VETS URGE IKE TO VIE FOR NATIONAL VOTE

Eisenhower is the presidential choice of '48—according to the students of Suffolk University. It was revealed recently in a poll conducted by the Journal. "Ike" received 360 votes, Wallace, 248, Truman, 112. Commenting on their choices, one fellow said: "Draft Ike." It's the only way to prevent the high office of President from falling into or remaining in irresponsible hands."

Another said: "I want a fellow who can win a battle. I want a man who has not thrust himself into the international political camera. Let me have 'Ike.'" "He" is a powerful leader who will be respected by all other nations, and "Ike" would do what's best for the American people no matter what the consequences," are phrases found on the lips and on the ballots of many S.U. students.

But there are others who feel that a military man has no place at the helm of a great nation. Some of them feel there is need for great reform. They say, "The only progressive who is not afraid to back up his faith with action is Henry Wallace. He's a true American who practices democracy," and "How else can informed people vote?"

The conservative say, "Truman has certainly been a good average president with the interests of the vast majority at heart. He has been a bulwark against the reactionary Congress. With an average president, we, through more reasonable choices in Con-

"You Are The University" -- BURSE SAVAGE HITS $$!

WALTER M. BURSE
ELECTED BY TRUSTEES
AS SUFFOLK PRESIDENT

English Prof's New Book
Bought by Columbia Pix
For $50,000-Hayworth Role

"Suffolk can only be made by the students. You are the University," prophesied the newly elected president, Walter M. Burse. "With honesty and diligence, Suffolk will be one of the best universities in the country." In contrast to that with those words, the students of Suffolk were formally introduced to their new president. Born in Pittsfield, Mass., 49 years ago, Mr. Burse is the third president in the forty-two year history of the school. He was graduated from Brown University in 1920, the Harvard Law School in 1923, and has been associated with Suffolk as treasurer and trustee since 1936.

Mr. Burse is a former adjunct of Manilla Military School and a former instructor at Mass. Brown School of Providence. He has been a practicing lawyer since 1923, is past president of the Boston Exchange Club, and is now director of the New England School of Art. In his opening day speech he urged the student body. Mr. Burse said he was entering the service of the University for one year—"the development and adjustment of Suffolk"—and added that everything within the power of the Board of Trustees is being done toward the accreditation of Suffolk.

Mary R. Walsh, author's representative, said lately that Columbia Pictures has bought the motion picture rights to Lost Horses, a novel by Thomas Savage, Suffolk University Creative Writing instructor. The price paid was $50,000. The novel will be published in the early fall by Simon & Schuster.

It is thought that the novel, whose background is a Montana cattle ranch, will be a starring vehicle for Rita Hayworth, who will play the role of Jane Hanson. It is a story of deterioration, based on the thesis that possession of good destroys the goodness.

Mr. Savage has been instructing for three semesters and has made no plans for the future other than that the money is going to be in-

NEA Praises Dr. R. J. Murphy

Accepting the invitation of the National Education Association, Department of Higher Education, Dean Raymond J. Murphy joined a representative group of educators from all over the country to confer on problems facing colleges and universities today.

The Conference, which was held in Chicago during the Easter vacation, was concerned with "Organization of the University for Administration and Development."

Upon Dr. Murphy's return to the University, the Dean's Office and the President's Office received letters of appreciation and thanks from the National Education Association for the rich experience and keen insight which Dr. Murphy rendered.

SOMETIMES THE WIND
Sometimes the wind of life, when it blows by, smells to high heaven. The wind may have shuttled through a swamp, or we may have something lodged in our jowls. But when everyone gets the same stuff at the same time... then it is the wind which is ailing. In 1921 when Sacco and Vanzetti were electrocuted, the air was swampy. It was no better during the last days of Austria when sabers shone in the brilliant sunlight and steel glistened in the glare of street lights. There is a small now. There is a small now. It is this. Why are we, as students over here, not taking an interest in the affairs of those small countries over there?

The students of the American Colleges form a solid block. There is another block—the Italian people. Italy brought home the proverbial bacon. "The hand that held the psychic put it in the vodka of its purported neighbor."
The students in the American Colleges are not confused because most of them are veterans who know what CANNOT be done without a strong thumb. They can use their solid block as the Italian people used theirs—by merely taking far more than an ordinary interest in the affairs of those small countries over there. Odors of wishy-washy jockeying and unpreparedness, violent now, when dispelled by solid blocks will then be less offensive.

