TELLS OF GRUELING FUTURE FOR YOUNG NOVELISTS NOW

In a radio interview last Saturday, Mr. Thomas Savage, author of "Lena Hansen," predicted a dim future for budding novel writers. The interview was presented as a special feature of the Suffolk Radio Show over station WYOM.

"Young writers," said Savage, "face a much more difficult period than they realize. The pressure of the times is perhaps the greatest determining factor."

Mr. Savage's first point contributing to a successful writer is, as he states it, "freedom from financial worry." The sharp rise in the cost of living may, in fact, wipe out the free-lance writer as we know him today.

A talented young writer should have some other visible means of support so as to have comparative freedom financially. Only then may he consider himself "free to write." This is especially the case when that person is married.

Present plans for the Suffolk University Show call for keeping the program on the air through the month of June. The staff for the program comprises Norman Ruby, producer; Warren Miro, assistant producer; Gerald D. Noonan, news editor and associate producer; James Ross, chief announcer and associate producer; John Clancy, interview and continuity editor; Joseph Valcourt, next interview and continuity editor; Henry Manning.

Appointments

Lawrence J. Quirk, Journal Feature Editor, who will be graduated from Suffolk with an A.B. degree this month, has been appointed to a graduate assistantship in the Department of English. He will continue his present connection with the Boston Record-American.

James Wells, I.A. Senior, has been appointed to the Student Council by Carroll Sheehan, President of the senior class.

Mr. Coburn, who will be graduated in January, Wells has been active in the Philosophy Club and recently played an important role in the Dramatic Workshop Play, "Charlie's Aunt."

"Red Strip" Gag Rapped By Blake As Cruel Hoax

William J. Blake, manager of the Boston Regional Office of the Veterans Administration, today warned veterans and local residents to be on the watch for the cigarette package top hoax which has been perpetrated in some sections of the country.

Briefly, the "gag," which is a cruel one resulting in the disillusionment of some unfortunate person, is that by collecting some

1200 PACK STATLER BALLROOM AT HOLIDAY TURKEY DANCE

Several hundred couples swayed to the music of Freddy Guerra and his band at the Third Annual Thanksgiving Dance in the Imperial Ballroom of the Hotel Statler, on Friday evening, November 26th.

Arrangements for the affair were under the direction of Mort Feinberg, president of the Social Club, aided by a large and enthusiastic corps of workers. Tickets sold at $2.00 a couple.

One of the highlights of the affair was the announcement of the Chase Election results during the evening. Several dance contests were held and prizes were given the lucky couples.

All present agreed it was one of the best Suffolk shindies ever.

Prof. Edgar L. DeForest, Director of Student Affairs, declared this week that over 800 social cards have been given out since the first of the year. A student may gain admission to 4 events with this card, he said.

FIRST STATE ENTRY IN U. S. MEET

By RICHARD POWERS

Basketball is more than a collegiate pastime for one of Suffolk's hoop stars—it's a family affair!

Dick Doyle, pennant-sized spark plug of the Suffolk basketball squad, is also a member on one of the most unique teams in the country. Dick plays left guard for the Doyle Dodgers from Salem and the team is made up of all Doyles. Nine brothers comprise the team—nine, count 'em—Joe, Jack, Jim, Dick, David, Peter, Phillip, Louis and Tommy.

Besides having almost two complete teams in the family, the Doyles also boast three loyal cheer leaders in their three sisters, Mary, Ann and Ellen. The girls would much rather be on the team, but their coach, J. Leo McCarthy of Salem, wants to give them a few more years' seasoning.

During the Christmas holidays the Doyles went to Wilson, N. C., to represent Massachusetts in the National Family Basketball Tournament. They had their collective hearts set on bringing back the title, as they were the first team from the Bay State to enter and they had been practicing for this trip for two months.

In the opening game of the tournament, Dec. 21, the Doyles defeated the Dalquints of Illinois, but in their next game they lost a close contest to the Conrads of North Carolina.

