

CONTROVERSY ERUPTS FROM SENIOR CLASS MEETING

Recently an event in the Senior class led to an explosion which involved the senior class officers and the Student Government. This issue, by its complexity, also involves all members of the student body. The question is one of the right of the senior class president to examine the record of an individual member of the Student Government from his class.

At the Feb. 2 meeting, Michael Foster, Sr. Class S.G. Rep. asked for a Point of Personal Privilege in order to show that a committee which had been set up to investigate him by Kenneth Robinson, the Sr. Class President, was unconstitutionally founded. Mr. Foster added that the Sr. Class President had no right to chastise him in front of his entire class as "incompetent and ineffectual."

In an attempt to clarify his statement, Mr. Robinson said that he did not call Mr. Foster "incompetent and ineffectual," but stated that it was his opinion that Mr. Foster "did not want to do the work" with his class. Mr. Robinson indicated that he was motivated by the desire to increase attendance and interest at class meetings.

As a S.G. rep. Mr. Foster appealed to that body for assistance. He claimed that the body alone had the right to investigate him, or indeed on any question of jurisdiction.

Mr. Foster went on to indicate his willingness to have his record during his senior year investigated by the S.G., pointing out that he had done work on the allocation of funds to the Senior Class, the subsidizing of the year book, and the work of handling the financial difficulties of last year's Junior-Senior Week.

Mr. Foster's appeal to be judged by the S.G., and not by his class, was questioned among others by Jordan Hadji, Jr., class rep. and former V.P. of S.G. Mr. Hadji stated that he saw the problem as a class issue and felt that Mr. Foster should take his case in an open appeal before them. He also felt that no personal privilege had been infringed upon to that time within the S.G.

The general consensus was however, that once a Rep. is elected by a class he comes under the jurisdiction of the S.G. and not his class.

S.G. President William Murray, stated that Rep. Foster had worked closely with all the members of the S.G. individually since September, and as his peers they were best able to judge his worth on the S.G. and as a representative of his class. (Continued on page 8)

FROSH PROVOKED

At the Freshman class meeting of January 31, 1967, a great deal of comment was made concerning the Suffolk Journal. All were very dissatisfied with its performance as a school newspaper.

Their major complaint was that the articles were not directed toward and held almost no interest for the students themselves. It should be but it is not a voice of the students.

Other complaints were that the publications were not regular and it should be published more often, twice a month was suggested.

The editorials lack force. They are too objective and editorials are not supposed to be objective.

The quality of the articles in general were poor and had no appeal.

The paper isn't about the students or what they are doing. The basketball team was used as an example. Although they had a winning season, little publicity was given to the fact. This would have helped to promote school spirit. Also it was suggested that the paper perhaps put a spotlight on certain outstanding students and write an article about them.

The Freshman class feels that the Suffolk Journal is not a voice of the students. Consequently, the following motion was made:

The Freshman class petitions Student Government to look into their editorial policy of the Suffolk. Pledge for universal quality.

The motion was voted on and passed unanimously.

Editorial

It appears that the student body of Suffolk University is falling back into the state of apathy that gripped the university not too many years ago. In the past few years the drive for a new building and expanded facilities gave the students recognizable goals. The Student Government COOPERATED with the class officers, the class officers COOPERATED with each other and the students they represented on a UNITED drive to achieve these goals.

This year, however, UNITY has been lost, and the student body has become frayed at the edges and is cracking at the core. Why? Is it a lack of common goals? No! It is a lack of COOPERATION and COMMUNICATION that is returning apathy to Suffolk University.

The noisy discord in the senior Class is the most recent example of this problem. The misinformation that all three parties came equipped with reduced the class meeting into a chaotic fervor of charges of "witch hunts", counter charges, plots, and personal feuds.

The point is that these people, in their zeal for personal honor and self-interest, have lost sight of the true values and have reduced what was once an effective, vibrant, and mature body into a carcass infested with self-interest and immaturity.

I hope that the time has not yet passed when these people can see that their values are misplaced and can put their self-interest aside and mature into a carcass infested with self-interest and immaturity.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

I am a considerable portion of the student body apparently has a compelling desire to express the least concerns of their state, opinions and to their fellow students, at the frequent and amount of speeches, organized on bulletin boards, walls, chairs, etc. everywhere. I suggest that as a service to the entire university, Student Government designate one bulletin board solely for expressing graffiti, and other trivial.

In this way not law-abiding fellow (?) students could read their trash in concentrated doses and those students uninterested in it would not have to be subjected to these offensive creations. The only logical alternative to my proposal, it seems, would be to hope that these immature cranks grow up in a hurry. But probably this is too much to expect of our current quality of students.

Sincerely,
Robert Haines '68

To the Editor:

I would like to state my feelings on the article written by Mr. David Gran in the January edition entitled "On the Right".

It is my opinion that his reference to Senator Robert Kennedy was in very poor taste. How can one equate Senator Kennedy with Socialism or Communism beyond me. Also, I would like to ask Mr. Gran if he knows that there is a difference between Socialism and Communism? From the tone of his article I believe he thinks they are one and the same, which is very wrong.

I would also like to ask Mr. Gran if his views are not a little bit nineteenth century? He is in a dream world. Doesn't he know that times have changed? I gather that he feels he is "right" and the world is wrong?

Very truly yours,
Dean S. Carter

The Editor and You

Because of the special nature of the following letter I have decided to reply to it, point by point.

Dear Editor:

The quality of the Suffolk Journal has been steadily declining since the beginning of the academic year and the last issue was the epitome of disaster. The subject of a student newspaper is to express the opinion of the student body. It reflects the intellect and the spirit of the university. In these respects, the Suffolk Journal has failed miserably. It is a collection of wasted space, needless articles (although the reporter on some events had been rather colorful), off-balance party writers, articles, and non-editorial editorials. Prime space is given to articles that apparently have little or no interest for the majority of the students and important matters are lost among advertisements. After having spoken to a large number of students, the result is the impression that the Journal is a representation of a minority of the student body. The Student Government as well as the general public who use the Journal are entitled to the best that the student body has to offer. The Journal will stand if it is the voice of the student body.

