The reception was at the Lotus bungalow on Babson street. The couple will spend their honeymoon at New York and Washington and will reside at Milton.

Sen. Hastings, Delaware, Also Predicts G. O. P. Victory in 1932

DRY LAW A MINOR ISSUE, HE DECLARES

A 20 per cent increase in industrial production within the next 12 months, the relegation of prohibition to a minor place in the 1932 campaign, and the election of a Republican President were predicted in an interview yesterday with Senator Daniel O. Hastings of Delaware. He was a speaker at the Suffolk law school graduation exercises at Tremont Temple last night.

The Republicans will be victorious in 1932 "because the people will be afraid of something worse," he asserted. Prohibition will be overshadowed by economic issues unless there is an unusual wave of prosperity before the campaign begins.

"The interest of the wets in urging the re-opening of breweries and wine establishments to bring back prosperity is a wet reason rather than an economic one," he said. "While it is true that raw materials and labor would be employed, I am not sure to what extent the economic benefits would be offset by increased drinking."

KELLY BEING URGED AS REGISTER OF MOTOR VEHICLES

Ward 15 Councilman Has Had Interview with Governor Relative to Captain Parker's Job

Friends of Councillor Francis E Kelly are urging him to accept the position of Registrar of Motor Vehicles that it is rumored about the State has this week been offered to him by his close political friend, Governor Joseph B.

FRANCIS E. KELLY

Ely, in keeping with his campaign promise to give young Democrats major appointments. It is understood that one of the conditions of this offer is that Kelly resign immediately from office and politics which it is said the Councillor does not like to do because he is determined to seek re-election for a second term and further feels that he should serve for the full two year term for which the people of his ward elected him.

It will be remembered that Councillor Kelly was the first man holding a public office in Dorchester that came out openly and supported the present Governor in his hard fight for the nomination last September. After the nomination, he toured the entire City and State in the interests of Governor Ely's election.

Councillor Kelly has had a remarkable career both in his private and political life. Although but 26 years of age when he secured the position which he now holds, he made a fight against tremendous odds, having very strong local men for opponents and further than that, he had to oust a popular man in the person of Thomas W McMahon, who was holding the position of Councillor at that time. He has the further distinction of being the youngest member ever elected to the Boston City Council.

He was born and has always lived at 24 Topliff street, and is the second oldest of a large family of nine children. When he was but fifteen years of age, his father died, leaving him as the main support of his widowed mother and this large young family. He continued his attendance at High School and managed to establish a large paper route which he worked at every morning, night and Sundays until his graduation from English High School. Through the income derived from this newspaper route, he was able to support the large family and to see that they also received the same education that he had managed to obtain.

He then entered the laundry business for himself in Dorchester and, while driving a laundry truck, he worked his way through the Suffolk Law School evenings until he finally received the degree of L. L. B.

He has devoted all of his time since election in assisting people from his district who were in trouble and has set up for himself an enviable record as a Councillor, having brought many improvements to his district as well as fighting hard on the floor of the Council to keep taxes down by voting against expenditures that were unnecessary.

He is a member of the Robert Fulton Council, K. of C., Old Timers' Club and Suffolk Law School alumni.

Governor Ely is to be commended for remembering Dorchester and offering to this leading young Democrat from our district such a position and it is hoped by the people of Dorchester that Councillor Kelly will see his way clear to accept this important post.

Senator Hastings of Delaware Delivers Commencement Oration

TREMONT TEMPLE SCENE OF EXERCISES

Bachelor of laws degrees were awarded to 122 seniors at the commencement exercises of Suffolk Law school in Tremont Temple last night. Senator Daniel O. Hastings of Delaware delivered the commencement oration.

Senator Hastings said in part: "I am convinced that we must find a way to have a more even distribution of the wealth of the nation. Our prosperity depends largely on the ability, of what is commonly the wage-earner, to maintain himself and his family.

"He must educate his children and at the same time enjoy some of the luxuries which life in this country should afford. Under normal conditions we hear but little complaint, but when the depression comes, and production is reduced, somebody loses his position, and then trouble begins.

"The inequality in my judgment is to be found in this: The employe does not in many instances get his proper share of the unusual and unexpected profits made by his employer during the prosperous years.

"The employer ought not to answer that he could get men to do the same job for less money. Opportunity plays a large part in life in America and the man who is employed by a prosperous business concern, and who is faithful and does his work well, should be given some opportunity to share in the profits of such business. This suggestion, of course, carries with it many difficulties. There are many things to be said on the other side.

"Fortunes that have been invested in business ventures have been lost, and the wealthy man in such instances is in no better position than the employe. But if the great industrial leaders of the nation, the heads of great and successful corporations, would take the position that when the profits are more than normal all employes should have a substantial part paid to them in proportion to their length of service, and salaries, it would go a long way in making a more equitable distribution.

Former Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell, vice-president of the board of trustees, presided. Former Atty.-Gen. Thomas J. Boynton, president, spoke for the trustees, while Dean Gleason L. Archer spoke for the school. Degrees were conferred by President Boynton and Dean Archer.

The class day exercises took place during the afternoon in the school auditorium with A. Ralph Vaccaro of Somerville presiding. The following participated: Salutatory, Arthur X. Koerber; history, Irving Shapiro; prophecy, Hubert L. McLaughlin; oration, Edward A. O'Donnell; will, Henry L. Ziegel; presentation of national colors, Patrick J. ARCHER'S LAW TALKS NOW IN BOOK FORM

"Laws That Safeguard Society," a handsomely bound and illustrated volume, containing the first 36 radio talks on that subject by Dean Gleason L. Archer of Suffolk law school, is being mailed this week to subscribers to this "Memorial Edition" throughout the country.

The book is considered novel—the first series of law talks ever broadcast to a nation-wide audience.

"Laws That Safeguard Society" was compiled at the insistent demand of listeners-in on Dean Archer's broadcasts. Almost from the start of the nation-wide hook-up, requests for copies of his talks began to pour in on NBC and Dean Archer, but finding it impossible to comply with all these requests it was decided to publish the talks in book form.

Officials of NBC and the 37 stations across the country which carry Dean Archer's Saturday night lectures, of which WEEI is the Boston station, gave every assistance to the dean in the compilation of his book. Photographs of these officials and of the announcers who "put" Dean Archer on the air at the New York NBC studios each week are contained in the book, while the frontispiece is a fine picture of the dean himself.

In order to aid university graduates in finding positions after graduation, a Placement Service, to be operated on a university basis will be opened at Boston University on July 1, with offices in the Administration Building, at 675 Boylston st, Pres Daniel L. Marsh has announced.

Warren L. Benson of Brockton has been named the first director. As the service gets under way its first purpose, according to university authorities, is to cooperate in filling vacancies with public school officials and college administrations, gradually expanding out into all fields, including law, medicine, arts, theology, practical arts, religious education, music and business administration. Since office 1922, Mr Benson has been manager of the Fisk Teacher's Agency. For two years previous to that he was submaster of Reading School. DISCUSSES SOCIETY AND LAWS FOR PROTECTION "Laws That Safeguard Society," by Gleason L. Archer, LL. B., LL. D. —By the Dean of the Suffolk Law School, Boston, this volume consists of the first 36 radio talks on legal subjects that the author has given. The first of these talks was given Sept. 29, 1929, and proved so popular to the radio audience that he later continued them, with increasing interest shown by the listeners-in. While these talks have greatly interested students of the law they have been in such popular form that the general public has been just about as keenly interested as have students. Now these talks have been put in permanent form in the pages of an interesting book and they deal with various phases of criminal law; why such laws are necessary, punishment of criminals, the meaning of criminal intent, difference between intent and motive, criminal responsibility of insane persons, injury and death in different States, criminal liability of married women, and many kindred topics, all made clear by examples and stories. The book is illustrated with portraits of radio announcers Boston: Suffolk Law School Press.

FALLING CEILING DELAYS TEST

While nearly 100 men at the Suffolk law school were grappling last night with an examination on the law of real property a large part of the ceiling thundered down about their ears.

Within an instant every student was completely plastered, so far as is known it is the first case on record of future barristers reaching such a state during a final exam. Well-pressed suits were covered with powder while the occupants of the suits prepared to leave the building via the windows if necessary.

Then the plastered students, after a sketchy brushing, began scratching and cursing over the same examination in an adjoining room. Three students reported minor cuts and bruises. They were Benjamin Leeds of 103 Endicott ave. Revere; Harry L. Marshall of Rockport and John F. Santino.

SUFFOLK LAW GRADUATES 122

Senator Hastings of Delaware Delivers Commencement Oration

Bachelor of laws degrees were awarded to 122 seniors at the commencement exercises of Suffolk Law school in Tremont Temple last night. Senator Daniel O. Hastings of Delaware delivered the commencement oration.

Senator Hastings said in part: "I am convinced that we must find a way to have a more even distribution of the wealth of the nation. Our prosperity depends largely on the ability, of what is commonly the wage-earner, to maintain himself and his family.

"He must educate his children and at the same time enjoy some of the luxuries which life in this country should afford. Under normal conditions we hear but little complaint, but when the depression comes, and production is reduced, somebody loses his position, and then trouble begins.

"The inequality in my judgment is to be found in this: The employe does not in many instances get his proper share of the unusual and unexpected profits made by his employer during the prosperous years.

"The employer ought not to answer that he could get men to do the same job for less money. Opportunity plays a large part in life in America and the man who is employed by a prosperous business concern and who is faithful and does his work well, should be given some opportunity to share in the profits of such business. This suggestion, of course, carries with it many difficulties. There are many things to be said on the other side.

"Fortunes that have been invested in business ventures have been lost, and the wealthy man in such instances is in no better position than the employe. But if the great industrial leaders of the nation, the heads of great and successful corporations, would take the position that when the profits are more than normal all employes should have a substantial part paid to them in proportion to their length of service, and salaries, it would go a long way in making a more equitable distribution.

Urges Shorter Work Day to Aid Unemployed

Unemployment in this country is far from a temporary phase of our industrial life, as it has been made "more or less" permanent by modern machinery, declared United States Senator Daniel O. Hastings of Delaware last night, speaking at the annual Commencement exercises of the Suffolk Law School, held in Tremont Temple.

As a remedy for the conditions existing today, the Senator advocated less hours of work for each day or for each week, a system which he believed could be carried out with no cuts in wages, and which would be instrumental in getting "a more equitable distribution which I think is so necessary."

The first speaker on last night's program was Prof. George H. Spillane, marshal, who delivered an address for the faculty. He was followed by the presiding officer, Joseph F. O'Connell, vice president of the board of trustees, and Thomas J. Boynton, president of the board.

Gleason L. Archer, dean and founder of the school, was the next speaker. After an orchestral selection, Senator Hastings was introduced.

Our Weakest Link

"The weakest thing in our form of Government is the refusal of such a large percentage of our population to take any responsibility in the management of public affairs. They talk a great deal; they complain very much, but they do nothing," he declared. A more equal distribution of wealth, and more incentives for the wage-earner were advocated by the speaker as conducive to greater and steadier prosperity. He said:

"Our prosperity depends largely upon the ability of what is commonly termed the wage-earner to maintain himself and his family, educate his children, and at the same time enjoy some of the luxuries which life in this country should afford. Under normal conditions we hear but little complaint, but when the depression comes, and production is reduced, somebody loses his position, and then the trouble begins. The inequality, in my judgment, is to be found in this: The employe does not in many instances get his proper share of the unusual and unexpected profits made by his employer during the prosperous years.

"If the wealthy business concerns would refuse to cut wages or reduce the number of employes in times of depression, it would do much toward bringing us back to our normal position. They have already reaped the benefit of an unprecedented prosperity. In times of depression they should be willing to forego further returns in order that others less fortunate may not be left in want.

"I do not think the unemployment situation is but temporary. Modern machinery has made it more or less permanent."

Degrees Presented

After the Senator's address Pres. Boynton and Dean Archer presented the degree of LL.B. to the graduating class, which numbered about 120.

The officers of the class are A. Ralph Vaccaro, president; Patrick Joseph Savage, vice president; John H. Johnson, secretary, and Frank E. Foster, treasurer. The following were awarded diplomas:

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE WEEK ON THE RADIO

by HOWARD FITZPATRICK

TODAY

The relative merits of W. L. "Young" Stribling and Max Schmeling, principals in the coming world's heavyweight championship fight at Cleveland Friday, will be discussed over WBZ, at 9:15 p. m., on the Bayak Stag Party, by Tommy Loughran. This Philadelphia light heavy is now himself a contender for heavyweight honors, and besides giving his expert low-down of the Stribling-Schmeling melee, will tell a few of his own ring experiences.

Marjorie Posselt, violinist, better known as "Marge," of the Friendly Maids, recently back from a concert tour of Buenos Aires, Rio de Janeiro, Santos, San Paulo, Trinidad and many other South American cities, marks her return to the air over WEEI at 7 p. m., accompanied by her sister, Gladys. While in Buenos Aires, she was invited to play for the Prince of Wales and his brother as a result of her broadcast over one of the city's stations.

Graham-Paige signs off over WNAC at 9:30 p. m. for the season with a farewell programme of selections played in past broadcasts opening with Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance," and closing with Arthur Pryor's "Graham-Paige Legion March."

Another of Walter Damrosch's concerts by the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra at the Woodland Theatre, Hillsborough, Cal., will be heard for a half hour only beginning at 7 p. m. through WBZ.

Dr. Lawrence P. Jacks, principal of Manchester College, University of Oxford, is the featured speaker in the CBS international broadcast from London over WAAB at 12:30 p. m., discussing "The Moral Crisis of Our Times: a Call to Play the Man."

In place of the Atwater Kent hour, that concluded Sunday, Erich Strauss, composer, will direct a large symphony orchestra in a programme of his own music over WEEI at 9:15 p. m., assisted by Gladys Rice, and Fred Huffman, as soloists.

The "Stenode" radio circuit, recently developed by Dr. Robert E. British scientist, will be discussed by Volney Hurd, radio editor of the Christian Science Monitor, over WEEI at 12:15 p. m., in an interview with Sam Curtis.

After having consistently refused all offers to broadcast for the past seven years, Geraldine Farrar, internationally famous prima donna, has finally gone the way of many other operatic stars, and will broadcast, for the first time, on the inaugural Packard programme, (WBZ, 10:30 p. m.), singing four selections. These selections include "Habanera" and "Seguidilla," arias from Bizet's "Carmen," Dvorak's "Songs My Mother Taught Me" and Tchaikovsky's "None But the Lonely Heart."

