THE COVER:

A Message to Wagner Alumni

As time goes on, we shall come to know one another much better. At the moment I do not have an "original message" but would like to share with you a recent statement about the chief objectives of an organized program of alumni activity.

- "1. To encourage the alumni to maintain a continuing relationship with the institution;
2. To enlist the alumni in constructive endeavor for the institution;
3. To bring to bear on the institution and its policies the judgment and view of the alumni;
4. To help the institution find ways for the encouragement of continuing education among its alumni;
5. To help create and develop among alumni a sense of responsibility not only to their institution but to higher education in general."

There is considerable acceptance throughout the country of such objectives on the part of both institutions and alumni. Of course, it takes much work and cooperation to get life into all of these goals. Anyway, I am sympathetic with these objectives. Certainly Wagner needs your gifts but there is also more to the relationship than that.

The Best Site For A Modest-sized University

response to his installation as president of the College on October 19

UPON ACCEPTING the symbols of office, as President, and equally sobering, as chairman of the Faculty — I think of the context of the so-briefly stated College motto: "Den De." "But one thing I do, forgetting what lies ahead . . . Only let us hold true to what we have attained . . ."

Let us not embrace too many goals for our institutions of higher learning. Let us resist styles and blandishment. And let us not assume the role of parent, family, Church, stadiums, and business.

Amiable, institutional public relations, even that which is bred in courtesy and cooperation, dare not ever over-ride the essential dignity of colleges and universities, the pursuit of learning and scholarship, and the teaching of youth. If such happens, the colleges, faculties, and governing bodies become confused, basically impoverished, and, ultimately, first obligations get shuffled downwards in the esteem of society. Somehow, this has already happened to a degree in the United States.

Not all of my good friends here today esteem Martin Luther as I do. But I believe nearly all here today will find no dispute with him, and will get courage from certain of his hearty affirmations on the vital role of education and teaching, as well as his admonitions on the financing of education which make Madison Avenue fund appeals sound effete . . .

How pertinent is his reference to teaching which he regarded as a noble vocation — "Yet the calling is shamefully despised among us, as if it were nothing." So it comes about that that profession, inadequately rewarded, subsidizes what amounts to the largest scholarship program in world history.

Luther declared, "Without scholars it would not be long till business men in their perplexity would be ready to dig a learned man out of the ground ten yards deep with their fingers . . ." And, I will add, so would our government . . .

Universities Needed

Let us not forget the tremendous impulse to culture, learning, and higher education made under the direct and creative nurture of the colleges and universities founded by religious bodies in the formative centuries of America . . .

There are no insurmountable reasons why a few, much-needed, modest-sized universities should not again evolve out of the ever-changing heart of the liberal arts, based upon church-related colleges. Protestant churches have planted the seed of universities here and abroad, but hold on to so few now in the United States. Perhaps one should think of appropriate mergers and ecumenical movements among our church colleges.

As a patient dream, I commend this majestic Hill, off-shore from 14 million people, yet a vital part of this communications and cultural center of the world, as the best site for such a modest-sized university . . .

Our colleges should have the spirit and facility strong enough to be a constant source of liberal education for the lifetime of every one of its graduates. Further than that, might it not be that closer links between their colleges and the facilities and organizations available to religious bodies would structure an additional, congenial sphere for continuing education in this country? . . .

By their very rationale, Christian colleges, of all places, should encompass a study and understanding of all cultures and all peoples. Neither Christianity nor Christian higher education can be state-bound, culture-bound, provincial, or parochial . . .

Love is in the Gospel. And we know love is needed — here, at home, and in the world. Man has been torn apart, brilliantly dissected, feverishly re-molded into "togetherness." We all will be closer to reality, and to the fluid judgments of science and "un-beat" poetry, if we continue to pursue learning with zest and purpose in an environment that strives to encompass the spiritual.

