Relationships between alumni and their institutions will be the subject of the 16-page insert — Moonshooter: 1960 — in the next issue of The Link. The supplement, prepared by the American Alumni Council, will take a searching look at these increasingly important relationships. Last year the college teacher was featured.

Alumni and alumnae, according to Moonshooter editors, are the people to whom they stake their future. These are whom Moonshooter will address, and assess, and stress as one of the rocks on which U. S. higher education stands.

They are the people with unbreakable (but sometimes rusty) bonds uniting them and the institutions they atended. They are the people whom their teachers called the hope of America (when they were students) and who too often are underestimated and overlooked when they leave the ivied halls. Strangely, they are the people who often underestimate themselves as a force in society.

The LINK is published quarterly by the Alumni Association of Wagner College under the supervision of Howard Braren, Director of Alumni Relations. The editorial office is in room 37 of Cunard Hall, Wagner College, Grymes Hill, Staten Island 1, New York.

The 1960 Alumni Weekend on May 6 and 7 will run the gamut from golf to classroom displays through song in what certainly is the most ambitious spring alumni program ever scheduled at Wagner.

The highlight of the program will be the long-awaited groundbreaking for the new Horrmann Library. Dr. Heindel revealed earlier this month that Perkins and Will, the architects who designed the structure, have been authorized to negotiate building terms with the Brooklyn contracting firm, Caristo Construction Corp.

No fewer than 18 different activities for alumni have been scheduled in order to lure a record number of graduates back to the campus. Sharing the weekend with the alumni will be the parents of undergraduates whose Association of Families has scheduled its annual day for May 7. Here's how the program will run:

FRIDAY, MAY 6:

1 p.m. Alumni Golf Tournament South Shore Country Club

Reservations for this 1960 innovation are now being accepted by the Alumni Office . . . The entrance fee of $3 includes greens fees and handsome prizes for the low gross and low handicap scorers.

9 p.m.—10th Anniversary Reunion Class of 1950, Meurot Club

Wagner's all-time largest class (338 members) expects a big turnout . . . Reunion chairman Ernie Kiefer reported reservations for nearly 100 at press time . . . The cost is $12.50 per couple . . . Hotel reservations for out-of-towners will be made upon request.

GROUNDBREAKING TO HIGHLIGHT MAY 7 ALUMNI DAY

SATURDAY, MAY 7: 12-5 p.m. Registration Main Building Lobby

12-1 p.m. Luncheon Alumni Dining Hall

1-3 p.m. Classroom seminars and displays, various sites

The chemistry department will present a lecture, "Recent developments in biochemistry," by Dr. H. Nelson Wood '49 of the Rockefeller Institute . . . The art department will formally open its new Cunard Hall quarters with a student art show . . . Professor Giesemann will preside at a student panel discussion on aspects of international relations . . . Dr. Hackman will present an illustrated lecture on the Dead Sea scrolls.

3 p.m. Library groundbreaking

A ceremony will take place on the north side of the oval on the library site opposite the gymnasium. Plans call for completion of the library by July 1, 1961.

4 p.m. Alumni Association meeting Gymnasium

The annual meeting agenda includes acceptance of a new budget and announcement of officers for 1960 . . . Open to all alumni.

5 p.m.—Receptions for the classes of 1930, 1935, 1940, 1945, 1955 and 1959.

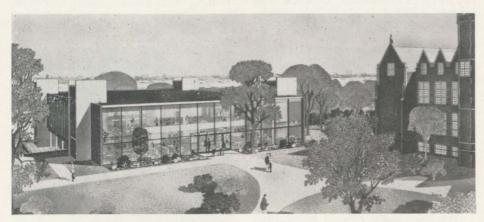

The classes of '30 and '35 will meet in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Heindel at 41 Sunrise Terrace . . . '55 will convene at the Staaten Restaurant . . . The Embassy Room is the spot for the '59 reception . . . '40's spot is The Richmond County Country Club . . . Clove Lakes Park Restaurant is the site for the '45 reception.