I feel that the quality of the Suffolk Journal, rather than declining, has been on the rise since September. This year the JOURNAL adopted a more flexible layout scheme whereby articles of different typ sizes have been interspersed in order to avoid "graying" and monotony. The pages have been divided in several different ways to get away from a set pattern. Semi-gloss paper was replaced by news paper to give the JOURNAL an identity as a newspaper. Technically before, the JOURNAL has not gone down, but rather has excelled its imagination.

While any college newspaper is an agent of student expression it is by no means its reason for being. Opinion is very necessary, but we have other obligations. As it happens this year, there has been, perhaps, not much opinion expressed, and that leads me to my next point.

You are entirely right that a newspaper reflects the intellect and spirit of a university, and the JOURNAL is no exception - it is Suffolk University, whether it is good, bad or indifferent.

Apart from a handful of steady writers, the JOURNAL staff consists of about four people. This means that the entire job of recruiting, mailing, giving of assignments, typing, proof-reading, editing, re-writing, layout, and a hundred other little jobs are left to four people.

What is seen in any particular issue of the JOURNAL is ALL that comes across our desk - we do not work with a surplus, nor do we stockpile. Often the JOURNAL is held up from going to press for lack of material, as was the case with the January issue. I can only delay the process for so long. In one particular issue I wrote three articles to help fill it up; in another I took an article from one of last year's issues.

The problem of recruiting people is an interesting one. I held my first meeting last May on a "come as you have time basis." It lasted over a period of three or four hours, but I wanted to make myself available to anyone who wanted to show up. It was a fairly successful meeting, but I did not see half the people or hear from them again.

Last year's JOURNAL had less difficulty with writers, but it did have some difficulty with organizing the staff administratively. The Editor and I agreed it would be good for me to spend some time thinking of ways to organize a staff which would work smoothly and efficiently.

One of my associate editors designed forms which my own secretary mailed out announcing each deadline. A system of organization was laid out by which we would proceed. It is, however, somewhat difficult to organize people who do not exist, so we have been forced to work on a catch as catchcan basis, and still do.

My one secretary, mentioned above, does all the typing, sends out forms for each issue to staff, clubs, faculty, and administration, types all copy, has assisted in layout, and even cleaned the office.

Except for one brief period at the beginning of the year, there has been no Business Manager. This is the most important job, requiring the handling of the JOURNAL's finances, soliciting ads, corresponding with advertisers, bill mailing, etc. It is an additional position I had to assume, and because of its many requirements for time, which does not exist, I have had to let many ads pass, and those who have not paid are not pursued too effectively. A staff meeting was called in late November or early December. Two of my regular staff showed up, one writer, and one prospective member who was never heard from again. We have had at least three issues calling for help - it goes unneeded.

The next alternative is to appeal to classes through class meetings, which will be done before this issue goes to press. To your statement then, that the JOURNAL does not represent the University, I can only say that you are wrong.

You have commented on the quality of the material, and so should I. It would be foolish of me to say that I think that the JOURNAL is perfect, but it is not a complete disaster. I have stated that I have to print everything that I receive which means that there can be no selectivity. We have good writers, but we also have fair and poor writers. The problem is that they all wind up being printed. With time and the proper staff, writers could be encouraged and shown how to correct their weaknesses. We have neither time nor staff. This means that one or two people do ALL the rewriting. I do very sincerely believe that we do the best with what we have.

I'm happy to hear that people have opinions about the quality of articles. I only wish they came where they belong - to us. One of my major complaints since September is that no one ever tells ME what they think of them, and there have been starting enough changes to elicit responses. I can think of only three people during last semester who have cared to comment to me. Until your letter I was convinced that people didn't give a damn one way or the other, and I had even given consideration that to seriously consider of returning my budget to the Administration with instructions to announce that the JOURNAL was defunct due to lack of interest.

I would like to question your source concerning articles that have been rejected. Before the newspaper goes to press it is submitted to a member of the Administration, presently Dean Sullivan, the Dean of students. The Administration's attitude is that this bears the seal of the university and the financial support of the Board of Trustees, their interests must not be completely neglected. So, they look at the paper before it goes to press. On questionable issues discussion is pursued.

It would be insane to say that I'm against student opinion. I've been seeking it since September and not a few times I've spent much time arguing with the administration for it. They have proved reasonable and the JOURNAL has managed to get its views on the points in question. It is not censured by the administration, or by anyone except my self, as is my prerogative as Editor in Chief. Problems have never been ignored. To the writer of the one article I objected to, I stated my reasons which I felt more in the interests

Young Republicans Get New Helmsmen

Encouraged by the good showing of political strength by Republicans in last semester's elections, the Suffolk University Young Republican Club has set the record for a new start with a "re-organized" club for on February 21. Refreshment, Mr. Evan Doherty, special assistant to Governor John Volpe, and former state chairman of Massachusetts Young Republicans, addressed the gathering.

The Young Republican Club, under the able leadership of chairman, Matt (Mick) Mulla, and Ralph Marston, are planning many interesting and varied activities for the new year. Mr. Marston, government and economics advisor to the club, is planning a series of lectures and seminars on the 3 year anniversary of the club. The club is now in a position to expand its membership.

Suffolk Goes to Young Democrats Convention

On Sunday, December 10th, eight Suffolk University Young Democrats attended the Massachusetts Young Democrats Convention at Boston University.

After an inspiring address by the personable Kenneth P. O'Donnell, of the Executive Committee of the Democratic Party, the convention was adjourned. Following Mr. O'Donnell's talk, we elected our officers. Dennis Kevin (Kevin) was elected chairman, and Kathleen Marie (Kathy) was elected secretary. The Suffolk University Young Democrats are now in a position to expand their membership.

of the school under the circumstances. I also offered him alternatives. In another instance an article was not published because I felt that it could be best handled then and there by the President of the University. It was.

