Five pretty freshmen and an equally attractive junior comprise the list of finalists recently named for the "Miss Suffolk of 1957" contest. Elections to be held April 3 and 4 in the University will decide the contest. The winner will be crowned Saturday evening April 6 at the mammoth Suffolk University Coronation Dinner sponsored by the Alumni Association at the Hotel Bradford. The winner's identity will remain a secret until the night of the dance at which she will be crowned by a distinguished guest, possibly Governor Foster Furcolo.

400 Students Voted

More than 400 students voted in the primary March 6 to decide the finalists. Under ordinary Student Council procedure, five girls are chosen, but this year, nominations found two girls tying for the fifth spot. Rather than face a squarish decision to decide the fifth entry, the Miss Suffolk Executive Committee chose both coasts.

The six girls chosen from a total female enrollment of 150 include Celia Letorney, a 20-year-old two-hundred-pounder and has brown eyes. Love Ann Picardi, an 18-year-old and hopes to enter the television world upon graduation. Paula de la Flor, 18, brunette and sincerely thankful to Jeanne McCarthy, 19, and brunette Ann Picardi, 18.

For further identification purposes, listed below are brief thumbnail sketches of the finalists and how they reacted to being nominated.

Celia Letorney—200-pound freshman, a graduate of Taft High School in 1954, Celia is a Freshman Administration student majoring in Marketing. It's the third time the pretty young has been in the "Miss Suffolk Finals A Dean's List student all three years at SUU. The 20-year-old Miss Letorney is a 5'11" 130-pounder, raven hair and has brown eyes. Loves Latin American sports, and hopes to enter the television world upon graduation. Said Celia: "I am delighted with the news and sincerely thankful to those who nominated me."

Maureen Sugrue—62 Haterman St., Boston. A Journalism major, this 18-year-old blue-eyed freshman beauty is a 1956 graduate of St. Mary's High School. Frequent active in many clubs at Suffolk, including Newman and WASH. One of the "cream" clubs, talented performer. "Sugar" is a Dean's List student. She loves calypso, swimming, has light brown hair, is 5'6", 124 pounds. Enthusiastic about being nominated and also about honored at being in the company of the other finalists. was Maureen's comment.

Gala Evening Planned

The Miss Suffolk crowning will highlight the gala evening's ball which will begin with a 7:30 p.m. dinner in the Cannon Dining room with a notable guest speaker, yet to be announced and entertainment.

Dancing in the Empire Ball room will start at 8 p.m. and will continue until midnight. Jerry Davis, one of the finest line dancing young band leaders, and his orchestra will provide the music.

The date committee reports a heavy advance ticket sale for both the banquet and dance. Banquet and dance tickets are priced at $3.00, while single at $2.00. Tickets are being sold at 17 East Providence High School.

Ann Will Assist

Last year's Miss Suffolk, Anne Young, will assist in the crowning of this year's beauty. All of the 1957 nominees are registered by and appreciate brown eyes. 5'6", 128 pounds. The 18-year-old Miss said: "I'm annual Miss Suffolk contest."

OKAY 'HONEY'!

The Student Council of Suffolk University requests that in the future all girls in the school inform the Council in advance if they use nicknames which appear on their school record.

A difficulty arose prior to the Miss Suffolk contest in placing the names of certain Suffolk coeds on the ballot who preferred the name they were popularly known by in school rather than their own name.

SHOW SCHOOL SPIRIT!

By KUNI KREUTEL

Fifteen Suffolkites, accompanied by Dean and Mrs. Goodrich spent March 13 at, in and around Timberline Lodge, New Conway, N. H. for a gay ski carnival. The group left SUU day afternoon at 3:00 in ten automobiles and in 4 hours arrived at the Lodge just in time to enjoy moonlight on the snow and begin their ski weekend.

Extra features of the week-end were two flat tires on the road to the ski resort, and Kathy Whalen's sprained ankle. Neither incident marred the activities of the Winter Carnival. Good weather and skiing conditions prevailed and the snow frolicers could be seen conquering the slopes. Few participants were experts and their screams and shouts of surprise and pain echoed throughout the countryside.

COUNCIL ASKS HONOR SYSTEM

Suffolk's Student Council has submitted a resolution to the faculty which will aid in curbing cheating and set up an honor system at the school.

