THE UNIVERSITY FAREWELL

A Year of Destiny, 1951. A year of destiny for the world. A year of destiny for the United States. A year of destiny for Suffolk University.

In this year, over 300 young men and women will step forth from Suffolk University to find their place in the world. They will bear the stamp of their environment. The environment of their home, their associates, their University. Each of these, as well as many other factors, have helped to shape the character makeup of the 1951 graduate of Suffolk University, but we are concerned with what a great and dynamic 26-year-old University has left with these men and women who will now venture to carry the name of Suffolk University to far away places.

It is difficult to measure the effect that any university has upon those who enter it as a freshman and depart four years later, degree in hand, to set about conquering the world. Perhaps, the most valid of these tests is the study of the product that has been produced. What this product has given to the world, to his community, and to himself. In using this measure there is no room for subjectiveness. The figures are written in the Scroll of Life for all the world to see. The Scroll has been read and Suffolk University has not been found wanting.

The graduates who step forth from the portals of Suffolk in this year of destiny will follow a path marked by a proud heritage. A heritage that earlier Suffolk graduates have blazed to bring honor to the University and that has prepared them for their biggest battle, the battle of life.

The 1951 graduate will soon be playing his part in the production entitled, "A Better Suffolk." For his contributions to a better world or community an individual will reflect honor upon the University that has given him the training and background to grow into an individual who is able to make an intelligent contribution to a better way of life.

On a fiftieth or hundredth anniversary, the world has grown accustomed to look back upon the years that have passed.

The strengths and weaknesses of Suffolk University must be studied now, on our forty-fifth birthday, if the future graduates are to carry on in the finest traditions of those who have gone before them. Those who 45 years ago, dreamed, planned, and created a Suffolk

University have seen many of their dreams and plans materialize. But a university can never remain static. It must either regress or progress. This year's graduate has lived, worked, and been a part of the progressive less of Suffolk University. He has been imbued with a spirit an end. In our farewell, the editors of the Rambler wish to remind the graduate of what he is taking from the University.

A degree is made out of sheepskin, but what lies behind the sheepskin is made of flesh and blood. The sheepskin is transformed into a dynamic tool for living, when one remembers what has gone into its making. The degree that bears the words "Suffolk University" is the end product of an administration that has chosen wisely the curriculum, that will help best to prepare the graduate for the fast-moving world that he is about to enter. It is an administration that has guided wisely and well the human emotions with which normal healthy college students are imbued. It has directed these emotions, until they were prepared to meet the test of the world.

The degree that the graduate receives is also the effort of an untiring faculty. A faculty that is sage and sympathetic. A faculty that has imparted many years of wisdom into young minds eager for knowledge. Yet, the Suffolk faculty has recognized the fact that, here, before them stand a part of the future of America. If not the future, they have, therefore, impressed upon those who graduate in this year of destiny that education is only a tool. It is, in the final analysis, how education is applied that is important. And finally the degree is composed in part of the fellow classmates. The ancient college adage, "My severest critics are my fellow classmates," is borne out in the path that the graduates have followed in the University. But at Suffolk, where the "esprit de corps" is at a high level, a second part must be added to that ancient college adage. At Suffolk, the quotation must read, "They are my severest critics, but they are also my closest friends."

Now, as the editorial writer signs his final "So," the editors join with the entire Rambler staff in saying, "Wherever your lives may carry you, work and live in the Suffolk tradition. Good Luck and Godspeed."

Testimonial Honoring Dean F. Talent Show In December To Be Held At Hall Building

Dean F. Talent, whose leadership has been instrumental in the development of Suffolk University, will be honored at a testimonial show to be held in the Hall Building on December 15, 1951. The show will feature a variety of talents and will be a fitting tribute to Dean Talent's many years of service to the University.

Regulation in Grooming Team Sought

There is a call for more regulation in the grooming industry. The industry has seen a rapid increase in popularity, and more rules are needed to ensure safety and quality.

Student Teaching Program Available

A student teaching program is now available for Suffolk University students. This program provides valuable experience for future teachers.

Post-Primary

Post-primary education is becoming increasingly important. It provides students with the skills and knowledge needed for the workforce.

163 Awards Given On Recognition Day

Recognition Day held last Monday, May 11, brought to the students the personal feats of their fellow classmates. The ceremony opened with the Student Council Gavel being presented to the president of the Student Council, Bob Kavanagh, by Mr. Edgar DeForest, director of Student Affairs.

Bob, in turn, handed out 12 Student Council keys to Melvin Carandies, Robert Clay, Billie Glickstein, Henry Hughes, Robert Haislaker, Leon Hammer, Robert Kavanagh, Paul Reese, William Trent, Leavy Carmine Pizzi and Howard Richardson for their work in Student Government.

Bob turned the platform over to Dean Mincey who made the Who's Who awards. These awards are listed in the publication "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities." Those who received these awards were Ernest Amiral, James Caras, John Clements, Theodore Curry, Francis Donoghue, John Hesse, van, Francis Gallagher, Earl Johnson, Billie Glickstein, Leon Hammer, Joseph Hughes, Stanley Jarvis, Robert Kavanagh, Francis Lagrotteria, Merrill Marmer, Edgar M. Marmer, George Murphy, David O'Meara, Stephen Panagiotopoulos, Irving Pickering, Norman Raby, James Shea, Donald Woodrow and Thomas Sullivan.

President Hesse followed the presentation with a short congratulatory speech to the recipients.

Recognition Trophies
The Director of Student Affairs, Mr. DeForest, then presented 11 trophies to students for their outstanding accomplishment during the past academic year. Those who received trophies were: James Caras, John Clements, Rance Donoghue, Michael Driscoll, Arnold Goralsnick, Frank Lumber, Mike Marmer, Ted Metros, Steve Panagiotopoulos, Gene Riley and Don Woodrow. In addition to the trophy recipients, 29 certificates were awarded to students for recognition in their various fields of endeavor. They were: Allan Aldow, Alan Anderson, Robert Bennet, Robert Bosses, James Condon, John Conroy, Henry Ellenberg, Billie Glickstein, Leon Hammer, Phil Hough-ton, Elliot Izen, Frank Lagrotteria, Ruth Lee, Howard Lewis, Jeanette Mozeny, James Nagle, David O'Meara, Nicholas Puzella, Naemin Sulita, Walter Scheff, Jerry Shanahan, Don Shea, Saul Stearns, Tom Sullivan, Peri Traumbstein and Paul Twombly.

The Ramblers Staff was presented 11 keys by Allan Aldow, Editor-in-Chief. The keys were given in behalf of the contributions that each member gave to the Ramblers. These awarded keys were: Allan Aldow, Robert Bennet, Rance Donoghue, Billie Glickstein, Arnold Goralsnick, Merrill Marmer, Richard Rosenberg, Gerald Shanahan, Peri Traumbstein, Saul Tobey and Tom Woodrow.

Journalist Speaks To S. U. Students
Ted rather have an assistant with a well rounded journalism background like the one offered here at Suffolk, than anyone else," said Miss Max Bennett while visiting the business journalism class here last week.

Miss Bennett, the editor of the "Democracy" located in St. Louis, Mo., the variety letterman, a total of 77, were given certificates for their untiring athletic activity. These names are listed in the sports pages. Thus, rounded out the activity for the day. A day given to the students, for the ex-cavation of their rewards.

Elections Result In Many Unusual Campaign Tricks

This year's election contests were among the most spirited that Suffolk has ever seen, since Miss Langata paraded his stand through the halls of the University.

The Senior Class Presidency election to be the most hotly contested of all the University elections. Perhaps this is only natural, as the position holds the highest honor of any school official.

The candidates used all the conventional campaign tricks, such as posters, scholastic, and banners. Each candidate added his own original twist in an attempt to capture votes.

Miss Hesseon asked to be sent all through to his campaign by sending his posters to the home of every member of the Senior Class.

Jack Toward appeared in the middle of the class in having several pranks given his several. It made quite an impressive road which with lower level Vice President of the Varsity Club (masculine) and hockey being led.

