A light lunch was enjoyed at noon.

We do want to express a sincere thank you to all the above and anybody else who helped getting the activity organized.

This issue is jam packed with news!

I'm especially pleased with the extensive coverage we have for our Homestay program. We will be following the adventures and experiences of our Homestay Ambassadors in future issues as well.

I must point out an interesting tie between our Czech Museum report on their new 20^{th} Century Sensations exhibit and Dusan Neuman's Guest story on his Visit to Prague. Upon arriving in Prague, Dusan was greeted by reminders of famous Czechs, similar to those being presented at our own museum. What a coincidence!

Another special story to note is our Historic Perspectives article by Jerry Cada on his parents Coming to the United States. It reminds me of a movie plot, and I truly thank them for sharing it with us. I'm sure others of you out there know of other exciting stories. Please share them with us and our readers.

December Newsletter Corrections

I regret to report some errors and omissions from the December newsletter.

1. In the article on Sutliff, the inscription for the bridge plaque was reported as being dated 1987, when, in fact, the plaque actually is dated 1887.

 Pictures for the Sutliff and House of Stone articles were graciously provided by Mr. John McHugh of Windsong Photography, Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Mr. McHugh spent significant time visiting these sites collecting the pictures included. I regret failing to acknowledge him for this much appreciated effort.

Cover Story: Czech Heritage Float By Russ Novotny

The Czech Heritage float had a busy two weeks this Spring. First, it appeared in the Cedar Rapids' St. Patrick's Day parade, where it won 1st Place for Private Organization entries. The following week, the float won top honors in the St. Joseph's Day parade through Czech Village on 16th Avenue in Cedar Rapids.

For many years now, Leonard Pfieffer has been the vision and the manpower behind Czech Heritage floats. These floats consistently receive awards like those noted above for this particular float. The Czech Heritage Foundation wishes to thank Leonard for his commitment to so effectively putting Czech Heritage in the public's eye.

This particular float uses railings like those on the old 16th Avenue Bridge in Cedar Rapids that connected the East and West Czech settlements for so many years. That bridge has since been replaced by a more modern structure, which retains several of the styling themes from the earlier bridge. Note the new bridge's railings in the background of the picture on the cover of this. Newsletter. That picture shows the float crossing that bridge. These railings bring back many memories to the Czechs of Cedar Rapids.

We were extremely pleased to have our young Czech Heritage representatives riding the float.

Olga's Lesson 5

By Olga Drahozal

Adjectives are those colorful words which describe a noun. Some easy adjectives to think about are the colors. The following list applies to singular nouns. The dictionary will give you the --"y" ending for masculine nouns, the --"a" ending for feminine nouns, and "--e" ending for neuter nouns. Remember that we said all singular masculine nouns end in a consonant, most feminine nouns end in "a", (although a few end in "e") and neuter nouns end in --o" (although some will trip you up by ending in "--a".

Colors are a common adjective:

Color	Masculine, Feminine, Neuter
red	cerveny-a-é (chaire-veh-nee,-ah,-eh) white	bíly-a-e (bee-lee,-ah,-eh)
blue	modry-a-e (maw-dree,-ah,-eh)
yellow	zluty-a-e (zhloo-thee,-ah,-eh)
green	zeleny-a-e (zeh-leh-nee,-ah,-eh)
purple	fialovy-a-e (fee-yah-las-vee,-ah,-eh)
orange	oranzovy-a-e (aw-rahn-zhaw-vee,-ah,-eh)
black	černý-á-é (chair-nee,-ah,-eh)
brown	hnědý-a-é (hnyeh-dee,-ah,-eh)
pink (rose)	ruzový-a-é (roo-zhaw-vee,-ah,-eh)
gray	sedivy-a-e: (sheh-dyee-vee,-ah,-eh)

TRANSLATE:

cerveny kabat (kah-bat)	coat
cerne auto (ah-oo-thaw)	auto
bily listek (lee-stek)	ticket zelený strom (strawm)
zluta lampa (lahm-pa)

In our last lesson we covered the verb "to have" (miti). In an effort to review, let's talk about "I don't have".

