Financial Aid: Reagan closes the door

by Suzanne Diaz

Threats of massive cutbacks in financial aid for college students by the Reagan administration will be met by opposition from the combined efforts of the Suffolk Financial Aid Office and the Student Government Association (SGA).

Although the actual cuts will not be known until President Reagan submits his budget for the 1983 fiscal year next month, the American Council on Education (ACE) has estimated where and what cuts and eliminations will be made.

The Basic Educational Opportunity Grants (PELL) may be reduced by 40 percent. The program had previously

Program Council debates co-sponsoring party w/APO

by Carol Caramanica

The proposed co-sponsoring of a Valentine's Day party by the Program Board and Student Activities (PBC) and the Alpha Phi Omega fraternity (APO) was debated last week at the PBC's Jan. 21 meeting.

The chairperson of the event also was APO spokesperson Jack Cameron. He said the PBC should co-sponsor the party with APO and split the costs and profits. The PBC's Social Chairperson John McDermott argued against the co-sponsoring of the party saying that the APO should be rewarded because of the results of the PBC APO co-sponsored Valentine's Day party last year.

According to the President of the PBC, Ann Connor, last year the PBC gave $200 to cover the cost of the party. The co-sponsoring party, the PBC had a total income of $500. The PBC will receive $500. The PBC also asked the APO for $500. The APO refused.

At this point in the debate it was taken to vote on the motion of co-sponsoring of the party with the APO.

The PBC accepted the changes at the request of the PBC co-sponsoring party. The changes were suggested by PBC Vice President Don D'Amico. The changes were the following:

The PBC will be entitled to five percent of the total cost for the event as a surcharge for publicity and promotional efforts. Previously the amount was two percent of the total cost of the event.

The co-sponsoring organization will be required to submit its percentage of the actual cost of the event to the PBC four weeks prior to the event. Previously the time period was two weeks prior to the event.

The PBC also agreed that it co-sponsors the Valentine's Day party with the APO. The APO will have to adhere to the new five percent surcharge.

Bible study group formed

by Linda Huckle

A new support group, says Linda Huckle, founder of the Suffolk chapter of intervarsity Christian Fellowship and a junior at Suffolk.

The club meets on Tuesdays from 12 p.m. to 1 p.m. in Ashburton Hall. Currently there are about 10 members in the Bible because it is about faith and how to put it into action. We are interested in personal application, said Huckle. We have a staff member with group. A group like this is needed for Christian fellowship and support and for investigating the truths of the Bible and how they apply to our daily lives, she said.

Intervarsity is a worldwide organization with chapters on campuses throughout the U.S. Ashburton works with chapters on campuses throughout the U.S. School works with four other Boston chapters including those at Boston University and Harvard.

When I found out what the Bible really had to say to me, it took away all ambiguity and was very helpful. A personal relationship with Jesus Christ has given my life purpose and I want others to find what I have found, said Griffin.

Also attending the meeting were Robert Allen of Dorchester, a freshman at Suffolk, and the club advisor, Tom O'Hara, associate professor of Finance and Chairman of the Finance Dept. at Suffolk's School of Management.

O'Hara told the Journal that it was but it will not have to adhere to the four-week period stipulation.

The PBC accepted the final draft of its bid party, which was presented by McDermott. The party, which is to be held on Feb. 15, will be held at the Ashburton Hall. The party will be held at the Ashburton Hall. The party will be held at the Ashburton Hall.

In order to purchase a student ticket for a party, a student must be sponsored by the Program Council. A person must present a valid Suffolk student ID at the time of purchase. The student must be a resident of Suffolk. The student must be a resident of Suffolk.

The Program Board and Council reserves the right to:

1. Limit the student ticket prices.
2. Change the student ticket prices at any time.
3. Check a Suffolk student ID at the time of purchase.
4. Deny admission to any PBC function or event to a person presenting a false ID card.

This ticket policy will be added to the PBC's bid party. The PBC will be required to submit its percentage of the actual cost of the event to the PBC four weeks prior to the event.

The PBC also agreed that it co-sponsors the Valentine's Day party with the APO. The APO will have to adhere to the new five percent surcharge.

SGA has new Secretary—Keene replaces Ardagna

by Jolinda Mattison

Freshman Class Representative Cheryl Keene was elected SGA secretary at last Tuesday's meeting. She replaces senior Michael Ardagna who resigned earlier this month because of conflict with his schedule.

Keene defeated junior Colleen Doyle and freshman Robert Rose in the three way race. In her campaign speech Keene spoke of her previous experience as secretary for various organizations, including one year for her high school student government association.

At the last meeting before vacation held on Dec. 15 the SGA heard from Senior Class President Paul Faso and the committees for Junior/Senior Month have been set up under the following events and chairpersons:

Event	Chair
Prize	Paul Faso
Decor Course	Paul Faso
Suffolk Days	Fred Canelli
Ballgame	Colleen Doyle
Night Club	Ann Harrington
Outing	John McConnel
Amusement Park	Mike Ardagna

Fasciano pointed out that any interested Suffolk student may become a committee member by attending two meetings. The committee chairs may be contacted at the SGA office in the Ridgeway Building.

Recognized the Older Than Ever age Student Society as a club but agreed to withhold funding until after the winter break. According to SGA Vice President Ann Harrington the club is aimed at students over 25, but any full time student may join.

