Macheth Recovers After Duel With Macduff

RICHARD W. BURRILL, 136 IN REARVIEW KNIGHTS IN SUFFOLK PLAYERS
THIRD PIPER

The Suffolk University Players' production of "Macheth" with Bruce Kenney and Richard Church as the featured roles met with great success when played in the University Auditorium on April 12, before the large audience ever to attend a production of the Suffolk Players.

Professor Joseph E. Warner, director of the play, took part as one of the soldiers of the King's army, and did some sharp pointing of anything anyone was sure to see. He was, however, in the audience when the play was performed.

Mr. Kenney's Hall of the Macbeths was a search for the truth in the system of dramatic interpretation. It was the first time this particular kind of lighting was used in a stage production in a New England hall. The cast in which Mr. Kenney was the only character on a dark stage without revealing the source of light, played a novel and dramatic effect in the night scene. Mr. Hall expressed great satisfaction with the result of the experiment.

Perhaps the most dramatic moment of the evening occurred at the play when Mrs. Edith R. Kenney, a coordinator of Suffolk University, came out on the stage to announce a director for Richard Church's play had received actual word from Harold Huxley (Macduff) in a meeting scene in the act of an Alumnus file.

The University offers each of its alumni the opportunity to be at the address of others whom he knows. The Executive Office, Boston, has arranged for the address of others whom he knows. Police Officers Lectures at Suffolk

Mr. Kirby, representing the Boston Police Department, recently delivered an illustrated lecture on "Photographic as Evidence." The lecture attracted a capacity audience to Hall fountain, within which the lecture was given. The pictures were authentic reproductions from originals in the Police files. As a result of the success of this experimental lecture, the University authorities plan to present many more events similar to this during the next season.

Cireolo Italiano Recommends Study of Italian

IS THE LANGUAGE OF MANY IN METROPOLITAN AREAS

The Cireolo Italiano of Suffolk University under the leadership of President Ecco A. Curcio, has issued a statement recommending the study of Italian.

1. Because it is the key to great literature.
2. Because it is the language of great and progressive nations.
3. Because it is useful in the practice of any profession in it is the language of the second language of over 300,000 people in Greater Boston, and one out of every eight persons in the State of Massachusetts and New York.
4. Because Italian is useful in the commercial world for many occupations with our numerous Italian neighbors.

It is a language of the past and the future. It is the language of the past and the future. It is the language of the past and the future. It is the language of the past and the future.

Will Compile Alumni Files

Suffolk University trustees will attempt to assist in the compilation of an Alumnus file. The University offers each of its alumni the opportunity to be at the address of others whom he knows. The Executive Office, Boston, has arranged for the address of others whom he knows.

The system planned will consist of a three-way statistical system. Records will be maintained in accordance with the alphabetical, class, and geographical status of each individual.

DR. HAROLD J. OCKENGA

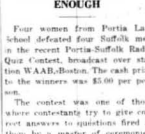

President William L. Archer announced today that Dr. Harold J. Ockenga will deliver the annual Baccalaureate Address at Suffolk University, Boston, Mass., to be held June 11th at 3:00 P.M. in the University Auditorium.

In 1929, Mr. Ockenga received his first student pastorate in connection with further Theological studies at the Westminister Seminary in Philadelphia, where he was awarded the Th.B. In 1930 he became assistant pastor at the wealthy First Presbyterian Church of Pittsburgh, where he was ordained. In May 1931 a call came from the First Reformed Presbyterian Church of Pittsburgh, a suburban church of thirty hundred members. After five years as pastor, during which 120 members were added to the church, Mr. Ockenga was called to Park Street Church in Boston in 1936.

IS ANNOUNCED

The student commencement Honors Roll has been announced. In the College of Liberal Arts, Richard W. Burrill, 136 In Rearview, has received Bachelor of Science degrees, with honor, June 15th and Mrs. Doris B. H. Hutchinson of Fall River will receive her Bachelor of Science in Education degree with honor.

The Boston girls were Florida Lane of Lynn; Gladys Philippe of Boston, Virginia; Margaret of Amesbury; and Esther Sweet of Middlefield. All are seniors except Gladys, who is a freshman.

Among the new ideas which are being carried out for recreation on Suffolk University campus, is the production of "mock trials." This should provide a most welcome opportunity, as well as a testing ground and valuable experience for law students.

Recent Decisions

Professor of Law, Suffolk University Law School

Bessy v. Salzman 19 N.E. (2d) 75, Mass. S. (1939) 115.

Contributory Negligence—Rule as to Imputed Negligence Modified.

Action to recover for the death of John A. Bessy, 9 years old, his mother, Mrs. Bessy, and for injuries to and operated by Mr. Bessy in collision with a truck operated by defendant. The evidence sustained a finding that both Mr. Bessy and the defendant were negligent.