I don't know anything about students publishing articles in other college newspapers. I have never encountered anyone who felt that strongly about an article, or who I would provoke to such an act. If it is fact, the case is abominable.

Since you also bring up the Alumni this would be a good opportunity for me to mention a few things. I know all four of the people newly active in that organization. I know further that they are very much interested in the revitalizing of that organization as they were in the university itself when they were here.

I have been trying since their appointments were officially announced, through the Alumni secretary, to have each one of them submit a photograph of themselves in the university itself when they were here. I have been trying since their appointments were officially announced, through the Alumni secretary, to have each one of them submit a photograph of themselves in the university itself when they were here.

I have received other things, however: sarcastic telegrams, intrusive phone calls late in the evening at the home of friends on the pretext of "business", personal criticism passed on through friends, and other similar treatment. For a group who claims to be seeking a closer rapport between Alumni and students I think that they have taken the wrong track. I have only been approached once with a request for assistance which was not possible to fulfill in the time allowed.

In closing, I can understand your indignation and that of other students but then, too, I hope that I have given you some idea of what the JOURNAL and its staff are up against. I can only offer as a solution that those who feel strongly enough to be critical should do something about it. To this point they have not done anything. These things are easily enough corrected by the having a show of people willing to do some work. The JOURNAL is not looking for a crew of full time writers.

What could help to make the paper interesting is to have several people submit articles on subjects that interest them. They don't need an assignment from this office. If they have an idea about something and don't know how to approach it, they come to us for help. If enough articles are submitted then we can pick from the best of them and put the others on reserve should they be needed.

If people insist on criticizing, give us credit for doing the best possible job under the circumstances, but better than that, give us something more to work with; we are still eager and capable to handle the challenge.

Fraternity Row

On December 4, 1966, the Fall semester pledge class of Delta Sigma Pi washed all the desk tops within the school. Delta Sigma Pi, however, some of the fraternities, but we are a fraternity working under the best interest of Suffolk University. The brothers of Delta Sigma Pi recognize the difficulties that the school is encountering in trying to keep the new building clean. We urge all faculty and student body members to do their part in maintaining a building that we will all be proud to call our university. If any students of business or economics are interested in obtaining information about Delta Sigma Pi, we invite you to do so in our office in Room 20 of the building. The dates for the interviews of our Spring pledge class will be announced on the newspaper.

Note: Second semester freshmen are eligible for admittance.

GAMMA SIGMA SIGMA

At the beginning of the second semester Gamma Sigma Sig will sponsor a contest to pick one girl who will represent Suffolk University in Governor Magazine's "Ten Best Dressed College Girls" Contest for 1967. Watch for our posters announcing the date. Our Live and Found Department is still located in Room 20, the sorority office. Unfortunately we have more lost items than we can store, and as a result all items books, clothes, jewelry will be on sale Friday February 17. All items of clothing will be dry cleaned and sizes will be marked. As part of our program we are now offering a typing service available to all students. We are keeping our rates at a minimum of 30¢ per page. Note of SPECIAL interest to all students: we will publish a list of all unclaimed mail presently accumulated in Room 20. Any girls interested in more information about Gamma Sigma Sig are urged to attend a Gamma Sigma Sig Open House to be held the last weekend in February. Finally, Gamma Sig offers a big thanks to all those for having our sorority office painted over the Christmas holidays.

TO WHOM THE NIGHTMARE

By Donald J. Tofo

Beacon Hill, being one of the most prestigious and "rich" areas of Boston, has a great deal of prestige and substance to those fortunate enough to reside there. Almost everywhere of human being can be found proudly strutting on the red-brick sidewalks that criss-cross the stately high point. But by far the largest number of residents on Beacon Hill are the students and young people. Every fall they invade and our rooms this area so steeped in antiquity, while the year runners prepare their defenses with mixed emotions. The senior citizens, in apprehension of the lusty mob, hordes of long-haired party-seekers, and the general nightmare that has enveloped the coming of fall on Beacon Hill. Police assign thirty more men to the area in case of a possible riot or ultra-mob party, and to make sure the kids do not injure or drink on the streets. Local residents curse because the parking places will disappear amid a convoy of Mustangs and CTV's which transport the young people to the Hill. But this nightmare that flashes every Autumn is not restricted to those local residents and law-enforcement organizations -- it becomes a reality for the students as well.

College students have an infamous reputation for continually being penniless. Regardless of whether that tuition is free or reduced, they are always in need of money. It is obvious that the reason for this is lack of desire to work, or lack of employment opportunities, for both exist satisfactorily in the students and other their school or the local business. No, it is neither reason for being destitute, but rather due to those who, with a Scrooge-type grimace, juggle their pockets at the onset of fall. They realize that the time will soon be here when the "rich" college-kids will be moving in, and since it appears that the students have an endless supply of money, then the time will be right for giving the frayed, better, pockets. Breads for the digest of rat-bites seem like a looking 727 toward the infinite reaches of exorbitance. Subsequently, the coming of fall necessitates that food prices be increased several pennies, to compensate, of course, for inflation. Perhaps the only service that does not increase is the cost of electricity, for how much power is needed to provide a 100 watt bulb used not so frequently for studying? These are only a few of the manifold causes that force students to be poverty-stricken. They get fifty on loan, it takes a week in school, work perhaps twenty-five hours for a class- wage, and then must turn the "check," in bits, over to the miserly merchants and landlords who stand out their silver and green flutes like a serpent's tongue to snatch the belated coins from someone who stayed up all night studying so that he could both work the best day and pass before 1:00 on homework.