Keene said that Suffolk Sportsweek, previously planned for the first week in February, has been expanded to feature the following:

Mildred Sawyer Library opens in Ashburton Bldg.

by Mike DiRamio

The Mildred Sawyer Library, a new four floor facility housed in the Ashburton Building, opened for use on Jan. 16.

The library is named for the wife of the co-chairman of Avis Incorporated, Frank Sawyer, who gave a substantial donation to the university. Mr. Sawyer received an honorary doctorate in commercial science from Suffolk in 1979. In the spring the Ashburton Building will be renamed the Frank Sawyer Building.

The Sawyer Library, with a capacity for 125,000 books and periodicals, replaces the old college library in the Archer Building, which was overcrowded with 80,000 volumes. The Suffolk Law School Library has taken over the space vacated in the Archer Building.

The entrance to the library is on the second floor of the Ashburton Building, directly off the lobby. An elevator inside makes all floors and bookstacks accessible to the handicapped.

The new library provides a much better opportunity for a variety of studying. said Library Director Edmund G. Hannan, referring to its group study rooms, typing centers and quiet study areas. The Sawyer Library also contains a faculty reading room, the University Archives and a small conference room.

The hours for the Mildred Sawyer Library are Monday through Thursday 8 a.m. to 11 p.m., Friday 8 a.m. to 9 p.m., and Sunday 1 p.m. to 10 p.m.

events throughout the month.

1st Week—Feb. 6 Alumni game 1 p.m. Mens basketball 3 p.m. with a reception afterwards.
2nd Week—Women's basketball game

A hockey game during the third and fourth week depending on when the proposed skit can be arranged. Hot chocolate will be served at the hockey game.

—Heard from Harrington, who is also of the Student Judiciary Review Board, that the Computer Science, Health, Newman and Sociology Clubs are all lobbying for constitutions which are necessary before a club can take advantage.

—As trained by Doyle for their sponsorship of the play, The Diary of Adam and Eve, which she directed presented on Dec. 9 and 10 in the Suffolk Auditorium.

—Heard from Treasurer Brian Conley, that Governor Keel has declared January Financial Aid Awareness Month.

At its Jan. 19 meeting the SGA heard from Keene that the PR committee plans to send letters to all clubs and individuals who have expressed interest in any of the newly refurbished SGA committees.

—discussed the possibility of holding a campus wide leadership banquet in late April or early May to honor outgoing leaders in the various clubs and organizations.

—Heard from Conley that by the B.3.84 school year the federal government will have cut more than 60 percent of last year's financial aid to higher education, including elimination of BEOC awards.

At the Jan. 26 meeting the SGA was asked by Suffolk Financial Aid Director Darcie Lincoln for support in making Suffolk students aware of the cuts in student aid being made by the Reagan administration. Lincoln pointed out the seniors who are graduating in June should be concerned about financial aid. She said that seniors who are planning to attend graduate law school should be aware that under the Reagan administration the Guaranteed Student Loan program will no longer be available to them.

—discussed holding a Phonathon someone in late February aimed at Congressional representatives. The Phonathon will be held on the 8th floor of the Ashburton building and each Suffolk student will be asked to take a few minutes and call his/her representative to express thanks for voting against tax cuts or disapproval of those Congresspeople who voted for the cuts. Treasurer Conley pointed out that other colleges and universities will be holding letter drives and phone calls in late February, aimed at Congress and the President.

SGA president Darren Donovan said that the last letter-writing campaign the SGA had sponsored had been unsuccessful.

—allocated $50 for bumper stickers to be given out at various Sportsmonth events.

—allocated an amount not to exceed $50 to buy hot chocolate for the hockey game during the Sportsmonth.

—allocated $14 to cover the cost of miscellaneous materials bought by Colleen Doyle for the play. The Diary of Adam and Eve.

—allocated $138 to pay a fare for Treasurer Conley to attend various financial aid conferences in Washington this week, including the National Association of Independent Colleges and Universities Convention.

—Heard from the contributions prepared by the clubs previously mentioned.

Lobby for Aid before it's gone

With drastic financial cuts in the state's budget, students' financial aid is at risk. As the Journal has reported, the state's aid program is being cut back. It's important that students take the time and effort to make their case.

According to the American Council on Education (ACE), the Basic Educational Opportunity Grants may be reduced by 30 percent. Also a 10 percent cut in the College World Study Program and the total elimination of the Supplementary Educational Opportunity Grants, Pell Grants, and National Direct Student Loans (NDSL) are being considered.

This past year, the new grant eligibility requirements were adopted, which require that families whose income is over $10,000 undergo a needs test. This unfortunately looks like it's the tip of the iceberg.

Suffolk's Financial Aid Office and Student Government Association are planning a demonstration and other activities. We hope these are successful in getting a good response from Suffolk students. Last year's letter writing campaign was at least a success.

Buckley pointed out that phone calls and letters to congressmen and senators are still very important. It gives credence to the fact that people don't forget.

The Massachusetts Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators stated they are well. Unless students speak up the ax will continue to chop until there is nothing left of federal financial aid assistance but meager chips.

New library a plus

The new Mildred Sawyer Library at the Ashburton Building brings more than just a modern facility to the University. The Sawyer Library affords students better opportunities for study, which in the long run leads to a higher quality education. For this we applaud the opening of the library as an enormous benefit to the Suffolk community.