The principle issue was raised by a refusal to rule, in substance, that the evidence "indicates" that the negligence of Mrs. Bessy, if proven, would have been the proximate cause of the death of her son.

"Negligence of a guest has been divided into (a) ordinary negligence, which has no recovery if it contributes to the injury, and is inconsequential otherwise; and (b) negligent, surmounting the care in reliance upon the care of the driver . . . which has been thought to have the effect of imputing negligence of the driver to the guest if the driver is negligent of the care of the guest that the driver is negligent of the care of the guest."

Justice served if the moralized doctrine of voluntary, noncontractual surrender of all care is eliminated from our law, so that, in cases where a guest in a private conveyance, being of sufficient age and capacity to exercise care for his own safety, and being in some of the relationships to the driver that cause the latter's negligence to be imputed to him (such as master or participant in a joint enterprise), is injured because of the concurrent negligence of the driver and a third person, the inquiry in an action against the third person, whether the guest may recover in such circumstances, will be gone into no further than to decide whether he was guilty of contributory negligence, and that the so-called doctrine of voluntary, noncontractual, and nonexclusive surrender will no longer be applicable in such situations. From what has been said, the conclusion is inevitable that there was no error in the cases at bar.

Brown v. Kaplan 19 N.E. (2d) 913, Mass. S. (1939) 303.

Contracts—Mortgages—Guaranty—Extension of Mortgage.

Defendant was the owner by purchase of the equity of redemption of land on which plaintiff held a mortgage. In 1925 defendant, in consideration of an extension of the mortgage promised in writing under seal to pay the same. This action is on that promise. Shortly after the promise was made, defendant sold the equity of redemption to one Blumenthal, subject to the mortgage. The plaintiff on February 1935, gave Blumenthal a new extension of the mortgage which defendant claimed discharged him. The value of the property did not diminish between February 1925 and the expiration of the extension. The court held that the defendant was not discharged by the extension because he was in no way bound thereby.

The court draws a distinction between the liability of redemption and subject to the mortgage and the mortgage becomes merely a quasi security extended only to have the security regarded as the primary fund for the payment of the debt and can continue only so far as the security is affected by an extension, and the case where the mortgage annuities and agree to pay the mortgage. In the latter case, the mortgage then becomes a guaranty in true sense, and is discharged by any extension of the mortgage, as in North End Bank v. Hart v. Stone, 197 Mass. 339 and (Solman v. Deland, 231 Mass. 344. But if, Restatement of Contracts, § 146, where it is suggested that in either case the surety is discharged only to the extent of the value of the security diminished. The defendant would not be discharged by mere extension of the mortgage, so the defendant is not discharged by the extension of the mortgage.

Walton v. Simons 29 N.E. (2d) 406, Mass. S. (1939) 629.

Accord and Satisfaction—Executor—Executors and Administrators.

Widener's estate held a mortgage on real estate of Wallin on which there was a balance due of $1200. Wallin was administrator of his wife's estate which had a claim against Widener's estate for services in the amount of $2700, later reduced to judgment in the amount of $1924.76. Wallin, as administrator of his wife's estate, accepted a discharge of the mortgage as full payment of the judgment. Simonsky, administrator of Widener's estate, accepted this offer and the probate court duly allowed the compromise. Wallin, as administrator of his wife's estate, instituted the proceeding to enforce the judgment. The question presented was whether there was a valid accord and satisfaction discharging the mortgage of the discharge of the $1200 mortgage by the $1924.76 judgment.

The court said "The first question is whether Wallin, as administrator of his wife's estate, agreed upon accord consideration to accept the discharge of the mortgage on his own property in full satisfaction of the judgment. Wallin's acceptance of the discharge was an affirmation and a ratification of the parties had reached before the judgment. And there was no indication to support that accord. The provisions of the discharge was a new thing, different from and beyond that which Simonsky was already bound to do and was, therefore, good and valid consideration for the release of the judgment. Wallin's settlement of the claim of his wife's estate by receiving a discharge of the mortgage on his own land was not necessarily fraudulent. He may have been the only person interested. All those interested may have assented. Wallin may have paid to the estate an equivalent sum. The judgment was discharged by accord and satisfaction.

Walshart v. Donnelly 29 N.E. (2d) 415, Mass. S. (1939) 557.

Conditions Precedent—Failure to Perform.

Action to recover rent under "net lease" for space to be used for the erection of a sign. The lease provided that the rent is not to be paid until (lessee) has been granted permits as required by the City of Boston. The lessee agreed to exercise due diligence to secure such permits. There was no evidence that an application had been made to the City of Boston for a permit. The supreme court sustained defendant's motion to find for the plaintiff.