The prelude from "Carmen," Wolf-Ferelli's overture to "The Secret of Suzanne" and Tchaikovsky's musical description of Napoleon's march on Moscow, "Overture 1812," will be played by an orchestra under the direction of Nathaniel Shilkret.

The Argonne "A" outdoor boxing bout between Sammy Fuller and Steve Hallako of Buffalo is to be broadcast from Braves Field through WAAB at 10 p. m., by Gerry Harrison.

The U. S. Navy Band, assisted by Margarita Cueto, Mexican soprano, and Marie Redjas, Argentine tenor, feature the Pan-American concert music of all the Americas, to be broadcast through WEEI at 11:15 p. m., from the Hall of the American Pan-American Union, Washington, D. C.

Martha Attwood, soprano, singing "Smilin' Through" and "Gladness Mine," from the "Firefly," and Everett Marshall, baritone, singing Massenet's

TUESDAY

In observance of the introduction of its new models, the Nash Motors Company sponsor a half-hour over WEEI at 9 p. m., entitled "Parade of Progress," featuring Max Bendix, world's fair grandmaster of the Chicago Century of Progress of 1933 and an all-star 35-piece band.

During this broadcast some of America's most historical scenes, including Custer's Last Stand, Paul Revere's Ride, Roosevelt at San Juan, the first flight of the Wright airplane at Kitty Hawk, "Lindy" at Le Bourget field, Paris, and Admiral Dewey at Manila, will be recited by a cast of radio and stage stars.

The second National Education Association broadcast from Los Angeles over WEEI, at 5 p. m., brings to the mike the following speakers: Edwin C. Broome, superintendent of Philadelphia schools; Mrs. Hugh Bradford, president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers; and Howard Whipple, vice-president of the Bank of America, Los Angeles.

Philco's Symphony programmes come to a close over WNAC at 9:30 p. m., with music from four of Wagner's finest operas, "Siegfried," "Tannhauser," "Meistersinger" and "Tristan and Isolde." This series is to be replaced by programmes of dance and light music by new orchestra with feature musical ensembles each week.

"Why I Am Returning to China," is the subject of an address to be delivered over WNAC at 10:15 p. m., by Chao-Chau Wu, who recently resigned as Chinese minister to the United States because of differences with his home government.

Events leading up to Abraham Lincoln's famous "Gettysburg Address," to be dramatized by the Soconylanc players (WEEI, 7:30 p. m.), bring out interesting incidents of "The Great Emancipator's" rule as President at that time.

WEDNESDAY

In an interview, based largely on the Stribling-Schmeling fight, "Gentleman Jim" James J. Corbett, former heavyweight champion who defeated John L. Sullivan in New Orleans will face the microphone for a short interview over WEEI at 10:30 p. m. Other features of this period will be selections by an all-string orchestra conducted by Gustave Haenschen and solos by Vaughn de Leath, the original radio girl.

Mayor James M. Curley in his second broadcast since returning from Europe will discuss "What an American May Learn by a European Visit," over WNAC at 2 p. m., direct from his office in City Hall.

The first of a series of four different programmes to determine the type of radio entertainment the average listener likes features the Ward Trill Blazer Orchestra under the direction of Josef Keatner, King of the Rhythms, and special arrangements of modern music over WBZ at 9:30 a. m.

Columbia Camp Concerts, a summer extension of the American School of the Air, will be inaugurated over WAAB at 4:30 p. m., in an effort to reach more than 3,000,000 boys and girls at summer camps and resorts who leave the city for their vacations. The opening programme consists of the reading of a poem, selections by an orchestra and Adelle Vasey, soloist, and brief talk by Dr. Bertha Chapman Cody.

Mrs. Nancy C. McCormack, American portrait sculptor, starts a series of intimate talks on sculpturing and other subjects on the Women's Radio Review (WEEI, 3 p. m.).

THURSDAY

Evelyn Herbert, of music comedy current stories and music by George Earle's Orchestra.

Suffolk Law Students Plastered As Ceiling Collapses During Exam

The prayers of untold generations of students for the heavens to fall during an examination, were almost literally answered for nearly 100 men at the Suffolk law school last night when a large part of the ceiling thundered down about their ears while they were waiting over their final examination the year.

They were grappling with the law of real property in a room on the fourth floor when the miracle came to pass, and nearly half an hour of the three-quarters of an hour for the examination had elapsed.

The busy scratching of pens, punctuated with an occasional whispered suddenly was interrupted by a rattle of quantities of plaster, perhaps 100 lb., by the vibrations of legal minds the room, thundered to the floor.

Within an instant every student was completely plastered. So far as is known it is the first case on record of a law school where such a state of affairs occurred during a final exam. Well-pressed suits were covered with powder while the occupants of the suits prepared to leave the building via the windows if necessary. The effect of the miracle, however, was only temporary. Within a few minutes the plastered students, after a sketchy brushing, were scratching and cursing over the same examination in an adjoining room.

Three students reported minor cuts and bruises. They were Benjamin Leeds of 103 Endicott avenue, Revere; Harry L. Marshall of Rockport and John F. Santino.

Meuse-Kelley

Palms, potted ferns and garden flowers gave St. Charles' chapel a colorful summer dress this morning for the 9 o'clock wedding of Miss Cecelia Agnes Kelley, 144 High street, Waltham. Miss Kelley's marriage to James Henry Meuse, Jr., of 30 Blakeslee street, Cambridge, was solemnized in ceremonies performed by the Rev. Peter J. Walsh.

The double ring service was used, and the bride was entrusted to the groom by her brother, Frederick J. Kelley. Frederick G. Meuse and Miss Eileen F. Kelley, brother and sister of bridegroom and bride, attended the couple. Miss Agnes Josephine Burke played the wedding march and accompanied George Dolan, vocal soloist. Harold E. McGann, a cousin of the bridegroom, and Edward J. Hardigan were ushers at the church, where guests represented New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Connecticut cities and towns, Hyannis, Cambridge and Waltham.

The bride's gown, of white satin, floor-length, was patterned after a late Patou model most becomingly draped. Her tulle veil was build up with white horsehair in a pleasingly original design, its cap banded with orange blossoms, its train some four yards in length. Orchids, white roses, and valley lilies were used in fashioning the bride's shower bouquet.

Pink chiffon, floor length, with pastel blue satin jacket was worn by the bridesmaid whose slippers and picture hat were of a pink matching the color of her frock. Pink and blue flowers made up the hat trimming, and the bridesmaid's bouquet was of premier supremes and forget-me-nots.

A reception and wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Jennie J. Kelley, followed the ceremony, 175 guests being entertained at the home. Mr. and Mrs. J. Henry Meuse, parents of the bridegroom, assisted in entertaining. Mrs. Kelley wore a flowered chiffon frock with picture hat and corsage bouquet of sweetheart roses. Mrs. Meuse, wearing blue chiffon and picture hat, had a corsage of the same flowers.

Many gifts for the new home were on display. The bride's gift from Mr. Meuse was a platinum bracelet. Mrs. Kelley remembered her bridesmaid with silver rosary beads, and from the bridegroom the best man and ushers received attractive writing sets.

After an extended automobile trip Mr. and Mrs. Meuse will make their home at 221 Warren street, Allston.

The bridegroom, a graduate of Cambridge Latin School and of Suffolk Law School, is employed as a sales manager.

The bride attended the Waltham schools and has been active among young people in St. Charles' parish.

By Maurice Verstandig

It's all over with!—School! Now for a nice long cool vacation—and how! It's funny though during school time we'll never look at a book, but during the summer, when it's not compulsory, we read more books than ever! (Yeh,—Street & Smith publications) Well, I shouldn't say we're all going to have a cool vacation. For instance our most popular "trick" senior, Bruno Velona, is going to continue his famous researches in summer school, after which he'll clip hair for his college tuition

Martin Seeran is going to lease an ice cream box and "I Scream!" the summer away

Severio Cedrone is going to sell ice for Sandler in the day time and "jerk" soda in Stone's in the evening

Harold Nealon will help the chain store to "gip" its "ignorant" customers

Penta is another chan store "swipe" S'allrite boys,—you're making the "dough"

The honorable MBr Frank V Bonzagni, who wrote last week's headliner, will study at the Harvard Summer School Frank is looking forward to next year's English prize

Sam Sugarman, despite his trying efforts to avoid Summer school will attend after all

Tina Vasquez will go to the hot house to bring up a few "C's" to "B's" Tina will make a fine teacher with her high ideals! She enters her senior year with 95 points!

Gaetano Tedeschi will take a P G next year and enter Tufts Medical School "Teddy" has "balking" ideals

DRUNK IN HOME VIOLATES LAW

Ruling of Supreme Court in 1903 Plain—Right to Arrest, However, Disputed

Although controversy still raged in legal circles yesterday over the recent ruling by Judge Albert E. Avery in Quincy District Court that a person might be taken from his bed, charged with drunkenness, a decision of the Supreme Court of this State was cited to back the ruling.

Some smart member of the bar will be able to upset the ruling of Judge Avery. The law plainly says: "Whoever is found in a state of intoxication in a public place, or is found in any place in a state of intoxication committing a breach of the peace or disturbing others by noise, may be arrested, etc." Note that there is no comma after the second use of the word "intoxication." It is as plain as the nose on one's face, drunkenness is a sin, but no crime until it disturbs others. The Legislature so intended it," Representative Moore said last night.

Disagrees With Judge

One prominent Greater Boston district judge, who said that he did not object to his ideas being published, although he did not have the same use of courtesy to Judge Avery, asserted that a man could not be taken from his home as a drunken person unless the officer had been invited here by a member of his family, or had gone there with a warrant charging suspicion of a felony. Drunkenness is a misdemeanor and no felony, he said.

Still another District Court Judge, Samuel R. Cutler of Chelsea, in making a public speech in 1927, addressing the Massachusetts Society of Examining Physicians, was quoted as saying that all drunkenness is not criminal, becoming criminal only when a defendant becomes voluntarily drunk, and being drunk in a public place, or being drunk in a private place, made a disturbance of the peace. Judge Cutler, when this was called to his attention last night, said that he presumed he is quoted correctly in 1927, but that he did not care to comment on the sentiment.

How Law Reads

Section 44 of chapter 272 reads: "Whoever is found in a state of intoxication in a public place, or is found in any place in a state of intoxication committing a breach of the peace or disturbing others by noise, may be arrested without a warrant by a sheriff, deputy sheriff, constable or an officer, and kept in custody in a suitable place until he has recovered from his intoxication."

Who practices in Judge Avery's court pushed forth a charge on the drinking row last night by telling Post reporter that drunkenness itself is a breach of the peace. In 1903 the late Chief Justice Marcus Knowlton, in the case of the Commonwealth against a North Adams woman, made the precedent which has been set aside. The woman was charged with drunkenness in North Berkley District Court, after it was testified she was arrested in her own home. The Superior Court sustained the lower ruling and the case was carried to the Supreme Judicial Court.

Supreme Court Decision

The decision appears in volume 134, and is cited in 1903. It follows: "R. L. C. 212 S. 39, one may be arrested of drunkenness by the voluntary use of intoxicating liquor, although the offense was committed in the dwelling house without causing a public disturbance."

The defendant is brought regularly to answer to a complaint for drunkenness under R. L. C. 212 S. 39. The material upon the issue of his guilt whether he was arrested legally, or was arrested at all, before the complaint was made. Complaint received and sworn to in District Court of Northern Berkshire on March 21, 1909, under R. L. C. 212 S. 39, charging the defendant with drunkenness by the voluntary use of intoxicating liquor at North Adams on March 19, 1909. On an appeal to the Superior Court the defendant was tried before Judge Hofield, J., who ruled as stated in the opinion. The jury returned a verdict of guilty, and the defendant alleged exceptions.

"P. J. Moore, for the defendant. "J. F. Noxon, district attorney for the Commonwealth. Decision of Chief Justice Marcus P. Knowlton:

Lying Upon Couch

"At the trial upon this complaint for drunkenness the defendant offered no evidence but requested the judge to rule that upon all the evidence the defendant could not be convicted." The judge refused to so rule and instructed the jury that if they were satisfied upon all the evidence that the defendant, when found in this room, was drunk by the voluntary use of intoxicating liquor, she might be convicted under this complaint. To the refusal and to the instruction, an exception was taken. "The evidence tended strongly to not the usual practice to send to this court a copy of it, where the jurisdiction is not questioned. Upon the whole record we must assume that the court had jurisdiction, the trial no request was made, no instruction was given and, so far as can be seen, no question was raised in regard to jurisdiction. The only question was whether the evidence warranted a conviction of the offense charged."

Judge Avery Under Knife

Judge Avery underwent an operation in a Boston hospital yesterday on his eyes. The operation was performed by Dr. Harold B. Chandler of Beacon Street, and was a success. Judge Avery is expected back on the bench in a short time.

William H. Lewis, famous local authority on the Volstead Act and constitutional law who participated with Attorney James A. Cresswell in pressing the "liquor buyer" case to a victorious conclusion in the United States Supreme Court, said last night that technically speaking he found no objection to Judge Avery's law, but that he would like to delve into the question before expressing his opinion about home drunkenness.

Cresswell is among the Boston lawyers who believe that a man's home is his castle and that he cannot be arrested for becoming intoxicated there unless there is disturbance to his neighbors or likelihood of harm to his family through the intoxicating drinking.

Maine Jurist's View

One Boston lawyer quoted a Maine Judge, Justice Peters, as saying that a man was drunk when the width of the sidewalk became more important to him than the length.

"If a person were to get drunk in his own home, and were to remain very gentle and lamblike when the officers called no arrest without a warrant would apparently be justified," Dean Gleason L. Archer of the Suffolk Law School commented last night on the home drinking situation.

"A man's home is his castle which he may defend against wrongful invasion by others," he said. "The law guarantees this right to all law abiding citizens, but if a man commits a crime in his home or flees to his home after committing a crime, or harbors a criminal, officers of the law have a right to invade that home and make arrests therein."

"This law has come down to us from ancient times and is abundantly supported by decisions in this Commonwealth. Knowing nothing of the exact facts in the Quincy case, I cannot express an opinion of the legality of the arrest itself, but whether the arrest was legal or not, the Quincy court had no power under the law to find the defendant guilty of the crime of drunkenness."

WINS SUFFOLK LAW SCHOOL SCHOLARSHIP

In the class of 1933 of Suffolk Law School, Harry Wheeler of Allston has won second honors on an average of 87.11-14 per cent., entitling him to the Gleason L. Archer scholarship.