Students say that they are attracted to Suffolk because of its academic reputation and location. The Mildred Sawyer Library complements the progress made by the opening of the Ashburton Building and the revised curriculum. We hope that Suffolk with these recent improvements can draw students away from the highly priced competition.

The Sawyer Library affords Suffolk students quiet study booths, typing carrels and group study rooms. Moreover, the Sawyer Library has a capacity for 125,000 volumes, compared to the 80,000 books and periodicals that were housed in the old college library.

We hope, with our fingers crossed, that the addition of the Mildred Sawyer Library is just one more step in Suffolk's betterment.

Slipping away

The Journal is considering leaving its offices at 40 Temple St. who negotiated Suffolk's wonderful, well-covered Beacon Hill campus last week without falling at least once.

Suffolk this week resembles General Hospital's recent episode depicting the city of Boston.

Although Suffolk did send the area in front of its buildings there is certainly more it could have done to alleviate the problem. While it is true that much of the slippery area is city property, Suffolk could have asked the city of Boston to sand it or spend a few extra dollars of its own to insure the safety of students.

The stand at the intersection of Bowdoin and Derris Streets was so slick that attempting to walk across it almost surely resulted in falling. Ridgeway Lane was completely covered in a thick sheet of ice and rather than walk down it one slid down it. It's a miracle someone didn't go plummeting into Cambridge St.

Even though Suffolk is trying to cut costs, a couple of bags of sand couldn't be too expensive.

Suffolk loses a friend

Suffolk has lost a very special person with the passing of Joanne E. Carr. She was more than just a professor and director of special education, she was a friend who brought a special warmth to our campus.

Dr. Carr taught her classes with an unique flair and a vivacity born of her dedication and enthusiasm. As President Daniel H. Perlman said, "She contributed actively to the growth of her professional discipline and field and was successful in interesting students and faculty of allied disciplines in her work."

Dr. Carr will long be remembered not only for her brilliance in her profession, but for the warmth and sincerity she displayed toward the administration, faculty and students of Suffolk.

The Journal is considering opening an editorial board student with inquisitive Suttell, who had been an activist leader in the campus civil rights campaign, to give a different slant to the editorial board.

Although Suttell did not want to be a leader and his holdings there are continually being sold to finance his travels to alleviate the problem, it is clear that the Journal is not a place where a student can have any say. The Board of Trustees has the right to spend as few extra dollars of its own money as it wishes to give students.

The island, at the intersection of Beacom and the beach, is a small, flat, grassy area that often gets the school's attention at almost such incidents as the running of the Minuteman. It was completely deserted (there is a street on it and other things that walk down it one side and dead, if it is summer someone dead in the water, but it is not).

Even though Suttell is a former student and a former couple of days and a much better person than the Journal

The Police, Triumph in sellout Garden show

by Kevin Connolly

A crowd of over 10,000 rock fans enthusiastically waited for the top concert in quite a while last Friday night at the Boston Garden. A star-studded lineup of The Police, The Pretenders, and The Police, the most of a show which sold out in a mere three hours. Unfortunately, The Police's tight four-song setlist did not allow for a second Boston show.

The Police have come quite a ways since their first and in Boston four years ago, when they played the B-side and lead singer Sting lost his voice. His voice matters, since this unprofessionally joined, Carol King found him twice, when they were both out of material. Despite these setbacks, it was still evident last night that this dynamic trio was going places. However, how could the band have been so successful in their second night?

As a type of, "Victims of the Night" came to the Garden speaker.

Hepburn, Fondas impressive, but Pond only lukewarm

by R. Scott Reed

on London Pond Directed by Alan Parker, "Hepburn" is a film about the life of the actress Katharine Hepburn. It is a film about the life of the actress Katharine Hepburn. It is a film about the life of the actress Katharine Hepburn.

"Hepburn" is a film about the life of the actress Katharine Hepburn. It is a film about the life of the actress Katharine Hepburn. It is a film about the life of the actress Katharine Hepburn.

Hepburn and Katharine Hepburn are two of the most gifted and versatile actors of this century. They bring their considerable talents to this movie, however not without some problems. When one thinks of personal independence Hepburn comes to mind as an immediate personification. She is in a class with legends like Elizabeth Taylor and Barbra Streisand, who while delivering first rate acting performances do so in the shadow that is their own much written about and discussed legends.

Hepburn Fondas brilliantly essays the

in a lot of over-dramatic studio sessions. They are a very tight trio and this was definitely evidenced on stage, with Sting providing remarkably clear vocals despite the Garden's appalling acoustics.

The song which helped allow The Police to break into their musical career was "Roxanne" and they wisely saved that to end the initial show and provide the encores. It was an interesting version with Sting, Summers, drummer Stewart Copeland and the horn section joining heavily.

The first encore was the song "Every Breath You Take" which was a surprise. The band went into "Every Breath You Take" and they were in it for the long haul.

Jane Fonda helps Dabney Coleman stay dry.

