TUITION AT S. U. HIKED $100.00

Pres. Munce, Other Officials Cite Increase In Faculty Pay, Operating Costs Rise

By LOUIS BELL

The tuition fee at Suffolk University reached a peak of $550 this year. Although the increase came as no surprise, the net change of $100 over last year's annual rate might be considered by some persons, before investigation of causes for the hike, as unreasonable.

President Robert J. Munce states that there are several reasons why the increase was imperative at this time. He explains: "For the past couple of years the University has been trying to forestall an increase in the face of rising costs. In effect, certain operations were somewhat sub-marginal. The increase was an attempt to adjust the tuition with higher costs."

Grad Men Cast

President Munce told the Journal that a new faculty scale rate of pay was adopted by the Trustees last Spring. The new rate was considered necessary because of a rising cost of living and the University's desire to offer salaries and wages that would be attractive to qualified instructors.

Also, not in small part due to the University's increased enrollments, many other costs have risen. More students use more rooms for more hours. Thus, utility costs rise along with maintenance costs.

The University has had to purchase larger quantities of stationery forms and other admin-

KNOW YOUR BACON

312 members of the 1961 class have set a mark for the highest enrollment for a freshman class. Making up both the day and evening divisions, the large group was welcomed in Suffolk by student Government President James Kelly. Seated in their blue and gold beanies, the frosh were shown typical Ham hospitality in the Auditorium on Registration Day.

Our message to this class is that it remember what the great English essayist, Francis Bacon said on studying. Because you'll find it on the English Literature final exam.

Vogel, Floyd Tour Europe

By James Walsh

Dr. Stanley M. Vogel, associate professor of English, and Dr. Norman B. Floyd, associate professor of history, have both returned to Suffolk after week-long trips to Europe.

Dr. Vogel concentrated on the Mediterranean countries, particularly Greece, where he studied the archaeological sites of ancient Greek civilization throughout the Peloponnese and the Aegean Islands. In Athens, he attended performances of the plays of Euripides and Aristophanes held in a two-thousand-year-old theater on the Acropolis. He also found significance in his visits to Delphi, Olympia, Myrae, and the islands of Crete and Rhodes.

administrative supplies. A new, rather costly automatic posting machine was also put into service this semester.

Big Enrollment Cause

In both the college department and the Law School, increased enrollments coupled with generally higher costs, has necessitated larger per capita expenditures over and above the previous tuition rates income provisions.

Just as larger populations necessitate more governmental services, reflected in higher tax

60 VOICE CHOIR AIM OF CLUB

Vocalists, both male and fe- male, are needed to fill the ranks of Suffolk's newly organized Glee Club, it was revealed at the Club's first meeting held this month.

The singing unit, under the in- struction of Paul Blanchette, hopes to have some 60 students within its folds before Christmas. Presently there are 16 girls and 14 boys in the Club.

The choir meets every Tuesday at 2:30 p.m. in room 14 and every Thursday in the Auditorium at 2:30.

Officers elect are Pete Monahan, Pres.; Louisa Demaderesan, Vice-Pres.; Phyllis Smith, Treas.

SUPPORT

Suffolk athletic teams give their all for the benefit of the school.

They are entitled by the support of every student.

This year, let us all get behind them 100%. We know that such encourage- ment will give them great spirit and the will to strive for the top.

ENROLLMENT SETS RECORD

By BILL HEARDON

Continuing its record progress, Suffolk University's enrollment reached a total of 1600 students this year. Included in this figure are 265 undergraduate law school students. The College Extension division listed 295 registrants, largest since its founding in Sept., 1952. This increase in all departments tops registration at the University since February, 1948, when 2000 were admitted here.

President Robert J. Munce lauded members of the faculty, college administrative staff, and student workers for a most efficient performance in handling the large group of incoming students.

He noted, "Our plant is now running at full capacity, and if this search for educational knowledge continues, we will have to expand or take a platform system measure. This measure would regulate class schedules and course hours."

Standards stiffen here, the registration was speeded up considerably. All files and respective cards on students were are now on a plane in which it

Acting Superintendent of Suffolk Buildings and Grounds James Kenney, along with his staff of seven assistants, converted the former smoking lounge adjacent to the University Library into a new classroom, 30C.

Miss Dorothy M. McNameara, Bursar, stated, "With the acquisition of a new automatic posting machine for the first time here, the registration was speeded up considerably. All files and respective cards on students were are now on a plane in which it

Professor Malcolm M. Donahue, chairman of the Law School Faculty Committee on Scholarships, has announced the following information on Fall semester awards of the Suffolk University Law School.

Donahue Names Fall Award Recipients

SUFFOLK UNIVERSITY LAW SCHOLARSHIPS
 John T. Dolan of Boston, evening; James Jung of Boston, day; Russell Mahoney of Chelsea, day; and Paul McGuane of Brighton, evening.