TRANSLATION EXERCISES:

Ja nemam auto.	I don't have an auto. (Notice: It's really I not have an auto.)
Ja nemas auto?	You don't have an auto?
On nema'radio	He does not have a radio.

My nemame piano.	We don't have a piano.
Vy nemate museum?	You don't have a museum?
Oni nemaji metro.	They don't have a metro.

101 Artists Come to the Czech & Slovak Museum, May 24 Jan Stoffer.Tursi

The National Czech & Slovak Museum & Library will host a 101: Czech Artists of the Post-Revolution Decade. This special photographic exhibition opens May 24, 2001. Photographer Chad Evans Wyatt introduces visitors to some of the most influential people of the 20th century through his dynamic photographs. The 40 photographs feature three generations of artists who are defining Czech culture through movies, books, sculpture, paintings, and music; their influence is even sensed in the United States. Admission to this special exhibition is included with the regular admission price of the museum galleries.

For a decade following the Velvet Revolution of 1989, Wyatt took portraits of artists at work in the Czech Republic. His images of musicians, writers, actors, painters, and photographers are startling and evocative, revealing the subject's character as well as Wyatt's compositional skill with camera and film. This traveling exhibition has already received rave reviews in Prague, Czech Republic, and in Washington, D.C.

Wyatt will lead visitors on a guided tour of his work on May 24 at 10:00 a.m. and 2:00 p.m. At 11:00 a.m., he will sign copies of his book, 101: Artists in the Czech Republic.

Homestay Program Update

By Russ Novotny

What a great reeling to have our Homestay Program back on track. We are busy preparing to send four more students to the Czech Republic for a month-long experience living as a part of a Czech family. We have already sent 49 youths on such an experience. Meet our new Homestay Ambassadors in the following article.

This recent resurgence of the program is due in large part to the efforts of Jeanne Fee. She located, and has been making arrangements with officials of a secondary school in Prague (see related article below on PORG), to find host families and coordinate activities there. We feel that this program is so important that the Czech Heritage Foundation has sent Jeanne to Prague to visit the host school and families to insure that the program will continue to be the success it was in the past.

The host school in Prague wishes to make this a two-way Homestay program. That is, they also wish to send some of their students here to spend time with our families and learn more about the United States. Please let us know if you might be interested in hosting a Czech High School student.

Homestay Ambassadors Introduced

By The Homestay Ambassadors themselves

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following are excerpts from the application that our Homestay Ambassadors submitted to be considered for participation in the Homestay program. These excerpts were generally taken from their answers to the question "Why do you want to spend a month in the Czech Republic?" As you will see, our selection committee did a fine job of selecting students who will represent us well and make the most of this wonderful opportunity.

Kit Wobeter Toledo, IA South Tama County H.S.

I would like to spend a month in the Czech Republic because I could bring back many stories and experiences to tell to my family, friends, and others who want to learn more about life in the Czech Republic. A few of my relatives took a trip to the Czech Republic for three weeks in 1985, and I am sure they would love for me to go to the Czech Republic and see the things that they enjoyed seeing. They even visited some relatives that live in Prosec and visited the house that my grandpa's grandpa lived in. Our family is proud of our Czech ancestry, and by going on this trip I could learn more about them. Also, I could share with my host family stories about life in the United States. They would probably be interested in hearing about traditions and other facts about the United States.

I could also bring new types of food that they have never heard of or tried, and my host family could give me different types of food to try. I could also learn about a culture that is different from the one I live in every day. I could learn some things about life that I may have missed in our rushed lifestyle. If I am near the country, I would like to see how they farm and what equipment they have compared with the techniques and equipment that we use on our farm. I am fairly educated on farmers' markets in surrounding towns, and it would be interesting to see what fruits, vegetables, and other items are sold in markets in the Czech Republic.

I would also like to meet people from another country and learn to communicate with someone whose language I am not fluent in. It would be interesting being in the Czech Republic for four weeks and to see how much of the language I would pick up with little prior learning.