Chrissie Hynde dominates super Pretenders show

by Molly Ann Kennedy

Chrissie Hynde walked on very cool with her guitar slung by her side. As the crowd went wild, the Pretenders started with "The Wait." Chrissie played calm in her black leather pants and tuxedo jacket, peering out beneath her shawl of bangs. Then, as admirers threw red roses upon the stage to her, she waved and started up the aisle to hiss at. Get back up here! Chris screamed. She walked over and (kissed him). The audience applauded. The rock goddess is human! But what a rocker she is, and such class.

All of the Pretenders—Pete Dinklage, Town and Brass in Pocket—moved with the force of an electric performance. The Pretenders are a group that is very aware of its audience. They can startle keep in control. Sexy leather clad Ferndon continuously swayed to the edge of the stage to tease the crowd. Without losing one deep driving beat Chambers flipped drum stick after drumstick to the anxious fans. He also dropped quite a few, twirling them into the air. And Chrissie screamed. Anyone can come up front who wants to—cause that's the way I want it, she called out before pausing out the fabulous. Kit. There was a rush to the front and from then on it was a crazy dance party.

The first encore was "Brass in Pocket" and a fierce version of "Mystery Achievement" followed. The house lights then came on but no one was ready to quit. Following many minutes of stamping and applause the Pretenders returned. A happy man who liked died his hair so that his WHRR in Cincinnati fans would have trouble recognizing him in this late.

The main plot pits Kristel and thoseman in a cabot to kill the low-struck Phils out at $10,000 in a far-fetched blackmail scheme. Kristel's attempts at alluring eroticism are preposterous and laughable. The sex scenes are relatively tame and uneventful, a hard editing job at times even makes it seem as if there were doubles used. Scenes involving Philly and his interaction with a rotund fellow, adolescent lend some enjoyability, and a climactic chase might merit a chuckle but on the whole the film is just mindless piffle.

Q2 shows promise with October

by Mark O'Clair

This Irish quartet, Q2, has followed up their debut effort, "Boy," with their second, "October." After releasing "Boy" and selling 100,000 copies in America, Q2 was quickly back in the studio producing "October." The band, with their individual style of music have surpassed "Boy" with a matured and unified sound. "October" exemplifies the mastering of sound and musicianship by using a variety of acoustics and phenomenal piano work absent throughout "Boy."

Q2 has learned to push and pull their music into different moods, although limiting themselves to their musical range, they still produce a remarkably mystifying and satisfying their ballad style which are simple and well thought out, yet the sound that is produced is virtually unmitigable. Topping the album for songs is the beautiful love song "Gloria" as well as "I Fall Down," "October," and "Fire and Scales." Actually all the songs on the album are worth mentioning, because every song contains that ebullient Q2 sound which helped to bring them rave reviews at their O'Connell concert two months ago.

Q2 has learned to push and pull their music into different moods, although limiting themselves to their musical range, they still produce a remarkably mystifying and satisfying

On "October" Q2 effectively produces an enchanting second album, which leaves the listener hungry for their third LP.

A private lesson in trashy film

by R. Scott Reed

Private Lessons. starring Eric Brown, Howard Hesseman, and Silvia Kristel. In this film, a man who liked died his hair so that his WHRR in Cincinnati fans would have trouble recognizing him in this late.

What comes to mind when you hear that the production of a major commercial motion picture was halted by law officials in the state of Arizona because the film's star was both underage and underemployed. Must be one heck of a film, right? Well, sort of. "Private Lessons" is just such a film and one heck of a bad one at that.

Completed in New Mexico apparently without interference from law officials in that state, this movie stars 16-year-old Eric Brown. Brown plays Philly, a wealthy boy of 15 whose sexually initiated by his family's lascivious maid played by Silvia Kristel, Costarring as a quirky, underhanded chauffeur is Howard Hesseman.

California's young quartet of lasses, the Garçons, opened the show with an ensemble set of material mostly from their hitherto successful debut album, "Hearts and the Beat." The band was accepted by the Garden crowd, and this responded with their version of their hits, "Our Lips Are Sealed" and "A Little Bit of Love." All in all, it was the best concert all. The Garden since Springfield was there.

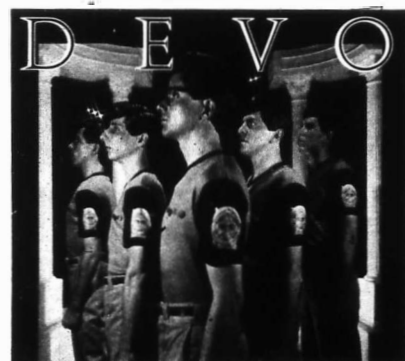

by Molly Ann Kennedy

When Devo tells us that they are "Through Being Cool" inside one song one on their latest Warner Brothers release, the New Traditionalists, they certainly do not mean that they have warmed up any. The album is as technical as calculating and as devoid of any emotion as a fever. The songs, especially "Going Under," clip along like ticker tape from a stock market machine. There are no surprises, no wild guitar leads or whining vocals, just a steady, cubic beat. But some how, the album manages to be fun and enjoyable.

Jerkin, Back and Forth, is so danceable it is hard to sit still. While it does not have the power of "Whip It," this cut makes a great single; it is fast and catchy.

Throughout the album, the vocals get special treatment. Every word is clear, even when the voices are echoed or give a hollow, machine-like sound, as in "Soft Things." This is important because Devo has a message. "Race of Doom," which starts with a chant of "we are doomed," tells of the inevitable self-destruction of the human population. "Beautiful World" would seem to contradict this, but it doesn't. It is a tongue-in-cheek look at the blissful out unaware society.