The Council, aware of the problem which besets many colleges throughout the country, offered two systems to the faculty: 1) an honor system and 2) a proctor system whereby any council member will aid the faculty member in proctoring exams. The latter is carried out at Tufts University.

S.U.'s Council presently has a judiciary board which handles disciplinary problems and urges the faculty to join with them in curbing this major collegiate problem.

Saponaro Iowa Bound To Defend Crown

SUFFOLKS NATIONAL COLLEGIATE POCKET BILLIARDS CHAMPION, Saponaro Joe Saponaro shows Senior Class (prev) Russ Naturo his shooting form which brought him the title last year. Little Joe is off to Iowa Thursday where he hopes to defend his title against the nation's best.

Doherty New Soph Treasurer

The Sophomore Class has elected a new class treasurer. He is William Doherty, a member of the Student Staff, Lettering Club, the Newman Club, Business Club, and chairman of the dance committee.

A March 7 election at the class meeting named Doherty the new officer replacing the incumbent treasurer Dick Ross, who failed to register for the spring semester.

Fresh Will Help

Law has kept a sharp eye on the Fresh and hopes that its standards will bolster next year's squad. Law will retain the services of Ed Smith next year. Art Miller, Edh Moore and Joe Egan return for another campaign. Paul Wherry, a left half backer and playmaker, has been dropped from the files. The Cambridge flash was held by low marks.

Baseball The Way

With the advent of spring a new target unveils itself. Suffolk's baseball team, second in attendance to basketball, begins its season shortly. Once again, fast turn Charlie Law keynotes the spring semester with an impressive record. "I haven't finished the schedule as yet," Law said, "but I think this year's team should do well against anybody."

Defends Hoopsters

I mention these facts in defense of the basketball team. The tedious and unexciting work of its coaches and players merit praise. They have attained their work with effort and they were outmanned, outscored and outworked (read basketball teams today are bought rarely do they fall together by mysterious guidance). Freshman mentor Jack Barlog is regaling the fruits of a successful campaign. Suffolk's first Fresh five chalked up an 11 to 2 record. Harvard's touted J.V. team tipped them twice and Brandeis, in a ridiculous encounter, edged them in an overtime.

The Judges overcame a five-point lead in a minute to score their victory. Barlog and his performers nearly suffered a collective heart attack in the closing minute of play. However, all recovered from the shocker and rolled on to an admirable season.

Barlog, a personal figure within their walls, heaped praise on his boys. "They all turned in a great job," commented the Rosedale grad student. "Henaghan, Hanson, Sansone, Crotty, Farrell and the rest were brilliant. They made me look good. Watch Henaghan. For sheer rebounding ability.

Billiard Champ Confident That He'll Retain Title

By DICK BOOKER

Suffolk's champion pool shooter, Joe Saponaro, Jr., files West this week in an attempt to set an unprecedented collegiate record. The talented sophomore's goal is to defend his national pocket billiards crown, won last year in Michigan, placing him at the half way mark of four NCAAA pool titles in as many tries.

Iowa City, Iowa, is the site where the East Boston lad will place his title on the line. His chief opponents, both finalists of their state elimination trials, are Paul Keleher of Iowa State University, shooting on his home green, and Mike Chismos of the University of Florida.

Champ At Towhee

Saponaro, winner in 17 of 19 competing tournaments first gained recognition before entering his previous term. At tender 12 the youthful pool shark capped top honors in the Bass Club of America Pocket Billiards Championship Junior Division.

In 1953, Joe repeated in the junior class and reached the National Pocket Billiards final before being eliminated.

Two years of local competition, including the local senior division title in 1951, the Fighting Gamester Major entered the state elimination trials which ultimately led to a berth in the championship games held in Michigan last year.

These engagements are soiled in the records. Saponaro's details shortly. Once again, fast turn Charlie Law keynotes the spring semester with an impressive record. "I haven't finished the schedule as yet," Law said, "but I think this year's team should do well against anybody."

At Best In Competition

In keen national competition the East Boston lad was at his finest. His two most respected opponents were conted 100 to 50 and 100 to 50. The one stroke a night and glowing compliment from the fact Willie McNeill, perennial billiards champion, played the smartest game I ever saw among his peers since Joe broke home.

quired at the youngest age ever and the first time in 25 years by a New Englander, are now at stake.