The Ramblers political staff after analyzing the campaigns, would like to concentrate all candidates on the high quality of the campaigns, conducted this year. There was no "mild slinging" in the usual collegiate manner, which speaks well of the democratic processes involved in the student of Suffolk University.

These three events should have together a lasting memory for the outgoing Seniors.

The climactic affair will be the graduation exercises to be held at the Opera House on Tuesday, June 12. The exercises will comprise the Senior four-year stay at Suffolk and promote them into the annals of the alumni.

S. U. STUNTS

BY DICK ROSENBERG

Clad in coast recognition received by Suffolk Journal, the magazine of Suffolk Senior Monitor, Nov. 8, 1948. Scrip books usually make dull, dry reading but the publicity scrip books of Suffolk University are as alive as tomorrow's news.

In the past three years, Suffolk brains have dreamed up many public relations devices that have rocked the name of Suffolk University all over the United States. Perhaps it is unfair to call many of these events public relation stunts. They were basically legitimate, outstanding, news stories.

For example, on May 11, 1948, the Suffolk Press, headed by the words of Dr. Leo Lieberman, head of the psychology department, in newspapers, all over the states. Dr. Lieberman had stated, "Kissing is a science as well as an art. A kiss is a lost art and should be handled with respect." Spring rolled into summer and still newspapers were quoting the Doctor when he said, "A kiss at midnight under moonlight is more delicious than a kiss at noon."

Again in 1947, it was the psychology department that took the lead. Prof. Sahakian hit back at Philip Wylie and Dr. Wylie of California who had for years fought against women in colleges, because they felt that college girls did not make good wives.

College Girls Good Wives
Prof. Sahakian's answer was a classic, and again, the UP (Upper of California) was flabbergasted. The word to the news press, Sahakian and his college girls feet with good wives. Sahakian said, "College girls feet with good wives than their less educated sisters, because they have been trained to understand and control emotions."

In 1942, there was also a 199 light-hearted stunt. For six Suffolk coats, but by the six-angled Coats, Butler led the fight against long skirts. All over New England, young girls to and against rallied to the cause in spite of six Suffolk students. Their outfits were long skirts, long, ankle, for men, but, skirts and slacks, the battle was lost. Long skirts became the vogue.

On Feb. 13, 1948, Suffolk students took time out from their studies to park "America's Best Sweetheart." The sweetheart's description was apparently written by the English department.

For example, upon Rita Hayworth they pinned the tag, "Sweetest, you're just a piece of meat." "Sweetest" was a word used by the English department.

In October of the same year, the first imitations of the pre-Boston ability of Suffolk students came to the fore. Jane Wyman was presented an Oscar by the Suffolk dramatic club for her portrayal of Johnny Belin in the Suffolk production was to meet fast, many months later. Hollywood presented Jane with a bigger Oscar, but she will always remember her first Oscar, presented by Suffolk.

But the "oups de grace" came on October 25, 1948, when the Suffolk Journal, the forerunner of the SUFFOLK RAMBLER, was given a banner headline that read "Polls Show Dewey to Sweep State, Truman Will Triumph." The first reaction came from the editor of the Boston University News, who said, "this will make the Suffolk Journal the laughing stock of the collegiate world." But to quote an old cliché: "He who laughs last, laughs best." Hopper, Gallup, and the New York Times were wrong, but the Suffolk Journal established itself among poll makers for as long as the name of Gallup will be remembered.

'Who's Who' Names 22 S. U. Students

Each year in more than 600 American Universities and Colleges throughout the country the names of Outstanding Seniors are compiled in "Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges." Outstanding Seniors whose leadership, character, scholarship, and extra-curricular activities show future promise are nominated for this award by a committee representing the faculty, administration and Student Council.

Since its founding in 1931, the prestige of the nation-wide organization has grown with each year. The book has been a standard reference for the young men and women of the nation.

Promising Employee List
The editors of this publication established a direct contact between the colleges and the professional world by providing employers with information about college seniors who are promising potential employees.

Each year at Suffolk, the students who were nominated for this award are presented a scroll at the Recognition Day exercises. This year because of the large graduating class, 24 seniors will be honored. One of the highest honors a student at Suffolk University may attain is nomination for Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges.

This year's "Who's Who" members are: Ernest Amiral, James Caras, John Clements, Ted Curry, Francis Donoghue, John Hesse, van, Frank Gallagher, Earl Johnson, Billie Glickstein, Leon Hammer, Joseph Hughes, Stanley Jarvis, Robert Kavanagh, Francis Lagrotteria, Merrill Marmer, Edgar M. Marmer, George Murphy, David O'Meara, Steve Panagiotopoulos, Irving Pickering, Norman Raby, James Shea, Donald Woodrow, and Thomas Sullivan.

The Ramblers Staff extends their heartiest congratulations to the above named people, and wish them the best of luck in their road to success.

A Woman Given "Oscar"

SURVEY REVEALS EMPLOYMENT HINTS

A recent survey of practices of business and industrial firms in hiring college graduates throws considerable light on how you can prepare yourself most advantageously for a career in the business or industrial world.

It is reported in an article by included in Dr. Endicott's survey reported that they gave set of Placement, Northeastern University, entitled "Trends in the Employment of College and University Graduates in Business and Industry." It appeared in the March, 1951 issue of "School and College Place" brochures are often too long and overkill the applicant. It is this report is that the sample group of 150 firms indicated should not be "catered to" that they planned to recruit about 11 per cent more inexperienced college graduates in the current year than last year.

Your correspondence with a firm usually doesn't land you a job right away. It can lead to a request for a personal interview, during which the firm will "size you up" and reach a decision as to your suitability. Importance of Interview Your future is often decided during a 15-20 minute interview, when the company representative decides whether or not to consider you further. He's trying to spot the "top notch" or "go-getter," the "self-starter," and the man with potential executive ability. How does he judge these personal qualities during the brief contact he has with you and other applicants?

To get the lowdown on this question, the company representatives who cooperated in last year's survey were asked to list positive clues observable during the vacation period:

1. Do not enter the water immediately after a lunch.
2. Never attempt to outdo yourself by swimming out too far over your head.
3. Always keep an eye on the younger generation, and warn them if you see them in dangerous areas.

2. Are friendly.

1. Look people in the eye.
1. Frankness and objectivity.
1. Sincerity.
1. Tolerance.

4. Personal appearance and other factors essential to a desirable first impression.

- a. Neat, clean, well-groomed, clean-cut appearance.
- a. General health and vitality.
- a. Physical vigor.

5. Successful experience in part-time jobs, summer work or military service.

- a. Show initiative by earning part of college expenses.
- b. Made progress during military service.
6. Intelligent planning for a career.

a. Clear knowledge of own ambitions, purposes, goals and plans.

7. Evidence of preparation for the interview—knowledge of company and product.
8. Good scholastic record—membership in honorary societies.
9. Willingness to start at the bottom and work up. Move in interested in long-term opportunity than in starting salary.
10. Application for position neatly and completely filled out.

Goodman Captures B'nai Brith Award

Elliot Goodman, Law School freshman, recently emerged as the winner of the Martin Flamm Memorial Award for success in discussion. The discussion contest was held at the beautiful Mount Royal Hotel, Montreal, Canada, on the weekend of April 13, 14, and 15, in connection with the combined B'nai Brith Young Women's and Young Men's District One Convention.

Goodman, one of a panel of contestants, which included representatives from Montreal, Toronto, New York, and Boston, gained the right to compete at Montreal by first winning a local and then the New England Regional discussion contest.

The topic discussed was, "How Free Should Freedom of Speech Be?" and it produced much controversy among the participants.

By winning, Goodman has not only won the Martin Flamm Memorial statuette, but he has earned a partial paid trip to Chicago, Illinois, and a right to compete against speakers from all over the United States and Canada at the Annual B'nai Brith National convention, to be held in the last week in June.

SAFETY RULES

In accordance with the Red Cross Safety Patrol plea for alertness while at the beach this summer, students are urged to take care while vacationing in the various beach areas.

