'NEW LOOK' FOR REC HALL

Students Work Long Hours On 'Operation Spic'n Span'

Acting on their own volition, spurred on by the need of a cleaner Rec Hall, and despite lack of cooperation, a small, energetic group of Suffolk students executed a CLEAN-UP-PAINT-UP-FIX-UP campaign last week.

Led by George Day and associates, the face-lifting job was done after classes and in many cases into the long hours of the evening.

Necessary plans were put in to operation and an interior decorator was called in to suggest a modern color scheme. Paint, ladders, and staging made their appearance and the Rec Hall was cleaned, mopped, washed and painted.

George Day assigned volunteers to specific tasks and "Operation Spic 'N Span" was underway.

It was a tough job, that demanded sacrifices on everyone's part, but the result was well worth it," he said.

Students joined in the washing and had a great time while painting paint brushes.

"The uniforms spotted by a few seniors were a riot," Day said.

Kerchiefs, overalls, polo shirts and even turbans made an appearance during the week.

The clean-up committee followed a four point program. Main objectives were: to paint the walls a pleasant color, install draperies, make simulated windows and to put in bright, cheerful furniture and furnishings.

A plan to sell stocks in the newly-renovated Rec Hall at a nominal cost ($25 to $100) is being given careful consideration.

Dean's Prediction Proves True

The clairvoyant Dean of Suffolk University predicted S.U.'s accreditation Wednesday, Dec. 10, the day before the Accreditation Committee met.

Dean Robert J. Munce told President Burse, Registrar Goodrich, and Miss Dorothy MacNamara that he was sure Suffolk would receive its due recognition.

In an interview in his office this week, the Dean expressed his delight over the university's accreditation.

News

"I received the news Friday at 3 p.m. from President Burse. The President was at the Hotel Statler waiting for the Accrediting Association's decision."

The Dean pointed out that Suffolk was eligible for official accreditation five years ago.

"But," said the Dean, "We had to prove we could keep up our fine academic standards."

Recognition Advantages

Dean Munce maintained some of the advantages of recognition.

"Our graduates can now

NEW ENGLAND ASSOCIATION OF COLLEGES AND SECONDARY SCHOOLS ELECTS SUFFOLK TO REGIONAL MEMBERSHIP, DECEMBER 12

Accreditation officially came to Suffolk University Friday afternoon at 2:45 p.m., when the New England Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools voted membership to S.U.

The following is the official communique from the President's office concerning accreditation:

The Man Who Did It

PRES. WALTER M. BURSE

EDITORIAL

If the accreditation of Suffolk University could be attributed to one man, that man is WALTER M. BURSE, president of Suffolk University.

His efforts to see Suffolk attain its place in the academic sun have been strong, determined and courageous.

In 1948 Walter M. Burse was elected third president of Suffolk. In his acceptance speech he vowed to make Suffolk University an accredited institution "worthy of the respect of colleges throughout the country."

His vow has attained fruition. On Friday, Dec. 12, at 2:45 p.m., the news arrived — Suffolk had received accreditation. President Burse had proved himself a victorious fighter.

President Burse, in a typical gesture of friendliness, called an assembly to congratulate the faculty and student body on the Christmas gift of accreditation.

He praised the faculty members and called them, "a fine group of teachers who have done everything possible to educate Suffolk students in a warm, friendly manner."

The JOURNAL wishes to extend congratulations to President Walter M. Burse for doing a magnificent job in magnificent fashion.

His final words at the assembly were a classic worthy of remembrance by the students, past and present, of Suffolk.

"An institution goes ahead or goes back—it never stands still! We'll never go back; we can't stand still; the only place we can go is forward."

At the annual meeting of the New England Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools held at the Hotel Statler last Friday, December 12, Suffolk University was admitted membership in that Association. Suffolk's application for membership, which means accreditation for all the college departments, was first considered by the Committee on Institutions of Higher Education comprising of:

Nils Y. Wessell, Vice-President, Tufts College and Chairman of the Committee; Mrs. Charlotte Meincke, Dean, Colby Junior College; Arthur H. Hughes, Dean of Trinity College, Hartford, Conn.; President, New Haven Junior College; Edward Y. Hewett, Dean of the College of Liberal Arts, University of New Hampshire; Robert R. H. Brooks, Dean of Williams College; Roy, Gerald E. Dupont, Dean of St. Michael's College; Delmar Leighton, Dean of the College of Liberal Arts, Harvard University.

The chairman of the committee designated two inspectors who inspected the school, namely, Dean Hewett of the committee and Dean Roger S. Hamilton, Dean of the College of Business Administration, Northeastern University. They inspected the school, met with the faculty, administrative officials of the school, and, also, with the Committee on Accreditation of the Board of Trustees consisting of: Bedford A. Bristol, John Griffin, Prof. Arthur W. Hanson, Chairman, George H. Howell, and Treasurer Frank J. Donahue.

They in turn reported to the full Committee on Institutions of Higher Education which met on December 11 and that committee voted favorably in Suffolk. Their report in turn was confirmed by the Executive Committee of the New England Association. The report of the Executive Committee was presented to the members of the association at a meeting of all the delegates of the colleges, junior colleges, and secondary schools of New England, and the report of the Committee was accepted and Suffolk elected to membership. This culmination after four years of intensive work on the part of the administration, faculty, trustees and also reflects credit upon graduates of Suffolk and the splendid

THE BUGLE SOUNDED; THE CALL ANSWERED

I was about to go under water for the third time in my fruitless search for news concerning Suffolk grads, when Professor Furlife and the Sociology Club came to the rescue. They brought me safely ashore and pumped out the following news:

Father Flanagan, founder of Boytown, did not die in vain. His work goes on. The need for decent homes and proper training of unfortunate youngsters can never be over-emphasized. Our country, tomorrow, will be in the hands of the youth of today. It is most imperative that today's youth be started out on the right path, particularly those without home or family.

BOYSTOWN, MASS.

Twelve recent Suffolk grads founded a Boytown, Massachusetts, the underclass, the faculty and especially Prof. Furlife, are proud of those Suffolkites who realized this state's need of a Boytown. Information on three of the founders should serve as an inspiring inspiration to many Suffolk students interested in the field of social work.

1. RICHARD HELM, '36, in addition to his duties at Boytown, is doing graduate work at Simmons School of Social Work.

2. DICK LONG, '36, also is doing graduate study at Simmons School of Social Work.

3. FRED AMERESHADIAN, '36, is doing graduate work at Tufts.

GRADS DOING GOOD IN THE FIELD OF SOCIAL WORK

JACK BOWEN is a social worker in Lowell.

MRS. RUTH DWORSA is a social worker in Boston.

LEONARD ROSENBERG is the Head Boys Worker at Charles town Boys Club.

BOB MAHONEY '36 is personal director of Plastic Corporation of America.

BOB WEINSTEIN '36 is working with The Citizens Training Dept. at The Boston Juvenile Court. He is also doing graduate work at Simmons College.