There was no evidence that the condition would have been performed except for defendant's failure to act. It might have been refused. The issue is not whether in cases in which a defendant's liability under a contract depends upon the conformity of the plaintiff's performance to a certain standard, such as the case of a contract to build, the plaintiff must be made by the defendant and shown to have been complied with in such cases the defendant's failure to make the fact to comply, standing alone, is not enough to entitle the plaintiff to recover. He must also show that he had the best chance of making the standard set would have been attained. In this case there was no evidence that a permit would have been granted if defendant had made application therefor. Judgment for the defendant.

Wheeler v. Inver—Prima Facie Negligence—Insurer.

Plaintiff, husband and wife, and defendant store for damage resulting from injuries sustained by their wife when she slipped on some ice cream upon defendant's floor. The evidence showed that there were many people in the store standing near the entrance eating ice cream. That it was a rainy day, that was sawdust on the floor; that the surface of the ice cream was rough as if it had come out of the top of a cone, and that there was sawdust all over the ice cream and sidewalk. Evidence that the floor sloped at a grade of about 4 inches in 9 feet was excluded. The question presented was whether the store was negligent. Plaintiff accepted and directed a verdict for the defendant. Plaintiff excepted.

In overruling the exception, the court said "The evidence wholly fails to show that the defendant rather than some customer, was responsible for the slipping of the ice cream, or that it had been on the floor long enough to cause the defendant with no negligence. There is no real ground to suppose that the sawdust was a source of danger, and there was no evidence of negligence in the condition of the floor itself. The plaintiff was not harmed by the exclusion of evidence that the floor slipped. Errors are common. If properly construed, and there was in this case no evidence or offer of proof to the contrary, their presence, like that of steps, must be accepted by patrons, and is not a ground of liability.

City of Medford v. Corbett 29 N.E. (2d) 402, Mass. S. (1939) 549.

Attorney and Client—Agreement for Judgment.

In an action brought against the City of Medford, John Howard, then City Solicitor, an attorney for the City, signed an agreement for judgment for the plaintiff in the amount of $1800. Later a petition to vacate the judgment was filed based on the ground that the City Solicitor had no authority to sign an agreement for judgment against the City.

In holding that the attorney had such power, the court said in substance that his authority to bind his client was no greater than that of any other attorney at law in private litigation, but that attorneys of record have authority to agree upon the amount of a judgment to be entered or to make other disposition of the suit, and if such a judgment is entered it is binding upon the parties, unless the court, for good cause shown, vacates any order fled thereon. It appears that the action of the attorney was against the expressed prohibition of the client, and that the court may vacate an agreement, but on the ground that there was no evidence of authority on Howard's part to enter the agreement for judgment.

Pre-Legal Courses To Be Offered This Summer

OPPORTUNITY FOR HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES

Suffolk University announces, in connection with its Summer Session, July 25th to August 12th, certain pre-legal courses that should be of interest to high school graduates who desire to study law. These courses will be given in the evening from 6:30 to 9:30 P. M. Mondays, Tuesdays, and Fridays. Students may register for two courses only. They will receive degree credit for one semester hours in each subject upon the successful completion of the work.

- a. Argumentation and Logic, or Effective Public Speaking
- b. Taxes, Municipal and State Government

In order to qualify for the study of law it is necessary for a student to acquire sixty semester hours of college work. By attending two summer and two fall years in Suffolk University, College of Liberal Arts, it will be possible for high school graduates to qualify for law study by September 1st.

The regular pre-legal courses begin on September 25th and will give in connection with the Suffolk University, College of Liberal Arts.

Suffolk Notables Discuss Plans For Summer

END OF DEPRESSION SEEN FOR TRANSPORT LINES AND HOTELS

By MARSHALL BAHN
What, with spring here and all, and this being the last issue of the Journal, I thought it might be nice if we saw a little article on summer plans of various people about the school.

You see, I feel that winter is a time to work and take most people for granted. But when Summer comes round, I always think about the fruits of labor and I take a live interest in people and what they are going to do during the summer months.

So, with this interest in mind, I grabbed a pencil and the back of an old envelope and started scribbling.

First guy I bumped into was Bill Edelman coming out of the 2nd floor.

"So what are you planning for this summer," says I.

"Oh, I dunno; I'm going to work around the school, and then probably take a two week's vacation at the Cape; go swimming and all the other things, you know."

"Sounds nice," says I.

He continues: "And then, if I have time, I'm going to do some research on the economic theory of American culture."

"Will you," says I.

I turned to go, and who should be coming out the second floor stairs but Boris Walsh, out on the old personality quiz and approach.

"Ah, Miss Webb," says I smoothly, "there has been a few more weeks of school left, and the weather getting warmer all the time, so I thought it might be a nice idea to etc., etc., etc."

