

Tom Kahn, Leader In Labor and Rights Movements, Was 53

3-28-92
By WOLFGANG SAXON

Tom Kahn, former international affairs director of the A.F.L.-C.I.O. and a longtime civil rights advocate, died on Saturday at his home in Silver Spring, Md. He was 53 years old.

Mr. Kahn died of complications resulting from AIDS, said a statement issued by the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations.

Mr. Kahn was a central figure in organizing the aid that the labor federation channeled to the Polish trade union Solidarity in 1981. The union was being suppressed by the Polish Government at the time, and money and equipment were being smuggled to it. He also worked closely with leaders of other free unions as they sprang up in the nations of the deteriorating Soviet bloc in the late 1980's.

Mr. Kahn, a native of Brooklyn, graduated from Howard University in 1961. He became an aide to the civil rights leader Bayard Rustin and drafted the plan for the 1963 March on Washington.

He also helped develop the 1960's theme "From Protest to Politics," which emphasized a need for labor and civil rights groups to achieve an integrated society together. It brought him and Mr. Rustin into conflict with black-power advocates, whom they shunned as separatists.

Mr. Kahn became an assistant to the labor federation's president, George Meany, in 1973 and then served Mr. Meany's successor, Lane Kirkland, in the same role. He began to act as the federation's envoy to unions abroad and in 1986 was formally appointed international affairs director, a position from which he retired on disability this month.

Mr. Kahn is survived by his longtime companion, Alain Fournier of Silver Spring, and a sister, Rosemary Colville of San Luis Obispo, Calif.

Fr. Joseph Leo Killian, Jr. Dignity founder dies of AIDS

Fr. Joseph Leo Killian, Jr. was born April 11, 1940, and died at the Veteran's Hospital in Westwood, California at 8:30 a.m. on December 27, 1989.

He is survived by his four sisters and two brothers.

He grew up in Laurenceville, Pennsylvania outside of Pittsburgh and attended St. John's University, Collegeville, Minnesota, where he attended the university's Benedictine Seminary. He then enlisted in the U.S. Air Force. He was honorably discharged as a sergeant (E4) at Vandenberg AFB on April 25, 1969 after serving in Korea.

He then moved to Los Angeles where he worked for Southern Pacific Pipeline; he remained in management until retirement in June 1980.

Wherever he went, he distributed literature concerning the One Institute of Homophile Studies in Los Angeles, where he had been attending classes. In January, 1972 he became a trustee of the institute's parent organization, One, Inc. a position he held for about twelve years, including at least two years as president of One's board of directors.

Following Pope John XXIII's groundbreaking Vatican II ecumenical council in 1959, a spirit of renewal swept through the Roman Catholic Church. In that spirit of reconciliation, Father Patrick X. Nidorf, an Augustinian priest began holding support meetings with gay Catholics in 1969.

Although Killian's original San Diego group soon folded, the Los Angeles group he started continued to grow. After about a year, he realized a need for the group to take a new direction and a committee was formed for that purpose. Robert Fournier Pelletier was chair and Killian was secretary, treasurer, and membership director. In September 1970, Dignity began meeting in the hall of St. Brendan's church in Los Angeles — the group's first meeting on church property.

To promote their activities within the church, Killian kept up an active correspondence with progressive theologians. He invited Fr. John McNeill, S.J., to be an honorary member because of his landmark article on "The Christian Homosexual," which raised theological discussion to a new level. When newly appointed Archbishop Timothy Manning forbade Nidorf to engage in any activities in the Los Angeles diocese, the response was militant.

Killian arranged for use of an auditorium at One, Inc. for a dinner in April 1971 and invited Fr. Donald Mahoney, S.J., chairman of religious studies at Loyola University (Los Angeles) to speak. Mahoney delivered a message emphasizing that love, not sexual orientation, is the basis of Christian life.

That year, Fournier developed the Statement of Purpose that still guides Dignity and Killian embarked on an outreach program, getting Dignity to participate in the Gay and Lesbian Pride Parade, arranging a retreat with Fr. Pat at the remote St. Andrews Benedictine Priory, and combed the country in search of similar groups.

To permit a branch of the organization to open in Kentucky, he created a chapter program still in use, making Dignity a national organization. When officers were elected for Dignity/National in 1972, Killian became the group's first elected president. At the end of 1971, there were nearly 200 chapters. Today, there are about 7,000 members in 110 chapters, as well as affiliated groups around the world.

Honored at Dignity's twentieth anniversary banquet last January 28, he challenged members to be open to the inspiration of the Holy Spirit in the face of official opposition and reminded them that Dignity's original Declaration states, "We believe that gay and lesbian Catholics are members of Christ's mystical body, numbered among the people of God."

Killian was also a historian of the Catholic church and an authority on its modern branches and schisms. A deacon in the Liberal Catholic Church, he fulfilled a long-standing ambition on April 26, 1987 when he was ordained priest in the Church of Antioch and the Catholic Orthodox Church.

In October 1987, he went to the hospital for the first time with pneumocystis pneumonia. While he had been ill since the fall of 1986 and never really regained his health, it was not until March 1987 that he was finally diagnosed with AIDS.

Among his activities, Killian served on the Gay and Lesbian Police Advisory Task Force during its early years, and in 1984 he helped form Veterans C.A.R.E. (Concerned About Rights and Equality), becoming its first national vice chair, the second in command, as well as Founding Member No. 2.

A memorial service was held Saturday, January 27 at Metropolitan Community Church in Culver City.

The St. Francis of Assisi Church held a memorial service on Sunday, February 4 in San Francisco.

Gregory Kolovakos

Co-founded GLAAD in New York City

Gregory Kolovakos, a co-founder of the Gay and Lesbian Alliance Against Defamation [GLAAD], a writer, translator of Latin American literature and director of the literature program of the New York State Council on the Arts (NYSCA), died of AIDS Monday morning, April 16, 1990, at his New York home. He was 38 years old.

Gregory attended Colgate University and Yale University where he received two masters degrees. He taught and lectured at several colleges, most recently at City College where he taught creative translation.

Gregory joined the staff of the NYSCA as the director of literature program in 1979. Over the years, he was involved in the funding of hundreds of emerging writers and organizations.

Jewelle Gomez, who worked with Gregory at NYSCA said, "Before diversity became a catchword, he had the idea that he had a duty—and it was more than a duty, it was joy—to make people see that there should be a space for those disenfranchised voices. And he did this on a day-to-day basis, with every writer and every administrator that he came in contact with and not just when a reporter was nearby."

In 1985, Gregory co-founded GLAAD with a handful of other cultural and political leaders. GLAAD was established in response to poor and homophobic reporting of the AIDS crisis in the mainstream press, in particular, reporting about the death of Rock Hudson by the New York Post.

Chris Payne, a member of GLAAD's first Board of Directors on which Gregory served as chairperson, remembered Gregory as "a tremendous source of energy and enthusiasm, especially in the early days when GLAAD's first phone number was Gregory's answering machine."

Gregory met his long-time friend and colleague, Darrell Yates-Rist, in the early days of GLAAD: Yates-Rist recalled his first meeting with Gregory: "I met a man whose brilliance, energy and depth of commitment I had simply never known. Without him, there will forever be an emptiness in our quest for a more generous sense of humanity in this world, both in life and in art."

Gregory was actively involved in PEN American Center—Poets, Playwrights, Editors, Essayists, and Novelists—part of a nationwide writers organization dedicated to freedom of expression.

He was a member of the translation committee and Chair of the PEN Fund for Writers and Editors with AIDS, which held a benefit in September 1988 entitled "Playwrights and Poets on Stage." Gregory also co-founded AIDS Treatment Project, which offers financial support to visual artists and writers with HIV disease.

Gregory joined the Board of Directors of New York's Lesbian and Gay Community Services Center in 1987 and was elected co-chair in 1990.

President of the Board David Nimmons said, "Gregory infused his work with his own deep artistic awareness, reminding us always that activism can be accomplished with pride, grace and wit. During his four years at the Center, he showed by example the spirit and strength that these walls stand for. We are much the richer for his gifts, and will miss him enormously."

Former Board member Diana Leo recalled that Gregory "was so bright, so sharp, so insightful and incisive about literature. And he was radical; he was an exciting, demanding person who was never complacent."

A memorial service will be held at a later date. □

Donald J. Kerker

Donald J. Kerker, 35, died July 31 at St. Clare Hospital in Schenectady, New York, after a long illness.

Mr. Kerker was born in Albany, New York, and lived most of his life in Albany. He was also formerly of Boston and New York City.

A graduate of the Arts Institute of Boston, he worked as a freelance artist for the past 14 years. He was also a licensed hairstylist and worked at a salon in Albany until three years ago. While living in Boston he worked as the Parker House Hotel as a waiter. He was a lover of the arts, especially old movies.

BRIAN KELLEY

11/11/57 - 7/25/89

Brian Kelley was a shy and quiet person. He taught us by his deeds. He didn't waste words; he just dug in and helped those around him. One cannot think of Brian without thinking of how he helped each of us. He was always ready to pitch in without having to be asked. To put it mildly, Brian was a rare individual.

It's easy to say that Brian loved others more than himself. He was unselfish with his time and was always looking to share some fun. Even when Brian became ill, he was rarely depressed. He always gave more than he received and never regretted any of his actions.

Brian's early life was not an easy one but he used this experience to make his adult life, a life of personal fulfillment. Brian held a special love for his nieces and nephews. It would be difficult to find any Uncle more loving and giving. Even when he was broke and ill he tried to make everyone feel special. There really is no way to describe how giving and loving Brian was towards those with whom he shared his time. Each of us knew that we were important if Brian chose to share a moment with us. And this was even more true as he began to lose his strength.

In May of this year Brian and Ken celebrated their 10th Anniversary. There is no one who knew Brian better or loved him more than Ken. Their life together may not have been picture perfect. It may not have been the lifestyle that others would have understood or approved of, but it was a life that Brian most dearly loved. Brian loved his music and the arts. He loved concerts and travel, and felt as one with nature.

Brian's philosophy of love and life can easily be summed up by what he said to Ken when they began their relationship. Brian quoted the poem "Do not try to lead me, for I shall not follow, Do not try to follow me, for I shall not lead. Just walk beside me and be my friend." And now, after walking beside Ken and all of us Brian has gone on ahead, and we cannot follow. He was much too young to make this journey but he now walks beside God. Brian recently sought God's help for his new journey. Thanks to Father Savage, Brian had made his peace with God. Toward the end of Brian's earthly journey, his faith grew as his body weakened.

In the end he said not to weep for him. He said to listen and we would hear his voice in the wind. He said to look for his face in the clouds and we will see him, and he said that we would find his spirit in the flowers of the fields.

Although the world will not miss or mourn his passing, we will each carry part of him within us. If we live our lives with just some of his ideals, Brian will not be forgotten and the world will be a better place for his having passed this way. Good-bye, Brian, we love you.

Guy Kidd 1962 - 1989

Guy Wayne Carpenter Kidd of Leominster, formerly of North Grafton, died September 5 in Beth Israel Hospital, Boston, following a long illness. He was 27.

Born in New York City, Kidd came to live in the Newton village of Auburndale in 1971 and remained there until his graduation from Newton North High School in 1980. Before moving to Leominster in March, Guy had lived in North Grafton for two and one-half years and in various locations around Boston since 1981.

He was a graduate of the Barbizon School of Modeling and Fashion Careers, the Robert and Richard Beauty Academy, and attended Middlesex Community College and the University of Lowell.

Kidd worked for the GAP stores in Cambridge and Boston, was the manager of Talal Shoes in Lafayette Place and assistant manager of Budget Rent-A-Car in Park Square. He also worked for a short time for Jordan Marsh in Boston.

During the course of his illness, Kidd made many new friends and received loving care from the members of several agencies who deserve special thanks for their devoted efforts on his behalf. Of particular note are: Dana Rice, AIDS Project Worcester; Marie, Sandy, and Luann, Kidd's Buddies; the NVA Hospice Group of Worcester; the caring people at the University of Massachusetts Medical Center in Worcester; and the exceptional staff of the Clinical Research Center at Beth Israel Hospital.

Those of us he left behind will always remember the strength and courage with which he bore his illness and how he never failed to hold his head high even under the most difficult circumstances. In addition to his many friends, Kidd is survived by his father, William D. Carpenter and his paternal grandmother, Hilda Carpenter, both of Dorchester; three brothers, Kevin Kidd of Yonkers, NY, Peter Kidd of New York City, and Keith Carpenter of South Yarmouth; a sister, Ivy Bazemorg Kidd of Yonkers; and his lover, Gene Morand of Leominster.

His friends request that memorial contributions be made to the AIDS Action Committee of Massachusetts, 661 Boylston Street, Boston, MA, 02116.

Stephen F. Kolzak, 37

Supervised casting for "Cheers"

ASSOCIATED PRESS 9/90

LOS ANGELES - Stephen F. Kolzak, who supervised casting for the Emmy-winning television comedy "Cheers," has died. He was 37.

Mr. Kolzak, a prominent AIDS activist, died Wednesday at Sherman Oaks Community Hospital of complications from the disease.

He served as senior vice president of casting and talent at Columbia Pictures Television until illness forced him to resign in 1987.

In 1984, he received an Artios Award from the Casting Society of America for his work on NBC's "Cheers."

Mr. Kolzak also supervised casting for "Starsky and Hutch," "Facts of Life," "Silver Spoons," "One Day at a Time," "The Jeffersons" and "Who's the Boss."

After his illness was diagnosed, Mr. Kolzak worked with major Hollywood studios to develop plans for dealing with AIDS in the workplace.

He was arrested at the US Supreme Court building in Washington during an October 1987 gay rights march. The next year, he was arrested at the Food and Drug Administration headquarters during a protest against federal policies on making drugs available to combat AIDS.

Richard G. Katzoff

Co-founder of Rhode Island Project AIDS

Richard G. Katzoff, 39, of 22 Ansel Avenue, Providence, RI, died of a heart attack on December 13, 1990. The gay and AIDS communities have lost a courageous spokesperson and tireless worker.

For many years, Richard sought ways to improve the lives of lesbians and gay men. Two outcomes of this in Rhode Island were Network and the TRIANGLE Foundation. Richard was one of the founders of Network, the gay professional men's social/education organization. Now over seven years old, Network provides opportunities for gay men to socialize outside the bar setting. In 1985, he was one of the co-founders of The Rhode Island Associates Nurturing Gay and Lesbian Endeavors (TRIANGLE) Foundation. The TRIANGLE Foundation makes grants to organization which support lesbian and gay causes and people.

But the organization on which he had focused his primary energies and dedication for the past five years was Rhode Island Project AIDS. Richard helped found the organization, became (and had continued to be) a Buddy, served on the Board of Directors for the last several years and on Board committees prior to that, and in September, was elected President.

He toiled to see that in early December, the Project moved into new accommodations at 95 Chestnut Street in Providence. In addition, Richard had been active for many years with the Human Rights Campaign Fund, serving as Rhode Island representative on the New England planning committee, selling Rhode Island tables for the annual dinner.

He was also active in other human services organizations, having served on the boards of directors of the Samaritans and Family Service, Inc., and as a trainer for the Management Assistance Program of the United Way of Southeastern New England. And he was a tireless worker for candidates for public office in Rhode Island and for liberal social causes.

For the past two years, he had been Assistant Vice President for Business Administration at the University of Rhode Island, responsible for managing 4,000 acres on the four URI campuses, overseeing planning and management of the departments of public safety, purchasing, property and postal services, capital projects and facilities and operations.

He is survived by two brothers, Steven Katzoff of Providence and Kenneth Katzoff of Berkeley, California; and a nephew, Martin Katzoff of Providence.

Donations in his memory are being accepted by Rhode Island Project AIDS, 95 Chestnut Street, Providence, RI 02903, and by the Rhode Island Community Foundation, 957 North Main Street.

Bob Kaminski

Former Boston schools teacher

Bob Kaminski, 44 years-old of West Canton St. in the South End, died on February 8, 1990 in the Hospice at Mission Hill due to complications from AIDS. Bob was born and raised in Worcester. He was previously associated with the Grafton Schools as head of the English Department and moved to Boston ten years ago to teach in the Boston School District most recently at the Thomson School in Dorchester.

Bob was active with the AIDS ACTION Committee acting as volunteer and spokesperson to various organizations inquiring about people living with AIDS. He had many interests including daily workouts at Mike's Gym, bicycling, travel and music. He read widely and his strong sense for language led to awards for his writing of poetry.

He is survived by his father Chester Kaminski and stepmother Beatrice. The wake and funeral were held in Worcester. A memorial is planned for Bob on his birthday in June for his local friends. Bob will be missed by all who knew and loved him including the close group of friends who cared for him at home together with the visiting nurses and home health workers who supported him until he entered the Hospice at Mission Hill.

Donations can be made in Bob's name to the Hospice at Mission Hill, 20 Parker Hill Ave., Boston, MA 02120 in acknowledgement of the extraordinary care and warmth he received there. □

Donald C. Knutson

Co-founder of National Gay Rights Advocates

Donald C. Knutson, a prominent San Francisco attorney who co-founded National Gay Rights Advocates (NGRA) and the Bay Area Lawyers for Individual Freedom (BALIF), died April 19, 1990 of complications from AIDS.

Knutson taught the first law school course in the nation on Homosexuality and the Law at the University of Southern California Law School where he was a Professor of Law.

In 1977, Knutson co-founded National Gay Rights Advocates in San Francisco with Richard Rouillard, and served as its first Legal Director. Among the key cases he argues was the precedent-setting Pacific Bell case which resulted in a California State Supreme Court ruling that protects job rights for lesbians and gay men.

He also was the lead attorney on challenges to a 1917 U.S. immigration law which bars homosexuals from entering the country, and a case argued before the U.S. Supreme Court on an Oklahoma law banning gay teachers which was modeled on California's defeated Proposition 6.

"San Francisco is a better city because Don Knutson made his home here," Mayor Art Agnos said. "His work left people safer and freer of discrimination, and I am proud that I knew him as a friend and an ally. He was a leader who inspired other leaders here and across the nation."

Knutson was born July 12, 1930, in St. Paul, Minnesota, and graduated from the University of Minnesota Law School, where he was first in his class and editor of the Law Journal.

Knutson was the author of Homosexuality and the Law, by Haworth Press (1980), and the editor of the Journal of Homosexuality's special issue on Homosexuality and the Law. He also authored the first textbook on case law involving sexual orientation.

Services will be held at noon on May 10, 1990 at the First Unitarian Church on Franklin Street in San Francisco. Mayor Agnos will deliver the eulogy.

In lieu of flowers, contributions may be sent to the Don Knutson Memorial Fund, National Gay Rights Advocates, 8901 Melrose Avenue, Suite 200, Los Angeles, CA 90069. Proceeds from the funds will be used to support NGRA's AIDS-related litigation.

Peter R. Knott

Those of us who knew and loved Peter R. Knott remember a complex individual who was first and foremost a Christian. His faith and active involvement with his Metropolitan Community Church (MCC) family enabled him to grow spiritually and to face his illness with AIDS with courage and creativity. It was within the nurturing environment of MCC that his loving relationship with his mate, Richard A. Poirier, grew, even in the face of illness.

Peter lived most of his life as an openly gay man, having come out in high school during the early 1960s. He was diagnosed with AIDS in 1986, and endured many struggles over benefits and treatments; a 1989 Boston Globe article highlighted his housing struggle. He died at the University of Mass. Medical Center on Thanksgiving Day, 1990 with Richard at his side.

Peter was born in Providence, RI, the son of Maurice J. Knott and Ellen P. (Doctor) Knott. He was an accomplished artist, graduating from the Practical School of Art, Boston, in 1963, and also a fine chef; he attended the Fanny Farmer Cooking School, Boston, in 1968. He also studied at the Worcester Art Museum School and with various area artists, and returned to school for an academic degree with honors from Quinsigamond Community College in 1987. As a public speaker for AIDS Project Worcester, he took part in World AIDS Day, a global effort of the World Health Organization to promote public awareness of the epidemic.