Kirwin a Natural for Lead in New Play

Star George D. Kirwin, recently selected by Director George D. Kirwin to play the presentation of "The Man Who Came to Dinner," said in an interview over a cup of coffee:

"This new play to be attempted by the Workshop will be the greatest success since the Workshop started in 1946, not only because I'm playing the lead but because the play is a natural for a college cast and audience."

Since coming to Suffolk as a speech teacher, Mr. Kirwin has directed and made successes out of three plays. His first, "Passion or Life in New York," was

MOVIE SLANTS

Volpone, is an excellently done French film version of the famous old Ben Jonson play starring Harry Bair and Louis Jouvet as the miserly Venetian merchant and his wily attendant, Mosca.

There is humor here, biting satire, lively characterization, and the feeling that the picture was a labor of love on the part of its producers. It has that certain touch that goes to make a real movie. A touch that seems to be an almost exclusive foreign monopoly these days. There is that shrewd highlighting of situations that smooth-flowing continuity and subtle directorial touch that sets, too, have an authentic look.

Bair and Jouvet play the principal roles with the sure aplomb of seasoned artists, the supporting cast is uniformly excellent, and even the bit-players and extras seem to have gotten into the spirit of the thing, so naturally do they fit into the group scene.

The plot concerns an acquisitive, Venetian merchant whose passion for gold is his only positive characteristic. He inventively contrives for his own diabolical amusement, a scheme by which he will dupe a number of likewise gold-crazy neighbors into believing that he is dying and that he is open to suggestibility proceed to bombard the "dying" Volpone with protestations of affection, neighborly concern, gifts of money, golden trinkets, even throwing in their wares for good measure.

His associate confidant, Mosca, however, eventually outgrows his master when Volpone, thinking to put the finishing touches to his plan, instructs him to declare him dead and announce himself as his heir. Volpone having named him in his "will," Mosca is then coolly proceeds to tell the unsuspecting merchant that he is now legally dead and had better make a quick exit from Venice which, all the water in the canals notwithstanding, is now too hot to hold him. The film ends at this point.

A final announcement (thrown in, no doubt, to keep American censors happy) explains that according to a subsequent report, Volpone recovered his identity and both he and Mosca were given long jail sentences for their breaches of justice. However this may be, the fact, for all their low cunning, were such a lively and intelligent pair, that it is to be hoped that they eventually received whatever passed for parades in the sixteenth century.

Drama - American family complete with skeletons in the closets, when a famous author, lecturer, man-of-affairs, falls on in front of their house, breaks the hip, and is confined to a wheelchair for a long period. Sheridan White, side, the "man," absolutely disrupts the household, runs up exorbitant telephone bills, fills the cellar with penguins and the kitchen with cockroaches.

Love and insanity run wild while Sheridan White's remains calmly bored. He remains an opponent of the daughter of the family with a law agitator persuades the son to run away on a tramp steamer to further his photographic talents, and tries to break up a romance between his secretary and the local newspaperman.

Personalities of the stage, screen, and radio are continually naming in and out, leaving extraneous girls to clutter up the once-serene domestic.

"The Man Who Came to Dinner" promises to be greater even than the Workshop success, "Charley's Aunt."

Sixteen more still remained unfilled, and the Dramatic Workshop's president, Bob Stedman, urges anyone who would like to have a part in the play to see Mr. Krwin in his office or attend the next meeting of the Dramatic Workshop.

As if the play were cast by the students who have taken his course, the leading role, that of Sheridan White, will be played by George D. Krwin of the Suffolk faculty. Mr. Krwin will also be the director assisted by Betty Jackson.

The tentative dates for the play will be around the first of March. Because the first play of the year was so well received by the students of Suffolk, "The Man Who Came to Dinner" will stay for dinner for three nights.

Vets - Somehow managed to identify the veteran and correct the stated condition.

