Business Alumni Elects Officers

The Business Alumni Club held their last meeting of the year April 22 at the Glass Room of the Hotel Bradford, at which new officers were elected as the outline for next year's operations were presented.

There were 35 former members of the Business school present who enjoyed a talk by Mr. David Arnold, assistant to the Vice President of American Research and Development Corporation of Boston. The topic of Mr. Arnold's talk was "Venture Capital" and was followed by a question and answer period in which many of today's business problems were discussed.

Elected as officers for the year 1954-1955 were Jack McCarthy, '48, President; George Murphy, '51, Vice President; Walter Denton and Romeo Vachon, both of the Class of 1953 will share secretarial duties. Treasurer is last year's Business club proxy, Stan "The Man" Becker.

Any student interested in joining this Alumni group please contact either Dean Mance or Miss Mac Dues are $3.00 per year.

Civic Leader Selected As Commencement Speaker

Former Undergrad Lab Instructors Making Good

If anyone should happen to peek into the Biology Lab on some Wednesday afternoon, he would be met by a tall, likable chap whose name is Michael Morahan. Mike is typical of the many students who have taken part in the Undergraduate Lab Instructors Program, which is open to top students in the Chemistry, Physics and Biology departments.

The Chemistry assistant this year is Ed Roach, who can most always be found surrounded by a wide variety of test tubes and vials.

Science Grad
Any loud crash heard in the building can be attributed to Paul Taylor attempting to prove some principle of Physics to a not always receptive Freshman class lab.

Many former S.U. students who participated in the Undergraduate Lab Instructors Program, have done well for themselves.

For example, Dick Rochester, '53, is working on a research project in Washington on a government grant; Ray White, '53, is a research assistant at the University of Illinois; Jack Wise is working for his Ph.D. at Harvard on a government grant; Norman Saliba is doing research work for Ionics, Inc. in Cambridge; Robert McAndrew is a physicist at Waltham Watch; George Robinson is teaching Science in North Conway, N.H.; Mr. Arthur West, of the S.U. Biology department, also participated in the program during his undergraduate days.

of New Hampshire, D.C.L. from New England College; MS from Lowell Textile Institute and LLB from Marlboro College. He held also an Honorary Professorship at Lowell Textile Institute.

Whittemore was former President of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railway, and of the Federal Reserve Bank in Boston. He was President of the Brown Company in Berlin, New Hampshire until 1950, when he became Chairman of the Board of that company.

He is a trustee of innumerable organizations and business establishments as well as of Boston University, Augustus St. Gaudens Memorial, Kimball Union Academy, Pembroke Acad.

LAURENCE F. WHITTEMORE
Suffolk University announces that Hon. Laurence F. Whittemore, nationally known industrial active leader will be Commencement speaker at the Commencement Exercises to be held in Tremont Temple Tuesday afternoon, June 15th.

In addition, Mr. Whittemore is to be awarded an Honorary Degree from Suffolk University as Doctor of Commercial Science. In announcing the selection of Mr. Whittemore as speaker and as recipient of the Honorary Degree, President Walter M. Barse said, "Suffolk University is especially fortunate in its selection of Mr. Whittemore as speaker this year and we feel honored in being permitted to honor a man who has done so much for New England and for the nation."

Whittemore was graduated from Pembroke Academy and holds Honorary Degree as follows: MA from Dartmouth College; LL.D. from the University

The election of Letorney was viewed in many quarters as a reward for his unflinching efforts as this year's Treasurer. Letorney has proven to all concerned that he is capable of maintaining the high position and traditions established by the retiring executive, Phil Iuliano.

Bob Moschella, a newcomer to the political game, has shown a definite interest to aid in the presentation of the club's endeavors. Rosemary and Theresa are well known and are regarded as top-notchers. Marie Beatrice has done a fine job.

"Miss Suffolk"

ANNE SALLEY, pretty Junior who was chosen "Miss Suffolk" by the student body in the annual Popularity poll "Miss Suffolk" resigned over the Annual Singing Dance at the Hotel Shelton Hotel. The remaining four finalists served "Miss Suffolk's Court" They were: Joan Miskiewicz, Annie Young, Jeanette Anlow and Loraine Foley. "Miss Suffolk" was credited by Senator John F. Dowers of Boston.