One prominent Greater Boston district judge, who said that he did not object to his ideas being published, although his name was used as a matter of courtesy to Judge Avery, asserted that a man could not be taken from his home as a drunken person unless the officer has been invited there by a member of his family, or had gone there with a warrant charging suspicion of a felony. Drunkenness is a misdemeanor and no felony, he said.

Still another District Court judge, Samuel R. Cutler of Chelsea, in making a public speech in 1927, addressing the Massachusetts Society of Examining Physicians, was quoted as saying that all drunkenness is not criminal, becoming criminal only when a defendant becomes voluntarily drunk, and being drunk in a public place, or being in a private place, made a disturbance of the peace. Judge Cutler, when this was called to his attention last night, said that he presumed he was quoted correctly in the paper, but that did not care to comment on the sentiment.

How Law Reads

Section 44 of chapter 272 reads: "Whoever is found in a state of intoxication in a public place, or in any place where a breach of the peace is committed, or who disturbs others by noise, or is arrested without a warrant by a deputy sheriff, or by a police officer, and kept in custody in a public place until he has recovered from his intoxication." Burgeses of Quincy, who practises in Judge Avery's court, pushed forth a new angle on the drinking row last night by telling a post reporter that drunkenness is a breach of the peace.

In 1903 the late Chief Justice Marcus Knowlton, in the case of the Commonwealth against the North Adams woman, made the precedent which has been set aside. The woman was charged with drunkenness in North Berkshire District Court after it was testified that she was arrested in her own home. The Superior Court sustained the lower court's ruling and the case was carried to the Supreme Judicial Court.

Supreme Court Decision

A decision appears in volume 134, and is dated in 1903. It follows: "R. L. C 212 S 33, one may be arrested for drunkenness by the voluntary use of intoxicating liquor, although the offence was committed in the dwelling house without causing a disturbance." The defendant is brought regularly to answer to a complaint for drunkenness under R. L. C 212 S 33. It is material upon the issue of his guilt whether he was arrested legally, or was arrested at all, before the complaint was made.

The complaint received and sworn to in District Court of Northern Berkshire on March 21, 1903, under R. L. C 212 S 33, charging the defendant with drunkenness by the voluntary use of intoxicating liquor at North Adams on March 19, 1903. On an appeal to the Superior Court the defendant was tried before Judge Hofield, J. who ruled as stated in the opinion. The jury returned a verdict of guilty; and the defendant alleged exceptions.

J. F. Moore, for the defendant.
J. F. Noxon, district attorney for the Commonwealth.
Decision of Chief Justice Marcus P. Knowlton:

Lying Upon Couch

"At the trial upon this complaint for drunkenness the defendant offered no evidence but requested the judge to rule, 'that upon all the evidence, the defendant could not be convicted.' The judge refused to so rule and instructed the jury 'that if they were satisfied upon all the evidence that the defendant, when found in the room, was drunk by the voluntary use of intoxicating liquor, she might be convicted under this complaint.' To the refusal and to the instruction, an exception was taken.

"The evidence tended strongly to show that the defendant was very much intoxicated by the use of whiskey at the time of the original arrest, although she was lying upon a couch and making no noise or other disturbance. The exception presents the question whether one can be convicted of drunkenness in a private dwelling house, where he is making no disturbance and is not exposed to the public view. This question is answered by the language of R. L. chapter 212 section 33. The offence made punishable by this section is 'drunkenness by the voluntary use of intoxicating liquor,' and the place where the offence is committed, whether public or private, is not an element to be considered in determining whether an accused person is guilty under the law. None of the cases relied on by the defendant bear upon the construction of this statute.

Illegality of No Effect

"The defendant contends that her arrest without a warrant was illegal, and that, therefore, she could not be convicted upon the complaint. The legality or illegality of arrest does not in any way affect the offence with which she was charged in the complaint. In Commonwealth vs. Fay, 170 Mass. 192, it was held that the Superior Court had jurisdiction on appeal to try upon a complaint for being an idle and disorderly person, one arrested without a warrant, whether his arrest was legal or illegal.

"So here, if the defendant was regularly brought before the court to answer to a complaint for drunkenness which had been duly made and received, it was immaterial upon the question of her guilt whether she had been arrested legally or illegally, or arrested at all, before the complaint was made. The record shows that she was brought before said court by virtue of a complaint in due form of law, issued by said court, and nothing in the record indicates that any question of jurisdiction was raised, either before the District Court or before the Superior Court. Although the warrant is not set out in the record, we infer that a warrant on the complaint was duly issued and served. Inasmuch as the warrant home drunkenness. Cresswell is among the Boston lawyers who believe that a man's home is his castle and that he cannot be arrested for becoming intoxicated there unless there is disturbance to his neighbors or likelihood of harm to his family through the intoxicating drinking.

Maine Jurist's View

One Boston lawyer quoted a Maine jurist, Justice Peters, as saying that a man was drunk when the width of the sidewalk became more important to him than the length.

"If a person were to get drunk in his own home, and were to remain very gentle and lamblike when the officers called no arrest without a warrant would apparently be justified," Dean Gleason L. Archer of the Suffolk Law School commented last night on the home drinking situation.

"A man's home is his castle which he may defend against wrongful invasion by others," he said. The law guarantees this right to all law abiding citizens, but if a man commits a crime in his home or flees to his home after committing a crime, or harbors a criminal, officers of the law have a right to invade that home and make arrests therein.

"This law has come down to us from ancient times and is abundantly supported by decisions in this Commonwealth. Knowing nothing of the exact facts in the Quincy case, I cannot express an opinion of the legality of the arrest, but I believe that the arrest was legal. Under the Quincy court had a perfect right under the law to find the defendant guilty of the crime of drunkenness."

MISS McGRATH WEDS RICHARD H. ROCKETT

SALEM, Sept. 2—At a nuptial mass in St. James Church today, Rev. Richard Hawke officiated at a ceremony in which both bride and groom were teachers at Salem High School. Miss Irene Catherine McGrath, who became the bride of Richard Henry Rockett, is the daughter of Mrs. Mary F. McGrath and a sister of City Councilor Michael F. McGrath, who gave her in marriage. The groom is a resident of Marblehead, and a son of Mrs. Alice P. Rockett of that town.

The maid of honor was Miss Agnes T. McGrath, sister of the bride, and a brother of the groom, Edward Rockett, was best man. A niece of the bride, Mary Louise McGrath, daughter of Councilor and Mrs. McGrath, was flower girl. Ushers were Joseph T. McGrath of Salem and Lawrence E. Fennell of West Roxbury.

The gown of the bride was of ivory satin, simply made and worn with a tulle veil, caught at either side and at the back with clusters of valley lilies and orange blossoms. The maid of honor wore a ruffled gown of pale pink and blue, and a hat to match, and the flower girl's costume was similar, with long-skirted frock with many ruffles.

Breakfast for the immediate families was served at the Hotel Hawthorne, after which the couple left for the mountains and Canada.

The bride is a graduate of Notre Dame Academy and Emmanuel College, and a member of the Aristos Club of Boston. She has been teaching history and civics at the high school. The groom, who is a Latin instructor at the school, is a graduate of Boston College and the Suffolk Law School. They will live at 6 Oak St., Marblehead.

AMERICAN BAR ASSN. MEETINGS

MORE ABOUT BAR MEETING

of college work, sided with Brennan. He said no notice had been given of postponement, and that inquiries during the convention resulted in each one passing the question to someone else. He said it finally rested on a word from the secretary in the office of the executive committee, but then it became a question of "cherchez la femme."
Heated Discussion.

The discussion was becoming quite heated and cries of "question" came from all parts of the room. Senator Dean had to use force to make the point heard. It was evident that the question of postponement met with considerable disfavor, although it was carried by a noticeable majority. Senator Lee said there will not be sufficient time to give full consideration to the problem of modifying the former action on admissions to the bar at the dinner meeting and he voiced a suspicion that failure to hold the scheduled session might indicate that those in charge of the section do not desire a debate on the subject.

Declared to be one of the chief causes for congested court calendars and at times the cause of antagonism between lawyer and client, the contingent fee, particularly in respect to its employment in tort cases, was another question that came under fire this morning. A resolution submitted before the executive committee by Charles H. Tuttle, United States attorney for the southern district of New York, asking for a revision of existing law on the subject.

This resolution provides for the American Bar Association making an effort to eliminate the contingent-fee agreement as public documents and primary review by a court on behalf of the client. It provides for the committee on professional ethics to be requested to review the canon on contingent fees in the light of the abuses referred to.

Would Hasten Justice.

The judicial section passed a resolution suggesting the American Bar Association appoint delegates to suggest to the United States Chamber of Commerce, the American Federation of Labor and other nationally known bodies that they also appoint delegates to meet in a convention to be called for the purpose of considering a plan to prevent present delays of the law in both civil and criminal cases.

In arguments for the adoption of the resolution delays were scored as prejudicial to justice and the Secord v. Zettl case was referred to, among other drawn out cases. It was argued that when an indictment is returned trial should follow as quickly as possible and that conviction should be followed by immediate sentences or other disposal to clear court calendars and achieve swifter justice.

The resolution was referred to the committee of judicial reform by the committee for instruction for report on it as quickly as possible.

Strawn to Report.

Outstanding among other questions for consideration today by the convention is one on legal education and admission to the bar to be opened in the form of a report by Silas H. Strawn, of Chicago, mentioned as possible new president of the American Bar Association, and giving promise of a spirited debate.

In this connection it is announced that a group headed by Gleason L. Archer, dean of the Suffolk Law School, Boston, and Edward T. Lee, dean of the John Marshall Law School, Chicago, will seek to have modified a resolution adopted by the bar association in 1927. It requires all applicants for admission to the bar to have at least two years of college work.

In a brief accompanying the resolution, Dean Archer has this to say: "In order to safeguard the rights of the 90-odd per cent. of young men of America to whom circumstances deny day college training, we must provide some efficient substitute in the nature of a bona fide evening college. This does not mean a commercial course for special students, now so popular with our various universities, but a bachelor of arts curriculum."

"Such a venture requires state or municipal backing, as in the case of the College of the City of New York. Free evening colleges or even state-supported institutions with a modest tuition, is the next logical step in carrying higher education into the lives of the great masses of our people."

Aid to Needy Students.

The tenor of the claims of the group is that under the restrictions requiring two years of college study, many ambitious, but poor, students are denied an opportunity to study law. The prepared resolution states that "New York has developed a wellnigh ideal system of education, under which ambitious youths who are unable to attend high schools may resort to home study and appear for examinations before the board of regents and receive certifications if found qualified, and that it also has a free college in New York where students may win collegiate degrees by evening study."

Dean Archer and Dean Lee contend there will not be sufficient time to give full consideration to the problem of the evening day and voiced a suspicion that failure to hold the scheduled session might indicate that those in charge of the section do not desire a debate on the subject.

The committee reports included: Publicity, Walter H. Eckert, Chicago, Ill.; membership, Charles W. Walton, Albany, N. Y.; memorials, William MacCracken, Jr., Chicago, Ill.; citizenship, F. Bingham, St. Paul, Hutchinson, Kan.; international law, James Brown Scott, Washington, D. C.; removal of government liens, estate, John T. Jurisprudence, W. T. New York, Hugh

Brothers Win Three Suffolk Scholarships

Dean Gleason L. Archer of Suffolk Law School today announced that for the first time in the history of the school two brothers, one a sophomore and the other a freshman, have carried off first honors in their respective classes. Between them they won three scholarships and two cash prizes for the school year 1930-31. They are Lawson and Byron Wright of Toronto, Can.

Lawson Wright, thirty-two years of age, in his freshman year won first honors in his class and was awarded the David I. Walsh scholarship and a cash prize for the highest mark in contracts for the year. This year he is being awarded the Thomas J. Boynton scholarship for having maintained the highest general scholastic average in the sophomore class and has also been awarded the Steinberg scholarship, which is offered annually to the student who maintains the highest scholastic average in his first two years of law study. He has also won the Bradley cash prize for the highest average in the subject of real property in his sophomore year.

His younger brother, Byron Wright, is being awarded the David I. Walsh scholarship for having maintained the highest general average in his class, and the Bradley cash prize for the highest mark in contracts as his brother won before him the previous year.

The balance of the scholarship awards are as follows: J. Earl Dick, Cambridge, won second honors in the freshman class, and was awarded the Gleason L. Archer scholarship. In the class of 1933, Harry Wheeler, Allston, won second honors, entitling him to the Gleason L. Archer scholarship. In the class of 1932, Saul J. Cagan of Beverly was awarded the George A. Frost scholarship for having maintained the highest scholastic average. Ralph W. Wilson, Lynn, won second honors in the junior class, entitling him to the Archer scholarship. The Bradley cash prize for the highest mark in constitutional law was won by Harold F. McDonnell, Cambridge.

BRADY LEAVES TO STUDY FOR PRIESTHOOD

Carrying with him the prayers and best wishes of his relatives and many friends, John F. Brady, Jr., 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Brady of 339 Montello street, sailed from Boston Monday afternoon for New York on a journey that will terminate in Loretto, Pa., where he will enter St. Francis College for a four-year course preparatory to entering the Franciscan Seminary at Paterson, N. J.

Young Brady is the second Brockton boy to forsake worldly pleasures for the rigorous life of a Franciscan. Rev. John Gilligan, a former Brockton city engineer, who was ordained 25 years ago, now being engaged in missionary work in China.

William Eagan of South Boston, a graduate of Boston College High school, accompanied the local boy. The pair expect to arrive this morning in New York city.

Mr. Eagan gave up a responsible position in a large Boston firm after making his decision to enter the priesthood. Long years of study face Eagan and Brady before they are blessed with the oils of Holy Orders in ordination. They must go through a four-year college course, study four years in the seminary before going out to teach for two years, after which they will return for final study in the seminary prior to ordination.

Mr. Brady, an unusually retiring youth, was graduated with honors from St. Patrick's parochial grammar school and Brockton High school, studying law in the Suffolk Law school the past two years. He was for several years an altar boy at St. Patrick's church. He has been employed by the city highway department during past summers. He was given many farewell parties by relatives and friends prior to his departure.

Included in the group wishing him Godspeed Monday afternoon at the dock in Boston were his parents and his sister, Minnie, of 399 Montello street; Mrs. John Monahan of 155 West Bartlett street; Mrs. James M. Yesterday we found at the Hotel Brun 15-minute "meetin' tossers and the us of the army of n and friends. Any Connie away from cuddy, punch-mixe Green Sod Club of Hot Springs, Ark, training camp days, is sure entitled to brag about it.