A memorial service was held by the Morning Star MCC, Worcester on November 26, officiated by the Rev. Nancy Dupell, highlighted by a eulogy by his dear friend and mentor Ronald Cooke, his mate Richard, and his father Maurice. The service was followed by a gathering at the Knott family home in Shrewsbury.

Peter is survived by his father Maurice, of Shrewsbury; his sister Peggy and her husband Mike of Round Lake, NY; his nieces Karen and Nancy Weaver of Round Lake, NH; his cousins Susan Rose Gibbs, of Victoria, Australia and G. Steven Rose, of Boston; many relatives and friends, especially of the MCC Christian community; and his dedicated and loving mate Richard Poirier of Watertown. He requested that memorial donations be made to the building fund of Morning Star MCC, P. O. Box 787, Worcester, MA 01601.

We will miss him.

LARRY KERT

Larry Kert, was Tony in B-way's 'West Side Story'

NEW YORK — Larry Kert, who starred as Tony in the Broadway classic "West Side Story," has died of AIDS at age 60.

Mr. Kert died of the disease Wednesday at his home, said director Martin Charnin, who appeared with the actor as one of the gang members in the landmark musical that first opened on Broadway in September 1957.

In this modern musical retelling of "Romeo and Juliet," Mr. Kert and Carol Lawrence played star-crossed lovers doomed by gang warfare between whites and Puerto Ricans.

The show, written by Arthur Laurents, featured explosive choreography by Jerome Robbins and a compelling, driving score by Leonard Bernstein and lyrics by Stephen Sondheim. Mr. Kert, with his soaring tenor, got to sing some of the musical's best songs including "Maria," "Tonight" and "Something's Coming."

In 1970, Mr. Kert replaced Dean Jones as the star of "Company," shortly after that Sondheim musical opened on Broadway.

Among the other musicals in which Mr. Kert appeared on Broadway were "A Family Affair" (1962), "La Strada" (1969) and "A Musical Jubilee" (1975). In 1986 he starred as Teresa Stratas' husband in the musical "Rags," which previewed here in Boston before going to Broadway. He returned to Boston the following year in a touring production of "La Cage aux Folles," at the Wang Center.

Harry Kondoleon, 39, Playwright And Novelist Who Wrote of AIDS

3-16-94

By GLENN COLLINS

Harry Kondoleon, the author of 17 plays and 2 novels who in recent years made his life and his writings a testament to the ravages of AIDS, died yesterday in his apartment in Manhattan. He was 39.

The cause was AIDS, said his sister, Christine Kondoleon.

Mr. Kondoleon's second novel, "Diary of a Lost Boy," published by Alfred A. Knopf in February, chronicled the decline of Hector Diaz, a gay man with AIDS, for whom death became an inescapable obsession. Mr. Kondoleon wrote in the novel, "I know how off-putting it is for the well to be seated next to the unwell, with all the ramifications of pain and death." But in the book's epigraph, he wrote, "Please do not feel sorry for me — I go to some place thrilling!"

Margo Jefferson, writing in The New York Times, said of the novel that Mr. Kondoleon "brings irreconcilable characters, moods and situations onto a stage and lets them make their way toward a wary truce."

'Zero Positive'

Mr. Kondoleon, a playwright whose work often caustically portrayed the spiritual minefields in a society held together by self-indulgence and greed, came to prominence in the 1980's. Among his plays are "Self-Torture and Strenuous Exercise" (1978), "The Brides" (1980), "Christmas on Mars" (1983), "The Fairy Garden" (1984), "Anteroom" (1985), "Zero Positive" (1988), "Love Diatribe" (1990), "Half Off" (1993) and "The Houseguest" (1993).

In a review of "Zero Positive," Frank Rich, writing in The New York Times, noted that the play "forsakes the clinical to take the spiritual temperature of a society torn between blank despair and positive valor as it struggles to emerge from a viral eclipse."

In a column last month about "Diary of a Lost Boy," Mr. Rich wrote of a telephone conversation with Mr. Kondoleon in which the playwright said he had found the strength to finish the novel "as a personal achievement to show I wasn't dead."

Mr. Kondoleon's first novel, "The Whore of Tjampuan," was published by PAJ Publications in 1988. He was also the author of "The Death of Understanding" (1987), a book of poems. A collection of his plays, "Self-Torture and Strenuous Exercise: Selected

Sebastian Li/Knopf, 1993

Harry Kondoleon

An author's final epigraph: 'I go to some place thrilling!'

Plays by Harry Kondoleon," was published by the Theater Communications Group in 1991.

Mr. Kondoleon, who was born in Forest Hills, N.Y., attended New York City public schools. He graduated from Hamilton College in Clinton, N.Y., in 1977. In 1981, he received a master-of-five-arts degree from the Yale Drama School, where he studied play writing.

Obie Award Winner

He was the recipient of the 1983 Obie Award for most promising playwright, and he won another Obie last year, for "The Houseguest." He won honors and fellowships from many organizations, including the Guggenheim Foundation, the National Endowment for the Arts and the New York Foundation for the Arts. In 1977, he received a fellowship from the International Institute of Education to study Balinese theater.

In addition to his sister, he is survived by his parents, Sophocles and Athena Kondoleon, of New York City.

KRAMER—Stan. On May 25, 1993. Beloved son of Gene and Virginia. Knowles, loving brother of Shawn, Debra and Donna. Dear friend of George Watson. Friends may call Frank E. KRAUS—Edward Raphael, died of AIDS in New York on January 15, 1993 of AIDS. He was 44 years old. Mr. Kraus, a former buyer for the Past and Present Shop of Bloomingdale, will be remembered for his great style and commitment to excellence. He is survived by his parents, Jerome and Clare, of Larchmont, New York, and brothers, David, Mark and Russell. The imprint of his life and courageous fight to live remain with us.

KONKQY—William J. 8/16/47-10/9/91. Of complications of HIV infection. Manager, Theatre of the Open Eye; Manager Big Apple Circus; Road Director, American Run for the End of AIDS; and first General Manager, Florence Gould Hall at the French Institute/Alliance Francaise. Mourned by his devoted mother, his loyal colleagues at FIAF and many friends. Memorial service FIAF, November 19th, at 6 P.M.

KENNETT—Lannie J. On Nov. 27 after a valiant struggle against AIDS. Predeceased by his loving companion, Robert Ader. Survived by his father, Leslie and brothers Duke and Larry, all of Saint Louis. Services Thursday, Dec. 3, at 7 P.M. at The Church of Saint Mary The Virgin, 145 West 46 St, NYC.

"A year ago my friend and piano teacher Mark Kyrkostas died of AIDS at the age of 38," Teresa Kreuzer of Manhattan said in a letter accompanying her $25 donation to The New York Times Neediest Cases Fund. "On this rainy day, I remember him by practicing the piano and with this check in the hope that his presence in the world will not be forgotten."

"Mark lived a generous and loving life," she wrote. "The last words he ever said to me were 'I promise you that I won't die.' I look for ways, this donation among them, to make sure that he never will."

Ms. Kreuzer's sentiments are echoed in dozens of letters attached to donations earmarked for people with AIDS. Some are memorials to absent friends; others are sad, angry reflections on the social and psychological toll of H.I.V.

The Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta estimates that one million Americans are infected with the virus that causes AIDS and that by November 130,687 had died of the disease in this country.

'The Plight of Children'

Denise Tredwell of Brewster, N.Y., asked that her $100 be directed to children with AIDS in memory of her son Joshua, who died of a malignant brain tumor last year at 9½ years of age.

"As terrifying as Joshua's eight-and-a-half-year illness was — four and a half months on a respirator in New York University's intensive care unit — I am still even more horrified at the ravages of AIDS," she wrote. "All of its victims touch me deeply, especially those in my own age group. However, as the mother of two wonderful children, one of whom is now gone, I am sensitive to the plight of children."

Milton J. Tatelman of Manhattan, who gave $54, wrote that "for the past few years I have enclosed a short note with my donation asking that the contribution help someone enduring the physical and emotional challenge of AIDS. And each year, unfortunately, the needs associated with this devastating disease become greater and scarier."

He continued: "A simple reminder this holiday season that while donations are always an enormous help, the best gift of all is still the loving support of family and friends. A visit, a telephone call, a letter, even a card can do wonders. And a heartfelt hug can do miracles." 1991

Thomas J. King

Architect, 35 7-30-92

Thomas J. King, an architect who worked on the renovation of the Museum of Modern Art and other projects in New York and elsewhere, died last Thursday at his home in Nantucket, Mass. He was 35 years old.

He died of AIDS, his stepfather, Robert J. Harbaugh Sr., said yesterday.

Mr. King, a 1979 graduate of Pratt Institute, worked on numerous architectural renovations of office buildings and private homes in New York City, San Diego and Nantucket. In 1985 he moved to Nantucket, where he was a member of the Nantucket Historic District Commission.

Besides his stepfather, he is survived by his mother, Irene King Harbaugh of Yarmouth Port, Mass., and a sister, Pamela K. Riker, of Halifax, Mass.

SETH H. KIMMELMAN 12/5/91

Seth Kimmelman, 40

Was a pianist and music teacher

Seth H. Kimmelman, a pianist and teacher at the New England Conservatory of Music, died of AIDS-related pneumonia yesterday at his home in the South End. He was 40.

Mr. Kimmelman appeared with the Boston Pops and other orchestras and in recitals both as soloist and in chamber ensembles throughout the United States and in Australia and Europe.

At Jordan Hall in February 1986, he gave the first US performance of four "Songs Without Words" by Fanny Mendelssohn Hensel. He also played with the Longwood and Massachusetts Institute of Technology symphonies, at the Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum and in concerts sponsored by the Nantucket Arts Council.

Born in New York, Mr. Kimmelman graduated from Sarah Lawrence College in 1972. He studied piano at the Fountainebleau Ecole des Arts in France with Nadia Boulanger and Clifford Kurzon and in New York with Seymour Bernstein.

He leaves his father and stepmother, Dr. David and Edythe of Norwalk, Conn.; two brothers, Michael of Manhattan and Burt of Brooklyn, N.Y.; and his companion, David Young.

A scholarship fund is being established in Mr. Kimmelman's memory for students in the conservatory's extension division.

Paul A. Kaplan, 36, A Theatrical Producer

11-25-91

Paul Alan Kaplan, a theatrical producer and board member of the Lesbian and Gay Community Services Center, died on Monday at New York University Medical Center. He was 36 years old and lived in Manhattan.

He died of AIDS, said Ralph Giarrusso, his companion.

Mr. Kaplan graduated from the Wharton School of Business at the University of Pennsylvania in 1977. For the next nine years he worked for the Stanley H. Kaplan Educational Center Ltd., named for his father, which offers tutoring for entrance and licensing examinations.

Pursuing his interest in show business, Mr. Kaplan was an associate producer of "As Is," a drama about the impact of AIDS by William M. Hoffman. The play opened at the Circle Repertory Company in 1985 and moved to Broadway's Lyceum Theater. He was also the executive producer of the 1986 movie "Parting Glances."

He joined the board of the community center in 1988 and was elected to its executive committee two years later.

Mr. Kaplan is survived by his parents, Stanley H. and Rita J. Kaplan, of Manhattan, and two sisters, Susan Kaplan, of Brookline, Mass., and Nancy Kaplan Belsky, of Waban, Mass.

Murray Ross Kalb

June 3, 1963—March 29, 1993

Ross died peacefully at home, with friends nearby, after a battle with AIDS of a little over a year. Biographically, although he was born in California, he was reared in Peoria, IL, where he was active in high school dramatics and track.

After graduation, he wandered East to New England (to New Hampshire and Maine), and then down to New York City, where he worked at a gym and "did" the Saint. Eventually, he arrived in San Francisco, and worked at the Mint, the New Bell Saloon, the Watering Hole and My Place, before becoming ill.

Murray is survived by his parents, Margaret and Murray Kalb; brothers, Bert and Terry; and sisters, Alberta, Pat and Joanne; as well as his lover Terry, his friend, Lee; and a host of party people everywhere. ▼

Randall M. Klose, 37, Benefactor
In Causes on AIDS and Gay Rights

86-92

By BRUCE LAMBERT

Randall M. Klose, a philanthropist who raised millions of dollars for causes concerning gay rights and AIDS, died on Thursday at his home in Washington. He was 37 years old.

The Human Rights Campaign Fund, a national political organization for gay rights and AIDS issues, said Mr. Klose had died of AIDS. He had been the fund's co-chairman for the last two years and on its board since 1987.

Mr. Klose said he had been inspired by an essay called "1,112 and Counting" by Larry Kramer, a leading gay-rights advocate, in The New York Native in 1983. In that essay, a call to action against the rising AIDS roll, Mr. Kramer said he wanted to know why wealthy homosexuals were not responding to the crisis. Later, Mr. Klose said, "I read the article and said to myself, 'Here I am.'"

His role in pressing for the passage of the 1988 Federal AIDS Research and Information Act was praised by its two chief Senate co-sponsors, Edward M. Kennedy, Democrat of Massachusetts, and Lowell P. Weicker Jr., Republican of Connecticut at the time. Mr. Weicker, now Governor of Connecticut, said Mr. Klose had helped win passage of the bill, which coordinated the Government's AIDS research. The bill was the first Federal AIDS law.

Mr. Klose contributed more than $1 million to organizations supporting gay rights and AIDS services. His work as a fund raiser produced many millions more from other donors, said Gregory King, a spokesman for the Human Rights Campaign Fund.

During Mr. Klose's tenure on the fund's board, its budget grew from $1 million to $5 million. He also served on the board of the Gay and Lesbian Community Services Center of Los Angeles and was active in the Triangle Institute, an educational gay organization.

Last year he joined a delegation of Americans on a trip by the International Lesbian and Gay Human Rights Commission to the former Soviet Union to help foster gay rights there.

Mr. Klose was born in Texas; early in his career he lived in Manhattan and Beverly Hills, Calif., where he was a real estate developer. He inherited his wealth from his father, Rolland Klose, who owned the state Dairy Queen franchise, with 800 outlets, for 35 years.

Mr. Klose is survived by his companion, Ken Aldrich; a sister, Carol Lee Klose, and a brother, Gary Klose, both of San Antonio, Tex.

Ron Kershaw, an activist in political and religious groups, died of complications from AIDS Aug. 14 in San Francisco. He was 41. Kershaw had been national president of Affirmation, a gay Mormon group, and president of the United Log Cabin Clubs in California, a gay Republican group. 1991

Michael Knapp, 38, a Member Of Board of AIDS Organization

By ERIC PACE

Michael Knapp, a member of the board of directors of God's Love We Deliver, an organization that delivers hot meals to homebound people with AIDS in New York, died on Wednesday night at Beth Israel Medical Center in Manhattan. He was 38 years old and lived in Manhattan.

The immediate cause of his death was unclear but he had AIDS and had been in the hospital for several weeks, said his father, Richard C. Knapp.

Michael Knapp, a former commercial real-estate broker, had been active in the nonprofit group, which was founded in 1986, for more than two years. He was a skillful, versatile cook and began by spending one day a week running the kitchen that the group then operated in the basement of the West-Park Church on West 86th Street. His other volunteer work for the group came to include fund-raising among his former colleagues in the real estate industry.

'An Immediate Shift'

In a 1990 interview, Mr. Knapp said that when he was 36 he had come down with AIDS-related pneumonia, had almost died, and had found that "there is an immediate shift in your priorities."

He left the real-estate field, dropped friends who made him unhappy and began to do volunteer work with groups that help people with AIDS.

"There is tremendous suffering in the gay community, and tremendous spiritual growth," he observed in the interview, and he said he hoped that in its crisis, the gay community would lead the culture away from selfishness and toward service.

In 1990, he joined the board of the group, whose headquarters are at 103d Street and Amsterdam Avenue.

At the time of Mr. Knapp's death he was also on the board of directors of Children's Blood Foundation, a nonprofit organization that supports research and clinical care for children with blood diseases, cancers and AIDS at The New York Hospital.

His volunteer activities on the foundation's behalf included overseeing its fund-raising activities among young professional people.

Mr. Knapp was also a former mem-

Lance T. Kemper passed from this world on May 20, 1993. He is survived by his beloved companion of seven years, Felix, his warm and loving family, and countless friends.

In 1985, Lance settled in San Francisco, where he worked for a local trust company. He also volunteered for the AIDS Health Project, as a group facilitator. We will always remember his sharp wit and zest for life. ▼ ber of the board of directors of the Manhattan Center for Living, a nonprofit organization that supports the needs of people with AIDS, cancer and other life-challenging illnesses and their families and friends. His volunteer activities for that organization included running support groups that it provides for people with AIDS and other diseases.

Mr. Knapp was born in Detroit, earned a bachelor's degree from Boston University, and was in real estate in Boston before coming to New York.

Mr. Knapp's companion was Vaughn C. Williams.

Besides his father and mother, the former Louise Kelley, who live in Bloomfield Hills, Mich., Mr. Knapp is survived by three brothers, Richard C. Jr. and Charles F., both of Birmingham, Mich., and Terry J. Knapp of Mesa, Ariz.; and four sisters, Mary Jane Pulling of Cold Spring Harbor, L.I., Kathrine Schack of Clarkston, Mich., Susan Knapp of Bloomfield Hills and Barbara Knapp of Manhattan.

Gabe Kruks

Gay Center Leader, 42 92

Gabe Kruks, chief operating officer of the Los Angeles Gay and Lesbian Community Services Center, died Nov. 11 at Century City Hospital in Los Angeles. He was 42 years old and lived in Los Angeles.

Mr. Kruks died of complications from AIDS, said Brad Laughlin, a spokesman for the center.

Mr. Kruks was born in London. He was a volunteer truck driver and salvage worker for the Israeli Army in 1967 and 1968. He emigrated to the United States and from 1971 to 1985 worked in the film industry, primarily as a key grip, supervising many technical aspects of production in more than a thousand television commercials and industrial, documentary and feature films.

He joined the center in the mid-1980's and drew attention as an advocate of improved services for gay men and lesbians, particularly the young who were homeless because they had become estranged from their families.

Mr. Kruks is survived by his parents, Leo and Sima Kruks of London, and a sister, Sonia Kruks-Wisner of Amherst, Mass.

Kris Kirk, 42, a British journalist whose work appeared in the Advocate and London's Gay Times, and author whose Men in Frocks, a collection of interviews with drag queens, was published in 1984, died April 27 in London. Cause of death was not reported.

Andrew J. Kappell

1992 Professor, 41

Andrew J. Kappell, an associate professor of English at Hofstra University, died on Sunday at St. Vincent's Hospital in Manhattan. He was 41 years old and lived in Manhattan.

He died of complications from AIDS, said Alice Levine, chairwoman of the English department at Hofstra.

Professor Kappell graduated from Princeton University in 1973 and received a doctorate from Rice University in 1978. He taught at Rice and Virginia Technical University before joining Hofstra in 1982.

At Hofstra, in addition to teaching, he held a number of administrative posts, including co-director of the Summer Writers Conference. He received a National Endowment for the Humanities fellowship in 1990 and had completed a book, "Sursum Corda: God and Family in the Poetry of Marianne Moore," which has not yet been published.

He is survived by his parents, Andrew and Christine Kappell, and a brother, James, all of Honolulu.

Bruce Kelly, 44, Architect of Strawberry Fields

1-21-93

By DAVID W. DUNLAP

Bruce Kelly, a landscape architect who created the gently welcoming realm of Strawberry Fields in Central Park, died on Thursday at his home in Manhattan. He was 44.

He died of AIDS, his family said.

Although Mr. Kelly practiced privately, as a principal in the firm of Bruce Kelly/David Varnell in Manhattan, he was best known for public projects. Of these, the re-landscaping of Central Park loomed largest.

Elizabeth Barlow Rogers, the Central Park administrator, credited Mr. Kelly with being able "to make the landscape speak again." He was a student of the work of Frederick Law Olmsted, one of the creators of Central Park, and — like Olmsted — an heir to the tradition of romantic, 18th-century estate gardens.