7 p.m. Alumni Reunion Banquet Alumni Dining Hall

Alumni Service and Achievement Awards, 50-Year Keys will be presented.

8:30 p.m. Spring Song Fest Gymnasium

An annual competition in song among student organizations . . . A reserved section will be there for alumni.

THE HORMANN LIBRARY, pictured here in architect's drawing, will be on the north side of the present oval opposite the gymnasium. Estimated cost is $950,000. The three-story split-level structure will be able to house 100,000 volumes. Its completion will enable the college to accept approximately 100 more students because of added classroom space in the Main Building where library now is on second and third floors.

WAGNER STORY ON ADMISSIONS

by FRED HOLMES '54, director of admissions

ST. MATTHEW tells of the centurian who had the power to say to one man, "Go," and the person went. To another he said, "Come," and he came. This is how a recent visitor to our office pictured the admissions officer.

Another visitor suggested that we admissions people are the gatekeepers to higher education who sit at our desks, puffing pipes contentedly, and selecting the cream of the crop from an endless supply of applicants.

Both pictures are oversimplifications of work that is complex, frustrating at times, and more than satisfying at other times. As the demand for college admissions become more and more a fact of American life, we are often called upon to explain our procedures. We hope this article will clarify our policies to alumni.

First, let it be stated emphatically that there is no such thing as automatic admission to Wagner College. Most people are aware of this, but we occasionally get complaints from friends of the college, usually speaking on behalf of a rejected applicant, who cite something known as the "old days."

Such thinking is unfair to both the college and the rejected applicant.

We're not being kind to a student if we admit him with a weak high school background and then ask him to compete successfully with students from stronger academic backgrounds.

When we admit a student, we do so with the belief that he can do four years of successful work at Wagner — not one semester or one year. As any construction man knows, it is difficult to build on a weak foundation. We can't expect our faculty to teach high school remedial work to college students.

The Requirements

Our admissions procedure for the individual begins with a request for an application form from this office. We require that the returned form be accompanied by a Secondary School Transcript, and a letter of recommendation from the school's guidance counselor. Every applicant is also required to submit his scores from the morning section of the College Entrance Examination Board Test.

We urge applicants to apply early during their senior high school years. It is now imperative that we receive requests for dormitory space no later than Christmas. At this writing, we still have some vacancies for men in the dorms, but there is a waiting list for the women's dormitories.

Similarly, we urge that prospective students take the College Entrance Board Test early, preferably in December or January. The examination is given six times annually. The applicant protects himself by taking the test early.

A decision is reached on applicants as soon as the applications have been processed. This procedure, known as "Rolling Admissions," offers certain time advantages to our candidates for admission.

Dr. John I. Dalland, associate professor of psychology, explains Wagner's program to prospective students.

Our procedure contrasts with that of colleges who hold all applications until a specific date, usually in May, and then send all acceptances and rejections out at once.

The faculty admissions committee is now considering a 30—60 day period (from the date of our acceptance letter) in which the applicant must make an additional commitment to Wagner in writing, accompanied by a dormitory deposit.

Field Work Essential

We can't simply sit back in the office and wait for applications to roll in. Field work is one of the most vital functions of this office. Some widelypublicized statistics seem to indicate that it's no longer necessary to have a vigorous road schedule. The fact is that the anticipated "tidal wave" of applications has not yet inundated Wagner College. Furthermore, only a few well known colleges, mostly in the East, enjoy the privilege of receiving three or four applications for every available space. A national survey conducted in 1959 indicated that many fine colleges had room for more students. At Wagner our dormitories were full last September, but we could have taken more commuting students.

College recruiting is still highly competitive. Most colleges go out to "beat the bushes." We visit high schools to explain our admission policies, to add new territories to our lists, to share common problems, to learn about the preparation our applicants are getting, and to keep Wagner on the minds and tongues of high school counselors.

A Picture is Formed

Let's take a hard look at the admissions criteria mentioned earlier, especially those College Entrance Board Tests. This examination represents a sound attempt to judge academic aptitude on a national level.