Newman Club Elects Officers

In what past observers regard as a very deliberate election Joe Letorney, '56 was elected President of the Newman Club for the coming year. Bob Moschella, '57, was chosen Veep. Also chosen were Rosemary Holub and Theresa Grynczewicz to share the secretarial duties and Marie Beatrice, the perennial holder of the purse strings, will manage the finances.

THERE'LL BE SOME CHANGES MADE

This popular Eddie Fisher song is in tune with the athletic program at Suffolk for 1954-55. Athletic Director Charley Law has announced that Suffolk University has been accepted for membership into the National Collegiate Athletic Association. Suffolk is now eligible for all N.C.A.A. competition and tournament play.

The door is now open for scheduling the better colleges in New England. Tentatively scheduled for next year's basketball team are the following opponents: St. Anselm's M.T., Lowell Teachers, Lowell Tech, Brandeis and Worcester Tech. Coach Law was pleased with the hoopsters this year, stating that it was the best ball club he's coached since coming to Suffolk. He had special praise for Jack Resnick, candidate for Little All American honors and runner up in high scoring for '53-'54 with an average of 44 and Ed Benham, freshman sensation who hit consistently for fifteen points a game.

With admittance to the N.C.A.A. the opportunity for individual participation in such sports as track and field events, boxing and swimming presents itself. This type of competition should fit into the athletic program of an innumerable college where the classes are designed to give students free afternoons, enabling the opportunity for part time employment.

These students are busy and haven't time to participate in highly organized sports such as basketball, baseball, and hockey. The cost of such an individual program is negligible; the only equipment needed being sweat pants and jerseys.

It is universally agreed that participation in athletics helps mold a healthy well adjusted individual, who not only reads about the ideals of good sportsmanship, but actively practiced them. The larger a university's athletic program the more young men it can encompass. Therefore it seems to me that the administration should help create a more far-reaching athletic program.

In the past Suffolk has had far too many potential stars walking the corridors and then running off to work without ever having the opportunity to participate in intercollegiate athletics. Last year Nick Lambruse won the New England Middleweight Boxing Title for inter-collegiate competition. There is no reason in the world why athletes such as Nick Lambruse should not have a little more encouragement from administration and faculty members alike, with a combined university effort, and an additional expense, Suffolk could expand its athletic program.

Recently while watching a team at practice I came across a peculiar and somewhat embarrassing situation. The fielders were taking batting practice, each taking a few swings. One fielder in particular, whether too intent on hitting the ball or otherwise ignoring the coach, refused to step out of the batter's box and give his teammates a chance to bat. This immediately put the coach on a spot. Here was a good ball player who was needed to increase a victory, however the cardinal rule of good sportsmanship. The coach yelled at the top of his voice for the batter to give someone else a chance. At this, the batter let his bat fly in a rage and stomped away. The coach told me to take off his uniform, that he was through for the day. The other teammates complained to the coach that the player was needed if they were going to win. The coach replied that there is a certain character-building value to athletes associated with the basic ideals of sports and that he would rather lose a ball game than not have his players live up to these ideals. Thus we can see the moral value of athletics. I'm told the ball player in question is currently back at his old position and is much the wiser.

'Journal' Polls Students On Life With H-Bomb

by RAY MURPHY

The increase in the sales of Bibles recently is directly attributed to the selling of the hydrogen bomb, according to an official of the Bible Institute of America. Concern for the new anti city weapon was evidenced at the annual U.S. Chamber of Commerce meeting in Washington as proposals for coping with the devastating effects headed a busy agenda. The all-out "alert" in Boston is seen as another reflection of frayed hydrogen nerves.

There is no doubt that the new weapon has lent a ponderous forbidding quality to diplomatic negotiations where hard feelings at a parley could lead to world destruction. It affects all from the third grader who is taught to hide under his desk when he sees a blinding white flash in the sky to the Milwaukee Millionaire with his plane ready to take him off to Canada.

We such a problem it is normal that college students should have some thought on the effects of the awesome power of the new nuclear weapon. The Journal poll question thus was: How do you feel the H-bomb will effect our daily life and the country's future?

Some Retort

The feeling in the main was troubled though most felt that a solution would be reached. Most of those asked were prepared to answer showing that they have at least given it some thought beforehand. There were a few who would not answer at all, feeling that the subject was beyond intellectual "dangerous" or as one person put it "something I just do not think about."