This is the first year that the preceding scholarships have been awarded. Established by the Trustees, they are granted to Suffolk University graduates who have maintained high scholastic standing in their college work. The recipients are first year law students. The purpose of the scholarship is to encourage high ranking Suffolk graduates to attend the Law School.

CLUB LEADER SCHOLARSHIPS
 George A. Malloy of Dorchester, third year evening; Francis X. McDonough of Jamaica Plain, second year evening; Melvin F. Rosen of Ayer, third year day; and Kenneth E. MacMullen of Brockton, second year day student.

The above scholarships are awarded by the Faculty from monies made available by the Law School Alumni Fund. They are presented on the basis of the student's cumulative academic standing.

STEINBERG SCHOLARSHIP
 Charles S. Hoffman of Wakefield, Suffolk A.B. degree, June 1956.

This scholarship was established by Louis H. Steinberg of the Class of 1925. It is awarded annually to that senior in the Evening Division who has the highest average for the three preceding years.

DAVID I. WALSH SCHOLARSHIP
 John V. Dunne, Jr. of Everett, second year day student.

The Walsh scholarship started in memory of the late U.S. Senator from Clinton, is awarded on recommendation of officials of the undergraduate school.

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS SCHOLARSHIP
 Robert E. Dinamore of Chelsea, second year evening student.

The above scholarship was established in memory of the late U.S. Supreme Court associate justice.

MERRIMACK COLLEGE SCHOLARSHIP
 Arthur P. Rogers of Lowell, first year day student.

Professor Donahue states that there are several other scholarships available through the Suffolk University Law School Alumni Fund. These are awarded on the basis of academic excellence, character, and need during the last academic year. Twenty-one students received these awards.

Something For Nothing

Education costs money. Students might check tuition books both here and elsewhere, to make this statement evident. Yet, even in this era of economics, good things are free.

Incoming freshmen, and hard earned academic veterans, if they haven't learned already, should take note of the lack of formality between students and professors. It is a cross between the colonel to private dictatorial set up, and above the 'Hi, how are ya' corridor greeting.

Here rests an opening to free knowledge and scores of unmet student questions. A few intellectual

Pres. Munce Greets Fresh

By now you have come to feel the warmth and friendliness of the Suffolk Family of Students, Faculty and Administration and be assured the response is sincere.

Be free to go to anyone in the Student Government, on the Faculty, or, the Administration, at any time, should you have the desire for counsel or encouragement. You are "wanted" at Suffolk and you are welcome at all times by the Suffolk Family.

And by the way, do not forget that your first responsibility, as a student at our Suffolk, is to your "studies". Keep your classroom work always out in front of your thinking. However do not neglect your secondary obligations — those to yourself. You are here not only to learn but to develop a positive personality, fit into various groups, work with your fellow students and cooperate with all with whom you associate. Classroom work is important but equally important are activities that give stability and permanence to character.

Again, we are pleased that you have come to us at Suffolk.

Cordially,
ROBERT J. MUNCE
 PRESIDENT

The Messy 'Wreck'

Although upperclassmen shrug with indifference at the sight of your messiness, it does not wipe away the fith before the eyes of the incoming Fresh or transfer students. The 'Wreck Hall' looks like a cyclone struck it and has given that impression since the year one.

The Journal feels that new students will fall into this annual rut. Examples should be made. We think high schools maintain hygiene, we feel colleges should demand it.

Before the trash excruciates the Asian flu germs, we ask each student to act like he or she was brought up with installed plumbing and white paper napkins. We implore the workers of the concession to tidy up their tables and turn in violators of common sense rules of cleanliness to the Student Council.

Finally, but it seems childish, we ask the Student Council to punish offenders. Maybe a week's banishment from the Canteen would help.

By DICK HOOKER

I dug through some old Journals the other day, and, like any honey closet, they bared depressing news. My rambling search ended with a copy of a 1955 Journal edition. It contained a morbid tale of the careless death and burial of Suffolk's Drama Club.

The author sobbed a gasping lament to the fading group: "Here lies the Drama Club — died 1955 — after a lingering illness — a victim of apathy."

With malice toward none, it is the director from Emerson, was an artificial elegy. In two words the idea was a popular-seasons certain, strong-willed, play. There were many roles to lifted the tombstone and cast it ease. But who can shadow Bill inside. He turned in one of the finest performances I've seen in Suffolk's auditorium. For those who failed to miss the dollar and a quarter, they have't right to feel cheated.

DR. MURPHY
 A series of four one act plays presented a challenge. Delana and Carly's "Strains" pulled the strings" was the first best, it was soon a memory as Kathy Flower's side the show while depicting a cranky woman four times over her own years.