The Red Cross has set out a three point program for all students to remember during the vacation period:

1. Do not enter the water immediately after a lunch.
2. Never attempt to outdo yourself by swimming out too far over your head.
3. Always keep an eye on the younger generation, and warn them if you see them in dangerous areas.

2. Are friendly.

H. S. Speech Contestants Vie In Auditorium, May 19

Once again, Suffolk University will play host to the many high school students participating in the State High School Speech Contest to be held in the Suffolk University auditorium on Saturday, May 19, 1951. This contest is sponsored by Suffolk University in conjunction with the Mass. Second School Principals Association.

JOHN CLEMENTS DRAMA STAR GRADUATING

The "energy" which produces Suffolk University Theater productions loses its "Human Dynamic" this semester. John Clements, backbone of the Dramatic Club these many years, will graduate with the Class of '51.

Mr. DeForest, Director of Student Affairs is the chairman of the committee which has selected the co-chairmen, James Cook, principal of the Major Best High School, Shrewsbury, Mass.; Howard Thayer, principal of the East Hampton High School, East Hampton, Mass.; and Augustine Whalen, principal of Revere High School, Revere, Mass.

The purpose of this contest is twofold: first, to stimulate an interest among high school students in effective speaking, debating, and reading; and secondly, to provide recognition for the achievement of skill in speech.

There are four categories in which the students may compete: first, debate; second, public speaking; third, extemporaneous speaking; and fourth, dramatic reading.

Those who head these sections are: Chairman of Debate—John E. Sullivan, director of Debate, Revere High School; Chairman of Public Speaking, George Kirwin, Speech Department, Suffolk University; Chairman of Extemporaneous Speaking, Paul LaFalle, instructor at Major Best High School, Shrewsbury, and chairman for the town of Clinton; and Chairman of Dramatic Reading, Mrs. Alvo Packard, wife of Professor Packard, head of the speech department, Harvard University, lecturer at the Leland Powers School of Theater and Radio, and well known reader in New England.

This contest is open to any public, private, or parochial school student who is under 21 years of age, and officially designated to represent his school.

Each student qualifying for the final competition will receive an award symbolizing his achievement in speech. Those who win first place in the final competition in each area, and the members of the winning debate team will be awarded five $1,000 scholarships.

Mr. DeForest will appreciate co-operation not only of speech majors, but of other students in helping to do the many jobs necessary in putting over successfully this state-wide contest.

If you feel that you would like to help submit your name to the student affairs office.

LIBRARY NOTES

Employment in the library is not just replacing books in the stacks, or keeping the noisy fellows quiet, or checking out the books for circulation and study. It is an opportunity to observe the Suffolk student in action. From this observation, the attitudes the students possess toward their studies is very evident. Most of the students fall into two general classifications: Those who are here for serious study; and those who are "floating" their way to a degree.

He, whose main interest is education, enters the library, takes a seat, and settles down to serious study. Not a sound is heard from this type.

In direct contrast, we have the student who makes the "grand entrance"; usually by shouting a last minute thought to some friend from inside the library door. Upon entering the library, one cannot help but notice the prominent display of signs requesting silence. But the signs are not meant for this type of individual. Time after time, this type has to be reminded to keep his voice down to a whisper, but not until he is threatened with expulsion from the library does he heed the request. That the necessity for the whole procedure is too juvenile for a college environment is obvious, but unfortunately, only too necessary under the circumstances.

The above type is, at best, a nuisance and not too harmful in the long run. There is another type which is very "small" and detrimental to the character of the school. This type is the "thief" of the University. He steals and plunders books for his personal collection at home. This loss in books has to be paid out of the library budget in replacing the lost volumes. Of course, this prevents the library from adding new additions to its stacks. This thievery has its reflections where it hurts most, in accreditation. When the Board for Accreditation comes to Suffolk, to pass on the University's acceptance, the annual loss of books from the library has to be entered in the report. The next time we come up for accreditation, do not blame the University for failure to meet the necessary requirements. You, as students are also responsible, to a degree, for the failure.

Among the law students, we have the "page tearer". He seems to be very active throughout the law stacks. This individual tears law cases out of the law books making many volumes worthless as a source of law information. This practice makes study difficult and inconvenient for the other law students. This type of disgusting practice can well be handled by the law students themselves. The old "Coventry" treatment should bring prompt reformation. If, not, interest in maintaining the high ethical standards of the profession for which they are preparing should make them willing to take the necessary steps to see, that such individuals are booted out of Suffolk and promptly.

On the whole, the Suffolk student is serious, sincere, and honest in all of his actions throughout the university. His main concern is to acquire an education, graduate, and enter a competitive field as a prepared man. The "wise guys" and the "floaters" are lowering the average standard of the Suffolk student. Suffolk can do without them.
This is an appeal to you as mature and intelligent college students. Use your library well and to advantage, but respect yourself and your fellow student by maintaining an attitude of consideration. Above all, do not abuse the books and the staff. The Library Staff is willing to give you all the help you need. Cooperation should be the keynote in every phase of contact and association throughout the University.

Senior Prom Provokes Admiration Success

The "class goodnight" are most over a week and, but the memories of the 1957 Senior Prom will linger in the minds of the Seniors for many a year and in the hearts of those who witnessed the event. The loss of the Bradford Room of the Hotel Bradford provided the scene and the musical strains of Geneere Graham's orchestra composed the setting. This combination left little to be desired with those in attendance.

Steve Panagiotopoulos and the Senior Prom dance committee were in charge and they added the final touch by providing each light with a faint as a remembrance of the evening. The favors were in the form of small, couched, matches with "Class of 1957" entwined on the stick.

The traditional grand march was led by the Senior Class of 1957 as they performed one of their traditional functions in an unimmaculate fashion. The preceding line included Dean and Mrs. Murtov, Registrar and Mrs. Goodrich, Miss Marston, Mr. George Kirwin, Tom LaBerman, and Mr. and Mrs. Kaufman.

E. K. Nabhan Dead

It is with deep regret that the Ramblers staff announces the death of Edward K. Nabhan who was attending Suffolk Law School. Edward, who resided at Salisbury Beach, Mass., was a veteran of World War II and a holder of the Purple Heart for wounds received in Germany.

He died in the New England Medical Center, after an illness of several months. Services were held Tuesday, April 26th, in the Helene Orthodox Church, Newburyport, Mass.

Dr. Frank M. Buckley

The Faculty of Suffolk University has among its members a most genial personality in the person of Dr. Frank M. Buckley, Sr., who is well qualified to teach the youth of today's Atlantic Age. Dr. Buckley is the holder of many degrees. He has an A.B. and an LL.D. from Holy Cross, an A.M. from Yale and an Ed.M. from Harvard. He also studied law at Northwestern.

Dr. Buckley came to S. U. in 1947 and is completing his fourth year here where he heads the department of Sociology and also teaches courses in education.

Excellent Background

Believing that the greatest study of mankind is man, Dr. Buckley has devoted unlimited time and energy to education. As Superintendent of Schools in two Connecticut cities, and one in New York state, as well as a professor in an Arizona college, he has seen all forms of education, and as a result has been able to give his courses a valuable background.

High on the list of Dr. Buckley's educational hobbies is a fondness for the old Latin and Greek masters and for the modern English authors.

Jack Barry's Teammate

When asked about outside interests, the central Dr. Buckley said he enjoyed collegiate sports, particularly football, baseball and basketball. Being a Holy Cross man explains his great interest in basketball. He said that he played collegiate baseball with Bill Carrigan, one time manager of the Red Sox and with Jack Barry, a former star of the Philadelphia Athletics.

Dr. Buckley was born in the Berkshires of Connecticut, and his home town of Canaan is not too far from the part of the Berkshires that Nathaniel Hawthorne and Herman Melville once lived in, when they wrote their masterpieces. Hawthorne wrote his "Scarlet Letter" and Melville wrote "Moby Dick" while living in this region.

FLOYD BELL ELECTED PUBLICITY HEAD

Floyd L. Bell, Suffolk University Publicity Director, has been elected president of the Publicity Club of Boston and was installed in his new office recently.