Those that did answer had generally negative attitude concerning the efficacy of the United States' foreign ministers or its foreign policy. One of those interviewed vent as far as to call them "politicians and not diplomats."

Angelo Parmelee, Junior, The H-bomb will be disastrous to civilization as we know it and it should be the least of retaliation causes tension. We have to have a wiser foreign policy and more career diplomats instead of the poor statesmen we now have.

Joseph Mitterita, Bostonian Manager, "We have to depend on competent public servants which we lack because of the Eisenhower purge and reign of suspicion affecting faithful servants. We are left at the mercy of petty politicians. If these are not remedied soon, God knows what these fools will do." James Dalton, senior and president of chess club, "It adds to tensions of daily life which are already strained. We shouldn't develop any more powerful bombs and should hold this one as a retaliatory instrument." A coed questioned, thought that only a return to morals would save the world from atomic destruction, while another:

The banners, posters, pictures, and campaign jingles are coming down; the results are in. Dick Hasset's is the new president of the class of '55. Hasset polled 425 votes over Ed Crossen in the annual May class officers and Student Council elections, held recently.

The senior class vice president post was won by Leo Shohan, who edged Bob Crossen 36-31.

Pete Beatrice ran unopposed for the junior class presidency. This makes a perfect record of three years in a row that Beatrice has been given the reigns.

Treasurer of the senior class is Sid Solomon, who beat Don Colson by votes, 43-35.

Pretty Anne Salley, Miss Suffolk of 1954, is secretary of the senior class; she ran unopposed.

Pat Brown Wins

Shohan is the new president of the Student Council.

Popular Pat Brown won the final Student Council seat representing the senior class; she was voted secretary of the Student Council.

John Iselin, a freshman, is the treasurer of the Student Council. Other class of '57 representatives on the Council are John Coleman and William McNeil.

Norm King, Vin Melborough and Vel Hovian will represent next year's junior class on the Council.

The battle for the senior class presidency was expected to be much closer, but Ed Crossen missed by a wide margin.

Steve Jabs won the class of '56 vice-presidency over Shirley Hunkins 21-11.

Marie Beatrice ran unopposed for the treasurer post.

Officers of the class of '57 are John Duquette, unopposed president; George Shuter, unopposed vice-president; Theresa Groszkoewer, treasurer; and Annie Young, secretary.

Anne Salley, Marie Whalen and Anne Young, the three assembly victors ran unopposed. Bill Waxman, current president of the junior class, needed only one more vote to be Leo Shohan for the third Council seat. Shohan collected 38 votes; Waxman had 37.

At the polls, Shohan passed a numerous personal letter to next year's seniors. In it he stated that he would honestly attempt to get for the students 114 a jumping table (24 a television set (34 a cleaney Bow Hall (16 promenade for 84 students to park on Temple Street. Shohan's efforts paid off, he won two jobs, vice-president of the senior class and president of the Student Council.

AND ANOTHER YEAR IS ENDED

Only yesterday it seems we began this school term. Only yesterday—it was—when the members of the senior class dreamed of the most important day, far off and it seem then, perhaps, in their life—GRADUATION. And now it comes—and soon it shall be gone.

You roll back the years and you remember. You recollect your days as a freshman, sophomore, junior and then senior. You recall the fun you had and the cramming for exams. You wonder if you will pass and by some strange miracle you do. And then go around boasting that you made the Dean's List—correction—that you would have made the Dean's List if only. But why talk about the past—especially if you can't invoke your fifth amendment?

But the records are there. They inform you that somehow you made the grade. You are up for graduation. "Oh Suffolk, how I'll miss thee!" is the class theme and then you wait—the graduate. Anxious, excited, you may be, but in years to come you will look upon your college days at Suffolk as the happiest days of your life.

You made the grade, you soon will graduate and what then? You then realize that graduation is merely a milestone you must cross over to greater achievement—a means to an end. Difficulties in college will be blessings in contrast to the indifference of life itself. You are now on your own—no parents to guide you, no instructors to direct you. You prepare yourself to meet the challenge and with firm determination to win you set out. And you do win where others may have failed. You were properly trained to meet any challenge life may offer and to emerge victoriously. In years to come though not fully now, you will praise Suffolk and with full realization why.