Love Without Anger, which asks the question "Why fall in love when there are better things to do?" is an other bouncing dance tune. Actually, it is easier to picture red-dressed clowns hopping up and down, but the feel of action is there. Devo seems to think there is hope for a world of red-dressed clowns. Included with the album is an order form for such essentials as a turtle-neck which covers your head, a black plastic popadour, the beloved red energy dome, and a Devo "E-Z" listening cassette mutated versions of Devo classics. You are tempted to say how crass, selling your garbage, those money-grabbing capitalists! But it is all part of the fun. Besides, also included in this album package of goodies is a 45 of "Working in a Coal Mine." This is a real bonus, because Devo does a great version of this old tune.

Goats true to name Drop 6-4 decision to Stonehill

by Gary Demopoulos

Costly penalties hurt Suffolk's hockey team as they bowed to Stonehill College 6-4 Monday night at B.U.'s Walter Brown Arena.

The referees whistled the Rams for ten penalties and Stonehill took advantage by scoring four power play goals, including three in the first period.

Pete McCallister, a junior from West Roxbury, gave Suffolk a 1-0 lead at 1:42 in the first period by hitting a rebound into an open net. Lou Skaper and A. Giam, Jeff McLaughlin, were credited with assists.

However, Stonehill's Steve Sherwood scored a power play goal at 7:09 with Suffolk two men short in front and then, called again at 7:49 with the Rams a man short. The teams then traded power play goals twice. Stonehill's 2-2 lead after two periods. Wagner scored the second goal for Suffolk, converting a pass from Larry Eppolito who made a hefty run long into.

Stonehill captain John Kelly nearly a pair of goals midway through the second period to give them a 5-2 lead and some breathing room. Anthony Lamola, a sophomore from East Boston, cut the lead to 3-3 at 13:12 with a power play goal. He converted Stephen Mulca's rebound. But three minutes later the puck bounced off a Suffolk defenseman into the net and Stonehill skated off with a commanding 6-3 lead after two periods.

The Rams made a valiant effort to catch fire in a relatively quiet third period. Freshman Greg Ames scored on a two-on-one break at 17:52 when a Stonehill defenseman fell down. Ames converted it centering pass from junior John Mulca to make it a 6-4 game. Suffolk kept the puck on ice to the first buzzer but couldn't end the game. McLaughlin missed two goals on shots deflected to the front of the net.

The loss drops the Rams record to 2-10 but they have played considerably better as each game goes along.

Suffolk was outskated by Stonehill this week.

Women's Basketball wins Babson Invitational

by Peggy Riley

The Suffolk Women's Basketball team won the First Annual Babson Invitational Tournament last Saturday. Suffolk was scheduled to play West End New England College (WNEC) but they were unable to make the game due to bad weather conditions. WNEC forfeited the game, which entitled Suffolk to advance to the finals.

In Babson's first round they stomped over Thomas College, 18-33, which sent the Babson squad against Suffolk in the finals.

Suffolk had played Babson the week before losing a one game, 40-40. Coach Pam Rossi said: "The last time, Suffolk suffered from foul trouble. Suffolk had a deadly free throw shot. She said: 'We need a good solid defense with foul trouble.'"

At the end of the first half Suffolk came back fighting with a good defense which forced Babson to throw foul shots.

A highlight of the game was Pam Rossi's outstanding defense. She shut out Babson's number one scorer.

Judy Pearson who had averaged 28 to 30 points a game. With the help of Backus's defense, Pearson only scored 11 points. Coach Rossi said: "She had had her best game of the year."

Suzanne Shay, a transfer from WNEC, helped to generate the offense with 19 points. Suffolk's high scorer was Sheri Seaton with 20 points.

A new look for Suffolk Cheerleaders

Let's give a cheer for the Suffolk cheerleaders that's right. Suffolk cheerleaders.

Was back in September the cheerleaders began recruiting girls to try out for the 81-82 squad which is now 15 strong. So sophomores and nine freshmen.

This year's cheerleading squad is not only wearing new uniforms but is taking on a new look. Coach Pam Rossi.

As a support group for the Men's she also was one of the leading boundaries of the game.

Contributing on the offense were Janet Russekas—11 points, Karen Thomas—8 points, Doreen Matta and Chris Curtis—8 points each.

Coach Rossi said she was really pleased with the way the game went.

Basketball program. I feel the cheerleaders deserve more recognition because it's their determination that results the players and other students with school and team spirit," said Rossi.

On Tuesdays and Thursdays one can hear the cheerleaders' squad cheering through the Fenelon lounge and Ashmun lobby. The squad has been learning new sideline cheers. Floor cheers, rounds and they have been learning a special dance.

we kept possession of the ball and chewed up time. It was an extremely good team effort.

This is the first Women's team to bring a trophy back to the school. They kept the trophy for one year at which time the same four teams participate in another tournament.

Captain Jerry Bonadonna echoed ages all members of the squad to give their input into the team. Most of the girls were cheerleaders in high school and bring many of the cheers they learned with them.