The first, or morning section, of the CEB exam is divided into two sections — verbal and mathematical aptitude. A perfect (and virtually impossible) score is 800 for each section.

Wagner has no minimum score it requires, but it's possible to gauge our standards by checking the average scores of our freshmen. They averaged 523 in the verbal portion and 504 in the math section. These averages ranked Wagner in the upper 15% of all colleges that used the board scores in 1959.

Alumnus Ed Monkman's tour of the campus with students from Hillside, N. J. High School stops at Guild Hall. Wagner's alumni office will arrange tours of the campus on request.

The CEB exam, helpful as it is, is only one part of a four-part picture we need to make a decision. Rank in class and IQ test results are also important. Again Wagner has no cut-off point, but nearly all our freshmen ranked in the top half of their high school graduation classes.

Finally, we rely on a written report on the youngster by his high school adviser.

None of these four criteria is conclusive when taken alone. Together, they present a composite which makes a fair judgment possible.

Infallability, unfortunately, is not yet within our reach. We still await a sure method of gauging motivation, or "desire" as it's called in athletics. Strong motivation is a factor that can override many aptitude test results.

Future Enrollment

Our day school enrollment in September was 1,028. Absolute capacity for the college now is closer to 1,100. There won't be any change until The Horrmann Library is ready for use at the start of the 1961 academic year. Then we'll be able to accept an additional 100 students.

The board of trustees has approved a plan of long-range growth that calls for a jump in enrollment to 1,500 within the next five or six years.

After that, the board anticipates "orderly growth to 2,000 full-time students within a 20-year period."

Wagner will continue its policy of holding a one-to-one ratio between men and women students, and will also strive to maintain the current ratio of residential and non-residential students. Approximately 480 students are now housed in dormitories.

Wagner is also very much interested in attaining a wider geographic spread among our students. A variety of backgrounds makes for a more interesting campus and a sounder educational experience for all students.

Alumni continue to be Wagner's most important recruiting arm. We must depend on you to participate in our program if it is to be successful. We urge you to submit the names of prospective students who possess the qualifications to do good work here.

This leads to the poser: "Can alumni receive special considerations for sons and daughters or for close friends?" The answer is a resounding, if qualified, yes. The qualification is that we must stick to our belief that there is no advantage to anyone in admitting people of little academic promise.

What we can promise alumnisponsored applicants is the personal touch and speed. A personal interview will be granted whenever one is requested by an alumnus. At the same time, we'll do our utmost to quickly make our decision known after receiving a completed application form.

We look forward to greeting as many of you as possible on Alumni Day.

A Successful Rescue Plan

by Terry Ferrer

MISS FERRER

The following article is reprinted in its entirety from the February 28 edition of the "New York Herald Tribune." Miss Ferrer, the paper's education editor, devoted her Sunday column to a discussion of Wagner's new program for probationary students devised by Dean Kenneth W. Johnson.

National statistics show that less than 40 per cent of the freshmen who entered college last fall will graduate in 1963, four years later. This appalling waste of human resources and college space poses serious questions in a decade of doubling college enrollments: Does a college, once it has accepted a student and begun to teach him, have any responsibility to prevent such failures and dropouts? Or, if the student has failed, should the college make an attempt to salvage him by giving him another chance?

Wagner College, on Staten Island, believes that the college does have such responsibilities. Wagner has just completed an experimental semester designed to "rescue" students who have actually failed and been dropped by the college or who are in serious academic difficulties.

While the group was admittedly small — twenty students of a day enrollment of more than 1,000 — the results were more than gratifying, according to Kenneth W. Johnson, dean of student personnel services and originator of the plan. Of the group, fifteen had actually been flunked out last June. All but two were juniors. Five of the twenty were girls.

Two made dean's list

With the semester now over, two of the twenty have made the dean's list, with their averages rising from a D plus to an A minus. Nine more bettered their failing grades, some doing almost three times as well. Two more kept their same C average. Of the remaining seven, one left for health reasons, one was dropped and five did worse than they had done before.