VA is presently trying to overcome another difficulty that veterans in this area are running into with increasing frequency. It occurs all too often during the attempt of many of our veterans to obtain a suitable home for themselves and their families. Although we realize that few in a position to think of buying a home, we are passing on this information to be filed for future reference—or to be passed on to a veteran friend who may be looking for a home.

Briefly, the story is this. Finding a home that appeals to him, the veteran indicates his intention to buy, and applies for an appraisal by VA under the GI Loan program. In the meantime, he is asked for, or offers, a deposit on the home, pending the final transfer of the property. In many cases, VA fails to appraise the property for the asking price, therefore, the deal is off—at least as far as the GI Loan is concerned. At this point the veteran goes to the seller to get his deposit back and instead gets that old "so sorry" business. In such an event, the seller has no legal recourse. However, he CAN protect himself.

right from the beginning by insuring, when a deposit is called for, that a simple agreement be drawn up between him and the Suffolk faculty. Mr. Krwin, seller, stating in a few lines that in the event he is unable for any reason to obtain the loan, the deposit will be refunded to him. Such an agreement is a parties sign, and any reluctance on the part of the seller to sign a deposit would soon be corrected in any court of law.

Orchids to Vic and Mike. The reason? Can't afford buying flowers OUBSELVES. Hear that after WE leave, the Vic and Mike columns will be taken over by Who Mase, a sophomore in the College of Business Administration. Advertisements are finally pouring into the Journal. Understand this is caused by H&T's new tax plan. At the next meeting of the student Council the group will take under advisement the consideration of a Junior to install blinker lights at floor landings. It is estimated that the 2000 Suffolk students who climb an average of five flights of stairs daily are responsible for keeping American shoe factories operating six minutes each year. 1949 not only represents the centennial of the gold tree of 1849 but also the 25th anniversary of Vic and Mike's debut into the world.

WHO'S FRIENDLY?
Hollywood has informed US they are considering purchase of OUR western saga, "Ricky Mountain Gun." The title, however is the title. They ask, "Would YOU consider the substitution title supplied by a Suffolk University dean? Called LIST IN THE DUST!"

When the telephone in the Journal office rang, Helen, our personal and publicist/relations secretary answered it. The voice at the other end said, "Now look" . . . Said Helen, "What do you think this is a television set?"

THE ORACLE
Eoinshridu a good friend of Vic and Mike says: "I want to be a lawyer. They're the only people who can find parking space in Beacon Hill. (The bill with that say an L.A. senator.) (2) Between a woman's "yes" and "no," there is not room for a pin to go! (Something tells Eoinshridu plagiarized that bill. . .) Helen walked into the Journal office the other day with a black velvet dress cut to fit. Not only did she look like a shellfish bucks but also this is a quote from some emperors in economics, "the best thing capitalism ever has produced in the past 10 decades."

(4) In the International Relations Club the consensus is that a change should be made in the song title of "A Ship Boat to China." It is their opinion that it become "Who wants to Visit, Ching Now?" (5) Isn't this a rotten column? I think so. Vic and Mike should be replaced, removed, and redrafted. Anyone who pushes either, or both, of them out of an upper story window will have my blessing.

(signed) Eoinshridu
NO KIDDING!
(Ed. note: Eoinshridu is no longer considered a friend of Vic and Mike. WE believe he is a jerk. This is, of course, without reservation. We hope, however, this will not cause Eoinshridu pain!)
According to a merchandising survey conducted here at Suffolk, the following facts have come to light, the average male owns 9 shirts, 76 ties, 3 pairs of socks, 8 of underwear, 10 pajama tops, one bottom (in case of fire); does not own a 1940 Cadillac convertible, has traveled extensively to and from his draft board, and reads, among other maps, "Life," "Liberty," and "The Pursuit of Happiness."

WHO'S A SKUNK?
Have you a suggestion on the nick-name of the Suffolk athletic team? Va have? Excellent. Send it in! But please, no more 48 inclosures. . . WE have a name. . . An 'g'wan. You really want to hear it? . . . It ain't. . . Well, okay. . . WE call them the Suffolk Studebakers. Studebaker, broken down gives "stude" and "baker." "Stude" because they're students, and "baker" because they're always hot. A suggestion please, throw the column in the furnace and the stench will dissipate rapidly.