SALUTE

The Suffolk Journal tips its editorial cap to the Yowder staff, the Year Book staff, the Faculty, the Administrative staff, the Student Council, the Athletic teams, Chap men, and University and Law school students for a job well done.

Now that the school year has faded away into dust, to be we can all look back to it as the time when ties were made and tightened, not only educationally but socially as well.
It has been a period of both material and mental construction. It has been a period of pleasure and gain with And so, to all of you, whether the part you played was big or small, we fire a journalistic salute with an earnest hope that the next school year will surpass the one gone by. Our hats are tipped to you.

LETTERS TO . . .

From Gloucester to Cummington, the so-called "new look" has been the subject of much controversy among the male population. Here at Suffolk University the corridors resounded with arguments pro and con on this crucial change—mostly con—as we, the members of the Suffolk Clerical Staff, soon discovered. Voices became louder, but our skirts became shorter. The steam Accused of dressing in surplus tents wearing sleeping garments to work and giving competition to the Street Cleaner Union, we the "white collar sisters" paved the way for the hesitant co-ed.

Appreciation to the Journal for seeing that we no longer wear the gray checkerboard. But recognition should be given to the true fact—unmistakable prerequisites at Suffolk—the working girl!

SUFFOLK CLERICAL STAFF

Dear Sir:
I find it difficult to understand the student mentality. As a student myself I find it unusual that I am in a minority when it comes to school activities. I am one of the few who has supported the athletic activities of the University and at times have noticed that besides the Journal staff reporters I am the only one at has been selected as the first site for the new championship tournaments. The committee responsible in Samuel Behevsky, the U.S. champion. His home is in Roxbury and by profession he is an accountant. The latest reports from the Netherlands indicate that he is doing fine in the tournaments. If he returns to Boston with the crown we can be sure he will keep it for many many years. Mr. Behevsky eats with knife and fork.

I heard some pretty good jokes at a stag party I went to last week. This is the one that didn't need laughing. It goes like this:
Mr. Johnson was accused of death of his wife. So when he left his poker game at 2:30 in the morning he had plenty of cause to worry. He searched his front row very intently and took off his shoes before going upstairs. Then he tiptoed into his bedroom and began to undress. His wife was fast asleep, but when he got into bed she stirred slightly and said, "Is that you, Peter?"
Mr. Johnson saw only one way out. He kicked his wife's hand

Fund Open To College Elites

All young men of fortune having difficulty in meeting the cost of their education may get assistance from the Student Loan Fund of the Massachusetts Daughters of the American Revolution.

Any student of any race creed or color who has completed one year of college is eligible for a loan and is not liable to any interest until he has been graduated from college one year of which interest begins at the rate of 2 percent. The interest advances in 4 percent the following year and to 6 percent the next year of which rate is remain until the loan is repaid in full.
For loans of this kind apply to Mrs. Seth Sprague, 23 Lafayette Street, Hingham, Mass.

Boston is again pennant hungry and to those of us who aren't able to spend much time at the ball park, Jim Britt and his broadcasts are a godsend. But despite the pleasure which Mr. Britt brings into our lives, he remains more than ever, one of the worst threats to a Boston pennant.

We are faced with a deliberate conspiracy. Mr. Britt in all probability is totally unaware of the harm he is causing our Red Sox and Braves. Let us hear him in a typical broadcast.

Britt: The bases are loaded. Stephens up. Stephens is a long ball hitter. Good clutch hitter, too. He's a threat to any pitcher.

What happens. Stephens hits a dribbler back to the pitcher. Pitches to home to first. Double Play.

Britt: Peaky is doing wonderfully at third. He hasn't made many errors. I think he'll be a great third baseman some day.

What happens. Peaky lets the ball go through his legs into left field. Two runs come in.

Britt: Dobson is on the mound for the Sox today. He's got a marvelous earned run average. I wouldn't be surprised if he won twenty-five games for Joe McCarthy this year.

What happens. Dobson folds in the first inning. Seven runs for the Yankee.

I am not a believer in pinxes. Yet there does seem to be some intangible force which handicaps our ball clubs after Mr. Britt exaggerates his optimism. The next time Dobson begins to fold, Joe McCarthy ought to take out Britt, not his ace hurler.