"Will you," says Miss Webb, "I am going to work at my regular job most of the summer. The last three weeks in August I have my vacation, and then I am going to California to see some relatives and take in the San Francisco World's Fair."

"How nice," says I. "Thank you ever so much, Miss Webb."

So, I start upstairs to the library when down comes our concert pianist, Oliver Daniel.

"Hiya, Oliver," says I. "How are you?" and then gradually and graciously I ease into talk of summer plans.

Oliver withdraws an official-looking letter from his inner pocket and smiles at us kindly. "It isn't definite yet, he says, but I am planning to drive through Mexico this summer. I am going to do some research on Mexican folk music for a music publishing company. I will spend a month in Mexico City. From there I will go to the Canadian Rockies, where I already have two concerts arranged for; one at Banff and the other at Lake Louise."

Engagement Of Dorchester Girl Is Announced

MRS. ANN MCGILVER IS WIFE OF JAMES H. BARNETT, FORMER EDITOR OF SUFFOLK JOURNAL

Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Minion, 3 Ross St., Dorchester, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Ann Avenue, to James H. Barnett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph A. Barnett of Middleborough Street, Dorchester.

Miss Bennett is a graduate of the Dorchester High School for Girls. Mr. Barnett, a member of the staff of the Boston Globe, attended Dorchester High School for Boys. For two years he studied at Suffolk University college of Journalism, succeeding Wallace K. Stevens, Law '37, as editor-in-chief of the Jan 23. He was eminently successful in this office.

FIRST IMPRESSIONS BY STUBBEN POWELL, L. 40

Some time ago, at one of the regular Starboard Partys on the steamer, I was seated below the surface of the sea. The party had invited a great deal of us to go with the master of the boat. It was a very interesting party, and I was very glad to see the people who had come to go with the master of the boat.

Before I continue my little story, I just want to mention that my work during summer vacations is managing a dance orchestra of well-known names. It was in the same organization. It was in the same organization. It was in the same organization.

party that I met the young man I am alluding to in this article. I was very interested in him, and I was very glad to see the people who had come to go with the master of the boat.

After getting the phone back on the head, I began to realize that I was very interested in him, and I was very glad to see the people who had come to go with the master of the boat.

The contact for the music was quickly drawn, and for nearly an hour he told me of his work in public, which resulted in a most enjoyable evening.

The following week I took my six-piece outfit down to his summer estate, which was located on a point overlooking the sea. On the platform, which was to serve as the floor of his barn when completed, were assembled more than fifty members of the Club, friends and relatives who had come over to participate in the evening's festivities. They were just plain country folks—out in a grand time, and what an affair it turned out to be!

During intermission, refreshments were served at Mr. Lord's personal expense. After everyone had gone, I locked him up what had motivated him in speaking such a high-flown affair, and he told me that though the party had involved a great deal of expense, it was well worth the money.

I Love a Field

I love a field with daisies scattered through
In white and golden patterns, interlaid.
With cool green threads of grass, beneath the blue
Of summer skies with clouds, across their face:
I love a field with daisies scattered through
Like yellow lightning, fastening the folds
Of green old meadows, ornamented green
In summer, gorgeous draperies of earth's hold.
In her rich lap so spacious a display
Of costly cloth from far lands, where the sun
Shines gloriously forth throughout the day
And mellows richly ere its work is done.
I love a field with daisies scattered through
For this is beauty, young, and bright and true.

FROM THE EDITOR'S DIARY

JAMES H. BARNETT Editor of the Journal, '37-'38

It was time for the first class but the bell didn't ring. And it couldn't ring for another month. We sat in a room in the University building preparing copy for the Journal. It seemed strange sitting there and not going to class as we had done for the past ten months. Our fingers strayed restlessly over the typewriter keys but the thoughts didn't seem to come.

We got up and walked down the corridors—bare now, but once so heavily on steel stairs, stacked there to gather dust for the next month or so. That is it wasn't for the slightest students who now were its only occupants. Down in the office was the only sign of life as its workers made preparations for the Commencement, summer school and 1938-39 school year, all at once.

But it all seemed strange without any students filling the corridors and coming in to look for tests and exam papers. The main lobby was barren and all the students who filled its corners and argued over books and tests were gone. I'll be wondering when the smoking room where oft we had battled our various clouds of smoke was clean—both of smoke and students. But there was nothing to do—no students to talk to us, although we went back to working on the Journal, copy which told of days when the school was full of student life. It was a few days later and we were sitting at the press table in the Auditorium where in all our journalistic dignity we were covering the Commencement. The Auditorium was crowded with graduates, friends and parents. And the colorful graduation exercises went on.

The school's corridors once more were filled as gaily crowds inspected the buildings. But some here, I didn't seem the same. For they were not the students who thronged its rooms only a short time ago.