It is obvious that a multi-headed necessity of life -- to educate those committing students who do not possess the financial means to do so. In a distasteful, but realistic way, the schools themselves, therefore, there will be those who seek admission in a school for reasons other than proximity to their homes. And a school that possesses more than a few dollars in these students -- and that number is not small -- are feeding their students to these unscrupulous merchants and landlords, upon whom the student must depend for shelter and education. The student can be filled by any school with individuals who, for diverse reasons, need and or desire to live away from home while attending. But when a school is not fortunate, the nightmare of poverty is dreamed in every apartment-ward student, especially those on the Hill.

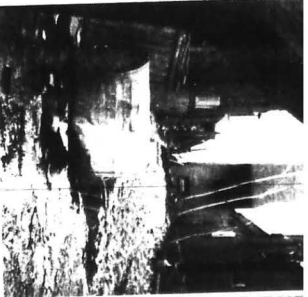

Local residents complain about the noise and commotion that thunders on weekends on the Hill. But do they ever stop and ascertain WHY these riot-venting parties are held? Or more important, WHO frequents these gatherings? Undoubtedly, they assert, it is the students who are "blowing off steam" in an orgy of bar, broads, and rock. Contrary to popular belief, the fact is that the vast majority of party-goers on Beacon Hill and the Back Bay District are from the outlying suburbs who invade these areas, crash a quiet party of a half-dozen couples, and transform it into a drunken free-for-all of fifty people. And when the police come, the two or three students who rent the apartment are charged, and possibly evicted, for having a party that they were powerless to suppress. Granted there are people who rent apartments only for parties, but they are very few in number and are usually evicted in a month or two. But these kids and the one's from out of town who visit the Hill in hopes of finding a party, a horse and a "woman," obviously, the students are being of the same genre and direction. The local residents cannot distinguish between them, so they feel that it is the students who are causing the trouble. But this is far from the truth. And when the older Boston Hillites and their families who these parties are held, the answer has to be the lack of diverse recreational and educational facilities on and around the Hill. Besides a few bars, coffee-houses, and restaurants, where else can the students go? Movies and plays are not feasible, as they do not have the money most of the time -- every cent is spent on rent and tuition. Parties held in the area are about as interesting to a college student as the "Endless Summer" is to that of the serial murderer in Boston. To enjoy, only one is open on weekends evenings, and the dances and mixers that are held at the schools on Beacon Hill are few and far between. They, it seems that a student has little else to do in a week-end except have a few friends over and hope that the gathering won't be broken up by two or three other of his "friends." If the schools had some buildings where the student might congregate on weekend nights for an old movie or television, some pool or ping-pong, some social conversation, or even somewhere to "dance up a storm," the problem of these riot parties and student life on Beacon Hill would be largely alleviated. But few on the Hill, if any, have such a facility, and the student's entertainment is left entirely up to himself, abandoned and unprotected by the school.

These conditions -- exorbitant rents and food bills, identification of students with non-students of the same age, and unregulated week-end entertainments for students, if left unchanged, will force the continuation of this nightmare to both the students and the local residents. A step in the right direction is sorely needed by the Beacon Hill colleges and schools, for it is their students who are being stereotyped as punks, trouble-makers, and beggars, while the real villains are the landlords, merchants, and non-students. If in their schools that are being downgraded, disbanded, and disregarded for the actions that their students commit on weekends. The kids cannot be held blameless -- there is little for them to do and they must have varied and stimulating activities and facilities as these are an integral part of a college career. But since there are few places to go and little money to do anything with, all they can do is sit home and have a party with several classmates, and watch their few dollars disappear into the large velvet "cash man" and "rent."

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

Students gathered for a meeting to discuss the Student Government's proposal for a new constitution. The meeting was held in the Student Center on February 2, 1967.

The Student Government has been in existence for over a decade. During this time, it has been responsible for many of the activities and programs that have made the University of South Florida a more vibrant and active campus. The Student Government has worked closely with the University Administration to improve the quality of student life and to address the needs of the student body. In the past few years, the Student Government has initiated a number of programs and projects that have had a significant impact on the campus. These include the establishment of the Student Center, the creation of the Student Government's own newspaper, and the implementation of a number of new student organizations. The Student Government has also been instrumental in the development of the University's policies on student conduct and academic standards. As the University continues to grow and expand, the Student Government will continue to play a vital role in the life of the campus. It will work to ensure that the needs of the student body are met and that the University remains a place where students can thrive and learn.

Student Government Reports

Now that the first semester has closed and the second is well underway would be an excellent opportunity to review some of the progress made to date. The word "progress" is used advisedly because it usually implies a series of steps toward some pre-determined goal. Whether the SGO student body has such a goal, it can be debated. The Student Government's goal is to do as much as possible to make of SFSU a true university in every sense of the word. In order to accomplish this, it must first determine our place within that standard. Thus, in summarizing the general work of the Government in the first semester we could best describe them in large external programs. In short, we have expanded most of our efforts in gathering information about the University and the student body to determine what their common needs and desires are. We feel now that this organization phase is nearly completed and we are now in a position to present a concrete series of activities and proposals to satisfy as many students as voluntarily possible.

Let us deal now with those programs, successfully completed in the first semester, which have been the most important to the progress made to date. The first of these is the field of external communication. The field of external communication is the field of communication between the Government and the student body. Resolution Resisting Senior Class Meeting

Resolution: The discussion engendered at a meeting concerning the time of the whole on February 2, 1967 of the Student Government of Suffolk University, the main problem encountered was a determination of exactly what jurisdiction a classcraft could be established for the determination of what a REPRESENTATIVES INTELLECTS were. In consideration of the first act, an administrative committee was appointed to study the problem within the time of the meeting. This committee is now in the process of studying the problem. It is hoped that the committee will be able to present a report to the Student Government within the next few weeks. The committee is now in the process of studying the problem. Resolution Resulting from Controversial Senior Class Meeting

Resolution:
Concerning the discussion engendered at a meeting of the Committee of the whole on February 2, 1967, of the Student Government of Suffolk University, the main problem encountered was a determination of exactly that jurisdiction a class had over its own representatives and how a standard could be established for the determination of what a REPRESENTATIVE OF THEM WERE.

