Organization Launches Website to Support Military Partners

By Michelle Garcia

Servicemembers United launched a new website Tuesday to provide support for partners of gay and lesbian military members.

MilitaryPartners.org is the new home for the organization's "Campaign for Military Partners," which began in 2009.

"The civilian partners of gay and lesbian military personnel are often forgotten in the debate over the 'don't ask, don't tell' policy," said Alexander Nicholson, executive director of Servicemembers United. "These silent heroes must bear all of the same burdens of military family life, but they are not able to share in the support, benefits, or recognition that the military provides to the wives and husbands, and even the girlfriends and boyfriends, of straight troops."

Rekers Paid $60K for Gay Adoption Testimony

By Julie Bolcer

The office of Florida attorney general Bill McCollum paid antigay activist George Rekers at least $60,000, based on a rate of $300 per hour, to testify as an "expert" witness in the court case defending the state's comprehensive ban on adoption by gays.

According to NBC Miami, "Attorneys for McCollum paid Rekers at least $60,900 and perhaps as much as $87,000 for expert testimony in the appeal of the case. But in his testimony, Rekers claimed gays make inferior and even dangerous parents and that adopted kids living in gay households, even after 10 years, would be better off removed from the home and placed with straight parents."

Rekers, a cofounder of the Family Research Council, is now ensnared in controversy for hiring a gay male escort to assist him on a European trip.

Miami-Dade County judge Cindy Lederman later dismissed Rekers's testimony on the grounds that it was "far from neutral and unbiased," reports NBC Miami. A ruling is expected any day in the case challenging the Florida law, the only one in the country that bars all gays and lesbians from adopting children.

Court Reverses Baltic Gay Pride Ban

By Julie Bolcer

An appeals court in Lithuania has reversed an order from a lower court to suspend a gay pride march scheduled for Saturday in Vilnius.

According to the Associated Press, the supreme administration court said Friday that "the rights to assembly and expression are guaranteed by the European Convention and the government is obligated to defend them."

On Wednesday the Vilnius country administrative court ordered that permission for the March for Tolerance, granted by Mayor Vilius Navickas, be suspended following requests from interim attorney general Raimondas Petrauskas and city council member Stanislovas Buškevičius.

Opponents of the march cited security concerns and traditional Lithuanian values as the reason for the suspension.

Because of the successful appeal, the March for Tolerance will proceed as planned for the Baltic Gay Pride festivities on Saturday.

Tammy Doyle "Disconnects" from Connections

By Danielle B., and Kristian W.

It is time to close yet another chapter in Tammy Doyle's life. A chapter forgone, but not forgotten. Tammy's departure from Connections last week was both a difficult and bittersweet decision. She has turned the reins back over to Kelly Thomas, the founder of Connections.

Tammy began working at Connections as a part-time bartender in January 2007. At that time she was also the owner of "DustBusters Cleaning Services", here in Omaha. Tammy joined forces with Kelly Thomas and became co-owner of Connections bar in August 2008.

Tammy's connection to the bar, brought with it a lot of perseverance, high energy, determination and an abundance of bright ideas. Many of the local gay bars in the community had followed Tammy's lead with the creation of in-house Theme Nights and Theme Parties. Tammy had set aside Friday nights to host these events, such as her Pink Poker Party, Country Night, Ugly Sweater Party, and Raunchy T-Shirt Night, to mention a few. 20 years ago, as a Chemical Dependency Counselor, Tammy never would have dreamed she would someday be the co-owner

HOW TO CHANGE YOUR LIFE

By Michael Kimmel
[beyondtherapy@cox.net]

In my private practice, a lot of clients come to me and complain about disappointment. Disappointment with their new job, new lover, new home, new diet. Self-help books make it sound so easy to make major changes in our lives. But is it?

How often have you heard someone say, "Hey, it's time for a change. I'm really ready to change my life". But, a few months (weeks?) later, check in with them. They're likely to be disappointed and say something like: "I thought it was gonna be so great with this new job/lover/diet, but it's the same old shit as before." Most of us can only sustain this kind of change for about three days max. After that, we fall back into the same old patterns. After all, we've had years to develop these patterns, and yet we expect in three days we can undo the cumulative damage of decades?

Self-help books, claims of wise gurus and infomercial promises aren't enough: nothing "magically" changes just because we say so. If we want things to change, we need to take action and create the change by behaving and thinking differently. Change is hard work. Before you undertake any major change in your life, it's helpful to look at what stands in your way. Here are some obstacles to change that I see in many of my clients. Are they familiar?

