Nebraska AIDS Project hosts "Dining Out For Life" - An annual fundraising event. Last year, 25 cities and more than 1,800 restaurants in the United States and Canada participated in Dining Out For Life raising more than $2,000,000 for AIDS service organizations.

Join Nebraska AIDS Project and hundreds of restaurant patrons across Nebraska as they gather to support the important services that Nebraska AIDS Project provides our local communities. No matter what you're hungry for, deciding where and when to dine out should be easy because Tuesday, April 13 is Dining Out for Life. Choose a participating restaurant, make your reservation, and Nebraska restaurants will serve up a percentage of their sales to Nebraska AIDS Project!

For a list of participating restaurants go to <http://www.nap.org/dofl.html>

Britain Moves Towards Transgender Marriage Rights

Britain's House of Lords, the upper chamber of Parliament, has voted to let pre- and post-operative transsexuals obtain a new birth certificate and get married as a member of their new gender.

The European Court of Justice has also recently ruled that transgender persons must have equal access to marriage and pension rights. The ruling applies in the 15 nations that presently make up the European Union, including the United Kingdom, and in the 10 countries that will join the union in May.

In 2002, the European Court of Human Rights -- the court of final appeal for citizens of the 45 nations that make up the Council of Europe -- also ruled in favor of transgender persons' right to marry.

Thanks for Donations

Rainbow Outreach would like to thank all of the people who have donated books in the past few months. Since late December we've added over 300 books to our collection. Many of the newest ones received in the past month have been large art, photography, and collectors books. We've had donations from several members of the community at large, and from the LinOma Bares. The Nebraska Aids Project donated 2 video copies of "Talking to your children.", and the Flat Water Bears donated a new bookcase as we are currently out of shelf space. It feels good to need new bookcases, and WE THANK YOU for your time and effort.

We have more books coming before June, and if anyone or any group wishes, we could use at least three more bookcases, either new, or used but in good shape. Many of the book sections are quite full, but two that need help are African-American and Hispanic. If you haven't been in lately, please come in as Roger is back from his trip to Florida, and we've re-arranged to better meet your needs. Yours--Chris--ROCC

Personal Images

You may recall in the last column I talked about our community's image, but there is also a personal image we have to uphold. Some of us may think we have no one to impress, so I am going to do what I want. That is sort of a shallow way of thinking.

It is hard for someone like me who works in the church to want to do some things people get to do all the time. Here is an example: If I was to go to underwear night at the Max. It is not particularly a bad thing to go and have fun in this fashion. In some ways I would love to go, but with me working in a church I have an image to uphold. I'm not saying I want to hold people to that same image but people sometimes hold ministers to a different level.

I have had friends say, "Well who cares if someone sees you there." However the issue would be that I am not held to the same standards as they are. It is not particularly fair, but that is what I chose for my life.

I also realize just like everyone else I have a tendency to occasionally talk out of both sides of my mouth. I say one thing and do the other making myself a hypocrite at times. That is not a good thing either, but we tend to do that sometimes, because of pressure or pure rebellion. Sometimes we say or do things we should not, because we are trying to find that balance in our life that works for us.

I have let my hair down occasionally thinking I did not want my friends to think I was a stick in the mud and instead I ended up looking like a pure idiot, making my friends almost think I was not real.

Luckily my friends love me and they only want the best for me. True friends care about your image. They want you to succeed in life. Although society is becoming more accepting of us, we still have a strike against us as GLBT people.

I was talking to my priest the other day about the gay bishop in the Episcopal Church and how many people are mad because of it. But these same people, such as the guy who is leading the attacks against the liberal body of the church, had been divorced and remarried. Now biblically speaking getting annulled or not, if you take the Bible literally, he is still living in sin as long as his first wife is alive and he is living with his second wife. Even St. Augustine of Hippo lived with a mistress for 25 years and had a child and never married. Despite repentance, what about his child? Or these divorced clergy that do get it annulled are they prepared to say they had bastard children?

Sometimes we do not always live up to our own standards and that is ok, because we are not perfect. I am convinced that sometimes we do things more for shock value or just because something is a bit risqué than because we really fully approve. We want to be able to say we have done something as opposed to saying we never have, whether we approve or not.

We must keep in mind what our personal image is about and when we fall away from that, find ourselves and work even harder to enhance the image. If we surround ourselves with positive people and good friends this road will be all the easier. Thanks be to God I have wonderful gay friends in this community who care so much about my image.

Thanks for Donations

Rainbow Outreach would like to thank all of the people who have donated books in the past few months. Since late December we've added over 300 books to our collection. Many of the newest ones received in the past month have been large art, photography, and collectors books. We've had donations from several members of the community at large, and from the LinO-ma Bares. The Nebraska Aids Project donated 2 video copies of "Talking to your children.", and the Flat Water Bears donated a new bookcase as we are currently out of shelf space. It feels good to need new bookcases, and WE THANK YOU for your time and effort.