Many Stand Outs
 There were many stars. Mr. Caffrey had a fine job as the hard drinking, uncommitted barbecher, Howard. His marriage-conscious girl friend, Kathy Flower, clung helplessly to the muscular Doucette, when the part asked her to elope.

Spring Brings Picnic
 Spring breezed into the Drama Club as well as the fresh idea. "Why not do Picnic" suggested an undisciplined enthusiasm. "Capt. Call" rest on some "but that's a writer who penned that sad epic task." Who will play the lead role?" a skeptic asked.

Morale Factor Cited by Govt.

By MICHAEL CICCO

President-elect James Kelley welcomed the old and new members to the Suffolk Student Government last month.

One of the first duties of the Student Government was to inaugurate an election committee for the temporary freshmen officers. Those who were elected to fill the three vacant seats were John Johnson, Henry Smith and John Kelleher.

The new members will hold offices until the official elections.

A heated discussion developed over the careless littering in the cafeteria. A motion was made that an "open" letter be sent to the classrooms asking the cooperation of all students. Failure to comply will result in disciplinary action by the college.

Female Boosters
Sophomore representative Jeanne McCarthy, who has been active in various extracurricular activities, has organized an enthusiastic group of cheerleaders. Many new faces will be seen at the coming basketball games. This new addition to the sports program was received with unanimous approval by the Student Government.

PLACEMENT BUREAU ENDS JOB SCARCITY

By ROBERT VINCENT

Approximately 70 per cent of the students attending Suffolk University this semester are seeking either full or part-time employment following graduation. The school's Placement Bureau, under the direction of Mr. Donald Woodrow, played an important part in helping many of the students.

"According to our records," said Woodrow, "almost all the students who have applied to the Bureau are working. A much higher percentage of upperclassmen have jobs than do freshmen, because the latter were advised not to work their first year or until they became adjusted to college life."

Variety in Jobs
In order to place students in various occupations, a representative of the Placement Bureau attends all retail store conferences. Work in department stores appears to lure the majority of students, especially during the Christmas holidays, and the retail conferences are the best method of procuring potential part-time help.

For those students who have not yet secured a job, Mr. Woodrow stated that evening students have the best chances for work although day students will have many opportunities by Christmas. Work in the Post Office is particularly popular with the male students, according to the Bureau's files. As in the past, an appeal will be made for more help in this field to cover the deluge of Christmas mail.

"Chances for full-time work for seniors are excellent," Mr. Woodrow states. "If our plans are fulfilled, most seniors will have at least a promise of employment prior to graduation."

'57 Grad Joins Staff, English Dept. Grows

By DICK BOOKER

Four years ago a young Lowell man plodded through Suffolk's corridors as a befuddled freshman. Today, aged with confidence and experience, the fellow walks with the poise of a man who landed a position in an outstanding English department. Which, by the way, he did.

Jack McAffery, 26, of Lowell, took his place among the school's veteran English professors three months after graduation. For awhile the appointment was in doubt. "I played on in the library throughout the summer waiting for the word," McAffery said. "Rhode Island University informed me that I had a fellowship waiting there. It was tempting, but I wanted to wait on the possibilities of teaching here."

Named in August
In August, McAffery's debt-ridden wife was notified when Dr. Nelson C. Hennessey, head of the English staff, informed him that he was one of five new appointments to the expanding department. McAffery, as a Phi Kappa Sigma member, escapes the greenbook tag. As a senior he taught three courses in Business English at the New England Institute.

SOCIATIC METHOD
"I think students suffer in other courses when they lack the ability to write. If a student has learned to organize his material and present it, then his grade should be 10 per cent higher than a similar person who knows his stuff but has a hard time putting it into the nice book," offered McAffery.

The new instructor, who begins studying for his master's degree at Tufts in February, praised Dr. Rita Murphy for her application of the question and answer method of education. He plans to adapt it to his own use.

"In having the entire class participate in the lecture, studying before each class is mandatory. It keeps each student on his toes, and shows the instructor what he or she actually knows," McAffery concluded.

As an undergraduate, McAffery interested himself with the Drama Club. He still lends assistance and advice whenever need arises. While playing a jaded out-of-control character in a one-act play by Strindberg last year he showed a feeling of class for the first time. "Let me see how I can help you," he said. "I've never felt like this before. I've never felt like this before."

Kadar Man in Korea
The one time airman Lamell forced himself with that "being alone" feeling while stationed in Korea with an "undetached America" Warrent. He spent 12 months on the eve of his penultimate, winning his skies through a radio set.

One skirmish has ended, but another takes its place. The conflict between students and teachers, McAffery's from a small town and Communist-in-time honor student has mapped out the plan of attack.