You aren't willing to do the work: If you just wait for happiness (more money, a new lover, a better job) to come to you, what do you think will happen? Likely, nothing! New results require new thoughts, actions, speech, and intentions. Instead of giving up on your desires for change, look past the obvious and dig deeper. For example: if you want a boyfriend, what for? If it's to stop feeling lonely, then a boyfriend may not fix your problem. Your loneliness is the real problem. If you think you need a new job, what for? Do you want to leave your current job because you find some of the people difficult? Guess what? There are usually difficult people at every job. Rather than running away, set your intention to learn how to deal with difficult people. See what I mean about digging deeper? A recent client told me he wanted to look like actor Daniel Craig in his naked scenes in those James Bond movies. I asked him why. He said, "because then I'll feel sexy and confident." I suggested we work on how he can feel that way WITHOUT looking like 007. I helped him identify and remove what blocked him from feeling sexy, confident, strong and handsome.

You're too impatient: How many of us feel impatient about change and don't want to wait forever to become happier? (In all honesty, I'd raise my hand to this one). After all, we deserve to be happy, don't we? Look at how long we're suffered already. If you've spent 25, 35 or 45 years feeling you're not worthy of a good job/partner/house/whatever, do you really expect that just simply deciding to change will transform your life?

When my clients want to take on big psychological "makeovers", I encourage them to take it slowly. We can't sustain major change when we try to do it dramatically and quickly. I know it isn't as exciting – it wouldn't make good reality TV – but lasting change in our lives comes gradually, step-by-step.

You expect too much: When I have a new client who says, "I have so many problems, I don't know where to start", I encourage him or her to make a list of all the things that bother them and to rate these problems (on a scale of 1 to 10) by how much pain each one brings them. For example, "I hate my job" is a 7, "I feel so lonely" is a 9, "I don't like my body" is a 3. We start to work on the most painful stuff first and we focus on one problem at a time, breaking it down into small, do-able action steps. For example, saying "I hate my job" over-and-over is only going to bring you misery. Instead, ask yourself questions like: "What about my job bothers me the most? What do I like about it?" Any seemingly unsolvable problem can be broken down into a series of smaller, more easily solved problems.

You're too hard on yourself: You may think that you're a slacker, but, in reality, you're probably too hard on yourself. Punishing yourself isn't the way to make changes. You've been punishing yourself for years, and you haven't changed. That's not the way to do it. Here's a better way: make a list of 10 ways that you can be kinder to yourself in the next week and start to do them. I guarantee you that by being kinder to yourself, any changes you want to make in your life will happen more quickly and painlessly. I'm sorry to tell you it won't be fast and dramatic: change comes from being persistent and consistent. Try it and don't be surprised when you life starts to change, in small ways...and then keeps on changing.

PRODIGAL SONS Director Kimberly Reed In Person at Film Streams' Ruth Sokolof Theater (Friday May 28)

We're excited to announce that director Kimberly Reed will be in Omaha and at Film Streams' Ruth Sokolof Theater for a very special opening night screening of her autobiographical documentary PRODIGAL SONS. The Q&A screening will take place Friday, May 28, at 7pm, with the film continuing here through Thursday, June 3.

Featured on Oprah earlier this year, PRODIGAL SONS follows Reed as she returns to the Montana town where she grew up Paul McKerrow — starting quarterback for the high school football team and class valedictorian — before undergoing gender reassignment surgery in her twenties. Once home, she reunites with her long-estranged, adopted brother Marc, who has a stunning revelation himself involving a legendary Hollywood couple. While the characters and circumstances are extraordinary, what emerges through PRODIGAL SONS is a surprisingly universal story about family dynamics, sibling rivalries and the search for identity.

The film, and Reed's appearance, will kick off the Out in Film series (May 28 – July 1), presented in conjunction with LGBT Pride Month 2010. Tickets for the Q&A screening with Reed are $9 general, $7 for seniors, students and teachers, and $4.50 for Film Streams Members.

Advance tickets can be purchased online at: <http://bit.ly/djS7xZ>.

Film Streams Announces OUT IN FILM Series (June 3-July 1, 2010)

A new film series dedicated to the lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender experience — perhaps the first such series in Omaha history — will begin this June at Film Streams' Ruth Sokolof Theater, Omaha's nonprofit cinema.