But some hours before Dennis finally coraled Connie in that shiny, high-powered auto, under the Fen-way stands, we buttonholed our old friend in the hotel corridor, and, standing in pretty good, led him to one of those comfortable soft-lounges at friend Prior's baseball headquarters, just to ask a few questions about some things in which the fellows who pay their hard-earned two cents for the evening Globe may perhaps be more than "casually" interested.

John W. Lyons Candidate For Councillor in Ward 3

September 2, 1931.

Editor Chronicle:—May I have the courtesy of your columns to announce my candidacy for the office of councillor from ward 3

I was born in Cambridge and educated in the Cambridge public schools. I am married and the father of five children, three of whom are attending the Cambridge public schools. I am a veteran of the World War. After the war, I studied law at Suffolk Law school and received the degree of LL.B. I was admitted to practice as an attorney in the courts of the commonwealth of Massachusetts on April 15, 1924, and was admitted to practice as an attorney in the district court of the United States on June 1, 1926. I have been in close contact with city affairs for a number of years, having studied law in the office of the city solicitor before my admission to practice as an attorney and later acting as law clerk for the Cambridge law department for approximately six years.

Although not an office holder, I have worked faithfully in the interests of the people of ward 3 and shall continue to do so if elected to represent them as their councillor. I believe that I am best fitted by my training and experience to represent the people of ward 3.

Thanking you for your courtesy, I am

SEEK MODIFIED QUALIFICATION TO STUDY LAW

Two-year college training requirement may cause convention debate

RESOLUTION PREPARED

Dean Archer, Boston, to urge night courses where degrees may be earned Possibilities of a debate on the floor of the convention of the American Bar Association at this morning's session in the ballroom of the Statler were forecast last night with the announcement of a group that it would submit a resolution from the floor relating to the educational standards required of those seeking admission to the bar.

This group, headed by Gleason L. Archer, dean of Suffolk law school of Boston, and Edward T. Lee, dean of the John Marshall law school of Chicago, seeks modification of the resolution adopted by the bar association in 1921 which requires all applicants for admission to the bar to have had two years of college work before beginning the study of law.

Committee Fails to Meet

They say that they will bring the resolution before the entire convention, because the scheduled meeting of the committee on legal education and admissions to the bar, of which Slias H. Strawn of Chicago, who is slated to be the next president of the association, is chairman, was not held on Tuesday.

Dean Archer and Dean Lee contend there will not be sufficient time to give full consideration to the problem at the dinner meeting to be held in the hotel this evening, and voiced a suspicion that failure to hold the scheduled session might indicate that those in charge of the section do not desire a debate on the subject.

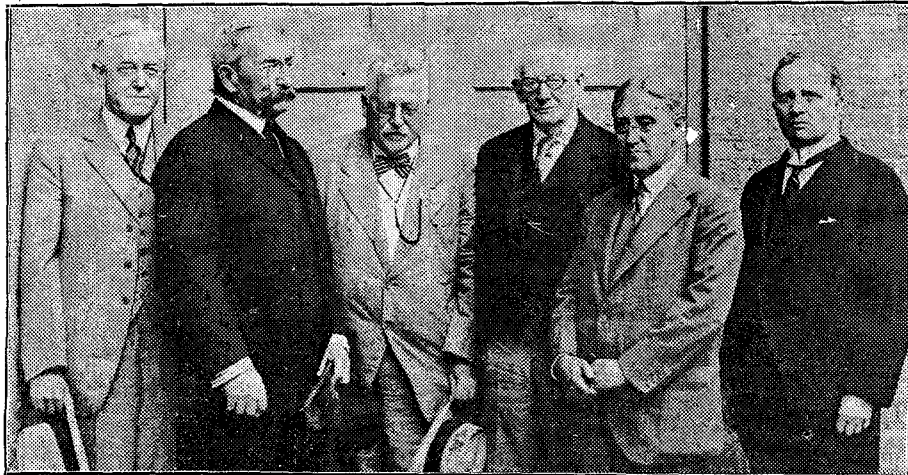

In a brief, accompanying the resolution, which he will seek to present at this morning's session, Dean Archer says:

"In order to safeguard the rights of the ninety-odd per cent of young men of America to whom circumstances deny day college training, we must provide some efficient substitute in the nature of a bona fide evening college. This does not mean a commercial course for special students, now so popular with our various universities, but a bachelor of arts curriculum.

"Such a venture requires state or

Nearly 2,500 members of the American Bar Association and their wives attended the most important social function held in connection with the conference, the president's reception at the Buffalo Consistory last night.

The outstanding feature of the varied program was the actual reception of the delegates by Charles S. Whitman, president of the association; Lord Chief Justice and Lady Hewart of England; Mrs. Dana B. Hellings, wife of the president of the Erie County Bar Association; William J. McCracken, assistant secretary of commerce; Mr. and Mrs. John Voorhees, and M. Bokanowski, official representative of the Paris bar.

Arrival in Buffalo this afternoon of William Howard Taft, former President of the United States and chief justice of the United States supreme court, will complete the list of notables here for the 50th annual meeting of the American Bar Association.

There seems to be one thing in common among the illustrious lights of the countries of the United States, England and France and the American possessions, who have convened here for the association meetings. They are not desirous of making public utterances except through the medium of prepared speeches.

Beg to Be Excused

Two of those, who willingly met newspapermen yesterday, but who begged to be excused from interviews, were the Right Honorable Lord Hewart, lord chief justice of England, and William G. McAdoo, former cabinet officer and prominent as a Democratic candidate for president.

Lord Hewart consented to state that he had been misquoted in reports of a speech he made before the Canadian Bar Association a Toronto in which he was quoted as criticizing the press. Beyond that he declined to talk.

McAdoo Mum on Politics

When asked for comment on the political situation, Mr. McAdoo parried the question by replying that he is here in his capacity as a lawyer. He added that he is here to listen and not talk and had no comment on political or legal matters.

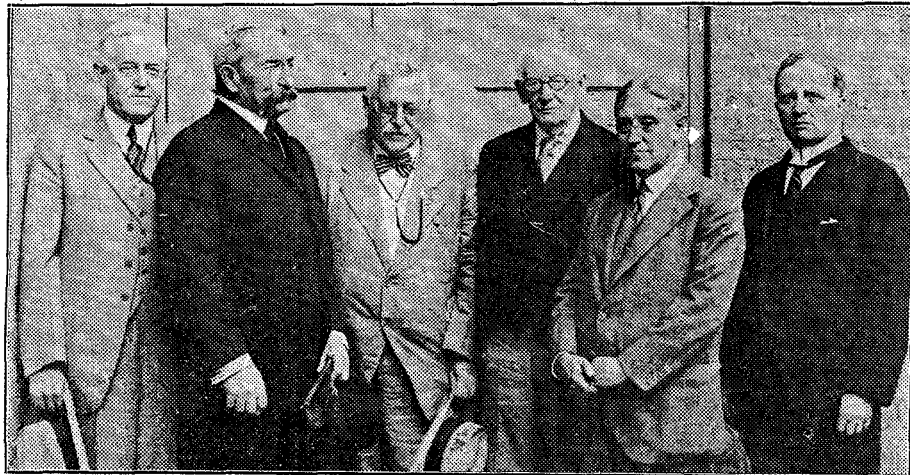

During his stay in Buffalo, Lord Hewart, who will address the evening session of the association in the Consistory tonight, will be the guest at the home of Frank B. Baird. He attended the morning session of the convention yesterday.

Maurice Bokanowski, French minister, arrived in Buffalo late yesterday afternoon, and after a dinner at the home of James McCormick Mitchell, departed for the Consistory to make his address at the evening session. He expects to leave Buffalo today.

It is expected that Nicholas Longworth, speaker of the House of Representatives, will attend some of the convention sessions.

M. Bokanowski pleads for bridging of space between United States and Europe

CITES LINDBERGH FLIGHT

Aviation triumphs bringing countries closer together, diplomat tells Bar Association notables

That need for uniformity in international law has been stressed by the flight of Col Charles A. Lindbergh from New York to Paris, opening up new means of communication between countries which are binding the peoples of the earth closer together, was the thought expressed by M. Maurice Bokanowski, minister of commerce, aviation and telegraph, at the session of the American Bar Association in the Buffalo Consistory last night.

M. Bokanowski paid high tribute to the members of the American legal profession and brought to them the greetings of officials of the French government and bar. He said that it is their duty to co-operate in the drafting of uniform international laws and to aid in the bridging of the space that separates the two countries.

Chance for Great Service

"As the function of lawyer has grown prodigiously in importance and in dignity," he said, "as national life has become more civilized, as might has gradually been eliminated and right made to triumph, so in international life there is an unlimited field in which lawyers may render equally great service to mankind."

"Henceforth no country can hope to be sufficient unto itself alone; no country can reasonably aspire to splendid isolation, for every day the progress of science and industry is bringing all nations closer together in our constantly shrinking world."

"Only a few weeks ago, as minister of aviation, I had the pleasure and privilege of welcoming your heroic fellow countryman, Charles Lindbergh, who brought the magnificent inspiration of a victory of human will and human energy over the blind forces of nature. Every day invisible waves carry the written and spoken messages of mankind through boundless space."

New Means of Communication

"What problems are conjured by these new means of communication between the peoples of the earth? What other and grater problems will arise tomorrow?"

"How often have I been faced, in private practice and in office, with difficulties arising from the diversity of terms, of legal conceptions, of national laws dealing with everyday

The starting on Sept. 1 for St. Francis College by Mr. Brady will realize an ambition which he has held for many years. He graduated with honors from St. Patrick's Parochial Grammar school and Brockton High school and was for many years an altar boy at St. Patrick's church. On his graduation from Brockton High school in June of 1928 he entered Suffolk Law school, where he studied for the past two years. During recent summers he has been employed by the highway department of the City of Brockton. He was tendered a surprise party by friends on Friday night.

Lawrence Man Elected Today as Convention Comes to Close

Atty John E. Fenton, of Lawrence, was elected president of the Massachusetts state branch of the Ancient Order of Hibernians this afternoon at the close of the two-days' biennial convention of the order at Hibernian hall.

Other officers elected were: Maurice F Walsh of Wakefield, vice president; James H Ivory of North Brookfield, secretary, and Michael J Ahern of Boston, treasurer.

The selection of the next convention city was left to the discretion of the incoming state board. It is generally believed, however, that Springfield will be given the preference among the cities of the state.

Attorney Fenton was graduated from the Lawrence High school in 1916, Holy Cross college in 1920 and Suffolk Law school in 1924. He taught in the Lawrence public schools for nearly nine years, and was faculty manager of athletics at the Lawrence High school for five years.

inished, but I say that if it is shown to them in language forceful enough they will see the wisdom of spending public money in poor times and conserving in good times."

Speaks of Public Works

The governor stated that reports last week in the construction of buildings and highways at least in direct labor showed that 25,000 men had been given employment.

"I wish it had been 100,000," the governor said. "If the Legislature had been all Democratic, I think it might have reached that figure," he added, good humoredly.

"Massachusetts has done better than any state in the Union in its efforts to relieve distress. If every state had done as well as Massachusetts, 625,000 persons would have been employed in the United States. That means that 625,000 families would have been benefited, and that is only on public works."

"I am in hopes that in the next three months we may see what we used to call 'normalcy' in Massachusetts and after the return of such a condition a curb will be put on expenditures and relief from taxation burdens will be sought for the people of Massachusetts."

The governor declared that he had not severed his affection or allegiance to those who served the Commonwealth faithfully for many years and who were of his generation, but spoke "with pride" of the young men he had appointed to aid him in his administration.

He emphasized further that he was not present at the banquet in his official capacity as a representative of the Commonwealth, but was just passing through Worcester from the Cape, en route to his home in Westfield.

"In view of the fact I spoke at a Methodist meeting last Saturday down on the Cape, I felt that I should say a few words here at your banquet," he said laughingly, and the diners applauded the sally.

Rev. Edward J Fitzgerald, P. R., of St. John's church, county chaplain, spoke on "The Church." He outlined what the Catholic church has performed for humanity. He stressed the efforts of the church to terminate slavery, its service to the poor and afflicted, its elevation of womanhood and encouragement to labor

CAGAN WINS LAW SCHOOL SCHOLARSHIP

The "George A. Frost Scholarship," highest undergraduate honor bestowed by the Suffolk Law School, has been awarded to Saul J. Cagan of Beverly. Not only is Mr. Cagan the highest ranking member of his class for the past school year, but he is foremost for all three years. This is signal scholastic achievement in a body that numbered 450 at the beginning of last year. Mr. Cagan maintained a rating of 91.3-14 per cent, two units higher than his nearest competitor. Dean Gleason L. Archer of Suffolk Law School sent the Beverly young man a letter of congratulation. It follows:

"In behalf of the Trustees and Faculty of Suffolk Law School I take pleasure in informing you that you have been awarded the 'George A. Frost Scholarship' for having maintained the highest scholastic average in the Junior Class (91.3-14%) during the school year of 1930-31. Please accept my sincere congratulations upon your success. To have thus distinguished yourself in so large a class is an achievement of which you should be proud.

Mr. Cagan has risen steadily in his freshman year he stood third in the class, only a fraction of a point behind the leaders. The next year he was third again, but with the standing of second for the two years. This past year he was in every way undisputed first.

Graduating from Beverly High in 1927, Mr. Cagan left a worthy record behind him. He was a member of the Student Council, president of the Debating Society, lieutenant of the Safety Patrol, and held innumerable minor offices. He is a charter member of the Beverly Chapter of the National Honor Society and a member of Fidelity Chapter, Order of DeMolay. When his class at Suffolk organized last February, he was elected its secretary, which office he now holds.

DELOREY WILL BE MARRIED

Cards have been sent out for the wedding of Ex-Councilman Fernia J. Delorey, 10 Wellington ave., to Miss Alice N. de Yeso, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfonso de Yeso. The ceremony took place Labor Day in St. Anthony's church.

Delorey served in the common council three years and was active on the floor. He is now employed by a local lumber company as a salesman. He studied in the Everett schools, at a Malden business college, spent three years at Suffolk Law School and took courses at the Bentley School.

Miss de Yeso lives at 14 Thelston st. The pastor of the church, Rev. Fr. Lino Buggini, will officiate at the wedding. A reception will be held immediately afterward, in Whittier Hall. The honeymoon tour will be to Bermuda. On their return the couple will reside at 70 Dartmouth.