We have more books coming before June, and if anyone or any group wishes, we could use at least three more bookcases, either new, or used but in good shape. Many of the book sections are quite full, but two that need help are African-American and Hispanic. If you haven't been in lately, please come in as Roger is back from his trip to Florida, and we've rearranged to better meet your needs. Yours--Chris--ROCC

A Letter to the President

February 24, 2004
President George W. Bush The White House Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. President,

I could not avoid you tonight as your support for a federal constitutional amendment banning same-sex marriage blared throughout the airport lounge via CNN. As I listened to your confusing messages about family and values and politics, I shared sadness with my fellow travelers about your continuing fear-driven approach to leadership. Your defense of traditional marriage rang hollow; rather, it was a poor endorsement for discrimination, ignorance and your conservative political base.

Uncharacteristically, I decided not to be angry, offended or cynical. Rather, I desperately want to understand you and your allies on this issue, and take the high road in that engagement. So I invite you, Laura and your daughters to spend a day with my family and explain why you are championing such a cause. Spend a day with my life partner of 24 years who is one of the most remarkable human beings you'll ever have the privilege of meeting. A public school teacher, Bob has spent his life inspiring students and parents alike with his commitment to a values-laden and creative approach to learning, serving as a strong life-changing role model for countless young at-risk city kids over the years.

Spend a day with our energetic and cheerful seven year-old son Ben. Ben will treat you to an active day full of homework, piano lessons, lego projects, friends, chores, soccer and baseball. Fully steeped in the values of love, sharing, friendship and learning, Ben is immensely proud of his two adoring and engaged parents, and wonderfully enriched by a diverse and supportive neighborhood.

Spend a day with our extraordinary community of friends and neighbors, who reflect the America of today and the future - mixed in race, language, background, family structures and ideas - but united in their deep commitment to our children, to creating a better future, to loving our country and to enjoying the richness of life.

Spend a day with our extended family that has supported us with unconditional love through good times and bad. Our parents, aunts, uncles, siblings, cousins, nieces and nephews spread around the country form the foundation of our world. Over the years we have celebrated countless joyous holidays and celebrations together, as well as helping them in endless ways through illnesses, financial problems, divorces, and other family dramas.

Spend a day with us as we engage in our community as a family and as individuals, as we actively volunteer at Ben's school, as we have headed up the local United Way, and as we have worked tirelessly with many community organizations to improve the lives of our less-fortunate neighbors. Come join us as we sing and pray in church together.

Spend the day with me as the CEO of a fast-growing global digital media company who understands the economic interests of supporting stable communities and families, who must create a vibrant 21st century inclusive workforce through rigorous recruiting and non-discriminatory practices, and who is forever seeking that elusive family-life-work balance.

Spend the day with us as we explain to our son, his friends and cousins, why the world can be a fragile place where people do bad things out of ignorance and fear, where people hate people for silly reasons, where leaders abuse power for political gain at the expense of innocent folks, and where people waste enormous emotion and energy on side issues when domestic and child abuse, poverty, racism, divorce and inadequate health care - the issues truly threatening the American family - go unattended.

Mr. President, please come spend a day with us. And then, over our evening family meal, after we have given our nightly thanks to our loving and hate-free God, explain to this same-sex household just what family values you are defending for the future of America.

Sincerely,
Steve D

Guest Editorial

I firmly believe in separation of church and state. I am not a religious person. I do NOT want some groups religious beliefs shoved down my throat and I certainly do NOT want those religious beliefs and influences written into the laws governing this nation. The Constitution was written with this separation in mind. We the people of this country have been lax for far too long and let government take over our lives a little at a time with every new administration in the White House. More and more control over all of us in bite sized chunks that we have been able to swallow without gagging. They convinced us it was better for us and would make us safer.

Then came 911 and the Congress voted in the Patriot Act while in a highly emotional state. Has the Patriot Act done any good? Hell no. It has only enabled Uncle Sam to spy on ANY of us for ANY reason. Has it caught any genuine terrorists? Hell no. It has only enabled them to harass innocent people, some to the point of ruining their lives and leaving them with no legal recourse. This crap has to stop before it tears the country apart.

All of the U.S. Presidents in the last 50 years have been heavily pressured by the religious right. Many of them got into the same bed only later to jump ship when the religious leaders started demanding too much from them, creating controversy and making their jobs and their chances for re-election difficult to near impossible. Religion must be stripped away from politics before it destroys the country. Religion is based on feelings and emotions. Politics is based on logic and equality. At least, that's how the founding fathers had originally set up our most sacred document, the Constitution of the United States of America.

I want my legal rights, not someone else's religious beliefs

"In his speech last night, John Kerry said this was the beginning of the end of the Bush administration. I agree. Sure, it may take another five years, but this is it."
-Jay Leno

During last night's debate, John Kerry and John Edwards were so friendly to each other some political experts think that they may end up running together. In fact Kerry and Edwards were so friendly, President Bush accused them of planning a gay marriage."
-Conan O'Brien
