I am one in a crowd of numbers, machines and technical advances. How can I retain my identity? Am I a number ... 93025 ... A2161 ... 6D8 ... 0-24-1 ...? Even now the essence of a human being, the heart, has been influenced by the mechanical race. Lost among others, I must find myself. This is my goal, no longer a victim of our computerized age, I am myself, a full and complete human being.

DEMANDS MUST BE MET . . .

Teachers walk out on negotiations . . . union members vote to strike. Board of Education members plead patience to parents . . . 7,600 students do not begin school. The 1973-74 school year is delayed for four days.

The teachers' strike ultimately affected everyone in District 219. Emotions were high . . . morale low.

Money was not the most important issue . . . supervision of hallways, grievance procedures, total teaching load and teacher evaluation vastly outweighed this demand.

Heated discussions of teachers' and the board's roles, rights and privileges highlighted radio broadcasts, newspaper coverage and television newscasts.

This was totally a conflict between the board and the teachers' union . . . students had nothing to do with it.

Finally, 'round-the-clock negotiations produced a settlement. Both sides gave in . . . a compromise was achieved. Teachers would have to supervise the hallways, but would get paid for doing so. Administrators could not listen in on classes without the teachers' prior knowledge. All teachers, including those without tenure, could grieve dismissal. The strike was over . . . contracts were written . . . students returned to school after a lengthened vacation.

Yet the unnatural start of the 1973-74 school year contributed to making this year truly different . . . things never returned to normal.

The high emotions did not subside. Students trying to see their teachers became frustrated when realizing they were on supervision duty. Teacher-administration animosity could be felt in the classroom.

The outcome of the strike was the outcome of any conflict involving human emotions. No one feels they are victorious, and even those uninvolved individuals are adversely affected. Everyone loses.

Teachers walk out on negotiations . . . union members vote to strike. Board of Education members plead patience to parents . . . 7,600 students do not begin school. The 1973-74 school year is delayed for four days.

The teachers' strike ultimately affected everyone in District 219. Emotions were high — morale low.