President Walter M. Burse who was a guest speaker in the second line within two years at the Publicity Club, warmly congratulated the new President and spoke of the great influence wielded by Public Relations and Publicity men and women of this age.

The new president was for many years Public Relations Director for the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway (Frisco Lines) and of the Ringling Brothers interests.

Journ. School To Compose Next Rambler

With the advent of the fall semester of 1951, the Suffolk Rambler will be under the auspices of the Journalism Department, announced Miss Edith Marley, chairman of the Journalism College of an eight-year school.

The administrative body that is to present the Rambler under the direction of the Journalism department, these students are being in that field will have a better opportunity to put the fundamentals, which they learn in the classroom, into practice.

With the complete change in the functioning of the Journalism course, a Journalism Workshop has been added to the curriculum. This new course will be a "must" for all students who are journalism majors, and they are expected to hold the best positions on the staff.

The executive body of the Rambler will be composed of these seniors and the junior and sophomore classes will make up the majority of the reporting staff.

It must be pointed out, however, that this year, but mean a change so complete that students from the other departments will be excluded from all work. An opportunity will always be present to allow new journalism students to make contributions to the production of the paper.

Miss Marley will make the new movement into a function properly. The first year, she will select the Editor-in-Chief, Managing Editor, and other staff members. After the initial year, these positions will be handed down from the senior class.

It must be remembered that this is a very busy year and it will take at least a full semester to get the "Workshop" under control. Like anything new, it will require guidance for a few months.

In the past, the Rambler staff consisted of students who have had little or no training in this field, but still gave their best efforts. However, it is felt that over to students who are well trained in newspaper layout and management, it will have more of a professional format.

Business Club Represented At Conference

Fifty members of the Business Club recently represented Suffolk University at the annual Spring Conference, held jointly by the Student Market Club of Suffolk University, Boston University, Northeastern University, Boston College, and MIT. The conference was conducted in the Charles Hayden Memorial Hall of Boston University.

George Murphy, president of the S.U. Business Club, presided at the afternoon session. He introduced one of the most interesting speakers at the conference, Mr. John H. Stull, Jr., Advertising and Sales Promotion Manager of WBBY-TV. It was mainly through the efforts of George Murphy that Mr. Stull was present.

Hedra Study
The subject of Mr. Stull's talk was "The Hedra Study, A Measure of TV Sales Effectiveness." This remarkable survey was conducted by Hedra College, a branch of the City College of New York, and it reports in elementary fashion the effectiveness of this new and potent medium of advertising.

The result of this study shows conclusively that the sales of most national brand products have achieved a new high through the medium of the television commercial. The slide presentation was the most effective and enlightening of the audience of the tremendous importance of television in having a large part of its sales promotion budget.

Panel Discussion
The panel discussion groups that followed, gave the students the chance of three panels to attend. In Panel "A," the topic was "Is it feasible to have an advertising agency in a medium school?" In Panel "B," the topic was "Opportunities in Wholesaling and Retailing." In Panel "C," the topic was "Growth Responsibilities of the Sales Manager." Each panel had three speakers, all experts in their respective fields.

This conference brought to the close the first year of activity of the Business Club.

For to get the "Workshop" under control. Like anything new, it will require guidance for a few months.

In the past, the Rambler staff consisted of students who have had little or no training in this field, but still gave their best efforts. However, it is felt that over to students who are well trained in newspaper layout and management, it will have more of a professional format.

UNDER COVER

BY PERI TRAUNSTEIN

The new story, Mr. Noel Coward has written a new book. That he has not finished a series of six short stories which takes the title of the longest and best "Star Quality." This publication is an event, not an unusual one to be sure, since Mr. Coward's literary output in the last twenty years or so has indeed been ambitious; but the culmination of any new artistic endeavor on his part is certainly of great interest to his many admirers in his several fields of literary expression.

Certainly one of the most effective of the group is "Stop Me If You Have Heard It," the story of an exasperated wife of an aging man who monopolizes his friends' conversations with ripe, venerable stories, and who refuses to believe that his wife's continued expressions of amazement are anything but flattery.

A more dramatic tale is "A Fisher King," the story of a popular English movie star who suffers from an inferiority complex because his younger brother has won a more genuine fame in the Pacific War. Here Mr. Coward takes the opportunity to look out at the many English film stars who deserted the home front during the last war, to seek refuge and anonymity in Hollywood while their countrymen suffered out the war at home and in the trenches. "Mr. and Mrs. Edithell," tells of the sad plight of a lonely couple who have permission to dwell peacefully on a Pacific atoll, but who are molested there by a commercial American airplane company.

One of the more outstanding is "Ashes of Roses," a delightful tale of revenge. A young actress, betrayed by an aged, lecherous married woman, surrenders in her acting career. At the height of her success, he comes to visit her; she takes her revenge in uncorrupte laughter at the pitiable old man she once adored. The vividness of the portrayal of the frustrated actor is unusually striking.

The last of the group concerns a plot with which Mr. Coward, in his theatrical experience, may well be familiar. It is the story of a selfish, egotistical, and selfish actress who tortures a young playwright with the threat of abandoning his first production on the day before its opening if a minor role is given to a younger and more attractive artist. The author's bitterness and animosity are magnificently described, his disillusionment is made vividly genuine. This new volume ranks along with the best that Mr. Coward has produced in the short story field and it is certainly well worth a few hours of perusal.

The Administration's Farewell

There is no enjoyment in the thought that you someone will be disappointed. However, it is gratifying to know that you are in the midst of a period of the most important in your life. As you progress in your career, you will find that the most important part of your life is not the money you receive, but the knowledge you gain. This knowledge will be the foundation of your success in the future. You will find that the most important part of your life is not the money you receive, but the knowledge you gain. This knowledge will be the foundation of your success in the future. You will find that the most important part of your life is not the money you receive, but the knowledge you gain. This knowledge will be the foundation of your success in the future.

In addressing your class on this occasion, I think that it is fitting to express to you, as nearly as I can, the sentiments which I entertain toward you. It seems to me that first among these is a feeling of appreciation of the fine spirit which has prevailed among you toward one another, and toward me and the Faculty. You have realized it all these years, and I hope you will continue to do so. I think that it is fitting to express to you, as nearly as I can, the sentiments which I entertain toward you. SPORTS PARADE was appointed in 1941. He has proven his ability to the students of St. T.'s hockey team.

Hockley Coach, Dave Perkins
came to Suffolk from Clark University in Worcester, Boston. He is a graduate of Harvard and the University of Michigan.

Coach Charlie Law is head of the hockey team. He has been at the University since 1942. He is also a member of the Physical Education Society.

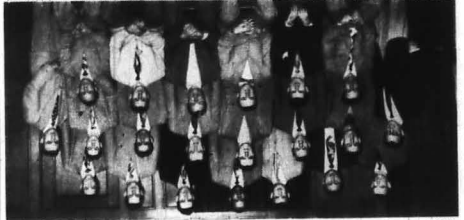

The 1941 Suffolk team had a record of 10 wins and 4 losses. The team started off slowly, but their final games showed the hitting and winning spirit of Suffolk hockey.

Joe Segarra, Eastern Intercollegiate Hockey Champion, is handed his championship cup by his son, before boarding the plane for Ann Arbor, Michigan, to meet the team in the National Tournament.

The 1941 Suffolk team had a very good season. The players all enjoy the hours of the exciting game. The spirit that guided the team to a victorious season.

1950-51 SPORTS SEASON

Baseball

Scoring over 1100 points and averaging 69 points a game, the Suffolk basketball squad finished the season with an impressive 10-6 record. Four players led the squad for scoring honors, dropping the ball through the hoop for 725 points. Stahl was out in front with 216 points and Sal Cupito, Jim Kirion and Art Geller followed with 167, 158, and 152 respectively.

Stahl, only a sophomore remained the backbone of the team, carrying his accurate shooting and uncanny floor work over from the freshman year. Jim Kirion, a transferer from the University of Miami, added considerably to the strength of this year's hoopers.