Dr. Richard H. Heindel is formally installed as Wagner's 14th president by The Rev. Dr. Frederic Sutter '94 (left) President

ALUMNI PLEDGES TO

THE SKY, and not the original stated goal of $65,000, is evidently the limit for alumni in the College's 75th Anniversary Fund Campaign. By November 15 (see chart at left) 807 pledges for $65,403.50 had poured into the campaign office toward the overall campaign which lists at its goals sufficient funds to construct both a new library and chapel on the campus in the near future.

Originally, the Alumni Association's executive committee approved a goal of $65,000 which would underwrite the cost of the library's main reading room. With that goal already topped, the committee has now set its sights upward to $80,000 and is hopeful of going as high as $100,000 — a truly astounding and gratifying figure when it's considered that the Loyalty Fund's all-time previous high was the $12,095 contributed last year.

The hopes for a total close to $100,000 are well-founded. As of November 15, the alumni drive was far from finished. Only 2,400 of the 3,705 carried on the alumni roster had actually been solicited for gifts. Still to be heard from are alumni in the sections outside New York's Metropolitan area where Wagner's alumni are largely concentrated.

The master fund plan, which calls for each area chairman to enlist sufficient workers so that no individual has to personally visit more than five alumni, has been more than successful. Early returns from New Jersey counties indicated that the non-Staten Island alumni were responding just as heartily as had the Islanders who pledged more than $45,000 this spring.

Monmouth County, under the chairmanship of Richard Schoenlank '50, leads the areas who have completed their returns to date with 26 pledges for $1,135. Other areas and their complete returns are Camden County (9 pledges, $466) where E.W. Schneider '35 is the chairman, and the Passaic County area where workers for Hamilton Stewart '49 reported in with $613 from 9 pledges.

Seven areas have reported partial returns. Nassau County leads with 39 pledges for $2,274 under the leadership of Wilson Gearhart '49. Charles Babikian's '53 Bergen County area follows with 24 pledges for $1,855. Union County, where Irving Green '37 is chairman, reports 20 pledges totaling $840. Essex County returns show 8 pledges for $630. Dr. Herbert Brau '53 is chairman there. Early returns have also been received from Kingston, N. Y. (Rev. David Gaise '35), Baltimore (James LaHart '43), and Bridgeport (Rev. Herbert Hrdlicka '37).

National Chairman Al Corbin '35, who recently returned from a West Coast business trip, is confident that the alumni drive will top the new $80,000 goal. Corbin met with alumni in Seattle, San Francisco, and Los Angeles after tending to business as comptroller of the Todd Atlantic Shipyards Corporation. He returned to say, "Wherever I went Wagner alumni were waiting to talk about the College and the campaign. The response was more than gratifying. The alumni are definitely sold on the aims of their college and the goals of this drive, the library and chapel they all realize are needed badly."

The individual class leader in the drive continues to be 1950 with pledges amounting to $4,212. The two big surprises in the class breakdown are the response of the class of 1957 and the "Former" students who are defined as those who earned 30 or more credit hours at Wagner, but who did not complete degree requirements here. As of November 15, 67 "Formers" had pledged $4,327 — more than any single class. The 1957 class, which has been out in Dr. Charles Kraemer's "dog-eat-dog business world" for less than two years, is third with 55 pledges for $3,986.

The November 15 figures reveal that the average alumni pledge is $81.05. Last year's Loyalty Fund closed with 1,224 donors who donated a record of $9.88 on the average. If the anniversary campaign can match last year's number of donors with the current $81 average the alumni drive would close with more than $98,000 pledged.

Overall, the campaign now lists $834,089 (see chart above) toward the goal of $1 million. Still to be solicited, in addition to 1,300 alumni, are many churches in the college's two supporting United Lutheran Church Synods — New York-New England and New Jersey.

A HARD-WORKING organization of volunteer area chairmen, some of whom are pictured here, has been largely responsible for the success of the alumni phase of the 75th anniversary fund drive. The chairmen who attended a fall meeting at the college are (l. to r.): Gene Chu '53, Manhattan; Hamilton Stewart '49, Passaic, Sussex and Warren Counties; Irving Green '37, Union County; Al Corbin '35, national chairman; Wilson Gearhart '49, Nassau County; Fred Geils '53, Queens; and Charles Babikian '53, Bergen County.