Nearly 150 beginning freshmen and advanced students will be admitted to Suffolk at the beginning of the second semester in February.

Bay State Disabled Vets

Pensions For Wounds

William J. Blake, manager of the Boston Regional Office of the Veterans Administration, today revealed that during the month of August, Bay State physicians, working with the VA on a fee basis examined 1022 veterans at a cost of $11,586, and treated 3521 veterans at a cost of $38,459.

Manager Blake pointed out that the fee-basis physicians examine and treat veterans with service-connected disabilities who are not able to be examined or treated at a VA out-patient clinic because of distance or time factors involved.

"However," Blake stressed, "a veteran with a service-connected disability cannot be treated by a fee-basis physician without first receiving authorization from the VA."

New VA Listing
For War Claims;
Disability - Pension

War periods used by the veterans administration in determining whether or not a veteran is entitled to pension or compensation for service during one of war were listed today by William J. Blake, manager of the Boston VA Regional office, as follows:

- World War I—December 31, 1918 to November 11, 1918; or to April 11, 1919 if the veteran served in Russia.
- Spanish-American War—April 21, 1898 to August 12, 1898.
- Boxer Rebellion—June 20, 1900 to May 12, 1901.
- Philippine Insurrection—August 13, 1898 to July 4, 1902; or to July 15, 1903 for service in Moro Province.
- Indian Wars—January 1, 1817 to December 31, 1898.
- Civil War—April 12, 1861 to April 12, 1865.

Blake stressed that the above dates are not necessarily binding, as other factors are sometimes involved before final determination of "wartime" or "peacetime" service can be made.

THE MOVEMENT TO AMERICANIZE THE IMMIGRANT by Edward G. Hartmann
New York: Columbia University Press, 1948, 225 pp.

The story of fusion within the melting pot that was (and is) America during the opening years of this century has been carefully depicted by Dr. Edward G. Hartmann, Suffolk's director of libraries, in his recently published book, "The Movement to Americanize the Immigrant."

The work is particularly interesting for once again we find ourselves challenged by immigrants—this time Displaced Persons. Although the character of immigration has changed its nature remains the same. By evaluating the present movement as contrasted to the past we may avoid needless error.

Dr. Hartmann, formerly a combat historian with the 90th Infantry division, traces the early movement through the activities of the North American Civic League, the action of state governments, of industry and federal agencies. A large portion of the book is devoted to the effects of the first World War on Americanization.

The book is written in an easy, even manner and is well footnoted. Students of the movement may look with profit to the full bibliographical listing. For the curious reader the chapter on the red strip provides a wheel chair, or some device usually associated with it, will be more than interesting. Dr. Hartmann points out that no such awards have been offered for collections of cigarette tin in arousing American public package tops.

Bernadine County Hailed by All Students As Sincere and 'Real Kind of Person' With a Broad Outlook on Humanity

By LARRY QUIRK

Bernadine County, Suffolk's friendly recorder and administrative supervisor, claims that her extensive experience in dealing with all kinds of people while working as civilian personnel supervisor at Camp Myles Standish in Taunton, has stood her in good stead.

"You gain a wonderful understanding of people in a position like that," she says. "Working with a variety of types, fitting each applicant into a suitable niche, aids one's understanding of human nature, gives you a broader outlook."

"I dealt with people in a variety of occupations, from trackmen to toll-drawer administrators to enumerate the problems that arise, the individual differences in people's outlook. But my job taught me one thing—to respect every person's opinion, though I might not necessarily agree with it."

Miss Conaty took her A.B. in 1937 from Elm College in Chicago, majoring in English and Math. There followed various personnel positions and in 1942 she returned to her alma mater in public life, music, the theater, art and education. The program recently, a summary of intercollegiate news of the week and a transcription of the music department of the show's expansion, commends with the record news that Station WYOM is being affiliated with the Union Broadcasting System, which includes some 25 member stations extending throughout the New England Area.