Just the fact that I am traveling to a foreign and overseas country interests me. I am a person that likes to see new places and explore them. I have been reading in a magazine about traveling to foreign countries and exploring the countryside with very few expenses. This sounds like something that I would enjoy doing in the future. This is probably because both of my parents have traveled around the world and have had great experiences. My father was in the Peace Corps in 1973-1974, and he traveled to Kenva, India, Nepal, Singapore, Great Britain, and some islands in the South Pacific. My mother went on a trip to Russia for three weeks after her first year in college with the American-Soviet Friendship Tour in 1976. They had a good time, and they encouraged me to travel around the world with every opportunity that I have.

Since I am a runner and I train during the summer, I would have a once in a lifetime experience to run in a foreign country and run in new surroundings. I also like being independent. That is usually the way I like to learn or experience things. Although I will be with a host family most of the time, I will basically be on my own because it will take time to fit in with my family and learn enough of the language to have a conversation. After the trip is over, the experience from giving presentations and talking about my trip will be a benefit to me later in life.

I hope to contribute much to my host family. As I have said before, I hope to share traditions, customs, and stories about the United States. I could also have different types of food to share with them. I could also help cook an American meal and tell them about American meals. I would also help do family chores and participate in family activities. I would do everything I could to blend in with the family and help them do daily jobs.

Kit with Parents Berleen & Pete Wobeter

Bridget Samek Cedar Rapids, IA Xavier High School

I want to spend a month in the Czech Republic because I think it will be a good experience. I love to travel and meet new people. I also like to learn new things. One of my hobbies is photography and I love to see different countries and photograph them. European countries have so much more history than the United States and to capture it on film is a wonderful adventure. I would also like to see the country that so many of my relatives came from.

I love to meet new people. I am very outgoing and have no trouble getting to know people. I would like to share experiences from my life with them like I hope they will do with me. I am helpful and would be happy to help with any chores or jobs they would like me to do. I am also an organized person.

From this experience, I hope to gain the knowledge of what it is like to live in another country. I would also like to see how other people in the world live. Every time I go to the Czech and Slovak Museum and Library, I always see what the Czech Republic used to be like but never what it is now. It gives the impression that the Czech Republic is still in the Middle Ages. I know it's not, but I don't know what it is. I would like to see how they really live.

Bridget with Parents Richard & Elaine Samek

Regina Hogan Earlville, IA Beckman High School

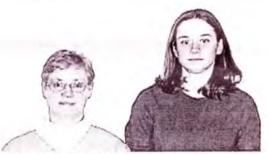

To go to the Czech Republic and see exactly how Czech families operate would be rewarding. Having the chance to go to museums and landmarks that tell the story of my would relatives be incredibly satisfying. Seeing the land that my ancestors, as farmers, toiled over for years would also be interesting. Getting to know the landscape, which is bound to be very different considering I live in a very flat part of Iowa, will be a unique experience in itself. More appealing than any of that though, will be the opportunity to come back to the United States and share all the knowledge that I will have acquired with my family and friends. As this is a cultural exchange, I should hope to provide my family with an understanding of the American/Czech culture that I am used to. This I would do simply through my actions and words. What I mean by that is I would cook them a meal or two "American style", and talk in English from time to time, because I'm sure that they will want to try out their English on me as much as I would want to try out my Czech on them. I would share stories about life and living in the United States. So that they can gain a better understanding of the country that I come from, I would also share stories about school, and friends, and how they differ from the US to the Czech Republic.

I would think that I would be able to blend in as part of the family, and not be so much a guest, but more a member of that family, for the month that I spend there, by helping out in anyway that I can. In this way, I would enlighten them as to the life that I lead here in the United States.

I cannot even begin to write how enthusiastic I am about this trip. I want to absorb as much information as I can about my relatives, and this would be a wonderful way to do it. An experience like this would not only give me stories to tell upon my return, but it would also give me stories to tell my children.

Sarah Fiala Cedar Rapids, IA Xavier High School

I believe that spending a month in the Czech Republic would be the experience of a lifetime. Very few people ever get the chance to experience a change in culture such a this trip offers. would provide It a connection between the people of Iowa and the people of the Czech Republic. I think it would be a wonderful chance for me to truly discover what it means to be a person of Czech descent.

BASIC FACTS

I would be open to their ways of life, and I would share with them what it is like to be an American. I would serve as a bridge between both communities.