BEFORE VISITING the Wagner College Nursery School for the first time we conducted an informal poll which confirmed our prejudice that a nursery school is a place where young inmates sling paint at each other in the midst of an incredible din in order that their abused mothers might enjoy a few hours of daily peace and quiet. The poll, in the worst tradition of polls was conducted among those who know nothing about nursery schools.

Wearing old clothes and prepared for the worst we visited the Wagner Nursery School last month at the invitation of Miss Gertrude Anger, director of the school, and a surprisingly pleasant person we thought, considering she's been under fire there since 1953. The school is located in the New York City-sponsored South Beach housing development, about four miles from Grymes Hill.

Three hours later we emerged unmarred, unpainted, the prejudice shattered. No one, but no one, threw paint, not an inmate cried, and most impressive of all, we actually saw the nebulous learning process occur on two levels. The children in the school, having a wonderful time, were learning about themselves and about their fellow students. On the second level were three Wagner seniors taking practical training in order to qualify as pre-school teachers.

We jumped from the original definition to the book one which soundly states that, "A nursery school is a school which offers valuable, supervised educational experience for children from three to five years of age." It's an important place because, "the early formative years of a child's life are particularly important in each child's growth and personality development; it is especially important that teachers of young children should be well trained."

Cycle of growth

The College is therefore involved in the cycle of helping the growth of children while at the same time training pre-school teachers to do the same for other children in the future.

The Wagner Nursery School is one of the best of 520 nursery schools in New York City. It's good because the physical set-up is ideal; the equipment is excellent; and its teachers are gifted.

There are three classes at the school. The five-year olds are in the care of Rose Perosi '55; Constance Amitrani works with the four-year olds; and Mrs. Doris A. Fry '58, works with the youngest class group.

In the space of 15 minutes we saw Miss Perosi, who would certainly be a valuable addition at the Geneva disarmament talks, handle three serious crises, the most serious involving a trod-upon foot. She handled them all without so much as bruising an ego, and in each case the children came away knowing better how to get along with human beings.

Aside from the education and psychology majors who use the school as a laboratory, few Wagner students and alumni know much about the nursery school. These are the facts:

- Because the school is located in a New York City project, the City furnishes the space, basic equipment, and maintenance for $1 per year. Wagner provides the other equipment including toys.
- The school operates from 9 a. m. until noon, five days each week, from the middle of September until the end of May.

- The school is open to non-residents of the South Beach project. They pay a yearly fee of $210. Project residents pay $145. Currently, the ratio is 40% residents, 60% non-residents.

- The nursery school functions as an arm of the College's education department under the chairmanship of Dr. Norval S. Calhoun.

- The capacity is 52. Right now there is a small waiting list of applicants.

The facts however don't begin to tell the story. For this you have to go down to see for yourself what Mrs. Fry can do with 18 three-year olds. We left with her in complete command of the situation, cheerful, unruffled, and not in the least concerned although she knew full well that the dreaded (at least to us) galoshes and mittens season was bearing down hard upon her.

WAGNER NEWS

Out of the Board of Trustees annual meeting in October came the announcement that The Rev. Dr. Frederic Sutter '94 will retire from the board presidency next year. Pastor Sutter announced his intentions after being elected to his 41st one-year term as president.

Pastor Sutter who last year celebrated three anniversaries — 60 years as a Lutheran minister, 50 years as pastor of Staten Island's Trinity Lutheran Church, and 40 years as president of the Board of Trustees — has played a momentous role in the growth of Wagner. He was in fact instrumental in the selection of Grymes Hill as a site for the College in 1918 when it was moved here from Rochester, N. Y.

On October 19 Pastor Sutter, now 83, received the latest in his long series of deserved honors when the Wagner gymnasium was formally named in his honor. He accepted with the grace and good humor that has marked all the years of his association with Wagner by saying, "I accept the honor, but certainly not the mortgage on this building."

