

BEACON

SUFFOLK UNIVERSITY 1984

 BEACON

To the Graduating Seniors:

I agree with John Masfield who wrote, "There are few things more splendid than a university." A university is more than bricks and mortar. It is people: your teachers and your fellow students from whom you have learned deeply. It is books and laboratories well used. The environment surrounding a university is also important if it serves to enhance learning. I hope that your experience at Suffolk University was enriched by our location on historic Beacon Hill near the centers of government, law and commerce in which you could test and expand your general education.

There is an old Chinese saying "Teachers open the door . . . You enter by yourself." Your teachers opened a door leading to the world of the intellect, to "the life of the mind." It was your effort, commitment and hard work, however, which has enabled you to now join the community of educated women and men. You took the steps to cross the threshold of learning, and, in doing so, you have created a foundation of knowledge and understanding, and a capacity for intellectual, professional and social growth on which you will build over your lifetime.

Suffolk University takes pride in the academic and professional achievements of its students and its alumni, and pride in the enrichment of their intellectual life. As president of Suffolk University, I share in that pride. I congratulate you for what you have accomplished while at Suffolk University, and for what you will accomplish in the future. You are now part of a great stream of men and women who have gone forth to bring honor to their families, their community and their alma mater, and satisfaction to themselves. You will play an important role in the life and welfare of Metropolitan Boston and beyond, as do the thirty thousand alumni of Suffolk University whose commencements preceded yours.

My best wishes to you all.

Sincerely,

Daniel H. Perlman
President

TRAVELS WITH MY MECHANIC!

(To DeLorean with Respect)

Slowly edge toward that alluring goal
Striving to please ourselves and gain others respect
We start by rationalizing our potentials,
And as we gain a head of steam
The engine breaks down —
 Throwing us back,
 Leaving us stalled,
 Searching for a new road,
We all learn from these lapses and sputters
To gain new momentum to push over that hill
The road is four, five, six years ahead
But ever so satisfying once arrived.

* * *

Here we have gained wisdom from good mechanics
From our station we respect and learn
To use their tools
Hopefully to know their use in future breakdowns.

Gently we move forward — we have Learned
Rationalizing becomes duties of reality
Do not feel ashamed to stop back for
Tune-ups — for duties of reality
Become flat sometimes
We are the ones to make new roads
So use the old to help build the new
And remember not to run over
Anyone on the way!
The goal is how you travel, not what you become.

Don Spellman

The 1983-84 athletic year at Suffolk University saw many exciting and memorable moments of individual performance as well as team play. The fall season for cross-country was highlighted by their invitation to several outstanding meets in which the men and women runners represented the University in a competitive fashion. Head Coach Joe Walsh and the entire cross-country program are indebted to Rick Grealish for his support and dedication these past years.

Varsity golf, which is both a fall and spring sport, received outstanding play in the Mass. Collegiate Golf Championships and the New England Intercollegiate Golf Championships from James Riley, Paul DiIorio and Peter DiCarlo.

The women's varsity tennis team was exceptionally successful finishing with an 11-4 record, highlighted by the second consecutive MAIAW Championship for Patti Stanziani in the first singles bracket. Patti's career at the University marks her as the most outstanding player to represent this University in women's tennis competition.

The winter sports season saw the emergence of the varsity ice hockey team as a force in ECAC Division III hockey, needing three victories to insure a .500 season with three games remaining on their schedule. Coach Jim Palumbo's team responded to this challenge and registered the best record since the revival of hockey as a varsity sport four years ago. Congratulations to senior Co-Captain Chris Pearl for his contributions over the past four years.

The men's varsity basketball program, although not enjoying a winning season, nonetheless could point with pride to the accomplishments of Capt. Joseph Allen and senior David Gray for the manner in which they represented their team and the University.

Women's varsity basketball saw the return of the Lady Rams to the MAIAW State Tournament for the second time in three years, and although they were not as successful as their previous State second place finish, their record of 12-7 was indeed noteworthy. The dedicated performance for the past four years of Unsung Heroine Janet Ruseckas was a large part of the successes of this team. Senior Co-Capt. Elaine Buckley provided numerous thrills and spills for the Rams during her four year career and will be sorely missed by not only Coaches Pamela Rossi and Debbie Mielko, but by the entire University, for Elaine was also selected as the University's Alumni — Charles Law Student Athlete of the Year. Congratulations, Elaine!

The spring season brought forth the efforts of one of this University's most successful athletes, that being Robert Rauseo of the men's varsity tennis team. Bob continued his winning ways during this his senior year in both dual competition and the New England Intercollegiate Championships. The remarkable feat of 18 consecutive first singles victories in dual meet competition will be difficult to equal, and to state that he will be missed is an oversimplification. Thanks, Bob, for all of your efforts.

The men's varsity baseball program continued their winning ways under Mr. Joe Walsh and his capable assistant Mr. Frank Niles. After posting the most victories of recent Suffolk teams, at 16 last season, the Ram 9 recorded a 15-8 regular season record and now awaits an invitation to the ECAC Championships. Senior pitchers Capt. Andy Treanor, John Dalton and John Wood were the mainstays lending to the successes of the Rams these past two years and we hope that their careers will continue in the professional ranks.

The contributions of the University's cheerleaders will not be unrecognized, and this department salutes them for their support.