Mr. Kelly gained the most notice for Strawberry Fields, near West 72d Street. This three-and-a-half-acre "International Garden of Peace" was a gift to the city from Yoko Ono in memory of John Lennon, her husband. The lush enclave, which includes plant species representing 161 nations, was dedicated in October 1985.

Particular Park Places

Here and there through Central Park, Mr. Kelly was also responsible for the design or renovation of the Shakespeare Garden, at the foot of the Belvedere Fountain; the James Michael Levin and Pat Hoffman Friedman playgrounds, and the Point: that part of the Ramble that juts into the Lake, across from Bethesda Terrace.

He also drew plans for expanding Turtle Pond (formerly Belvedere Lake) and rebuilding the Great Lawn, to the north.

A designer who could 'make the landscape speak.'

His last project in the park, with Mr. Varnell, was the re-landscaping of the Dene, an area immediately west of Fifth Avenue, roughly between East 66th and 69th Streets.

Mr. Kelly left a broader, though less tangible, mark on Central Park as a member of the team responsible for "Rebuilding Central Park: A Management and Restoration Plan," issued in 1985. Also on the team were Ms. Rogers, John Berendt, Marianne Cramer, Judith Heintz and Philip N. Winslow.

"Public parks are often repositories of a people's cultural heritage," they wrote. "This endowment must be preserved, though not slavishly. The historic intentions of a park can be as important as its physical features, sometimes more so."

Eleanor Roosevelt Memorial

Mr. Kelly and Mr. Varnell also designed the two-acre Eleanor Roosevelt memorial proposed for Riverside Park, at 72d Street. The memorial as designed would include an eight-foot bronze statue, but most of the $785,000 that is to be raised for the project would go into new landscaping.

Among the firm's projects outside New York City were the Boulevard East Promenade along the Palisades in Weehawken, N.J., and master plans for rebuilding Forest Park in St. Louis, Piedmont Park in Atlanta and Central Park in New Britain, Conn.

Private projects included the estates of Angier Biddle Duke in Southampton, L.I.; of H. John Heinz 3d in Pittsburgh, and of Henry R. Kravis in Sharon, Conn. Mr. Kelly also restored the 19th-century garden of the Palazzo Albrizzi in Venice.

In addition to working on "Rebuilding Central Park," Mr. Kelly was a co-author, with Gail Guillet and Mary Ellen Hern, of "Art of the Olmsted Landscape" (1982).

The Bird Contingent

Mr. Kelly's career was not without controversy. In 1982, as part of the Ramble project, he supervised the felling of numerous trees in the densely wooded area, a favored spot of birds and bird watchers.

Despite assurances by Parks Department officials that the goal was to enhance, rather than diminish, the Ramble's role as a sanctuary, bird watchers denounced the cuttings as a "mass destruction of mature and irreplaceable trees."

Mr. Kelly and Mr. Varnell were originally part of a design team for the South Garden at Battery Park City, with the artist Jennifer Bartlett. But they parted from the project in 1989, objecting strenuously to Ms. Bartlett's scheme, which was scrapped two years later.

Mr. Kelly was a native of Wrens, Ga., near Augusta. He received a bachelor's degree in landscape architecture from the University of Georgia in 1971 and a master's degree in historic preservation from Columbia University in 1973.

He is survived by his mother, Virginia Kelly of Titus, Ala., and two sisters, Phyllis Kennedy of Decatur, Ga., and Paula Meiners of Mandeville, La.

KRIM—Arthur B. We of the American Foundation for AIDS Research mourn the loss of our deeply valued friend on September 21, 1994. Yet even at this time of sorrow, we also celebrate his many extraordinary qualities which we have come to know so well and on which we have relied. We have learned from his quiet, honest counsel and benefited from his generous, good natured support; but, most of all, we have been inspired by his enduring commitment to the principles we have shared with him and upon which our own work is founded—political and social equality for all people, regardless of race, religion, lifestyle, or creed; freedom of choice in speech and action, both at home and abroad; and humane and compassionate treatment, by all and for all, whatever the cost. These principles informed his brilliant and productive life, a small part of which we were privileged to share. Though we grieve, we remain exhilarated by his vision for a brighter, better world and are profoundly grateful that his life touched ours. Our thoughts and our love go to his wife, Mathilde, who, together with him, welcomed us all into their extraordinary family.

Mark Kaminski, 39, An Architect Noted In the World of Art

By WOLFGANG SAXON

Mark Kaminski, an architectural designer, died on Wednesday at his parents' home in Buffalo. He was 39 and lived in Manhattan.

He died after a brief illness, said his father, Richard Kaminski.

A native of Buffalo, Mr. Kaminski trained at Pratt Institute and graduated from the State University of New York at Buffalo. He was an assistant at Mark Hampton Inc., the interior decorating firm on Madison Avenue, before striking out on his own in 1986.

His work has been featured in Vogue and House and Garden magazines, as well as in the current "Young Talent" issue of Elle Decor magazine, which describes him as "a model of discipline and discretion."

Mr. Kaminski's clientele included figures in the world of contemporary art. He added a wing to the house Peter Hoppner designed in the Hamptons for Klaus Kertess, the art critic and adjunct curator at the Whitney Museum of American Art. "Mark is extraordinary with details," Mr. Kertess told Elle Decor. "He understands their importance in the final effect" — down to the moldings and doorknobs.

The artist and director Robert Wilson called on Mr. Kaminski to refurbish a SoHo loft into spare and luminous offices. Mr. Kaminski helped the painter Chuck Close turn a SoHo storefront into a studio that could accommodate his large-scale photorealist portraits.

Brice Marden, also a painter, and his wife, Helen, used him to coordinate the expansion of the kitchen and dining area in their house in Greenwich Village.

Mr. Kaminski is survived by his parents, Richard and Jean; two brothers, Karl, of Orchard Park, N.Y., and Richard Jr., of Buffalo.

David Kirkbride, 35

Owned Boston floral design firm

1993
David Kirkbride, owner of a Boston floral design firm, died Friday at Beth Israel Hospital after a brief illness. He was 35 and lived in Boston.

Born in Hartford, Mr. Kirkbride grew up in Windsor, Conn., where he attended school. He graduated from the University of Connecticut.

When he moved to Boston 14 years ago, he opened Kirkbride & Co., a custom floral design company. He operated the business until his death.

Mr. Kirkbride leaves his parents Kent and Lorraine of Windsor Conn.; a brother, Kevin of Windsor Locks, Conn.; and a sister, Mrs. Jane Holman of New Orleans.

A funeral Mass will be said Tuesday at 10 a.m. in St. Gabriel Church in Windsor, Conn. Burial will be in Palisado Cemetery in Windsor.

Steven Kalman

Steven Henry Kalman, 31, of Washington, D.C., died on Wednesday, February 17, 1993 at the Washington Hospice of complications associated with AIDS, according to his mother, Judy Gable of D.C.

Kalman moved with his family to Germantown, Md., while he was in high school, and graduated in 1979 from Seneca Valley High School in Germantown. He continued his studies at the University of Maryland in College Park, earning a bachelor's degree in public relations in 1986.

After he graduated from college, Kalman lived briefly in San Francisco, Calif., before settling in D.C. He held several jobs in the public relations field and most recently worked as an administrative assistant at Latham and Watkins, a D.C. law firm.

Kalman had many interests, according to his mother, including reading, playing the piano, and writing. At the time of his death, he was working on a science fiction novel. Kalman loved to visit San Francisco and Key West, Fla., where he has many friends, Gable said. He also enjoyed the company of his Dalmatian, Danté.

In addition to his mother, Kalman is survived by his stepfather, Ed Gable; father and stepmother, Ronald and Robin Kalman of Naperville, Ill.; sister, Karen Kalman of Germantown; brother, Xcott Wolf of Monterrey, Calif.; sisters, Karen Gable of Northern Virginia; Katie Gable of Silver Spring, Md.; and Kimberly Crew of Sterling, Va.

A memorial service will be held Saturday, Feb. 20, at the Friends Meeting House, 2111 Florida Ave., NW, at 10 a.m.

Donations in Kalman's name may be made to the Whitman-Walker Clinic, 1407 S St., NW, Washington, DC 20009.

Lew Katoff

Lew Katoff, Ph.D., a leader in the national fight against AIDS and long-term survivor of the disease, died May 15 from complications associated with AIDS in New York. As a director of the Gay Men's Health Crisis (GMHC) in New York and board member of the National Association of People with AIDS (NAPWA) in Washington, D.C., Mr. Katoff made pioneering contributions to the establishment of support services for Americans with HIV/AIDS.

In 1982, Mr. Katoff began a long commitment to improve the lives of people with HIV disease. In his work in the school of medicine at Emory University in Atlanta, Mr. Katoff researched the psychological aspects of HIV disease, an area in which he was later to become a nationally recognized expert. AID Atlanta, one of the nation's largest AIDS service organizations, grew out of his instrumental leadership in the city's gay communities.

In 1985, Mr. Katoff moved to New York City to direct client services for GMHC, where he co-authored a study investigating coping skills and quality of life among long-term survivors of HIV infection. The study examined the important benefits of cooperative relationships between HIV-positive patients and their physicians; his empowering philosophy greatly influenced the work of NAPWA and HIV client services across the nation.

Prior to his death, Mr. Katoff served as the director of technical assistance at GMHC.

Jack Markham, chairman of NAPWA, says that "Lew will be missed, but his significant contributions to the lives of Americans with HIV infection will remain."

Mark Knox

May 1945-March 4, 1993

Mark was born in May, 1945 and died of AIDS on March 4, 1993. His passing will leave loving memories in many peoples' minds. Watching the Academy Awards, one of Mark's favorite programs, brought back some fond memories to the four of us.

Mark lived in San Francisco for many years. During that time he worked at Church Street Station and for the last fifteen years he was employed at The Holiday Inn on Van Ness Avenue, where the people he worked with will miss his joyful whistling and singing. Room Service will never be the same.

A proud gay person, Mark served his country in the Navy for four years. He was honorably discharged.

He was an avid animal lover who had several species of birds and fish, as well as a dog.

A final Memorial Service was held for Mark at Fort Point, under the Golden Gate Bridge, to honor his final wishes to scatter his ashes into the sea. His family chose to play Frank Sinatra's My Way, then they did it their way. Now Mark's ashes are at their home in Vallejo.

We love you Mark. Good-bye Mark.

Oliver Karthhelsler

March 15, 1993

Oliver Karthhelsler (a.k.a. Sky Forest, a.k.a. Marina Barracuda, a.k.a. Dripping Beaver, Director of the Institute for Lubrication Studies in Scappoose, Oregon) passed into the next world(s) Monday morning, March 15, 1993. His beloved friend

Red Cedar was present to see him off on his latest adventure.

Oliver was born 40 years ago in Milwaukee. He came to San Francisco about 20 years ago to seek gay love, sex and spirit. He worked in massage and horticulture. An avid orchidist, his home was constantly filled with spectacular blooms, and for several seasons he was an officer of the local Orchid Society. Travel and photography were among his favorite avocations.

Sky was one of the founders of the Healing Order of Kthar Sissies, a group he described as "new age sex clowns," with whom he created ceremonies and events (including the installation of gushing fountains) enjoyed by many in the later '80s. Faeries will recall his miles of white organza; SF Jacks will recall his beauty and great enthusiasm for fun.

With the onset of his AIDS condition, Sky retired to a farm in Oregon. he was proud of building his home with his own hands, including wiring and plumbing, amidst extensive gardens; these, and Red Cedar, were the source of great joy and satisfaction for him.

By now he has already been partying with the many friends who have gone ahead to that great gathering in the beyond. We who remain will miss our loving, lively, intelligent friend, his verve, his drag and his snappy remarks.

Steven John Kasper

April 20, 1954-June 22, 1993

Steven passed away at 2:40 p.m. on Tuesday, June 22.

He remained at home during his illness and was cared for with love and support by his loving partner Tim Roberts and housemates Terry Seefeld and Vince Elliott.

"Kasper" co-owned and operated Insight Landscape and Connecticut Street Plant supplies on Potrero Hill for 10 years. He was a longtime member of the Rainbow Motorcycle Club.

Steve is survived by his parents Theodore and Margaret Kasper; brother, Ted; sister-in-law, Sue; nephew, Johnny; niece Jennifer; and many friends.

A celebration in memory of Steve's life will be held August 15. Call 821-4773

John Kelly

April 1, 1993

John Kelly, 45, the unofficial "Mayor of North Berkeley," founder of Gertie's Chesapeake Bay Cafe in Berkeley and most recently the manager of Saul's Restaurant and Delicatessen, died Thursday, April 1, at his home in Oakland surrounded by his loving family and friends. The cause of death was AIDS.

Kelly held the unusual honor of being an Irishman who finally brought a first-rate deli to the Bay Area. Under his guidance, the food not only improved, but with street and subway signs, photographs from the Lower East Side and table-side Egg Cream Dreams, he brought the atmosphere of New York to Berkeley Gourmet Ghetto.

Kelly, who came to the Bay Area from the Bronx, New York, 20 years ago, applied his Irish touch to more than Jewish food. Working with his close friend, chef John Shields, he first ran A La Carte, a tiny French restaurant whose East Coast seafood dishes won quick popularity and widespread praise.

Kelly, with his warmth, humor and vast memory for names and faces, ran the dining room while Shields cooked.

Kelly was a member of the board of directors of the Berkeley Symphony and the Berkeley Repertory Theater's Backstagers. He is survived by his longtime companion Shields; devoted cousin Mary McGowan; parents, John and Honora Kelly of the Bronx; brothers Harold and James; sisters Ann,

Known as Herb to all his friends,

Herb died peacefully at his home in Rome, GA, from AIDS-related complications after a short struggle. With Herb as his spirit moved to a far better place were his constant companion and lover Mark, his devoted mother, and his favorite brother, Rusty.

Herb enjoyed and lived life to its fullest. He had lived in San Francisco for eight years before returning home to Rome, GA, for the last ten years. Herb and his lover, Mark, lived together the past eight years in a union made in heaven. Herb touched the heart and lives of all those around him and will be greatly missed. I have learned what a broken heart is. Herb, I will miss you everyday for the rest of my life. I know you are in a far better place and free of pain. You promised when my time comes you will be there to help guide me toward the light to everlasting life. I love you, Herb, and look forward to the time when we are together again. Your dearest friend, Paul Vachon is here to help me learn to live without you, but his loss is as great as mine. Herb, you came into my life and heart and will remain forever. ▼

John (Johann) Kiefer

Jan. 31, 1939-Apr. 29, 1993

Born in Dunakömlöd, Hungary, John fled Hungary and the Russians with his family in 1946, when they all settled in Grossmehring, Bavaria. In 1958, he emigrated from Germany to New York, certainly the result of the kind of determination to better his situation he was to maintain for the rest of his life. Having used his three years in New York to become proficient in English and the ways of the world to the point he could move up the employment ladder, he decided that the quality of his life would be improved by a move to California.

After several tries at three-piece suit kinds of jobs in San Francisco, John decided to make a full-time occupation of designing and creating amazing living spaces out of old fixer upper houses, and the rest of his life was an involvement with the creativity and the observance of building codes. However, it is John's tenacious adherence to his own moral and ethical code that will remain in the memories of most of his friends, as John set the highest kinds of standards for his own behavior as well as that of those around him.

His last remodeling project, however, remains unfinished in Redway, where he moved in January of 1992, to take up the less stressful existence offered by rural Northern California. John fought a lengthy, painful battle with lung cancer and its complications, but his last few weeks were spent in the loving care of his sisters, Maria and Leni, and his brother-in-law, Xari (all three from Germany), and his three wonderful caregivers, Brenda, Paula, and his loyal cat, Lucy. Maintaining his firm determination to the end, John spent his last days writing instructions as to how everything was to proceed after he decided to leave us. John was buried in Colma, where he shares a grave and the eternal companionship of his beloved Alberto.

He is survived by all of his old friends who will stubbornly cling to memories of John's determination and ethical code as a model for all of us; yet we are all warmed by the thought that the underlying gently spirit is at last free. ▼

Lee Kittelson

Sept. 25, 1947-Sept. 23, 1993

Lee passed peacefully on the morning of September 23 with his life partner and his mother and father by his bedside in his home. Lee's passing came just two days before his 46th birthday.

Services will be held at St. Michael's Church on October 4 at 10:30 a.m. in Sentinel Butte, ND 58654. ▼

Keith Kamrath

May 23, 1947 - Sept. 15, 1993

Keith Kamrath. Born May 23, 1947, in Norfolk, Nebraska. B.S. in theater and arts from Chandron State.

Raised on a farm outside Madison, he developed solid Midwestern values such as helpfulness, courtesy, thrift, and goodness. Though he honored his heritage, he found his true home when he moved to San Francisco.

He was enchanted and fascinated by everything. Though he fretted for never having enough time to do everything, he zealously pursued his many interests: opera, theater, people, hiking the outdoors, travel, SCUBA, art. He was intrigued by so much, excited even by shiny bits of litter in his path.

Keith compulsively collected most anything. While others were tossing out, Keith was gathering up. He was obsessive about recycling, reusing every gumfoil, bottlecap, and patapar tissue to make his collages and assemblages. He had a passion for collage. His creations epitomized his dedication to recycling.

Keith was warmly direct. He found value in most everyone. He approached most anyone, anywhere, at anytime. He was not put off by external appearance. His open, friendly manner disarmed pretense and allowed for easy conversation and play. Quite tactile, he often enveloped you in long happy bear hugs, sometimes gaily groping and squeezing.

He was dedicated to helping people. He donated much time and energy to organizing fund-raising for groups such as the AIDS Emergency Fund and the Opera Supernumeraries.

He worked at Just Desserts Bakery, where he was much liked and encouraged to rescue hundreds of unsold pastries, feeding them to the Homeless, Opera Sups, the Muscle Sisters, his art patrons, the pigs, his friends...

Ah, his friends, his many friends, so eclectic they were, yet he always devoted time and affections to each and every one. Keith was most loving. He was no snob.

His humor was irresistible: using his fabulous full red beard to describe Lana Turner riding a bicycle. He laughed from his center. It was infectious.

He did not laugh about politics. Keith felt that if Congressional pages contracted AIDS, there would be an avalanche of funding, typically elaborating with "Those goddamnuselessworthlessgoodfornothingmotherfuckingsonsofbitches if they knew what they were doing they'd be dangerous!"

Keith took his exit, in San Francisco at 8:20 a.m. on Wednesday, September 15, 1993. He is survived by his friends, three sisters and three nephews. We can't help but wonder if, as he left, did he check under the bed, behind the curtains, the chair ...?

Keith was famous for his monthly full moon bonfires at Ocean Beach. As per his request, a memorial bonfire will be held on Saturday, October 30, starting at 4:30 p.m., a short walk south of the usual site. For further info, contact Kathy at 467-1073.

We love you. Thank you dear Keith for all the joy and laughter you've brought into our lives. The giving of your genuine love is treasured by your friends. Such a gift is among the greatest life can offer.

David Kline

September 17, 1993

David Kline entered into his final rest on 17th September, 1993, after an extended struggle with AIDS. He is missed by his mother, Jean Kline, and by his many friends in San Francisco, New York, and around the world.

David Kline was a traveler in body, mind, and spirit. He graduated from Albright College in American Studies. He journeyed among the Radical Faeries at Short Mountain Sanctuary in Tennessee. He also worked in American experimental film at Berks Filmmakers in Pennsylvania. David enjoyed living in New York, Pennsylvania, New Orleans, Tennessee, and San Francisco. He was employed by Archsoft Inc. and he was in the process of completing his Master's degree at San Francisco State at the time of his death.

KIZZIAH—Casey, on October 25th. He is survived by his parents, Marshall and Marilyn Kizziah, and by his sisters and brother and their families. Dick Kopely

Richard Kopely, 43, of Washington, D.C., died Saturday June 5, 1993, at Sibley Hospital in Washington, D.C., of respiratory failure, according to a statement by his friend, Michael Strum of D.C.