The Wagner College Club for alumni businessmen and women embarked successfully on October 2 when 70 attended the initial meeting at the Railroad-Machinery Club Rooms, 30 Church St., Manhattan. Dr. Charles L. Kraemer, chairman of Wagner's department of economics and business administration, was the speaker. John E. Foley '51 (see page 14) was the speaker at the second session. Elmer C. Walzer, financial editor of United Press-International, and a former Wagner faculty member, was scheduled to address the December 4 meeting. The next meeting is set for January 8.

The meetings, under the chairmanship of Jim Hutchison '49, will be held on the first Thursday, October through May. Alumni with program and speaker suggestions are cordially invited to submit them to Hutchison through the college alumni office.

The annual Christmas Concert will be held on December 14 this year in the Frederic Sutter Gymnasium. The concert will be presented twice, at 4:30 and 8 p. m., it was announced by Dr. Sigvart J. Steen, chairman of the music department. Appearing will be the Wagner Lutheran Choir, under Dr. Steen's direction, contralto Margery Mayer Steen, and the First Air Force Band from Mitchell Air Force Base. John R. Hruby, assistant professor of speech, will handle the lights and setting. No admission fee will be charged.

football team won three and lost five

The football team's bid for a 50—50 season of four wins, four losses, was thwarted on November 15 when Moravian overwhelmed the Seahawks 34—6. Wagner had earlier defeated Haverford (15—14), Ursinus (26—6), and Susquehanna (13—6) to win three games in a season for the first time since 1952. Four of the losses came by the agonizing aggregate total of 20 points including the Homecoming heart-breaker to Kings Point (16—22). Only Moravian severely outplayed Coach Mickey Sullivan's team.

The high point of the season came against Susquehanna when Wagner broke a 6—6 tie in the final 13 seconds on a 36 yard scoring pass from freshman Don Cavalli to end Al Ferrie.

Individual stars were: Ferrie who caught 17 passes and averaged 36.6 yards punting; guard Charlie Jopp, winner of the Robb Trophy at Homecoming; fullback Wally Pagan who led in rushing with 208 yards; halfback Dave Hahn, the leading scorer with 34 points; and center Tony Franchina, a tireless worker on offense and defense. Senior quarterback Don Trentalange will certainly be remembered for his passing feats. Among Trentalange's records are new Wagner highs of 117 completions for 1,658 yards in four seasons.

The old Brooklyn Dodger cry of "Wait until next year" has a valid ring at Wagner now. There were only four seniors on the 1958 team, and Sullivan can expect upwards of 30 veterans to return in 1959 when the Seahawks will play the same eight teams they faced this year.

basketball prospects good as four starters return

The Wagner basketball team, defending champion in the college division of the sprawling 22-team Middle Atlantic Conference, opened its 24-game schedule on December 2. The complete 1958—59 schedule is on the back cover of this issue.

Coach Herb Sutter's main pre-season concern was filling the rebounding and scoring void left by the graduation of 6'5" Lonny West, now a student at Philadelphia's Mount Airy Seminary. Back from last year's squad are four regulars, all now juniors. Co-captains are the flashy backcourt pair of Harry Orlando and Milfred Fierce. Orlando has scored 724 points in two seasons and was likely to become the first Seahawk to score 1,000 in only three years. Five — West, Ed Peterson, Bob Bosley, Charles Harreus, and Bob Mahala — accomplished the deed in four seasons.

On the eve of the opening game it was learned that Orlando will be sidelined indefinitely because of illness. He was not expected to rejoin the team before January. John Purnell, a high school teammate of Farmer's was named to replace Orlando in the starting lineup.

Up front Sutter will call on 6'4" Fred Blackwell and 6'6" Harold Junta for rebounds. He also hopes for improved scoring from both who together averaged 14 points per game last year. West's replacement in the starting five is 6'3" Bob Farmer who sat out last season as a transfer student. Farmer is a sharp-shooting lefty who appears to possess some of the attributes of Peterson, i.e., a deadly jump shot and a copious supply of hustle.