MOVIE SLANTS

by Larry Quirk

Producer-director Dudley Nichols and RKO Studios have made a grave-worthy but futile attempt to civilize effectively Eugene O'Neill's ungodly and unromantic 1931 play, Mourning Becomes Electra. The original run for six hours, the film has been spinned into a mere three. Over the years, stage critics who officially hid themselves at indignities over the merits of plays have quipped by lauding this O'Neill version of the old Greek tragedy, Electra, as Great Art. That it may be, but as pure Entertainment, expressed through the cinematic medium, it falls flat. The cast of dignis is simply not adapted to films. Mr. Nichols and assistants are to be commended for an almost completely faithful and true depiction of the original, for once we cannot accuse filmmakers of "Hollywoodizing" the material. But where there was some justification for turning the stage version a work of art, the film fails to measure up to art or entertainment.

A morbid study of the frustrations and fixations of the Mannon of New England, circa 1865, the story offers a pretty set of characters, including Lavinia (Hazel Hazzel), who has a fixation on her father, General Mannon (Raymond Massey), her brother Orin (Michael Redgrave), who has a fixation on his mother, Christine (Katina Paxson), who in turn is contending with her husband for the affections of a distant kinsman, Adam Brant (Lee Remick). Standing by brotherly lovelorn are Peter (Kirk Douglas), who loves Lavinia, and his sister Hazel (Nancy Coleman), who loves Orin. Hovering in the background is the sinister old gardener (Henry Hull), who is on intimate terms with all the past and present skeletons in the family closet. Murders, suicides, and unexpected brood-beatings are of course in order, this being a classic tragedy, and Mother proceeds to murder Father in order to marry her lover, thus incurring the hatred of father-loving Lavinia and the mad jealousy of mother-loving Orin, and this delightful pair hasten to go away with Mother's boyfriend, whereupon Mother commits suicide. Orin (are you following?) proceeds to work themselves into a fine state of nerves with Orin eventually committing suicide, and Lavinia shutting herself up in the mansion to live out the remainder of her life "expiating the Mannon sins" although just how she proposes to do that little thing is not made clear.

Go To Norway For Summer Study

The Dean's Office has been informed that three of our students have been accepted for summer study at the University of Oslo in Norway. The students are George A. Robinson of Gloucester, James H. Harris of Peabody, and Edward P. Wielgos of Manchester. They are all Sophomores and because of their status as veterans will receive some assistance from the government.

Though study at this foreign university those students hope to broaden their knowledge in international relations and trade as well as supplement their understanding of the customs of foreign countries.

Rifle-Hill Sharpshooters Go To Pistol Shootings Awards

by Warren Nigro

The Suffolk University Rifle and Pistol Club brought their first season to an official close with a loud bang last week when members vied for intra-club shooting honors in the rifle and pistol departments.

The meet was held at the West Newton Police Range on April 27 in the evening. Bullets weren't making all the noise. The spectators helped out with their cheers. To the winner with each weapon went one of the two bronze trophies which have been on display in the school library.

The members of the Club are modest about, but might proud of their first season's activities. And just so among other things they inaugurated their own weekly publication, Suffolk University Rifle and Pistol Club News. They organized and conducted open classes for all S. U. students on the care and use of small arms weapons. Yes indeed they deserve the trophies which have been on display in the school library.

But there's more to come. Said of Liberal Arts, Sumner Gilman, member Eddie Nicholas, "That's nothing. Watch us next season."

IRC Delegation Lauded In New Haven Forum Meet

The Suffolk University delegation was praised by the Faculty Conference Advisor Dr. James M. New Haven State Teachers College, as the finest parliament group present at the International Relations Forum Conference held in New Haven.

The conference was conducted with the possibility of a showdown between the Western Division and the Soviet Union. The main tradition presented by the Suffolk University group was interpreted as a large meeting.

It read as follows: Resolved, that we as world citizens cannot solve world problems (that are undoubtedly as possible) within the framework of World Law. Understanding does not necessarily mean that all political and ideological differences can be resolved so that people will continue to call each other neighbors who do believe that United Law can be established to prevent war on the top of earth and therefore we record as supporting a conference within the United Nations General Assembly on the basis of Article 108 and 109 of the United Charter for the immediate establishment of a World Government with universal legislative power, free press, free way and toward peaceful, loving, international trade harmony.

At the close of the Forum, a banquet was held at the Hotel Danvers where two Yale students received addresses on the benefits of World Government. Suffolk representatives of the Journalism students in Mr. Ratcliffe's Editorial 22 class were treated last week to a showing of the technicolor movie "Magazine Magic" as part of their course in Advanced News Administration.

The picture showing the actual production of magazines was made by the Curtis Publishing Company, nationally known publishers of the Saturday Evening Post, Ladies Home Journal and others.