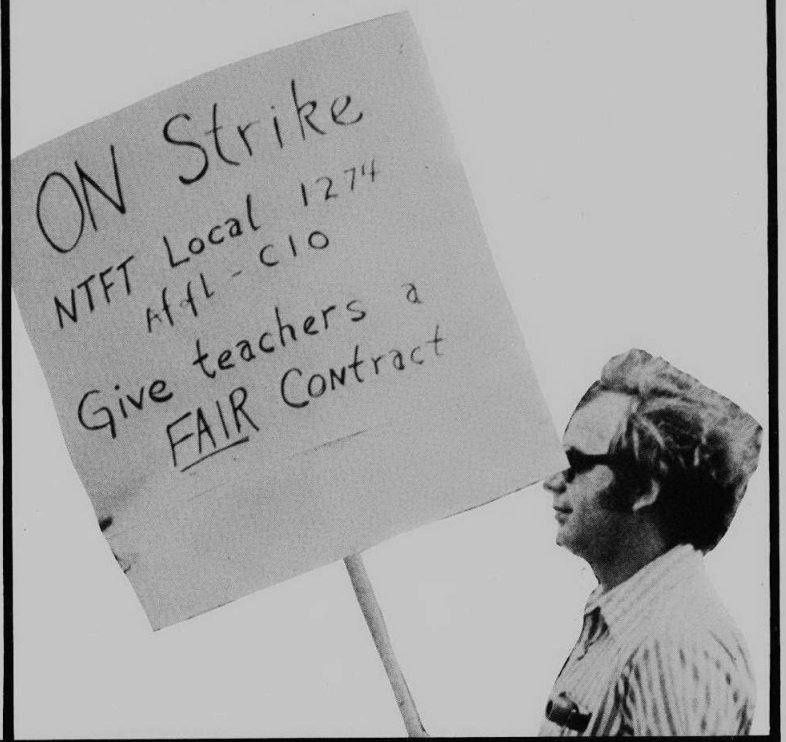

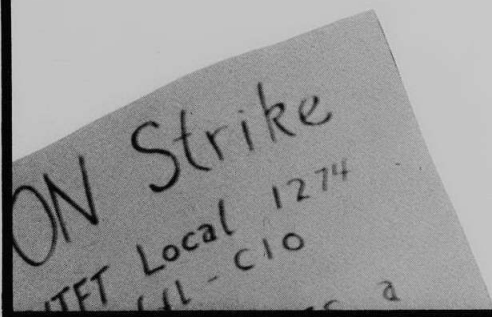

Money was not the most important issue . . . supervision of hallways, grievance procedures, total teaching load and teacher evaluation vastly outweighed this demand.

Heated discussions of teachers' and the board's roles, rights and privileges highlighted radio broadcasts, newspaper coverage and television newscasts.

This was totally a conflict between the board and the teachers' union . . . students had nothing to do with it.

Finally, 'round-the-clock negotiations produced a settlement. Both sides gave in . . . a compromise was achieved. Teachers would have to supervise the hallways, but would get paid for doing so. Administrators could not listen in on classes without the teachers' prior knowledge. All teachers, including those without tenure, could grieve dismissal. The strike was over . . . contracts were written . . . students returned to school after a lengthened vacation.

Yet the unnatural start of the 1973-74 school year contributed to making this year truly different . . . things never returned to normal.

A YEAR OF HUMANITY...

MACHINES

It was a year of humanity, it was a year of machinery. It was a time when many were brought together by national situations, a time when many were separated by the cold and emptiness of the machines.

Those who strived to retain their identity became separate and unique individuals, others who forfeited, fell victim to the mechanical society. Then, there were those who were torn in the middle; they are still searching.

A war, a shortage and a resignation. Among other events, these were foremost in the minds of students during the 1973-74 school year. Many of these national occurrences could be paralleled to situations which existed at Niles North. As the gas shortage was felt in the pockets and gas tanks of many, the Watergate Scandal and Agnew's resignation had an impact deeply rooted throughout the nation.