Kopely was an instructor at Howard University for 16 years "where he taught basic reading and writing for the ROTC basic skills program," according to Strum. Kopely also taught English as a foreign language during summers for ten years in Britain and Puerto Rico, including San Juan, and in summer programs at the University of Maryland.

Kopely was a founding volunteer of the National Jewish AIDS Project-Washington Committee, according to Strum. He organized several fund-raisers for such organizations as the Whitman-Walker Clinic, Food and Friends, and the Jewish Social Service Agency. Strum said he was a frequent speaker and participant in AIDS educational forums.

Kopely grew up in Danielson, Conn. He received a bachelor's degree in English and a minor in French from the University of New Hampshire in Durham. Kopely spent a year abroad in France and was fluent in French. He spent three years in the Peace Corps in Zaire. He received a master's degree in English from the University of Colorado in Boulder.

STUART KAPLAN

July 3, 1995, age 39

Literary agent and manager who founded California's Animation Festival.

John F. Krause, III

Dec. 8, 1948-March 3, 1993

John passed away peacefully in Palm Springs the evening of March 3.

Originally from Munster, Indiana, John attended Arizona State University before moving to San Francisco in 1972. He was a member of the Hunga Dunga family on Fell Street during the idealistic years of the Haight-Ashbury hippie era. Shortly afterwards, he met his lover of ten years, Frank Lobraico, who passed away in 1984. John and Frank started a design and construction business called "Space, Time and Energy Planning," (S.T.E.P.).

John was an integral part of the early San Francisco Gay Men's Chorus. In 1981, he toured America with the chorus, considering it one of the highlights of his life.

In 1985, he moved to Palm Desert with his lover, Mark Juranick, with whom he remained until his death.

In the Palm Springs area, John received acclaim for S.T.E.P.'s design and construction projects. The desert was a spiritual place for John, especially Joshua Tree National Monument, Mt. San Jacinto, Anza Borrego, and the deserts of Arizona.

KEEL—Ronald, 43, on Feb. 25, 1994. A passionate leader in the Gay sports community, Ron dedicated his life to many organizations including the Metropolitan Community Athletic Association of New York (President 1985-87); the International Gay Bowling Organization (Vice President 1986-87; President 1987-91); the New York Gotham Open Tournament (Director 1993); the Federation of Gay Games New York 1994. His career with American Cyanamid in public relations lasted fifteen years. He is survived by his father, Elijah; his loving sister, Ginger; his brothers, James and Ray; and many nieces, nephews and friends worldwide.

KEATS—Steven, Actor and director. On Sunday, May 8, 1994, he took his own life. Born February 6, 1945, he is survived by his loving sons, Thatcher and Shane, his daughter-in-law, Karen, his sister and brother-in-law, Roberto and Michael Allen, and their children, Drew and Romi. Deeply loved and respected by many, he will be dearly missed by his family, friends and community. A memorial will be announced at a later date. In lieu of flowers, contributions to the Actors Fund of America, 1501 Broadway, New York, New York 10036 in Steven's name would be appreciated.

KEUSTERS—Jack, 61 years old, at Roosevelt Hospital, on July 18, 1992 after a long illness. Beloved companion of Jose Pepe Medina. Devoted brother of Hetty Keusters of Tilburg, Holland. A warm, loving and generous man, always willing to help others in every way possible. A kind and sympathetic man who never turned away from another person's problems. A quiet man, who valued peace and disliked arguments, but who was willing to stand up and be counted on for the things he believed in. He will be greatly missed by the many loving friends and acquaintances he leaves behind. At his request, cremation was performed. A memorial service will be held at a date and place to be announced. In lieu of flowers, please make contributions to the charity of your choice.

In addition to Strum, Kopely is survived by his parents, Pryle D. and William Kopely of Eustis, Fla.; friends, Robert Colachio of Denver, Colo.; and Stanley Goodwin and John Cortes of D.C.

A memorial service was held June 6 at Mt. Lebanon Cemetery in Adelphi, Md. His remains were interred that day.

Contributions can be made in Kopely's name to Whitman-Walker Clinic, 1407 S St., NW, Washington DC 20009; Food and Friends, P.O. Box 70601, SW, Washington, DC 20024.

Shawn Michael Kinney, 35, of Los Angeles died Oct. 21 due to complications from AIDS. Kinney served on the boards of the Valley Business Alliance and

A memorial will be held in September. In lieu of flowers, donations to The Sharing Community of Yonkers, N.Y.

Jack Anthony Krumpols

April 7, 1953-June 4, 1993

After a valiant struggle, Jack passed away peacefully on June 4 from an AIDS-related illness. He spent his final days under the watchful care of his dear friend John Adams.

Always cheerful with a positive attitude, his last months were spent traveling and visiting the many friends he had made over the years. Jack's love for water was well known by many. He was an avid water skier and enjoyed taking sea cruises whenever time permitted. Even towards the end he had made reservations on an RSVP cruise, one of his favorite holidays. I am sure he will be missed on costume night.

He founded Jack Trux in 1977. Though the company started as a one truck hauling operation, under his careful guidance it developed into one of the finest delivery companies, service decorators and showrooms in the Bay Area. Jack, a member of the GGBA, was always willing to lend help and support to AIDS fund raising projects, including The Academy of Friends, The Names Project and Project Open Hand.

Jack is survived by many family members including his sisters Katherine and Mary Ann, brothers J.C., Jimmy, Robert and his wife, Lori, and his fondest companion Ika. In keeping with Jack's wishes and his love of the sea, a small group of family members and friends will set sail aboard "The Legend," where his life will be celebrated as his remains are scattered out to sea.

Although he will be missed greatly, his memory will live in his company, Jack Trux, which will continue in the tradition he intended. ▼

Alan J. Kuconis

April 15, 1953-March 26, 1994

Alan Kuconis, better known as Alan or the mad "Livark," died suddenly at R.K. Davies Hospital after a very short period from complications from AIDS. He was a familiar face shopping or "hanging out" in the Castro or attending AA and NA and other endless group meetings. He graduated from Northeastern University. Alan moved to San Francisco five years ago after living in New York, Ft. Lauderdale and Boston. He loved the Bay Area for its people, charm, scenery, but not MUNI.

He is survived by his parents, Joseph and Harriet Kuconis of Essex Mass.; sister, Cheryl Berman of Boston; and various nephews, nieces, uncles, aunts and cousins.

Mark Justin King

March 23, 1965–Feb. 14, 1993

Our dear Mark passed away surrounded by his family and me, his lover, on Valentine's Day due to complications from AIDS.

Mark, darling, I'll think of you and smile whenever I see a Greta Garbo film, browse the art deco stores or toss back a few beers at Cocktails. San Francisco is full of memories of you. The city that you so greatly love and lived in the last 15 months of your life. You had finally found a place where you were accepted.

I'm grateful for the eight years you were my friend and bitter for our future together, that has been lost. I shall always have the memory of your smiling face and the knowledge of love, caring, and appreciation you held for me.

My sincerest thanks go out to Mark's entire family for including me in decision making and their support; my inner circle of friends for the devotion and attention they have given me; Dr. Leoung and Dr. Fallsonee for their genuine concern and guidance; and the fourth floor nursing staff at Davies Medical Center.

In Mark's honor, continue to fight AIDS, homophobia, bigotry and ignorance. Goodbye my love—▼

William C. (Wick) Kenney

May 14, 1959–March 25, 1994

Surrounded by candles, flowers, family and friends and his life partner, Wick concluded his journey in this life in peace, relieving him of the pains and fevers that he suffered for the last seven months. Wick Kenney devoted his life to fight for the protection of the environment. He worked and served diligently with Friends of the River and Earth Share of California in the past 12 years. His legacy lives on with the establishment of the William C. Kenney Watershed Protection Foundation, which will grant funds for the cause of river protection in the Western United States.

It was extremely hard to see him off. But he promised that one day he will play with us again. He will ski, play squash, kayak, and make love again. Yet until then, he is dearly missed by his adoring lover, Humphrey Wou; his family, Susanna, Chad, Jay, Chip, and Hod; his nanny, Stottie; and many lifelong friends.

A celebration of Wick's life will be held at noon on Easter Sunday, at Redwood Spring Ranch, 7639 Sonoma Highway, Santa Rosa. ▼

Joan Kaye

May 21, 1993

Joan Kaye, a dyke from hell and lifelong activist for social justice, died suddenly on May 21 of a brain aneurism. She was 51.

Joan was born in New York and transplanted to Florida at age 14. In the early 1960s, she was expelled from the University of Florida for "having too close a relationship" with another woman. At the University of South Florida she became active in the civil rights movement and in opposing the Vietnam War.

Joan lived in San Francisco for over 25 years. She served as a shop steward and recording secretary of the American Postal Workers' Union—San Francisco local. She organized AIDS educationals for postal workers, and initiated her union's participation in the AIDS Walk-a-thon. Joan gave active solidarity to many struggles for workplace justice, including the recently victorious fight for a union contract at the Parc 55 Hotel and organizing drives at Round Table Pizza, Diamond Walnut, and helped form CASELAW, a law firm workers' organization. She was a co-founder of Postal Workers for Peace, and traveled with them to El Salvador and Nicaragua.

As a member of Lesbians and Gays Against Intervention, Joan organized against the Gulf War and the Israeli occupation of Palestine, worked to educate lesbian/gay youth about the realities of the military and the draft and demonstrated for women's right to choose. She participated in many direct actions against U.S. aggression and injustice with her affinity group, Presenté, and in Stop AIDS Now or Else's blockade of the G.G. Bridge and disruption of the Opera. She was arrested protesting the acquittal of the cops who beat Rodney King, and attended the March on Washington in April.

There will be a memorial gathering on Saturday, June 5, from 3 to 6 p.m., at the ILWU Ship Clerks' Hall, 4 Berry St.,

Richard Kitchen, a home furnishings designer in Manhattan, died on Thursday at St. Vincent's Hospital and Medical Center. He was 44 years old.

The cause was AIDS, said a brother, Gregory.

Mr. Kitchen, with his twin brother, Robert, designed household products like china, sheets and towels. They maintained a design studio in Soho.

Richard Kitchen graduated from the State University at Stony Brook and received a master's degree in education from the City University of New York.

Mr. Kitchen is survived by his brothers, Gregory and Robert, both of Manhattan, and his parents, James and Margaret Kitchen of Alexandria,

Suit Denied Over Failure to Tell Partner About AIDS Test Result

NEWARK, Nov. 3 (AP) — A Federal judge ruled today that a man whose male lover concealed having AIDS was betrayed, but cannot collect damages from the man's estate because he did not show "severe emotional distress."

Tests on the surviving partner indicate that he does not have the virus that causes AIDS.

Federal District Judge H. Lee Sarokin appeared sympathetic to the survivor, identified only as J. B., writing that a "person who knowingly has AIDS has a duty to disclose it and take the steps necessary to protect against its transmission to others."

Despite the "duplicitous" of the AIDS victim, the judge ruled that J. B. "presented no competent evidence of severe emotional distress" and he dismissed his lawsuit.

Tests Indicated Virus

The AIDS victim, identified as J. K., died in October 1990 after tests indicated the presence of H.I.V., the virus that causes AIDS, in the summer of 1986. J. B. and J. K. began having sex in January 1986, but J. B. did not learn of his lover's condition until a month before J. K.'s death.

J. B.'s lawyer, Steven J. Polansky of Moorestown, said he was surprised that the judge did not think there should be compensation for exposing someone to a fatal disease.

"If this guy had simply come up and punched him, he would have had a cause for action," said Mr. Polansky, adding that an appeal was likely.

Judge Sarokin did not address whether J. B. and J. K. took precautions to limit potential exposure to the virus. John E. Slavitt, a lawyer for J. K.'s estate, said the two men practiced "safe sex" in their relationship, but after several months ceased using condoms during oral sex.

Anxiety Is Not Enough

Judge Sarokin acknowledged "that upon learning one's lover has AIDS, there is a period of intense anxiety awaiting the result on one's own tests over an extended period of time."

But, "although the court has great sympathy for the anguish plaintiff undoubtedly suffered as a result of this betrayal, his claim must be dismissed because of his failure to document his claim either through his own sworn statement or that of a medical expert," the judge ruled.

He said both men had other sexual partners during their four-year relationship. In court papers, J. K.'s lawyer said J. B. continued to have homosexual relations with new partners.

Michael Isbell, a lawyer with the Lambda Legal Defense and Education Fund, a nonprofit group involved in gay, lesbian and H.I.V. cases, applauded the decision, saying that allowing damages when there is no injury sends the wrong message.

"Every person must take responsibility to his or her own health," said Mr. Isbell, director of Lambda's AIDS Project.

"Given the real risk that these cases will be used in an abusive manner, in my view, the decisions in accord with Judge Sarokin's are better reasoned," he said. "If you open the floodgates to this kind of lawsuit, there's no way to stop it."

Chris Keenan, originally of Florida, was surrounded by loving friends and family when he went to rest on May 22, 1990. Chris died of AIDS-related illnesses at the Hospice at Mission Hill. He had just turned 31.

Chris spent the past two years living in the old waterfront section of Chelsea and working at a local real estate firm. His ambition and perpetual smile were attributes that made him a natural in a lifetime of sales positions.

Chris loved the beach, traveling, and was always the life of the party. He was blessed with a very caring family and wonderful friends who offered endless love and support during his illness.

Robert J. Krueger

Rob Krueger passed away in Boston on October 14, 1993 amongst his family and close friends after a long illness. Rob was 36, and he graduated from Watertown High School in 1975. He also attended Salem State College.

Rob spent ten years living in Los Angeles writing and coordinating talent for television shows and specials in the field of entertainment. One of Rob's major accomplishments was creating and producing the original Homemade Comedy series for NBC Television. He was also the talent coordinator for the Grammy Awards for seven years.

Rob was a brilliant writer, always looking for new themes and ideas for new shows. Upon his return to Boston, he wrote for In Newsweekly as well as The Source.

Rob will be missed by many friends and acquaintances he knew over the years. Many of us will miss his distinct laugh as well as his ability to make us all roar with laughter...and no one could ever match his flawless and magical "Bette Davis."

Rob leaves his mother and father, Jean and Richard Krueger of Watertown, as well as his brothers Ronald J., Randall J., and the late Richard J. Krueger.

Friends and family will gather for a celebration of Rob's life on Sunday, November 21, 1993 at 3 p.m. at Club Cafe in The Sunset Lounge, 209 Columbus Avenue, Boston, MA.

Mitch Kincannon

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Mitch Kincannon, a former circus clown who spent his last years educating people about AIDS, died Feb. 11 of complications from the disease. 94

Kincannon, 39, was the only surviving original resident of Heath House, Santa Barbara County's first board-and-care home for people with AIDS. The facility opened in June 1991.

After he was diagnosed in 1988, Kincannon dedicated his life to promoting better understanding of acquired immune deficiency syndrome, speaking at colleges, universities and conferences across the country.

He organized quilting bees for the Names Project AIDS Memorial Quilt. For 2 1/2 years, his struggles were chronicled in "Mitch's Story," a series of reports and photographs in the Santa Barbara News-Press.

A native of Scobey, Mont., Kincannon in 1976 joined the Royal Lichtenstein Quarter-Ring Sidewalk Circus. He worked with the traveling show for 16 years as a clown, animal trainer, costume maker and manager before his health and finances faltered due to AIDS.

He is survived by his mother, Irene of Santa Barbara; sister Lisa Dighans of Peerless, Mont.; brothers Monte Kincannon of Aurora, Colo., Terry Kincannon of Peerless, Mont., and Stan Kincannon of Kelseyville, Mont.

Funeral arrangements were pending.

Tom Kerrigan

Arts Publicity Agent, 50 5-29-94

CARTERET, N.J. — Former basketball player Chadwick O. Kinch, the Cleveland Cavaliers' No. 1 draft pick in 1980, died Sunday. He was 35.

He died of AIDS, said Henry James, funeral director of the James Funeral Home in Perth Amboy.

The 6-foot-4 guard from the University of North Carolina at Charlotte was in the starting lineup when the school made the NCAA Final Four in 1977. Later, he was selected by the Cavaliers in the first round of the National Basketball Association draft.

After playing 29 games with the Cavs, he was traded to the Dallas Mavericks in February 1981, and played 12 games with that team. He didn't return to the Mavericks the following

In Minnesota, Settlement Is First For AIDS Bias by Health Insurer

By MILT FREUDENHEIM
Special to The New York Times

Settling charges that it had discriminated against members with AIDS, a union welfare fund in Minnesota agreed yesterday to pay $100,000 to the estate of a construction worker who died last year.

The payment to the estate of Mark Kadinger, a 36-year-old construction worker who died in November 1992, was the first large award in a case involving an AIDS-related denial of health insurance under the Americans With Disabilities Act, which took effect last year.

Before the law took effect, a number of decisions by Federal appeals courts had given health plans wide leeway to refuse payment for AIDS and other expensive illnesses under the Employee Retirement Income Security Act, the Federal pension law.

The Supreme Court refused to hear an appeal last year of a ruling that upheld the right of a Houston music store to limit payments for an employee with AIDS.

$50,000 Ceiling Is Lifted

In the agreement yesterday, the health plan of Local 110 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers in St. Paul and the electrical contractors' association also agreed to lift a $50,000 ceiling on payments for AIDS-related diseases. The health plan provided insurance up to $500,000 for other catastrophic conditions.

The settlement was announced by the Federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, which joined a lawsuit against the welfare fund brought by Mr. Kadinger's family and the University of Minnesota Hospital, which had treated him.

Under the consent agreement, which will be filed in Federal court in St. Paul, the health plan will report any further disability related changes in coverage to the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission for three years. The union and the National Electrical Contractors Association will also report any amendments in their collective bargaining contract to the commission.

The health plan also agreed to provide educational seminars for trustees of the plan regarding its obligations under the disabilities act, said Laurie A. Vasichek, a commission lawyer in Minneapolis.

The defendants will also donate $2,500 to the Minnesota AIDS project, an advocacy group, in Mr. Kadinger's memory.

Keith Halleland, a lawyer for Mr. Kadinger's estate, said the bulk of the money would go to pay medical bills. "We got exactly what we wanted," he said.

In a New York ruling last month, Judge John E. Sprizzo of Federal District Court dismissed a motion in which a group of construction companies and workers' unions contended that their welfare fund was exempt from the disabilities act, citing the Federal pension law.

The Mason Tenders District Council Welfare Fund has been seeking to block a lawsuit against it after it cut off medical benefits for Terrence P. Donaghey, a Queens construction worker with AIDS-related illnesses, and three other workers with AIDS.

Damien Mysak, a lawyer for the fund said yesterday that it would ask Judge Sprizzo to authorize an appeal from his ruling on Jan. 7.

In another case filed under the disabilities law, the Allied Services Division Welfare Fund agreed in September to settle a case with the Los Angeles office of the equal employment commission on behalf of two men with AIDS whose coverage had been reduced to $5,000 from $300,000. The fund, an insurer for 20 California companies, agreed to pay $10,000 in damages to the men and restore full coverage.

In a related case in Baltimore, the commission sued a teamsters union welfare fund last month on behalf of Harry Johnson Jr., a former employee of a food distributor, who said the fund had denied him health benefits because he had AIDS. Luther West, a lawyer for the fund said it was permitted, under the Federal pension law "to pick and choose what benefits we provide and what illnesses we cover."

A Federal district judge ruled against the plaintiffs on similar grounds in a New Hampshire case. They are seeking a review of the decision by the Appeals Court for the First Circuit in Boston.

Survivors include a sister and two brothers. 94

Dr. Stephen Kritsick, well-known veterinarian

Dr. Stephen M. Kritsick, a veterinarian who served as animal science editor on ABC's "Good Morning America," died yesterday of AIDS-related lymphoma at his parents' home in Lexington. He was 42.

Dr. Kritsick announced on television in October that he had contracted the disease.