WINS ANOTHER SCHOLARSHIP AT SUFFOLK SCHOOL

For the third consecutive year, Ralph W. Wilson of Vine street, Annisquam, has been awarded a scholarship for excellence in studies, at Suffolk Law school, Boston. For the school year just closed, the "Gleason L. Archer Scholarship" was awarded the local man for maintaining the second highest honors in the junior class, with a general average of 89.5-7 per cent. This scholarship, equal in value to one-half of the regular tuition for the senior year, is based upon his scholastic record. Mr. Wilson had nearly 500 other members of the junior class with whom to compete. Mr. Wilson was the winner of the "Steinberg Scholarship" a year ago, for maintaining the highest general average for his freshman and sophomore years in a class of over 800 men at Suffolk, while two years ago, he was awarded the "Archer Scholarship" for finishing second in a class of nearly 1000 members. This is a record on which he is to be congratulated.

Mr. Wilson is a former Times paper boy, having had a large route in East Gloucester; was awarded the Sawyer medal from the Point Grammar school; graduated from Gloucester high, led his class in Burdett College; was graduated from the School of Commerce and Finance of Northeastern University, where he was granted the B. C. S. degree. He has also had several courses at Boston University.

He is educational advisor on commercial education, and at present, head of the business administration department at Burdett College at the Lynn division.

DeCaro, treasurer, have invited the following as patrons: Professor and Mrs. Wilmot R. Evans, Dean and Mrs. Gleason L. Archer, and Professor Thomas J. Bary.

NEW AMERICAN BAR HEAD

SILAS H. STRAWN

Strawn is Prominent Mid-Western Attorney

Silas Hardy Strawn, of Chicago, who was today elected to the presidency of the American Bar Association, is one of the most prominent attorneys in the mid-western states. He is chairman of the board of directors of the Montgomery, Ward & Co.; is a director and member of the executive committee of the First National Bank of Chicago and of the First Trust & Savings Bank of Chicago; is one of the trustees of the Los Angeles Syndicate, and is a director of several other business concerns. He is one of the trustees of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace and is one of the trustees of the Field Museum.

In June, 1925, Mr. Strawn was selected by President Coolidge as one of the two delegates representing the United States at the conference respecting Chinese Customs Tariff and as sole commissioner of the United States on the commission investigating Extraterritorial Jurisdiction in China, both of which bodies sat in Peking, China, in 1925 and 1926. Mr. Strawn was chairman of the Extraterritorial Commission.

Mr. Strawn has served as president of the Illinois State Bar Association and of the Chicago Bar Association. For several years he has been chairman of the section on Legal Education of the American Bar Association. He is a member of the committee on Foreign Affairs of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and is alternate member of the council of the International Chamber of Commerce. He was a delegate to the meetings of the International Chamber of Commerce at Rome in 1923 and at Stockholm in 1927.

Born near Ottawa, Illinois, December 15, 1866, Mr. Strawn was graduated from the Ottawa High School in 1885 and was admitted to the Illinois bar in 1889.

Following his election Mr. Strawn said the following in appreciation of the high honor conferred upon him:

"By mere words I cannot express the deep sense of gratitude I feel for the distinguished honor you have conferred upon me.

"In selecting your president for the coming year, I am persuaded you were influenced largely by geographical rather than personal consideration. Yet, I am conscious of the fact that in endeavoring to do my duty I must remember that I represent all the members of this association, regardless of where they may live.

"Anyone who had the privilege of hearing that masterful resume of the work of the association during the past year which was so eloquently made by our president in his annual address, must realize full well that the activities of the American Bar Association are many, its accomplishment much and its responsibilities great.

"With your able and generous assistance I will endeavor to secure my appreciation of your confidence by trying to carry out and further the splendid work so well begun. To that end I invite your criticism and solicit your active co-operation."

for the occasion. Reports of their addresses will be found elsewhere in this edition.

Among the most important actions of the convention at its Thursday afternoon session was the unanimous approval of the resolution submitted by the committee on jurisprudence and law reform by the chairman, Henry W Taft of New York City. The effect of the proposed legislation is to eliminate red tape in the enforcement of judgments in federal districts and states other than those in which judgments are rendered.

In general the Thursday meeting was devoted to proposed reforms in federal and state laws designed to result in greater uniformity, to advance the interests of justice and administration of the law, all of which were approved.

Following a sharp debate, a resolution designed to restrict use of the terms attorney and patent attorney to those who are actually members of the bar, was adopted by a sweeping majority.

Amendments to the internal revenue act of 1926, relating to the payment of income taxes, as urged by Hugh Satterlee, of New York, and the committee on Federal taxation, were also given the convention's approval.

Under proposed legislation endorsed by the delegates both money judgments and equity decrees of sister states and of federal courts may be made enforceable by mere registration in any part of the country where relief is sought to be obtained.

The report of the committee on commercial law and bankruptcy, of which W. H. Platt of Kansas City, Mo., is chairman, also was adopted, with the recommendation that all State and local bar associations use their best efforts toward adoption in their respective States of uniform legislation upon commercial subjects.

Adopt Platt's Report.

A resolution requesting the secretary of commerce and the commissioner of patents to change existing regulations regarding practice before the patent office to limit the terms "attorney" and "patent attorney" to those who actually are members of the bar, was carried almost unanimously. It was pointed out by opponents that the proposed new regulations should exempt laymen but supporters of the resolution held that to permit anyone but an attorney to use the title is contrary to the association's code of ethics.

The committee on the proposed canons of professional ethics was divided and a minority report was submitted. An anticipated clash was avoided when the chairman announced that the committee desired further time to study the matter and did not urge its approval.

Cuvillier Presents Resolution.

The question of prohibition came before the convention when Assemblyman Louis Cuvillier, of New York, prominent in the fight against the national dry law, introduced a resolution asking the Bar Association to support the convening of a constitutional amendment for repeal or modification of the Volstead Act. It was intimated the resolution would be referred to the committee on ethics for study and report next year.

Maurice Bokanowski, who spoke at Wednesday evening's meeting, left Buffalo late yesterday afternoon for Montreal. He is minister of aviation, commerce, industry and telegraph of France and told newspapermen that he plans to visit West Point September 6 for the Lafayette-Marne celebration and to see the international tennis contests in Philadelphia on September 9, sailing for home the same day so that he can take part in the opening of the American Legion convention.

Lord Hewart, it is expected, will leave the city today. Justice Taft returned to the Clifton House at Niagara Falls immediately after his address last night in the Buffalo Consistory.

The contestants came before the judge one by one. The boys were examined and studied. Questions of general and specific nature on a variety of subjects were asked.

HEWART ATTACKS "GREEDY" PRESS

Feeling of annoyance retained by Lord Hewart since his attack upon the press, while addressing the Canadian Bar association last week, which was warmly answered editorially by the New York Times and the Canadian Press.

Lord Hewart heard himself referred to as a "reporter in the gallery of parliament" where doubtless, like Samuel Johnson in his reports, he was able to improve the style and English of the debates," and lauded as a lord chief justice and as a great law officer of the crown by Justice Taft.

Other high notes Thursday evening were the action of the section on legal education and admission to the bar refusing to sanction less than two years pre-legal education for candidates for law school, but urging all states to create a board of law examiners similar to the New York state regents and operate a college similar to the College of the City of New York, where boys and girls of this state may receive free collegiate training; and the address of Sir Thomas Willes Chitty, king's remembrancer, and chief master of the royal courts, before the members of the Phi Delta Phi, national legal fraternity, in the Lafayette hotel.

Strawn Elected President.

For the first time in the history of the association an unopposed candidate, Silas H. Strawn of Chicago, was unanimously elected president of the American Bar association at the Friday morning session. Mr. Strawn was born on a farm near Ottawa, Ill., and was admitted to the bar in 1889. He is a member of the firm of Winston, Strawn and Shaw, in Chicago, solicitors for the states of Indiana and Illinois and for many railroads. He represented the United States as delegate to the conference respecting Chinese customs tariff in 1925, and was sole commissioner from the United States on the commission investigating extraterritorial jurisdiction in China.

William F. MacCracken Jr., Chicago, was re-elected secretary, and John H. Voorhees, Sioux Falls, South Dakota, was re-elected treasurer. James C. Rogers, Denver; Oscar C. Hull, Detroit; Province Pogue, Cincinnati; Ralph Van Orsdel, Omaha, and Charles A. Boston, New York, were elected to the executive committee.

Mr. Strawn, in a brief speech of acceptance, assured the association he would do his duty as presiding officer regardless of where any individual member may reside, and promised to do his utmost to further the program of the association.

Again breaking precedent the members of the association and their wives gathered together Friday night at the annual dinner of the Bar association in the Elmwood Music hall at 7 o'clock. Former Governor Charles S. Whitman will preside. Nicholas Longworth, Speaker of the House of Representatives; Julian P. Alexander, of Mississippi; John Proctor Clarke, retired justice of the Supreme court of New York state, and John Lord O'Brian, of the Buffalo bar, will deliver addresses.

Consider Plane Laws.

The delegates considered legislation regarding hazardous airplane flights; the incorporation of the Bar association under federal statute, and the proposition to change the date of the President's inauguration at the sessions Friday. In the afternoon the children of the delegates will be entertained at an elaborate party in the Buffalo Consistory. After the business sessions close Friday afternoon the delegates will take an automobile tour of the city. Saturday the entire day will be spent sightseeing at the Falls.

The association passed a resolution to authorize the Department of Commerce to prohibit hazardous transoceanic flights in the interests of aviation. The delegates they any special obligations or liabilities. The right of freedom of speech is, similarly, the right to say anything, in public or private, which is not either seditious or blasphemous or defamatory of any person.

"Now, the administration of justice, as you do not need to be reminded, is of greater importance to a people than anything else, and it is confidence in the administration of justice which, beyond anything else, makes a people contented and happy. Where there are just laws, administered without fear or favor, by incorruptible and impartial judges, there is not much cause to fear popular outbreaks or revolution. It is, you may think, principally for that reason that the treacherous propaganda of Communism, so dangerous in many other countries, can have little effect in the United States or Great Britain. It is beyond the imagination of any sane person that Americans or Englishmen would wish to change their free institutions for the ghastly tyranny by which the people of Russia are, after a fashion, ruled.

Made Part of Constitution.

"You have made the fundamental principles of liberty part of your written Constitution and have entrusted the Supreme Court, as the guardian of the Constitution, with the duty of seeing that the various legislatures do no violence to its principles. It follows that you have laws which can be changed only by an amendment of the Constitution itself. That is a great safeguard against hasty and ill-considered innovation, and the phenomenal success of your constitution is no doubt closely connected with that system.

Discusses Press.

"The other matter to which I should like very briefly to refer is a certain change which seems to have taken place in the character and the aims of much of the newspaper press. It goes without saying that if self-government is to be a real and a living thing, the citizens who share the responsibility of governing, that is to say all the citizens, ought at least to have access to information upon public affairs which is both accurate and adequate. One of the instruments for that purpose is, or at any rate ought to be, the newspaper press. You can not expect the right verdict from the jury if the evidence is not fairly and squarely laid before it.

"To put the matter the other way round: Is it not really a kind of treason against the political sovereign deliberately to mislead the public, either by active misrepresentation or by calculated suppression? Thirty years ago and more there were already signs in many newspaper offices of a contest for supremacy between what may be called the editorial department on one side and the business, which is to a great extent the advertising department, on the other side.

"During the interval the contest seems to have been decided and, in an enormous number of cases, decided in favor of the business department. It was an expert in the business department who said not long ago that the real power of the press is the power of suppression.

Chain Ownership.

"Side by side with this it is impossible not to observe another development—I mean the systematic and increasing concentration of the control of a great number of newspapers under one and the same hand. A multimillionaire, it would seem, presses a button in his office or his smoking room, or his bedroom, and straightway the nominal heads of a whole group of newspapers stand at attention, and within a few hours each one of these newspapers, purporting in every case to represent an authentic and independent opinion, assents or denies, attacks or defends, displays or suppresses, magnifies or disparages, in so the bar, res angustae led him into journalism for some years as a reporter in the gallery of Parliament, where doubtless like Samuel Johnson in his reports he was able to improve the style and English of the debates. This experience aided him much to catch the ways and temper of the house and to become the accomplished parliamentarian of his later years. Between the time he came to the bar in 1862 and the war, he won great and marked success and soon became a leader. Entering parliament, he developed a strength due to the sweet and convincing reasonableness of his argument, instead of the sledge hammer unprovoked assault of opponents. He became a pillar of strength to the government of which he was a member. The only obstruction to his promotion to be the Lord Chief Justice was like that which delayed Mansfield—the unwillingness of the prime minister to part with his service as a great law officer of the crown, and so it was that when he was finally raised to his present office, the query of the curious was not why he was elevated when he was but why he had not been so elevated before.

"In welcoming our guest, I can not forbear a reference to the country and the people from whom he comes. I am prompted to do this by the debt, which can never be paid, that we owe to them for our law and our form of government. The happiness we enjoy in our liberties comes from the representative character of our popular institutions as we derive them from England. Without this, our progress would have been impossible, and departure from it in the future, will be full of danger. Our problems have been somewhat different, the variations have required some changes in governmental structure, but the origin and essence of it we must trace directly to our English descent.

Praises English.

"The strength and character of the English people, developed under that representative form of government, should continue to be our inspiration. The model of their administration of justice, exemplified wherever the British flag floats in its equity, efficacy and dispatch, should stimulate us to improvement and reform in our meth-

PLAN FREE COLLEGE TRAINING IN THE LAW

To overcome strong opposition that had developed to the rule requiring all applicants for admission to the bar to take two years' work in college, the section of legal education and admission to the bar of the American Bar association Thursday evening inaugurated a movement for free collegiate training of law students in states where no such provision is made at the present time.

When the retiring president, Silas H. Strawn of Chicago, called the section together at Hotel Statler, it was supposed the most important fight of the convention would take place. Lines had been closely drawn between members favoring abolition of the two-year college rule and those insisting upon higher educational qualifications for applicants to the bar. With a full knowledge of the importance of the question involved, several hundred attorneys attended the session, which in previous years drew a handful.

The surprise came when President Strawn at the very outset of the meeting presented a resolution providing for free educational methods and at the same time retaining the two-year college requirement that had been written into the law of the association in 1921.

Vote Nearly Unanimous.

The adoption was almost unanimous after it had been seconded by Gleason Archer, dean of the Suffolk Law

Business Office Dominates Weakens Press

Advertising or business office domination of newspaper's editorial department breaks function of a free press, declared Lord Hewart, in his notable address before the Thursday night.