In consideration of the fact that the class within the University has a separate constitution of its own, it is in no way violates Student Government rules. Since the classes are parties within the Student Government and are subject to its constitution, they are the class of a whole and entities who themselves, it is agreed that we have several interests of its own as a limited unit and for this reason, the class administrative structure should handle their own needs, should a class have a desire for an administrative structure as a supplement to the administrative constitution they that class would have up a set of its laws tailored to the Student Government. It must be emphasized that these laws would not be a replacement of a substitute change from the Student Government constitution.

To make it clear, the class of 1967 that would be the first to have the right to question all

During the first semester plans were formulated for a greatly expanded speakers program. The main impetus for these plans came as a result of the common efforts of the Faculty Committee on Lectures, chaired by Dr. Archon, the Student Committee chaired by Alexander Harvey and the Student Government. The first speaker under this program will be Dr. Victor Frankl, M.D., Ph.D., who will speak on February 21, 1967, in the Auditorium. Significant student response will insure the success of this program.

Largely as a result of careful and positive surveys of the student body by the Student Government, plans have been made for many classes in the activities program to better suit the program to the students. The first activity to result from this will be a "folk songs" concert sponsored by the sophomore class on February 17, 1967, in the Auditorium. This concert is largely due to the efforts of Donald J. Tully, secretary of the Student Government. This will be followed by a later concert with nationally known organizations to be sponsored by the Student Government in the latter part of April. Further plans now under consideration include repertory group performances, a classical ball, a series of dramatics, a series of dramatics, and a wide number of other activities. This will be in addition to the normal activities such as the SnowWeekend, the formal dinner, the all-alumni picnic, lunch-meeting, dress, and inter-collegiate football.

Main further programs are being considered and there are still many problems which must be encountered and solved. However, these problems can only be adequately met with the full cooperation of all student organizations and the student body as a whole.

1. Many of the considerations in this area have already been handled in the discussion of the first area. The most general statement which can be made is that a member representing the law student, and accepting the responsibility to that student body which must be his chief concern.

2. More specifically, there are certain definite duties and responsibilities in which every representative must sacrifice his personal time and efforts. These include:

- a. Attendance at Student Government meetings.
- b. Attendance at meetings of the Student Government.
- c. Attendance at meetings of the Student Government.
- d. Attendance at meetings of the Student Government.
- e. Attendance at meetings of the Student Government.

3. Attendance of alternate contact with the students in order to keep abreast of their interests, interests, needs and desires.

4. A single desire to act in the best interests of the student body support to the desires of that body plus own personal discretion regarding the interests of his constituents which could suffer in many cases.

Because of the complexity of the system under which we function this issue will never be resolved in specific terms. That we can only use general considerations which embrace the widest possible areas of concern. This serves as a guide for the future.

Tuition Announcement

The Board of Trustees, at a meeting held on January 4, 1967, because of increased operating costs found it necessary, if we are to continue to maintain our present standards of excellence, to vote to increase the tuition for the 1967-1968 school year. Effective with the fall semester in September, 1967 the tuition rates will be as follows:

COLLEGE:
Full time	$1000.00
Part time	35.00 per semester
LAW SCHOOL:
Day	$1100.00
Evening	$825.00
Part time	45.00 per semester

These new tuition rates increase the tuition for full-time students in both the College and Law School by $100.00 per year; for evening Law School students by $75.00 per year; and for part-time students in the College by $5.00 per semester hour.

Even with these increases, the tuition at Suffolk University still will be lower than that of other comparable private institutions in this area.

Medicine Technology Seminar Program

During the Spring Semester a series of discussions has been organized whereby the Pathologists in charge of the Suffolk University affiliated divisions of Medical Technology will discuss the aspects of the in-service training programs at their respective institutions. The purpose of this seminar program is to provide an opportunity to the pre-Medical Technology student in adjacent towns or herself with the program, its progress, and opportunities. Part of this seminar program will be conducted at the hospitals. These trips have been planned during the latter part of the semester. It is hoped that all students registered in the Medical Technology Program will attend each session.

ALL SESSIONS AT SUFFOLK UNIVERSITY HAVE BEEN PLANNED FOR THURSDAYS IN ROOM 422 FROM THE FREE PERIOD (10:00-11:00) SCHEDULE:

- February 14, 1967: Dr. Arthur E. Dow, Pathologist and Director, School of Medical Technology, North-Wales Hospital, Newton, Massachusetts.
- March 1, 1967: Dr. Stephen M. Kupper, Pathologist and Director, Henry Howard Memorial Hospital, Gardner, Massachusetts.
- April 6, 1967: Dr. John Thayer, Pathologist and Director of Laboratories and Dr. Philip Shewell, Pathologist and Director, School of Medical Technology at Lowell Hospital, Hartford, Connecticut.

Trips for visits to the hospitals will be announced at a later date. It is hoped that the visits will coincide with school holidays or Saturdays.

The final decision was that Dr. Cline's President R. Robinson had acted unconstitutionally in calling for the three-man advisory committee.

Mr. Robinson accepted the decision, issued an apology to Mr. Foster, and reaffirmed his statement that his primary interest in raising the issue had been to bring S.G. reps. to class meetings. S.G. Pres. Murray agreed on this point and issued at Monday's continuation of the meeting, a statement which included the general duties of S.G. reps. Included in this statement was the affirmation of the need of S.G. reps at such class meetings when possible (see text).

The issue was brought to a close with a note of hope. All realized the needless waste of time spent in internal squabbles and it is hoped that from his time a united effort will be forthcoming to approach more pressing University, S.G., and student problems.

GRUMBLE NOOK By Kathy Isabell

You all have comments, complaints, suggestions, and questions on or about a variety of things in Suffolk, but do you ever do anything about it other than voice these to your friends? Would you really like to have your questions answered, your comments or complaints acted upon, and your suggestions taken into consideration? Well, if you are a doer of deeds rather than merely a chronic complainer your chance to take action is now a realization. Beginning with the next issue of the Journal this space will contain a regular column entitled the "Grumblebook."