Presented in conjunction with LGBT Pride Month 2010, the OUT IN FILM series will take place June 3 – July 1. The series presents a variety of artistically innovative films relating in different ways to the LGBT experience, including early, important works by acclaimed directors Ang Lee (THE WEDDING BANQUET), Gus Van Sant (MALA NOCHE), Pedro Almodóvar (LAW OF DESIRE), Lisa Cholodenko (HIGH ART), and Wong Kar Wai (HAPPY TOGETHER).

Other selections include the groundbreaking 1989 drama LONGTIME COMPANION (one of the first feature films to address the AIDS crisis) and historic documentaries THE TIMES OF HARVEY MILK (an inspiration for the 2008 Oscar-winning film), and WORD IS OUT, the first feature-length documentary about lesbian and gay identity in America.

For more information about the series, including an opening night screening of WORD IS OUT (Thursday, June 3, at 7 pm), with a post-show discussion presented in collaboration with GOglbt – Greater Omaha GLBT Professionals.

of a Lesbian bar and serving drinks. When we asked Tammy about that, she chuckled, and said, "Well, you never know what road your life journey will take you on. It has been quite an experience." She also added, "20 years ago I may have had a lot more stamina for the bar business." Tammy claims, "You just about have to put every part of yourself into the bar to keep it running smoothly. Time, energy and late-night hours." She says pretty much your family becomes your patrons, and your home life suffers.

Tammy is looking forward to having more time to spend with her 15 year old daughter Kassidy, and eventually getting back to a "9 to 5" routine. When asked what she has planned for the future, as far as employment, Tammy plans to start her own business in a couple months. She would not elaborate on that because it is still in the planning stage. She also has thoughts of leaving the Omaha area and seeking a "fresh start."

In conclusion, Tammy makes a statement to the community and patrons of Connections: "I want to thank ALL OF YOU for your support and patronage over the past couple years. I was fortunate to get to know many of you on a more personal level than others, and establish some close friendships. I will always treasure that. I will miss you all!"

The Cowboy Boots

A Texas teacher was helping one of her kindergarten students put on his cowboy boots?

He asked for help and she could see why..

Even with her pulling and him pushing, the little boots still didn't want to go on. By the time they got the second boot on, she had worked up a sweat.

She almost cried when the little boy said,
'Teacher, they're on the wrong feet.' She looked, and sure enough, they were. It wasn't any easier pulling the boots off than it was putting them on. She managed to keep her cool as together they worked to get the boots back on, this time on the right feet..

He then announced, 'These aren't my boots.'

She bit her tongue rather than get right in his face and scream, 'Why didn't you say so?' like she wanted to. Once again, she struggled to help him pull the ill-fitting boots off his little feet. No sooner had they gotten the boots off when he said, 'They're my brother's boots.. My mom made me wear 'em.'

Now she didn't know if she should laugh or cry. But, she mustered up what grace and courage she had left to wrestle the boots on his little feet again.

Helping him into his coat, she asked, 'Now,
where are your mittens?'

He said, 'I stuffed 'em in the toes of my boots.'

She will be eligible for parole in three years!

Gas Pains

I was in the restaurant yesterday when I suddenly realized I desperately needed to pass gas. The music was really, really loud, so I timed my "releases" with the beat of the music.

After a couple of songs, I started to feel better.
I finished my coffee, and noticed that everybody was staring at me...

Then I suddenly remembered that I was listening to my iPod. ....and how was your day?

No cats were killed, harmed, eaten, beaten, or forced to go to Walmart. No little kids were killed (even if they deserved it), although one teacher needed professional care. No restaurants were destroyed, closed or gassed out of existence, no music was damaged and no coffee was spilled, soured or in any way contaminated. ....and my day was just fine!

Walmart to the Rescue

A blonde was weed-eating her yard and accidentally cut off the tail of her cat which was hiding in the grass.

She rushed her cat,
along with the tail, over to WAL-MART!

Why WAL-MART??

HELLOOOOOOOOO!

WALMART is the largest re-tailer in the world!!!

SNAP! Productions Presents "Loose Knit"

Your spring plans should include a visit to SNAP! Productions’ latest offering, Loose Knit--playwright Theresa Rebeck’s clever, comic tale of relationships, expectations, disappointments and betrayal, with a bit of mayhem thrown in for good measure.