Surge By Art Geller

The dark horse of the basketball team was Art Geller who seemed to emerge from some dark corner to sweep into the honor section of the scoring column with his consistent, masterful type of basketball. He was both a good team man and an individual standout for the Rams.

The Derrin Street boys defeated Gordon, Mass. School of Oratory 121, Worcester Teachers College, Bartlett (2), Bridgewater, Boston Teachers College, Assumption, Lowell Textile and lost to Curry (2), Lowell Textile, Bryant, Gordon, and Oxford.

The basketball team did little traveling this year, involving only the out-of-town games of Assumption and Lowell Textile. They played their best brand of ball on the Boston Garden court, igniting two thrilling games to thousands of Celtics fans, and winning them both.

The game that deserves to be mentioned most is the Assumption tilt, played in Worcester. The gymnasium was packed with fans from the enemy camp, and Suffolk found that they had only seven men to play the full forty minutes. Without some of their higher scorers, the Rams came from a 13 point deficit at the half to edge out the fast Assumption quintet in the last 10 seconds, 38-36. This showed the fiery spirit of an underdog team with the pressure on. The crowd was on its feet in the last five minutes of the game. Even after the clock had run out, the game continued in the midst of the roar as most of the squad didn't hear the whistle ending the game.

Coach Law is hoping for this kind of a ball club next year, as most of the squad will be back under his direction. Next year's schedule is expected to be about the same with minor revisions.

Hockey

The 1950-51 hockey season at Suffolk University saw all phases of the game which make it one of the most unpredictable sports that it is. The Suffolk team faced one of the most difficult schedules that any "Ram" aggregation had ever contended.

Suffolk was fortunate in having one of the most talented teams in its history and made the most of it. The season got under way with a hard fought win over Holy Cross, and a defeat by one goal at the hands of the Saint Anselm's six. Suffolk lost its chance for revenge as the weather man didn't favor ice conditions at the Manchester college.

When the Amherst six showed up at the Shaking Club in Allston, they were confident of a win, and played a brand of hockey that justified their hopes, but the Suffolk six managed to pull the game out of the fire with a 3-4 win.

American International College proved to be one of the toughest contenders. The A.I.C. women are well known to be the best in collegiate ranks, so the two games that Suffolk lost were not in disgrace.

Ice League Competition

The 1950 season turned out to be the first year that Suffolk was to play an ice league. In late January, the Suffolk team traveled as an underdog to Providence, Rhode Island, where it played Leown University. The Bruins were in a state of frenzy as the Suffolk team got off to a fast start and scored two goals in the first two minutes of the first frame. The Boston sextet outlasted the Suffolk team however, as the final buzzer sounded the tally sheet read 11-5.

Maine has always been a hot bedground for all 12 teams, and the hockey team is no exception. In February, the team was scheduled to play Colby College in Waterville, Maine, and Bowdoin College in Brunswick. When the team left Boston, the temperature was well below freezing, but on arrival at Waterville, old snow turned on too much heat and the playing conditions were not satisfactory.

Overtime Tie With Bowdoin

Since Bowdoin was scheduled for the next night, the Suffolk team couldn't wait for the weather man to help the matter. Bowdoin was ready and waiting, as the Suffolk bus pulled into the hockey rink. The Bowdoin team has the distinction of never losing a home game, and the Ram sextet tried everything in the books, but the best that could be done was a 5-5 tie even after the ten minute mark of the overtime period.

Other teams that rounded out the schedule were Springfield College, University of Massachusetts, and a rematch with Holy Cross College.

The 1950 season saw the end of several collegiate careers, and among them was Captain Bryon Balfour who has played four successful years for the Blue and Gold. But graduates this year from the Business College.

Golf

The Suffolk golf team, under the supervision of Coach Jack Keane, started the season in fall swing with two impressive wins against Burdett and Lowell Textile.

Suffolk downed Burdett College 7-12 to 1-12 points with Burke, Kerrans and Flynn swinging their way to victory on the Commonwealth Country Club course. Mitch Absoed shot one under par with a 71 for eighteen holes.

Taking to the greens again, Suffolk defeated Lowell Textile 6-3. The only change in the lineup was John Hutton in Mitch Absoed's spot.

Upset By Turfs

Turfs mastered the turfways at Sagamore Country Club, and upset the favored and previously undefeated Suffolk team by a lopsided 7-12 to 1-12 score. Coach Keane said that the team played well below their usual game. A rematch is on the wind and Coach Keane is confident that his team will even the score if the event takes place.

The golfers from Beason Hill moved to Maine on the 4th and 5th of May and included the Suffolk club defeated Holy Cross and Colby. The Suffolk club tied the Bates team, but after a grueling 17th, dropped the match with Colby 6-3.

Sailing

The Suffolk sailors have reached the halfway mark in the spring meet of the Charles River Regatta League, and although the totals have not yet been tallied, it is believed Suffolk is one of the top three.

The Suffolk sailing roster now includes 29 members: Bob Campbell, Albert Courvels, Jim Cousins, Dave Chamberski, Arthur Givins, Igoe Germain, Mario Guzzio, Zetina Goldberg, Harvey Gladstone, Roland Halberz, Maynard Hinson, Bill Hurry, Mike Kates, Tom Kellee, Frank Nagoratan, Paul Lemul, Sandoz Lashoe, Rex McCloskey, Bob McClosky, Peggy McQuirk, Bob Pease, Ron Rosewell, Jerry Shabash, Tom Sullivan, Joe Trout, and Ed Young.

Campus Interviews on Cigarette Tests

Number 20...THE BALTIMORE ORIOLE

"I don't go for a wild pitch!"

Clean up man on the baseball line, this fuzzer doesn't like to reach for 'em... wants it right over the plate. And that's the way he likes his good of cigarette mildness! No razzle-dazzle "quick puff" tests for him. No one-whiff, one-puff experiments. There's one test, he's discovered, that's right down the alley!

It's the test that proves what cigarette mildness really means. THE SENSIBLE TEST... the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels as a steady smoke—on a pack after park, day after day basis. After you've enjoyed Camels—and only Camels—for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), we believe you'll know why...

More People Smoke Camels than any other cigarette!

By JERRY SHANAHAN

By this time, your major league team should be shaping up in the pennant race. Will your team be on top of the heap when the other rolls around? No matter who wins the championship, old and young agree there is no time like the baseball season. Whatever type—major, collegiate, or just plain sandlot variety. It acts as a tonic to millions of Americans.

Sometimes, the sound of a thud in a catcher's mitt and the crack of the bat seem to pervade most of the world's troubles. People were avidly reading box scores long before the 38th parallel was ever more than a line in the geography books.

In a world that has changed tremendously in the past decade, with wars and infatuations, baseball is the only thing that has survived all the evils. In these days of nervous tension, it has become a link with the comfortable past.

It is too bad that the game of baseball isn't universal, then every one would benefit from this reassuring feeling. If the European Recovery Act included a few dozen baseball bats perhaps the world would be in such a fix.

One of the stars on this year's Suffolk nine is second baseman, Eddie Mayo. This is not a new role for Eddie as he has consistently started for the team during the past three years.

Ed is typical of the SU athletes; a veteran, married and a devoted father. Under the 22 mill, he was able to attend college and will graduate this June with a well earned AB degree.

His baseball career started under the able coaching of Steve White at South Boston High School, where Ed played for three years. When he entered the Army, he was sent to the Philippines where he played in the first Army League at Rizal Stadium, Manila. P. I. Ed played against teams of the caliber of the Manila Dodgers, a team comparable to that of the N. Y. Yankees. The teams whom Ed played against in this historic stadium were dotted with such names as; Joe Ginsberg, Detroit Tigers; Vern Beckel, Boston Braves; and Early Wynn, Cleveland Indians. It was in this park that Babe Ruth was reported to have hit his longest home run.

Returning from the service, Ed entered SU in the fall of 1947 after playing a season with Bridgport, a Washington Senator's farm team in the Colonial League. During the summer vacation, he plays ball in the Boston Park League and also for his hometown team, Holliston, which won the Colonial League divisional championship in 1950.