DR. OKENGA—

Continued from page 1: During his years in Pittsburgh, Mr. Okenka received the degree of Master of Arts and completed requirements for the Ph.D. to be received June 15th this year from the University of Pittsburgh. He also traveled through Europe in 1922, 1923, 1925, including Asia Minor and Russia. Since coming to Boston, he has received the Doctor of Divinity degree and has written two books, "These Religious Affections" and "Out Protestant Heresies". A member of the Boston Bar Association, he is a Chaplain in the U. S. Navy. Dr. Okenka offers lectures on religious history and biblical subjects for conferences and clubs.

HOVARIAN DEGREES TO DAVID SARNOFF AND DR. OKENGA

In behalf of the Board of Trustees, President Gleason L. Usher has announced that at the annual Commencement Exercises to be held Thursday evening, June 15, at eight o'clock in the University Auditorium, the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters will be conferred upon the Reverend Dr. Harold J. Okenka, Pastor of the Park Street Church, Boston, upon David Sarnoff, President of the Radio Corporation of America, will be conferred an honorary degree of Doctor of Science. Mr. Sarnoff will address the graduating class.

The College of Liberal Arts will also confer three Bachelor of Science degrees in course and four Bachelor of Science in Education degrees. Approximately one hundred and thirty candidates from Suffolk University Law School will also receive their Bachelor of Laws degree.

WE HAIL DAVID SARNOFF!

Suffolk University is fortunate indeed in having as its commencement speaker this year one of the truly great men of the present century. Born in Russia in 1894 David Sarnoff came to America when nine years of age. Six years later family misfortune caused the fifteen-year-old lad to become a wage-earner—in the humble position of messenger-boy for the American Marconi Company. Within three years he had mastered wireless telegraphs. At eighteen he became manager of the key-board he became chief radio inspector of his company, later rising in successive stages to the position of commercial manager. When ten, David Sarnoff became commercial manager of RCA. In 1923 he became general manager, in 1922 vice-president and general manager. In 1928 he was elected executive vice-president of RCA. In January, 1931, he became president of one of the largest corporations in America whose earnings had grown from four million dollars in 1923 to one hundred and eighty-two million in 1929, during all of which time he had been its commercial manager.

David Sarnoff has an amazing ability to foresee future events. In 1912 he conceived radio broadcasting and wrote out a description of the push button radio set of today. He is one of the moving spirits behind great developments in radio, in facsimile, in television. He is a thinker—a scholar—equipped with rare ability in self-expression.

Since fifteen years of age he has acquired education the hard way. Since then his education has been self-acquired. Four different universities have conferred honorary degrees upon him. He comes to Suffolk University as commencement orator for two reasons—friendship for President and also because he appreciates the type of educational service that Suffolk University is rendering to young men and women who have to work for a living.

In June 1934 a self-made man whose fame is world-wide will speak words of inspiration to young men who will be self-made men of the future.

Dean Gleason I. Archer,
 Suffolk Law School,
 Boston, Mass.

My dear Dean:

I want to thank you very much for the nice note you wrote me a short time ago. It always has been one of my regrets that the way, and my service in the army, prevented me from finishing and receiving a degree.

Naturally, the year that I spent at Suffolk had a good deal to do with changing my life. What I learned of law there has been helpful to me in my work, but I was more in the training in reading, reasoning and judgment, confidence and self-reliance, and in coming in contact with men I can never forget.

I am now, always, happy and hope that I shall be an enthusiastic for Suffolk.

My best regards to you.

Sincerely,

An Anti-Discrimination Bill In The Senate Of The United States

February 27th, 1937
 Mr. Sheppard introduced the following bill, which was read twice and referred to the Committee on Civil Service.

To prevent discrimination against graduates of certain schools, and to require that the qualifications for such positions be based on the qualifications for which the school has provided legal training or legal experience.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That in appointing, or fixing requirements with respect to the appointment of persons to any position in the Government service, if the qualifications required of applicants for such position include legal training or legal experience, no officer or employee of any executive department, independent establishment or agency (including Government-owned Government-controlled corporations) of the United States shall discriminate against any applicant or applicant held for the purpose of determining the qualifications of applicants for such position, because such applicant (1) has not been graduated from a law school which is of a particular class or which has been approved or accredited by any association, organization, or group; or (2) who has not had college training in addition to law school training, or who acquired his legal education in a law office.

SEC. 2. No sum appropriated or allocated for the payment of salaries and expense accounts of officers and employees of the executive departments, independent establishments, and agencies of the United States shall be available to pay the salary or other direct account of any such officer or employee who violates the first section of this Act.

OUR STUDENT COUNCIL

The most outstanding and progressive achievement of Suffolk University's student body this year was the election of its Student Council which since its inauguration last February has been working to improve various classroom conditions. Student Council committees have been set up for the study of both college and law school in the common spirit of Suffolk University.