I hope to gain insight into the Czech way of life. I think it will be an eyeopening experience. I hope that I would make a real connection.

Homestay Host School - PORG

Excerpts from PORG Materials and Web Site

EDITOR'S NOTE: PORG (Prvni Obnovené Realné Gymnázium) is the secondary school in the Czech Republic that is helping coordinate our Homestay program. School officials helped recruit host families from the student body, and our Homestay Ambassadors will spend the first week of their visit in Prague with their host students attending classes and school events with them. PORG officials are also working to sponsor a reciprocal project where PORG students will spend time with host families here in Cedar Rapids.

Education is what remains after we forget everything we learned at school. (Karel Oapek)

PORG is a co-educational, nonsectarian institution, and the first independent secondary school in the Czech Republic.

The PORG project was initiated in January 1990, immediately following the Velvet Revolution. As the first independent secondary school in Czechoslovakia it opened its door to students on September 4th, 1990, in the presence of the Minister of Education.

PORG is a highly selective 8 year secondary school, modeled after the Reform Secondary School,, a type common in the pre-war Czechoslovakia. These schools were designed to provide a balance between the education based on classical studies (i.e. Latin and Greek) and the education based on mathematics and science. This enables a student to experience a full range of studies; not only does he/she learn to differentiate between the disciplines, he/she can also determine where his/her interests lie.

Our students and teachers are not confined to the state regulated curriculum; they are able to choose both their own areas of study and methods of teaching.

Each of our grades has a maximum of 24 students. This size is ideal for both group work and individual work. We strive to provide an environment which emphasizes academic excellence and encourages the fullest development of the young personality. Our teaching staff is made up of a group of highly qualified, enthusiastic, and open-minded men and women.

Our curriculum focuses on problem solving and independent decision making, with a concern for the environment and timeless cultural values. PORG's ultimate goal in this approach towards education is the development of a creative intellect.

INTERNATIONAL CO-OPERATION

PORG has organized a number of exchange visits and trips with secondary schools all over Europe. Our students have had a chance to share experience with students from Great Britain, Switzerland, the Netherlands, France, Germany, Israel, the United States, and Poland. We intend to expand these activities as we consider them essential for our students' ability to cooperate with people from abroad.

HEADMASTERS'WORDS

Ondrej Šteffl, the founder and first headmaster of PORG: During the period of the communist rule in Czechoslovakia our educational system greatly suffered. Several months before the Velvet Revolution a group of friends and I got together and discussed the possibility of the creation of a different type of school with a different educational approach. We wanted a school that would be free from ideology. We wanted a school that would focus on the needs of the individual student rather than on the needs of the state. We wanted to introduce new aspects of education aimed at the development of creative thinking, the ability to deal with problems, the strengthening of the individual responsibility; these characteristics may be commonplace in other parts of the world, but were hardly present in Czechoslovakia in 1990.

Vaclay Klaus, the Headmaster of PORG: Now, after six years of its existence. PORG has grown into a wellestablished school with many excellent and highly motivated students and teachers. It continues with its efforts to find new alternative ways of education and preparing students for the rapidly changing future world. Methods we use include various forms of projects, many of them being international, special courses, team teaching, etc. The feeling that we go in the right direction arises not only from favorable responses from our students and their parents, but also from the fact that students leaving PORG after their final examinations are highly successful in entrance examinations at Universities. Many of them are studying at faculties of philosophy, law, social sciences, medicine,

In 1994 we were ranked as the best independent gymnazium in the country by the Czech School Inspection as regards the level of students' knowledge in various subjects.

PORG permanently attracts the attention of media. There have been more than 90 articles published about PORG, including one in the Times, and massive coverage on TV and radio channels. We are open to all ideas or other forms of help and co-operation. I would like to thank our sponsors and supporters and turn to anybody willing to support us in the future. Do not hesitate to contact us.

St. Joseph's Dance Report By Frank Novotny

The Czech Heritage Foundation was blessed with good weather, a wonderful attendance, and a rewarding response to our St. Joseph's Dance on March 18th, 2001 at the P2 Retiree Hall.

