The Red Men of this district held a pow wow in Rochester last Saturday, with 300 present. In the afternoon in Odd Fellows hall the address of welcome was given by Past Grand Sachem Eugene C. Foss of that city, and Pocanast Tribe of Newmarket exemplified the chiefs' degree. At 4.30 there was a parade through the principal streets. A banquet was served at 6.30 in the Odd Fellows' hall banquet room. Addresses were given by William H. Batty, Great Sachem of Rhode Island, Great Sachem George Ham of Farmington, P. G. S. J. Fred Emery of Exeter, G. S. S. Kit Stimpson of Milford, and K. K. of W. Algie Holt of Peterboro. A dance followed. The event was in charge of Runnawitt Tribe of Rochester.

This Wednesday morning an alarm of fire rang in from box 45 and called firemen and apparatus to the scene of a lively blaze confined to the interior of Charles Kimball's cottage on South Main street. However, when the outfit arrived, neighbors had put out the blaze with the aid of fire extinguishers from Kimball's garage and the G. F. Mooney mill nearby. It appears that Mr. Kimball lighted an oilstove to heat water for his breakfast and while this was in process he went into his garden across the street to gather some peas. He had been absent only a few minutes when the blaze was discovered. The interior of the cottage, which was sheathed in finished hard pine, suffered considerable damage and the contents were badly smoked and wet. Owing to Mr. Kimball's state of health, he was unable to estimate his damage, but it is thought it will touch the $100 vicinity and is covered by insurance.

SUNSET LEAGUE BASEBALL Farmington baseball team went to Rochester this Wednesday evening and took its third straight victory in the sunset series with Rochester on the "common grounds", before a big and enthusiastic crowd. Hamilton and King, as the battery, led the local line-up and opposed Dickie and Roy serving for Rochester. The game was featured by the brilliant pitching of Peanut Hamilton, who struck out nine of the seventeen men who faced him in the five innings. In serving this array, which included some of the heaviest hitters of the locality, he allowed only two hits and only two men saw first, while Farmington drove five slams off Dickie's delivery, which with good base running and teamwork, netted their score of six runs against a shut-out for Rochester. Peanut played a style of clean baseball that made him the hero of the crowd and despite the fact that Farmington was playing a visiting game, the team was much admired for its fast work.

CONG. CHURCH NOTES Rev. R. M. French of Enfield, Conn., will occupy the pulpit at this church next Sunday morning, July 5, as a candidate. Rev. French comes highly recommended and it is hoped that a good congregation will turn out to hear him.

OLD LOBBY MADE LANDMARK

The old stone lobby at the junction of Church and Union streets has been perpetuated as a landmark of the town by many improvements made by its new owner, Downing, of Windsor. This old pile of huge granite slabs that occupies a pretty plot of ground at the location mentioned some time ago was threatened by demolition and its heavy material became likely to be used in building Mr. Osborne, whose home is nearby, saw the ultimate, probability and purchased the lot and lobby. He since has made repairs to the falling masonry, which consists of thick granite slabs fashioned into a square compartment, and has replaced the broken iron bars in door and window and restored the original in order to preserve for all time this historic monument. It appears that the lot and material cost only $175 when purchased in 1859 and that the subsequent structure was the outgrowth of a secure lobby for the town, in which to confine violators of the law who having offended the peace and dignity of the state, were required to await trial. The lobby was built by reason of a contract made by Col. Louis Bell, one of Farmington's early lawyers and trial justices, and also one of the ablest men who ever graced the state. Colonel Bell is highly revered in our national military history, having been made a brigadier general on the day he was killed at Fort Fisher during the Civil war. The contract further enjoined Ed Barnard, proprietor of the old hotel that formerly occupied the site of the Mrs. Lottie Russell property on Main street, and William Sampson, the stone mason of the town at that time. The last named built the lobby. It is thought, with the intention of covering it with a frame structure, which project no doubt was abandoned because of the opening of hostilities with the South and it seems to be a fact that the gray pile of granite never was used for the purpose intended. However, it is a monument of Farmington's early endeavors and a credit to Mr. Osborne, who no doubt finally will dispose of it as a public benefit.