The parts imitate the movie traced the complex process of producing a magazine magazine from the first stage of cutting the type for the pulp to the final stage of home delivery.

The pulp comes out in paper thin sheets and the rolls of paper are placed in a Double X press and printed.

From the press, these printed sheets go to other machines where they are cut into separate pages. The pages placed in their correct order, the magazine cover attached, the book folded, stapled, wrapped and addressed — all automatically.

Mr. Ratcliffe in offering the movie to his class showed that what are not only entertaining but instructive as well.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT BORN IN GREATER BOSTON MOVE

On March 20, 1948, an independent student movement made up of representatives of Boston University, Harvard, Tufts, Lesley, Wellesley, Radcliffe, Northeastern, Simmons, Emmanuel, Framingham State, Teachers College, and Suffolk University met to found what is now known as the Greater Boston Student Government Conference.

Initially independent of the National Student Association, this conference will serve as a state College Newspaper. Many colleges federated an advisory group. It already have made the Editor-in-Chief of the College Newspaper an automatic member of the Student Council and the idea has changed of these between students been a complete success.

The Suffolk delegates to the Conference were as follows: Student Councilors Tom McDonald, Jim Paganan, and Jack Stanton. Other Suffolk representatives were Alex Feinberg, Coeditor of the Yowler, Paul Buchanan, Vice-President of the Sophomore Class, Charles Pratt, Business Manager of the Suffolk Journal, John McCarty, and Bert Krinsky.

The Conference also sponsored a banquet on Friday Evening, N.S.A. Affairs, Politics and College Newspapers. The banquet features up a resolution calling for student emancipation from administrative control, and a closer relationship between the student body and the faculty.

level in something good and vital where he can't get it. Like a rebel's chair and a tub for the Mrs.

I know nothing about business! Thomas Savage says. I am like a lamb among wolves in the business world.

Asked whether he enjoyed teaching at Suffolk, he said: "I have never known more interested, more eager to stimulate, more intelligent people than the students of interest among college students in Suffolk. There is a spirit of self-education here. It is something that is being done in the world and part of it is being done here. That is the reason I'm going to stay."

When asked what you think students will do for you this summer?

It has given me a great deal of pleasure. I think it is a mistake that I can't find it in all the reading. I don't know what you are going to do with your money?

I'm going to buy a few pairs of shoes and two diamonds. For my new photograph I don't have television or radio.

Do you like football?

No. I dislike it very much. All games where you chase balls of any kind I don't like.

Which part of your book do you think will be omitted by the screen?

The book itself. All kinds of characters, activities and incidents. The screen is only interested in the story itself.

Are you going to take any time off this summer?

Yes. I'm going to take the entire summer off and start a new book. I also plan to go on a lot of parties.

Are you going to take Bourbon on your journey?

No. I don't drink.

Is there anything you have thought of that you could have put into the book to make it better?

Yes. You are never through improving a book. It is never perfect. Does teaching school help you to write?

In a way. I feel when you write you should be active. It is a dangerous thing for any writer to retire in for always to retire but that matter.

Are you confident that Bits Haverthill will be the star of the movie?

What prompted you to encourage the new school publication?

I encouraged it because I felt that it would be one of the first steps towards accreditation.

Do you think that it will stimulate the students?

It already has. A school publication is a school's life. We will exchange our publication with those of other universities.

Where did you spend most of your life?

In Montana on a cattle ranch. That's where I got the atmosphere for the book.

When will it be published?

Around the first of October. Is the new book going to be about ranch life also?

No. I'm interested in small towns. This one will take place in Dillon, Montana. A story of modern life. That idealism you detect you will be the theme.

The University of Massachusetts at Dartmouth sponsored a Conference on the Creative Arts at Devens which was directed at the undergraduate level in New England colleges.

gress will directly participate in establishing and maintaining the policies both here and abroad.

There were 1,000 votes cast in the S.E. poll. MacArthur was fourth with 72 votes, and Dewey and Stassen tied with 61 votes.

Next was Vandenberg with 48, seventh was Taft with 25, eighth was Justice William O. Douglas, Saltonstall, and George Marshall, each having 13 votes, ninth was Norman Thomas with 8, last was Forestall with 4.

In addition to the ballot, which provided space for comment, the JOURNAL also interviewed some of the students personally. Here are a few of their statements:

H. A. Herbert, C.I.A. "For will I be from being in sympathy with the event, yet I fear our next president will be one of our popular generals. People having faith in our bungling Washingtonians, invariably turn to the military. It will probably be Eisenhower."