BOB SHERMAN and WALTER ANHAGEN, '36, are employed at the Lyman Hospital and Boston General Hospital.

TED CURLEY, '36, has a good job with the denton home located on Huntington Ave. in Boston. He is also doing graduate work at the B. U. School of Social Work.

And now I present a list of other grads who have chosen different professions:

ARTHUR SILVA, '31, is now teaching in Ashford.

BOB CONNELLY, '32, is working in Attitash.

GILDA CORSO, '30, is now teaching elementary school in Malden.

HOMER SAGE, '30, is now teaching at Woburn High.

PAUL EROFFITZ, '30, is elementary school principal in Tennessee.

RONALD JACKSON, '31, is a staff member of Teachers College in Montana.

PETER GOSHIGARIAN, '30, is now teaching in Rutland, Vermont.

JOSEPH CULLINANE, Editor of the SUFFOLK JOURNAL, in '49 (and rated as one of the finest ever) is Publishing Director at WIGZTY Studios.

HENRY J. AUGER, C.J. class of '32, is now general assignment reporter for the GLOVERSVILLE MORNING HERALD, Gloverville, N. Y.

Hank was on last year's JOURNAL staff where he did a capable job of reporting throughout the year.

Enjoy your holiday in the old traditional fashion. Be of good will and bring good cheer to all.

On behalf of the SUFFOLK JOURNAL, I sincerely wish you a most happy New Year.

Dottie Mac

S. U. Honors Dottie Mac

Two hundred Suffolkites gathered at a big surprise party in honor of S.U.'s beloved mascot, Dorothy MacNamara, Dec. 5, at the Hampshire House on Beacon Hill.

"Dottie Mac" is celebrating her 26th year of service at Suffolk.

She was presented a silver chest filled with 250 silver dollars. George Day, Business Club member, presented the gift with these words:

"May the happiest days of your past be the saddest days of your future."

Opens gift

As she opened the chest, Miss "Mac" said, "I feel like a bride. I can't say much. I'm so happy. I don't know what to say except I love you all."

"Dottie Mac" was accompanied by her mother, Mary Jane MacNamara, her sister, Evelyn Riley and members of the office staff. Dottie wore a black dress set off by a corsage of white carnations.

Business Club

The party was sponsored by the Business Club and was inaugurated by Mr. Richard A. Carson, business school instructor.

Mr. Carson and Alice DeLosa, office staff member, were credited with being the two people most responsible for the success of the party.

According to Mr. Carson, the honor was planned for one of the most beloved individuals I have ever known.

Guests included representatives of the student body, faculty, administration, board of trustees, alumni and friends.

Auditorium Packed To Hear Pres. Bursc

Over one thousand jubilant students, faculty members, and administrators packed the Suffolk University auditorium Monday night, to hear the official announcement of S.U.'s accreditation.

Dean Mance, master of ceremonies, introduced President Walter M. Bursc, George Rowell, Chairman of the accreditation board of five trustees, Judge John E. Fenton, member of the college committee of the Board of Trustees, and Dean John F. X. O'Brien, of the Suffolk Law School.

Said President Bursc: "It is like to recall what I said when I became president of Suffolk four years ago. At that time I said 'I have come to Suffolk University for one purpose; that is to see that it is accredited.' One half of my promise has been kept, and the other half, I believe, is fulfilled in August."

George Rowell called Suffolk's drive for accreditation, "a long, hard struggle involving three groups — the trustees, faculty and student body."

Judge Fenton said that secretariat should have come long ago and that he was proud to be associated with "this great little college."

Dean Mance called the last few days a "turbulent and rigorous weekend," but Monday morning found the academic sun break through — a symbol of what has broken through here.

TIME WAS BIG FACTOR—GOODRICH

Registrar Donald W. Goodrich smiled in his pipe and cap. Time was the big element in getting Suffolk University the accreditation it has deserved.

The stage that reads the third time never fails certainly has proved true at Suffolk.

Time and Research

The accreditation story involved time, research and red tape.

"A comprehensive report was drawn up by the president giving the set-up at Suffolk. Faculty, students, library, administration policy and practices of the university were all included," he said.

"The change that certifies it has brought will not be a radical one, but a slow process which will continue to stress quality over quantity as in the past," Registrar Goodrich explained.

Advantages

"An outflow from the student's viewpoint it has many many advantages," he said.

One grade can now be considered for admission to famous medical and law schools throughout the country.

"The name of Suffolk will now appear on the roster of schools hundreds of miles away as an accredited institution," he joyfully added.

E. S. Army

Registrar Goodrich came to S.U. in January, 1947 after holding a lieutenant colonel's rank in the army.

"Ever since assuming my duties at Suffolk University, I have worked hard and believed in the school. This accreditation has made it a worth while and victorious fight," he said.

High Standards

Registrar Goodrich made it clear, however, that students, faculty, and administration must maintain the high standards of S.U.

"We can't afford to give down the line work of the past. This is the time to build a Suffolk worthy of the honor bestowed on her."

Waves and W.A.S.U. Have Tea and Talk

Suffolk crews went "navy" last week when they heard an interesting talk on the Navy Reserve Program for Women by WAVE Lt. Cmdr. Sullivan.

Mac Sullivan, a representative of the Wave Reserve Program, explained the many facets of Wave training and life to members of W.A.S.U., Dec. 9, in the Dean's office.

Stanley Kaylor, who attended the R.O.C.C. school at Brantledge, ME, this past summer, described a typical day in the life of an R.O.C.C. Wave.

Coffee and doughnuts were served during the most informative discussions.

Suffolk Hoopsters Edged by Gordon In Overtime, 67-62

In a thrilling, hard-fought, overtime contest at Commerce High, the Suffolk hoopsters dropped a "squeaker" to a fast of what has broken through here. 67-62, Dec. 9.

From The Fourth Estate

I'll start off by wishing everyone a Happy New Year right away—saves time and besides if you don't finish the column you get felicitations anyway.

This hallowed member of the fourth estate was embarrassed last week when he found himself locked out of the JOURNAL office without his key.

The telephone was ringing, names in the paper every issue students who had yearbook money to deposit were anxious by awaiting entrance but B.M.D. had lost his key.

Thanks to Mrs. Holland on the office switchboard the phone message was rescued and proved to be a feature story, and finally Bart Herman opened the office for the waiting crowds.

Art Rubin, JOURNAL sports editor, waded through crowds of red tape last week to qualify him for work in the Postage.

He got a reputation of $300 to cover the Dartmouth game that had to be filled out in triplicate and signed by various members of the administrative staff. He traveled up and down the stairs seeking the appropriate signatures. After a few hours a legwork he returned daunted but victorious. Ah, the tribulations of a sports editor!

PERSONAL DEPT. Congratulations are in order for Alan Cohen who moved out of the ranks of single life and into those of wedded bliss on December 21. The list at lunch to Al and Rita—two wonderful people.

Amateur Boxer Attends S. U.

Suffolk's gift to the boxing world, Ray Murphy, is becoming one of the most talked about amateur fighters in the New England states.