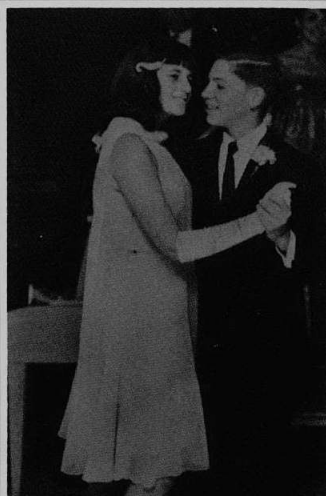

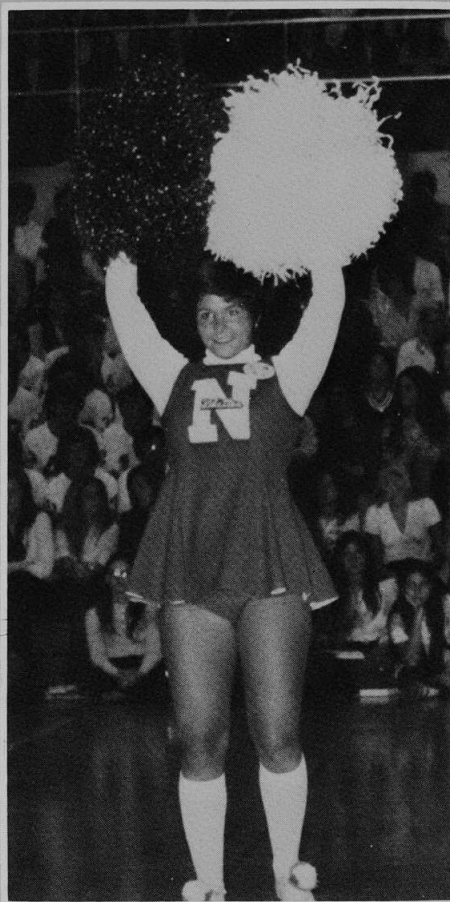

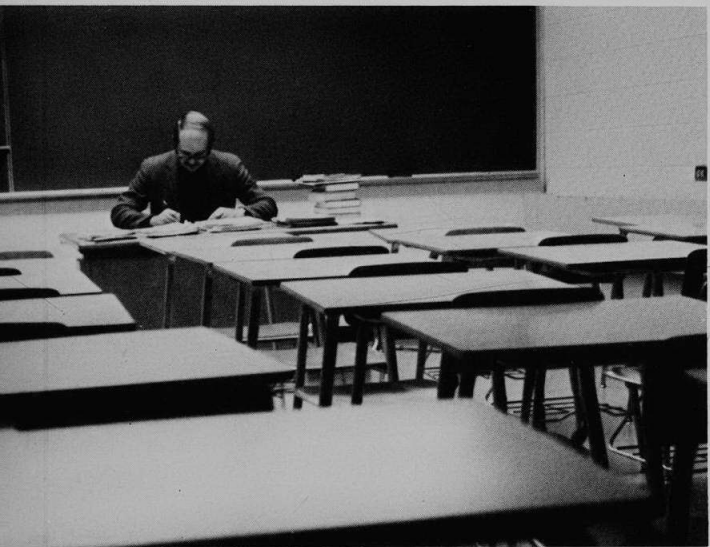

Because many students were able to relate to the Arab-Israeli conflict, steps were taken to collect large sums of money so that an ambulance and supplies could be purchased for the benefit of the Israelis.