With a background like this one, we can be sure that Eddie Mayo will again star on many occasions for each and every team he plays on in the future. Certainly, no one will need to worry about "who's on second" with Ed there.

Ever since the death of the "Happy Charivari", the Rambler has abandoned the idea of predicting the scores of the various athletic contests. Some editors in the past have been very successful in predicting trends in the fields of politics and drafts. But as far as athletics is concerned, our batting average remains well under 500.

However, since baseball is the most popular topic of conversation, it wasn't too hard to learn in on what the average student thinks the standings will be next October. So here is the consensus.

John Abramo, Globe feature sportswriter, was the guest speaker for the students in the course, titled, Education 3.8, but known better as the Theory and Practice of Athletics. Mr. Abramo talked on the values of public relations to high school athletics. Incidentally, if any of you are contemplating a teaching career, it would be well to take this course as it would be instrumental in obtaining a teaching position. The course consists of the fundamentals of all major sports, as well as field work observing actual games.

Little known facts: Before Don Woodson came to college he owned and operated a diaper supply laundry in Orange. He was called "Diaper" Dan the "Dip" Man. Ernie Warnock, Suffolk hockey star, recently returned from Sioux City where he participated in a national hockey playoff. John O'Brien, last year's state mountdman, is taking a few courses in the graduate school, when not teaching in the local schools. George Karavasilis, VC alumni, came back to give a lecture in ice cream manufacturing for the benefit of the business college. Since this is the last issue until next semester remember:

If he can't defeat that shames a man,
If he can say, when it's done,
That he gave to the fight the best he had
Though the other fellow won.

Catcher
FRED KATIE, Junior, sophomore receiver, now in his third year for Suffolk. Fred played for the Lawrence High team of MAINE and later, the USS Amphion, Atlantic coast champs. JIM CHISHOLM, Freshman hockey and ball player from Holliston High. Jim wasn't gone much this year, but next year he should be one of the regulars.

Pitcher
BOB BENNETT, Junior, transfer from Tufts in 1949 and has played hockey and baseball for Suffolk since then.

DAN FAIRMER, Junior, pitcher for Boston Latin and then for Arlington High. Dan was able to play a little while he was in the Navy and helped his team to become East Coast champs.

CHARLIE MACDONALD, Junior, usually does his pitching at this time of year, for a Chicago White Sox farm team. Mac is well known to Park League fans. Don Peery, line of hockey.

JOHN SHEA, Senior, the veteran of the pitching staff. Don has managed to play hockey and baseball for 10 years at Suffolk, besides his other extracurricular activities. Don is also president of the Varsity Club.

Infielders
EDDIE MAYO, Senior, this is his fourth year for the Blue and Gold. He plays for the Holliston team and has played for several Park League teams.

JACK YOUNG, Junior, was too busy to play high school ball, but in his three years here he has combined his service experience with his collegiate talents for a successful season.

ARY LEVIN, Freshman, is giving some of the vets a fight for their positions. Next year, you will see a lot more of Ary if he keeps pressing. Another Park League player from Mills A.C.

EDDIE STACHULSKI, Junior, played some good ball for Holliston High for four years and then in the Park League. This is Ed's first season at Suffolk.

JOHN WALKER, Senior, another four year vet. John has played in the Park League and for the Boston Giants. One of the most dependable players on the team.

JACK YOUNG, Senior, the shortstop in the Mayo-Young combine. Jack has played in the Park League for Hyde Park since 1946 and for the Blossom Sacrament since 1948. This is his third year for Suffolk.

Outfielders
JIM ASTRELLA, Sophomore, played in the Worcester Park League three years, after playing two years for Worcester Commerce. Starred for the baseball team this past season.

LEO DEWANS, Sophomore, another hockey player. Leo has played for the Melford City Club and several CYO teams. His ambition is to catch.

JORDAN COHEN, transfer from the University of Miami baseball team of 1949. Played for the Waltham High and later for the Waltham Saxons from 1945 through 1950.

JOHN SCZEMKOWICZ, Senior, ace soccer player and running Connie Mack a close second for the title "Grand Old Man." "Ski" has played in the Park League for the Holliston

Lettermen Enjoy Varsity Banquet

The Varsity Club held its Annual Banquet on May 12th at the Hotel Brunswick. The Award Banquet climaxed the year's sports program and lettermen were awarded sweaters and letters.

John Clements was the master of ceremonies for the evening and the head table consisted of President Hurry, Dean Miner, Mr. McLaughlin, Athletics Director Law, and Charles Mal Donahue and Jack Keane.

Guest speakers for the evening were Dan Geiger, Director of Athletics at MIT, Mr. Geiger gave an interesting and informative talk. He served with the Coast Guard in the last war, and was assigned to the special corps for athletics and physical education. He served as an assistant to Jack Dempsey in the New York training station. He was transferred to the Coast Guard Academy in 1942 to assist with the training of Reserve Officers.

Mr. Geiger is also the author of "Foot All Dayboys" and several other articles which have appeared in the Journal of Medicine.

Those who received sweaters included J. Cohen, J. Long, C. Macdonald, J. Kirus, J. Astrella, P. Chagnon, F. East, A. Rubin, D. Chomalewski, D. Farmer, A. O'Brien, J. Feeley, J. Travis, A. Cuzzano, A. Garand, J. Chisholm, J. Hahn, J. Kaplan, A. Garber, J. Jackson, J. Geiger, J. Flynn, M. Amond, R. Jackson, M. Hirtshon, J. Lydon, and J. Holton.

Dan Farmer was credited with the win and except for a little trouble in the first never had difficulty. He struck out six and took Deans, who pitched the last two innings, struck out two.

Again, the second base carbina of Eddie Mayo and Jack Young paid off with a sharp double play when stopped a four down rally in the last of the first.

From any angle Suffolk looked and played smart. In all up base, ball and it looks as though Coach Law doesn't have the pitching problem which plagues the programs of Boston.

S. U. Beats Gordon

The Suffolk "Shoggers," led by John Walker, hat tipped Gordon College 21 to 4 in a six inning game on May 7. Walker struck the way when he tripped in the first driving in two runs to give Suffolk a lead they never lost.

Boysie H. played for an Army team when son D. straight this is his fourth year for Suffolk.

An Athlete's Story

by Don Woodrow

With the sports banquet and its accompaniment can be measured, the athletes of the university are aware of an end to the school year. To them it signifies the closing of the athletic calendar. For many, it will close pictures of the last time their names will never appear in a starting lineup again.

This year's banquet will climax four years of struggling in an athletic world, inside a university engaged in a bigger struggle for recognition. Each has been trying to help the other, and the athlete has been silently doing both. He never asked for a reward.

The athletes did not participate in sports to be recognized, as no one was around to recognize them. In some out-of-town games only the bus driver stood on the Suffolk sidelines, but the game was always played and played well. Recognition is for the ego, and our boys had neither. The athletes enjoyed the participation, realizing that they might have helped the school in some small way. Personal tributes were not in fashion, and the boys were right in style, they played for a team. None asked to be heroes and none were surprised to find that most of their work went unrecognized.

Dominated Smaller Schools

Four years ago the first of fabled teams of the university took to the arena. It was in a circle of small schools that Suffolk gained its first playing experience. It would have remained there, but for the Suffolk athlete who was not satisfied. The school broke from this circle of complacency to look for a bigger and better schedule. Athletic Director Law supplied it, and the school began to see more prominent names on the roster. Smaller schools on the schedule began to fade away when schools like Holy Cross, University of N. H., Bowdoin, Colby, Maine, and St. Andrew's replaced them. The progress of the whole school could be measured in the terms of its teams for and vice versa. When one progressed, the other followed. The investment in a better schedule also brought more favorable returns in the win-loss column. It gets more impressive each year, and the athlete is responsible.

The school, its coaches, its students, its teams, all depend upon that one fellow wearing the blue and gold, the fellow who expects no more than the uniform he wears.