As part of a general expansion program Station WYOM is planning to move from its present location in Brookline to more centrally located quarters in downtown Boston. This move will involve increased studio facilities including the use of a large auditorium with an audience capacity of several thousand persons from which live programs will be broadcast. The director of the Boston Catholic Theater, and Thomas Savage in addition to featuring an interview with some outstanding of the War Department, where she remained until 1947, serving for a time at the Army Base in South Boston, as well as at Camp Myles Standish. She came to Suffolk in February, 1948.

Though her official title here is that of recorder, she has numerous administrative duties. "I like my job here," she says, "not only for its pleasant and stimulating associations, but because it has so much variety and flexibility of functions. Some new problem arises every day, and I can honestly say that I am never bored with what I am doing."

She has an honest respect for the majority of Suffolk students, whom she classifies as hard working, sincere and determined to get the most out of their education, and she is always ready to extend a helping hand when individual class schedules must be adjusted to suit a student's working hours.

Needless to say, her personal efficiency and spirit of cooperation have won her many friends at Suffolk.

May Publication For "20 Derne" Say Mag Editors

"With the deadline for submitting material for the coming issue of the Creative Writing Club's publication "20 Derne" passed and the editorial board passed under with manuscripts from which they will make selections, "20 Derne" promises to be bigger and better than ever before.

When queried as to the merits of the manuscripts submitted for this issue as compared to last, Duncan Warren, student chairman of the editorial board, said: "Based on what we have seen able to read thus far this issue of '20 Derne' will be tops."

Warren and the two other student members of the editorial board, Lawrence Quirk and Homer Sage, along with Faculty Advisors Thomas Savage and Dr. William Van Lennep are now sorting, arranging and making overall preparations for the final selections.

"Our job on the editorial board is interesting but very difficult," Warren explains. "The quality of the stories and poems we are considering makes it extremely difficult to consider rejections. We hope we won't offend anyone, but our job is to take the best and that is just what we intend to do."

Based on the opinions expressed by all who read and criticized the previous issue, this coming publication will have to be "top" to be even as good. As Thomas Savage, author of "Lona Hanson" said, appealing of the May issue, "This is without doubt superior to any college or university publication of its kind I have ever seen."

The patent office in Washington has recently disclosed that an invention has been registered there which will revolutionize the art of playing pinball machines. The contrivance contains, among other things, four spring-driven motors, two timing devices, three hydraulic hoists, and a radarscope. It boasts the name "Pin-ball Players' Pulsating Prestigator."

All the springs having been wound by turning the individual keys necessary, the player stands the invention upon its durable luminous tripod and attaches each of the three hoists to the underside of the pin-ball machine. From then on he releases the balls and the "gimmie" does the rest. The radarscope follows each ball as it travels down the incline, and when it becomes necessary to tilt the machine to the left, the right-hand hoist fires. The same principle applies to the left-hand hoist, and the center hoist is used when a change of slope becomes desirable. Attached to the invention is a long arm-like structure which periodically pounds on top of the pin-ball machine. All actions are automatic, the player need do nothing but watch.

Kirwin

acclaimed by the students during the fall semester of last year. In the spring semester he followed the melodrama with Eugene O'Neill's Pulitzer prize-winning tragedy, "Beyond The Horizon," starring Marguerite Hemmer and George Ingraham.

President Walter M. Buzs, having been newly elected the president of the University, was in the audience of "Beyond The Horizon," and he was enormously gratified with the fine work of the cast and members of the Workshop in the difficult presentation of the play.

"Charlie's Aunt," the sure-fire comedy presented this year, was the greatest house-filling success of the Workshop, when on the second night of the play it became necessary to seat customers in the balcony. This is an indication of the growing interest of the student body in the work of the dramatic group which can only be accounted for by the work of their director, George Kirwin.