The bench, which may be a mite thin, will be bolstered by freshman Ollie Smith, a 6'3" leaper with a vast potential but little experience. He's a graduate of Brooklyn's Boys High which also produced West and Fierce.

Summary: Look for Wagner to come up with a varied attack and more balanced scoring. Fierce and Orlando should endear themselves as a backcourt pair to rival the memory of Ray Doody and Jay Quintana of the 1950 team and Don Briggs and Lionel Rotelli of the 1954 club. All signs point to another winning year, but it's questionable whether Wagner can repeat in the conference where Scranton University looms powerful.

Alumni are reminded that the Wagner Placement Office, directed by Stephen J. Botsford, is at their service. Currently listed are jobs covering a wide range of experience. One publisher asks for a man with editorial experience ($7,500). There is a heavy call for college graduates skilled in insurance work.

A separate admissions office was created at Wagner this fall with the announcement that Fred Holmes '53 has been appointed acting director of admissions. Heretofore, Marguerite Hess '43, has served in the triple capacities of director of admissions, registrar, and director of evening school. Holmes had assisted her in the admissions phase of the work since April, 1957.

The Nassau-Suffolk alumni club has scheduled a dinner-dance on Saturday, February 7, at Guy Lombardo's East Point House, Freeport, Long Island. All alumni in the metropolitan area are invited. For reservations, contact: Robert J. Schinkel '52, 2029 Decker Avenue, North Merrick, N. Y., or phone Freeport 8-8582.

The College's name and personalities have been popping up on television and radio with pleasing regularity this fall. First, Neil Leonard '53, billed as a "college football star who now is an advertising copywriter" won $5,700 on the quiz program, "Tik Tak Dough." Then Pianist Roger Williams, awarded the honorary degree of doctor of humane letters here on October 19, was kind enough to mention the honor on both the Ed Sullivan and Edward R. Murrow programs.

Radio station WMCA aired a tape of the address delivered by George V. Allen 'H58, director at the U. S. Information Agency, two days after the inauguration. The Voice of America will do the same later. Next came Wagner's businessman-football coach, Mickey Sullivan, who was a central figure on the popular CBS show, "To Tell The Truth," on November 18. Two days later freshman football player, Herb Vargas, was invited to appear on the morning program, "To Play Your Hunch."

Finally, during December, Alpha Omicron Pi sorority's jug and bottle band (that's right, jug and bottle band) will have a go at Ted Mack's Original Amateur Hour on CBS. Next week, East Lynne!

The entire last page of this insert is given over to a form for submitting nominations for the Alumni Association's Annual Achievement and Service Awards. The deadline for submitting entries is March 15.

The awards were instituted in 1957 to honor alumni either for distinguished activity in any field or for outstanding service to Wagner. Any alumnus of the College is eligible. The first awards were both made in the service category to Pastor Sutter and to Dr. Albert Accettola '41. This year the service award went to The Rev. Alfred J. Krahmer '27, former director of public and alumni relations at Wagner, and the first achievement award was received by Dr. Norman L. Freilich '35, a Staten Island dentist. Awards will be presented on Alumni Day.

Judging the nominations this year will be the committee of: Wilbur H. Sterner '42 (chairman); Lila Thompson Barbes '41; Caspar Scheiper '48; Dr. Henry Endress '38; and Dr. John R. Bacher, dean of the graduate school. Association President Harold Matthius '50 and Howard Braren, director of alumni relations, are ex-officio members.

Homecoming 1959 produced . . .

A Literal Float

THIS IS THE behind-the-scenes story of how the sisters of Alpha Delta Pi sorority took one of Homecoming's prized traditions — the float parade — quite literally and won themselves first prize this year on October 18 by constructing something that really might have floated.

Wagner, alas, lost the football game to Kings Point in the waning minutes, 16—22 before a standing-room-only crowd of more than 5,000. The float parade however was a tremendous artistic success. Ticket takers reported that some persons actually paid their admission fees to view the parade and then left before the opening kick-off.