Though cheerleaders are not taken seriously as a team because cheering takes a different type of team effort. It involves commitment and trust. Because cheerleaders don't work for a win or a tie they strive for group and Check it out—the top three scorers of Division III all came from Assumption College. Needless to say, these three play on the same line for the Hounds. The line is called the "Arlington Connection" since they are the pre-house of the Hounds who already seventeen in the top Division III.

Bob LoConte, the center all the line, came from Arlington Catholic High as well as Tom Connors, the right winger. The left winger, Jerry Rochon, graduated from Woburn High but now resides in Arlington. Hence, the "Arlington Connection."

Division III outlook

UMass Boston's Jeff Bonadonna has been named ECAC Division III Rookie of the Week for his performance in two games last week.

Bentley had two goals and assists in two others, as UMass edged Iona 5-4. In another close game the five-foot eight winger figured in three scores by getting assists in the game they beat Amherst 5-4.

Chris Watrous of Trinity has been one of the reasons that the Bantams are near the top of the Division III heap. Last week he turned away 30 shots to save a 5-4 overtime win against New Hampshire College.

He also recorded the only shutout in the division. He stopped 33 Wesleyan shots for a 3-0 win. Watrous is the honor of Defenseman of the week goes to Danny Joyce of the Assumption Greyhounds. His standup defense has helped the Hounds keep their opponents to nine goals in three games. Joyce also added in the win with one goal and five assists.

In basketball

Named to the sixth weekly ECAC Division III basketball honor roll were Jim Pettit of Amherst who scored 69 points and pulled down 48 boards in 21 games that included the Rose City Tourney.

Tom Groth of Babson scored 63 points which included 31 rebounds. He also rejected 11 shots and shot 58 percent from the floor.

Chris Jerome of Bowdoin blocked 10 shots and was significant on the Peabody offense by scoring down 31 rebounds and hitting for 53 points. Salem State's Ken Kacher controlled the backboard with 25 rebounds in an overtime Eastern Maritime College. He rejected 4 shots and scored 27. In other B ball news, Vince Miller of Nichols became the Bison's all time top scorer with 1,716 points.

It's that time again

by John Alabado

Well, here it comes, the annual story in the Journal complaining about the lack of sports facilities. Although finding a lot on or near the university and getting permission to build on it is difficult, something should be done.

Suffolk's sports teams should have a building that they can call home instead of having to use the YMCA, Walter Brown Arena or another school's arena for a home game.

Since Suffolk does not have its own arena, students will rarely go to a game (intellect), the lack of facilities leads to apathy. Besides spectator apathy, the lack of facilities is often a reason why a college-bound student may choose another institution over Suffolk. Plus students at Suffolk who would like to be on an sports team are deterred by the lack of facilities.

The rumors around the university concerning sports facilities are that the Ridgeway building will be made into a gym as well as additional classrooms and a student center. Such rumors have evolved because of renewed interest in the possibilities of expanding the Ridgeway building.

Though nothing is definite about Ridgeway, administrators are checking all possibilities. Well, just in case they cannot come up with other alternatives I have come up with my own.

First, and most likely the obvious alternative, is to buy the lot that the State House occupies, tear down the Statehouse, and build a Suffolk arena with parking underneath. There may even be enough space left to build another class building.

If you don't like that, why doesn't Suffolk buy Boston Garden from Delaware North and preserve it so that the businessmen won't lose their livelihood? Then Suffolk could rent to the Bruins and the Celtics and be able to use it for the Rams.

Okay, okay, so it's not feasible, how about Suffolk buying the lot across from Central Plaza? It's only City Hall. Kevin won't mind. Besides, the building is unused and sits on a lot that is likely to crack and fall apart.

All right, all right, so he will mind. Sorry Kevin, just thinking out loud. Just one more suggestion. How about Suffolk using Frog Pond on the Boston Common? Suffolk could pay for the water and paint, then they would need some plywood and plexiglass to build it. It shouldn't be too bad. Suffolk would be the only school that would have an open air arena. Well, it was a good thought.

Well, what if? How about? Why don't? Aw heck, Ridgeway sounds pretty good.

Standings explanation

These standings are not the determinants of the respective division leaders. These standings are based on the teams that Suffolk plays and are compiled so that our readers can get a grasp of how Suffolk fares among its competitors.

The actual determination of division leaders is the coaches poll which is based on games won and the teams' coaches' evaluations.

These standings will appear each week across three columns. The fourth column will vary from being the coaches poll to the top scorers in the league.

The Upcoming Games will always appear under the standings and will list all of Suffolk's upcoming games in Basketball, Hockey, Baseball, etc.

The Division III Outlook will always appear under the standings also. This column is also based on the teams that Suffolk plays. Its intention is to keep the reader informed of other games in the division that affects Suffolk.

Height not always a requirement for basketball

by Marjorie Maids

Name one basketball guard who stands 5'1" in a pair of basketball shoes. Stumped? The answer is Suffolk's own Doreen Matta.

Matta is not only the shortest player on the Suffolk Women's team but also the oldest player. She is currently a senior quarter team.

Actually, she is hysterical. In the oldest but the smallest on the team. I get respect on one hand and gooster on the other hand, said Matta.

During the Celtics Bowl in a game against the University of Southern Maine (USM), Matta grabbed the ball. A USM player who had taken the defensive stance against Matta looked at her and gasped. "My God, you're so small!" The USM player then backed away a bit, giving Matta the advantage.