"When he finally got full-blown AIDS in June, he wanted to devote his energies to becoming a spokesperson for AIDS," said Dr. Kritsick's companion, Art Campbell. "Unfortunately, time didn't permit him to do that."

Dr. Kritsick reflected on his life and his illness in a Dec. 24 interview with "Good Morning America" medical correspondent Dr. Nancy Snyderman. It was his final appearance on the program.

"He wanted to try to do the same thing he had done with animals and pet care, pet needs, and just make people aware through the media and through his writing the difficulties of living with AIDS in our society, and how it could happen to anybody," Mr. Campbell said yesterday.

Dr. Kritsick was born in Cambridge and attended Michigan State University, where he also received his veterinary medicine degree. He interned at Angell Memorial Animal Hospital in Boston and later worked as senior staff clinician at the Henry Bergh Memorial Hospital of the American Society for the Protection of Animals in New York.

He was director of emergency services at the Animal Medical Center in New York from 1979 to 1982 and staff veterinarian at Bide-A-Wee Home Association in New York from 1986 until 1990.

Dr. Kritsick was most recently staff veterinarian and national spokesman for the Humane Society of the United States, in addition to working as a regular contributor to "Good Morning America."

He was the author of two books, "Dr. Kritsick's Tender Loving Cat Care" and "Creature Comforts," a novel. He was at work on a book about AIDS.

Dr. Kritsick previously lived in Hudson, N.Y., and owned a house on Nantucket.

In addition to Mr. Campbell, he is survived by his parents, Harriet and Leo Kritsick; two sisters, Charlotte Bahn of Worcester and Marcy Lomen of Westford; and many nieces and nephews.

A funeral service will be held at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow at Douglas Funeral Home in Lexington.

Burial will be in Westview Cemetery, Lexington.

James Kinsey

James Baxter Kinsey, 33, died Wednesday, May 25, 1994 at Washington Adventist Hospital in Takoma Park, Maryland of AIDS-related complications, according to his friend, Henry L. Williams of D.C.

Kinsey, who sometimes went by "Alan," was born June 6, 1960, in Washington, D.C., and was a District resident all his life.

Though he was disabled and unable to work for the past 10 years, Williams said, he did enjoy hobbies, which included music, food, and working with electronics.

Williams said he plans to contribute a panel for Kinsey to the Names Project AIDS Memorial Quilt.

Aside from himself and other friends, Williams said Kinsey is survived by his mother, Mary Baxter and daughter, Precious Baxter, both of D.C.; his brother and sister-in-law, Albert and Patricia Baxter; and four nieces, Aprell, Patrice, AJ and Parris Baxter, all of Suitland, Md.

A memorial service was held for Kinsey on June 1 at St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Landover, Md. He was buried the same day at Harmony Memorial Park, also in Landover.

Dr. Adam D. Keneth

Sept. 14, 1923 - Aug. 10, 1994

Our dear friend and teacher has gone to his reward. Many will miss him indeed.

Adam was born in Switzerland and educated in Poland and France. During WWII he was deported to Siberia. He eventually joined Polish forces to help liberate Europe.

He also fought in the International Brigade for the independence of the State of Israel.

Dr. Keneth taught linguistics at Hebrew University and earned a Ph.D. in letters from the Sorbonne and Cambridge. He served as an Israeli cultural attache in Paris.

In the U.S. Adam worked on Wall Street and earned a degree at the University of Virginia. He taught at the University of Kentucky. He came to San Francisco in the 1960s and was on the board of trustees of the Polish Arts and Culture Foundation. In 1979 he lost his beloved wife, Maxine, after her long battle with cancer.

Adam was fluent in several languages and a brilliantly evocative storyteller. He entranced all who knew him. He was a living history book, and his recollections brought tears to those so fortunate to hear of his extraordinary, heroic life. He was deeply loved by so many in the community. Bon voyage, ami.

Troy John Knopik

July 27, 1964 - Aug. 29, 1994

Troy passed away quietly at home after a brave struggle with AIDS. By his side were his lover of 12 years, Jack, and their kitties, Samantha and Lena. Many thanks to Hospice by the Bay and the nurses who made his last days at home comfortable.

Troy is survived by his dearly loved grandmother, Rose Knopik; his parents, Marlys and Ben; and six half-brothers.

Born in Spokane, Washington, Troy graduated from Northfield High School in 1982 and then moved to Florida where he met Jack. Jack and Troy moved to San Francisco in 1988, and Troy became the manager of Connie Shoes Embarcadero.

Both Troy and Jack have been active members of the SF gay community. Troy was well-known for his ability to decorate a bar for any occasion on the spur of the moment with little or no budget. He became known to his friends as "Troy Boy."

We will all miss you, Troy. A special farewell from John and all your friends. Who knows, maybe you are talking with Emmett Kelly or many of the clowns that you so enjoyed. Ciao, kiddo. ▼

Richard C. "Derek" Keyser

July 24, 1960 - Sept. 15, 1994

"It has been said that if you move a single pebble on the beach, a different pattern is set up, and the world is changed. It can also be said that love, if it is deep enough, strong enough, and true enough can prevent a war, prohibit a plague, keep the whole world whole." (The Outer Limits, 1964)

Rick (known as "Derek" to many of his San Francisco friends) was that single pebble. Though his presence on Earth was a short one, he enriched the lives of all who knew him by his love, loyalty and friendship. Rick was born in New York, raised in St. Croix, Virgin Islands, and ultimately relocated to San Francisco. He completed his courageous battle with AIDS on September 15.

Rick is survived by his mother, Mona Evy of Maryland; his father, George Keyser of South Carolina; brothers, Michael and Mark; and sister, Cindy. He will also be missed by his former co-workers at Howard Johnson's at Fisherman's Wharf. He leaves behind many friends as well, including his best friend of 14 years, Jim Moon. A memorial was held here in San Francisco in his honor September 18. Burial will be in New York. ▼

Pamela Jean Kirby

August 25, 1994

Pamela Jean Kirby, a.k.a. the Big Cat, died August 25 at the home she shared with her dear friend/sister Diane Battaglia-Dillon and Diane's lover, Kathy Gail. She is deeply mourned by her partner, Libby Sajo, and sadly missed by family, friends, colleagues and clients.

Pam was a substance abuse counselor at the Haight Ashbury Free Clinic for the past seven years. Her specialties were working with those who were stimulant users, lesbians, dual diagnosis or HIV positive. Pam's quiet strength and giving nature inspired all those who knew her.

For the last two years, Pam faced breast cancer and numerous complications with courage and grace. Even when her life was greatly circumscribed by illness, she continued to marvel at the beauty and wonder of the world and to delight in the company of her loved ones. Pam will be remembered by those who knew her for her humor, her compassion and her giving heart.

A memorial service will be held Sunday, September 25, at 1 p.m. at 65 Cleary Court, No. 2, San Francisco. For information, phone (415) 340-1710. Donations to the Women's Cancer Resource Center or the American Cancer Society preferred. Arrangements - SomeDay, San Francisco. ▼

Paul C. Karney Jr.

Oct. 28, 1944 - Sept. 29, 1994

Paul died unexpectedly in his home on 18th Street, one month short of his 50th birthday. Born in Philadelphia, Paul was a graduate of Penn State and Georgetown University Law School. A major in the U.S. Army Reserve, Paul served in Vietnam for 2-1/2 years and was awarded the Bronze Star, Purple Heart and several air medals. His public service career began as city prosecutor for Alexandria, Va. Since May 1983, Paul has been the clerk of the Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of California.

Paul's life really blossomed with his move to San Francisco in 1983. His involvement with Alcoholic's Anonymous and his 13 years of sobriety were a source of great pride. In his final years, Paul found happiness with Gary Koven. Paul was Gary's knight in shining armor, his dream come true.

Paul is also survived by his sister, Patty; brother-in-law, Steve; brother, Gregory; sister-in-law, Jackie; and many nieces and nephews.

Paul was truly a wonderful human being. He had a zest for life and a caring nature that made everyone feel at ease. Those of us touched by his life will never forget him.

At 59, journalist Andrew Kopkind

NEW YORK — Andrew D. Kopkind, a political writer who covered civil rights, student activism and gay rights, has died at age 59.

Mr. Kopkind, who lived in Manhattan and Guilford, Vt., died Sunday of bladder cancer at Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center.

Mr. Kopkind, born in New Haven, Conn., began his journalism career at the Washington Post and also reported for Time magazine. He joined the New Republic in 1965, covering the emerging civil rights movement and the era's roiling college campuses.

In 1968, with James Ridgeway, he founded the underground newspaper Mayday, which was later renamed Hard Times and specialized in covering the antiwar, black power and student movements. He was a contributing editor of Ramparts magazine. —AP

John Kappers, AIDS activist

ATLANTA — John Kappers, an AIDS activist who was the first person in Georgia to be quarantined with a drug-resistant strain of tuberculosis, died of AIDS Tuesday. He was 36.

Mr. Kappers, a registered nurse, was placed under involuntary quarantine at home by DeKalb County health officials in April. He had contracted a deadly drug-resistant type of TB in 1991.

The two-month quarantine sparked criticism from AIDS activists and others who contended it was unnecessary and discriminated against an AIDS patient.

GEORGE KRONENBERGER, 42, a gay corporate activist, died Nov. 1 from AIDS complications. The former Workplace Project organizer for the National Gay and Lesbian Task Force, he co-founded the NGLTF's Workplace Issues Conference, which gathers corporate, labor and human resource activists working on equal rights for gays and lesbians in the workplace. He is survived by his partner, Gregory Dawson, his mother, Eleanor, family and friends. 94

Harry (Bud) Smith-Kohner

Jan. 9, 1937 - Nov. 18, 1994

Bud died peacefully at home Friday night, Nov. 18, from an AIDS-related illness. His lover, Al Kohner, was by his side. Al and Bud adopted each other in 1982, and they were officially father and son. They shared 32 wonderful years together, traveling throughout the world.

Bud was born in Philadelphia. After his schooling he served in the U.S. Navy and then settled in Miami, where he and Al met. They relocated to New York City and then to San Francisco in 1977, and Bud became the manager of I. Magnin's Men's Department.

Al wishes to extend his love and gratitude to their friends for their loving support, and also to Dr. Shelly Gordon of the Pacific Presbyterian Medical Center for her expert, professional help and loving care. Also the staff of Option Care of San Rafael. Due to their efforts Bud was comfortable to the end of his beautiful life.

Donations in his memory can be made to the AIDS Emergency Fund. A memorial service will be held in December. For information call Al at 863-8317. ▼

William Knauf

William Knauf died of AIDS at home in St. Petersburg on December 29. With his life partner, Vincent Cianciola, Knauf owned and operated Vincent William Art Gallery on St. Pete Beach. Knauf, who was originally from Mosinee, Wisconsin, came to the bay area in 1990. He is survived by his parents, a brother and two sisters. Vincent would like to thank all of their friends, family, and Hospice—especially Dr. Wallace and staff for the wonderful care and understanding through Knauf's illness. Donations in his memory may be made to F.A.C.T. in St. Petersburg. 95

KEMP—William O. of Boston Sept. 18, 1996. Former husband of Mary J. (Baker) Kemp. Devoted and loving father of Jean Marie Arroyo, Donna A. Averill and Paul W. Kemp. Patrick Kelly, Dancer
And Writer, Dies at 40
12-13-93

Patrick Kelly, a dancer and writer, died at Cabrini Medical Center in Manhattan on Friday. He was 40 and lived in Manhattan.

The cause was AIDS, said his companion, Richard Dworkin.

Born in Portland, Ore., where he began his dance training and received a degree in nursing from Oregon Health Services University, Mr. Kelly danced in the corps de ballet of companies including the Portland, San Francisco and Cleveland Ballets. He also performed as the ballerina Doris Videnya in the all-male Ballets Trockadero de Monte Carlo.

Mr. Kelly wrote about dance for New York Native and Dance Magazine. He worked as a psychiatric nurse and supervisor at St. Vincent's Hospital in Manhattan. He was the founder and president of the Village Dive Club and Diving for Life, a national scuba-diving organization active in AIDS support services.

In addition to his companion, Mr. Kelly is survived by his parents, Tyke and Joseph Kelly; two sisters, Gale Edwards and Anne Bateman, and two brothers, Michael and Casey, all of Portland, and his maternal grandmother, Wyona Larson, of Alameda, Calif.

Werner Herbert Kraus

June 10, 1948 - May 24, 1995

Werner died peacefully of complications from AIDS at Coming Home Hospice on May 24. Werner came to San Francisco in 1980. Until he was downed by AIDS, he was program director at the San Francisco Press Club. Werner was grateful for the loving care he found at Coming Home Hospice and for the caring friendship of Kim Schackel and Annemarie Madison, who were at his side when he passed away. Donations may be made in Werner's name to Coming Home Hospice, 115 Diamond St., San Francisco, CA

William Thomas
Radcliffe Kirkland

June 12, 1959 - Dec. 11, 1994

Bill departed this world peacefully on Sunday morning at 9:41 in the presence of his loving mother Judith and brother Chris. He had struggled with AIDS with strength and dignity. His spirit and stubborn determination will be warmly remembered by all of us who loved him.

Born in NYC, Bill was raised in Teaneck, N.J., and received a BA in journalism from Rutgers in 1983. He moved to LA in 1984, where he worked at TV station KCOP. He lived in LA with his lover Scott in a strong relationship that lasted seven years. Scott succumbed to AIDS in 1992. That year Bill moved to SF to start a new life in a new town. He made his mark here, surrounding himself with a circle of friends and a loving companion, Jeff.

Bill loved to entertain with dinners and cocktail parties, and he traveled extensively in Europe, Mexico, the Caribbean and Australia. Always athletic, Bill played tennis and worked on his well-developed body at the Muscle System.

Memorial services will be held at Sullivan's funeral home, 2254 Market Street, on Sunday, December 18, at 2 p.m. ▼

Tom Keightley

Jan. 7, "1953" - Dec. 8, 1994

Long after his own health began failing, Tom delivered meals in the Tenderloin every Friday afternoon without fail. He was one of Open Hand's most senior, reliable volunteers.

Tom migrated here with a colony of friends from Chicago in the glory days of the late '70s. He enthusiastically embraced San Francisco, particularly Potrero Hill, as his home, doing everything and meeting everyone. He was a model friend, a model for Colt and a model employee for Westinghouse for many years.

Tommy joined a host of departed friends on Thursday, December 8. During the days leading up to his death at Davies Medical Center, he was surrounded by a roomful of loving friends and his adopted San Francisco family. His father preceded him in death by only weeks in his native Hammond, Indiana. His mother and brother were with us at Tom's bedside over the Thanksgiving holiday.

There will be a gathering of friends on Tom's birthday, January 7, at 2 p.m. at the home of Bill DiFrancesco, 47 Harry Stairs. Please call 282-7373 or 986-7340 for details. ▼

Brian Kelly

Aug. 28, 1955 - Jan. 24, 1995

Brian died peacefully in his sleep of AIDS at his home in Forestville on January 24. Born in Michigan, he moved to San Francisco in the early '80s, later moving to Sonoma County in 1985, where he was employed as a senior software engineer for Telenetworks until he went on disability in 1993. His strong sense of community allowed him to offer on a weekly basis his time, talent and computer skills at Food for Thought, where he quickly became a part of the food bank family. He was active with Face to Face speakers bureau talking to teenagers about AIDS.

Brian is survived by his loving mother, Dorothy Kelly; father, William Kelly Sr.; brother, Bill; niece, Breanna; sister, Kathleen Cole; and many wonderful friends.

Friends and family will honor his life and gentle spirit at a memorial and potluck celebration on Saturday, February 4, 3 p.m. at Metropolitan Community Church, 14520 Armstrong Woods Road in Guerneville.

Donations in Brian's memory may be made to Food for Thought, Sonoma County AIDS Food Bank, Face to Face AIDS Emergency Fund or The HIV Complimentary Therapy Center (formerly the Center for Spiritual Support). ▼

Margaret Tyson Klein

Oct. 29, 1948 - Jan. 23, 1995

The Philharmonia Baroque Orchestra and the Bay Area musical world has suffered a tremendous loss with the passing due to cancer of violinist-violist Margaret Tyson Klein. It is difficult to pinpoint her most outstanding qualities, because she was the quiet embodiment of so many gifts and talents. One might say that "here was a woman with no enemies or rivals, only family, friends and colleagues who loved her completely."

Margaret served her community in many ways. Her chief interest was literacy advocacy, and she did private coaching with clients. She served the gay community here during the year and at holiday time playing recitals on 5-A at SF General and at Coming Home Hospice.

We will miss you deeply, Margaret, and will always feel your quiet presence. We will attempt to see, from your point of view, that "miracles do exist" and that one should always look for, and expect, not only a miracle but also the best possible outcome in any situation.

Donations may be made to the Advocates for Literacy Association or to Cancer Research.

Margaret is deeply missed by her fellow players: Kati, David, Ellie, Phyllis and numerous other colleagues. ▼

Stephen Arnold Ehphgrave
Kuttner

July 23, 1950 - Feb. 25, 1995

Stephen took his last breath at 9:26 p.m. He succumbed to HIV disease in the loving presence of friends while being cared for at St. Mary's Hospital.

Stephen was born in Loughborough, England. He was the only son of Dr. Marjorie Ephgrave Kuttner, a professor of philosophy, and the late Dr. Ludwig Kuttner, J.D., an architect.

Stephen received his BA from Victoria University of Manchester, studying literature, comparative religion, drama and psychology. He completed postgraduate studies at the University of Surrey, receiving a master's in humanistic psychology. He was a member of Mensa.

Stephen worked in England as a psychotherapist. He moved to San Francisco in 1982, where his exotic good looks, muscular body and ample qualities were so evident that he was approached to make erotic films. Under the name Jason Steele, he starred in over 15 of them.

Stephen was also a freelance writer whose work appeared in several different publications. He was a founder of the AIDS Healing Alliance and editor of Psychoimmunity and the Healing Process. Additionally, he was a masseur, counselor, spiritual guide and body-building coach.

Walter "Wayne" Kelley
Sept. 2, 1958 - Feb. 15, 1995

Born in New Jersey into an environment of little hope, Wayne ran away to Los Angeles as a young teenager and later to Oakland to seek a better life. There he spent many difficult years, learned many a hard lesson, and yet managed to warm the hearts of many and laugh in the face of seemingly insurmountable obstacles.

Wayne faced each battle with strength and determination, though he was provided no weapons except those he crafted himself. He was unconquerable until he stepped onto the battlefield of AIDS less than one year ago. Although his surrender was imminent, he never had to face defeat in the final assault, as his shell-shocked state left him unaware of the ravishing of his army. He lost his battle with AIDS, but he won his war with the ultimate peace that had eluded him for so long.

He is survived by his life partners, David O'Dell of Los Angeles and George Nelson of Oakland; blood family in Vineland, N.J.; and extended family throughout California. Interested persons may call (510) 836-3789.

Congratulations, Wayne. We miss you. We love you, and we'll see you on the other side. ▼

Gary Kalkin, 44, Is Dead; Top Disney Studio Executive

1-8-95

By BERNARD WEINRAUB

Special to The New York Times

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 7 — Gary Kalkin, a top marketing executive at the Walt Disney Studios for the last 10 years who guided the campaigns for such blockbusters as "Beauty and the Beast," "Aladdin," and "The Lion King," died on Friday at his home in Los Angeles. He was 44.

The cause was AIDS, said his companion, Laurence Mark, a film producer.

As senior vice president of domestic marketing for Buena Vista Pictures Marketing, Mr. Kalkin supervised promotion, advertising and publicity campaigns for the three major film divisions at Disney. These are Touchstone and Hollywood Pictures as well as the Disney label, which releases animated and children's films. Mr. Kalkin also played a strategic and creative role in promoting Disney's Broadway stage version of "Beauty and the Beast."

Jeffrey Katzenberg, former chairman of Walt Disney studios, said that Mr. Kalkin was not only the marketing force behind Disney's animated hits, but that he also guided the campaigns for such non-animated successes as "Down and Out in Beverly Hills," "Good Morning, Vietnam," "Who Framed Roger Rabbit" and "Pretty Woman." Despite his illness, Mr. Kalkin helped supervise the marketing of "The Santa Clause," the Tim Allen comedy that emerged as one of the most successful films of 1994.