"Most students who come to college today," says Dean Johnson, "gre not prepared for the rigorous demands of college and the pressures. Frequently the transition from high school to college is rather a shock." Dean Johnson found that "each one of the twenty students needed specific instruction in how to study."

Once a student had agreed to try the extra semester, Dean Johnson held a counselling session. "I tried," he says, to "find in each one an area of interest that would be an opening wedge. I tried to find what would stimulate and motivate the student. What they are going to do with their lives is of great concern to these students. Parents so often say "Why can't he make up his mind what he's going to do?" And that is only one of the pressures to which the students are extremely sensitive."

Dean Johnson then gave a weekly hour-long class in study methods and techniques. Otherwise, students attended regular classes. At the start, the twenty students had been given a battery of four tests. The results were then discussed with them. In some cases, Dean Johnson says, "students had never been told what their ability was and they were surprised and pleased that the instructor encouraged them." (Most of the students had an I.Q. of 115, higher than average.)

Today, Dean Johnson says, "kids have a hard time believing in anything — and that includes themselves."

Students were then offered the chance for additional private counselling and discussion of what vocations they might wish to undertake. "Lack of vocational goal," Dean Johnson found, "nearly always helps to explain lack of motivation. Realistic evaluation of a student's assets and liabilities is always beneficial to him in selecting a vocational goal."

Dean Johnson says that "this experiment indicates conclusively that many students who are failing in college, if provided with the necessary counselling and guidance can not only succeed but can also distinguish themselves for success." He believes that "The study of failure holds the key to an understanding of success."

Dropout rate low

Dr. Richard H. Heindel, president of Wagner has agreed to double the size of Dean Johnson's experiment next year. "Most colleges," says Dr. Heindel, "have felt a little uneasy about failing students. Now every college should do something about it." Dr. Heindel said that the dropout rate at Wagner is 47 per cent, well below the national average of 60 per cent.

This spring semester, Dean Johnson has started another experiment with twenty-five freshmen whose grades are low but who show superior intelligence. He will have guidance conference with them and see if their grades improve. This attempt to keep students from getting into deep academic trouble is similar to programs of a much larger size at Pennsylvania State and Michigan State Universities.

Both the "rescue" and "preventive" programs have impressed faculty members with the necessity to encourage borderline and failing students, Dean Johnson says. In time, such encouragement and such programs could drastically reduce the number of students who don't make the academic grade.

Dean Kenneth W. Johnson conducts the counseling program in his office.

Faith and Life Week program, March 13-17, attracted enthusiastic crowds of students to lectures and forums. Among the speakers this year was Dr. Paul J. Tillich, shown at right answering student questions at an afternoon forum. His earlier lecture in the auditorium was attended by an audience that stretched into the halls of the Main Building. Dr. Tillich, University Professor at Harvard, is renowned as one of the world's outstanding theologians. Seated here with Dr. Tillich is Arne Unhjem, assistant professor of philosophy and religion (S. I. Advance photo). Chaplain Paul J. Kirsch is executive secretary for the Faith and Life Week series.

Jim Lee Howell, Wagner football coach from 1947-53 and coach of the pro football Giants since then, was the guest speaker at the April 7 meeting of the Wagner College Club in downtown Manhattan. Eighty-five alumni, largest audience in two-year history of the club, were there.

Seated (l-r) are Al Corbin '35, development council chairman; Howard Braren '50, alumni relations director; and Fred Geils '53, elub chairman.

Also under consideration now is a club for alumni working in scientific plants in Union County, N. J. area.

Hutchison and Johansen Head 1960 Alumni Association Ballots

James H. Hutchison '49 and R. Kenneth Johansen '51 have been nominated to head the ballot of officers for the Alumni Association's new year. Hutchison, a member of the advisory council and organizer of the Wagner College Club, is employed by the New York sugar brokerage firm of Czarnikow-Rionda Co. Johansen, industrial relations manager for Piel Brothers on Staten Island, is currently alumni representative to the college council and is a past president of the Delta Nu alumni.