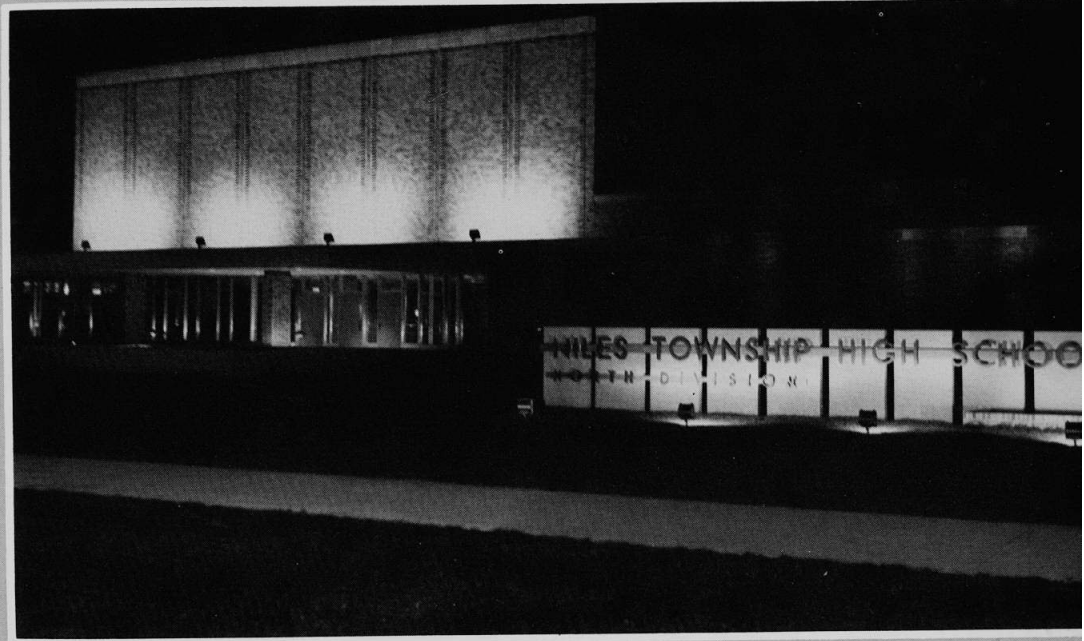

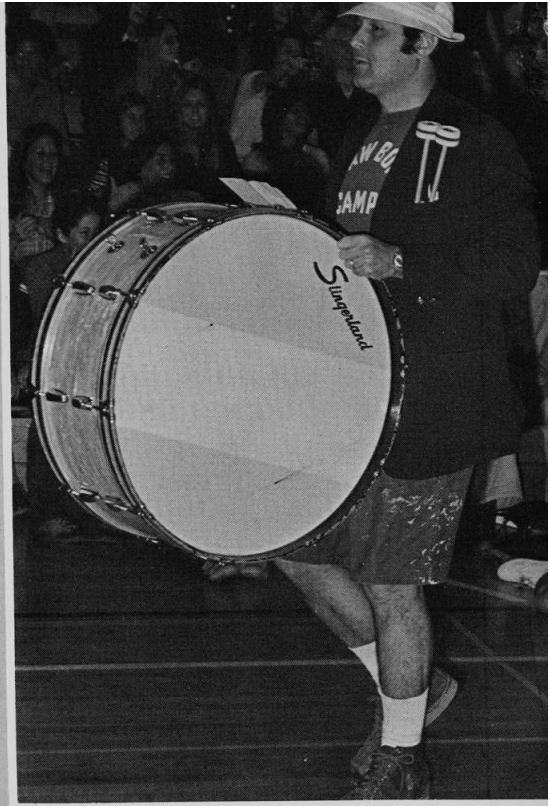

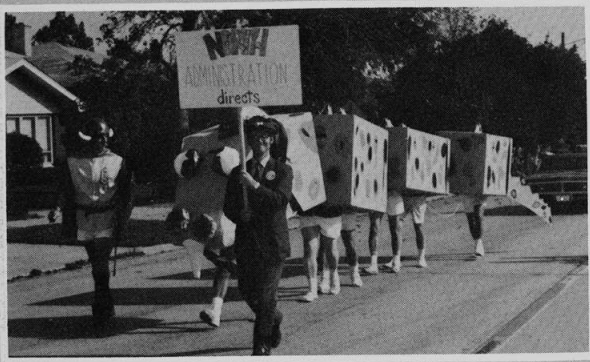

Comparable to the technical advances of today, these events were so simple, yet so complex.

NATIONAL ISSUES HIT HOME

NILES NORTH.

YOU'VE COME A LONG WAY, BABY

To accommodate an increasing number of students in the East and West divisions of Niles High Schools, citizens voted on a proposition to construct a building west of Old Orchard Shopping Center. The third division of Niles schools, North, opened in 1964, with a capacity of 2500.

Since that time, fads and fashions have come and gone. Moods and sentiments have left their imprints. Niles North has survived ten years of freaks, revolutionaries, greasers and jocks. Happy tenth anniversary Niles North. You've come a long way, baby.

INPUT

Calculators and computers played a key role in the development of the curriculum in many classes. Both teachers and students became dependent on the time-saving techniques of these new advancements.

Business Education students, as well as those involved in industrial arts, mathematics, science and foreign language, felt the impact of diverse forms of machinery. Although they have been beneficial and fulfilled many services, students wonder if they will become alienated by a data-controlled school.

SOCIAL STUDIES

Students had the opportunity to participate in a curriculum which provided freedom to chose classes suitable to their abilities and interests, as well as their needs throughout the social studies department.

Freshmen were required to take Man and His Culture, a course which enabled students to appreciate foreign countries such as China, Africa and the Middle East, by studying their cultures through numerous readings.