The political organization of the Student Council is complete and functions under a self-organized structure. There is a balance of leadership between college and law school council members. Both First Vice President Edward Gaulton and member of I. F. W. who holds National Secretary and Chairman of the committee on constitutional law, is a second year Journalism student and Walter F. Shattuck, second vice president, is an advanced student in the College of Education. A single executive leadership and a smooth running committee system has produced an efficiency that points to the permanency of the Suffolk University Student Council.

It brought about the reopening of Hall C as a presentation hall for the students. It has arranged for adjustment of difficulties arising over exam schedules in the Law School. It has been the means for improving various classroom conditions. Student Council committees have been set up for the study of both college and law school in the common spirit of Suffolk University.

"Record Hop" Sets Hop Record

The Suffolk Players wish to thank each and every person who contributed to the success of their "Record Hop" held in Hall C on Saturday, May 13th. This was one of the most successful affairs of its kind held in many years. Experienced observers stated that the collection of records and the handling of the dance were as well as any month performance could be expected.

PRESIDENT ARCHER'S COLUMN

THE SHEPPARD BILL

United States Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas has fathered a very significant bill—S. 1610 which is printed in another column. This bill strikes at an evil which I predicted eleven years ago in an address before the New Hampshire Bar Association. At that time I expressed opinion that the movement to bar all but the graduates of certain day universities from opportunities in the medical and legal professions would eventually be extended to positions in the government service. It was recently discussed in Washington that various federal agencies have been indulging in discrimination in favor of graduates of the so-called ABA law schools. In appointments calling for legal knowledge a lawyer however experienced or able, but not a graduate of one of these schools, would be rejected. In the Department of Agriculture a definite rule has been in operation barring all candidates for appointment involving legal knowledge unless the applicant had been graduated from one of the ABA schools.

Senator Sheppard's bill sternly forbids such discrimination. It provides moreover a most effective penalty—that no funds of the United States will be available to pay the salaries of any officer or employee of the Executive Department or agencies of the Federal Government who exercises discrimination as aforesaid.

It was my privilege to attend the recent hearings in Washington on the Sheppard bill and to speak in its behalf. Senator Neely who conducted the hearings expressed amazement and indignation at the revelations of discrimination laid before his committee. Graduates of certain Law Schools of the District of Columbia were the chief witnesses against the offending officials. A significant feature of the hearing was that William Green and John L. Lewis, representing their respective millions in the ranks of labor, wrote individual letters, condemning in emphatic language the newly developed evil. Daniel G. Roper, recently Secretary of Commerce, also wrote a strong letter on the subject.

The National Association of Law Schools, of which our law school is a charter member, made a strong showing at the hearing. The opposition to the measure was exceedingly feeble, since the advocates of discrimination could not very well openly avow so selfish a policy. They argued that the law would result in discrimination in favor of graduates of the so-called non-approved schools on the ground that no government official could dare appoint an ABA approved graduate but he forfeit his salary. Senator Neely openly ridiculed this specious argument.

Alumni Ball Former Suffolk Student Becomes Best Ever Research Chief in Alabama

Alan F. Archer Has Michigan Ph.D.

PROCEEDS ADDED TO ENDOWMENT FUND

The recent appointment of Dr. Alan F. Archer, eldest son of the late Dr. and Mrs. Abraham I. Archer of Suffolk University, to the position of chief director of Biological Research at the University of Michigan is a revelation reveals an interesting career for our former and now old-time student.

The student of Washington at the time well respected by all.

Congratulations!

Gleason E. Archer, Jr. of Boston and Norwell, son of President and Mrs. Gleason E. Archer, was recently married to Miss Lillian Virginia Atherton, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Atherton of West Medford. The ceremony was performed at the Park Street Church, Boston, by Dr. O'Connell.

Mr. Paul V. MacDonald, the headmaster and Thomas South, the groom's former classmate at Harvard served as best man.

The bride is a member of the Junior Class at Jackson and plans to continue her studies next season. Gleason Archer Jr. is a common law graduate of Harvard University, class of 1918. He is the first member of his law school class to gain admission to the Massachusetts Bar. He will graduate as a Bachelor of Laws in the class of 1929, Suffolk University Law School at the forthcoming commencement exercises.

Summer Plans

Mr. Hickey smiles: "I'm open to suggestions."

"No plans to lack."

"Well, I imagine I'll go up home to Williamson for a while. Then, I think I'll go up to Tillsonburg, Ontario, for the rest of the summer and do some carpenter work on a tobacco farm up there," says Mr. H.

It was about the time that a little man shuffled up with a bag. "Shush, no talking in the library," "official-looking" I see. "And then greeting the small distributor, I turn to Galtel: "And you're Henry?"