Often times, students have questions but don't know where to find an authoritative answer or don't know where to take their complaints or suggestions in order to put them to constructive use. Ideally, your complaints, comments and suggestions should be brought to your student government representatives or class officers or expressed through letters to the editor. But these means all have their hang-ups. So, in an effort to improve communications between the students themselves, their student government, and the administration, the "Grumblebook" was created.

In order to answer any questions you may have, realize a demand, or satisfy a complaint, I will go to the necessary authority and investigate it as fully as is possible. Your letter (and my reply if the letter demands one) will be printed in the "Grumblebook." Your letters may be only one sentence long or a short essay, but please try to express yourself as concisely as possible to insure enough room in the column for all the letters. You may address your letters to "Grumblebook," c/o Suffolk Journal and send it by mail, deliver it by hand to the Journal office in room 13, put it in the Journal mail box in room 20, or give it to Kathy Isabell.

This is an excellent means through which you, the students of Suffolk University, may air your views. Take it!

Qualification Exam

Applications for the March 11 and 31, and April 8, 1967 administrations of the College Qualification Test are now available at the Selective Service System local boards throughout the country.

Eligible students who intend to take this test should apply at once to the nearest Selective Service local board for an Application Card and a Bulletin of Information for the test. According to Educational Testing Service, which prepares and administers the College Qualification Test for the Selective Service system, it will be greatly to the student's advantage to file his application at once. By registering early, he stands the best chance of being assigned to the test center he has chosen. Because of the possibility that he may be assigned to any of the testing dates, it is very important that he list a center and center number for every date on which he will be available. Scores on the test will be sent to the registrants local board.

King On Theater

By Bud King

There are two kinds of provincialism. One assumes that the domestic product must be vastly superior to the imported, and the other assumes that aesthetic perfection dwells abroad. It is perhaps unfair to go to the Old Vic Company at the Shubert Theater in a mood of expectant awe, as if the final revelation might be at hand.

The practiced theater-goer would do well to lower his sights in the case of the company's "Romeo and Juliet." All of the secondary requirements are handsomely met. Ralph Hengman's decor is ripe with Italian, the actors move in graceful choreographic patterns, the details are rendered with a fine athletic abandon, and the citizens of Verona are not doddering antiques for a change.

Jane Asher's Juliet is genuinely girlish and director Robert Palmer was not fazed with the problem of giving the play's heroine a spirited youthful tone by surrounding her with a collection of creaking parts.

Again, as was the case with "Hamlet," the performance demonstrates an easy familiarity with the Shakespearean measure. Their own occasional Shakespearean actors often seem embarrassed at finding themselves in something that was not written by George S. Kaufman or John Van Druten.

BUD KING

With all their stress and strain, however, our own actors often produce a little electricity in rising to an unaccustomed challenge. The Old Vic's "Romeo and Juliet" is always pretty, invariably workman-like, and for the most part as cold as a crumpet left over from yesterday's tea.

Miss Asher affords such cause for rejoicing as there is. Her Juliet is lovely, fragile, and direct. Miss Asher is a girl in love, right enough, and her ecstasy, anguish, and terror come forth with an appealing simplicity. She does not communicate these emotions with anything approaching a profound force, and sometimes she is technically inadequate, projecting the sense of the poetry at the expense of the sound of it. In her more distraught moments she is inclined to be unintelligible. In balance, Miss Asher's Juliet is a success.

The other large roles are handled in a variety of ways - most of them dismaying. As Romeo, Gawn Grandner seems to be auditioning for Hamlet. Richard Langgreen's Tybalt is an Iago inexplicably marooned without an Othello.

For a really novel interpretation, I give you the NURSE of Lisa Bowman. Miss Bowman is a large dark lady with an abundant bosom, abundantly revealed. None of the traditional business of portraying the nurse as an old crone for Miss Bowman. She is a lusty comely camp, all winks and wiggles and mighty guffaws. Are those characters I hear clicking in the distance? Will Miss Bowman, given an encouragement, break into the "Habanera"? I find I am a traditionalist. Give me the standard nurse, aches and pains, and all.

Frank Barry does nothing out of key as Mercutio, unless you count letting the "Queen MAB" speak sink without a trace. To end on a happier note, I have absolutely no complaints to make about Margaret Wallis' Lady Capulet, Jack Roche's Friar Lawrence, Charles Green's Escalus, or any of the lesser figures.

Two Good Ones

FUNERAL IN BERLIN at the Astor Theater is a very good spy movie well in the tradition of THE SPY WHO CAME IN FROM THE COLD and THE INGRESS FILE to which it is the sequel. It is thick with plot, swiftness of action, and slick in production and direction. But unlike the James Bond series and its countless imitators, the characters are real, the action is believable, and violence, sex, and gimmicks are held to a favored minimum.

Michael Caine strikes again with a fine performance as British intelligence agent, and undercover operative, John Drake. Caine is a real human being, complete with weaknesses and emotions and is not quite over-the-top, though aim at - as a good spy must be.

The rest of the cast is all more than adequate. Oscar Homolka is especially effective, if somewhat stereotyped, as Palmer's Russian rival Col. Stok.

Ray Hamilton, who directed GOLDFINGER, brings all of that film's fast action and slickness to FUNERAL, but this time shows a good ability to handle the subject matter with seriousness and understanding. The color camera work is always skillful and displays occasional flashes of brilliance.

The screenplay by John Jones is quite complicated but not incomprehensible, thanks to the fine efforts of the actors and the director. It's British intelligence versus Communist versus Nazi versus Israeli in a reworking crop of suspense and intrigue - all set before the movie, always exciting backdrop of Berlin and its wall.