"On this point, Lord Hewart said: "The other matter to which I should like to refer is a certain change which seems to have taken place in the function of the newspaper press. To put the matter the other way round, is there any special obligation or liability on the part of the newspaper press to the public, either by active misrepresentation or by calculated suppression? Thirty years ago and more there were already signs in many newspaper offices of a contest for supremacy between what may be called the editorial department on one side and the business, which is to a great extent the advertising department, on the other side.

"We have heard occasionally from hostile observers and prophets a suggestion that the English nation is decadent. Such comment betrays the crass ignorance of what makes a great nation. Not in material and temporary prosperity is the strength of a people, but in its moral force and its endurance and power of resistance in adversity.

"The fibre of the English people so often proven, but especially during the long and awful years of the great World War by its endurance and stern willingness for sacrifice, was but shortly thereafter capped by the courage and nerve with which it faced and overcame the threatened dissolution of its society in a general strike. Lewis Elected President.

As a companion piece of legislation a resolution was offered by William Draper Lewis, dean of the University of Pennsylvania law school, Philadelphia, that the executive committee of the section be requested to take such action as will enable the council to organize an executive force adequate to carry out its duties and helpfully cooperate with bar associations, bar examiners, law schools and other agencies for the improvement of existing conditions, by appropriating a sum sufficient for that purpose. This resolution was adopted unanimously.

In order that the program of assistance to applicants for admission to the bar might be carried out along the lines indicated by the two resolutions, the council elected William Draper Lewis, of the University of Pennsylvania, to succeed President Strawn, whose term expired with the session.

Business Domination Takes Press, Says Hewart

Business office domination or influence of a department breaks the influence and exalted status, declared Lord Hewart, lord chief justice of the peace, in his address before the American Bar association.

Hewart said: "To which I should like very briefly to refer. It seems to have taken place in the character of the newspaper press. * * * The other way round: Is it not really a kind of political sovereign deliberately to mislead the public by misrepresentation or by calculated suppression? * * * ago and more there were already signs in the form of a contest for supremacy between what is called the advertising department, on the one side and the business, on the other. * * * The contest seems to have been decided in a number of cases, decided in favor of the business, and an expert in the business department who has real power of the press is the power of the press."

The curriculum is being changed to meet changed conditions.

While the Harvard alumni were dining in the Georgian room, the alumni of Cornell University were holding their luncheon in a nearby parlor of the Stetson Hotel. Judge William L. Ransom, president of the Cornell Law association, formerly judge of the city court of New York and counsel for the Public Service commission of New York city, presided. Judge Cuthbert W. Pound of the New York State Court of Appeals was the principal speaker. His address dealt with the place Cornell law has won for themselves in the legal profession and of the growing strength of the university law school.

Frank F. Williams, of this city, was toastmaster of the Michigan alumni dinner in the Millard Fillmore room. The principal speaker was Judge George B. Burd of Buffalo. Other speakers included W. S. Foster, president of the Michigan Bar association, and several instructors in the university law school.

Judge Jesse Miller and Dean H. C. Jones, of the Iowa College of Law, had charge of the luncheon given by alumni of that institution. Judge Martin J. Wade of the United States District Court for the Southern district was the principal speaker. Others who addressed the luncheon were John M. Grimm, of Cedar Rapids, Ia., and John P. Laffey, of Wilmington, Del., the latter being counsel for the duPont interest.

The Yale alumni luncheon was in charge of Lyman M. Bass of the Yale Alumni association. Those who assisted included Justice Charles B. Sears, Ansley W. Sawyer, Theodore Kenefick and others. Other luncheons held in accordance with time-honored custom included those of the Northwestern University Law school and the University of Chicago.

BAR MEETING SIDELIGHTS

One of the late arrivals at the bar convention is Miss Nila Allen, member of the District of Columbia bar, who came Thursday. Miss Allen before the Child Labor law was declared unconstitutional, was head of the Children's bureau in Washington.

The Florida Bar association will extend an invitation to the executive committee of the American Bar association to hold its winter session at Tampa, Fla., this coming season, says John B. Sutton, president of the state bar.

Some more about Florida. The University of Florida, one of its graduates says, now has two women law students. This is the first time in its history that women have been enrolled in the law courses there. The state has very few women lawyers.

Sidelights of the Bar Convention

Louis Marshall, delegate to the Bar association convention, and member of the law firm of Guggenheimer, Untermyer & Marshall, who addressed the Rotary club in Hotel Stetler, Thursday, is one of the most able lawyers at the bar. A member of scores of national committees, his latest noteworthy act was the persuading of Henry Ford to cease his bitter attacks upon the Jews of America through his newspaper, the Dearborn Independent.

Mr. Marshall said in his address before the Rotary club that "the boot-licker could not live were it not for the patronage of the so-called 'good citizen.'" He said the United States would be wet or dry, but whether citizens would support the Constitution. Among the things Mr. Marshall has done in his career may be mentioned his leadership in the movement to abrogate the treaty with Russia; mediator of the cloakmaker strike in New York; chairman of the commission to fix the price of bread; counsel for Governor Sulzer in his impeachment proceedings and president of the American Jewish Relief commission which collected $65,000,000 for the relief of Jewish war sufferers.

Phi Delta Delta closed the business proceedings of its two-day regional convention Friday morning at a meeting at the University of Buffalo law school, at which Judge Edith M. Atkinson of Miami, Fla., president of the national organization, presided and installed a new alumnae chapter. The meeting was followed by a luncheon at the Buffalo Athletic club. The sorority will be represented at the annual dinner of the American Bar association by a table for 25.

"Tom" Rice, of the Brooklyn Eagle, and state crime commissioner appointed by Governor Smith, who specializes in writings on criminology and sports, even to covering championship prize fights and world's series, is here having a bully time telling judges and lawyers his virile opinions about the slowness of the courts and the loopholes in the laws against criminals.

He is avid in his hunt for a story, and probably after he tracks it down, he will pick up a restaurant for a cup of coffee.

As can be discovered without an actual census, Thomas Penny of Buffalo is the youngest lawyer at the bar convention. He has been practicing for three years.

Amor is much cheaper in Tampa, than it is in Buffalo, some of the distinguished guests from down Tampa report.

For the fourth consecutive time Mrs. Jessie Benedict Gessner has been elected by Louisiana delegates as state president of the American Bar association.

Most of the lawyers seemed to heartily approve of Chief Justice Hewart's denunciation of the wicked methods of the sensational press Thursday evening.

The most common question asked at the convention information desk on the mezzanine floor of the Stetler, is "Where is the Iroquois room?" says Henry Altman, of the reception committee. The Iroquois room, which is the Bar association's headquarters, is about two steps from the desk, and stands out like the well-known "good dead in a naughty world."

One of the distinguished visiting members of the Bar association was seen Thursday evening wearing a rose-colored felt hat with his dinner jacket. Another had a chic little model in pale sea-green.

A ride in one of the speed boats of the customs service here was enjoyed Friday morning by some of the women lawyers. Miss Katharine R. Pike, president of the National Association of Women Lawyers, took as her guests Miss Emille Bullowa, past president of the association, and the officers of the organization. Miss Pike is chief of one of the three legal divisions of the Bureau of Customs in Washington, D.

C., and the only woman U. S. customs investigating agent. They went to Niagara Falls.

The American Bar association has honored women by electing Miss Clara Greacen, Washington, and Mrs. Emma Falls Schofield, Boston, members of their state councils of the American Bar association. This is the first time the association has elected a woman for the council of either state.

Miss Greacen is a special attorney in the comptroller general's office. Mrs. Schofield is an assistant attorney general in Massachusetts, in charge of contracts and conveyancing and representing the commonwealth in all industrial accident cases under the Massachusetts workmen's compensation act.

Florida is represented at the bar convention by a delegation of 25 lawyers and judges, including John B. Sutton of Tampa, president of the state association, and Judges Glenn Terrell and Louis Sbrum, associate judges of the Supreme court. This is Mr. Sutton's first national bar convention. As president of the state organization he has inaugurated a state bar law journal, which is receiving commendation from lawyers of the state. It was published August 1, 1927.

Mr. Sutton stands up vigorously for his native state. Florida, he says, is in good condition. As proof, he cites the fact that most of the banks during 1926 owed the government together only $7,000,000. The state, he believes, is facing its biggest winter season. "Florida has hit bottom and now it is beginning to climb again," he asserted.

Mr. Sutton is here to advocate the passage of the resolution to repeal the inheritance tax.

Jacob M. Dickinson, former president of the American Bar association and secretary of war under the Taft administration and national head of the Izaak Walton league, was guest of honor at a luncheon given in Hotel Stetler Thursday by the local chapter of the league. In addition to Mr. Dickinson, Hamilton Ward and Henry W. Ketzler, president, spoke.

Lord Hewart reverted to his attack upon the newspapers after referring with great friendliness to the meeting which the American Bar association held in England three years ago.

He said the Magna Carta, upon which the English common law is based, guaranteed to everyone complete liberty of speech and action provided he does not break the law. On the other hand, "the freedom of the press," according to Lord Hewart, consists "in the right which every person has to publish anything he pleases, as long as it is not a libel."

Common Law Privileges.

"Our most highly valued liberties and privileges are, as you are well aware, derived from the common law," he continued. "Magna Carta did not create any new rights. It was merely a declaration of principles of the common law and a solemn promise by King John to observe and to govern in accordance with those principles." It is a fundamental rule of the common law that "everyone has complete liberty of action and speech, provided that he does not break the law; that is to say, he has the right to be governed by the law alone. At common law newspapers have no special privileges in the matter of publication, though by statute they are specially protected with reference to the publication of reports of proceedings in courts of justice and public meetings. Nor, on the other hand, have conformance with the will or the whim of the invisible dictator.

"Well, there is no law at present to prevent newspaperdom being treated as mere commercial commodities, as if they were so much soap or oil or tinned meat. But what of the dignity of the press and its claims of the public? And can newspapers be heard to say that these things really do not matter if nobody any longer is ready to accept a newspaper's statements or is willing to pay attention to its opinions? Here, too, there is need, is there not, for increasing vigilance? And if newspapers are indeed to be treated as mere articles of trade, if their function is to be simply to increase and to inflame the already deplorable power of mere money in public affairs, is there any reason whatsoever why, in any respect whatsoever, the law should exhibit any special tenderness towards them?"

Hopes for Everlasting Peace.

"I have detained you too long. Let me conclude by expressing the hope, and the fervent hope, that nothing ever will be allowed to happen which might seriously impair the friendship between our two peoples. That friendship, as we are all convinced, is the greatest security for the peace and the progress of the world, and it is difficult to conceive that any greater calamity could befall mankind than that the people of the United States and the British people should ever be seriously in conflict. Nothing, I venture to suggest to you, is more truly calculated to keep alive and to foster that friendship than the common love of freedom and the devotion in common to those great principles of impartial justice which are the foundation, and the sure foundation, of the common law."

SACCO GOT FAIR DEAL, PROSECUTOR ASSERTS

The prosecution's side of the case of Sacco and Vanzetti, radicals whose execution in the state of Massachusetts for murder stirred up worldwide protests, was explained by Arthur K. Reading, attorney general for that state, at a luncheon of the Shrine club in Hotel Statler Friday noon. Mr. Reading is attending the sessions of the convention of the American Bar association.

"We of Massachusetts offer no apology for protecting the citizens of the state," Mr. Reading said. "We insist that ours shall be a government of laws and not of men."

Mr. Reading declared that every leniency under the law was shown to the convicted radicals, and he praised Governor Alvan T. Fuller as a patriotic, fairminded, capable official who has given unstintingly of himself in his office.

Sometimes eye-witness testimony will be mistaken and sometimes circumstantial evidence will lead to wrong conclusions, Mr. Reading declared, but he asserted that he never knew of an instance where the two kinds of testimony, considered together, were proved to be wrong. The Sacco-Vanzetti verdict was based on the testimony of eye-witnesses and on circumstantial evidence, he asserted.

"American justice is not on trial, but is subject to attack by men who have always been opposed to law and order and to the American system of government," he said. "Many of these men are guests within the borders of the United States."

TAFT GREET'S HEWART IN NAME OF BAR ASS'N

Chief Justice Taft spoke as follows: "Lord Hewart conforms in every way to the type of those who have filled his great office—Mansfield, Ellenborough, Tenterden, Campbell, Denman, Cockburn, Coleridge, Russell of Killowen, and Reading. It has been the good fortune of the American bar to receive Lords Coleridge, Russell and Reading, while of the lord chancellors we have had with us Lord Haldane, Lord Birkenhead and the present lord chancellor, Lord Cave. Our guest of tonight had at school and thereafter an exceptional classical training, so that his knowledge of the law is based on scholarly culture in Latin and Greek and English, peculiarly adapted to excellence in the learning of our profession.

Courts of law, aided by members of the bar, should provide rules of court and outline procedure in actions as an aid to speedy trials, Sir Thomas Willes Chitty, chief master in the royal courts of England, suggested when he spoke Thursday evening in Hotel Lafayette before Phi Delta Phi, national legal fraternity.

Sir Thomas would supersede the legislatures of the states and allow the courts and the lawyers themselves to create a set of court rules, as is the case in England.

Would Have Bar Make Rules.

"I can not understand how our house of commons, for instance, could give us a set of court rules as does your legislative bodies," said Sir Thomas. "Should it attempt to do so, I should consider it absurd and probably just what we do not want. It seems to me the courts and the lawyers learned in the law should be the ones responsible for the conduct of their cases in the courts."

Sir Thomas as master disposed of from 40 to 50 cases in a single day, he explained, because English jurists are not required to read the briefs of opposing counsel after the trial or hearing, the hear disputes arising between competing members of various trades and industries, the London Chamber of Commerce going so far as to establish a court of arbitration. In this manner much of the work of the courts is lessened, the hearings being conducted before boards of men skilled in the practical operation of the trade or business in which the dispute has arisen. He said he was watching the efforts of the American Bar and merchants in arbitration proceedings with much interest.

Morey C. Bartholomew of the Buffalo Bar introduced Sir Thomas and Colonel Thomas W. Shelton, Norfolk, Va., to the members of the Phi Delta Phi Laurence W. DeMuth, attorney, Denver, national secretary of the fraternity, was in charge of the dinner, which was attended by more than 100 members of the Buffalo Bar and delegates to the convention of the American Bar association.

UNTERMYER BLAMES COURTS FOR PERJURY

Special to the BUFFALO EVENING NEWS
YONKERS, Sept. 2.—Prevented by illness from attending the convention of the American Bar association in Buffalo, Samuel Untermyer made public from his home here Friday a letter he wrote to former Governor Charles S. Whitman, president of the association, as a means of presenting to the convention his views on "the growing evil of the law's delays and its twin sister, the increasing prevalence of perjury." These are the most important subjects, in Mr. Untermyer's opinion, that will come before the meeting.