The athletes are the hands and feet of a university that is struggling to climb over the prestige of neighboring schools or trying to swim in the wake of their recognition. It is a hard job to come from behind, and no one knows it better than the ones who have experienced it so often on the field of competition. They are interested to see if the school can overcome the lead that looked so insurmountable four years ago, but Farmer has been whittled down considerably since then.

Sportsmen's Prayer

May 21st: Dear Lord, on the battle that goes through life, I ask but a field that is fair. A chance that is equal with all on the side. And if I should win, let it be with my faith and honor, held high.

May 28th: And if I should lose, let me stand to the side of the winner goes by.

And Lord, my shorts be uncrumpled and clear.

A tribute that comes from the heart.

And let me not cherish a snarl or a snarl or a snarl.

Or play any unbecoming part.

Let me say: There they ride on whom laurels bestowed.

Since they played the game but see them ride.

Let me stand with a smile by the side of the winner goes.

And there as the winner goes by.

Or play any unbecoming part.

Let me say: There they ride on whom laurels bestowed.

Since they played the game but see them ride.

Let me stand with a smile by the side of the winner goes.

And there as the winner goes by.

"Beacon Editor" Remembered Always For Untiring Work

The cold, cruel "working world" will soon spread its arms to welcome Francis "Rance" Donoghue, a gentleman of no few accomplishments. Rance's contributions to Suffolk's archives are generally little known, and little published, his most recent being editor-in-chief of the BEACON, the Senior yearbook.

A rugged lad and a rugged worker, Rance is an ex-semi-professional football player and Army vet. He has been a news writer, feature writer, and associate editor on the Suffolk Journal and Ramble. Possibly one of his greatest contributions to Suffolk student lore through in a past life, was his creation of the famous (or infamous) character, "WASU," the jungle girl. His hilarious sketches in "A member of the Senior Class MARMERDONS last year, his Executive Council, past Secret fabulous sense of humor, and his devotion to Max Shulman who Rance considers the greatest Suffolk student here through in a past life, was his creation of the famous (or infamous) character, "WASU," the jungle girl. His hilarious sketches in "A member of the Senior Class MARMERDONS last year, his Executive Council, past Secret tary and Public Relations Officer of the Suffolk Club of Lowell, and a tireless worker for the cause of the Senior Class and Suffolk, Rance is kept almost too busy to indulge in his favorite hobbies hunting, fishing, and camping out. The latter has been rather difficult since Sept. 3, 1949, for it was on that date that he married the very lovely Peg Powers from his hometown Lowell. Rance and Peg share many of these things together and truly are an ideal couple.

Rance, a good student here, someday to go the way of all journalism majors, and enter the newspaper field or write on his own. "and sleep 'til noon" is a Shulman advocate. A mighty big chunk of the lighter side will be missing when Suffolk's "strong boy" Rance Donoghue partners up his many talents and takes that final walk through "old" doors, and out into that cold, cruel "working world."

Lowell's "Gift" Will Be Missed In Future Years

This year's audience called his performance "smooth," "classy," "terrific," "outstanding." The Senior Class voted him the "Class MVP" and the "Best Dressed Man." His friends called it a long lasting respect not only for his abilities, but for his personality. When they said he was "outstanding," they were certainly right. "Ray" Terrific was the more appropriate word to describe him. Mike Marner will remember him chiefly for his performances in the drama presentations and variety shows, when audiences often were punched at his bit.

Even before coming to Suffolk, Mike had an enviable record of experience on the stage. At Lowell High School, he played in light musicals and minuettes. On stage with him many times was a cute little miss who, today, is turning out some hit recordings. She is Judy Valente.

Mike joined the Marines when he was 17, and while in the service he produced a show called "Kiss The Boys Goodbye." Later, the boys were kissed goodbye and Mike went to Okinawa and Japan.

Upon his discharge in 1946, Mike connected himself with the L&M players, a semi-professional stock company in Lowell. Here, he played a number of roles in such plays as "Laura" and "Be-eva."

Then for another year, Mike played with catering stock companies, including the highly respected Windham Players. With this group, he played what he considers to this day to be one of his favorite roles, that of Hinder Earsbach in "Weathering Heights." Later, he joined The Lowell Stock Company which featured such names as John Carradine, Diana Barrymore and Freddie Bartholomew.

So began his career at Suffolk. His first play here was the "Hasty Heat." His portrayal of "Lark" won the audience and the favor of veteran theatergoers. From then on, students began to look forward to "young Mike in the Play." He starred again as Walter Lydecker in "Laura," and again in "You Can't Take It With You."

By 1950, Mike was carrying an extra-curricular schedule that would crush a lesser man. He was appointed to the post of editor-in-chief of the Rambler, organized the Variety Club, and acted as master of ceremonies at the Talent Shows. At these shows, Mike collected the student audience and proved himself a past master of ceremonies. Students would not soon forget his "Slink Body" scene.

Mike is as pleased he came to Suffolk as Suffolk is he comes to a good little school with a big future. He has the highest respect for the director of his shows. He says, "George Kinson is the finest director I have ever worked with, amateur or professional."

When some men leave Suffolk, they write a chapter and leave it here. But Mike wrote the book. When he takes his last ride down in the elevator and has his last cup of coffee at the Earle, we'll know that he is gone. But we'll know that he had it, class — real class. Terrific — that was Mike.

SUFFOLK CLUBS END SCHOOL YEAR

Newman Club

The Newman Club of Suffolk University closes another school year, the fourth since its activation in the university, after a well-rounded program of events on the social, spiritual and intellectual sides. The present officers express hope that the Newman Club under its officers of the succeeding year will forward the interests of the organization and direct efforts to attain here heights of accomplishment.

This year, the Newman Club were the invited guests at dances sponsored by the Stratford College, Simmons College, New England Conservatory of Music besides engaging in the various social activities offered at the Newman Club Center on St. Stephens Street.

The club was also the sponsor of an afternoon tea, given in honor of one of the Bishops of Boston, Auxiliary Bishop McKenna, and held in the President's office at which all members of the club, the members of the faculty, and of the school's business staff had an opportunity to meet the bishop in person. Bishop McKenna has always had a deep and abiding interest in the Catholic college.

In April, the Newman Club fulfilled its obligations to the national organization by active participation in the annual convention held in Boston. The affair was highlighted by the dance at the Copps Plaza Hotel, the business meetings at M.T.P. and the Holy Mass at the Holy Cross Cathedral.

On the spiritual level, the Newman Club of Suffolk University engaged in a Holy Year Pilgrimage with the members of the club visiting the prescribed churches of St. Clements, St. James, and the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, marching in a united body together with groups from all the colleges and universities of the Boston area.

As is traditional, the school year is closed by a Communion Breakfast at which all members gather in the spirit of Catholic Communion with their brothers. Among the honored guests were our club chaplain Fr. Petersen, our faculty advisor Dr. Buckley, Dean Mance, President Eusebio and the principal guest and chief speaker Fr. Murphy, who spoke on the decline of moral life in American life and the way to reinvigorate the spirit and morals of the people by uniting the individual. On the intellectual side, the club attended the monthly lectures on topics of vital interest to the Catholic college student. Among the outstanding lectures were those on the evidence of the natural virtues of prudence, justice, obedience and chastity and the supernatural virtues of faith, hope and charity and how all seven become intertwined, and the importance of religion in the intelligent student's life.

Drama Club

The Drama Club has had a very busy year in 1960-1961. Through the auspices of the University Theater "Laura and You Can't Take it With You" were introduced to Suffolk.

In "Laura" several new students made their debuts were instant successes, and returned to be even greater hits in the next play.

"You Can't Take it With You" gave fifteen people a chance to act together. These people achieved lasting fame and two nights by producing what has been accepted as Suffolk's greatest success to date. The play also gave two people the public recognition that their off stage work for the club had merited. John Clements, student director and Billie Glickson, promoter. The play received quite an achievement for itself.

George Kowalski, speech instructor at Suffolk, Mr. Kirwin successfully managed to get fifteen people on stage at the same time, which, considering the size of the auditorium stage was a far more difficult task than it appeared.