In short, if you are not sick of spy films, as you might quite justifiably be, you should enjoy FUNERAL IN BERLIN, for it is among the best of this type.

LOVES OF A BLONDE, at the Kenmore Square, and Esquire Cinema is a delicious slice of reality far delightfully spiced with real human humor. It is another indication that Czechoslovakia is truly where it's at in the new film-making of the grand style.

Briefly, it is the story of a particular sea-starved teen-aged girl living in a city where females outnumber males (i.e., she is naturally outnumbered) when the army sends a bunch of paunchy veterans to relieve their despair, and instead falls in the charms of a cute and clever young piano player. He pledges his love to her, so she goes to visit him at his home, much to the surprise of his parents. She, of course, finds she has been betrayed, wants to die, but lives on.

Three or four in precisely touching and comic scenes set LOVES OF A BLONDE right on top of the current motion picture comedy business. The best of these is the last one between the girl and the boy's parents, and the boy, himself Josef Sebanek and Milada Jezkova portray the parents to avert perfection. They are real - they are your parents and my parents - they are everyone's parents.

Miles Forman, who directed the film and collaborated in the screenplay, is definitely a name to be remembered. His handling of the actors, his cinematography, his comic sense are simply without flaw. The keynote of this film is reality. The characters, the situations, the comedy are REAL, not artificial. The actors even look like real people, not the Hollywood stars and starlets. This reality makes the film intensely believable, and as such, anyone can identify with it and receive new insight into the human side of his own life.

Every mature person, including my Uncle Art, should see and enjoy this great motion picture. Now I'd better stop, before I get too enthusiastic and lose my critical objectivity.

Now, however, you can feel quite free to take sick or have an accident almost any time at all during the school day.

In other words, Suffolk's first full-time medical department is now in operation.

The University Physician, Dr. Martin Spellman, continues to make his frequent morning visits, but his office is no longer hidden away in the upper reaches of the old building, it is now in the cheerful and well-equipped suite located in Room 11.

A full time nurse Mrs. Mary Brady administers the office for Dr. Spellman.

Now in case you're wondering how much of a disaster you can avert, here's an excellent help you can expect to receive.

The facilities consist of a consultation room, first aid room, and a treatment room. Dr. Spellman has that important feature - a first aid room.

On January 31, Paul Murphy, President of the Evening Division Student Council, announced plans to hold a reception for the new Miss Bowmans school at the Fenway Commonwealth Motor Inn, February 18, 1967. Dr. Donald Grunwald comes to Suffolk with varied experience in business, in teaching, and in administration. Professor Grunwald received the degrees of Master and Doctor of Business Administration from the Harvard Business School. The E.D.S.C. expects this reception to be a high point on its calendar of events for the spring semester. Although this affair will not be held at the Golden Dome, one should not assume the event to be dissimilar.

The weekend prior to resumption of classes at SU was spent by E.D.S.C. members and interested guests in the cadetery of the new building. The reason for this assembly was the Executive Committee Meeting of the International Association of Evening Student Councils (IAESC). Dr. Stephen Elliott, President of the New England Region of IAESC, and Vice President of IAESC, devolved the task of organizing this meeting upon Barbara McManus. Barbara's efforts were fully commensurate, in fact, with her title. Her committee of delegates from Ontario and Quebec, Canada, and from several states east of the Mississippi River. In Joseph Strain, Associate Dean in charge of the evening division, delivered a welcoming address to the delegates in which he discussed progress that has taken place during his twenty-eight year career as a student, faculty member, and administrator. Among other things, the Dean emphasized the importance of Suffolk's contribution to Boston and to the Commonwealth. At the time Suffolk first applied for a charter, a prominent educator testified that we are "one of the most progressive and progressive institutions in the state." Extrapolating, this attitude toward evening education has changed, and the student body of necessity must study in merit has proved that he can make a significant contribution to American life. Dean Strain also emphasized the importance of the role of the International Association of Evening Student Councils during a period of rapid social and technological change. A major theme of his address was the necessity of the International Association of Evening Student Councils as a major theme of his address was the necessity of the International Association of Evening Student Councils as a major theme of his address was the necessity of the International Association of Evening Student Councils.

Phi Alpha Theta Announces History Paper Contest

Phi Alpha Theta at Theta Lambda Chapter at Suffolk University has announced that it will conduct a contest open to all students of Suffolk University. The papers to be submitted may be on any historical topic or period, and there are two prizes to be awarded. Papers may be submitted which have previously been offered for course credit and the length is not a consideration. What is important is the quality of historical study and the presentation. All papers submitted will be checked by at least two members of a selection committee. The prize winning papers will be announced at the Phi Alpha Theta New England Regional Conference over the weekend of April 21-22; winning students will be guests of Theta Lambda Chapter at the Luncheon Meeting on April 22 and will be awarded book prizes. The deadline for submission of papers for the contest is March 8, 1967. Papers should be submitted through professors Norman Flood, Edward Hartmann, or Valere Sarafian of the History Department or Leon Tounsgorn or William Murray of Theta Lambda Chapter.

Political Byline JOHN BIRCH SOCIETY

Leo Arsenault: On the left. The John Birch Society is an organization which should merit fear into the hearts of every patriotic American. It is an organization of hate, hate for organization and all that it can attain on our nation. One of the favorite pastimes of every Birchite is labeling those who oppose a communist America as a "red-baiter." This is a ridiculous statement such as this is in my opinion. I will admit that General Eisenhower was not one of our greatest presidents. It is my opinion that he was one of our worst. However, there can be no light in the mind of every patriotic American that General Eisenhower is not a communist. His dedication to service to this country in two World Wars speaks for itself. When the John Birch Society is not calling General Eisenhower a communist, they are usually screaming for the impeachment of Earl Warren. Here in an American who has been elected to a half-term as a judge in the service of his country his character and ability is that of a man of the highest caliber who has been elected to the office of Justice in recent years.

with the exception of the Warren Commission report which bears his name. This report on the assassination of President Kennedy is a ridiculous farce which a majority of the American people do not and will never accept as factual. It is my opinion, however, that during the entire investigation the actions of Earl Warren are unquestionable. His honesty and integrity cannot be marred by the failures of this report. The blame can be put on the commission which was responsible for gathering and sorting the clues, facts, and information regarding the assassination. The John Birch Society is a conservative organization which threatens the security of our nation. Anyone who can accept their extreme beliefs are in my opinion, reactionaries. Robert Welch is a Hitler, but admit that Mr. Adolph Hitler was this same type of man. The John Birch Society Pro and Con. Mr. Robert Welch, the head of the John Birch Society, has described his organization as follows: King, government, responsibility, and a better world. Included also in the aims of the society is to "curb and to destroy the Communist conspiracy which threatens civilization."

