an additional check of $100 (one

My dear Doctor Carver: Sent June 14/92 hundred)

A succession of misfortunes in the last year has put me for the time being into great straits financially.

I am on the point of placing two inventions each for a very large sum; but negotiations are slow, and it is essential that I should keep up appearances. Consequently, a few hundred dollars now will be worth to me many thousands a little later. For this reason, I should take it as a very particular kindness if you would send me immediately the money for the article now in your hands.

I should also like to have the money for the article & am now engaged in writing as soon after the copy reaches you as may be.

Please understand that I only ask this on the presumption that the weekly payments will put you to no personal inconvenience; for, otherwise, I should for ~~that~~ prefer to submit to the disadvantages of my situation and omit your convenience.

Yours very truly

O. S. Peirce