Feels Confident

Too much better this year, claims Saponaro. "It's not like going out there as a greenhorn. I know what to expect this year. I feel confident about defending my title and I hope to repeat last year's performance."

Saponaro studies his spare time by sharpening his pool talents and shooting golf in new sea. He occasionally breaks 100.

Joe contrasted the two stark golf or matter how good a guy hits a ball the opponent has a chance to catch up. In pool a hot streak can crack off and leave you cold, untested and beaten before you even get the cue off your shoulder.

Practices Constantly

The dirt stick handling Suffolk student rarely allows rust to set in his talented fingers. At least an hour daily still over the table (supported by a four foot grid) on Sunday.

Saponaro points out the importance attached to pool at some mid-western schools. "The University of Iowa offers credit in pool on the same basis as physical education courses," explains the leading amateur exponent of the game.

"The University of Washington has and spent several thousand on an elaborate poolroom. It contains 11 beautiful tables, a night and glowing compliment from the fact Willie McNeill, perennial billiards champion, played the smartest game I ever saw among his peers since Joe broke home.

The Celtics reached their peak, the Bruins made two thirds of their bid for top honors but our Rams hardly crawled out from underneath for a breath of fresh air. Let us not paint the lily, it was not a good semester for the varsity hoopsters.

Charlie Law's charges compiled a below 500, eight and nine mark. It was included Morris, Lowell, Nasson and a palverizing triumph over a club from nowhere, Mass., who as founded its followers by showing up for the clash. These and a few other 'never do wells' led under the limp lash of our legion.

On the dubious side of the score card, tougher opponents, Boston College, St. Anselms, Clark, Norwich, B.U., W.P.I. and Northeastern rode the battered Ram into the boards. How ever, BU was nearly tossed into an upset. Only a last minute hoop dumped an inspired Suffolk unit.

Lack Facilities

Small school athletic programs are afflicted with two handicaps: lack of extensive sport facilities and talent at tracing prop.

The idea of big game permeates schoolboy minds. Scholarships with riders' lure undecided potentials into the richer, more lucrative institutions. Physical education curriculums are, in many cases, cakewalks. Such intellectual stimulating credits as: gymnasts, which calls for three hours of aerobic exercise a week; basket weaving, a five month course which has been condensed to a 10 minute fare by ambitious students, are offered at certain plants. There are a few tough science classes but these are a minority.

Suffolk lacks an athletically followed by the nomination and contest. It is an honor to represent Suffolk. I think all students who voted for me. As for my equipment, they're my closest friends and I wish good luck to them all.

Paula de la Flor - 174 School St., Waterbury. Youngest of the group, just turned 18, pretty Paula is a 1956 graduate of Roxbury Memorial High School, is secretary of the Spanish Club and likes music, boating and boating. "I want to thank the student body for nominating me and am highly honored at being named a finalist. I'm only twenty five feet to the other finalists. Paula is Auburn-haired, brown eyes, is 5'6", 115 pounds.

Jeanne McCarthy - 178 St. Alphonsus St., Roxbury. This comely 19-year-old freshman is a graduate of Mission High School, where she was head cheerleader. Jeanne is active in the Drama Club, Newman Club, and History Club. She's treasurer of her class, is an English major and is an other Jeanne's light student. Col lects records as a tennis and likes swimming and dancing. Jeanne's favorite, brown eyes, is 5'6", 117 pounds. "Am very flattered at being nominated," says Jeanne, "and thank every one responsible for choosing me."

Ann Piaroli - 89 Revere St., Revere. A 1956 Revere High School graduate, she's one of the most active girls in the freshman class. A member of the Newman Club, the History Club, W.A.S.U., and treasurer of the Spanish Club. Jeanne's last year's partner was her husband. Hobbies include boating, dancing and reading. Brown hair and brown eyes. Ann's 5'7", 125 pounds. "I feel it a tremendous honor to be one of the Miss Suffolk finalists and express my thanks to those who made it possible," commented Miss Piaroli.

These three are the six best looking candidates for the coveted Miss Suffolk title April 26 and 18 voting will decide which five will be the queen, and the night of April 6 we'll all know. Posing a winner from this lovely contest will be a tough job, and when the winner is crowned, she'll certainly be surrounded by one of the prettiest crowds Suffolk has seen in quite awhile.