Drama Club Makes Plans

By Maureen Saguez

The Suffolk University Drama Club held its opening meeting on Monday, September 26, in the Suffolk Law Lounge, with Dr. Ella Murphy and Mr. John McAffery acting as advisers.

An informal coffee hour gave the students a chance to get better acquainted. Of the 26 that attended the meeting there were familiar faces from last year and many new faces, including people experienced in acting, make-up, stage design and other forms of theatrical work.

The club is delighted to welcome back Mr. William Borly as director, who was in large part responsible for the success of the club last year. The plans of the club are tentative pending a future meeting with Mr. Borly.

"I was delighted at the number of new members at the first meeting and the evidence of varied talent. I feel sure that our 1957-1958 season will be an outstanding one," remarked Dr. Ella Murphy, faculty adviser of the Drama Club.

rates, so do more students demand more services and activities, at added cost to the administration.

New instructors have been procured by the Law School and college departments, again, out of necessity, it was learned in interviews with Dean Donald W. Goodrich of the College and Dean Frederick A. McDermott of the Law School.

In many cases 25 new students will require an additional instructor.

More Full Timers

The college has a gain of eight new full-time instructors over last year, with a loss of five part-time instructors. However, the number of courses being taught by part-timers is less than the ratio (36 full-time and 22 part-timer) would indicate. This is also proportionately less than last year's ratio.

During the past two years the Law School, with a 50 per cent increase over last year's freshman class enrollment, has also found it necessary to take on additional instructors—four full-time and three part-time.

As may be obvious, for the sake of improvement the University has tried to cut down on the relative amount of teaching done by part-timers.

However, it was pointed out that the new rate paid to that group is considered to be extremely favorable to the procurement of plus-standard instructors.

Generally, new courses and larger sections may be noted in several departments of the University.

"With respect to comparable programs and university size and population, Suffolk's tuition is still lower in the New England region," President Munce said.

"We're Breaking Even"
He continued, "The philosophy of the Trustees is to charge a tuition at a 'break-even' estimate of enrollment and subsequent costs of operations. We

Veterans Club Plans To Publish

The Veterans' Club, gaining in size and strength since its birth less than a year ago, mapped out plans for a pamphlet publication and an investigation of the school cafeteria price rates, during its initial meeting early this month.

Club members number 200 with an enrollment drive now under way. Its officers are: Philip Roberts, pres.; Edwin McDonnell, vice-pres.; Mel Ellen, sec., and Peter Monahan, treasurer.

The group's Executive Council includes: Larry Capone, Bob Sullivan, and Joe O'Hara.

5 Courses On Law Roster, Credits Aid To L. L. M.

A comprehensive roster of five courses will commence on Wednesday, November 6 in the Graduate Program of the Suffolk University Law School, it was announced recently by Dean Frederick A. McDermott.

The courses, which will be offered in the late afternoon hours, will consist of twelve sessions. Each course is open to members of the bar, law school graduates, and other persons qualified for participation by virtue of occupation, training or experience. The courses may be taken for credit towards the degree of Master of Laws by qualified law graduates.

Additional information and registration forms may be obtained from the Registrar, Suffolk University Law School.

are a non-profit institution."

On Suffolk University expansion, he stated, "The trustees are conscious of expansion, while a definite program in that direction has not yet matured. However, expansion as such, is not reflected by tuition increases. Expansion is met rather by donations, endowments, and grants."

Although in four years enrollment has more than doubled, Suffolk's tuition has been reflected as thus, according to Miss Dorothy McNamara, Bureau, 1948 $390, 1951 $350, 1953 $400, 1955 $450, and 1957 $550.

"No Complaints"—Bursar
Miss McNamara also said, "Registration in this office went smoothly with the aid of the new National Cash Register Window Posting Machine." She continued, "Students made no adverse comments on the tuition increase when making their payments."

Approximately 40 veterans attending the University under Public Law 16, the World War II act, are not affected by the increase. Veterans attending under the Korean act, Public Law 350, and there are about 50 such students, do feel the squeeze, however.

"The Korean act provides on absolute amount of money per month, whereas the previous act pays all expenses incurred. In addition to the preceding group, there are approximately 25 students on scholarships. These include about 20 day undergraduates on full scholarships.

It might be pointed out here that the number of scholarship recipients at Suffolk ought not necessarily be considered large. Actually, on a percentage basis, there are less such students here than at several other universities with a comparable tuition fee.

Student Responses Over Tuition Rise

More Selective

"The sharp rise in student enrollment," remarked Miss Carol Haines, recorder in the college business office, "is simply due to the thirst for knowledge, and I like to see this." She continued, "We have grown more selective, and have had to turn many students away, or refer them to the evening extension division."

College placement here at Suffolk has been exceptional this year under the command of Mr. Donald P. Woodrow and his assistant, Mrs. Rita Shelman. All students who have other applied for positions or need assistance regarding living quarters, have been taken care of.