The play revolves around a group of New York professionals who labor under the mistaken impression that knitting is a relaxing pastime for stressed out lifestyles. Things begin to unravel quickly and humorously as all the relationships become a tangled mess and each individual confronts his or her own life questions--what is to be an American, to be black, wealthy, poor, faithful, closeted, etc. in the never ending human quest for fulfillment

M. Michele Phillips will direct this romp and is very fortunate to have assembled a cast that includes SNAP! veterans Matt Allen, Emily J. Thompson, David Mainelli, Shannon Jaxies and Ashley Spessard. as well as talented and professional newcomers to the SNAP! stage - Laura Leininger and Chelsea Long.

SNAP! is pleased to have on its production staff Adam Nathan (Set Design), Brian Callaghan (Lights & Sound Operator/Props), Homero Vela (Lighting Design), Gina Wagner (Stage Manager/Props), Nancy Ross (Costumes) and Liz Heim (Costume Design).

Kyle's Bed & Breakfast by Greg Fox

Fitness Corner

By Ron Blake

You've made the decision to join a health club. Where do you go? Health clubs are about as ubiquitous as Burger King or McDonalds. I think there is an obvious correlation screaming there! You need only to make a list of important health and fitness center criteria to winnow your choices. I have taken the liberty to explore five areas that should be given attention.

Price is the driving force of our free market society and accordingly health club fees can vary significantly. It all depends on what you want and what you are willing to pay for it. Be especially wary of the contracts and the snake oil salesmen. Fine print and the fast talking guy at the end of the commercials are also your worst nightmare. Clubs might offer rock bottom prices but they'll own you and your firstborn for eternity with that "ball and chain" contract. Ask an abundance of questions and proceed cautiously!

Are the hours of operation compatible with your lifestyle and schedule? There are no worries if the facility is open 24/7. However some smaller health facilities are somewhat limited with their hours and even more so on weekends and near holidays. Back in my younger days I was once sent to the showers early one evening at a small health club so that the owner could attend a bachelor party. He even added pressure and urgency as he stood there watching me shower like those scary militant gym teachers in junior high school. I changed clubs at the end of that contract.

How many members belong to the fitness center you are considering? If you are intent on meeting people and exchanging phone numbers then by all means join the center that has the bulging population of Tokyo. If you aren't keen on waiting in lines to use equipment then choose that place that doesn't threaten the maximum occupancy fire code. Get a free pass from management or the sales staff for a week and go between the hours of 6AM to 8AM and 4PM to 7PM. These are the busiest times and they will give you a great indicator of maximum attendance.

Then we arrive at the amenities. There is the pool, the hot tub, the juice bar, the classes, the locker room attendant, the sauna, and the racquetball courts. You need to decide what you want from your workouts. It is always preferable to have all the aforementioned extras and those moments of a pampered lifestyle. You will pay for all this and you just might not need it.

Why not simply workout at a no-frills health club and then go home and take a nice hot bubble bath with candles aglow and a glass of Merlot. It is a mere suggestion but you're all grown up now and you can make your own decisions. Your mom and I love you and will support you in any decision you make...as long as it's the right one!

Finally, we take a look at a realtor's favorite mantra: "location, location, location". It is preferable if your club is located near your home or workplace. This should be a no-brainer and for obvious reasons. However there are good lads and lasses out there who opt to motor ten miles off the beaten track to take advantage of a fantastic deal. Don't do this! The odds are stacked against you for success. Spend more on a closer club and it will pay splendid dividends. You are likely to attend more frequently at a nearer club and you will subsequently be better positioned to attain your fitness goals.

These are simple and common sense steps. Use these with a little persistence and goal setting and methinks you'll go far in your thirst for fitness success and nirvana.

This health and fitness article is brought to you by that guy who fre- quently hears inappropriate subject verb agreement in daily talk. That guy are Ron Blake and you send him your well wishes at www.myblakefitness.com.

Man Convicted of Murdering Husband

By Julie Bolcer

In Britain's first instance of a domestic violence murder within a same-sex marriage, a man was convicted Thursday of stabbing his partner to death over an argument about a heating bill last November.

According to United Press International, "Michael Edwards (near right), 32, of Manchester's Chorlton-on-Medlock area, must serve at least 13 years before being eligible for parole. Manchester Crown Court Judge Anthony Gee said in Britain's first domestic violence murder within a same-sex marriage.

"Edwards admitted in court to stabbing his 35-year-old partner, John Edwards (far right), in the heart after arguing over turning the heating on and its cost."

Michael and John Edwards both worked at the Waldorf pub in Manchester, where they had been drinking the night of November 26, 2009. Michael stabbed John and initially told emergency responders that his partner had stabbed himself. John died one day later.