Everyone Got into the "Swing" of the Chicken Dance

Jim Busta from Minnesota, played wonderful music for listening and dancing pleasure. Mike Lassack helped to keep the crowd moving and move it did.

We had about 327 tickets turned in at the door, which caused us to be overcrowded for space. As a result, we have contracted Jim Busta for music and the Elks Club for the afternoon of March 24th, 2002, 2:00-6:00 PM.

We had a very good response from the former Homestay Students, and also from all of our members. We had 60 prizes that were donated by members (thank you), which we gave away at three different drawings for door prizes. We also had 18 wonderful prizes that were given away as raffle prizes.

The Bake Sale table was a terrific success as well as the light lunch that we served.

All in all, we took in over $3,800 for our efforts and as a result, the Homestay and Scholarship Fund each received right at $1,500 for their share of the earnings.

All this wouldn't be possible if we didn't have some dedicated people in our group. At this time I would like to personally, and in behalf of our Foundation, give a sincere thank you to Evelyn Stejskal who turned in $1,100 in donations and tickets sold. Thank You! Following is a list of the people Evelyn contacted and who helped her collect these funds:

St. Joseph's Dance Thank You By Jim Busta

EDITOR'S NOTE: Thanks to the Jim Busta Band for helping us to have such a successful Dance. Following are excerpts from the Thank You note we received from Jim.

Dear Friends:

Thank you for the invitation to play at the CR. Czech Heritage/St. Joseph's Day Dance. We had a great time performing and by the response of the people in attendance, they also enjoy our performance. What a crowd!!!! It was great to see so many friends going back to the days when I lived in Cedar Rapids. The enthusiasm of the crowd was great. We had many people ask us if we would be back next year ...

... Once again, we had a wonderful time Sunday, and we would welcome the opportunity to return for future engagements.

Sincerely, Jim Busta

EDITOR'S NOTE: Here's a new feature. Chuck Jungman has been doing illustrations of some of his fond memories of the past. He calls the series "Do You Remember". Chuck has agreed to let us publish several of these images. I'll be including others in future issues to "tickle" your memories too. If any of these remind you of a story you'd be willing to share, please contact me and perhaps, you too can become a published author.

Coming to the United States

By Jerry Cada (Son of Marie & James)

Marie & James (Vaclav) Cada - 1985

Living in Czechoslovakia at the end of World War II was a difficult time. The Communist party dramatically increased in membership through 1947, largely due to the influence of the Russians who remained in Czechoslovakia after the war. However, in late 1947, the economy began to decline as jobs were scarce and industry and agriculture began to suffer. Elections were to take place in the spring of 1948, and the Communist party feared it may lose its control. In an effort to support any opposition, they began to use force to take over the government. They also required every government employee to become a member of the Communist Party.

Vaclav and Marie Čada who lived in the town of Petrohrad, were both government employees. Vaclav, who worked on the railroad during the war, was a member of the State Police (Statni Nebespečnost), and Marie was a schoolteacher. As life in Czechoslovakia became more difficult, they made up their minds that they would not join the party and knew that they would eventually have to leave the country. The event that made up their mind occurred the morning of March 10th, 1948 when Jan Masaryk was found dead outside Černin Palace. Jan Masaryk, who was the son of the first President of Czechoslovakia, was the Czech Foreign Minister and a member of the National Socialist Party. He was a thorn in the side of the Communist Party membership. He had fallen out of a window and plunged several stories to his death. The government ruled it a suicide, but investigations pointed to the probability that he was murdered by being pushed out the window. Following this tragedy, Vaclav and Marie Čada decided they had to leave the country.

The Čadas told the School Administrator of their plans. He knew of a former student, Alois Horak, who also wanted to leave and arranged a meeting between the Čadas and Mr. Horak to plan their escape. Two friends of Mr. Horak's also wanted to leave and a date was set for all five to escape--March 20, 1948.

On March 19, the day before the planned escape, Vaclav and Alois borrowed a car and drove along the planned escape route. They were not stopped at all by the police, border patrols, or soldiers. It appeared that the plan would work.