"Home? Vacation at the Cape swim, boat, fish, dance," he rattles. I very kindly thank these gentlemen for their hearty conversation and start up towards Hill 11. Out side the safe I hear stalling Paul Hickey.

"A likely victim," I think. "Howson, Paul, old boy."

"Well, what's almost over?"

He made an outstanding record as a law student from September 1931 to January, 1932. He held law but for biology had not wanted. At the University of Michigan he became a brilliant student. Every summer under the joint auspices of Michigan and Harvard University biology departments young Archer went on biological expeditions. He was on the shore and other expeditions in the northern part of the State. He was a student at the University of Michigan in 1933 and had Doctor of Philosophy degree in 1936. By the time he was graduated from the University of Michigan he had been awarded a number of honors. He was awarded a number of honors. He was awarded a number of honors.

PLACEMENT BUREAU

The Placement Bureau is having an increasing number of requests for Law School Graduates, and particularly for those who have passed the Massachusetts Bar.

It might be to your advantage to register with the Placement Bureau before leaving school to make yourself eligible for one of these future jobs just as soon as you inform the Director that you have been admitted to the Bar.

SONNET TO A PASSING COMRADE

Brother, close my eyes when they can see
No more, that they not mirror sudden streaks
Of bullets overhead, nor staring
Caught in the cultiva's orb,
Of soldiers dying and forgotten, blank
More quickly, left unattended. Let men
Not see the gleam betray that romance
Is pain beyond the bounds of any pen.

May they not know that I have seen the years
Express the rending of a tree or bird—
Millenniums of hope with servile cheer,
Expire under propensities' word.

Brother, when I sleep upon this field
Other eyes may yet be unenclosed,

This an' That

A fine, new publication is the NORTHEASTERN NEWS with its four large pages crammed full of fine news and features. We enjoyed one article especially well in the March issue, the "For Sleepy Shmoozers' Yain." Our sentiments exactly.

Your front-page makeup at first seems chaotic but gradually they become accustomed to the profusion of very short news stories. Simon says: B

Our outlook revealed a rather large magazine and we surely are pleased if it had such colorful photographed pages bound under the name of the Heraldic High School HERFAME.

The HERFAME is just check full of some very fine illustrations and we must offer a double order of commendation to the art editor on the strength of the first article work. Simon says: B

We would like to borrow a funny little story from the HILLTOP ECHO published by the Van Buren High School, Van Buren, Maine. In our own words it goes like this:

Professor: "Now, can you remember the kinds of genders?"
Bright Boy: "Masculine and feminine. The masculine is divided into the temperate and intemperate and the feminine into the torrid and frigid."

The boys of the East Boston High School, Boston, Massachusetts, are to be commended for their good work and for a journal well edited and for a journal well edited and for a journal well edited.

A bit more can be done with literary material, so we feel. Perhaps if your stories were a bit longer so that ample space could be had to work out your yarns, you would avoid the hurried quality of your literary department. For an all-around good issue Simon says: B

ARCHER NAMED RESEARCH CHIEF

Honorary Director at Museum Appointed to State Position

Montgomery, Ala., April 6, 1939. Dr. Alan F. Archer, of Ipswich, today became director of research for the State Department of Conservation.

Appointed by Dr. Archer, for the last two years, connected with his honorary capacity with the Alabama Museum, was announced by Walter B. Jones, chief of the Conservation Department.

Inaugurating a program of scientific and life work, he will direct research into the environment and habitat of Alabama wild life.

Dr. Archer, who is honorary curator of Alabama's Museum of Natural History, is an expert in the field of biology, botany, zoology and ecology. He is a national authority on land snails.

During the new research director as an "outstanding scientist," Dr. Jones said, he expected the work to "contribute substantially toward improving a better habitat in Alabama."

Letters to the Editor

— Also Some Comments on Swing

Dear Editor:

I feel that I am covering the feelings of many of my schoolmates when I extend this letter of thanks to the University Student Council for their efforts which resulted in the opening of the Recreation Hall for student use. It is a great pleasure to be able to do three things at one and the same time: 1) Sit on a soft seat; 2) Smoke; 3) Study.

It's great. Thanks a lot, Student Council!

"SORTY"

Dear Editor:

I have heard all of the swing band men work and I think they deserve the credit which I have given them.

Could the inspiration to Krupa's band you mention in your article be Tommie Hoels, but trumpeter, who is now with Buddy Rogers' Orchestra? If you will recollect, when Krupa first organized his Orchestra, his first engagement was in Boston. The subject was that Boston Public was hard to please and the best place to get a good criticism.

Have you heard Eskime Hawkins, "Jump Children Jump" and "King Porter Stomp," which through the Hoelkins trumpeting and tenor man's choruses are lifted to smart recordings?