George S. Elias, pre-legal (IRC President). "I feel Truman is a poor choice. Taft is impossible; Wallace's policies are too ambiguous. I pick Vandenberg as president, with Stassen as vice-president."

Charles G. Simon, pre-legal (IRC member). "The Republicans face a dilemma. They must have a candidate with a large amount of popular appeal and one they can control. Vandenberg is the best one. But if he is chosen he will be directly under the Republican dominance. The Democrats, by necessity, have to choose Truman, and Truman has destroyed himself. Wallace, instead of making a tool of the Communist Party, is letting them make a tool of him. That man for man, Wallace is the best because of his honesty, sincerity, and candor."

Huebner Reviews Outstanding Suffolk Teams

I want to pass out a bunch of lacked replacements to spend in well-deserved roses to the '47 and A man gets tired running all 48 Suffolk sport teams. To these times look at the basketball team men and the athletic office go and what they did, they had the year of sports that was well done the others a rest. And cough will Charlie Law though he may be tell you that this is a very important factor in any sport next year and shipped into share a basket. I'll bet five semester hoops that ball team that won more than we have a winning team three-fourths of their games. The most memorable game that stars through to play its first game, the in my mind is the defeat they VA sent me on a three-week handed to Calvin Coolidge College coach' by the Clothing General by losing them 132-40. Here is a Hospital Rudy Feudo, who has game, the last one of the season, covered all the ball games, gave in which ALL the men scored me all the box scores and out four or more points. Baines, Mc- standing plays. The way the Queenswood, Higginbottom, scores looked I would like to say Steadman, Rubenstein, Silver, that we need more emphasis on control pitching and let the bats will all be back next year, and soft, knuckleball and sliders got with the new Freshman blood for awhile. My bunch of roses also added, it promises to give only the outfield boys who can cover one thing to Suffolk, Victory.

I followed the Hockey squad here of roses could be ten years through many credits and even the team, under the coach to walk two miles, to get to see the MacCaffery and Colburn, the Fitzburg game when my have completed the round-robin paper muscle first gave out on the muscles, to determine the players highways. It was worth it that will face Suffolk opponents.

Injuries held the squad down to the team is a new one and not the have necessities and if those much has been heard from the who were out with injuries could courts but when the fall rolls replay the past schedule, we would around. I'll have more to tell all see what a full team would do. The golf team was before this year, and no report has come through on any games. The other ing hockey game to Shafter for colleges and universities on, the making 70 saves at the Colby golf schedule are Babson Institute game. In my opinion he would and M.T. From what I hear have made just as many saves if M.T. has a strong team, and if they were shooting the pucks at a feared that the engineers will him with a machine gun.

The soccer team kicked the ball through the fall issue of the journal flat during the season, but here till the fall issue of the journal was a case of unusually strong opponents. Now don't think that I'm putting a rose-colored tint on teams, and whether you're a fan fact that we have one of the best or players, don't forget that takes soccer teams in the State. Who a lot of sweat and guts to play as didn't they win more games year after the men did this year see next year and before I ask. Well, here's the inside story on the score. The men were tops forget it, here's a bunch of roses as soccer players, but they had to be the contest looks for your play the whole game through We part at the games.

BANNER SPORTS YEAR IN '48 '49

by Bill Huebner

With the acquired knowledge of the past year the Athletic Office that you can expect next semester has predicted a banner year for ALL Suffolk sports during the work with the men will have 48 and 49 season. New England sports coaches, and both the men and coaches will have the additional funds with which to purchase the equipment needed by the players. A new system of transportation is on the drawing board at this minute so that next year the men will use heated buses for any long road trips out of state.

We at the Journal sports staff will cover all games next season and with the addition of a new sport page, we must be able to give just about a play-by-play description. That just about winds up this year of sports reporting so for the sports staff, I'll say so long for now and remember the old saying, "If you can't play a sport be one."

The team for next year will include baseball, hockey, tennis, soccer, golf and basketball. At present the fate of a Suffolk eleven on the football gridiron is still being worked out on the drawing board. The problem of acquiring a suitable field is one of the main headaches of the designers.

The new Freshmen due to arrive in the fall will be a welcome transfusion to all the teams. Quite a few of the men have been through the four-year high school sports-mill, so with a little change in their playing style, the coaches will have them playing college ball.

Devens Topples Suffolk In Debut 14-5

After a brilliant unofficial debut of Harvard (the variety that is) the Suffolk nine was picked out of the air at Ayer by a smooth Devens team to the unimpeachable tune of 14 to 5.