Graham Named To Revision Council

Former Representative Joseph F. Graham, Brighton Democrat, and a 1951 Suffolk Law School graduate, was recently appointed to a law revision council to handle the work of recodifying the state's general laws, a job which was previously done by a special commission. Graham was appointed as assistant to former Sen. Ralph V. Clampt (R., Springfield) who was given the top appointment. The Suffolk Law graduate is a practicing attorney and a Certified Public Accountant and served for years on the legislative committee on the judiciary.

New Vets Club Has Big Plans

By BILL REARDON
The Veterans Club of Suffolk University, a newly formed organization in the school, held its second meeting Thursday, March 28. Club President Joseph F. O'Hara, a member of the Freshman Class, headed the group and commented on a recent meeting between the representatives of the Veterans organization and the Board of Trustees of Suffolk University. This meeting included a proposal to re-examine tuition payments for men of the V.V. Plan.

O'Hara addressed a large group of veterans who were in attendance at the Tuesday afternoon meeting. He thanked the members for their support and confidence. He also mentioned a plan to make provision for Vets expelled from class who had not paid their tuition on the given date.

A membership drive and plans to strengthen the effectiveness of the organization was presented to Suffolk men, of which approximately 100 are honorably discharged veteran students. A positive statement voiced by O'Hara noted that the Veterans Club would not be a "fly-by-night" type of organization.

The official election of permanent organization officers was held prior to the meeting with the following men elected by a closed ballot: President Joseph F. O'Hara, Vice-President Carter Benjamin, Secretary John Shea, Treasurer Peter Monahan, Executive Council Norman Fortner, Norman Grady, Herb Santos, Larry Crippen and John Carmichael.

Drop The Cards, Please!

Despite an ultimatum from the Student Council earlier in the year, card-playing still continues at Suffolk. The Council has issued a further reminder to card-playing students that the game is forbidden, and those violating the order will be dealt with severely by the school authorities.

INSIDE S. U.

By TERRY GRYNIEWICZ

Soon spring fever will be catching all of us in its strong grip and studies and cares will be tossed to the breeze. Sure signs - baseball noises, Miss Suffolk contest, Alumni Dance, and Yearbook deadlines. Not to mention midterms and other unpleasant signs.

Another milestone in the Young Seniors Class Secretary's passing semester - the Mr. and Mrs. Douglass Tea was held Wednesday, February 29th. A happy date for June 20th, the most pleasant experience anyone tries to catch up on a year's happenings in the lives of other mothers.

The girls' basketball team is playing many games but not faring too well. After their winning season last year the team has slipped considerably. Even though they aren't winning, they are making many friends and spreading of Suffolk philosophy (good for public relations).

The Drama Club will put "Pete" on sometime in May. Good luck in such a difficult assignment. After the wonderful fall show they gave in their recent plays, I have no doubt that they will also a good job. This will mean a lot of work. Hope you all prosper.

participation of the evenings. Ice skating under floodlights was one time they might get away from the snow. March 28th morning's affair of many amusing incidents. Ticks to other beliefs, and the first returns produced new friendships and provided Suffolk people the opportunity to exchange college comments and papers.

The food was "fabulous" and all the trimmings, eggs and the usual morning toasts, and hot grille cakes to keep their spirits and flames together. In between meals there was plenty to nibble on and plenty of refreshments.

Those of Suffolk University needed their way homebound from early Sunday afternoon until early evening. While it was imperative for many to leave early, there were those hardy few who remained behind until the last second to enjoy the full and frantic work and bustle of the night and sports many are already making plans to return next winter because of the excitement and memorable week-end. Maybe you'll be there!

MELLACE SPEAKS AT LUNCHEON

Suffolk basketball captain Art Mellace was among the basketball captains of local college five, who spoke at the final basketball writers' luncheon at the Hotel Lenox last Monday.

Accompanied by his coach (Charlie Law, the Revere junior) pranked the fine Suffolk freshman team and predicted a bright future for Suffolk basketball as this year's varsity team was an all junior unit, and combined with next year's freshman club. Mellace thought Suffolk hoop fortunes would rise.

Drama Club To Do "Picnic"

More over Kim Novak, Ross Russell, and William Holden. Suffolk University's fast rising Drama Club, its stature boosted by four successful January presentations, is aiming for the moon in presenting "Picnic" sometime early in May.

The Club, which has the student body firmly behind its smart hits in January, decided to do the great stage and movie hit at its first meeting of the semester.