Recently, Ray, a heavyweight fighting in the Hub A.C. bouts held every Saturday night at the Boston Arena, knocked out a highly touted Navy Eastern Fleet Champion, in the third round of a scheduled five.

First Fight

This was only his second fight of his short career, having won his first the week before by a KO in the second round.

Before coming to Suffolk, Ray served two years in the army, where he learned boxing. He took part in many of the boxing matches put on by the camps he was assigned to.

Baby Tiger

He is managed by Charlie Goldman in a connection to Brockton's "Rocky" and is trained by Baby Tiger, a former pro boxer with over 300 bouts to his credit.

A journalism major, Ray is dubious about turning professional after graduation. Says Ray, "If I get a good deal, I'll consider it."

That's it for now, kiddies—see you next year.

O'Brien Lauds College Depts.

"I'm very happy that Suffolk has received its due recognition," said Dean F. X. O'Brien in his law school office this week.

"It has come for the first work of the undergraduate school," I saw S.U. in action as Dean O'Brien's "Business" school in 1939 and in 1944.

The Law school has applied for accreditation to the American Bar Association Council of Legal Education.

"We deserve accreditation and are hopeful of results this year." The Association meets this Autumn in Boston where it will consider Suffolk Law's accreditation.

Anderson Invited To Chem. Confab

Dr. Nelson J. Anderson, S.U. professor of chemistry and mathematics has been invited to serve on the committee of the New England Association of Chemistry Teachers, the JOURNALS learned this week.

The committee meets next summer to discuss problems of chemistry and hear reports of research in the science fields.

Dr. Anderson was notified of his appointment the day after S.U. received accreditation.

Thomas McNichols, S.U. computer, believes that the honor extended to Dr. Anderson is a direct result of S.U. accreditation.

FACULTY AND CLASS LEADERS HAPPY OVER ACCREDITATION

FACULTY MEMBERS

MR. FIORILLO: "I am quite happy about it. It certainly was a long time coming, I am more happy from the point of view that the students will benefit."

MR. COLBURN: "After being here for a number of years and having seen the university try for this honor and prestige I had some misgivings about the outcome, although I did feel optimistic. I am very pleased about the whole thing, especially for the sake of the students."

MR. RAND: "I am extremely glad I will do my utmost to please. We should have had this a long time ago. It's better late than never. It will do a lot for the future program of Suffolk."

MR. CARSON: "I am very pleased as an alumnus and as an instructor."

MR. MAHONEY: "Congratulations to President Burose and the administrative offices of the college for their continued efforts."

MR. KEANE: "I want to congratulate the administration and faculty for their efforts in acquiring this accreditation. As an alumnus and instructor I am doubly proud of the honor bestowed upon us."

FRAN STOLPER: "The accreditation of Suffolk University will serve a number of purposes. Apart from the gratification it will give to the alumni and the student body, accreditation also carries with it the grave responsibility of the continued maintenance of high scholastic standards. We now join in the 'big league' and as members thereof we must compete ourselves as we must compete ourselves in our standing caliber we must be tireless in our efforts to excel if we are to keep our place with credit to ourselves and to the collegiate society we have now joined."

DR. BUCKLEY: "The accreditation of Suffolk University, although long delayed, is welcome news. An institution that presents so many genuine features such as a tireless president, a devoted Board of Trustees, a highly competent faculty and a loyal and hard-working student body, could not long be overlooked. We always knew these things. Now that Suffolk is accredited let the world know also."

DR. HARTMANN: "Naturally I'm delighted at our achieving a long sought goal. I still feel, however, that we were eligible for membership two and even four years ago."

CLASS OFFICERS

PETER BEATRICE, President of the Freshman Class.

"Freshmen are quite pleased with the accreditation. The general feeling is that it has been long overdue. I feel that the Freshmen will carry on and further the high standards of education that earned Suffolk this recognition."

ALAN ALFORD, President of the Sophomore Class.

"I think that accreditation will boost the spirit of students in the university. This honor will necessitate high standards of scholarship, student life and enthusiasm."

3. Enrollment should increase gradually, since many prospective college students are accredited institutions.

4. The periodic investigations by the Committee will act as a good academic control to keep up our standards.

FLOYD VIEWS RED INFLUX Cites Danger Of Subversive Teachers Cautions Against Callous Witch Hunts

This is the second in a series of articles written for the JOURNAL by members of the faculty. Each month, the JOURNAL will select one professor to discuss topics in his particular field. This month our guest expert is Dr. Norman Brooks Floyd, Associate Professor of History; whose subject is "Loyalty and Freedom."

LOYALTY AND FREEDOM

Senator McCarthy tells us the State Department is riddled with Communists. A former party member says there are communist cells in certain of the New England colleges. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith tells us he believes there are communists in his own Central Intelligence Agency (he doesn't say he knows; he merely assumes; there are).

Whether or not we trust the controversial Senator or the ex-Communist, we want to do well to follow the General's reasoning. Communists and their fellow travelers work their way into positions where they can do the most damage; therefore they are already in such positions or are trying to get into them.

The Proper Steps

Realizing that we can and should take all steps proper to do so, let us not be disturbed at a view their circumvention. The key word here is "proper." In all we act irresponsible in ways not in keeping with our best traditions, we may do ourselves more harm than good. Obviously the task is not one for untrained individual citizens but for the legally constituted authorities, and these must be scrupulous in their protection of the citizen's rights, more scrupulous than some congressional committees have been in the past.

Local College Probes

THE STATE COLLEGE have an investigation of our New England Colleges, presumably by a subcommittee sent here from Washington. If so, it is to be devoutly hoped that the disloyal will be exposed and that no innocent persons will be made to suffer because others have a perverted understanding of what loyalty means.

That there is a real danger of this was indicated by Henry Steele Commager as far back as September, 1947. Writing in Harper's, he said:

"In the making is a revival of the red hysteria of the 1920's, one of the shabbiest chapters in the history of American democracy; and more than a revival—for the new crusade is designed not merely to frustrate Communism but to formulate a positive definition of loyalty as above all, conforming—the critical and suspending acceptance of America as it is—the political institutions, the social relationships, the economic practices. It rejects inquiry into the race question or socialized medicine or public housing. . . . It regards as particularly heinous any challenge to what is called the guaranteed this he true can we be sure in today's anxious world that the passions of such hot lips will prevail over the sense and reason. America as a the ideal product, perfect and complete".

Fortunately there are not many in the academic ranks who would attack their colleagues on the basis of so disturbed a view of history. But there are some just as there are some people who would denounce Commager as the here undeveloped reference to private enterprise, and thereon the danger not only to the untidy "aircraft," but to us all.

The Nonconformist

For if we must conform to satisfy those who know nothing of history or would reverse it to their own ends, how can we claim to be worthy of the country built by us? The names of such nonconformists are Sam Adams, Tom Paine, Andrew Jackson, William Lloyd Garrison, Abraham Lincoln, and countless others including many respected cranks and fanatics. You can agree with Professor Commager that it is easier to say what loyalty is not than to say what it is.