After the two night run in the Auditorium it was requested by the officials of Murphy General Hospital in Waltham that the cast put the comedy on "here" for the hospitalized veterans. Mr. Kirwin was willing to stage "Charlie's Aunt" and he asked the cast how they felt. The whole production went to Waltham on the afternoon of January 6th and showed the play before 300 grateful veterans.

SUFFOLK LOSES FOURTH IN OVERTIME, 62-59

In a poorly played, overtime game Suffolk basketballers lost their fourth straight to Bridgewater State Teachers, 62 to 59, at the West End Boys Club, January 5, before an almost encouraging gathering of interested Suffolk students.

18 Soccer Men Receive Awards

Coch Tom Collins has recommended 18 soccer players to Athletic Director Dr. Harold Copp to be given awards for participation in the 1943 soccer season.

The men are John Harig, Kenneth Blaisdell, Michael Deacon, Francis Gallagher, Joseph Hanton, Robert Murphy, Robert Scoville, Sumner Sherman, Leo Souch, John Somerville, John Peters, John Bartline, Robert Tobias, Walter Wainwright, William Jones, Sidney Moore, David Perkins, and Salim Diani.

Other awards recommended by Coach Collins, go to Charles Barokis and Frank O'Neil for their outstanding play. Charles Barokis, George Katz, Edward Joseph P. Kokaras, S. Kimball, H. Fowler C. Boushman, P. DeLoe, S. Gerstman, and P. Moriarty were named.

Contest Closes February 4th

The Student Council and the Athletic Office have contributed five dollars apiece to set up the prize of the current nickname contest being run by the Suffolk Journal.

The contest, to find an appropriate nickname for the Suffolk sports teams, was started in the last issue of the Journal and will close February 4th after the midterm exams.

The "Sports" unofficial nickname now being used, having been considered colorless, the Sports Editor decided to conduct the contest to have the student body choose the official nickname. Boston sports writers still know Suffolk only as a Law School and consequently refer to the school in their stories as the "Lawyers."

Two names suggested by Floyd Hall, Suffolk's press representative, live in a story in Alan Frazer's column in the Boston American, under the "Senators" and the "Belons."

A committee made up of Dr. Harold Copp, Director of Athletics, President Barse, the president of the Student Council, and Richard Powers, Sports Editor of the Journal, will judge.

To enter, all you have to do is write your choice on a piece of paper with the date of entry, class, and Department and leave it at the Journal Office, Room 40, before February 4th. In case of ties, the entry submitted earliest will be given the prize of ten dollars.

"Rube" Tops Suffolk Sports Patter Win 56-43

Eddie Rubenstein was high scorer with 18 points as Suffolk won its first game of the season over Worcester Junior College, Friday, January 7, 56 to 43.

Ken Silver and Bill Hurry, centers-up in the post parade scoring 11 and 9 points respectively. Hugh Kline was fouled quickly and taken to the hospital, but was recovered enough to be ready for action in the following game.

Doyle Clan . . .

The unusual team has only been playing together for two years. It was only a few years ago when the members of the family were on seven different teams in an amounting fashion. It wasn't unusual for one of the brothers to be playing against another every night of the week.

It took a young sports promoter, Leo McCarthy of Salem, to put over the idea of the brothers playing on the same team. Now Mr. McCarthy is the coach and it falls upon him to decide the starting team.

He solved the problem by leaving Joseph, 26, captain of the team, in the games at all times and finding in four men placements. The first platoon has Jack, 24, at right forward, Jim, 22, at center, Dick, 21, at left guard, and David, 20, at left forward. McCarthy's second wave consists of Peter, 19, at right forward, Philip, 18, at center, Louis, 17, at left guard and Tommy, 16, at left forward.

Peter is the set shot artist of the team and Suffolk follows a game that Dick is the wizard at passing. The average height of the family team is 5 feet 11 inches.

Center of the team and father of the family, Joseph F. Doyle, a prominent Salem lawyer, started all this basketball interest when he built a basketball court in the spacious backyard of their former home at 20 Kingston St., Salem.