On the morning of March 20th Louisa boarded a bus for Prague, but disembarked the bus at a town called Krupa. There he met his two friends and another friend who had agreed to drive them to the border. Meanwhile, Vaclay was called to the police station to receive orders of where he would be stationed and was detained longer than expected. Marie became worried when Vaclav didn't return from the station as planned and was startled by a knock at her front door. It was her cousin from Prague, who had taken the morning train and was paying her a surprise visit. Marie explained to her what was happening and her cousin agreed to go to the police station to retrieve Vaclav. In the meantime, Alois arrived at the house wondering what had happened as they were running almost an hour late. A short time later Vaclav arrived. After tearful good-byes, the five were on their way.

Arriving in the town of Bochov, they stopped for bread, salami, and something to drink. An SNB officer saw Vaclav and asked him where they were going. When Vaclav said they were on their way to Cheb, the police officer asked to ride along since he needed to go there as well. Vaclav told him they had no extra room in the car. In the town of Karlovy Vary they experienced car problems and after spending time at a service station, they were on their way again. Shortly before they arrived in Cheb, they pulled over and the men changed into police uniforms that Vaclav had provided for them. As they neared Cheb, they were stopped by Czech soldiers. Vaclav spoke with them and they were waved on. They were stopped four more times between Cheb and the Czech-German border. Each time they were asked where they were going and why they were driving a car from Prague. After they had passed the last town before the border, they felt they would have a better chance of making it across on foot rather than in a car. They stopped near a cemetery, jumped out of the car and began to run toward the border. They ran past the cemetery, along some railroad tracks, through a small field and into a patch of timber towards another field. As they ran through the timber and into the clearing they heard "cracking" noises behind them. A few hundred vards away, coming out of the woods, were two SNB officers shooting at them with a pistol and a machine gun. The group ran down the hill towards the creek that separated the Czech-German border. The creek was deep because of the melting snow. Alois Horak was the tallest and he jumped in first. Within a few steps the water was chest deep. His two friends followed. Vaclav had lost his pistol while running down the hill and had stopped briefly to try to find it but then also headed for the creek. Marie was small in stature and couldn't swim, and knew she would not be able to make it across. She stood by the creek and told them to leave her there and to save themselves. But Vaclav shouted for Horak to come back and help. Horak and Vaclav carried Marie across the creek toward the German Border Guard who was watching what was happening. As soon as they made it across the creek, the German guard began shooting back towards the Czech SNB and blowing his whistle. He waved the Czech guards back and shouted that these people were now safely in Germany.

The irony of that moment was that just three years earlier, the Germans were their enemies because of the war and now, they were saved by a German from their own people!

The five went to the German Guard Post with the German guard and since the Čada's spoke fairly good German, they told them why they escaped. Vaclav had cigarettes inside one of his layers of clothing, exchanged the cigarettes for some food. Because of the poor economy, cigarettes were a wanted commodity.

After they ate, they walked with the guard to a nearby town. Here the guard took them to the police station where they spent the night.

The next day they were taken to the German town of Tierschenreuth. There the three men were taken to a train that was headed for a temporary camp at Regensburg. The Čada's remained for a couple of days to meet with an American Army Intelligence Officer who wanted to know what the political climate was and how life was in Czechoslovakia. They were then transported to the refugee camp at Dieburg. The camp at Dieburg was a converted old school house and provided sleeping accomodations for 38 to 40 people. Small wooden beds lined each room, and this is where refugees lived for many months.

The Čada's became good friends with a couple by the name of Havelka. They were from the same political party as Mr Čada. Mr Havelka was also good friends with the former Czech Ambassador to Sweden, who was now living in Sweden. In late August, an opportunity came to go to work for a factory in Sweden that made electric transformers and motors.

On September 9, 1948 Vaclav and Marie boarded a train which took them through Northern Germany and Denmark. The train ride was very sad as much of Germany was in ruins from the war. Buildings, houses, bridges, and roads were destroyed all throughout Germany. They were transported from Denmark to Sweden by boat.

They arrived in Sweden on September eleventh and settled in the town of Vasteras. Mr. Čada began working at a company called ASEA (Now ABB). Later that year the Čada's were blessed with a son and two years later a daughter.