Here's how A D Pi built its literal float: The winning theme was Fantasyland. It (pictured below) was centered around a beautiful white castle which was horse-drawn. When the contrivance reached mid-field a drawbridge was lowered and out marched a vast array of fairyland characters. Few people were aware that the castle's ethereal effect was achieved with the use of soap. To be precise, Ivory Snow.

The A D Pi girls, looking for a method to give their castle that little extra something, decided not to use common paint. They instead hit upon the ingenious solution of "soaping" the exterior of the castle.

Three cases of soap

To do so required three cases (72 boxes) of Ivory Snow, the last of which was provided gratis by the Proctor and Gamble Company. The sisters whipped up great batches of the stuff with the aid of three continuously-running Mixmasters. Not even stopping to think about the possible ravaging affects of dishpan hands, the girls manually applied the suds to the castle's frame exterior.

Lo and behold, the soap solidified and left the float with the desired frilly coating that won the admiration and votes of the judges. Also speechless and a bit awed was the Proctor and Gamble official who looked on while the suds were applied. (Competing fraternities in the parade have since hinted that the bevy of attractive sisters who came down the drawbridge didn't exactly hurt A D Pi's chances with the judges — two men, one woman).

It occurred to some that A D Pi took a great risk with its soapy float, the risk of a rainstorm on the eve of Homecoming. Sorority President Jacqueline D'Antonio '59, when asked about this possibility, replied blithely, "Oh sure, we thought of that. We built a model long before starting the actual float. It was left out in the rain one night. The rain didn't bother the model a bit."

The three-day ceremonies, climaxed this year by the inauguration of Dr. Heindel as Wagner's 14th President on October 19, brought more people to the campus than ever before. More than 1,000 alumni were on hand for at least one Homecoming event. It all began on Friday at a pep rally.

Alumni who played prominent roles at Homecoming were: Dr. Michael Mazzei '34, who was the pep rally speaker; Alumni Association President Harold Matthius '50, who was toastmaster at the Saturday night banquet; and the Rev. Dr. Alfred L. Beck who conducted Sunday's Homecoming Church on the Hill services. Pastor Beck is now President of the United Lutheran Church's New York and New England Synod.

Alpha Delta Pi's first-prize float, "Fantasy Meeting You Here, Alumni," had a cast of dozens.

Robert Loggia F., who attended Wagner from 1947 to 1949, is pictured here as the hero of "The Nine Lives of Elfego Baca," the Western drama on ABC-TV's Walt Disney Presents, Fridays, 8—9 p. m., EDT. Loggia, who transferred to the University of Missouri, is recalled here as both a talented thespian and athlete. He was a fullback who averaged 4.2 yards per carry on the 1948 squad and at the same time enjoyed a hearty three night run as the lead in "The Taming of the Shrew," a Varsity Players' Presentation. Of course, he is remembered as "Bob Allen," the central figure in the now outdated Wagner film, "Beautiful Upon a Hill." He has

Our apologies go to the classes of 1956, 1957, and 1958, to Former students and to babies born after August 31. For the first time in the Link's ten-year history, there simply isn't enough space to print all News Briefs and Just Named items. We promise to come right up to date in the winter by printing a complete rundown on the omitted classes and children. This will be done because in the next Link issue we will plan ahead.

Police Chaplain

The Rev. Edmund Bosch '22 serves two vital ministries. He is executive secretary of the St. George Association and has been a chaplain for the New York City Police Department since 1949. One of three Protestant chaplains on the force, Pastor Bosch's "beat" is Brooklyn and Queens. The St. George Association is a national group concerned with the formation of Protestant employee groups. Currently there are 74 chapters including one composed of 2,500 New York policemen. The College alumni files lists no less than six members of the Bosch family. Pastor Bosch's brothers are The Rev. Herbert A. '18 and The Rev. Austin '31. Their father, the late

Rev. Frederick '92, was a Wagner trustee. Herbert Jr. '47 and Edmund Jr. '53, round out the list which shows that members of the family have attended Wagner in six of the last seven decades.