Did you stop to think of forming an "SSS," "Suffolk Swing Society"? I think there would be plenty of fellows interested, at many colleges and universities all over the U.S.A. have the like. Later an honorary president could be elected, as Goodman, Shaw, etc. Meetings as to time and place could be decided. Please write us what you think of the idea.

Shades of "Bright Travels" Connelly's neckties! These ties had nothing on the tie of my face when I found that the January number of the Journal is listing the countries represented by Suffolk students failed to include Newfoundland. My love for my country is equalled only by the honor of being her sole representative among the Suffolk student body.

Sincerely yours,
John M. McLaughlin

P.S. The "Statistics" column of January's Journal credited Canada with being the birthplace of four Suffolk students. Since it is common sense to list the countries represented by Suffolk students, I am sure you have been able to find a Canadian student. I am sure you have been able to find a Canadian student. I am sure you have been able to find a Canadian student.

PREDICTIONS AND PROPHECIES

It seems to be the custom, nowadays for someone to make predictions about something or other, whether interesting or not, therefore we rather hesitantly make our first and perhaps only attempt. We draw a deep breath, shrug our shoulders and here goes.

From the depths of our rented crystal ball we see a new swing band led by one, Charles Barnett, rising in select estimation. A further peek shows us that Barnett is one of the best, if not there we get the best, tenor saxes that ever blew a mean lick. More and more swing bands are listening to his late evening network work. A measure of "charms" are listening to his late evening network work. A measure of "charms" are listening to his late evening network work.

For our word "Lionel Hampton, he of the pallid drumstick and "chick" who hopefully predict that Lionel will be leading his own band in the very near future. The crystal ball clouds and clears and we behold a new order of things, "Clitograph" an standing about in a daze, and are momentarily shaking their heads. Swing, or what has had done, and are momentarily shaking their heads. Swing, or what has had done, and are momentarily shaking their heads.

WE REMINISCE

That marvelous trumpet solo that Harry James "noted" in his Goodman's platter of Song Sing Sing. When we first heard Raymond Scott and his main quartet. Bruno Berganz's trumpet solo in Tommy Dorsey's platter of Marie. When Glen Gray and his Glenn Gray Orchestra were playing the "Eding music." When The Main Cues. Remind me THE thing. When we found our first Rex Biggers. Remind me THE thing. When we first thought to buy books recording "Oh happy day." When we first thought to buy books recording "Oh happy day." When we first thought to buy books recording "Oh happy day."

FIVE STAY AT TABLES

The Long, The Short and The All Star Bands (Ayer's). A star-studded personnel featured in the recording "Such notable as Harry Frenchman, Tommy Dorsey, Harry James, Eddie Miller, Jack Teagarden, Tommy Dorsey, Ray Blundie, Hyman Scherzer, Bob Zarkis, Bob Huggart and others make the recording into a thing to listen to. Both sides are recommended.

MARGINALIA

By MARSHALL HAHN, '32

By EDWARD JACOBSON

You would be amazed at some of the things people write on the margins of their notebooks during lectures. These narrow notebook margins contain everything from the subconscious thought type of art to equally subconscious Shakespearean couplets and beautiful Petrarchian sonnets. In one case a marginal epic poem was found which had been written over a period of 16 American Literature lectures.

In some cases, the influence of the lecture topic can be seen in the subconscious art. In most cases, not. For some undetermined reason, the influence of food can be detected in almost all the works.

The editors of the Journal have been making a broad survey and are at present preparing an anthology of marginal poetry (with illustrations by the authors) which will be called "Reactions of a College Mind."

The editors are anxious to include in this anthology all available material. So if you have an old notebook, don't throw it away. Send it to us, and we'll throw it away for you.

Below are some typical examples of the already collected material. Titles are by the editors.

STUDENTS WILL ENJOY the first of the season of the "Herald" at the University of Massachusetts. It is a publication of the State University, and is a valuable source of information to the students. It is a publication of the State University, and is a valuable source of information to the students.

When talking with a group of Journalism students of our University at the beginning of the course last year, we discovered that they, in keeping with the popular belief, were interested in Journalism because of the possible thrill, danger and excitement developing in a newspaper position. The same group of students took the first plunge into the aforementioned field, when they recently went to the "Herald-Traveler" building to see the many eyes in the newspaper machine, and to find just "what makes it tick."

It was just like "going to London to visit the Queen." The only thrill of the evening, however, came in the World Wide Photo room when a "see, sleekt, coatin' tin" rous baggie" ran on his haunches and eyed the on-looker jauntily with scorn and derision. But there were no faintings, no screaming, not even any "Oooes and Aaahs," in spite of the fact that there were two young ladies in the group.

But the student ventured too far into the room, and the poor mouse scampered for safety. Oh, what a game in the bargain!

Now we're wondering if newspaper men must have mice and mice must have newspaper men.
