Ward hopes minority situation will improve

Should he ever see an office dealing with the problems of the minority position in general, in his role as advisor Ward would like to become an advocate for minority and international students. Said Ward, "I see myself as an advocate for minority students and an advocate that will stay to be the vanguard if necessary."

Ward also said that he has encountered racism at Suffolk. However, he feels that the problem of racism is one of the Boston community in general, and not directly that of the Suffolk community. Ward said that he has come across a few experiences himself of racism from fellow faculty and administration members. Ward did not reveal any specific incidents.

Ward would like to see more minority students at Suffolk in both faculty and administrative positions. He is not impressed by the number of minority students at Suffolk and he hopes the situation will improve. However, he pointed out, "This is 1981. We ought to be looking at these types of problems. We're supposed to be beyond this."

He is enthusiastic about his role in recruiting this year. Next semester, he said that he will probably not be teaching at the Law School and will have more time to work on the goals he has for recruitment. Said Ward, "I want to begin developing meaningful contact with the Boston Public Schools, minority leaders and other public high schools."

Ward would also like to see a spirit of enthusiasm for the school develop amongst minority students. Ward said that when he attended Law School, he had a true feeling for the school. He concluded that some improvements could be made in terms of physical building but he did not think that the problems center around buildings.

Said Ward, "There is a lot to be excited about and it has nothing to do with building. It has to do with people." Ward is particularly enthusiastic about the education received by Suffolk students. He feels that the quality of education at Suffolk is extremely good. They do the best now, he said. "I think it's just that not everyone knows it."

He also said that in his experience with the Law School, he has learned that the university does one hell of a job of education. He also said that he hoped that the non-minority students of the university are not hostile toward his position. He said that he would hope that in an academic setting there could exist a free flow of ideas.

As a final comment, he said that he would like to have more students come in contact with his office. (By Max Ward used to say, he added some things up and see me sometime.)

Frosh VP walks out at SGA meeting

by Jolinda Mattison

Freshman Class Vice President Robert Rose walked out of Tuesday's Student Government Association meeting to protest what the Freshman board members called their nonrepresentation on the Freshman/Sophomore Semiformal Planning Committee.

The Freshman board members complained that they have had no say in the planning of the February 5 semiformal. Sophomore Class President Dennis Callahan, chairman of the Freshman/Sophomore Events Committee, argued that, since the Freshmen had not attended any of the planned meetings, they have no one to blame but themselves.

Freshman Class President Susan McCarthy later pointed out that, because Callahan himself had not attended the one meeting that all of the Freshman representatives have been able to attend, they were not to express their opinions about the semiformal.

In a related matter, the SGA allocated $50 for the printing of tickets to the semiformal.

In other action, the SGA heard from Treasurer Brian Conley that the $45 Activities Fee charged to each full-time Suffolk student will be split between semesters beginning next year.

The change is the result of the school's new computer system which would demand $45 both semesters. This change means that in September all boards will have only half their yearly budgets from which to work.

Junior Class Representative John McDonnell said that some activities, such as the BEACON, need all of their money at the beginning of the year and because of this some money will have to be borrowed from some other source.

Senior Class Vice President Peter Lahaie added that because of the new computer system the SGA will be losing the interest that it now earns monthly on the total $45 Activities Fee.

SGA President Darren Donovan urged the underclassmen to investigate and question the new system because it means that all future boards will not have the extra money it now makes on the interest.

Students attend conference

by Tim Downs

Suffolk students recently attended the Northeast Regional Conference of the National Entertainment and Campus Activities Association. The fifteen students, composed of Program Council members, President and SGA members, spent Nov. 15-18 at Grossingers Resort in Liberty, N.Y.

The conference was designed to educate student leaders in activities programming and development. The trip cost over two thousand dollars. President of the PBC, Anni Coyne, said the convention was cost effective.

Altogether, the PBC was highly successful in establishing committee reports and goals for the future. There were three phases to the conference. The first phase entailed some 90 educational sessions covering topics such as Film Programming and Development and Dealing with Commuter Students.

The second phase was an exhibit hall which housed ticket posters, beer and other companies who sell their products to students. The third phase was a showcase in which the students viewed talent they may want to hire. One such performer, A. Whitney Brown, will be at today's Fall.

The showcase included films, performing arts, rock groups and more. The students attended lectures and performances from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. daily. Suffolk's resident mime company, the Studebaker Mime, also attended the conference to display their art.

Director of Student Activities, Duane Anderson, accompanied the group. When asked "What did Suffolk students get out of the conference?" Anderson replied, "The biggest part was the ideas and information gained from talking to other students. He also said, 'The informal sessions were as important as the structured ones.' Sometimes student leaders feel isolated and think their job could be easier at another school."

Anderson said that by talking to other students they found that this is not true. So, he concluded, there was a good morale factor.

Students from over 90 colleges and universities attended the conference. Higher local schools included Mass Bay, Bunker Hill Community College, and Bridgewater State.

Student Government President Darren Donovan told the trip was educational and fulfilling. PBC Vice President, Chipperman Kever, Connors, also attended the conference, obviously more useful to some PBC members than others because the main thrust of the conference was directed at bands, lecturers and movies.

However, there was something for everyone, whether it was a workshop on student alcoholism or how to draw students on effective leadership and planning.

Although Suffolk facilities are limited, Anderson feels that "We are able to do some things other schools would love to do, such as using private clubs where there is a good atmosphere."