The high standing of academic and diplomatic relations the university has exhibited to all its members since its founding in 1966 is forever on the forward move. It will continue in this vein for all those who seek higher learning.

Students gave the following responses when asked for their thoughts on the tuition hike.

A junior female student stated, "I agree that a qualified instructor, who may have a family to support, must be paid a good wage."

Korean Bill Hit
A senior male student and veteran declared, "While incomes generally remain the same, costs go on the up-grade. As a veteran, I feel it on the Korean bill."

And a male graduate business student exclaimed, "The hike is probably not without just cause. It doesn't overtax me personally. However, a member of the senior class, a male business student, had this to say, "Although it seems to be becoming a habit among the local universities, I believe they have good reasons to do so." However, he went on to rebel against Suffolk's larger classes and "relatively antiquated" building. He continued, "The wage hike is good. It is in a good location but it needs more room. It cannot grow much larger—the rise hurts working and married students especially."

31 GRADS PASS BAR, CO-ED., BROS. LISTED

Dean Frederick A. McDermott has issued the following list of 31 Suffolk Law School graduates who were recommended for admission to the Bar on November 12 by the bar examiners on the basis of results of examinations they took in July.

The following twenty persons were members of the Class of 1957: Anthony J. Billé, Revere; Arthur M. Elias, East Boston; John S. Carleale, Hyde Park; Robert V. Cauchon, Medford; Ronald J. Chasim, Weymouth; Robert W. Deveau, Boston; John C. Heslion, Waltham; Harvey W. Levin, Lynn; Willard E. Matthews Jr., North Billerica; John F. McGrail, Dorchester; Mooradian, Haverhill; Joseph R. O'Malley, Concord; Jacob Oppewal, East Douglas; Fred Pearl-matter, Revere; Gordon F. Palfinger, Saugus; Gordon T. Roberts, Concord; Richard J. Triffes, Alton; Albert F. Wood, Woburn; Joseph V. Wood, Lowell; and Roger H. Woodworth of Norwood.

These eleven candidates were graduated in earlier years: Robert H. Burrage Jr., Boston; Herbert T. Cannon, Brighton; Joseph F. Doyle Jr., Salem; Saul Fates, Dorchester; Americo L. Ferullo, Boston; Lawrence P. Heming, Norway, Norwid; John Kasper Jr., Watertown; John C. Malton, Naick; Lewis G. Nelson Jr., Quincy; Maxine J. Simmons, West Medford; and Paul J. Vinet of Medford.

Brothers Pass Together

Both Albert F. Wood of Woburn and his brother, Joseph V. Wood of Lowell were among the Law School's 37 graduates. With their five brothers and two sisters they operate the Wood Brothers Flower Shop. They both hold B.S. degrees in chemistry from Boston College.

Albert, not his Suffolk classmate, is a student. He is currently serving with the U.S. Counter Intelligence Agency and was formerly associated as a chemist and supervisor with the First National Stores. He has been associated with the Boston law firm of T. Paul Smith since July.

Joseph was stationed with the Army Chemical Corps in England.

"It was necessary for Eisenhower to send in those troops, but it's just like putting a teacher in a room of unruly students. They behave while he is there but what happens when he leaves? They go right ahead with their original plans . . . that's what'll happen in Arkansas."

"The whole problem could have been centralized in Little Rock if integration had been gradually started in grammar schools, rather than immediately in the high school. By high school age children have assimilated much of parental prejudice and it will take a longer period of time."

"Fabus will be defeated in the next election because his action was a cheap publicity stunt involving a defenseless society."

ROBERT ZOLLO

Grad student, bio. lab instructor

"It'll be a long, long time before this is settled. The white people soon feels their security is, at stake and they associate eventual subjection by the colored race . . . naturally they're going to rebel . . . so would you. Perhaps you could call the Negro a majority minority in the South. American standards are held so tightly throughout the world and yet, actual practice is still . . . races never been genuine equals."

"The commies are making real propaganda meat out of this thing. What will the people in the satellite countries think? They're going to be disillusioned. I'm afraid I'm ashamed of Democracy and the American flag."

EAHLE SCHWARTZ
Freshman, of Lexington

"The problem began in 1760 or 1761, the Emancipation Act freed all the slaves. Most of them were unskilled workers with little education. They were a people overcome by circumstances."

"The President had the good sense and intelligence to send in the troops and try to secure equality for those people. Gov. Fabus didn't station his troops there for anyone's protection. They were only a means to prevent those Negro children from getting their dignified education."

"This whole Little Rock crisis could start a chain reaction . . . Fabus has overstepped reasonable limitations and done something no other governor has ever tried. He may be impeached any in any event, I doubt if he'll be re-elected."