Marie & James Cada Afternoon Walk in Sweden, 1948

Vaclav and Marie heard what a great country America was and decided they wanted to come to the USA. In 1951 they applied for Visas to come to the United States of America, and June of 1952 they were granted permission to come. They sold all their belongings and received some financial assistance from the Catholic Youth Organization and International Red Cross. They boarded a ship that took them back to Germany where they spent a few days in a refugee camp. Finally they boarded the "General Taylor", which was a converted military transport ship, bound for the United States of America.

U.S.N.S. General Harry Taylor (T-AP145) Ship the Cadas came to America on. Mr. Cada slept on the lowest level and Mrs. & child on the upper

They arrived in New York on July 21st, 1952. Upon leaving the ship they were met by a representative from the Czechoslovak National Council organization that assisted Czech immigrants coming to America. Once they cleared customs, they were taken by bus to Chicago. Here they worked and lived. In 1961 they moved to Cedar Rapids, Iowa where they live today. Another son (Jerry) was born in 1962.

Although they physically left Czechoslovakia behind, they brought the old country with them in their hearts. They keep the Czech traditions as part of their lives. They have retained their pride in their heritage, while experiencing a love for a country which has allowed them the democratic freedoms they deeply desire.

The remaining members of the group came much later to America. They also eventually settled in the Chicago area.

Guest Column:

A Visit to Prague By Dusan Neumann

EDITOR'S NOTE: Our Guest Article this issue is from Dr. Dusan Neumann, a foreign correspondent for the

Dr. Dusan Neumann, a foreign correspondent for the Czech magazine, "Tyden." About the time of our last Presidential Election, Dusan visited the Czech Republic. His observations are particularly fitting as the Czech & Slovak Museum & Library prepares their exhibit of famous Czechs. We appreciate his analysis and opinions, and hope that he will continue to provide other guest columns in the future. Thank you, Mr. Neumann. Only an eight hour long flight separates New York from Prague, but what a different world. The picture that dominated front pages of Czech newspapers when I arrived was a photograph of American. It was not George Bush or Al Gore who attracted the attention of journalists, but the astronaut James Lovell, the captain of Apollo 13, who visited the land of his ancestors for the second time. His grandparents immigrated to the US from a little village in Southern Bohemia. He brought with him the Czechoslovakian flag he had on the board of stricken ship. Lovell gave this flag to his Czech relatives.

Strangely, it is not the first Czechoslovakian flag that was in space on the American cosmic ship. On the wall of the National Astronomical Observatory hangs another flag. This one is a present from the astronaut Eugene Cernan who had carried this flag on the Moon's surface during the mission of Apollo 17. Also Eugene Cernan's grandparents came to America from Southern Bohemia.

The American presidential candidates are not forgotten in Prague. A column commenting on the last days of the campaign revolves around their position on European affairs. The subtleties of Social Security reform, the campaign reform, and the tax reform did not make more than three lines. Czechs hardly see any difference between both candidates, but their preferences incline more towards George W. Bush, because they remember the spontaneous reception given to his father, who was the first American President ever to visit Prague.

But the educational reform here is also of major public concern. The Department of Education just sent to the Czech Parliament the draft of law that will require a mandatory teaching of two foreign languages in high schools. So far a knowledge of one foreign language is required for a student to graduate from the high school. In the new system students will start to learn the first language in the third grade and the second one in the sixth grade.

To graduate from a high school every student will have to pass mandatory examinations from Czech language, mathematics, foreign language and two elective subjects - all sanctioned by the Department of Education. Only complex education is seen as a valid vehicle for successful integration into modern Europe.

On the surface Prague is a booming city. The traffic, shops, lights - not much different from any capital in Europe. But not everything is rosy in this heart of Europe. The socialized health care system was abolished in favor of something modeled after our HMOs with similar results. The unemployment exceeds 10%, the cost of energy is climbing, and the value of Czech crown is dropping. For American tourists it is a blessing - a dinner in a good restaurant costs - with a tip included - around five dollars. And they can meet in those restaurants other Americans - like James Lovell, Bruce Willis, or Barbara Streisand.