William Bondy, the Club's director, offered "Picnic" as a play that could be worked into a successful college production. The S.U. group voted unanimously in favor of tackling "Picnic."

Great Broadway Hit

William Inge's "Picnic" was a terrific hit on Broadway with Ralph Meeker and Janice Rule in the leading roles. It later became one of 1956's top movies with William Holden and Kim Novak in the lead roles.

Annie Young won the coveted role of Madge, made famous by Janice Rule and Kim Novak and newcomer George Deacon was chosen for the role of rugged Hal Carter. All-American boy, which Meeker won raves for on the stage.

Talented Kathy Flower who has been cited often for her role as "Grandma" in the January presentations, will play the role of Rosemary, the spinster school teacher, so far fully depicted by Russell Russell in the movies.

McCaffrey In Fine Role
Jack McCaffrey, another of the Club's leading performers, was selected to play the part of Howard, the bachelor. This is the role which put Arthur O'Connell in the running for an Oscar for his fine portrayal.

Two other newcomers won roles. Charlie Zaroulis and Nancy Pierce, additions this semester were cast as Bomber, the newboy, and Christine, the school teacher.

Another "meaty" role went to Maureen Squire who won the part of Millie, Madge's young sister.

Hard at Work

The Club is busy once a week with rehearsals as they rehearse each Monday from 6 to 10 p.m. Much time is put in by these young thespians and their backstage crew, which includes Norman Fortier, Don Dinneen and Paul Benedict. The last named, also a talented actor, is stage manager this semester. The business details of the club are handled by Joe Blanche and Jack McCaffrey.

The S.U. troupeurs have apparently "bitten off a lot to chew" in challenging such an assignment as "Picnic," but many feel after their successful earlier efforts, they'll do all right. And maybe even better.

Director Bondy, Club adviser Dr. Ella Murphy, and Club President Hank Colella, and the rest of the group hope so.

"F. B. I. Story" Fine Novel

By DAVE HAYWARD

Don Whitehead takes the reader through a fast moving, well-documented review of the F.B.I.'s fifty year encounter with crime including politically unscrupulous men who have from time to time infested the Government. Gangsters, spies and would be saboteurs of both World Wars are treated in his latest novel appropriately called "The F.B.I. Story."

In his foreword, the F.B.I.'s Chief "G" Max J. Edgar has yet points out that "one man did not build the reputation of the F.B.I., but one man can pull it down."

Mr. Whitehead's novel traces the F.B.I. from President Theodore Roosevelt's desire from an investigative service within the Federal Government to the present day "Bureau." Throughout the story, the philosophy, the spirit, and ideals

Jerry Davis Band For Alumni Dance

Jerry Davis and his orchestra have been selected to supply the music for the Suffolk University Alumni Dance to be held at the Hotel Bradford April 6.

BY LOU CONNELLY

The big news the herd is talking about this month is the Suffolk contest, always one of the school year's most attractive features. This year is no exception as an attractive sextet will parade in center stage the night of the big Alumni sponsored dance April 6 at the Hotel Bradford.

The year's finalists are quite an array. There's beauty, brains, and business in the six. Five of the girls made the Dean's List all are pretty can't argue that, and all take an active part in school affairs. A remarkable showing was that by the Freshman contribution to the charmed circle. Five of that class were chosen which just goes to prove the potential that this group has. The junior class offers Celia Letourney, who is in the finals for the third time, a test of Celia's popularity.

Tip The Hat

While on the "Miss S.U." subject a tip of my highly prized Adams hat must go to both the Suffolk student and the Student Council for their part in the contest. To the student body for their smart voting and large turnout to the second floor polls, and the Council for the time and labor put in counting the ballots and the wise manner in which they conducted the election.

This year's primary voting brought out more than 800 voters, more than any previous year had attracted. And for the first time in revolution, there wasn't a single written vote for Martha Monroe Christine Jorgensen or Ethel Barry more. Many students who ignored the contest in previous years or considered it a lark, are now voting conscientiously and are anxious to see the Suffolk affair as not a ritual, but a high spot of the school calendar.

Kams Respite

With basketball under the covers at Suffolk until next winter, the hopes of Suffolk fans are now with baseball.