Jr. Class Meets, Dues, Dance Topics

The first meeting of the Junior Class was held in Room 46 on Sept. 30, 1957. Five Dueses Multitane opened the meeting and introduced the class officers and Dr. Edward G. Hartmann, class advisor. Thus far, 200 students have paid their class dues. All those who have not are urged to contact a class officer immediately.

A Junior dance is being planned for mid-November and committees for the affair were chosen and are headed by general chairman.

At the next meeting, Mr. Bill Rowan, Balfour representative will be present for ring selection. All Juniors should plan to attend this Oct. 25 meeting at 10:25.

NAMES MAKE NEWS, SIGN YOUR LETTER

It is inevitable that certain students will have complaints against the administration, faculty, class meetings, other students, the Journal, and possibly the interior paint job might get clipped by active malcontents. We realize that conflict makes progress and encourage students to send letters to the editors. Whatever their content, within the realm of legitimate criticism, they will be printed if the letter has a signature. There will be no anonymous material printed. If you exist, you must have a name.

the problem would be more evident.

"When the young are confronted with problems of any sort they solve them rationally and often better than oldsters . . . when they reach high school age they have been indoctrinated by their parents and follow their principles."

"Gov. Fabus overplayed his hand and through ignorance has made this a world issue rather than a localized situation. I think the youngsters, those closest to the situation, should have a say in this matter."

ATTORNEY O'DEA NEWMAN SPEAKER

District Attorney James J. O'Dea Jr. of Middlesex County will speak at a Newman Club meeting on Monday Nov. 18, at 3:00 p.m.

President Joseph W. Archiprete, who invited the noted legalist to lecture, hopes for a full turnout from the Club members and the Student Body in general.

Adopts Boston South Korean Youth In Journalism Class

By IRV GRACE

The heavy bombardment had ceased. Kim Jong Chun, an 18 year old Korean boy, emerged from a hillside shelter to watch his native city of Seoul burn.

As he stood amid the ruins of the once beautiful capital city of Korea, Kim vowed that revenge would be his, someday. The year was 1950 and the Chinese Communists were closing in on Kim's beloved hometown. Kim had witnessed all the devastation, misery, and hardship that exist with war. It was a sight that could not easily be forgotten. The high school he had attended, the house he lived in, the friends he knew, were now gone forever.

From Seoul To Suffolk

Kim, now a sophomore, is fulfilling a dream that he hoped some day would come true. Chun always had a desire to further

Timeless Scars

Kim knew that the bitter wounds his people had suffered would heal in time, but the scar would remain for a long time.

When the U.S. Army's crack 18th Airborne Infantry Regimental Combat Team arrived in Seoul, Kim saw the opportunity for a change, and immediately joined the unit as a civil service worker. Shortly after, he made his first combat jump into Munsu-ki where repatriated prisoners of war were being held by U.S. forces.

From 1950 to 1954, he served as an interpreter for the United Nations Army. When the 18th Infantry combat team moved to Japan, Kim joined the 2nd Infantry Division's Counter Intelligence Corps. His duties were to question prisoners of war, or any suspected or unaccounted for persons, and to prevent leakage of security information.

During his assignment with the 2nd Infantry Division, Kim met an American Red Cross field director, who influenced him to obtain a higher education in the United States.

Today, 25-year-old Kim Jong Chun, is a Journalism major at Suffolk University. Before com-his education in Boston, because he was aware that this area is the major educational center in the United States.

Kim thinks that S.U. has an excellent journalism program. He also finds Bostonians very friendly, but admits that he has trouble understanding them, because they talk faster than southerners.

"My first impression of the United States," said Kim, "was that everything was far more superior than my friends had told me it would be. I'm sure that I will enjoy my stay in Boston, and at Suffolk University."

QUESTION: Identify the sport in which the four basic groups are throwing, grappling, choking, and arm locks. No, not marriage. JUDO, of course.

In an informative interview with Bob Mahn, a senior at Suffolk, your reporter picked up some information on this rather unusual recreation. Declining to take part in any demonstrations, I just sat back and asked Bob a few pertinent questions. And he turned out to be a highly qualified spokesman, as the following will indicate.

Down To Finals
He was a member of the 37 U.S. Judo Team which competed with the Canadian team at Detroit. Bob went all the way to the finals before losing out. In 1953 he was a member of the five-man East Coast championship team. I'm sure that some of my rabid readers will recall that Bob and a partner staged a judo exhibition at the Sophomore Class blast last year.

Bob describes judo as a training of the mind as well as of the body. The relative size of the contestants is not too important — a fact which surprised me. He added that speed is extremely essential. He concluded that the sport is not dangerous, injuries being rare.

He has been active in judo only four years, being introduced to it while a member of a Navy wrestling team. He went on to become an instructor while stationed in Alaska. He frequently lectures on judo and stages demonstrations throughout Greater Boston. He also judges at judo matches.