The ballots, now in the hands of Alumni must be returned May 7.

The new president will succeed Harold Matthius '50 who is one of two nominees to serve as alumni representative to the board of trustees. Also nominated for that position is Rolf E. Danielson '36, a Westchester resident who is assistant operations manager for Esso Standard Oil's Pelham, N. Y., plant. The new board member will serve a three-year term.

Two of the current year's officers have been nominated again. Kenneth R. Hansen '49, also chairman of the 1960 Loyalty Fund, will again run for the vice presidency. Running for the same post is Fred Geils '53, chairman of the Wagner College Club and Queens County chairman for the 75th anniversary drive. Ruth M. Danielson '50 the Association secretary, is on the ballot along side Eleanor Mehrtens Kruse '55 N, president of the nursing chapter.

The treasury nominees are newcomers to the alumni ballots. Mario J. Esposito '50, vice president of Cardinal Lumber Co. and manager of Canal Lumber Co., is one of the nominees. Esposito's alumni work includes representation on the advisory council and the college board of traditions. William H. Mangini '57, sales correspondent for Westinghouse International Co., opposes Esposito. Mangini is an advisory council member and has been active in alumni fund campaigns.

The College Council representative will serve a two-year term. Named are Mary Manning Sterner '43 and Virginia Haggerty Prall '53. Both worked on the 75th anniversary drive.

The alumni representative to the board of athletic control will be either Dr. Michael S. Rapp '34 or Neil Leonard '53. Dr. Rapp, honored at Wagner's 75th anniversary convocation by a citation, it attending obstetrician and gynecologist at the Staten Island Hospital. Leonard, a football and baseball star here, is the copywriter in charge of New York Times advertising with the BBD&O agency.

A Winter Review and a Look at Spring

BASKETBALL . . .

The Seahawks came back from a losing 1958-59 season to post a record of 16-8. They captured the Northern Division title of the Middle Atlantic Conference, compiling a 10-0 mark in the process. Herb Sutter's team was upset by Southern Division winner, Drexal Tech, in the playoff for the overall league crown and eliminated from a spot in the NCAA College Division Tournament.

High point of the season was in December when the Seahawks traveled to Hempstead, L. I. and nipped Hofstra, 50-48, on a jump shot by 6'7" Bob Larsen. It was the only loss Hofstra suffered during the year.

Larsen, a junior transfer student, made his first season in a Wagner uniform a good one. He led the team in scoring with 369 points and an average of 15.4 per game.

Coach Sutter loses five men from the team through graduation. Departing are Fred Blackwell, the leading rebounder, Harold "Harp" Junta, second to Larsen in scoring, Harry Orlando, who became the sixth 1,000 career point scorer at Wagner and established a new free throw record, and Pete Wirth, an outstanding ball handler. Co-captain Milfred Fierce graduated in mid-year.

Larsen and Ron George are the only regulars who will be back next season. Walt Brooks, Ken Graham, Ollie Smith, and Herb Wendelken are others who will return. Sutter expects help from a couple of Chester Sellitto's junior varsity players, Marty Ansa and Matt Tricorico.

BASEBALL . . .

Coach Herb White begins his second year as coach with lettermen at just about every position. Last year, White's team compiled a commendable 9-11 record for the full season. The Seahawks, who compete in the tough Metropolitan Baseball Conference with such powers as Fordham, Manhattan, NYU, and St. John's, finished fourth with a 6-6 slate in 1959.

Brightest batting light is first baseman Jim Powers. In '59 he topped the team in batting average (.354), hits (28), home runs (4), and runs batted in (19). His great hitting and fancy fielding earned him a place on the Met Conference All-Star team.

Wagner got a big boost last year from two freshmen pitchers, Dick Rice and Bruce Wilson. The precocious pair pitched in eight of the nine wins. Ken Snyder, the third regular on last year's staff, is graduated, but White feels he has a capable replacement in Larsen. As a transfer he sat out the '59 season, but earned quite a reputation in the Island's toughest sandlot league and hurled his team to the title.