To speed justice, the lawyer suggests the weeding out of "baseless and dishonest legislation" by charging the unsuccessful litigant with the complete cost of the action instead of assessing him for only a fraction of the real cost as at present, a practice that "puts a premium upon dishonesty and compels unfair compromise of honest claims."

To reduce perjury, he reiterated the suggestion he made in a statement last Sunday that juries and courts be required to state, in announcing verdicts, whether there has been any willful false swearing on either side, this finding to be passed on to the district attorney for investigation and action.

"The administration of justice, which I think we will all agree is the crucial test of a given state of civilization, is with us the weakest link in our chain of government," Mr. Untermyer wrote in every other department there has been steady progress. We are not only standing still, but moving backward. The courts are barely functioning, owing largely to the congested state of the calendars, allowing in sufficient time for patient hearing and due deliberation.

"There is no such thing as leaden footed justice. It is quite as much of the essence of justice that it be swift and sure as that it shall be blind. These intolerable delays are the plague spots where perjury and other miscarriages of justice are bred and flourish. The memory of the honest witness fades with the lapse of time in the ratio in which the manufacture and distortions of facts are made safer and more prone to success."

Changing Methods of Teaching Discussed by Harvard Alumni

The changing methods of teaching law, due to growing importance of corporation law and legislation affecting public utilities was the subject of addresses made by several speakers at the dinner of Harvard alumni, held in connection with the annual meeting of the American Bar association.

At other dinners and luncheons held by alumni of famous law schools of the nation, advanced methods of teaching also were discussed.

William D. Mitchell, solicitor general of the United States, was the surprise guest at the Harvard dinner, which was attended by nearly 200 attorneys and which was held Thursday afternoon at the Hotel Statler. He spoke of experiences at Washington and complimented the members of the Harvard faculty upon their institution, its important place in educational circles and upon the successes gained by its graduates.

Philip G. Wickser, a local alumni of Harvard, was toastmaster and wore the Harvard medal which, with its red ribbon, has been displayed in legal gatherings all over the world. The medal has been worn, at different times, by legal luminaries at gatherings of the greatest import in world history.

Professor Samuel Williston, of the Harvard Law school, in the course of his talk, outlined the ancient methods of teaching law as compared with the ever-advancing methods of today. He told how the greatest legal minds of the past had never dreamed of the important place that corporation and public utility laws would grow to occupy in the jurisprudence of the land and of how the Harvard law school

NAMED TO SUCCEED WHITMAN

Final Business Session of American Bar Association Convention Ends with Election.

Silas Hardy Strawn of Chicago was unanimously elected president of the American Bar Association at the final business session of the organization meeting here in the 50th annual convention. The election, held at Hotel Staehler, was unique in that it was the first time in the history of the association that a presidential candidate was unopposed. Strawn succeeds former Governor Charles S. Whitman.

The nomination and election of officers was scheduled as the last item of business before the convention, which was adjourned sine die at noon.

Other officers elected are: John H. Voorhees, Sioux Falls, S. D., re-elected, treasurer; William F. MacCracken, Jr., Chicago, assistant secretary of commerce in charge of aeronautics, re-elected, secretary.

New Executive Committee

Members of the new executive committee, chosen for one, two and three-year terms are:

One year term—Henry W. Stimmis, Birmingham, Ala., re-elected; Oscar C. Hull, Detroit, Mich.; James Grafton Rogers, Denver, Col.

Two year term—James A. Allshie, Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, re-elected; J. Weston, Allen, Boston, Mass., re-elected; Frank Pace, Little Rock, Ark., re-elected.

Three year term—Charles A. Boston, New York City; Province M. Fogue, Cincinnati, O.; Ralph Van Orsdel, Omaha, Neb.

Retiring members of the executive committee are: Jesse A. Miller, Des Moines, Ia.; William M. Hargest, Harrisburg, Pa.; Amasa C. Paul, Minneapolis, Wis., and William C. Kinkead, Cheyenne, Wyoming.

One additional member was added to the personnel of the executive committee. Election of members to the two and three year terms also is an innovation introduced at the present convention, committees heretofore having been elected for only one year.

Bar Association Hears ¹⁹²⁷ American Lawyer Praised

Foreign Notables Laud Efforts in Interest of Humanity—Whitman See Promise of New Labor Agreement

¹⁹²⁷
BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 31 (AP)—Tributes from France and Canada to the lawyers of the United States and an outline of the work that is before it marked the opening today of the 50th annual convention of the American Bar Association.

Maurice Bokanowski, French minister of commerce, paid France's tribute. That of Canada was delivered by George K. Montgomery of the Montreal Bar Association and representative of the Canadian Bar Association. Both lauded the efforts of American lawyers in the interests of humanity.

Charles S. Whitman, president of the association and former Governor of New York, set the wheels of the convention in motion with his opening address, in which he cited as a work of outstanding merit the accomplishments of recent conferences between members of the bar association and the American Federation of Labor.

BUSINESS SESSIONS TODAY

Although three sessions were held, the actual business of the convention was left for tomorrow.

M. Bokanowski sketched the part lawyers have played in the formation and development of the United States, citing Daniel Webster, Abraham Lincoln, John Marshall, William Howard Taft and Elihu Root, as examples of lawyers who have played eminent roles in the nation's affairs.

"Gentlemen," he said, "the glory of the American bar, the equally high standing and great influence of the legal profession in the United States and in France is no mere freak of fate.

In every civilized community the presence of the bar is in constant and direct relation to the growth of civic liberty and the dignity of citizenship."

LORD HEWART ARRIVES

Lord Hewart, lord chief justice of England, arrived today. He will be introduced by Chief Justice Taft when speaks before the convention tomorrow. Recent experiences in Canada, where Lord Hewart said he was "grossly misquoted," led him to refuse interviews to the press.

Hope that recent conferences between representatives of the American Bar Association and the American Federation of Labor may bring about legislation that will permit interstate commerce labor disputes to be settled by modern methods was expressed by President Whitman.

The former Governor of New York declared it his belief that "nothing on the horizon of federal legislation offers greater promise.

"These conferences," Whitman said, "were initiated by an invitation which I extended to William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, at its convention at Detroit in October, 1926, to appoint an appropriate committee to co-operate with this association's committee on commerce in drafting legislation on lines laid down in that committee's report in 1926."

Whitman, reviewing other activities of the Bar association, said that another important work being done by the various committees of the organization is that of the legal aid department, which has devoted its energy mainly toward the drafting of a model statute to facilitate the prompt and inexpensive collection of wages.

NEW INAUGURATION DATE

Discussing congressional delays, Whitman said:

"The failure of the 69th Congress to enact important appropriation bills, and the jeopardizing of vital public interests through lack of available funds, are regarded by the special committee on the change of date of presidential inauguration as further proof of the desirability of changing the date of the commencement of the Congress and also the date of the inauguration of the President.

"A congressional situation created by constitutional limitation which can result in the suspension of many activities of government, including the orderly conduct of the terms of the court of the federal judiciary system, plainly indicates the necessity of the reform which has been advocated in behalf of the American Bar Association."

As the result of work done by the national conference of commissioners on uniform state laws, Whitman said that since the last meeting of the conference, 45 uniform acts, nine of which were amendments to motor vehicle acts, have been adopted by various states. Ten of these acts were adopted with substantial amendments.

Manager Hyde and speaking briefly on the contribution King County has made, in the founding of the field, to the advancement of commercial aviation.

PEAKS FOR CITY
Mayor Frank Edwards spoke briefly for this city, congratulating the county and the board on the development of the airport, which he declared one of the finest in the United States.

The formal dedicatory address was delivered by Thomas D. Stimson, chairman of the committee, and also governor for Washington of the National Aeronautic Association. He extended to the board and to Manager Hyde the congratulations of the aeronautic association upon the development of Boeing Field. Telegrams were read from Porter Adams, president of the N. A. A., and others, extending congratulations to King County and Seattle. Concluding, Stimson formally proclaimed the new airport Boeing Field.

BOEING RESPONDS
Responding, W. E. Boeing, Seattle airplane manufacturer, for whom the field was named, spoke on the topic "Boeing Field—An Honor and An Inspiration."

William P. McCracken, Jr., assistant secretary of commerce, in charge of aeronautics, concluded the speaking program with an address in which he reviewed the part that the local airport will play in commercial aviation, declaring it to be a national asset, particularly valuable at this time because of the inspiration it will give other communities that are displaying their "air-mindedness" by planning similar fields.

W. W. Conner of the Seattle chapter unveiled a plaque commemorating the dedication, designed by Dudley Pratt, Seattle artist.

The dedicatory exercises were under the auspices of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce, Seattle chapter, N. A. A., and the citizens' advisory committee.

NEW SHIP TRIED

One of the highlights of the program was the performance of the new 39, sister ship of that which Ed Allen, veteran mail pilot, recently flew in height trials at Point. Flights were made by Lester Towers, Boeing test pilot, his machine, the fastest single-engine scout turned out by the Boeing company, furnished thrills in plenty for the crowd.

The airport, Duwamish Avenue, is western slope of Beacon Hill and every vantage spot in the vicinity of the field was a mass of spectators. The dedication ceremonies were held in the afternoon, more than 100 bar association delegates visited the new airport, more than 100 bar association delegates visited the new airport, more than 100 bar association delegates visited the new airport.

BAR VETERANS HOLD REUNION

Memories of a past that has been all but forgotten in the rush and bustle of two crowded decades were awakened yesterday when there was a reunion of lawyers who attended the first convention of the American Bar Association in Seattle—from August 25 to 28, in 1908.

There were only 313 delegates at that convention, held in the then recently erected New Washington Hotel.

Major Miller, on behalf of the Association, gave a welcome to the delegates and expressed the hope that the reunion would be a success. He said that the Association was proud to have the delegates from all over the country and that the reunion was a fitting occasion for the Association to meet and discuss the progress of the law and the profession.

Gorgeous Coloring And Stirring Eloquence Mark Presentation Of Civic Auditorium Spectacle

Gorgeous in color, stirring in eloquence, impressive in mass effects and, above all, inspiring in deep significance, the production of Thomas Wood Stevens' pageant drama of Magna Charta in the civic auditorium last night proved the spectacular climax of the American Bar Association convention.

KLEIHAUER PROLECTOR
It was the first time that an effort had ever been made to dramatize the signing of the instrument which stands today as the keystone of Anglo-Saxon traditions of liberty—but, no matter how ambitious the project, it was proclaimed an unqualified success by the applause of the thousands who packed the auditorium.

The Rev. Cleveland Kleihauer was the prolector. The principal roles were enacted by Daniel V. Rosenberg, Ray Dumett, Harold Bassage, Arthur Harris, Clarence Kavanaugh, Hazel Nagley, Mary Griffith, Walter Coy, Dick Sells, Matt Hill, Howard Mollestad, Raymond S. Blaby, Burton James, Maurice Johnson, Harold Lancour, Robert Heilman, Bert B. Hansen, Tracy Griffin, G. Donald Gray, Arthur Leonard, Donald A. McDonald, Betty Stewart, Harold Johnstrud, Harold Kavanaugh, Albert Lovejoy, Adam Beeler, Frederick Judy, Sam Brackett and Gerald Jordan.

WHITFORD KANE DIRECTOR
Whitford Kane was director, with Albert Lovejoy as his associate. John Conway was technical director, while Elsie Mattison was in charge of the wardrobe.

The association's pageant committee comprised James Grafton Rogers, chairman; J. Weston Allen and Silas H. Strawn, president. The local committee comprised Alfred J. Schweppe, chairman; Loren Grinstead and Glenn J. Fairbrook.

ports off the morning program—and also to result in its defeat. Rogers proposed that the association favor a new copyright law, which would make it possible for the United States to enter the international copyright convention—and his suggestion seemed to be in a fair way of winning after he had announced that China and Russia were the only other major countries not in the convention.

But a member of his own section—O. Raymond Barnett of Chicago—upset the apocryphal by telling the convention that this would mean that Americans, who copied anything, even if not marked copyright, would render themselves liable to prosecution, as the European nations have laws which automatically copyright all literary and artistic products.

The copyright report was disapproved by a close vote.

Other reports which failed to provoke debate were made by Justin Miller of Los Angeles on criminal law and criminology; William Draper Lewis of Philadelphia on the American Law Institute; Judge T. Scott Offutt of Towson, Md., on the judicial section, and Jesse A. Miller of Des Moines on uniform state laws.

The association committed itself to approval of a uniform public utilities act, a uniform business corporation act, a uniform reciprocal transfer tax act and a uniform veterans' guardianship act.

Some of the other reports considered by the convention were on American citizenship, by F. Dumont Smith, Hutchinson, Kan.; on education of aliens and naturalization, by William C. Kinkead of Cheyenne; international law, James Brown Scott, Washington, D. C.; removal of government liens on real estate, John T. Richards, Chicago; jurisprudence and law reform, Henry W. Taft, New York; federal taxation, Hugh Satterlee, New York; salaries of federal judges, A. B. Andrews, Raleigh, N. C.; admiralty and maritime law, Charles R. Hickox, New York; commerce, Rush C. Butler, Chicago; commercial law and bankruptcy, Jacob M. Lashley, St. Louis; use of the word "attorney," J. F. Large Gathel at New Washington Hotel Witness Greetings— Mayor Mill Exploits Greatness of the North

With an attendance of delegates and women visitors thronged the great south dining room of the New Washington hotel to do the thirty-first annual meeting of the American Bar Association called to order yesterday forenoon by President J. M. Dickinson, of Ohio.

The great me-walled room had been tastefully decorated with flags and palms and garlands of the exclusive officio were beautiful with vases of flowers.

The proceedings of the morning session began with a series of welcoming addresses in which the visitors were assured of the desire to do them honor.

United States Judge C. M. Hanford spoke on behalf of the lawyers of the state.

"We, as lawyers, our humble way, give you welcome coworkers," he said, "I wish to express to you in unmeasured terms gratification of the state bar associations of this great city in having you with us. The lawyer has the reputation of always stirring up trouble, we know that impression is not true. The American Bar Association asks for good citizenship and the best type of manhood, and the pie of this city are glad to do you fit."

Mayor Frank Edwards, on behalf of the Association, gave a welcome to the delegates and expressed the hope that the reunion would be a success.