One of the most respected marketing executives in Hollywood, and a mentor to younger executives at Disney and other studios, Mr. Kalkin was a low-keyed, unflamboyant and blunt-spoken executive whose management style was unusual in Hollywood. He delegated considerable authority to junior executives and personally worked on a select group of films that were either difficult to market or personal favorites.

He successfully pressed reluctant Disney executives to release such films as "The Joy Luck Club," and "Green Card" gradually, in order to build audience momentum. Until then, Disney had traditionally released its movies nationally on a single day.

For the film "Beauty and the Beast," Mr. Kalkin's strategy was to show moviegoers and critics that the animated musical went far beyond traditional Disney cartoons and should be viewed on the same level as a live-action musical appealing to adults as well as children. Under Mr. Kalkin Disney took the unusual step — which they have since repeated on "Aladdin" and "The Lion King" — of showing incomplete scenes from the film to moviegoers, journalists and critics. The strategy also involved showing the incomplete film at the New York Film Festival, a risky move that proved successful because it created intense interest from an audience that traditionally ignored animation. Mr. Kalkin shaped the highly successful campaign for "Who Framed Roger Rabbit," a difficult film to market because of its blend of animation and live action.

Mr. Kalkin rarely associated with movie stars or executives, and surrounded himself with only a small circle of friends. He was known as a compulsive giver of gifts, and his dinner guests received everything from Baccarat crystal to T-shirts from flop Disney films. Partly to flee the world of Hollywood, he traveled several times a year to London, Paris, Hawaii and New York.

Mr. Kalkin was born in Brooklyn, and was graduated from Brooklyn College. He earned a masters degree in cinema studies at New York University.

In the 1970's, he entered the movie business working as a press agent in the New York offices of United Artists. He then went into business on his own, handling "Saturday Night Fever" and other movies. Mr. Kalkin moved to Los Angeles in 1978 to handle the publicity for "Grease," one of the highest-grossing films of the 1970's, and worked on such films as "American Gigolo," "Staying Alive" and "Nine to Five."

Before joining the Disney studios in 1985 as vice president of publicity for Walt Disney pictures, Mr. Kalkin was the vice president in charge of West Coast operations for M/S Billings Publicity. There he handled such clients as John Travolta, Robert DeNiro and Martin Scorsese.

He is survived by his sister, Marlene Bernstein of Coral Springs, Fla., and Mr. Mark.

Daniel Kearns

Theatrical Manager, 39

8-2-95
Daniel Kearns, a theatrical manager who worked on and off Broadway, died on Monday at the Hospice at Mission Hill, outside Boston. He was 39.

The cause was complications from AIDS, said his press representatives, Boneau/Bryan-Brown.

Mr. Kearns was company manager for "Penn and Teller," "The Night Hank Williams Died" and "Tango Argentino," among other shows.

He is survived by three brothers, Mark, Stephen and Brian, and three sisters, Ellen and Louise Kearns and Rosemary Cheever, all of Boston.

Michael Paul Kudis

Michael Paul Kudis, age 51, died peacefully at home in Chelsea on Jan. 16 from complications due to AIDS. Born March 11, 1943, he was the son of the late Blanche Bajgot Kudis and Walter Kudis.

Throughout his life, Michael worked many various jobs in and around the Boston and Cambridge areas.

Michael is survived by many friends and relatives; his friends of more than 20 years, John Duguay and John Podolske of Chelsea; his close friend, John P. Osler of Hyde Park; and his lover of eight years, David J. Tavis, Jr., of Chelsea.

A funeral mass was celebrated on Jan. 18 and Michael was buried in a Cambridge cemetery with his mother.

Michael Dennis Kinter

March 14, 1957 - Oct. 5, 1995

Mike Kinter was a sweet and decent human being who loved music, flowers, cats and the smiles of little children. He is survived by his friends. ▼

Eric Roy Koek

Eric Roy Koek, age 38, surrendered peacefully to AIDS on Dec. 17 at his West Roxbury home. 94

Born in San Francisco, CA, on Oct. 9, 1956, he was educated in Santa Barbara, CA. In 1976 Eric moved to Boston to attend the Massachusetts College of Art, graduating in 1980. After teaching art in the Brockton school system, he became a retail designer for nine years at Crate and Barrel in Harvard Square.

In 1987 with his friend Mickey White, he co-founded Spectrum Co., a Boston firm that specialized in decorative interior and furniture painting. The company was dissolved in 1993 due to Eric's illness. His projects were published in House Beautiful, Design Times and the Boston Sunday Globe Magazine.

Eric leave his beloved life partner Glen Blair; his parents, Frederick and Marilyn (Hessell) Koek of Goleta, GA; a sister, Emily Zajac of Grassvalley, CA; his grandmother, Dolly Hessell of Revere; and two cherished nieces, Erin and Kelly Zajac.

Cremation was directed by Watson Funeral Service in Cambridgeport, with Eric's cremated remains to be scattered by his beloved Glen off Big Island, Hawaii, this spring. Remembrances to the Foundation for Children with AIDS.

Michael Kerwin

On Dec. 30, 1994 Michael Kerwin lost his long battle with AIDS. Michael leaves his spouse Stephen, his father and step-mother Marie, his four sisters [Linda, Donna, Kathy and Annie], three brothers-in-law, several nieces, a nephew, many friends, and his pet, the retired Greyhound Toni.

Michael was remembered in a mass at St. Christine's in Marshfield on Wednesday, January 4, 1995. Family and friends gathered to share stories of his life, and from them, we learned that Michael had been mischievous all of his life.

For the past three years, Michael lived with his spouse Stephen Kovacev, who provided him with inexhaustible and constant loving care.

We will never forget Michael's terrifically twisted sense of humor, his wit, his sexy voice, his good looks, and his non-judgmental character. We are grateful for the 41 years Michael was given, and we are saddened it had to end.

A celebration of Michael's life will be held on Saturday, Feb. 4, 1995 at Upstairs At the Pudding in Harvard Square at Cambridge. The Memorial will begin at four o'clock p.m. with a Reception following from 5 p.m. until 7p.m. R.S.V.P. John Karaian at 247-2865.

Michael was involved in lobbying legislators on Capitol Hill for freedom of choice in alternative therapies. Donations in his memory may be made to Direct AIDS Alternative Information Resources, (DAAIR), 31 East 30th Street, New York, NY 10016.

KEVIN KEARNEY

Although it has been years since Kevin left his earth, on May 31, 1993, he remains here in my heart. He stirred a passion in me that I had lost. He taught me to laugh and helped me to cry. He was blessed with physical beauty and a tender soul. His body deteriorated from AIDS but his spirit remained untouched.

I can still taste our first kiss and feel the warmth of our first embrace. With Kevin I knew the bliss of being in love and the pain of saying good-bye. Kevin faced many obstacles in life but his greatest triumph was his living and loving with AIDS.

Kerry Morrow

Doug Knapp

Douglas Michael Knapp, 35, died at his home in Baltimore, Maryland, of AIDS related complications on Monday, January 9, 1995, according to his companion of five years, Michael Selby, also of Baltimore.

Knapp was born in Cheverly, Md., on May 25, 1959. He spent much of his teenage years in and around the Washington area.

Knapp graduated in 1981 from Franklin University, formerly in Washington, D.C. He worked for the American Railroad Association's finance department after college and later was employed by the IBM Corporation in Washington.

While at IBM, Knapp was transferred to San Francisco, Calif., but returned to Maryland in 1983 after the death of a friend. Knapp retired from IBM in 1991 as a result of his illness.

Knapp volunteered at the Chase Brexton Clinic Wall of Courage in Baltimore, where he counseled people who were dealing with and suffering from AIDS related conditions.

In addition to Selby, Knapp is survived by his parents, Joan and William Knapp; and sister, Denise Knapp, all of Silver Spring, Md. He also leaves his two dogs, Norma Jean and Baka.

Knapp's remains were buried at Fort Lincoln Cemetery in Brentwood, Md., on Jan. 12.

Francis M. Kinsey

1956 - 1994

Fran Kinsey, founder of the law firm Kinsey, Roberts & Clark, died on Dec. 18 after a long battle with AIDS. He was a Member of the Florida and American Bar Associations. He was one of Tampa early and outstanding community leaders. Under his presidency, The Tampa Bay Business Guild, became the most influential gay and lesbian organization in the Bay area at a time when the community's visibility was just beginning. He brought such national speakers and entertainers to the Guild as Quentin Crisp, Romonovsky and Phillips, David Kopay and Bob Paris & Rod Jackson. He was active in the creation of the first Tampa Pride Film Festival and the Gay and Lesbian Fine Art Exhibit at the Tampa Museum of Art. He also served on the founding board of the TAN. Till his illness affected his eyesight, he was on the staff of The Gazette. He leaves many colleagues and dear friends who cherish his humor, admire his generosity and appreciate his accomplishments.

Robert F. Kiley, 44

Clinical social worker
3-17-95

Robert F. Kiley, a clinical social worker, died of complications from AIDS Friday in his home in Milton. He was 44.

Mr. Kiley was born and raised in Boston and was tutored at home as a child because he suffered from hemophilia. He graduated from Boston College in 1978 and went on to receive his master's degree in business administration and social work from Boston College in 1983.

A highly respected clinician, Mr. Kiley became a licensed independent clinical social worker, distinguishing himself in the mental health field.

He began his career as a milieu therapist at the Erich Lindemann Mental Health Center in Boston. He later was director of residential services and senior program director at the Massachusetts Mental Health Center in Boston, and most recently worked for Vinfen Corp. in Cambridge.

In October Vinfen Corp. announced the establishment of the Rob Kiley Scholarship, to be given for "exceptional commitment to serving the consumer with dignity and respect."

Mr. Kiley was an avid Red Sox fan and enjoyed photography, nature and music.

He leaves his wife of 23 years, Debra (Graham) Kiley, and his son, Robert Jr., of Milton; his parents, Ferdinand and Stella (Petroni) Kiley of Milton; three brothers, Ferdinand 3d of South Boston, Gerald of Hingham and Stephen of Quincy; and a sister, Barbara Gallo of Wakefield.

A funeral Mass will be held tomorrow at 10 a.m. in St. Ignatius Church in Chestnut Hill. Burial will follow in Milton Cemetery.

KING—Daniel, former Director of Development for the Columbia University Libraries, died on October 27, 1995, from complications related to AIDS. He was 41 years of age and lived in Manhattan with his partner, Dr. Frederick G. More. A native of Columbus, GA, Mr. King attended the University of Georgia and was a graduate of the University of Michigan Graduate School of Business Administration. Initially serving as personal assistant to Madame Vera Stravinsky, widow of composer, Igor Stravinsky, Mr. King later joined the publishing field before becoming a development officer, first at the University of Michigan and later at Columbia University. Besides Dr. More, Mr. King is survived by his parents, Cleon and Mary Blount King of Columbus, GA; his sister, Kathryn King of Atlanta, GA; his nephew, Pace Daniel Bearden; and many friends. In lieu of flowers, contributions in his name to an AIDS-related charity of your choice would be appreciated. A memorial service will be held at a date to be announced. For further information, contact the Greenville Memorial Home, Jersey City, N.J., 201-333-8000.

Brian Fitzgerald Kerr

Nov. 15, 1965 - Oct. 4, 1995

Brian passed away peacefully after a valiant battle against AIDS. He will be remembered for his caring and generosity toward others. His triumphant spirit served as an example to all who knew him for he faced and overcame many obstacles. He showed us how to live with dignity, something he carried with him to his death.

Brian is survived by his family, the Okus of Hawaii; his chosen family, the Kerrs of California; his sister, Carolyn Cavanaugh of California; and his life partner, Andreas Pueschel of Washington. Donations in Brian's name may be made to Pathways Hospice in Oakland, Calif. ▼

Michael E. "Mickey" Kasper

Michael E. "Mickey" Kasper, age 40, died at his sister's home in Hull on Jan. 13 after a long illness. Mickey was born in Bayshore, Long Island, New York, on Jan. 17, 1954.

A graduate of Central Islip High School in 1974, he attended The Art Institute of Boston. A resident of Boston for many years, he was employed at one time at Crate & Barrel, Copley Place; the Baby Watson Cheesecake Co. for many years; and retired as a cashier from the Del-Haus Restaurant in Kenmore Square after 18 years, due to illness.

Mickey was a well-known artist, mostly self-taught, and had several art showings in Boston. A baritone, he was a former member of the Boston Gay Men's Chorus for over 11 years and appeared with them in Boston, New York and Washington, D.C. He recently moved from "The Piano Factory," a residence on Tremont St. in the South End for artists, actors and people in the arts.

He is survived by three sisters and six brothers; Karyn E. Leavitt of Hull; Danni Kasper of Boston; James Kasper of Boston; and Howard Johnson, Ronald Johnson, Harold Dowling, Veronica Dowling and Christina Johnson, all of Long Island, New York. He is also survived by several nieces and nephews.

A celebration of his life was held at J.S. Waterman & Sons in Boston on Jan. 15, and he was cremated at Forest Hills Crematory in Boston. At Mickey's wish, his remains will be taken to Provincetown and scattered at sea.

Stephen J. "Jerry" Kauffman

Oct. 7, 1947 - Jan. 21, 1995

Jerry, 47, of 310 Ashland Avenue, Punxsutawney, Pennsylvania, died

Saturday, January 21, at his residence.

Jerry was born in Miami, Florida, the son of Michael and Jeanette (Weiss) Kauffman, both deceased. He is survived by one sister, Roberta Cohen of Miami, Fla.; one nephew; his cat, Torah; and his one and only partner in life, Steve Schepis, who shared his life for 14 wonderful, memorable years.

Jerry moved from Miami to San Francisco in 1979, through a job transfer from Southern Bell to Pacific Bell. He was a coin telephone collector until he was injured on the job in 1984. He rejoined the work force at Pacific Bell Directory as an advertising consultant, where he remained and excelled in the field until his disability retirement in June 1992. Upon retirement, he and his partner moved back to Steve's home town of Punxsutawney to enjoy the peace and relaxation of rural living.

During the last two years of his life, he was supported and assisted not only by his partner, but also by Jeanne Caldwell of the Northwest Pennsylvania Rural AIDS Alliance. Donations may be made to the alliance in care of Clarion University of Pennsylvania, Clarion, PA 16214. ▼

MARVIN KRISTAL, a 46-year-old

Miami AIDS activist, died of AIDS on August 12. A partner in the law firm Druckman, Kristal and Breslow, Kristal provided free legal help to poor people with AIDS. He was instrumental both in alerting people to what services were available and in maneuvering them through the bureaucracy to obtain those benefits. PS

Dennis King

Dennis King, 42, died at his home in Silver Spring, Maryland, of AIDS related complications on Tuesday, January 31, 1995, according to his brother, Edward King of Silver Spring.

King was born Nov. 17, 1952 in Philadelphia, Pa., and spent much of his early childhood there. In 1965 at age 12, King and his family moved to the Washington area, where he lived until his death.

A graduate of John F. Kennedy High School in Wheaton, Md., King worked for Grady Management as an assistant resident manager from 1988 until he retired on AIDS related disability in 1993. Previously, King worked as a bookkeeper for the Silver Spring Jewish Center, Capitol Technology, the National Symphony, and Hogan & Hartson. He also worked in retail sales at Zayres clothing store.

In addition to his brother, King is survived by his father and step-mother Edward and Peggy King; sisters, Frances Price and Patricia Gerard, and another brother, Philip King, all of Port St. Lucie, Fla. King also leaves his step-sisters, Beverly Isabelle of Capital River, Fla. and Vonda Craycraft of Richmond, Va.

A memorial service was held at St. Andrew, the Apostle Roman Catholic Church in Wheaton on Feb. 4. King's remains were interred at the Gate of Heaven Cemetery in Wheaton.

Robert Paul Kinney, Jr.

Robert Paul Kinney, Jr., 36, of Prospect Park, Pennsylvania, a former manager for the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania, F. & A.M., and active with DeMolay and Masonic activities for many years, died at his home on Monday, March 13, from complications due to AIDS. 95

Living with HIV since 1988, Kinney became a vocal HIV/AIDS educator through the Delaware Valley AIDS Network (DCAN), and by forming an AIDS committee at his home church. He preached sermons on AIDS and spoke to many groups outside his church relative to the tragedy of the disease. His work in AIDS education was well respected and he was designated volunteer of the year in June, 1994, by DCAN.

Born in Philadelphia, Kinney was raised in Norwood, graduating from Interboro High School in Prospect Park, then receiving an associate degree in business administration from Keystone Business School in Swarthmore.

Kinney is survived by his father, Robert Sr., his son Robert Paul Kinney, III, his step-mother, a sister, two brothers, and a step-brother, as well as several nieces and a nephew.

Services were held at Christ Episcopal Church in Ridley Park, and interment in Cumberland Cemetery, Lima, PA.

LESLIE KALIADIS, 38, a photographer featured in Visual AIDS' new online art archive, died of AIDS April 28. After her 1992 diagnosis, Kaliades used photography not only to express but to treat her illness. "When Leslie had pneumonia," said her mother, Dorothy Kaliades, "she took pictures of breezes in trees, to represent breathing." Dorothy added that her daughter, a native New Yorker, "loved music, theater and everything Manhattan had to offer." Kaliades had several shows in SoHo galleries and appeared on the cover of Body Positive. 99

William James Krider

Dec. 14, 1953 - June 25, 1995

Our beloved lover, partner, brother, son, uncle, friend, colleague and mentor, Bill Krider, let go of this life and moved on to his next life. He did so wrapped in the loving presence and thoughts of his life-partner, Arnold Burton; his mother, Bettye Krider; his brother, Ken Krider; and his sister, Elizabeth Renfro.

After completing his education at Shasta College, Chico State and St. Mary's, Bill worked in Saudi Arabia, Thailand, Reno and San Francisco. For 10 years he ran the Indochinese Housing Development Corporation, helping Southeast Asian refugees with both assimilation and holding on to their native cultures. Bill also owned a tax business serving the gay community, small businesses and teachers.

Bill traveled all over the world, often with his partner of nine years, Arnold. When he wasn't traveling, Bill relaxed by spoiling his cats, Sundance and Carnation; taking in Giants and 49er games (often with his brother and his nephews, Nate and Chris Huff); and listening to music, especially the Beatles.

We who loved Bill will miss him greatly, but we wish him Godspeed. Donations may be made to the AIDS Health Project. Please contact Arnold Burton at (415) 431-2624 for further information. ▼

John Evans Kolb

July 26, 1995

John ("Jack") Kolb, 54, a San Francisco physical therapist, died July 26 of AIDS-related liver cancer.

A native of Wilmington, Ill., Kolb graduated from Millikin University in 1963, then joined the Peace Corps in Nepal. Discovering a genius-level skill with languages, within six months he had mastered Nepali.

Kolb developed and ran innovative Peace Corps language education programs. He also mastered many European and Indian languages, and won a full linguistics scholarship at Columbia University.

Kolb opted instead to study physical therapy at New York University. He graduated by 1974 and practiced in New York City and the Bay Area. He specialized in joint and spine mobilization, which he taught nationwide. He was known for his extraordinary ability to motivate patients.

Kolb was the active center of a broad and loving circle of friends from Asia, Europe and the U.S. He is survived by his sisters, Jean and Karla, and his daughter, Cade. A memorial service will be held August 5 at 4:30 p.m. at San Francisco's Metropolitan Community Church. Contributions may be sent to the church at 150 Eureka St., SF, CA 94114 for a memorial window for Kolb, titled "The House of Prayer for All People." ▼

James Francis Kerley

July 7, 1952 - May 17, 1995

Jim Kerley spent his youth in the shadow of Mt. Fuji, exploring abandoned fortresses in Puerto Rico and camping-out under the vast Texas sky. But some of his happiest days were spent walking on the sunny side of Castro Street.