In addition to Powers, the infield consists of Jack Harrington at second, Denny Margaris at short, and captain Orlando at third. Orlando, a clutch hitter, batted .397 in the conference.

Bob Larsen, a 6'7" two-sport man, displays his winter specialty, a soft jump shot. Harry Orlando looks on. Larsen's one of Herb White's first-line baseball pitchers too.

In the outfield, White will have to replace Junta in left-field, at least temporarily. A starter for three years, Junta is sidelined with a wrist injury he suffered in basketball. Frank Lanza and Paul Nuzzolese are other returning outfield veterans.

Lanza will get a shot at the centerfield position, but Neil Johnston is also a candidate. Johnston, the Middle Atlantic Conference college javelin champion and a regular halfback in football, is a newcomer on the baseball scene. His hitting is a question mark, but he can run and has the strongest throwing arm on the team.

White is overstocked with capable catchers and will probably station one of them in left. Frank Melos, the Seahawks' outstanding halfback last fall, was the regular receiver in '59. Joe Costello, out of school last year but a starter two years ago, is back, and Joe Sansone, Larsen's battery mate in local leagues last summer, ranks on a par with the other two.

A 1960 baseball innovation is a freshman team, the first Wagner's had in any sport. The change came about because the Met Conference now bars the use of frosh.

Meanwhile the varsity was scoring runs in great bunches while yielding quite a few at the same time. The Seahawks won 3 out of the first 5, scored no less than 8 runs each time

TRACK . . .

Remember this name: John Ward. He's a freshman who just could become the greatest runner in Wagner history. Coach Bunny Barbes was all smiles watching his club win its opener against Queens. Ironman Ward, a tireless worker, raced to triumphs in the two-mile, one-mile, and half-mile events.

Other Wagner track standouts are chuckers Don Cavalli and Neil Johnston. Cavalli set new school records last year in both the shot put and discus. Johnston, who also plays the outfield in baseball, set a new Wagner record in the javelin.

GOLF . . .

Veterans Dick Granger, Howie Joerger, and Jim Crowley will carry the load for coach Duke Lanahan this year. Wagner opened its 11-match schedule by losing to Fairleigh Dickinson and defeating Seton Hall.

Dr. Flotten accepts Wagner chaplaincy

The Rev. Dr. Joseph B. Flotten '26H53 will become the Wagner College chaplain on September 1. Dr. Flotten, elected for a one-year term as president of the board of trustees last year, will resign that post when he joins the college staff. George R. Tollefsen, vice chairman, will serve as chairman until the annual board meeting in October.

Pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Resurrection, St. Albans, N. Y., since 1931, Dr. Flotten had been a Wagner trustee since 1944 and its vice chairman from 1952—59. His daughter Joanne '56M59 is married to Theodore Melloh '56. Another daughter, Gail, will enter Wagner this fall. Dr. and Mrs. Flotten will reside on the campus.

Dr. Flotten will replace The Rev. Paul J. Kirsch who announced his intention to leave the chaplaincy in January in order to become associate professor of religion and philosophy. He will assume full-time teaching duties in February after completing studies for a Ph.D. at New York University. Pastor Kirsch has been awarded a Samuel Trexler Fellowship by the New York and New England Synod as well as Wagner's educational grant to a faculty member for one semester.

Islanders pledge $7,200 in '60 Loyalty Fund drive

The 1960 Loyalty Fund drive has resulted in 200 pledges for $7,200 to date, all from Staten Island alumni. A follow-up campaign is planned to boost the area figure up to a $12,000 goal. Kenneth Hansen '49, fund chairman, announced that the off-Island phase of the drive will begin in May.

The overall goal is $25,000. Of that figure, $16,000 is slated to go to the library building fund. The balance covers alumni scholarships and alumni office expenses including the cost of The Link. Those with pledges outstanding from the 75th anniversary drive will not be solicited. That effort ended last year with 1,274 pledges for $101,459.