"It is not conformity. It is not passive acquiescence in the status quo. It is not preference for everything American over everything foreign. It is not ostrich-like ignorance of other countries and other institutions. It is not the indulgence in empty money—a flag salute, and oath of allegiance, a formal verbal declaration. It is not a particular version of history, a particular body of economic practices, a particular philosophy. It is a tradition, an ideal, and a principle. It is willingness to subordinate every private advantage for the larger good. It is an appreciation of the rich and diverse contributions that can come from the most varied sources. It is allegiance to the traditions that have guided our greatest statesmen and inspired our most eloquent poets—the traditions of freedom and equality, democracy, tolerance, the traditions of the higher law, of experimentation.

Free Will
As a school and colleges are open to outside attack from the right and society from the left, it might be well for us to realize that their salvation and that of freedom as well, lies not in investigations and purges necessary though they may be, but in printing to the faculties the right to search the truth as they see it, and to the students the right to seek it where they will. It is tolerance, consistency, and inimitation should be no more tolerated in the educational process than insistence on conformity in the downright dishonesty of communism. If the truth makes us free, we must be free to find it.

GOODWILL HOUR SUCCESS: CAPACITY CROWD ATTENDS Cariofiles In Contented Ecstasy Over Latest Council Innovation

By DICK and AL
Chubby, chucking Mel Cariofiles, the well-dressed waiter, saw his latest dream come true when Suffolkites stormed Room 22 for free coffee and donuts.

"The Student Council Goodwill Hour was a tremendous success," said the gallant Greek as he downed his fifth cup of coffee and chomped his fourteenth donut (or was it a cruller?).

"Suffolkites who I've never seen before," joined the party (one of them even wore a H.I. jacket).

Faculty members saw themselves away from blue books (or were they green sheets) to enjoy the Council's hospitality. It was a steady flow of people rather than a mass attack. They attended the function and conversed over coffee and doughnuts. Some exchanged citizenship.

In fact one student was pointing next month's exam in English Lit.

The dimwinker the elevator, not Mel had his busiest day of the year.

Don McQuarrie erstwhile Red as from the right—no matter how great that may be. We in the academic world know that the communist teacher, if he is clever enough, can do more harm than the reactionary, even the reactionary who subscribes to the "conformity" idea of loyalty and civility. Sometimes successfully to ruin his associates because they have other ideas.

The communist can be more damage because he is likely to have more influence on youth than the one who entered the twentieth century under protest, and more important because he has no intellectual honesty to inhibit his teaching. His values are not ours, his loyalty is not to us and he is not a free agent. He therefore has no right to claim to be free from us which he can and will not respect. Dedicated to our destruction he would be allowed no place in our educational system.

Free Will
As a school and colleges are open to outside attack from the right and society from the left, it might be well for us to realize that their salvation and that of freedom as well, lies not in investigations and purges necessary though they may be, but in printing to the faculties the right to search the truth as they see it, and to the students the right to seek it where they will. It is tolerance, consistency, and inimitation should be no more tolerated in the educational process than insistence on conformity in the downright dishonesty of communism. If the truth makes us free, we must be free to find it.

THE PAST AND THE FUTURE

December, 1952, at Suffolk is a turning point—a month which echoes the rapid conclusion of a semester and the emergence of a new year's work.

Students feel joy or sorrow as the Christmas vacation pulls into view. Those who have done a good year's work have no worries; those who have done poorly realize that the honeymoon is over—their first new year's resolution is to get on the ball, quick!

But December 1952 is more than a sum total of class work; it is a time for stock-taking and evaluation of school spirit during SEPT-DEC.

The spirit at Suffolk over the past four months has been the finest we have seen.

Witness the following:
CLUB ACTIVITIES.—The "Big Three"—Business, Debatting and Science clubs have placed school spirit at an all time high. Other clubs took their cue and immediately swung into action.

DANCES: It is a pleasure to note that 1952 has been "dance" year at Suffolk.

In October a successful Freshman Beanie dance was sponsored by the Senior class—it was a social success that did much to promote the good neighbor policy between classes.

W.A.S.U. astounded everyone by running, in late October, a Halloween Hop that provided fun and frolic for S. U. It was a social and financial triumph.

In November, the Thanksgiving dance, was a smashing win for school spirit.

On December 19 the Sophomore class sponsored a Christmas dance that was a great success.

Last but certainly not least, the "CLEAN-UP—PAINT-UP—FIX-UP" campaign which took shape in the minds of Suffolk's most active students has become a reality.

The Rec Hall story (long a topic of ridicule and scorn) is coming to a happy ending. New furniture, gleaming, newly painted walls, draperies and cheerful furnishings will make our Rec Hall a showplace where relaxation and comfort will reign.

To those who made this dream come true we owe our deepest admiration.

That's it concerning school spirit up to December 1952. The story from January '53 to June is in your hands.

A CHRISTMAS GIFT

Old St. Nick stopped in at the JOURNAL last week for a tete-tete. Although none of us could sit on his knee we did manage to tell him what S. U. needed most this Christmas.

"Santa," said a voice, "What we need is a spirit of friendship and warm feeling between the administration and students."

Another voice, very deep and profound, exclaimed, "Yes Santa can't you give us that? Maybe you could arrange to have a series of seminars between student representatives and the powers that be."

"Santa," another voice said, "Give us something that is more valuable than money or gifts. Give us the feeling that our dances, social functions, activities and clubs are appreciated by the administration."

"Yes Santa," another voice joined the chorus, "When we work hard and achieve victory in our extra-curricular affairs we like to get a pat on the back and a 'well done,' from our administrative staff."

Santa had another appointment and prepared to make exit.

He put down his pencil and placed the list of things we want most this Christmas in his pocket. With a pleasant "goodbye" and two strokes of his beard he was off.

As his reindeers carried him over the State House dome we heard him shout, "I'll try my best kids, I'll try my best."

Turkey Day Dance Is Great Success

Over 300 guests jammed the Wash Court of St. James Ball room of the Boston club Thanks-eve and danced to the seven piece band of George Graham during what Dean Muncie described "as the most successful dance I have seen in many years at Suffolk."

Senior class officers were jubilant over the response to tickets. According to Mike Paratore, senior class treasurer, the dance netted enough to double the senior treasury.

"Most important of all," said Mike, "the kids had a swell time."

Dance Committee. Mike Kares, senior class president, paid tribute to the dance and publicity committees.

"The committees did a fine job and deserve all the credit for giving Suffolk the greatest job and deserve all the credit for giving Suffolk the greatest

New Year's Message

A sincere "Happy New Year" to the Suffolk family — students, faculty, staff, and alumni. I hope that this season will bring contentment and joy to each of you. In these troubled days it is necessary for all of us to pause and try to recapture some of the holiday spirit and joy of our childhood — to bring happiness to those about us and to do our utmost to help our fellow-

PRESIDENT WALTER M. BURSE

Dean's New Year's Message

With the turmoil that exists on the earth, it seems a travesty to attempt to celebrate a true holiday spirit. But by falling back on tradition of quarter times, essential hope, and cardinal faith, I can truly wish you a Happy New Year and also the hope for a speedy return of those ways of life we cherish, in season and out.