But don't let Matta's size fool you. On or off the basketball court she has more energy than all of the Boston Celtics put together. Not only does this summer after she graduates her of the special events. Social Committee and of the Plymouth Council. She also helped out last summer with Freshmen orientation and Freshmen elections. But her bus and activity is her job as editor of the Beacon. She predicts Beacon 1982 is going to be the best yearbook anyone has ever seen.

On top of this, Matta, a journalism major, finished last semester with a 3.6 grade point average.

When asked how she managed to accomplish all of this, Matta replied, "It's all organization. I write everything down. It's like going shopping, you put it in a list and deal with everything one by one. If I didn't write things down I'd be all over the place."

Last July Matta and twenty-five others bicycled sixty-three miles from Roslindale to Wareham to raise $2,300 for handicapped children. Matta enjoyed the bike a whole lot more than she intends to do it again this summer after she graduates.

After graduation Matta plans to apply for a public relations internship at the National Bureau and Sports Foundation in California. Then she would like to go into either sports public relations or into sports reporting for a newspaper or magazine. But her greatest ambition is to someday be the Public Relations Director for the Boston Celtics.

When asked if she was thinking of graduate school in the future, Matta said that although she liked school she was not interested in more schooling in the near future. She said if she ever goes back to school she would be interested in law school and would specialize in law of communications. She added if she became a lawyer she would like to work as a staff lawyer on a newspaper handling libel cases.

So the next time someone asks you to name a basketball guard under 5'2" you can answer Doreen Matta. But if there was a way to measure energy, enthusiasm, and ambition Doreen Matta would be ten feet tall.

"They should be commended for their perseverance and hard work that they put in on their own time. I'm proud of their accomplishments and their improvements in just one year's time," said Coach Pam Rossi of this year's cheerleading squad.

This cheerleaders are able to achieve something that many of us can't. They are the only ones who can cheer for the entire team. And it's possible that they will be able to cheer for the entire team in the future.

Editor:

In a letter from John Berg, Associate Professor of Government, dated in your November 24, 1981 edition, there was serious opposition to ROTC at Suffolk University. I intend to show the lack of thoughtful research and study by Professor Berg in the area of ROTC, and the real character of an ROTC cadet at Suffolk University, as well as other colleges and universities.

In reference to the lack of study, let me first say that Lieutenant William Calley was not a participant or graduate of the ROTC program. Lieutenant Calley entered the service at Fort Benning, Georgia, on July 26, 1960. On September 7, 1967, Calley graduated from OCS Officers Candidate School at Fort Benning, Georgia. Calley did attend Palm Beach Junior College. Furthermore, the Geneva Convention is a treaty on the strategies of war, and it clearly states that such actions exemplified by Lieutenant Calley are illegal, unethical and immoral in any war of aggression or involving the United States Military.

An ROTC cadet is well trained with the guidance of the Geneva Convention if ethics and morality with respect to war. In fact, the ROTC program continues to adjust its program with heavy considerations of ethics and morality.

When Professor Berg attacks ROTC, he attacks his own rights afforded him by the United States Constitution which the military strives to uphold, protect and defend. After all, if we went to the military, there would be no war for Professor Berg to say what he has said. The military fights for and protects such rights.

Thus, I would like to conclude by saying that Professor Berg, examining your accusations and criticisms thoroughly and thoughtfully, (example, Lieutenant Calley) and second before entering the ROTC program, get to know if you will find that cadets are no different than you, other students, save for training in good leadership qualities and essential military skills. Professor Berg, cadets are neither more or less ethical, intellectual, nor moral than their fellow classmates. Furthermore, such orientations and attitudes mold ed in careful, intelligent study and thought through higher education is what Lieutenant Calley lacked) remain a part of the ROTC cadet when he or she enters the service with an ROTC commission, which may be on a full or part time basis.

Sincerely,
Cadet Laura Walker,
Army ROTC.

Hepburn, Fonda romps 10

(Doug McKeon, who she and her father took up after the war.)

Charles Fonda's first film, The Long Walk Home, is a film that has been called for her as an adult. Fonda's appearance, almost painfully understated, prevents us with a subtle, understated, seems both understated and extreme. We wonder why, at age 42, she is still acting about the world as if she were a child. Fonda's head treatment she received from the father.

The contention some in which she stands up to her father and tries to break down the hostility which has clouded their relationship over the years is awkward, and even with their considerable talent, neither Fonda seems to make the moment seem anything but forced.

A far more enjoyable subplot is that which details the relationship between young Billy Ray and elderly Norma. Doug McKeon is perfect as the cocky, self-righteous left to stay with the Thayers. His attempts at remaining aloof melt into the mutual admiration which he and she share. The film is a good one, but it is not as good as the film The Long Walk Home. Fonda's performance is good, but it is not as good as the film The Long Walk Home. Fonda's performance is good, but it is not as good as the film The Long Walk Home.

On Golden Pond, is a worthwhile film. It is a film that is not as good as the film The Long Walk Home. Fonda's performance is good, but it is not as good as the film The Long Walk Home. Fonda's performance is good, but it is not as good as the film The Long Walk Home.