Beverage Muff
The Good Book says, "An eye for an eye . . ." and Joe Sapone has just such a thing in mind as he awaits a second defense of his National Intercollegiate Pocket Billiard Championship.

When Joe wraps up his third title he'll equal a record held jointly by John Beadette of Michigan State College and Leroy Kinman of Eastern Kentucky State.

Joe sank Beadette at M.S.C. in 1954, ending his three-year tenure. Kinman reigned in 1949, '50 and '51, edging out Joe's father in the final round in each instance. Hence a determined Joe, Jr. is out to achieve the goal that his dad never quite reached.

Title As Freshman
Joe grabbed the title as a 17-year old freshman, becoming the youngest winner in the tourney's 27-year history and Suffolk's first national intercollegiate champ. He holds the national record of running 100 consecutive balls out of a possible 100 — this coming in championship play. He is also the only New Englander inter-island champ while stationed on Okinawa.

During his professional career he boxed both in Boston and in Madison Square Garden. He worked out with such well-known fighters as Kid Gavilan, Bobo Olson, Buddy Hayes, Tommy Collins, and Tony DeMarco.

Boxers Lack Cash
Joe is still active in boxing circles. He's the instructor at the Cambridge Y.M.C.A. He has made unsuccessful attempts to organize a boxing team at Suffolk. Seems that Joe and a few talented leather throwers are more than willing, but have failed to receive the necessary organizing capital.

Joe is now in his last year and hopes to do graduate work at Hubson Institute. He is married and has one child. And he's never regretted turning his back on a fatic career.

Tourneys don't phase Joe. He's competed in 20 and won 18. His two losses being by one and two points, respectively. He hasn't practiced since his last title defense and doesn't intend to chalk up the run until two weeks before the next intercollegiate match. This procedure has brought him home a winner twice and Joe is sticking with it for what he calls his most important tourney.

Voluntarily Quits
Tony DeMarco had just bombed Johnny Saxton and grabbed the welterweight crown. A load of dough and glory was his for the taking.

A former boxer who had quit the ring a few years before he began wondering if he had made a mistake in retiring. After all, he had been as far along as Tony when he decided to get out. He had won all nine of his professional fights — six via the K.O. route. He was still young and in perfect shape. It wasn't too late.

And so Joe Romano decided to visit his close friend, Tony DeMarco. He congratulated the champ on his success and mentioned that he was considering getting back into the fight game. He eagerly awaited Tony's reply.

Champ's Advice
"Stay out of it, Joe, and get an education," the champ advised. Tony went on to explain that he had to keep on fighting because it was the only thing he knew how to do. And Joe took his buddy's advice.

Joe started boxing at 14. He had 75 amateur bouts, including those in the service, and dropped only two. He was the base champ at Larkland A.P.B. and later, the

Series Hysteria Ends, Kim Still Perplexed

By JONG CHUN KIM

Yes, it's another season of World Series! Everyone who lives in the United States can not seem to escape from baseball fever every year about this time. No matter whether you like it or not because all you hear at the school or on the street these days is, "Who's winning?"

Who wants to know what is happening in Little Rock, disarmament developments, or Middle East crises? Come back later, my friend. All I want to know is, who is pitching, who is on base, what is the inning and what is the score? Don't be so silly, but that is the general attitude of people these days.

Not Enthusiast
Observing the attitude of people "that's enough for me", Mr. Carpio for the past three years, I have added confidently.

too, became a little interested in baseball games, although I am not an enthusiastic baseball fan. Here are the various opinions I have gathered in interviewing some of the Bostonians passing by between Park Street and Boylston Street. Question regarding the World Series and why? 2. Which team do you think will win and why?

Mr. Al Carbone, 220 Braintree, Somerville, policeman at State House, simply says, "Braves will take it without a doubt." He has seen both teams (Yankees and the Braves win. He then says, "I've been playing and the Braves are far better than the Yankees. The Yankees have too many strikes and when Braves beat the Yankees in their home game

Mr. Leo Eitman, 840 Ziegler St., Roxbury, a rough bearded, husky newspaper man, likes to see the Braves win. He then says, "But I am afraid that the Yankees have got the winning ball team." He also added that the Yankees have got the wonderful fall haven and this is an excellent example of yesterday's (Oct. 2) fall game. "Coleman bats 225 in the regular season, but he gets 2 hits in the first Series game," he added with sorrow expression.

Mr. Dominic Traisi, a taxi driver of 41 Green St., Boston, said he likes to see the Braves win — they were home town team and as far as he can remember, they did a fine job. Victory for the Braves means something to the Boston Red Sox fans. "But I am afraid the Yankees are going to win over the Braves," he concluded with a reluctant smile and dove away.