In this reasonable thought all are included who are associated with our University: from the locker room to the science laboratories and back down to the "rec" hall. Particularly my thoughts are with our students — past and present, who are now in the armed services.

Fiorillo Boosts Combined Social

At the initial meeting of night school seniors December 9, Prof. D. Donald Fiorillo, Sen. class advisor, proposed a combined senior, night-school, day-division social hour at the day-division social hour.

"Such a get-together would promote a spirit of friendship and brotherhood between day and evening students," he said.

Mike Kares, senior class president, presided over the large gathering of night school students.

Kares asked the cooperation of the seniors in procuring ads for the yearbook and in setting up a schedule for yearbook members.

Lack Of Advertising And Senior Deposits Bogs Down Beacon

Seniors must deposit their money immediately. Yearbook staff has no '53 BEACON," said Bert Herman, business manager of the yearbook, announced last week.

The yearbook staff has exhausted every possible means of publicity and it is now imperative that all payments be in the JOURNAL office by December 18 at the latest.

Advertising. Bert said that the biggest problem to be overcome is ad writing.

The staff distributed ad forms and contracts to seniors at recent class meetings, but the return has been poor," he said.

The yearbook editors have met with a representative of Purdy studios and have already discussed layout, theme and construction of the yearbook.

"It is a pleasure to report," said Herman, "that the theme of our yearbook is unique, copy will be kept at a minimum; pictures will tell the story."

Clubs Help. He said that S.U. clubs have given aids to the yearbook as a gesture of class spirit.

"We appreciate the club contributions to aid us in our yearbook, but it will take outside advertising to put us over the top."

A few hours spent getting ads during the vacation can mean success. It is up to every senior to try his best — cooperation can mean a '53 BEACON that will be a prize winner in the annual national yearbook competition," Bert Herman said.

Additional ad forms, and information on rates may be obtained in Room 21.

Fresh New Year To Be Celebrated By Winter Festival

The freshman class will initiate its program of student activities with a "Winter Festival" at Mt. Hood, Melrose, on January 9.

The Festival will be an evening affair. Transportation will be provided to and from the scenic lodge.

Lots of Fun. Peter Beatrice, freshman class president, has announced that buses will leave from Suffolk at 6:00 p.m. and will return at 12:30 p.m.

It promises to be an evening of great fun for everyone. The facilities of the lodge are at the students' disposal," Beatrice said.

The merry-making will commence at 9:30 p.m. with a buffet luncheon for all.

A stag dance will follow. Dress of the evening will be sportswear.

Variety Show. The freshmen will be entertained with an all-star variety show featuring Al Alford, Steve John, Joanie Thibodeau and other S.U. talent. Bill Moran will serve as master of ceremonies.

Tickets at $2.00 apiece are now on sale and may be purchased from officers or any member of the freshman class.

The carnival, first of its kind at S.U., promises to be one of the most pleasant attractions of the new year.

HEARSAY FROM HANOVER

THOSE TWO (better still, WHICH TWO?) Who were the two S. U. men who gallantly crossed until the new hours of the morning to prevent their brother squadmen from getting any sleep? The two FUNSTERS sporadically burst into the sleeping quarters at the Field House with cries of "Hurry, make up, and 'Trom, the bus is here."

It seems as if the long jaunt up to New Hampshire followed by the game, and then a little sight seeing to top the day off was nowhere near a complete program for our WINKLESS TWO. Any way, the boys weren't too mad or WERE THEY? THIS SCHEMIE asks Jack Furlio. How does it feel to wake up and realize that your bed has been dragged to the middle of the room? THOSE TWO again? I don't provoke! (Footnote: Stolen from an Akim Tamiroff film.)

CAMERA CRACKERS. No, not those kind of crackers! They will avoid the issue, but ask the best slingers why the photographer had to try four times to take the squad picture. The man with the handle on his shoulder finally had to give up. S. U.'s five man click must have had their TV MAKE UP on the night of the Dartmouth game.

WHERE'S CHARLIE? A more specific sub-head. Where's Charlie's beach wagon? Coach Law, would you believe it if you were laid that some of your boys, who simply fell in love with your beach wagon, sat out until blackness of night and then went off with it to make WHOOPIE? Hello, a cue Dr. Watson. Ask A. G. and J. R.!

THIS IS COLLEGE? S. U.'s little handful of delegates at the weekend "host" to the Dartmouth area, received a thorough education in EXTRA-EXTRA-CURRICULA activities. Fraternity houses pepper the entire Dartmouth College grounds. In each student's daily pass time is an area home-like surroundings as ever possible. And how they PASS TIME! They study, lounge around, have ice cream (7), spin records, match their wits at card playing, and do just about everything else you could think of. As far as school spirit is concerned, the jam-packed turnout at the stadium was no remarkable happening to the Big Green campus.

GROWIN' FAINS? We seem to feel that what one Ram experienced the wicked morning after was caused by entirely unrelated origins. Need we enlighten on it?

NEW FRIEND

A BIG BOW (No, not bow, bow!) (I'm sorry!) The way the S. U. men were taken care of at Hanover surpasses the Big Brother care work being turned in by Mr. Forth's sociology students. On arrival, the S. U. travelling body was met by gracious and hospitable college-outsiders. We knew we were outclassed. Dartmouth knows it and so do the fans. But the fans didn't scream for a triple digit score. We thank Dartmouth fans for realizing that Suffolk fight scoring is a LITTLE SCHOOL with a BIG HEART and that our team, which looked like mere teens against their massive opponents, never gave the game away, nor did they stop trying until the final buzzer that buzzed (buzz buzz) A wicker with... nerve (Nerve?)

Dartmouth Indians Down Suffolk Basketeers, 73-49

An undermanned Suffolk players and few rosters who hooped squad, playing without the help of the four hour rule from service's of a capable big man, Boston.

launched its season, Dec. 6, at Hanover, by bowing to a strong Dartmouth Indian Team, 73 to 49.

Captain Charlie Law's boys just couldn't split the impregnable defense put up by the much larger Dartmouth squad, and were compelled to shoot from the outside most of the time.

A sell out crowd of over one thousand at the Alumni Gymnasium, watched the Big Green move into an early lead which they never relinquished. It took the Rams four minutes before they could break into the scoring column.

It was visible from the beginning that the Big Green was too much for our lads to manage. Only their keen competitive spirit kept them in the contest most of the way.

The action varied throughout the game, since the Rams played of possessive basketball, shooting only when the apples presented themselves. The plan of action used by Boggle Julian's Indians was to shoot and shoot, something the team carried out to perfection.

Red Smith, a sophomore, played one of the finest games of his college career, displaying a perfect pattern of dribbling and passing techniques, while scoring ten points. He was given a large amount of time after time from a partisan crowd.