This column, this issue, the final publication of the year, is, as it has always been in the past, dedicated to the members of the senior class. It is fully intended to give you a general idea of what many of the grade plans to do following graduation. Some may be planning to run for mayor, governor or even president of the U. S. who knows? So what do you say. "Let's find out!"

John Bacon, might have planned to run for an office and if he were he didn't run quite fast enough. The draft board caught him before he could start. "There is nothing like noon ood-army chow."

Jack Klayman, on the other hand just can't seem to leave. There is something about Suffolk, Jack anticipates returning to Suffolk next year for his Master's degree in Education. Good luck, Jack.

Tom Meeck, who doesn't know him? Dean's List, student for mer President of the Business club, the Student Council and what have you, will halt his ambition for a while (law school) for a stretch in the Air Force.

Donald Translein will be entering Simmons School of Social Work. His interest—Psychiatric social work.

Edward McClure's interests lie in the field of education. He anticipates teaching next year or going for his Masters degree in education.

John Iortzo, at the present remains undecided as to what exactly he will do. He has a variety of capabilities and undoubtedly can qualify himself for any career he may decide to choose.

Sandra Lugin, my oh my, how we forget. Guess what the young lady has on her mind? She will enter the Navy as a commissioned officer. (Join the Navy and see the world!)

Art Higley says he hasn't any definite objective in mind but next year he may consider graduate work in psychology.

John Clark has quite a few irons in the fire but seriously maintains "Time will tell."

Ken Sherman is deciding whether he should teach biology and coach baseball or continue on to a grad school, or, perhaps, if possible a combination of the three.

Allen Seifert will again be seen on the corridors of Suffolk. He will be seeking his Master's degree in Education.

Ssi Irtano, However, I do hope I can obtain some type of employment in personnel.

Irene O'Leary will be existing on the Pacific. Where's she headed for? You tell me. She doesn't know herself.

Warren Brown, well that's me. When I saw my name upon the graduation list, I actually fainted and now I lie in wait hoping that they don't decide to recheck my records until after June 15th, 1954. Graduation day, of course. And then if they want me, I'll be some where in the foreign legion. Seriously speaking, I do someday plan to teach or enter the field of Social work.

"Farewell!"

And now I bring to a close this column. It seems odd and strangely so I feel to know this will be my last column here. Surely I'll miss preparing it and I do hope it has been enjoyed by all.

Now, in behalf of the senior class I say, "Farewell, dear Suffolk, to a time well spent, as another year is ended."

Letters To Editor

Dear Editor:

This year, as in other years, the school crowneta queen. This is a worthy enough project I suppose, in keeping with our age which busily confers titles which have no real intrinsic value. They are ways of recognition in a society where too often the individual is reduced to a lost entity in a sea of conformity. Though queen crowning is as intricate as buying at the moon it serves some purpose and I am not, therefore, against it.

What does irritate me is the title conferred on the latest queen. She was called "Miss Suffolk of 1954." This is palpably untrue. She is not Miss Suffolk.

Let's face it: When one mentions Suffolk the outside immediate thinks of the law school. Our dear governor, who is trained not to make blunders that might lose him votes, addressed a university crowd as "future lawyers." John Poggan, another politician, crowning the queen at a dance blundered when he said "I now crown you Miss Suffolk Law."

There is a good reason for this, to be sure. Most of the prominent men leaving this school go out the law school doors. They have made the name and yet the law students now studying get no credit for a Miss Suffolk. Why are not the law student allowed a vote in the election of the school queen? This is election without all the members getting a franchise and is undemocratic.

The law school has been deprived of their rights long enough and they deserve a vote. Our forefathers fought for the same principle when they stormed the ramparts of Bunker Hill, crying, "No taxation without representation."

If the university does not want to be besieged by a crowd of aroused law students I would recommend that they take steps to alleviate the dreadful injustice and give the vote back to the law students, or else change the name of the queen to "Miss Suffolk But Not the Law School."

George Day,
law school freshman

Dear Editor:

Last month a letter was published depicting the low period of study time. Since then a petition signed by 30 of the students in the school was turned in.