Dick Long started on the mound, but finding the wilds of the surrounding country no match for his chucking, gave up to Red Riley in the third. The only change on the mound was the color of hair. Dick had little control and Red had little more and the Devens men reached both of them quite often. Riley seemed to have been lonely in the field as he mat always had a goodiezie crowd around him on the bases. Red did look good in the pinches though and did get out of a lot of the holes cheap. Sies replaced Riley on the tossing in the seventh and looked good in his first shut-out despite several runs including a homer being tallied against him. As poor as the pitching staff looked compared to their reputations, it must be said that they had little support from the infield spots.

Eddie Mayo played a stellar game on the keystone sack as did Tempero in the hot corner. First base and shortstop positions are weak, however. Donovan looked like a natural on first, but a couple of his actions there were rather silly. Sidewick replaced him in the sixth and did a good job while he was in. Sepharin played quite a prominent part in the game, but as everyone wasn't up to par he will most likely improve with time.

The outfield looks no improvement. Reardon in left, Semkowicz in center, and Pappas in left covered the pastures with blanket-like efficiency. In the second inning the bases were loaded. Duarte, the Devens pitcher, hit a long ball to Pappas. Pappas' throw to the plate was so perfect the man on third didn't even leave the bag. Pappas continued his starring role in the fourth by tagging a terrific triple to left scoring Reardon and Tempero.

Suffolk Nine Drops Heartbreaker In Tenth

Suffolk dropped its second game of the season, 2 to 1, when Bud Niles, Tufts' top hurler, tapped a base. Leisner over the head of Eddie Mayo sending the tie-breaking run in, in the last half of the ninth inning.

Big John O'Brien hurried a masterpiece, allowing Tufts only seven hits over the full course. Both pitchers were in complete control during the extended duel which afforded a pleasant contrast to the dance at Devens. The hitting of both teams was under par and the strong wind from center aided it in staying there. Nick Pappas had two extra base tags stolen when the wind held them in the air long enough to be caught and Eddie Mayo was similarly robbed of one.

Both pitchers buckled down, completely handicapping the batters. The contest entered the extra inning and Suffolk couldn't hit or get on. In the Tufts time at bat in the tenth, O'Brien walked the first man up. The second man bunted down the third line. O'Brien rushed in to scoop it up and slipped on the damp turf, the man reaching first safe. With Haines on second and Johnson in first, Niles dropped that disastrous angle between first and second, breaking the deadlock and winning the game.

Suffolk University does not coaches which were in use when have its share of Greek-lettered Buffalo Bill was riding the west-ern plains. It has been estimated that three- fourths of Suffolk student body say some kind of train is travel- ing to and from school every day and that same situation probably prevails at the other colleges throughout Boston. On one of the five commuter lines from Law- rence to Boston an average of 1,200 persons ride every morning and of these only 200 are commu- ter students. These commuters are remembered for their punctuality. These daily ride in the

This year, 1948 A.D. will be remembered throughout the ages as the year that the engi- ners of the B and M, working in the field and laboratory, discovered that round wheels will give a smoother ride than the square feature. The respiratory tract of the commuters have for some year- time been accustomed to inhaling a large quantity of coal and smoke that thrust back from the engine into the old-style tin coaches through the old ventilating sys- tem of open doors and windows. To take ram away from an alco- holics smoke at every stop, pulling a line of rust-colored high-raised square constructed coaches that thrill our great-grandfathers, the new train will have a chro- mica and blue-painted beam-er and a low slim streamlined set of cars. On the top of each car is a turret that resembles a gun-ner's turret on a B-29 to be used for observation. I believe in time the regular passengers will be come accustomed to these new features and they will be as long as the eye as the old com- muter. A look at the commu- tered to the interior. The hat- making industry will also suffer. A hat may last as long as six months with the new train; seeds of a future depression.

However, the frightened and philanthropic Board of Directors of the Boston and Maine Rail- road have taken all this into consid- eration and to prevent maladjust- ment and psychosomatic among their passengers, and to eradicate the possibility of a depression in the clothing industry, they have promised to effect the change slowly. The "Train of Tomorrow" will be on the commuter's run within the next five decades.

Anticipating a favorable season, the candidates for the Suffolk ten- nis team are in the middle of a round-robin tourney to determine who will carry the name of Sul- folk to the courts this year.

Four letters from the 47 tennis squad were on hand. Tom Sikes, Ray Barnes, George Kern- sicallie and Neil Cronin. These four men are expected to form the nucleus for this year's team. The new candidates are fol-