High scorer for the Rams was Captain Jake Stahl with 12 points. He also played a fine all-around game, connecting with a number of assists, and consistently cleared the boards for the Blue and Gold. Jack Renick, out on a scoring rampage in the dying minutes of the final period and scored ten points.

Freshmen players George Malin and Bernie Weiner, made an impressive debut, and should help the team in future games. Fred Glez, captain of the Dartmouth quintet, and a probable choice for All-Ivy League honors, was high scorer for his team with 14 points.

Dartmouth Tidbits

Don't let the score fool you! The Rams played a capable game, considering that the Dartmouth quintet dwarfed them. As it was, they outran and outmaneuvered the Big Green the greater part of the game. With a little height, the Rams might have pulled an upset.

The hospitality shown us by the Dartmouth students was extraordinary. Most of the frat houses threw parties for the stork. Dappa New Year, boys

Journal Staff Caught Unaware As Big Story Breaks

News of accreditation caught the JOURNAL staff with their pencils down.

The JOURNAL had closed shop when the biggest story in its ten-year history broke last Friday.

The editors had gone home after a hectic week of last minute deadlines, secure in the thought that their paper had gone to press.

At 3 p.m., Dean Mance received the now historic telephone call from Pres. Burpee with the news of S.U.'s accreditation.

The news spread rapidly. Realizing the JOURNAL was at the printers ready for press, Thomas P. McNichols began a frantic search for Dick Dwyer and Al Cohen, JOURNAL editors.

(Unknown to the JOURNAL office, Dwyer was spending the afternoon with Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony. At 3:30 p.m., after four unsuccessful telephone calls, Mr. Carofino, student council proxy, traced Al Cohen to his place of business.

"I've never heard such wild gibberish over a telephone," chuckled Al. "I could only make out two things - 'big story' and 'accreditation'."

"Finally, Mr. Nichols told me the whole story. A rush call to our printer caught the printer a few minutes before press time."

New lay out sheets were drawn up, and two more pages were added to accommodate coverage of the accreditation story. The editors worked all day Sunday and late Monday to reconstruct the JOURNAL and still meet the deadline.

Volume 10, No. 3 of the SUFFOLK JOURNAL is the other half of this stirring saga.

By the way, what happened to the cheer leaders that were supposed to lead the team out?

Student Council Cites Fourteen Suffolks

Student Council president, Mel Carofino, has announced the selection of 14 S.U. students as the outstanding leaders of their classes.

Students picked for '33 College Leaders include from the Freshman class: Peter Beatrice and Lorraine Foley; from the Sophomore class: Alan Alford, June Robinson, and Leo Shaban; from the Junior class: Fred Kaplan, Don McQuarrie and Phil Phillips; and Kenneth Sheehan; from the Senior class: Charles Avallone, George May, Carl Bossi and Jake Stahl.

A Student Council committee of four (each class being represented) was selected by one student on the committee) made the selections on December 10.

S. U. Pucksters Bow To Tufts

A veteran Suffolk sextet, playing for the first time under their new hawks coach, Charlie Law, was trounced by a strong Tufts College team, in the inaugural game of their season, at the Lynn Arena.

Lack of replacements was the principal reason for the humiliating defeat of the Blue and Gold, since Tufts skated five lines, two for Suffolk.

Tom Quivert and Jim Freely skated well for the Rams. Lido Dumas, playing the entire game, sparked an defense.

LEGALLY SPEAKING

By BERNARD REVELSON

There has been a great deal of activity in the law school during the past month. Class officers have been elected, committees appointed and applications for the coming bar exam have been filed. The 1953 class president is Edward Doyle, a hard working ambitious young man. The vice president is a night class student. This office is left open to night class only, so that they may be adequately represented.

OTHER OFFICERS

Class treasurer is Irv Pinta, a Dorchester boy. Irv is a trust worthy young man and the class is sure he will do a fine job. Class Secretary is Thom Beebe, another hard working fellow who is certain to do a conscientious job.

As this column is going to press, the officers are already setting up a ring committee and year book committee. They have used no time in getting the law school functions operating.

BAR EXAM

A good many boys are taking this December's bar exam. Applications have been filed and the boys are busily studying their law. Good luck to you boys and may the New Year find you all attorneys.

MOOT COURT

Cases in Moot court are rapidly being accelerated so that all boys graduating in January will have completed their cases. As more cases are tried, you can notice improvement in the handling of them. The boys gain more confidence in themselves and learn by the unfortunate mistakes of others. Some of the witnesses have given the class quite a few laughs and interest is mounting daily.

This writer wishes a Happy New Year to all his readers. Any thing which may be of interest to students or graduates will be greatly appreciated. Just submit it to the JOURNAL office, and then watch for it in this column.

WHITTEMORE CARILLON

LISTEN AND YE SHALL HEAR! Yes, four times a day a 25 bell carillon rings out its joyous peal within sounding distance of Suffolk U.

Probably you are one of the many who hear and appreciate the music, but do you know where it comes from? The carillon is located on the Whittemore Associates building 16 Ashburton Place.

This 25-bell carillon is the first to be installed in any retail store in American and the first carillon in Boston. The bells were imported from Holland and have been ringing regularly from September 24, 1951 when they were dedicated.

TWO PURPOSES

The carillon installed on the front of this retail store has a two-fold purpose:

1. To suggest to all who may see its bells and hear its melody that here is something which may be added to the tower of church or school, in village or city, and which will increase the effectiveness of the service of those institutions.

2. To sing in the midst of traffic and the throngs of hurrying wayfarers a song which will lift men's spirits above the level of the moment.

The general feeling among the true carillonists is that a really fine carillon costs around $20,000 and may run up to $100,000 depending on the number and size of the bells. However, Whittemore Associates of Ashburton Place, religious supplies act as agents for the Pettit and Frisens of Holland, and can retail a carillon for about $3,500 and up. The one which adorns the front of the White more building is valued at $6,000.

An electromechanical system operates the bells. The carillon has a piano-like keyboard and can be played without special training.

FIRST CARILLON

There are now about 70 carillons in this country. The first two were installed right here in Massachusetts. The first in the Portuguese Church Our Lady of Great Voyage in Gloucester in 1822. It still rings the fishermen out to sea and signals their return to port. The second was installed at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in Cohasset, two years later in 1824.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER

The largest turret cast bell in the world is the 26-ton bourdon bell at the Riverside Church in New York. This makes the 72-bell Riverside carillon, given by John D. Rockefeller Jr. in memory of his mother, the largest in the world.

Another Rockefeller carillon, installed in the University of Chicago Chapel, also has 72 bells, but its bourdon bell is more than a ton smaller than the Riverside one.

SCIENCE CLUB TO HEAR WORLD FAMOUS SCIENTIST

Science club president, Dick Rochester, has announced that Dr. Samuel C. Collins, renowned scientist and designer of the famous Collins Cryostat, will speak in the S.U. auditorium January 8 at 8 p.m.

Prof. Collins, member of the Dept. of Mechanical Engineering at M.I.T. will speak about "Methods Used in the Production of Low Temperatures and Their Applications."