During the rest of the year, the Drama Club cooperated with the Variety Club and the Senior Class to produce a Hellscape in Allagappan. It was about this time that the school is still laughing. This show had in its cast all the big names, the top names in each of the three contributing groups. John Clements, as President of the Dramatic Club, and Mike Warner as founder and Chairman of the Variety Club, directed the entire show together. Senior Class President, John J. Gagliardi, appeared as crime czar, Frank Marshall, in one of the original numbers. The activities of the Drama Club were not limited to stage work alone. Several club members have just recently recited on stage a half-hour radio broadcast. This short, directed by John Clements, is from an original script by a former Suffolk student, Joannette Morozani. Billie Glickson, Jim Carey and Allan Abow are among those whose voices are heard in the show.

The officers for the past year were John Clements, President; Tom Fitzpatrick, Vice President; June Glaser, Secretary; Billie Glickson, Business Manager.

Spanish Club

One of the most informative clubs here at Suffolk University is the Spanish club, which is an club directed by Dr. McKenna, professor of the Romance languages. During the academic year the club held a special program of Spanish music, program were short films which was about Mexico, Spain, and Latin America. A Spanish club has been taken at Suffolk University as what the students wanted to know was why there was not a greater membership, why the club could not be an aid to students, such as in language difficulties.

During the Christmas season, the club held a party and presented dancers from the Boston Latin Academy, an all-theatrical Spanish dance. The club also had student lecture series. These lectures were inaugurated at the beginning of the year and continued through the year.

The last presentation was a full length movie called "Tom Barbieri". The film was based on the famous novel of Roman Catholicism, which was screened on Thurs. evening May 17, in the auditorium.

The officers of the full season were: President, Professor J. E. Luther, Vice President, Joseph Ryan, Treasurer, Robert Newton, and Secretary, Charles M. Wayne. The current officers are: President, Charles W. Waz, Vice-President, John Chmielewski, Treasurer, Ronald Payne, and Secretary, Joseph De Gennaro.

was one which dealt with Italian contributions to American society. Lectures for the year were given by Frank Lagroterzi, President; Nick Perella, Vice President; Carmine Pizzi, Secretary; Michael Paratone, Treasurer.

Elections for the following year were held on May 19, 1961. The new officers will take over the club's activities in September, 1961. They are: Nicholas J. Perella, President; Carmine Pizzi, Vice President; Michael Paratone, Secretary; Treasurer.

Business Club

Although the Business Club is one of the youngest clubs in the university, it has achieved more in one year than seems normally possible.

In October the club was formed under the able direction of Mr. Charles Johnson, faculty advisor. Officers were elected, a constitution drawn up, and committees were formed. The officers elected were: George Murphy, President; Richard Conroy, Vice President; Frank Gagliardi, Treasurer; Richard Gagliardi, Recording Secretary; and John Finnegan, Corresponding Secretary.

Two dinners were held. The first was at Thanksgiving in San Jose, Massachusetts. The guest speaker for the evening was Mr. Hanson H. Hall of the U.S. Dept. of Commerce. The dinner was held on November 16, 1960. The second dinner was held at Stoughton and the guest speaker was Mr. W. R. Dancy, Executive Director of the New England Tel. & Tel. This affair occurred on March 23.

In addition to the dinners, the club showed such movies as "The Quarterback" and "Make It in Massachusetts". Field trips were conducted to see some plants, and to see a Ford Motor Co. and the Cultural Pavilion in Rome.

With the business club a Marketing Club was formed and became accepted by the National American Marketing Association.

This gave Suffolk University publicity on a national scale.

New year's officers are: Rich and Gagliardi, President; Byron Platon, Vice President; Ed Carmine Pizzi, Secretary; Richard Bosh, Corresponding Secretary; and Paul Moriarty, Recording Secretary.

I. Z. F. A.

I.Z.F.A. got off to a slow start this year due to pressure of other duties. Allan Abow retained the presidency. The plan for the club's functions was left to the executive board composed of Leo Hammer, Chairman; Howard Lark, Pat Trammston, and Ben Berger. The club has had several business meetings. It presented an all-university assembly, consisting of a film on Israel, and two speakers, Mr. Max Kishonick, prominent Boston lawyer, and Mr. David Singer, an Israeli soldier-statesman who was visiting America in order to secure technical aid for the collective settlements of Beth Beit (The House of Brothers).

The Suffolk chapter participated in all of the regional functions, including The Spring Seminar at Berkshire Lodge in Jeffrey, N. H., the seminar at the University of Connecticut and special Israeli sub-regional affairs. The Suffolk chapter of I.Z.F.A. also sponsored a very successful social dance with Salem Teachers College, to close the year.

W. A. S. U.

In the early part of the year, W.A.S.U. presented its first function, the annual tea, for the most part purposes of introducing the Suffolk Faculty to the new student students, and the students to each other.

Later in the year, a non-profit "Blessed Hope" was held in the recreation hall, where the 250 from other universities joined the club from W.A.S.U. to provide parties for the night of Sat. A social time was had in all.

And in the weeks activities another tea had been planned for Friday, May 18th, this time to give the girls who might be interested in attending Suffolk University.

Italian Club

During the past year the Italian Club of Suffolk University has brought many interesting hours to University students. The club presented two Italian films at an open meeting in the Auditorium. One of these was a condensed version of the opera "The Barber of Seville"; the other one was a documentary film in Italy, shown here for the first time publicly.

At other open meetings, operatic records were played. These opera Festas included an all Verdi programs, as well as several music festivals.

Several social topics were planned and presented dealing with various phases of Italian Culture. One of the best of these

Suffolk Loses Prized Ruby

Norm Ruby, a man of many parts, takes the last bow, writes the final editorial, and signs the last '30' in his S. U. career. Alert, bright-eyed Norm, with the most amazing personality ever found behind a pair of tortoise-shell glasses.

While at Suffolk, Norm was referred to as "the guy who knew everything" and knew every-thing he did. Music, art, science, literature, train schedules, "cab bages and kings." Ask Norm for a paragraph on anything, any sub-ject at all, and he'd give you a volume. He could write commen-taries, poetry, and texts by the hour.

Dean's List Student

He set a record in Journalism that would be a Herculean task to equal. He collected awards like poppie collect stamps. Norm was a brilliant scholar, never off the Dean's List. Yet he wrote, directed, and performed in comedy sketches for the Variety Club which helped to inaugurate what still "waves em laughing" in his memory. He was an important man behind

Shanahan Elected Varsity President

Norm was attached to the Suffolk Journal as a news and fea-ture writer, became News Editor, and finally Managing Editor of the RAMBLER. His editorials are still read and loved by S. U. students.

A graduate of Boston English High, Norm went into radio an-nouncing after High School. He continued in this work during his early college life. In fact, Norm was a staff announcer at WYVM when Suffolk presented its Radio Workshop at that station. He has also been associated with WESX in Boston, and WESN in Salem.

Norm's radio background stood him in good stead when he went into the army. He became an an-ouncer for the Armed Forces Network at its key station in Frankfurt, Germany. He has traveled extensively, both as a serviceman and civilian, and would like to continue to do so preferably by train.

Those elected to varsity posts were:

Jerry Shanahan, President; Jack Deans, Vice President; Dan Farmer, Secretary; Ted Notcombe, Treasurer.

In accordance with the Di-rector of Student Affairs, the remainder of the meeting was devoted to selecting a date for next year's dance. It has always been the aim of the varsity club to have a dance one semester and the banquet the next. How-ever, certain conditions have made this impossible. The Stu-dent Affairs office is attempt-ing to regulate all dates so there will be no confliction of dance dates.

Norm's brightness and humor have been conspicuous by their absence for these past five months.

Remember the name, Nor-man Ira Ruby, you'll be hear-ing it in a big way before too many moons have passed.

One of the largest group of Varsity Club members turned out for their last official meet-ing of the semester on May 7th, to cast their vote for next year's officers, and to formulate next year's activities.

Norm's brightness and humor have been conspicuous by their absence for these past five months.