Loung Paul White was a definite blow to Charlie Law and his Ram Five. Paul impressed this writer more than any has Keith player he has seen at Suffolk in four years, with the possible exception of Tom Jolly, who performed heartily last season, and he is also one of the most pure you'll ever want to know. If White hadn't tried schoolastically, he would have ended up captaining Suffolk.

HERDIES

The Junior Class dance at the Riverside Boat Club proved to be one of the year's tops.

Smart planning and great publicity by Jim Latime and Company had much to do with its success.

Suffolk's fearless Dramatic Club, which refuses to rest on its laurels, has taken upon itself a real challenge in doing "Picnic." Although the movie version added much more glamour and scenery to the great stage but even putting on the plays in Broadway, while it might be an assessment. We admire the club's ambition in tackling the play and hope they are as successful in this effort as they were last semester. Of course a three-act involves a lot more production, but the club has a fine director in William Bondy of Emerson and has some pretty fine talent in its group.

Annie Young, who won the role of Madge, captained by Kim Novak on the screen, will have to recover quickly from an automobile accident she suffered recently. Add Drama Club data. Keep your eye on big George Deacon, who has the male lead in the production of "Picnic" because he has dropped his baseball glove and basketball sneakers, and is now Branding with the rest of the cast.

If you want to have a "ball," you'll have to make that April 6, Alumni University, Home at the Hotel Bradford, which promises to be as big a time as last year's memorable Golden Anniversary Ball. This is one event that you should never miss, and we're not just trying to sell tickets. It will be a night to remember. Banquet, great speakers, music, entertainment, dancing, Miss Suffolk crowning, and refreshments of course. Get your dancing shoes on for this one and keep that date open on your social calendar. And with that the herd exits until next month, which leaves me just two to go until reaching the final 30.

DEAR GABBY

Junior's Dance A Big Success

By Gabriel Von Flouder
Dear Gabby: I have a real problem. I am 18 and am desperately in love with an attaché person. Although he denies this, a mutual friend keeps insisting that it is so. We've never dated, but he keeps smiling at me in class. Should I be encouraged?

NEGLICTED
Dear Neglected: Does he deny that you are desperately in love with him or he is that way over you? You fail to make your problem clear, dear. Is he attached maritally or is he engaged, or just going steady? Really, sweetheart, your letter is pretty vague. Why not drop into my office and we'll go over your problem in person over a few cocktails.

Blue Bonnet Texas
Dear Gabby: I enjoyed your column which I received in today's mail from a recent February graduate very much. I'm puzzled, however, at my friends because after reading his letter I realized how desperately he is in need of your advice for Anne Landers.

I quote from his letter "The last girl I was going with said she liked me very much, but that boys made her emotionally upset so much so that she would have to see a doctor. That is why I had to stop seeing her." I realize I might have been seeing the doctor.

I'm not a Psychology major but feel qualified after reading the current articles on psychology to conclude the girl has transferred to the regulars. As an admirer of Suffolk men, I ask Should my friend have been allowed to graduate from Suffolk so unprepared to meet the realities of life?

PUZLED FRIEND

Dear Puzzled Friend: Thanks for your compliment, thanks for reading the column way down in Texas. I believe you have unjustifiably concluded that the young lady is frustrated as many other factors may be involved. As to your friend's Suffolk career, he may have studied psychology at SU, but it's doubtful if he was prepped for future trials and tribulations with women.

Dear Gabby: I am what they call a "friendly freshman" and have a crush on a member of Suffolk's basketball team that can't be suppressed. I've played up to this athlete all through the basketball season and he hasn't given me so much as a look. When he does talk to me only after I address him, all he does is boast what a great shooter he is on the basketball court. Despite his egotism I am mad about him. What can I do?

FRIENDLY FRESHMAN

Dear Friendly Freshman: If you're really interested in Cousy, why not play his game and tell him he is great. If he doesn't show any interest then cheer up, the basketball season is coming.

Suffolk's Junior Class threw one of the year's most successful school dances March 8 at the Riverside Beach Club when more than 250 persons turned out despite a heavy rain to enjoy a fine night of entertainment.

Class president Jim Lalime eloquently called the dance a huge success both financially and socially and the class treasury is now in a healthy state. The class sorted over $200 on the affair.

One of the most helpful features of the dance which might help future class dances, was the appearance of students from other classes at Suffolk not merely the Junior class.