He will supplement his talk with slides and demonstrations of liquid nitrogen and liquid helium.

"Prof. Collins will direct his talk to the layman," Rochester said.

"It will be a lecture that everyone will understand and enjoy."

Dr. Collins graduated from the University of North Carolina where he received his Ph.D. in 1927.

Since that time, his contributions and experiments in the fields of low temperature research have given him world wide recognition.

His famous Cryostat is valuable in the laboratory for producing ultra-low temperatures.

"His finest contribution is his helium refrigerator that goes from room temperature to -425 F.," Dick explained.

Dr. Collins was the first man to obtain temperatures below absolute zero.

"His lecture should be one of the highlights of the new year and I know that there will be a capacity crowd in the auditorium," Dick concluded.

Varsity Club Prexy Resigns

Jim Kirios, president of the S.U. Varsity club, announced his resignation before a large turnout of interment, during the recent meeting of the club, Dec. 3.

Outside business activities would prevent him from devoting any time to the club.

Jake Stahl, co-captain of the basketball squad, was a unanimous choice to succeed Kirios. He presided over the remainder of the meeting.

Varsity Dance

The Varsity Dance, which will be held sometime in February, was the main discussion of the meeting. A dance committee headed by Burt Herman, was appointed to look into a suitable hall and band for the affair. Others on the committee are: Art Rubin, Larry Brenner, Jake Stahl, and Art Keller.

A number of sites for the dance were considered. The most prominent were, the Dorothy Quincy Suite, and the Boston Club, scene of the successful senior dance.

Saturday Dance

Mike Karas, Varsity club V.P., made a motion to hold the dance on a Saturday night, instead of the customary Friday date. The idea is still pending.

Before adjourning, President Stahl urged the members to pay their club dues promptly, and receive the newly styled membership card. The fee remains the same as in previous years.

FORMER 'JOURNAL' EDITOR IS W. B. Z. PUBLICITY MAN

On October 7, 1946, a sandy-haired, good looking fellow entered 29 Berne St. and registered as a freshman.

In June, 1950, this same person left S. U. with his sheepskin tucked under his arm. Those four years tell the success story of Joseph Cullinane, former JOURNAL editor in 1950 and now publicity director for W.B.Z. television.

Joe's magnetic personality outshone the modern appointments in his W.B.Z. office when he was interviewed last week.

Picks Suffolk

"When I came out of the service I applied for admission at Northeastern, but was told that there was a long waiting list. I decided to forget it and registered at Suffolk in early October 1946."

Joe signed up for the School of Business Administration but switched in Journalism in a few months. "Too many figures and tally sheets for me," he exclaimed.

"In my first year I submitted one story to the JOURNAL and in my sophomore year I became a reporter."

Becomes Editor

In the middle of his junior year Joe got his baptism of fire in the fourth estate.

"Before I knew what had happened, Joe Nathanson and my self found ourselves editors of the SUFFOLK JOURNAL."

From January 1949 to June 1950 the two "Joos" gave the JOURNAL their best.

"We were the first to establish an eight page JOURNAL and got 15 papers out during our editorship," he said.

Law Column

Joe was somewhat modest in recounting his accomplishments. The records show that Cullinane and Nathanson (they were called the "gold dust twins") were the inaugurators of the "Legally Speaking" column.

They also were the first to put out a 12 page Christmas issue and a 24 page in June.

"It was work, hard work, but it gave us a feeling of accomplishment and responsibility," he said.

"Our advertising was doubled and the boys on the staff did a fine job."

Joe didn't confine his talents to the JOURNAL alone. While in school he worked on the QUINCY LEADER, nights.

Daily Record

He volunteered as a copy boy on the BOSTON RECORD for three years and remained there a year after his graduation from S.U.

"I did every job you can think of when I was on the RECORD," he said. "Don't let anyone fool you it's one of the toughest jobs in the world. But it was the greatest practical education I have ever received."

Joe left the RECORD in August 1951, to work on the advertising staff of the NEWSPAPER STANDARD TIMES.

W.B.Z. Calls

"One morning I was feeling pretty low when W.B.Z. called and asked to see me. I had applied there some time ago but nothing came of it," he said.

"I tried to keep telling myself it was just another interview. On July 7, 1952, (how well I remember it) I was a member of W.B.Z."

Joe's modesty reared its head again — he was more than a member of W.B.Z., he was Publicity Director.

"I have had experience in all type of journalism from the

Eastor Life

"It's a less hectic life in the paper business. I would work Christmas, New Year's Eve, Easter and any time day or night. Now I have a schedule and time to call my own."

His duties as publicity director keep him on his toes. "I handle all stories in the papers, magazines, trade journals, etc., that have the three little letters W.B.Z. in them."

He keeps in contact with 400 in the papers in the New England area.

Publicity Glamour

"There is more glamour in this business than in the newspapers," he said.

"Of course it's an idea business, gimmicks, promotion campaigns and clever selling plans are the fodder on which it survives. If you have good ideas then it's a good business for you to get into."

A good personality is the chief requisite of a publicity job, and Joe certainly has that magic touch that earns him the contracts he must have.

As far as training for publicity and public relations in radio and TV, goes, Joe quoted the favorite saying of the fifth score: "It isn't necessary to be crazy, but it sure does help."

Family Life

When asked if he was a family man, Joe smiled his sandy hair, winked and said, "I'm still single."

"I have lots of things to do and many places to see."

It looks like we will hear more from Joe Cullinane in the future.

SOPHOMORE DANCE DECEMBER 19th IN REC HALL

The Sophomore class held a Christmas dance on December 19th in the newly renovated Rec Hall, under the direction of class president Alan Alforn.

It was a stag affair with the toughest jobs in the world. But dancing from 8:30 p.m. to 12:00 and music was provided by Sid Cullinane's orchestra.

It was the first Christmas dance at Suffolk and well attended with free refreshments and plenty of girls.

Alford believes that a Christmas Dance should be an annual affair and is already planning a budget and set for '53.

3 Noted Speakers Lecture Soc. Class

Students in Dr. Buckley's "Public Welfare" classes received a series of informative lectures by a trio of noted speakers during the past three weeks.

The initial speaker, Judge John C. Connelley of the Boston Children's Court, outlined the types of cases he deals with in his judicial duties.

Parent and Child
The judge expressed concern over the lack of responsibility that many parents maintain over their children today.

"Most of the cases that come before me are the result of the laxity of parents today," he said.

Dr. Cecelia McGovern, member of the Youth Service Board, was the second speaker to address the class.

Juvenile Delinquents
Miss McGovern spoke of her work in the Bureau which places juvenile delinquents in private homes and institutions.

The Bureau controls the three reform schools at Westboro, Shirley and Lancaster.

"The necessity of trying to understand modern youth and its problems in today's world is a demanding and basic job," she said.

Social Workers
Mr. Joseph Pedro, of the Cambridge Public Welfare Bureau brought the series of lectures to a successful close.

Paced by veteran Jake Stahl and sophomore Jack Resnick, the S.U. court warriors registered their first win of the season by trouncing Burdett College 88-34 at the West End House gym last week.