Despite weekend snowstorm

Suffolk opens as usual on Monday

by John Mahon

Suffolk County opened as usual on Monday, despite a heavy snowstorm that hit the area over the weekend. The snow was heaviest in the western part of the county, where it reached a depth of six inches. In the eastern part, it was less than an inch. The snow was blown off the roads by the wind, and the roads were open by 7:30 a.m. The schools were open as usual, and the businesses were open as usual. The snow was a nuisance, but it did not cause any major problems.

Having fun in fourteenth century England

Larry Buckley

There's a lot of fun to be had in the fourteenth century, says Larry Buckley, who has spent the last few years researching the life of the period. He has written a book about the life of a knight in the fourteenth century, and he has also written a book about the life of a peasant in the fourteenth century. He has also written a book about the life of a merchant in the fourteenth century. He has also written a book about the life of a scholar in the fourteenth century. He has also written a book about the life of a king in the fourteenth century.

As well as writing about the life of the fourteenth century, Buckley has also written about the life of the fifteenth century. Course offered for first time in 1980

Women's Studies seminar receives good evaluation

by Lisa Griffin

New semester's course that is interdisciplinary in nature, in women's studies at Suffolk will be sponsored by the History department and taught by eight faculty members. The interdisciplinary Women's Studies Seminar, History 627, was offered for the first time in the spring of 1980 and was considered a success by all involved, and professors will be equally challenging this year.

The course had an enrollment of 22 students with several students staff and faculty holding the course. The seminar is a multidisciplinary course, and it is a challenge to all involved.

The seminar is unique at Suffolk because it was the first interdisciplinary course offered in almost ten years and arose from student and faculty interest in questions raised in the Faculty Colloquium for Research on Women. The course was the result of over a year of planning. Many people were involved in the initial stages. But the major planners were Prof. Hughes, Prof. Zylba, and Prof. Mary Lloyd of the Psychology Dept. Eventually the course will be part of the Integrated Studies Program.

In an interview, Prof. Zylba described the course as a labor of love, and said that even though it involved a great deal of work, the course was "fun" and a lot of fun. For both students and teachers, Prof. Hughes also expressed her interest in the course and said that the students who had participated in the course in the past had all voiced their enthusiasm in a course evaluation. Prof. Zylba said that she would like to obtain a federal grant for the seminar in the future, but that this is still a little way off. She said that she would like to see some type of recognition for the seminar at Suffolk. Prof. Zylba said that she would like to see some type of recognition for the seminar at Suffolk. Prof. Zylba said that she would like to see some type of recognition for the seminar at Suffolk.

The seminar is a kind of seminar, in that several different areas are examined intellectually in the field of women's studies. Prof. Hughes described the course as an intermediate one, saying, "people will do with it what they will. They can do further with it if they want to. And frequently, many students do go further than the required assignments."

One student told Prof. Zylba that she felt that this was the first course in which she was treated like an adult. Such comments have served as inspiration for their continued efforts in the seminar.

An added dimension to the course has been in that it was not only an interdisciplinary course but also an interdisciplinary one. Students of all ages (from 18 to 75) and from various ethnic backgrounds have participated in the course. Both sexes have participated in the seminar and people of various religious affiliations participated. The course has also involved a mother and daughter team as an aspect which added further to the various personalities involved. Prof. Zylba said that it was exciting for people to learn from each other in the course; it was also exciting for the professors involved to observe each other teach.

Studies seminar receives good evaluation

Dr. Zofia Zabala, chair of the interdisciplinary Women's Studies Seminar, has received a very good evaluation from the students who attended the seminar. The seminar, which was held for the first time in 1980, was a success in many ways. The students who attended the seminar were very interested in the topics discussed and the seminar was well organized. The seminar was held in a comfortable and well-lit room. THE STUDENT ANGLE

'How are you spending your winter break?'

Nathalie Tillmann (Finance '84) I'm going to Montreal to ski, and then I'm off to Florida to do some windsurfing.

Robert Fitzpatrick (Accounting '84) I'll be getting ready for my transfer in January. That will make me sleep and drink steadily.

Christine Alterio (Journalism '85) I'm going to watch General Hospital, go manhunting and writing to a wimp in Rochester.

John Scanlon (Journalism '85) I plan on doing some severe partying.

Corinne Havens (Journalism '84) I'm not going to read a book, the whole entire three weeks that I'm on vacation.

George Caporale (Economics '85) I'm going to relax, then pick out a car and buy one.

Susan Peach (Finance '83) I'm going to visit all my friends who are away at school. I hope to get away for at least one of the weekends.

Kevin Downey (Accounting '85) I'm going to do some skiing.

Joan Connolly (Marketing '83) I'm going to New York and campaigning for my father — he's running for state rep.

Raiders take it to the end in a physical 26-6 win

by Jim Curral

The Suffolk Raiders have won the 1981 Bay District Championship with a 26-6 victory over the Florida State Panthers.

The Raiders, led by quarterback Timmy, topped off an undefeated season and captured the title which had eluded them last year.

The Florida Panthers, who had the yards, were the favorites in a physical game. But the Raiders' defense was too strong for them.

The game started with the Raiders' offense. They scored a touchdown in the first quarter. The Panthers' defense was too strong for them.

The Suffolk Raiders basketball team topped its season by defeating the Florida Panthers 71-50.

After battling from 52-50 at the half, the Raiders' defense was too strong for them. They scored a touchdown in the second quarter.

Football Picks

Just as the Fanion Footballer predicted a tough week to call last week's 5-9 game, week 109, 88 in the season. The upcoming week isn't much better. Phil needs a win bad in Dallas but can't win in the Big D. You're going out on a limb to pick the Rams - got a hot tip from Sam Harris. Seattle's looking good and should surprise Denver and play a special game Jan. 24 is getting very close now.