Dancing ran from 8 to 1 a.m. and ample refreshments were on sale as class representatives were kept busy all night at the drink stand and ticket table.

Lalime and the class decided on the Beach Club for the site as it is conveniently located for students from all surrounding communities.

Alumni and other friends of Suffolk are asked to continue sending contributions to this column. We hope the newly activated "Outside S.U." will prove interesting and informative.

A navy carrier has been chosen by Lt. James McGrath, who is frustrated as an admirer of Suffolk men, I ask Should my friend have been allowed to graduate from Suffolk so unprepared to meet the realities of life?

PUZLED FRIEND

Dear Puzzled Friend: Thanks for your compliment, thanks for reading the column way down in Texas. I believe you have unjustifiably concluded that the young lady is frustrated as many other factors may be involved. As to your friend's Suffolk career, he may have studied psychology at SU, but it's doubtful if he was prepped for future trials and tribulations with women.

Dear Gabby: I am what they call a "friendly freshman" and have a crush on a member of Suffolk's basketball team that can't be suppressed. I've played up to this athlete all through the basketball season and he hasn't given me so much as a look. When he does talk to me only after I address him, all he does is boast what a great shooter he is on the basketball court. Despite his egotism I am mad about him. What can I do?

FRIENDLY FRESHMAN

Dear Friendly Freshman: If you're really interested in Cousy, why not play his game and tell him he is great. If he doesn't show any interest then cheer up, the basketball season is coming.

Montville N. Y. Summers again will find him at Salisbury Beach doing theatrical chores. Lou Kaufman is with the Providence Journal and Ray Murphy is with the Connecticut N. H. Daily Eagle. Ed Cousen, performing his M.D.C. pro-wrestling on horseback recently is not a spill. All patches up down, performing his M.D.C. profession still looking rugged and healthy despite his recent near tragic airplane accident.

The electric razor is the greatest invention since the electric shaver. "This one sounds like a shaver, too," John Kantaros is still a man with the Archer Game Co.

Dr. David Caviness will marry Mary T. Elliot on July 13 in Everett. Dave is public information officer at Suffolk Field in Pensacola, Fla.

Lovable Miss Mar will serve her boys and girls. You'll find Ed Stack at W. T. Grant's Law office, state management supervisor.

Former S.U. Professor Ben and Rubenstein now a law professor at Brockton Law School. Dave Ben and Dick Conroy are both working in advertising. Paul Roth is currently personnel director in Hofstra College in Hempstead, Long Island.

Conroy now in his second year with I.B.M. Phil Phillips appointed General Manager of the Mann Development Corp. Jack Bush Benson is publisher of the Bedford Mass. Times. Paul Bonfield is growing with Schyama. He is now on a division level in the purchasing department.

April 6th is the day the Suffolk Alumni Student Festival. Here's your chance to renew old friendships and see you there at the Bradford.

of course every student teacher is aware that this is "Map Week." There must be more than meets the eye in that implicit phrase. "I shall be doing." Dear Gabby is becoming a national "backquarter" in afternoon laboring, regardless of the company. Comment on a tall blond and not so tall blonde. "You do look so nice together," "mum-drum-dum," "Panda," the glorious theme of Spring. Just get away from you, there's a lamb in the Armenian Club.

Is it true that the Misses K and S are Honorary Daisies? "but of evolution" [I'd like to offer a golden "dwell on that of 1948 Bookers" local girl?]

Bigg Hudson was in town last month but then so am I. Several words have been over worked around the camp. Additional Greek words have been patented synonyms. Therapeutics will replace fabrications or transmutations. More than enough will scratch too much, and fairly is now late in the select circle of Helen's "Spurred away."

"Saragatino" appears to have invaded the back-story with loud and prolonged eruptions. I'm afraid long if up in the file. It's not too soon though. I'll tell you. Let's hope Mr. Squarino "speakers" that talk and title. By the way, he's only in the Army Reserve.

Overcoming. Paul Roth is a continually being shot-down. Fortunately the library is open a limited time every day. Long Island. It's nice to see you, there's after Mr. Holland.

Seems to me these days are even here on Boston Hill. You can't find a moment of silence. I received the only other day. "What friendly freshman and savage show were not are the talk of the Boston spaghetti houses with their capers." Friends say they are as late they forget to get their bill half the time. "Cupate with comment. You just can't escape spies, can you? The only problem is, who wrote me the