The Suffolk sensation, Resnick took matters into his own hands in the first period as he dumped 10 points through the hoop. By the final whistle, Jack tossed in 23 points all told.

From here on in, the '53 quiet breeze through.

Stahl, who failed to find his shooting eye early in the game, caught fire and scored 15 points while team-mate Art Geller flipped 12 points through the net.

As Resnick amazed the crowd with an astounding display of shooting magic, Coach Charlie Law sent in his subs to join the lists of scorers.

Once again Suffolk proved that it is one of the fastest breaking "little" clubs in college circles.

Flawless passing plus speed unlimited caught the Burdett defenses on their heels throughout the game.

When the speed zone was cleared a check of the score sheets showed that every S.U. man had scored.

He explained the duties of social workers and social supervisors in the department.

His talk was interspersed with interesting commentaries concerning types of cases that the state did not attend because they were not asked to go.

Faculty Honors President Burse

President Walter M. Burse was presented with a name-engraved brief case as a token of the faculty's appreciation for the accreditation of S.U. last week.

The gift was presented to him by Dr. Frank Buckley at the annual faculty Christmas party. In making the presentation Dr. Buckley said that President Burse has given S.U. a new era of education.

"New courses and new faculty members have been added to give S.U. a modern spirit of education," he said.

President Burse gave credit for S.U. accreditation to the co-operation of faculty and students.

"It has been a team victory with a first class team," he said. Another member of the S.U. family, Miss Dottie MacNamara, was presented a Longfellow jewel watch studded with two diamonds from the trustees, and a plaque as a token of appreciation for her 25 years of service.

President Burse said that Miss MacNamara was hired 25 years ago to address envelopes for one week, and he is still waiting for her to finish them.

MAIL BAG

As many of you know, the party given in honor of "Miss Mac" was a huge success. However, what many of you have not been aware of is the outstanding job done by Mr. Richard A. Carson in organizing and making the party a success.

His efforts up to this time have been unexcelled, and I think that a great deal of credit and recognition should be given to him for the untiring effort he put forth to insure the success of the party.

With the help of the Business Club officers, Mr. Carson was responsible for printing 2,000 letters, addressing the envelopes, printing return cards and envelopes, and many other little jobs which are part of such a huge project.

I think we owe a great deal of thanks to our teacher and friend, Mr. Carson. Our hats are off to you Mr. Carson. THANKS!

To the Editors:
The Thanksgiving dance sponsored by the Senior class was a great success, both socially and financially. Congratulations to those seniors who worked so hard to make it the success that it was.

However, as a member of W.A.S.U. I sincerely regretted that the coeds of Suffolk were not there to enjoy such a good time. Only seven girls from school attended. Considering the number of boys at Suffolk, I was surprised to learn that the girls did not attend because they were not asked to go.

Really boys, how about a little more loyalty to the coeds—at least for school affairs? Perhaps each fellow thought someone else had asked the girls, but whatever the reason — let's see more W.A.S.U. members at school affairs with Suffolk men.

Sincerely, a co-ed

GOODBYE MY FANCY BY SUFFOLK THESPIANS

The little theatre off State House Square unspooled its best looking package, 14 days before Xmas, and our puffed tabularious Shirley Hunkins.

Shirley committed thesian fancy by outshining such established stars as Anne Salley and Jean McPhee (a notable fete indeed).

Not that Anne and Jean were jealous; on the contrary they were their usually entertaining selves. It was just that Miss Hunkins has professional poise and the talent of a veteran campaigner.

As "Knox" the cynical satirical, private secretary of a glamorous congresswoman (star Anne Salley), Shirley succeeded through her part and captured the fancy of a small opening.

Facial expression was her greatest asset. Her dialogue was loose and natural. She knew what to do with her hands and eyes and there was no evidence of opening night jitters.

Shirley met experience in her corner. Once before she played the same part under the same director (Reviews' Emily Lester Mitchell). Nevertheless, it was pure talent, not experience, that made her the star of S.U.'s drama group. The fact that Shirley is easy on the eye helped a bit, too.

It was Shirley, Dottie's beautiful blonde ANNE SALLEY, played the lead and played a close second to Shirley Hunkins. Anne wins laurels in any part and is the best looking lady Suffolk has ever discovered.

SANDEE LYON surprised this with a convincing and natural performance as the sally senior of Good Hope College for girls who gets her man the night before graduation.

PHYLLIS KLEIN gained 40 years and filled about the stage in perfect old maid style. Delightful is the word.

Biggest (in more ways than one) laugh of the night was JEAN MCPHEE. She folded across the footlights as the humorous, single-minded classmate of congresswoman Knox Reed. It seems that Jean is a success in any endeavor.

Lanette are due LORRAINE FOLEY for her difficult portrayal of Ginny Merrill. By her senior year, Lorraine may be a competent amateur actor.

But aside from the girls, "Goodbye My Fancy" was not up to expectations. Considering even that it was an amateur performance, the rest of the cast fluctuated between mediocre and hopeless.

The biggest mistake of the drama club was to produce a high comedy like "Goodbye My Fancy." As a Broadway hit and a tremendous motion picture, it takes a good cast to live up to its tradition.

More specifically, the S.U. drama club could have done much better with a low comedy or variety show. However, reliable sources report that the Suffolites had little choice in their selection of a play. Had they a different subject, better leadership, and more cooperation, the same cast could have made a better showing.

'New Look' for Rec Hall

tion by the student decorators.
"We would like the students to consider the Rec Hall in the same way as their living room at home. The responsibility of seeing that it is properly cared for is up to them," George said.

An honor system will be in use and policing will be at a minimum.

Fred Colburn, Director of Student Affairs, who conferred with the students about the clean-up drive, said the workers did a wonderful job.

"Their spirit is admirable. Faculty members have been very enthusiastic over the job they accomplished," he said.

"It is a pleasure to see such active spirit at S.U."

Accreditation

record they have made in graduate schools. The committee was greatly impressed by the seriousness of the student body, their loyalty and enthusiasm. Accreditation means that all other accredited schools in the United States will give credit for work done at Suffolk should a student for any reason transfer, and, also, credit will be given for admission to graduate schools for graduate work.

In the past some of the divisions of the armed forces have restricted candidates for officers schools to those students who are graduates from or are attending accredited schools.

Many scholarship foundations are open only to graduates or students of accredited colleges or universities. Thus accreditation means that the colleges of New England have accepted Suffolk's work on a par with their own. Accreditation should inspire the entire university to work even harder in order that we may be in a position to take advantage of the many opportunities now brought to us for the first time.

I want to express my gratitude to the faculty who, with their interest with the inspectors, created a splendid impression. Suffolk had many friends from other colleges and universities in the association, and it would be unfair to single out any particular ones, but their support and interest did much to create a favorable state of mind in the committees that had the decision to make. The election of Suffolk to institutional membership in the association was a magnificent Christmas present to the university and to its students, faculty, alumni, trustees, and friends.