Jim arrived in San Francisco in the late 1970s to pursue his art, inspired by his long friend Lawrence Calgano. Although painting was always closest to his heart, public art was his real strength. Jim performed as a clown on Pier 39, helped put up billboard shows on Market Street; was the gatekeeper at the Tea Garden and spent years trying to perfect the imperfect Parade Committee.

Jim knew the greats, near greats and would-be greats of the local political scene. He danced at Harvey Milk's inauguration and marched with a candle down Market Street after Harvey's death. Jim protested the lack of funding for AIDS research, marched on Washington and helped storm the State Building.

Jim was an artist, a street activist, a healer and a clown. His life made a difference. In very private and public ways Jim helped build our community. We will always remember his charm, his warmth and his unmistakable laugh. His passing is a great loss.

Jim is survived by his sister Beth and the Kerley family of San Antonio; by his friends Batina, Ben, Walter, Mark, Michael, Bindy, John, Rudy and all who loved and were loved by him.

A memorial service will be held to celebrate Jim's life on June 10, 1:30 p.m., at Holy Redeemer Church at 18th and Diamond streets in San Francisco. ▼

Gary L. Kirkman

Sept. 28, 1944 - June 5, 1995

Gary quietly passed away June 5. He and his partner, Jack Edwards, who died last year, lived in Benicia.

Gary grew up in West Palm Beach, Fla. He served in the Navy for nine years and then moved to the Bay Area in 1971, where he worked as a communication technician for Pacific Bell for 23 years.

Gary is survived by four brothers and sisters, Beverly of Tequesta, Fla.; Joann of West Palm Beach, Fla.; Ron of Palm Beach Gardens, Fla.; and Steve of Waukegan, Iowa. In addition, he is survived by nine nieces and nephews and Sheba, the wonder dog.

Gary loved hiking, motorcycles and Yosemite. We will miss him very much.

The family has requested that in lieu of flowers donations be made to the Napa Valley AIDS Project at (707) 258-2437 or the AIDS organization of your choice. ▼

Teddy Karavidas

Teddy Karavidas, known to his friends simply as Kali Das, a name given him by his spiritual teacher and guru Ma Jaya, died on July 5, 1995, following a long stay at St. Vincent's Hospital in New York City. He was 36.

Born Ted Karavidas in Los Angeles in 1959, Teddy was an AIDS activist since caring for his first dying friend in 1982 in San Francisco. Upon the death of his friend, he returned to Los Angeles where he volunteered at AIDS Project Los Angeles (APLA) quickly developing skills in volunteer recruitment and coordination not to mention convincing many of his friends to donate money, goods and services to those with AIDS. After moving to New York in 1984, he continued his volunteer efforts at the Gay Men's Health Crisis (GMHC) focusing his "people personality" on providing peer counseling and support.

Soon after his own diagnosis with Kaposi's Sarcoma/AIDS in 1986, Ted participated in the AIDS Mastery Workshop lead by Sally Fisher and began facilitating the workshop himself with a few months. Leaving his career as a models agent, Ted joined the management team of Northern Lights Alternatives New York (NLA), a grass roots AIDS service organization founded in 1986 to produce workshops, support groups, provide social functions and care for children and families with HIV/AIDS. As Community Affairs Director for the agency, Ted participated at the forefront of the PWA empowerment movement by participating in several city and state task forces on AIDS and organizing with other agencies programs to bring AIDS awareness to the general population.

In 1989, Ted Karavidas established Northern Lights Alternatives New England in Boston. NLA soon became a driving force in AIDS empowerment, channeling hundreds of AIDS Mastery Workshop graduates into service to the community, many of them going on to establish other grass roots organizations such as the PWA Coalition of Boston and the Boston Living Center.

Ted Karavidas not only was the Founding Director of NLA but participated in several committees and boards bringing PWA representation to groups such as the Boston AIDS Consortium and the Harvard AIDS Clinical Trials Group (ACTG). He was the first person with AIDS to hold a seat on the Community Review Board as well as work closely with the Massachusetts State Department of Mental Health and Public Health developing training programs for state workers on AIDS. Kali Das worked with the Names Project AIDS Memorial Quilt, The Names Fund, The Boston PWA Coalition, The Boston Living Center, and is the Founder of the AIDS Mastery Foundation in Los Angeles.

Ted's greatest love was his work with people both as a skilled workshop and group facilitator and as a sought-after speaker. Known for his fearless attitude and opinions on AIDS, gay and lesbian issues, politics and spirituality, Kali Das often surprised his audience with his shoot from the hip style and blunt candor about his personal experiences. His intuitive knowledge of people's fears and needs allowed him to bring hope and encouragement to countless in need as he showed genuine warmth and love.

John Michael Kelley, 41

Owned South End styling salon

A memorial service will be held tomorrow for John Michael Kelley, the former owner of the Santa Fe Styling Co. and Santa Fe Tanning in Boston, who died of complications from AIDS Monday in his home in Provincetown. He was 41.

Mr. Kelley was born in Wichita, Kan., to a military family. After living in Germany and England he settled in Boston, where he trained as a hairdresser. In 1987, he opened the Santa Fe Styling Co. in the South End. He also operated Santa Fe Tanning in the South End until his retirement in 1992.

In 1989, he received an award from the AIDS Action Committee for extraordinary service in the fight against AIDS.

He leaves his companion, Stephen Robling of Portsmouth, England; his mother, Jane of Hampton, N.H.; his father, Frank Sr., of Melbourne, Fla.; a brother, Frank Jr., also of Melbourne; four sisters, Melissa of Cambridge, Anne of San Francisco and Patricia Lynch and Roberta Rucker, both of Provincetown.

The memorial service will be held at 1 p.m. in the Unitarian Universalist Church in Provincetown. An additional memorial service will be held at 3 p.m. June 17 in Old West Church in Boston. Burial is private.

Rosalind Pretzfelder of Manhattan gave $100 to the fund to be used "in making the lives of AIDS victims, especially children, more comfortable in whatever time they have."

And Terese Kreuzer of Manhattan sent $25 in memory of her friend and piano teacher, Mark Kyrkostas, who died of AIDS in 1990.

"Every day I see names of people in the paper who have succumbed to this plague — and no end in sight," she wrote. "But he was the one I knew and loved and continue to miss."

Richard Thomas Kiner

June 29, 1996

At peace with God June 29, 1996. Richard was the beloved son of Walter and Mary Kiner; loving brother of Daniel and Gregory Kiner; and the dear grandson of the late Thomas and Catherine Breslin and Frank and Francis Kiner. He is survived by aunts and uncles; many cousins; and other loving family and friends. A native of San Francisco, he was 34 years old.

Funeral services have been held. Donations may be made in Richard's name to Project Open Hand or the SF AIDS Foundation.

Tom Kidwell

April 15, 1949 - Sept. 12, 1995

Born Thomas Edward Kidwell II in Bradenton, Florida, of Russian ancestry — his hobby of genealogical research recently lead him to the discovery of his Native American ancestry as well. A man of varied and private talent, Tom created works of art with pen, pencil, charcoal and the camera. Annually he would create a

John Kellogg

August 10, 1995

John Kellogg, 44, succumbed Thursday, August 10, to AIDS complications in Grand Rapids, Mich.

Related to and descended from the Kellogg cereal family of Michigan, John came to San Francisco in the early 1970s and became associated with gay business firms, among them Adonis Bookstore and Adonis Video.

He also achieved some local fame as a model for Grand Prix Photo Arts. In the 1970s he made a film for Falcon, Ticket Home, co-starring with a model named Luke.

In the late 1980s, John moved to Kansas City, where he was affiliated with some of the popular gay bars. About five years ago, he returned to his home town in Michigan. He last visited San Francisco in June 1994. ▼

Arthur Kropp, PAW president, dies at 37

Arthur J. Kropp, president of the nonpartisan civil liberties organization People For the American Way, died Monday, June 12, 1995 at his Washington, D.C. home of AIDS related complications, according to a statement from People For the American Way.

Kropp, 37, joined the staff of People For the American Way in 1984 as membership director and was appointed president in 1987. Kropp led the organization through congressional battles against the Supreme Court nomination of Judge Robert Bork and a proposed amendment to prohibit flag burning, and directed the group's support of the Civil Rights Restoration Act of 1987 and the 1991 Civil Rights Act. He also led the organization's efforts in favor of the Religious Freedom Restoration Act, legislation to allow motorists to register to vote while getting their driver's licenses, the president's national service program, and the Freedom of Access to Clinic Entrances Act.

During Kropp's tenure as president, People For the American Way's membership expanded to its current 300,000. While directing a staff of 75 researchers, policy analysts, lobbyists, attorneys, and others, Kropp guided the group's expansion into many new areas, including race relations, support for reproductive rights, opposition to artistic censorship, and protection of civil rights for Gay men and Lesbians.

"Arthur led People For through a remarkable period, and he did it with grace, wisdom, courage, and vision," said People For the American Way founder Norman Lear. "His work improved the lives and strengthened the liberties of millions of Americans in communities across the nation."

Kropp was born July 30, 1957 in Farmingville, N.Y., on Long Island. His political life began as a Rockefeller Republican working in local New York campaigns. While attending the College of Wooster in Ohio, Kropp served as chair of the area's student campaign for Gerald

Arthur Kropp

Ford's presidential bid in 1976. Upon graduating in 1979, he joined the staff of the Republican National Committee in Washington, D.C.

In 1982, Kropp was appointed political director for the National Society of Professional Engineers, where he managed the group's Political Action Committee and its involvement in hundreds of congressional campaigns.

Kropp had recently turned over day-to-day management of People For the American Way to its executive vice president Elliot Minberg on an interim basis.

"Art Kropp earned the deepest respect and affection of the entire People For the American Way family," Minberg said. "We were all blessed to have worked with him and learned from him, and we are committed to carrying on the vital work he so effectively championed."

Kropp is survived by his companion, Chris Bobowski of Washington, D.C.; sister, Laura Meyer of Smithtown, N.Y.; brothers, William Kropp of Holbrook, N.Y., Richard Kropp of Manassas, Va., and James Kropp of Farmingville, N.Y.; and grandmother, Sally Laning of Las Vegas, Nev.

A funeral service for Kropp was held June 14 at the Augustana Lutheran Church in Washington, D.C. Burial services will be private.

Contributions in Kropp's memory may be made to the Arthur Kropp Memorial Fund, People For the American Way, 2000 M St., NW, suite 400, Washington, DC 20036.

Christopher Keene, 48; New York City Opera director

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Christopher Keene, 48, general director of the New York City Opera since 1989, died Sunday at New York Hospital.

The cause of his death was complications from lymphoma arising from AIDS, said opera spokeswoman Susan Woelzl.

Keene disclosed publicly in August what had been rumored in music circles, that he had been HIV-positive for a decade or more. His lymphoma was diagnosed in February.

On Sept. 7, he conducted the New York City Opera's opening-night opera, "Mathis der Maler," with verve and energy.

He was applauded long and warmly when he stepped onstage before the performance to make a witty speech about the evening's title role. Two tenors recovering from ailments performed Mathis, one acting on stage and one singing from the orchestra pit.

Keene began his association with the New York City Opera in 1969 as recipient of the first Julius Rudel Award, granted to a young American to develop opera administrative and managerial skills.

He made his conducting debut at the New York City Opera in 1970 with Ginastera's "Don Rodrigo." He conducted more than 300 performances of more than 50 operas for the company including the world premieres of Reise's "Rasputin" and Menotti's "The Most Important Man," the U.S. staged premiere of Janacek's "The House of the Dead" and eight New York premieres.

Thomas Kach, 44, died Sept. 2 of AIDS-related pneumonia. A Chicago native and a resident of Rogers Park for the past decade, he was a window clerk at the Rogers Park Post Office for many years before moving to an administrative position. He retired from the postal service in December after 22 years. He was an avid gardener, and his home was featured in the first Rogers Park Community Council Garden Walk, in 1994. He is survived by his companion, Jim Yeaman, and his two cats, Ms. Kittie and Zeebee. Donations: Friends of the Hospice Program, Northwestern Memorial Hospital, 303 E. Kevin S. Keefer

July 26, 1956 - Oct. 31, 1995

Kevin passed away on October 31 as the result of complications due to AIDS. He was a bowler for the San Francisco Tavern Guild League, and moved to New Jersey in 1991 when his partner relocated. Kevin lived with HIV for over 12 years, and when he finally got sick, he went very quickly and easily. It was how he wanted it.

Kevin was known to be a quiet person. He was very shy, yet when people got to know him, they found him to be willing to give anything he had to a person in need, even to the point of doing without things himself.

Kevin mostly enjoyed the time he spent with friends in Mexico and Central America. He loved his friends deeply, and could be counted on to go out of his way to be there when he was needed. Kevin never knew what it was like to be inconvenienced. If his friends needed him, he was there without even a thought.

Kevin leaves Ken, his partner of over 10 years. Friends spoke about Kevin and Ken in one breath, hardly ever seeing one without the other. He will be missed. ▼

Just a little more than 13 years ago, David and I met when I was pursuing a nursing career and he was pursuing my roommate at the time. Nothing of note developed between David and the roommate, but a very special and rare bond did develop between David and me. We were best friends almost from the start. Our friendship and level of intimacy grew and deepened with the passing of time; with the passing of jobs and lovers. After I experienced one particularly painful episode with a lover, David convinced me to move to Atlanta where he had been living for several years. We were buddies on the town again, and with time I healed.

Just a little more than six years ago my mother died after a long, brave battle with breast cancer. David was a supportive, caring witness to my painful first experience of nursing and losing someone I deeply loved. Again, he helped me heal and never scorned my belief that after surviving the loss of my mother I could never truly be hurt again. He knew I was wrong because for many months, to protect me from further pain, he had concealed a painful secret.

Just a little more than four years ago, David admitted to me and to one other close friend what I had suspected and dreaded for some time; that he was HIV positive. Over the next two years, he lost weight and he lost his hair and some of his lust for life, but he never lost his dignity or courage or determination. He never lost the ability to make me laugh—to make me feel better about myself and my place here on this planet—to make me feel lucky and thankful to have such a good friend. Sensitive and protective as always, he adamantly refused to let me share in his nursing care, remembering the anguish I experienced with my mother's illness and death.

Just a little more than two years ago David died quite suddenly and somewhat unexpectedly one evening at home two days after summoning his closest friends to a dinner party that he regally hosted from his bed. He had a private chat with each of his dinner guests that evening. He and I shared a cocktail and gossiped and reminisced and laughed just like old times. My lover told me later that David had asked him for a promise—the same promise that David had given my mother many years before—to protect me and care for me

Just a little more than 2,000 years ago, Plato described friends as two bodies sharing one soul. So this is really an old story that has been repeated many times in many ways. This is also an enduring truth and it is my own personal testimony to the power and magnitude of friendship and love. I will always treasure the memory of the time I shared with my best friend David. It was quality time. If only we had had just a little more.

SEAN "FLO" KINNEY

It's been a year (October 22, 1994) since mother called the angels to bring your wings so you could fly like the seagull you are, my Brother. With friends and family gathered around you, we toasted your glorious life and somehow knew that heaven was getting the better deal. With my hand upon your chest writing out 143, which means I love you, you took your last breath. The Seagull Flies Again.

In the spirit of Spider, you wove a web that is ever expanding. Your legacy, that of a Warrior. You changed so many lives with your mind, body and soul. You are my mentor and big brother. You were a life-long advocate for the HIV/AIDS community. So respected that the Los Angeles City Council as well as the California State Assembly convened in your name. The Seagull Flies Again.

So my Bro, I just want to thank you for being you. Although we shared many of the same paths...male, member of the walks-between tribe (gay), and both living with HIV, you have given me a guiding light to look up to, and a reason to keep living. Your soul is a Seagull, so spread your wings: The Seagull Flies Again.

Wayne R. Knowles

July 19, 1932 - July 15, 1995

Just five days short of his 63rd birthday, our dear kind, warm, funny and handsome friend passed into a sweeter existence after a courageous two-year battle. A native of Medicine Lodge, Kansas; an erudite graduate of the University of Kansas; Army veteran; investment and insurance broker; computer technician; mimic; father of three sons and proud grandfather of one; Wayne was one of the gentlest, softest-spoken, generous, most delightful, quietly witty, intelligent, well-read and, at times, stubborn, outrageous and ditzily impulsively fun individuals that we were ever fortunate enough to know and to love. He quietly epitomized a best friend.

A 30-year resident of the Bay Area, Wayne was predeceased by his great love, George, three years ago. Over the past ten years, Wayne volunteered thousands of hours with various groups in the fight against AIDS. He would want to thank the doctors, nurses, staff and home-care persons associated with the VA Medical Center/Ft. Miley. Although his gay life was only a decade long, he will be always missed by Todd T., Mike B., Walter L. and his mother, sisters and brothers in Kansas. ▼

Donald Robert Kern

Oct. 22, 1958 - Aug. 29, 1995

On August 29, Donald Kern passed away from AIDS at the hospital with Howard, his partner, and Jim, his best friend, at his side.

Don was born and raised in New York City. He received his undergraduate degree in education from Hunter and his master's in psychology and school administration from USIU and Cal-State Hayward, respectively. After doing time as a elementary teacher in Harlem and Bedford-Stuyvesant, he moved to Fremont in 1987. There, he worked for the FUSD as an elementary school teacher until early 1995. In 1989, he moved to San Francisco with his partner.

Don was well-respected in the community. He founded the Clipper St. SAFE group, and was a member of a number of community preservation groups like The Victorian Alliance and Friends of Noe Valley. He also did volunteer work for the Landmarks Board. In addition, he and his partner opened a successful B&B in Noe Valley in 1992.

He is survived by his partner, Howard Johnson, and his father, Donald Kern of Sebastian, Fla. He loved the people around him, and his passion was to make the world a better place. He will be missed by many, but forgotten by none. ▼

GEORGE R. KISH

Tuesday night dinners at the Shrine won't be quite the same anymore. And those big white teddy bears won't find their way to the hospital rooms of people with AIDS.

The warm, sweet-smelling man who talked about AIDS as a "blessing" in his life, and meant it, is gone. Atlanta won't quite be the same. George Kish is dead.

Kish, who died on May 30, 1992, at the age of 58, was an 11-year survivor of AIDS - a "long term" survivor. And what he left behind was the belief that there is a reason for hope.

Kish was diagnosed with GRID (Gay-Related Immune Deficiency) in 1982. It was several years before the name of the syndrome was changed to AIDS, and another year or so before HIV was identified. The HIV antibody tests and treatment followed.

Kish always seemed to be everywhere. He could be found most Tuesday nights at the Shrine for Immaculate Conception's dinner for people with HIV disease. Kish constantly wrote letters to the daily papers and to the archdiocese of Atlanta trying to educate those institutions about the reality of AIDS. He was interviewed on the television, on the radio. He constantly spoke out and asked for understanding, not just for AIDS patients but for the gay and lesbian community as well.

Peter Howard Kaufman

Nov. 4, 1957 - Aug. 8, 1996

Peter grew up in Woodland Hills, graduated from U.C. Berkeley, San Francisco State and Columbia University (New York). Taught French in Kansas. Had beautiful curly hair. Nickname: Peaches.

Passed away in Kansas. He is survived by the usual suspects: mother; father; sister; loving and awkward friends; and longtime companion of 21 years, Peter Ackrill, who stood by him until his death.

Peter was not pleasant about having AIDS. When there is no future, there is no sin. For remembrances of Peter Kaufman, call Jon Sugar at 415/731-2424.

Todd J. King

January 22, 1957 - August 22, 1995

Todd left friends and family early in the morning on a Tuesday. He died after a brief but hard-fought battle with lymphoma cancer related to AIDS. Just 38 years young, his last months were spent embracing his life, his disease and introducing the notion that death does not have to be a bad thing. He moved to San Francisco, The City he loved, in 1982.