As I was responsible for the petition and personally observed the interest shown by the students in the abolition of the violating free periods I strongly feel that it should not be allowed to die. The students need more class room time and less free time. I again strongly suggest that the substitution of student wishes be stopped. Cut the free periods in half; they are unnecessary and harmful! Get the students back to the class room!

Norman Bligh,
class of '56

Salute To Ramettes

The Ramettes, Suffolk University's female entry in the basketball wars, have recently completed their schedule while compiling their best record in years.

The fast breaking sextet paced by high scoring trio of Pat Brown, Anne Salley and Rosemar Holub showed to all opponents that this team has certainly found themselves in intercollegiate competition, and have gained the respect of all the teams that have met them on the court.

The other members of the starting team consisted of Beverlee Johnson, Marie Whalen, and Barbara Tamashunas; these damsels played wonderful defensive ball, which is the fundamental principle of all good sports.

Marie Beatrice, Shirley Hunkins, Marie Frassica, Irene O'Leary and Joan Krau complete the squad. These girls saw considerable action and did much to enhance the court, as they paraded in their uniforms and kept the air filled with cheers to spur their mates to victory.

We predict great things in the Ramettes' future and ask the student body to support this team. With a cheer and a purpose, the Queens can go on to greater heights.

Outlook Good For S. U.

Suffolk, long aware of the need for education, is the first university in traditionally cultural New England to found an evening college. At the College of Liberal Arts, a student is able to earn a bachelor's degree entirely through evening study. This is a typical example of Suffolk's pride in recognizing the student of moderate means.

The cost does not reflect the quality of an education; it is the graduates who represent the school. Suffolk graduates have attained success in all their fields, and future graduates can look to the Alumni with confidence.

Suffolk will remain the school for students of moderate means. With the rising tuition costs in most educational institutions, especially local schools, Suffolk holds to its belief that a good education need not be expensive.

As the stature of its graduates is growing, so too is the stature of Suffolk growing. The increasingly large number of graduates shows that the outlook for our Alma Mater is high indeed.

It has been brought to our attention that our style of writing in this column is considered cute and coy. It has to be written so obsequious how could we get away with saying what we think, without people realizing we're insulting them. We could be candid, but we have enough enemies already. It is only for the unwary, the innocents, we state the facts.

THE BEACONS has not gone to press yet. The Senior Class may expect their yearbooks to arrive some weeks after graduation. Rumor has it that Ray Murphy will leave Suffolk at the end of this semester. Norman Bligh intends to go to Duke.

Grpse Dept.: Why was the Student Council constitution changed to permit council members to hold class offices? It is our firm belief that, so capable as Mr. Dick Hassett and Mr. E. Shohan are, it is unfair to the Class of '54 to have these two young men placed in a position of virtual dictatorship.

The fact suddenly penetrates my thick skull this my last column this year, and as I must say goodbye to the folks who made me laugh: to the hypochondriacs who made me angry; to a large mass who become complex individuals if and when you took the trouble to know them. Anchors away, Sandee Lydon. A riddle, Dave Caccivio. Vive valquer, Tom Higgins. Gougho, Vinnie Antok. Spynara, George Levine. Aloha, Jim Milpoff. Au Revoir, Peri and Don Traunstein. Adio, Tony Oliveri, and to those whose names I didn't mention. Farewell, fare very well.

Memories: will we ever forget the records we cut; the games we did not win, the debates we listened to on Senator Joe Jazz. Men's Clubs and Women; the jokes no one laughed at; the books we sat up all night to read; the parties nobody left; the play that was never performed; the coffee we were too busy to drink; the shows we went to see; the songs that were sung off key and the deadlines we didn't make.

Senior Prom Big Success

Beautiful Spry Cliff Inn, in Marblehead, was the scene of a final social event at Suffolk University for many students—the Senior prom.

The dance was called one of the finest ever held by an S.U. group and it was more wonderful, far being the class of '54's final ball.

Dress was white dinner jacket, plain ties and cummerbunds—the girls wore pastels and dainty trills.

Dean and Mrs. Munce were in attendance.

Muscle was by Jerry Bernard and his orchestra. Spry Cliff overlooks the sea, and offers a picturesque view of the surf breaking up against the sea wall.

The school colors and gay flowers were in abundance everywhere.

Dinner was a choice of steak or lobster.