In their first year together last year, the Doyles went undefeated. The best game of the season was their thrilling win over the previously undefeated Salem High team, which were the champions of their league and national finalists in New York.

This year, the Doyles have won seven out of ten contests including the tournament split in North Carolina. One of their wins this year has been over the Salem High School team.

Basketball, as if it weren't enough, is hardly the only sport in which the Doyles are proficient. Jack, the second oldest, is the property of the Philadelphia Phillies and played shortstop last season with their farm team, the Miami Club of Kansas. Philip and Louis have won many prizes for their painting prowess. Peter shoots golf consistently in the 70's and David is an excellent tennis player.

Walter Brown of the Boston Garden is now dickering with a family team from Indiana, the team who won the tournament, to come to Boston to play the Doyles in a preliminary game to the Celtics. Recently the Doyles appeared on "Hamp" Hadley's TV show and they are awaiting an invitation to appear on the coast-to-coast "We the People" program.

An eighteen-game schedule has been arranged for the basketball team which practices daily at the West End Boys Club. Suffolk has gotten a toe-hold and the University should have boats for Spring Regattas. Application has been made for membership in the Intercollegiate Yacht Racing Association. Skating Club and team will hold midwinter sessions to prepare for Spring sailing.

Baseball, golf, track and tennis are each receiving a share of attention and plans are set for development of each.

The fine co-operation and collaboration between the Athletics office under the direction of Dr. Harold Copp and the Board of Trustees under the chairman-

On Saturday afternoon, November 20, 1948, the wedding of Geraldine Faith MacLellan, daughter of Mr. Stuart M. Warren, of 78 Clark St., Everett, and Duncan Rose Warren, son of Dr. and Mrs. Ralph D. Warren of Bath, Maine took place at the Park Street Congregational Church at a three o'clock ceremony. The Reverend Felix O. Davis of Fall River, Mass. officiated at the double-ring ceremony. Gratuity payments made by the Veterans Administration to be applied to veterans' GI loans are tax free and need not be considered as income in computing income tax, according to William J. Blake, manager of the Boston VA Regional Office. Present GI loan legislation, Blake pointed out, provides for the payment by the Government to the lender of an amount equivalent to four per cent of the amount originally guaranteed or insured by the Government, to be credited upon the loan in such manner as the lender and the borrower shall agree.

SU Club of Lowell Holds Dance As Suffolk Men Mix

Alumni activities were sparked recently by the Dance given by the Suffolk University Club of Lowell. In a Fall Dance which promises to become an annual affair, the Club presented an interesting and entertaining evening for all who attended. Held at the Rex Penitence in Lowell, Massachusetts, on December 3, the dance was a reunion for several alumni and undergraduates. The Suffolk University Club of Lowell is open to residents of Lowell and vicinity who have attended or are attending any branch of the University. The social aspects are the backbone of the organization combined with interests of different nature.

'PAISAN' PACKS A TERRIFIC PUNCH; HALF THE CAST ARE BONA FIDE GI'S

By E. STEEVES

The Exeter Theater has come up with another superior foreign film in "Paisan," a Roberto Rossellini masterpiece. The director of "Open City" labored but distinctly, and brought us a movie which comes closer to the unblemished realities of war than any since the Noel Coward movie, "In Which We Serve." "Paisan" is credulous in that it violates one of the basic principles of composition—the lack of unity. The war in Italy being the undercurrent of the film. It has six provocative sequences. They bear no relation to each other except for the war-established assumption. It is the genuine setting of the locale which might prove to many who served in Italy a re-living of a noisy day. It is nostalgic. It is effective. It is so effective that it would appear to be historic. The brutalities and the subtle irony of war are by no means overlooked. In one scene, a baby is the only survivor of a family that had just been freshly massacred by the Germans and remains beside the mother's body screaming. Another—a Sicilian girl murdered by avenging Germans. Although the acting is unquestionably the weak point in the production, you are satisfied with the knowledge that at least half the cast were real war veterans.