A Doctor's Life

The doctor sent a bill for $10 to the terrible-tempered Mr. Bangs. The bill read: "Two visits—$10."

"You're a robber," said Mr. Bangs. "Five dollars a visit! It isn't worth it."

"I'll rewrite the bill," said the doctor, and Bangs smiled. They couldn't put anything like that over on him.

Then the doctor wrote: "To getting out of bed at 2 a. m., answering telephone, disturbing wife, dressing, going to garage, driving in Liszt's two-mile drive in the cold, saving baby's life, return to garage, waking wife, undressing, getting back into bed—$10."

He said to Bangs: "I won't make any charge for the second visit, and you need not pay for the first unless you feel I have earned the money."

Mr. Bangs paid the bill.—Boston Globe.

Waldo Turned a Corner

Waldo's teacher had asked him to write a sentence containing the word amphibious, and as Waldo was but twelve, he had some trouble spelling the word, but, after several calls on teacher for aid, evidently got it written to his satisfaction. Then ensued a long period of concentration and wriggling. It was broken when Waldo asked teacher how to spell containing.

At last he laid the results of his labor on the teacher's desk, and this is what she read:

"My teacher has asked me to write a sentence containing the word amphibious."—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Lowly Potato

It seems rather strange that the Irish potato, which is now and a common article of diet the world over, was once a pilgrim and a stranger, so to speak. When it was introduced into Europe in the seventeenth century it encountered bitter prejudice and had a hard struggle to reach popularity.

Many people refused to eat potatoes even in time of famine; and at one time some laborers rejected potato soup, saying: "We will not eat this washy stuff, that affords no nourishment; we will not be fed on meal and chopped potatoes like hogs." By 1800, however, it had become a common outstanding dish at every meal except breakfast, at the tables of the rich as well as of the poor.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

All Plants Need Light

All plants require some light. Sunlight supplies the energy which causes chemical reactions to take place inside the leaves. These reactions convert the raw food elements into the food elements available to the plant.

Says Nature Magazine: "The plants are growing plants, ferns, grasses and shrubs, they get away in a dark corner, do not thrive so well as when placed in a sunny window. On the other hand, plants which like a mild amount of sunlight, and this includes palms, aspidistras, ferns and many of the vines, do not thrive if put in a sunny location."

Euphemistic

Mrs. Newrich—So you've traced my family back to great-grandfather. How did he die?

Genoalet—Well, er, he died of apoplexy, superinduced by pendulous illuqueation.

Mrs. Newrich—Oh, that sounds so aristocratic. Please write it down. I must tell my lady friends.

Genoalet—Don't think I would attempt to tell the truth, it means that he was hanged.—Boston Transcript.

Caribou Has Third Horn

Caribou, in addition to antlers, possess a third horn, called a dicker. It grows from the base of an antler and is known to the nose. It is fat and spongy and is used in the furber's bag, growing underneath the snow and ice. American notes state the height of seven feet at the shoulders and a water weight of eleven tons. They are very timid except during mating season, when they will attack any other animal or man.

Opera Music Made Available To Radio Audiences Through Star Broadcasting Experiment

America's most famous opera and concert stars have been placed at the disposal of the radio public through the efforts of J. H. Johnson, president and founder of the Victor Talking Machine Company in cooperation with the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. This departure from the "hard-boiled" character of radio programs, the outgrowth of a movement on the part of both companies to improve the standards of radio music, and the best of all, will have far-reaching consequences. J. H. Johnson has explained that the importance of good music in the home is as important as the growing child at the influence of happy environments and home life. Under this arrangement, between the two companies the Victor artists will appear at regular intervals during the present year, giving radio broadcasts and concerts.

Among the stars, given the selections will be made, are many whose names are household words in American homes. They are: Frances Alda, Harold Bauer, Luccia Bacci, Ditta de Caspary, Giuseppe de Luca, Margot Fonteyn, Gerda Hovland, Maria Jansen, Ronald Martinelli, Marguerite Macdonald, John McCormack, Rita Montaner, Ernestine Schumann-Heink, Antonio Scotti, and Giuseppe Campanella.