You Might Know
Mrs. Merrill, 548 Summit st., South Hadley, a young house wife, would also like to see the Milwaukee Braves win, but she says with disappointed voice, "The strength of the Yankees will win the World Series in the first four games."

of the finest mosques as well as Santa Sophia, one of the oldest and most renowned churches in Constantinople.

On his return from Turkey he traveled along the Dalmatian coast, stopping at important Yugoslav cities, such as Dubrovnik, Split, and Rijada.

Dr. Vogel then spent several weeks in northern Italy. At Siena he attended the famous Palio—a festival featuring a horse race held annually since the Middle Ages and conducted in full medieval costume.

The ceremony is of such ancient tradition that the horses themselves are blessed at the high altars of the city churches by the bishop.

Other memorable moments in Italy were visits to Juliet's balcony and tomb in Verona, the opera in the Roman amphitheater in Verona, and the tomb of St. Francis of Assisi.

On his return, Dr. Vogel stopped in London before sailing home on the S.S. United States.

Start in England
Dr. Floyd began his trip in England. He flew to London and while there he saw the Queen and the Royal family during the Queen's birthday ceremonies.

He and his wife then flew to Paris. Here he hired a car and began traveling along the Riviera.

Duce's End Here
From the Riviera he drove to Italy where they visited Florence and Elba. They then traveled to Lake Como, where, after much dickering with the natives they were shown the exact spot where Mussolini was killed.

Traveling to Rome the Floyd's were fortunate enough to be in St. Peter's Cathedral when the Pope visited, and received his blessings.

After a stop in Switzerland the couple pushed on to Paris for a brief stay before flying to Copenhagen.

Last Stop
From Copenhagen they spanned the Baltic by air and stopped for a while in Stockholm. The Swedish capital was the final hitch in their itinerary.

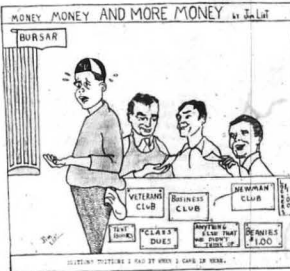

Dr. Floyd remarked that Europe has shown a sizable increase in wealth since his last trip to the continent, however southern Italy still appeared needy for the most part.

He found the journey a rewarding method of combining business with pleasure.

WIG & ROBE HONOR PARKE ON HIS 80th

The Wig and Robe Society honored octogenarian Raymond T. Parke with a cake and an honorary membership to its organization on the law professor's 80th birthday early this month.

Members of the Practice and Procedure class sang a "Happy Birthday Shipmate" tune to the professor. The title was coined by Parke who had addressed several students as such earlier in the week.

DEAR DAFFY

By DAFFODIL VON DUM

(Ed. note, Cousin Gabriel has pushed on to new areas. He took his typewriter and wit with him, leaving Cousin Daffodil with a bent Eversharp and the giggles. 'Ere we go, Oh, because of popular demand, Cousin 'Rachel' has been contracted for next year.)

DEAR DAFFY: The fellow I have been dating for the past three years recently informed me that he was married. He told my husband about it. He told me to drop the fellow. How say you?

ANSWER: I'm surprised you cleaved your husband in so soon. Those things shouldn't drag. Your attitude sounds liberal. Why not have a foursome for bridge.

DEAR DAFFY: My husband is a college senior. He studies Greek. His favorite TV show is "Captain Kangaroo." Each morning I awake to hear his silly laugh over a corny joke. He says the show takes his mind off things. How can I break this childish habit?

SANDRA SLEEPTIGHT

DEAR SANDRA: Your husband may be laughing to ease his hunger pains. You could arise and cook breakfast for him. That may occupy his stomach as well as his mind.

DEAR DAFFY: I took a fiery freshman lass to the Beanie hop. Her first question was: "Will you buy me a drink?" I bought her one. Again and again she mumbled the same question. Before the night was over the girl had downed seven ginapour-shings, two side-cars, and a ward eight. Did I goof by feeding her the drinks?

LARRY TIERNESY

DEAR LARRY: Maybe!

DEAR DAFFY: I've been amazed at the recklessness of Suffolk men since transferring here from Emerson. Recently one boy dared to invite me out on a date while I was engaged in conversation with a friend. He also mumbled something I didn't quite pick up. Is rudeness common among the boys at Suffolk?

RHONDA RAKEBATE

DEAR RHONDA: The mumbling you missed was the crux of the matter. I told you to keep it under your hat.

CHAT BETWEEN DANCES is carried on by Bob Grasso, Joan Peach, Carl Presida, Sandra Cuff, Brenda Price and Tony Lat onto, as the group took a break from the successful 'Beanie Hop' sponsored by the Senior Class on Columbus Day. Dance was held at Circle Hall, Somerville.