SPORTS SQUARE

By Dennis Ryan

The Rams tipped off their season on December first before an attentive crowd of spectators at the Suffolk University gymnasium. The Rams, coached by head coach Art Piper, defeated the visiting Boston College team by a score of 34-14 in the opening round of the Suffolk University basketball tournament. Other schools represented were Bentley College, Curry College, and Eastern Nazarene College. With the Boston Five unable to handle the outside shooting of Frank Giancasuso and Jay Crowley, who scored thirty and twenty-seven points, respectively, the outcome of this game was never in doubt.

On Saturday evening, December third the Rams played Bentley College which had advanced to the final by defeating Curry College. In the tournament championship, the Rams of Bentley, led by head coach Art Piper, defeated Bentley by a score of fifty-nine over their first three seasons, presented a dramatic height advantage. In the first half the Rams increased back and forth with Bentley. Bentley's Art Piper and Larry Bellamy, finishing the 1st half, scored the basket. Bentley's Bill Walker and Mike Peterson gave the Rams a 14-12 advantage at the end of the first half. Bentley's Larry Bellamy, finishing the 2nd half, scored the basket. Bentley's Art Piper and Larry Bellamy, finishing the 2nd half, scored the basket. Bentley's Art Piper and Larry Bellamy, finishing the 2nd half, scored the basket.

Our congratulations to Jay Crowley and Frank Giancasuso who were named to the tournament All-Star team. Jay was further honored by being chosen as the recipient of the John F. Kennedy Memorial trophy as the "Most Valuable Player" in the tournament.

Portugal Welcomes You

In Portugal you must take part in the merry-making harvest time, mingle with the fisher-folk, when the boats return and enjoy the animation of a fish auction, taste the wine and fish soups in the taverns. You'll find almost everything at the local fair grounds, cattle, fruit, fine wares and antiques, baskets, pottery, etc.

And don't miss the popular holiday celebrations - Mimbo for the turbulent dancing, Ribatejo where the cattle men race their horses, Lisbon and the June festival beginning with a noisy fireworks display.

In Portugal cooking is considered a "fine art," so its cuisine is one of Europe's best. Some specialties worth tasting are "sardinhas Assadas" (sardines grilles) and Portuguese sardines are deliciously "Caldelada" (fisherman's stew a delectable concoction rich with succulent shellfish and other varieties fresh from the sea), and don't forget the delicate creamy Portuguese cheeses - "Queijo da Serra", "Queijo de Azeitão", "Queijo Fresco". Each province has its own dish and also a good wine to go with it.

Whatever the season or whatever your preference - whether you long to relax on the sugar-free sands of Portugal's sun-kissed beaches, or whether you are a romantic in search of the culture and charm of the Old World - you will find all your vacation dreams in Portugal.

Portugal offers the tourist a rainy climate and a warm and friendly people. It is a land of surprising contrasts - from the vast mountain ranges in the North to the gentle rolling plains of the Central and Eastern regions reaching out towards Spain, down through the South where the land suddenly becomes Moorish in flavor.

Portugal vineyards on the slopes of a sun-drenched ravine; black bulls and thoroughbred horses on several green prairies; windmills stinging in the wind which strike the leaves from the almond trees. On the crone across Portugal you will see people gathering sea-weed, shepherd to sheep-skins, tunics, processions, small donkeys trotting peacefully along the road.

Examining produce in an open-air marketplace, a job is one way to broaden one's knowledge of the ways of the Portuguese people. These girls found exploring the markets of cities around the world a relaxing change from studies undertaken last year during a semester at Chapman College's floating campus.

Alzada KnecherBecker of Knoxville, Tennessee, in the plaid dress returned from the study-travel semester to complete her senior year in English at Radcliffe College.

Jan Knippers of Lawrenceburg, Tennessee, a graduate of the University of Tennessee and a former Peace Corps volunteer, first pursued graduate studies in International Relations and returned a second semester as a teaching assistant in Spanish on the world-circling campus.

The fall semester voyage of discovery aboard the RYNDAM, for which Holland-America Line acts as general Passenger Agents, is carrying 450 other students to ports around the world as you read this.

Still another 450 will leave from Los Angeles in February for the spring 1967 semester set to transit Panama Canal and call at ports in Venezuela, Brazil, Argentina, Nigeria, Senegal, Morocco, Spain, Portugal, The Netherlands, Denmark and Great Britain, returning to New York.

Suffolk Student Inherits Family of Eleven

(From the Boston Record-American January 23, 1967)

Two bachelors have been saddled with the responsibility of playing nursemaid to 11 puppies for the last five weeks. Their devoted pet "Thunder", mother of the pups has succeeded in getting them thrown out of their... Beacon Street, Brookline, apartment.

Alan Zaplin, ... a Suffolk University student, and Allen Colton, ... a Brookline realtor, have been keeping the canines alive by bottle feeding them.

Their "Thunder" refused to feed the 11 pups so the bachelor fathers enlisted the aid of a veterinarian and were given necessary instructions on proper pup care.

Homes are being sought for the puppies and the bachelors hope to find a new home for themselves - and "Thunder".

If you're interested call 262-1524.