Raised in Western Nebraska, Todd found his calling in public speaking and performing arts. His deep baritone earned him leading roles in "Hair" and "Jesus Christ Superstar" while attending Harvard, where he graduated in social anthropology in 1979. Todd was the business manager for Vocal Minority from 1990 through 1994 where he arranged over 50 public and private appearances for this singing group to include "Sims Classic" (producer), "On the Street Where We Live" (production consultant) and "The Twin Pinks Revue" (co-producer). Vocal Minority, under Todd's business direction, also performed at numerous benefits and memorials.

Todd was very dedicated to giving to the community. Entertainment was his vehicle of choice. In a message from the producers of the Twin Pinks Revue, Todd, with his usual precision, related the following sentiment that perhaps sincerely sums up Todd's insights and dedication. "As artists with roots in the Bay Area's lesbian/gay community, we face the significant challenge of producing events and creating beauty in the midst of a medical epidemic. In our community, some volunteer as counselors, some prepare food, many are primary caregivers to friends or lovers...Our way is to sing, to dance, to light a darkened theater with the illusion of life - in the hope that the illusion will sustain us until the challenge is overcome."

Todd loved music, football, basketball, and theatre. He was a great friend, a multi-talented individual, a hard worker, and a constant source of inspiration. And he was not afraid to die. To him, it was a new journey, a "plane ride" to a new place. In the words of Canon Henry Scott, "Death is nothing at all. I have only slipped into the next room. I am I, and you are you... I am waiting for you at an interval, somewhere very near - just around the corner. All is well." A notion Todd would have gratefully bowed to.

Nevertheless, Todd will be greatly missed by his family, friends and his community.

CHRIS KOMAR, 48, the assistant artistic director of the Merce Cunningham Dance Company and one of its principal dancers has died of complications from AIDS. He was described by the New York Times as "a small, slightly built dancer with a big jump and an unfailingly serious demeanor." He joined the Cunningham company in 1972 and created roles in more than 45 dances, retiring from dancing in 1993 but continuing to work with the troupe. He staged Cunningham dances throughout the world. He is survived by his partner, Art Becofsky. ■ 8-19-96

Paul Francis Kuftrin

May 20, 1956 - Aug. 27, 1995

Having lost his battle with AIDS, Paul Kuftrin passed away on Aug. 27.

Even though Paul lived with the inevitability of his death for over ten years, he continued to live his life with the unbridled spirit, intensity and compassion of a man with his whole life ahead of him. Only 39 years old, Paul touched many lives, made countless friends, and will be immeasurably missed by all who knew him.

Paul was preceded in death last November by his partner, William Forman. Paul loved cats, the 49ers, dancing, music, Star Trek and being a part of the excitement of the Castro. He was proud to be a part of the struggle to find a cure for AIDS and participated in a variety of painful medical experiments to help find a cure for what ultimately killed him.

Paul's ashes were cast into the wind on Sept. 27 on Tank Hill, where he would often watch the lights of the city. Even though his life is over, he would want us to "Think Good Thoughts."

Paul was an environmental engineer and a graduate of the University of Missouri at Columbia, where a memorial scholarship program has been set up. ▼

John Sidney Kessinger

March 23, 1954 - Nov. 30, 1995

John loved San Francisco and leaves her with many hillsides covered in wild flowers. For the many friends who loved him, we will all remember his love of words and Mother Nature. He took us to tide pools, national parks, pumpkin patches, and on every adventure he discovered in poetry or prose.

John worked as a gardener and later with Pacific Bell. He left work a few years ago and drove his truck cross-country in an adventure we all shared through postcards and letters written with his keen eye on isolated desert mornings and when the trees of an unexplored forest would lure him away. Land's End, A Different Light and Joy Street Gardens were also favorite places to find John.

John appreciated the work of Kaiser Hospice, in particular, Ruth Ann and Michael. Any donations made in his memory might best be made to Project Open Hand.

Thanks to Patrick, Jim, Jo, Denise, Rodney and his sister, Glenas. In particular, we thank Christopher (and their cat, Nile), with whom John shared his hopes, dreams, journeys and his heart. "Nothing gold can stay." ▼

David Kidd, "an American expatriot who became so imbued with traditional Chinese and Japanese art and culture that by the end of his career he was teaching Japanese traditions to the Japanese," died of cancer Nov. 21 in Honolulu, reports THE NEW YORK TIMES. Kidd grew up in Corbin, Ky. 76 where his father operated a coal mine. In 1946, at age 19, he was a University of Michigan exchange student in Peking, where his lifelong fascination with ancient Chinese art began. He is survived by Mr. Yasuyoshi Morimoto, a former student who became first his driver and then his partner in art and in life, the TIMES reported.

Paul C. Krueger, assistant dean for Northeastern program; at 47

PAUL C. KRUEGER

A funeral will be held today for Paul C. Krueger, assistant dean and director of the English Learning Center at Northeastern University, who died of complications from AIDS Sunday in his home in Boston. He was 47.

"In March of 1993, Charles, my lover of 15 years, died of AIDS," Mr. Krueger wrote earlier this year in the 25th anniversary report of his class at Harvard.

"We had both been diagnosed with HIV at the same time in the fall of 1991. He was far more advanced than I in terms of the deterioration of his immune system and was more susceptible to the opportunistic infections which took his life.

"Now, after many years of a rich and beautiful life together, I am trying to remain healthy and positive in the face of an epidemic for which all the king's horses and all the king's men have found no cure nor even a way of significantly slowing down."

Born in Manitowoc, Wisc., Mr. Krueger graduated from Harvard College and earned a master's degree and doctorate in education at Northeastern University.

A member of the faculty at Northeastern since 1977, he was the former president of the Massachusetts Association of Teachers of English.

In recent months, as illness overcame him, Mr. Krueger was forced to cut back on his work load at Northeastern, but continued to attend cultural activities in Boston and do volunteer work for the AIDS Action Committee.

"I remember the lesson I learned from Sophocles, when I was an invulnerable undergraduate sitting in Sever Hall: "Call no man fortunate until he is dead," he wrote in the report to Harvard.

Mr. Krueger leaves his parents, Donald H. and Joyce M. (Hannon) Krueger of Port Charlotte, Fla.; two brothers, Mark A. of Richmond, Va., and Kurt J. of Butte, Mont.; and two sisters, Kay M. Krueger of Cleveland, and Amy J. Krueger of Fort Myers, Fla.

The funeral will be at 11 a.m. in the Church of the Advent in Boston.

Keith Thomas Knowles

December 21, 1995

Keith's loss of eyesight did not reflect on his struggle with the AIDS virus. He maintained his courage for life throughout his illness.

Keith passed peacefully early on December 21 in the loving presence of his caring, loving partner and his mother and father. He moved to San Francisco from Kansas City, Mo., in 1990 and truly found his home. His love for life and passions were expressed to their fullest here in his favorite city, San Francisco. Keith will be sorely missed by his lover, friends and family.

Private memorial services are being held. Remembrances may be made to the Rose Resnick Lighthouse for the Blind and Visually Impaired, c/o Keith Knowles, 214 Van Ness Ave., San Francisco, CA 94102. ▼

At 38, Erick R. Koek, a W. Roxbury artist

Eric R. Koek of West Roxbury, an artist, died Saturday at home of complications due to AIDS. He was 38.

Born in San Francisco, he was educated in Santa Barbara, Calif. He moved to Boston in 1976, and graduated from the Massachusetts College of Art in 1980.

Mr. Koek began his career as an art teacher in the Brockton school system. Later, he worked for seven years as a retail designer at Crate and Barrel in Harvard Square. In 1987, he helped form the Spectrum Co. in Boston, specializing in decorative interior and furniture painting. The company closed in May 1993 due to Mr. Koek's illness.

Mr. Koek's projects were published in House Beautiful, Design Times and the Boston Sunday Globe Magazine.

He is survived by his life partner, Glen Blair of West Roxbury; his parents, Frederick and Marilyn (Hessell) Koek of Goleta, Calif.; a sister, Emily Zajac of Grassvalley, Calif.; and a grandmother, Dolly Hessell of Revere.

In accordance with his wishes, there will be no funeral.

Arrangements by Watson Funeral Service, Cambridgeport. 12-8-95

Todd R. Kelly

Todd R. Kelly of Philadelphia died Nov. 7 of complications due to AIDS at his parents' home in Atlanta.

Kelly was born in 1955 in Augusta, Ga., and spent his childhood in various parts of the world, including Ethiopia and New Zealand; his father worked for the U.S. Foreign Service. He received a bachelor's degree in 1979 from Georgetown University, and, after moving to Philadelphia in 1980, received a master's degree in business administration in 1984 from Temple University.

Kelly spoke fluent German and had a lifelong passion for language and linguistics. In 1988, he founded Die Deutsche Gruppe, a group of gay and lesbian Germans and German speakers in the Philadelphia area. He was also instrumental in organizing several GAYLANG festivals, which promoted interaction among the several Philadelphia-based gay foreign-language groups.

In his final years, Kelly worked to raise public awareness of the dangers and shortcomings of popular AIDS drugs such as AZT, and espoused the theories of German AIDS researcher Peter Duesberg. Kelly created the Copernicus Project in 1994 to create a forum for this debate.

In 1995, as Kelly battled sicknesses brought on by AIDS, he retained his trademark sense of humor and his conviction to continue. On Oct. 14, he left Philadelphia, returning to his parents' home in Atlanta, where he died in his mother's arms.

Kelly is survived by his lover, Ed Rice of Center City; his parents, George and Eva Kelly of Atlanta; and two sisters, Ingrid Zainaldin of Washington, D.C., and Colleen Bruchmann of Rosenheim, Germany.

Contributions may be sent to the American Foundation for AIDS Research, 1828 L Street N.W., Suite 802, Washington, D.C. 20036.

A memorial service is planned Dec. 9 in Philadelphia. For more information, call (215) 735-5040. ▼

A. DENISE KHAN

Denise Khan could wrap you up in her spiritual love and warm you like a blanket. She could give prayers to the most heathen and inspire goodness.

A self-helper, Denise first worked on coming out to herself about her HIV diagnosis, but as time went on and her resolve grew stronger, she began to tell her story to others. "So faithful, caring, loving and a believer in the Word and the Love of God," she would describe herself, "and here I am, living with AIDS. Here I am." As people listened—and they couldn't help but listen—Denise began to teach them about prevention, compassion, mercy, love and support.

When Denise came out, she stayed out. Profiled in POZ No. 9, she taught from the pulpit as an Evangelist minister, and she taught from the chair when she could no longer stand. Her work with agencies like SisterLove Women's AIDS Project and AIDS Research Consortium of Atlanta created a legacy of service that will live forever. Heaven didn't wait as long as she wanted it to, but Denise had done what she was supposed to do. Her spirit lives on in the rest of us. ■

Wayne Kaufman, 1957-1996

Former AIDS Action employee Wayne Kaufman died on January 13, 1996 of complications related to AIDS. From 1988 to 1992, Wayne was a dedicated staff member of the Education department. In addition to the many invaluable administrative duties he performed, Wayne was also the inspiration behind Wellspring, the client newsletter. He was responsible for layout, maintaining subscriptions, mailings and supervision of the volunteer editors and proofreaders. As a designer, Wayne also produced other publications, including Update, that stand as a tribute to his high standards and meticulous work. He leaves many friends and will be greatly missed by his family at AIDS Action.

Robert Killmore Jr.

April 21, 1964 – Aug. 13, 1996

Robert passed away last month after a yearlong battle with AIDS and PML. He will be remembered as a regular several years ago at many Polk Street watering holes, including Reflections, QT and The Cinch. An avid bowler who occasionally scored a perfect 300, he also played on the Thursday and later the Sunday Tavern Guild bowling league at both Park Town and Japantown Bowl.

Robert's favorite pastimes were watching movies and listening to music. He enjoyed the newest video releases all the time and was always seeking out the latest musical artists.

Robert was fortunate to have recently been able to re-establish his relationship with his mother and sister, whom he had not seen in almost six years. He also leaves a brother and stepbrother. Locally, he leaves several friends who will greatly miss him.

Robert's primary caregiver and longtime friend, Ted Levine, will host a memorial in his honor on Sunday, Sept. 15, 1-5 p.m. Please call 415/487-9500 for more information.

Marcus Kunian

Marcus Kunian, 48, a longtime resident of Washington, D.C., died Wednesday, March 6, 1996 of AIDS-related complications at George Washington Hospital, according to his friend Bill Olwell, also of D.C.

On Capitol Hill, Kunian served on the staff of Reps. Bill Boner (D-Tenn.), Frank Guarini (D-N.J.), James Scheuer (D-N.Y.), and Jim Moody (D-Wis.). Most recently, he served as chief of staff for Rep. Charles E. Schumer (D-N.Y.). He retired from that position in 1994. He also worked as the associate publisher of Roll Call, the Capitol Hill newspaper.

Kunian was born and raised in the Boston area. He attended McGill University in Montreal, Canada and Reed College in Portland, Ore. At age 24, he was elected chairman of the King County (Seattle) Democratic Party, according to Olwell. After working on the successful 1976 presidential campaign of Jimmy Carter, he came to Washington and worked at the Department of Agriculture.

He also served as the director of marketing for the Washington Diplomats, a professional soccer team with the North American Soccer League, now defunct.

In addition to Olwell, Kunian is survived by his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Louis Kunian of Palm Beach Gardens, Fla.

His remains were buried in a private service at Palm Beach Gardens, Fla.

Craig Kernan

Craig Kernan, 34, a resident of Washington, D.C., died Monday, March 25, 1996 of AIDS-related complications at the Johns Hopkins Hospital Center in Baltimore, Maryland, according to his friend, Jim Brandon of Washington, D.C.

Kernan was born Oct. 24, 1961 in Baltimore. He moved to the Washington area in 1989. For four years, he worked as the office manager for Alco Appliance, a Gay-owned business in Beltsville, Md. He retired for health reasons in 1995.

According to Brandon, Kernan enjoyed gardening, and he spent much of his retirement tending to his plants. He also enjoyed cycling.

In addition to Brandon, Kernan is survived by his mother, Marlene Kernan; brothers, Michael and Shawn Kernan, all of Baltimore; and numerous aunts, uncles, and cousins.

Funeral services were held March 28 in Baltimore. Kernan's remains were cremated. His ashes were kept by the family.

Memorial contributions may be made to Food & Friends, 58 L St., SE, Washington, DC 20003.

William Kelsey

William A. Kelsey, 48, died Saturday, April 20, 1996 at his home in Rochester, New York, due to complications from AIDS, according to his partner Charles Dorland, also of Rochester.

Kelsey lived in D.C. from 1968-84. During that time, he worked for the National Bank of Washington, now-defunct. A liberal Republican, Kelsey founded in 1978 the Walt Whitman Republican Club, a precursor to the Gay Republican group Log Cabin Club. He also worked on several delegate and congressional election campaigns, and he was on two occasions a delegate to the Virginia Republican State Convention.

He was born Sept. 6, 1947 in Buffalo, N.Y., and raised in Auburn, N.Y. In 1966, he joined the U.S. Marine Corps, where he served for 13 months with the Third Marine Division in Vietnam. He was discharged in 1969 for "homosexual activity," Dorland said.

After leaving D.C. in 1984, he returned to Auburn where he launched Adventure Stamps, a business which sold stamps by mail order and at stamp shows. At the time of his death, Kelsey was operating more than 20 stamp shows a year under the names of the Midwest Philatelic Shows and the Rochester Stamp Show.

Kelsey's other interests included Pittsburgh Pirates baseball and Civil War history.

In addition to Dorland, Kelsey is survived by a sister, Mary Alice Kelsey.

A funeral service was held April 23 in Rochester. Kelsey's remains were buried at Riverside Cemetery in Rochester the following day.

Charles Kiker

Charles J. "Chuck" Kiker Jr., 47, of Broad Run, Virginia, died at his home on Thursday, October 17, 1996, from complications associated with AIDS, according to his companion of 17 years, Ken Haught, also of Broad Run.

Kiker, born on March 23, 1949, in Washington, D.C., was a lifelong resident of the D.C. area. He grew up in Morningside, Md., and graduated from Crossland High School in 1967.

For the last five years, Kiker worked as an administrative assistant at Government Technology Service Incorporated. Previously, he had worked at Digital Electronics Corporation, also as an administrative assistant.

Kiker enjoyed both flower and vegetable gardening at his home and also did his own landscaping, said Haught. He also collected rocks, always keeping an eye out for striking or remarkable stones.

In addition to Haught, Kiker is survived by his parents, Charles and Joan Kiker of Morningside, Md.; brothers, Lance of Owings, Md., Patrick of Bel Alton, Md., and Robert of Bowie, Md.; and sister Joan E. Hutchinson of Huntingtown, Md.

Eric Roy Koek

Eric Roy Koek, age 38, surrendered peacefully to AIDS on Dec. 17 at his West Roxbury home. 96

Born in San Francisco, CA, on Oct. 9, 1956, he was educated in Santa Barbara, CA. In 1976 Eric moved to Boston to attend the Massachusetts College of Art, graduating in 1980. After teaching art in the Brockton school system, he became a retail designer for nine years at Crate and Barrel in Harvard Square.

In 1987 with his friend Mickey White, he co-founded Spectrum Co., a Boston firm that specialized in decorative interior and furniture painting. The company was dissolved in 1993 due to Eric's illness. His projects were published in House Beautiful, Design Times and the Boston Sunday Globe Magazine.

Eric leave his beloved life partner Glen Blair; his parents, Frederick and Marilyn (Hessell) Koek of Goleta, GA; a sister, Emily Zajac of Grassvalley, CA; his grandmother, Dolly Hessell of Revere; and two cherished nieces, Erin and Kelly Zajac.

Cremation was directed by Watson Funeral Service in Cambridgeport, with Eric's cremated remains to be scattered by his beloved Glen off Big Island, Hawaii, this spring. Remembrances to the Foundation for Children with AIDS.

Kenneth L. Keller

Kenneth L. Keller, of Jamaica Plain, formerly of Andover and Medford, died from complications due to AIDS at the Palliative Care Center at BI/Deaconess Hospital in Boston. He was 39.

He leaves his loving family, parents Lewis and Romayne (Cunningham) Keller of Andover; his son, Gregory Nazaro of Roslindale; brothers and sisters Douglas W. of N. Billerica; Randall L. of Haverhill; Laraine A. Cowan of Andover; Scott A. of Methuen; and Kristine L. Janinni of Methuen; and long-time companion, J. Weir-Galloway, of Jamaica Plain.

Ken was a quiet, creative, loving, and special man, who will be sorely missed by all mentioned above, along with a caring circle of friends. His spirit and kindness will live on in these friends and his wonderful son, Gregory.

Ken grew up in Medford, graduated high school in Andover, and attended Northeastern University. He worked for a family business, Service Warehouse, followed by a time in retailing at Filene's in Boston. He went on to work for Pepsi Cola for the past 11 years as a computer network specialist.

There will be a memorial service for

Ken at Arlington Street Unitarian-Universalist Church, on Sunday, January 5, at 3 p.m., Hunnewell Chapel, entrance on the Boylston Street side. Friends are invited to attend. We love you and miss you and will always look to your example. You have touched us all deeply, Ken.

Timothy Charles Keohane

Timothy Charles Keohane of Barrington, New Hampshire died October 20 in the Exeter General Hospital, Exeter, N.H. after a long illness. He was 36.

Born and raised in Waltham, Mr. Keohane attended Waltham public schools. He was a United States Gold Medalist in Freedance Rollerskating in 1982. He lived in Charlotte, North Carolina for 10 years while continuing as a professional roller skater. He had resided in New Hampshire for the past nine years. He enjoyed music, walking on the beach and cooking dinner for family and friends.

He is survived by his parents, Margaret (Fenton) Cartwright and Frank Cartwright of North Hampton, N.H.; a sister, Mrs. Paul (Tracy) Pavone of Waltham; a step-sister and step-brother; and a niece and nephew.

The funeral and burial took place in Waltham. Memorial donations may be sent to the AIDS Response-Seacoast, P.O. Box 1524, Portsmouth, N.H. 03802-1524.