Head's Value
The value of a head is not always appreciated. It is the most valuable part of the body and should be treated with care. A good head is the key to success in any profession or business. It is the source of ideas and the seat of judgment. Therefore, it is important to keep the head healthy and active. This can be done by eating a healthy diet, getting plenty of exercise, and avoiding stress and worry. A healthy head is the foundation for a successful life.

College Requirement Clash Postponed Through Compromise; Copyright Plan Is Rejected

By R. B. Bermann

Oil, that fabulous monster which has shaken so many of the seats of the mighty, lifted its head yesterday to embarrass and harass the delegates to the convention of the American Bar Association.

A proposed federal law drawn and approved by the mineral law section of the association with the assistance of the conservative board and the American Petroleum Institute, provoked such protracted debate that it sadly deranged the day's program and engendered not a little heat.

GURNEY E. NEWLIN, board member and the

MEASURE ATTACKED

The bill, permitting oil companies to enter into agreements for the cooperative development of pools and also, under certain conditions, for the curtailment of production, without rendering themselves liable to prosecution under the anti-trust laws, was bitterly attacked by attorneys, who expressed the opinion it would rob congress and the courts of their power over the great corporations.

But Gurney E. Newlin of Los Angeles, the chairman of the section who, incidentally, is believed to be the certain choice of the association for the presidency at its closing session today, defended the measure with such eloquence that it was finally indorsed, with only slight amendments, by the overwhelming vote of 275 to 74.

The oil question was only one of several which met unexpected opposition and delayed the well-arranged program for the day.

COLLEGE FIGHT AVERTED

The fight against the association standard requiring two years of collegiate training for all law students was stayed off by a compromise. Oscar C. Hall of Detroit, representing the executive committee, persuaded Gleason L. Archer and James H. Brennan of Boston, the leaders of the anti-college clique, not to filibuster against the association's new constitution and by doing so agreeing to two of three amendments which they sought.

The two concessions provided for referendums by the association on matters of policy, such as the two-year standard, and required sections to hold meetings at least ninety days in advance of the annual convention. This latter provision was designed to meet the charge by Archer and Brennan that the section on legal education has been meeting during the closing days of the conventions for the last two years, thus making it impossible for them to put through any program of time for the whole association to act on it.

COPYRIGHT REPORT REJECTED

The time saved by silencing the anti-college group wasn't destined to last very long.

The report of the patent, trademark and copyright law section, presented by its chairman, Edward Angers of Chicago, caused a storm of protest which lasted long enough to knock several other re-

Filling the heavens with the roar of their exhaust, drawing gasps of excitement from the mass of humanity on the field and perched on the west slope of Beacon Hill, a score of army, navy and commercial flyers yesterday afternoon staged Seattle's biggest "air circus" in connection with the dedication of Boeing Field, the city's new municipal airport at Georgetown.

Following the field program of flag raising, plaque dedication and addresses, the flyers took the air for a program of forty-five minutes, each group being allotted fifteen minutes for its evolutions. It was the biggest air event in the city's history.

BOEING 'REWARDED'

But, for sheer dramatic interest, the flyers were compelled to share the limelight with W. E. Boeing, Seattle airplane manufacturer, after whom the field was named and one of the internationally famous men in aviation.

Visibly affected by the homage paid him by the crowd, estimated at 50,000, which crowded before the grandstand and thronged about the field speakers, he delivered a speech of appreciation in which he

'Little Group' Has Opportunity
To Present New Program

A gallant fight, but one foredoomed to failure, was made at last night's meeting of the legal education section of the American Bar Association in the Olympic Hotel against the association standard requiring two years of collegiate training for law students.

Undismayed by the obvious hostility of a majority of their hearers, Gleason L. Archer of Boston, and Edward T. Lee of Chicago—both deans of evening law schools of the type which feel that the two-year standard discriminates against them and their students—argued eloquently against the rule.

HOURLY AGAINST THEM

But the hour of the meeting was against them. It didn't start until 7 o'clock, and everybody wanted to get to the civic auditorium for the general session at 8:30. So they finally had to submit to being ruled out of order and accept the suave promise of Chairman William Draper Lewis of Philadelphia, that they will be accorded full opportunity to be heard—and, incidentally, answered—at next year's meeting of the section.

FIGHT TODAY

Lee, however, announced that he will have something to say on the floor of the convention today when Lewis presents the section report.

Lewis was reelected chairman of the section, with William A. Hayes of Wisconsin as vice chairman; John B. Sanborn of Wisconsin, secretary, and Theodore Francis Green of Rhode Island, and A. B. Andrews of North Carolina, as additional members of the council.

Miss McManus is a native and lifelong resident of Brookline and an ardent sportswoman. She entered the Fish and Game Division as a clerk in 1921 and organized and has since served as head of the permit section. Director Kenney is 33 and has studied at Lowell Textile and continued his studies at the Morgan School of Accounting and Finance and Northeastern University. He is preparing for the bar at the Suffolk Law School. He was chief warden for many years and had taught school in Lowell.

MISS GERTRUDE T. McMANUS

Cupid has been at work in the State House and will soon unite Director Raymond J. Kenney of the Division of Fisheries and Game and his clerk, Miss Gertrude T. McManus, in matrimony, it was learned by the Globe yesterday.

Engagement of the couple is to be announced by the parent of the prospective bride, Mr. and Mrs. McManus of 47 Bowker st., Brookline.

The romance between this couple, both State employes of many years standing, is one of a number of which was kept secret from all except their most trusted friends.

Only a few weeks ago, Mr. Kenney was appointed by the Governor to the present position, to succeed Director William C. Adams who resigned to take up a similar post in New York State.

The bride-to-be is a native and long resident of Brookline, where she received her education in the Brookline and Brookline High schools. She is an ardent sportswoman, interested in all out-of-door activities, especially hunting and fishing, which is the field with which her work has been particularly concerned. She is also an enthusiastic golfer, and is able to score better than most men.

Miss McManus entered the Division of Fisheries and Game as a clerk about a year ago.

Lane-Burditt Nuptials Take Place at Winthrop

The first business to come before the board was the reading of a communication from the M. A. Dyer Co., which was published previously, last night with a request that it be printed. It stated that no individual was authorized to speak for the Dyer Company except M. A. Dyer. The writer of the letter also said he would be pleased to appear before the board at their request, and answer any questions they desired to ask. If given sufficient time to prepare answers, M. A. Dyer, was present, and was called upon during the evening and asked if he cared to make a statement. He said he had no statement to make but would answer questions asked. The only question asked Mr. Dyer was regarding the price he was to be paid for the working plans for the first several additions which he said.

Director Kenney to Wed Fisheries' License Clerk

Head of Department Marries Brookline Girl in Autumn

A romance at the State House will culminate in the wedding of Raymond J. Kenney, director of the division of fisheries and game, and Gertrude T. McManus, his chief license clerk.

MARRIAGE IN FALL

The marriage will take place in the fall. Formal announcement of the engagement is expected soon from the parents of the bride-to-be, Mr. and Mrs. John McManus of 47 Bowker street, Brookline.

Kenney was appointed director of the department of fisheries and game a few weeks ago by Gov. Ely upon the resignation of William C. Adams. He is 33, lives at 1 West View street, Lowell, and is a graduate of Lowell textile school and Lowell high. He is a student at Suffolk law school. He was chief warden of the prison several years.

Miss McManus was educated in Brookline, where she was born, and is active in all outdoor sports, particularly hunting and fishing and golf. She has been employed in the division of fisheries and game 10 years, starting as a clerk.

She became registrar of licenses some years ago. Her duties consist of administering the system, issuing licenses to 120,000 outdoor sportsmen and collection of revenues from this source.

LANE—BURDITT

On last Sunday afternoon in St. John the Evangelist Church at four o'clock, Miss Marion E. Burditt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Burditt of 95 Main st was united in marriage to Mr. James G. Lane. The pastor, Rev. James A. Crowley, performed the ceremony.

The bride, who is very petite and most charming, was attired in ivory satin and Irish point lace, with a lace veil and carried a flower and ribbon decorated ivory prayer book. She was attended by her sister, Miss Mae K. Burditt, as maid of honor, who was very attractive in peach colored net over ruffled taffeta with matching accessories and carrying talisman roses. The best man was Mr. Martin Lane of Medford and the ushers were Mr. Frank Lane, brother of the groom, and Mr. Willard Burditt, brother of the bride.

A reception immediately followed the ceremony at the home of the bride, when the newly wedded couple received the felicitations of their relatives and friends.

After a honeymoon spent in West Palm Beach, Florida, and Havana, Mr. and Mrs. Lane will reside at 51 Mars-ton street, Medford.

The bride is a graduate of East Boston High School and business college, while the groom graduated from Suffolk Law School in the class of 1929.

Willard P. Lombard of Boston Studying Nevada Divorce Laws

Willard P. Lombard, member of the Boston law firm of Stover, Sweetser & Lombard, and of Suffolk law school faculty, is in Reno, Nev., studying the state's divorce laws for the Massachusetts Law Society, made up of judges and lawyers.

His observations will be published in the next quarterly issue of the law journal. At Suffolk law school, Lombard teaches domestic relations, involving the divorce laws of the various states, and this gives added interest to his mission in the western state.

Lombard was former city solicitor of Everett and for many years has been associated with Brig.-Gen. E. Leroy Sweetser, one of the judges of the Malden court and state commissioner of labor and industries, and Col. Willis W. Stover, a judge in the Charlestown court. He was a candidate for the office of district-attorney of Middlesex.

13 Scholarships Are Awarded to Newsboys

Announcement of this year's winners of the college scholarships awarded by the Harry E. Burroughs Newsboy's Foundation was made last night after a distinguished group of leaders in professional, judicial, public and private life had sat all day in an effort to select the deserving newsboys.

Ordinarily only 10 scholarships are awarded. This year, however, President Burroughs decided late in the day that instead of limiting the number to 10 this year he would award 13. This decision greatly aided the judges in determining the winners of the close contest.

The 13 winners will enter eight different institutions this fall. The institutions are the respective college winners. Eleven full scholarships were awarded and two half scholarships. There were 24 candidates for the awards.

Boys who received scholarships were: Louis V. Bonaceto, 7 Dean street, Dorchester, of the Boston Trade School, who will enter Wentworth Institute; William Fishman, 328 Harvard street, Dorchester, Dorchester High School, to Boston University; John F. Hurley, 10 Dawes street, Dorchester, High School of Commerce, to Boston University; Noel Jackson, 38 Herreshof street, Roxbury, English High School, to Northeastern University; Jacob Levine, 378 Norfolk street, Dorchester, Dorchester High School, to Franklin Union.

Louis E. Katz, 34 North Anderson street, Boston Latin School, to Suffolk Law School; Kenneth J. Pezrow, 30 Josephine street, Dorchester, to Latin School, to Harvard University; Joseph Raes, 11 Fenelon street, Dorchester, Roxbury Memorial High School, to Massachusetts Institute of Technology; William A. Reardon, 38 Capen street, Dorchester, Boston Latin School, to Harvard University; Louis Tobin, 17 Decatur street, English High School, to Bentley School of Accounting, and Israel Woll, 30 Staniford street, English High School, to Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The special half scholarships were awarded to George Hecht, 34 Fabyan street, Dorchester, who was graduated from the Dorchester High School for Boys and will enter Boston University, and David Esselson, 19 Sutton street, Mattapan, English High School, to Boston University.

Those serving as judges were Henry F. Kendall, Judge Abraham Finanski, Frederic H. Curtiss, chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank; Miss Frances G. Curtis, Corporation Counsel Samuel Silverman, Sidney Winstow, Jr., James J. Phelan, Philip A. Chapman, Boston superintendent of supplies; Senator John P. Buckley, Senator Henry Parkman, Jr., William G. O'Hare, city penal institutions commissioner; Charles L. Edgar and Charles M. Davenport.

The contestants came before the judges one by one. The boys were examined and studied. Questions of general and specific nature on a variety of subjects were asked.

Andrew J. Casey Dead at Home in Brighton

NEWBURYPORT—Word has been received in this city of the death at 6:30 this morning of Andrew J. Casey at his home in Brighton following a long illness. A number of years ago he was prominently connected with the political and fraternal life in this city.

Born here 61 years ago, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Casey and lived for many years on Buck street. He was a member of the former common council and president of the board of aldermen for several terms.

He was a charter member of the Newburyport Council, K of C, in which he later served as the first deputy grand knight and the second grand knight. He was also a charter member of the Newburyport lodge,
B. P. O. E., of which he was a past exalted ruler, a district deputy and member of the grand forum. Other local organizations which he joined included the Sherman club and the
F. L. B. A.

Moving to Boston he attended the Suffolk Law school. In the administration of Woodrow Wilson he served as U. S. collector of taxes. At the time of his death he was assistant corporation counsel in Boston.

He leaves one sister, Mrs. Catherine
Casey of Malden; three brothers, Rev.
William J. Casey, pastor of the St.
Patrick's church in Roxbury; Rev.
Joseph H. Casey of Billerica, and Daniel J. Casey of Malden; and other

In one of the prettiest weddings of the season Miss Helen Louise Burke, daughter of Mrs. Catherine T. Burke, of 17 Wellington rd, Medford, became the bride of William G. Callahan, son of William T. Callahan of 14 Gerry st. The ceremony was performed in St. James' church, Medford, last Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock by Rev. Fr. Brennen. The single ring ceremony was used. Only members of the immediate families were present.

The bridesmaid was Miss Mary F.
Burke, a sister of the bride, and the best man was Edward James Burke, a brother of the bride.

The bride wore a gown of blue chiffon and a picture hat of delicate pink. She had a shoulder bouquet of lilies of the valley and white garden-ias. The bridesmaid was dressed in pink chiffon. She wore a picture hat and carried a shoulder bouquet of pink roses.

Following the ceremony there was a reception held at the Westminster Hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Callahan left after the reception for a wedding trip through northern New York and Canada, by auto.

...and in many directions. If this lesson be well learned and taken to there is no reason why steak, chuck-roast and all the less expensive cuts of beef lamb should not have just as much appetite appeal as the more roasts, steaks and chops.

The most important of points to remember is that seasoning should be just right of the seasonings used blend together into a harmonious whole, and their total effect be to bring out and point out the full, rich flavor of the meat. This connection, it is wise to hint from European cook long ago learned that a amount of sugar, used as the seasoners, serves to blend flavors of all the other seasoners and helps greatly to accentuate natural meat flavor.

It is true that the cheap take longer to prepare than more expensive ones. In relation to minutes in the kitchen compensated for by more dimes and quarters.