A MESSAGE FROM THE OFFICE OF FINANCIAL AID

Next month President Reagan will submit his budget proposal to the Congress for the 1983 fiscal year (1982-83 academic year). In addition, proposals will be made to rescind the funding of federal student financial assistance programs for the 1982 fiscal year (1981-82 academic year).

The level of funding and support to students under the federal higher education aid programs is still unclear. The very existence of some of these programs is in doubt. The President's budget will call for another round of cuts for next academic year. The planned recessions will take $950 million out of student aid and reduce other assistance programs.

The American Council on Education (ACE) of Washington estimates the following cuts:

- * A 40% reduction on Basic Education (PELL) Grants
 - * A 30% reduction in College Work Study
 - * Total elimination of Supplemental (SEOG) Grants, National Direct Student (NDSL) Loans, and Graduate Fellowships
 - * Eliminate graduate students from participating in the Guaranteed Student (HELP) Loan Program
 - * Require all undergraduate GSEP loan applicants to pass more stringent needs analysis test
 - * Increase the loan origination fee from 5 percent to 10 percent
- The ACE continues to state:

The magnitude of such proposal reductions compels the conclusion that this Administration is seeking to abandon the long term federal commitment to equal opportunity in higher education.

Clearly, such cuts in financial aid funding will have a serious impact on students of Suffolk University. With inflation and annual tuition increases, the need to financially assist students becomes greater. Many of you experienced cuts in your financial aid awards for this year. These further cutbacks will mean a greater reduction in your aid package for next year.

NOW is the time to take action. By being silent, such reductions in funding will occur. By writing to Administration Officials (Secretary of Education Terence Bell) and your representatives in Congress, you can voice your concerns and alert them to the adverse impact that these proposals will have on you.

Professor investigated for reported absences

by Lisa Griffin

The Journal has learned that Biology Professor Phillip Mulvey is under investigation by Dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, Michael R. Ronayne for reported excessive absences.

Mulvey has reportedly missed several classes since the beginning of the semester. He teaches four classes and a lab. Mulvey is a full-time professor and has taught at Suffolk for the past 20 years.

Biology Department Chairman Arthur West said he has received complaints from students about the matter and has spoken to both Mulvey and Ronayne.

West said the issue is highly sensitive, especially since Mulvey is a 20-year tenured professor at the University.

Mulvey was unavailable for comment last week. He reportedly did not hold office hours and was unable to meet with West on Tuesday. Mulvey, who is a practicing attorney, has reportedly been involved in a suit.

West expressed concern about the effect possible disciplinary action would have on his department and spoke of the frustration of trying to maintain an excitement within the department. The department is a stable one, and there is a lot of excitement there, he said.

had West. There is a need for the department chair to just hand loose in terms of the chair not being pre-judged in his views. West also said that any other action would have to be taken by Ronayne. West did admit, however, that such behavior is highly irregular for a full-time professor.

According to Ronayne, the question is under review and it is unclear at this point what may or may not happen. So far, he said, he has received some complaints from students and he has spoken with Dr. West about the issue. Aside from that, there has been no action taken, said Ronayne. What you have is simply a situation where some students have complained. I don't feel comfortable talking about a private matter publicly.

Suffolk sets sail

by Maryann Bartolo

Four Suffolk University students accompanied by three faculty explored the waters of the Caribbean this past December on an educational research trip aboard the Tall Ship Regent Mary.

The marine biology program, considered a four credit course, is Suffolk's first effort to uncover a marine environment in a tropical setting to suit its study needs.

According to Dr. Arthur West II, chairman and professor of biology, this first effort has been successful.

Said West of the trip: "It was a very challenging experience. And we were looking at the potential of doing it again. He pointed out that having a ship as their base provided easy access to the water. It afforded the participants the opportunity to do much diving and exploration in the many, unspoiled areas full of marine life around the islands of the Caribbean.

And West notes that the trip proved to be very informational. Says West: "We did a consensus of the types of marine organisms in the warm water environment. Temperatures and salinity were measured. Specimens were collected and both protected and unprotected reefs were explored. The expedition embarked Monday, December 14th on its 10 day trip with Dr. Beatrice L. Snow, professor of biology and biology computer science coordinator. Dr. James A. Blake, associate professor of biology and marine science coordinator and Don Mikes, director of the Instructional Media Center, also

Tuition hike

How much more?

by Carol Caramanica

Francis X. Flannery, vice president and treasurer of Suffolk University (SU), said in an interview last week that he is in the process of making his recommendation to the school's Finance Committee to increase SU's tuition for the 1982-1983 school year.

Flannery declined to comment on the amount of the increase that he will recommend.

The Finance Committee, according to Flannery, will meet on Feb. 9 to decide on his recommendation. The final decision on the proposed increase will be made by the Board of Trustees of which Flannery is a member. The announcement about the trustees' decision will come from President Daniel H. Perlman's office on Feb. 10.

Flannery mentioned normal inflation and increasing energy and medical costs as some of the reasons for his recommendation of the tuition increase. He also said that he must examine department budget requests and decide which requests he supports in order to determine the amount of the increase.

SU's budget, according to Flannery, consists of salary and fringe benefits (63 percent), library books (32 percent), and utilities (4.4 percent).

Flannery said that he did not think the proposed increase would affect SU's enrollment for the 1982-1983 school year. He said that SU has received 2.7 percent more undergraduate applications this year than was received last year at this time.