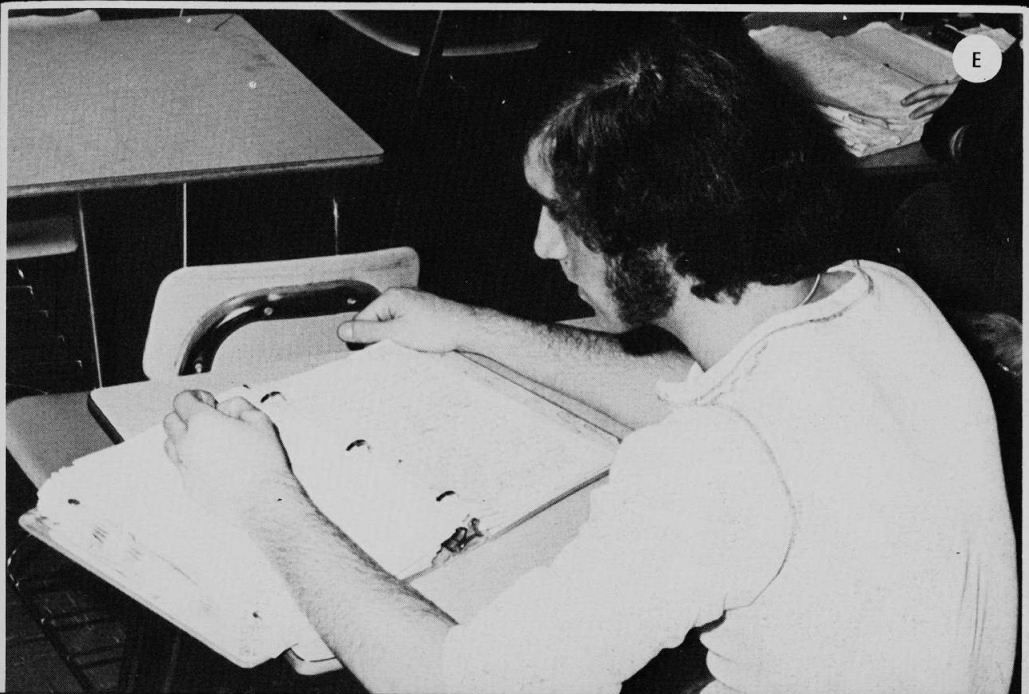

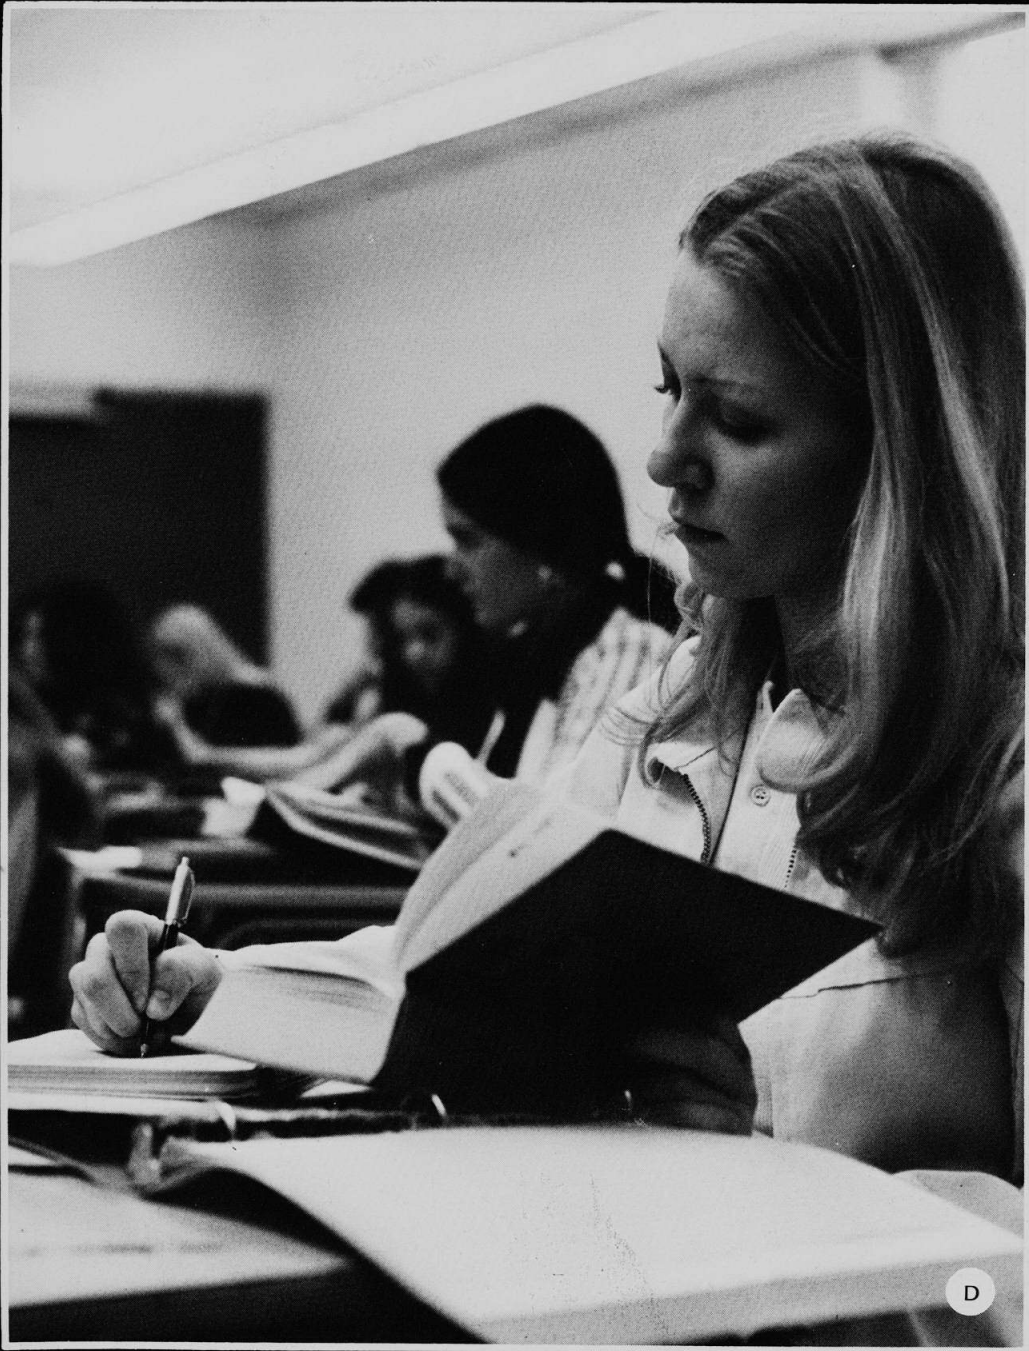

Encompassing a variety of courses dealing with U.S. history, classes covered subjects ranging from colonial beginnings to the emergence of modern America. Through in depth study, students more clearly understood some of the pressing problems confronting minority groups in modern American society.

For those students wishing to delve into the workings of the mind, human behavior and contemporary society could be studied through courses in psychology and sociology.

- A. Free time enables students in United States history class to study independently and work at their own pace.
- B. Business aspects are difficult to understand as senior Sean Bowlen soon realizes through examining the paper.
- C. Attempting to understand the ups and downs of today's economy, junior Bill Hamilton tries to comprehend the issues of his textbooks.

- D. While listening to her teacher's lecture, senior Judy Terlecki jots down notes with the aid of her textbook.
- E. Reviewing his notes and readings which take up a great portion of the Man and His Culture class, is freshman Larry Olshan.

ENGLISH

Continuing with a wide variety of courses such as literature, drama, writing and public speaking, the English department has enabled students to pursue areas of interest.

Students were given the opportunity to study literature through various readings including novels, short stories and the Bible.

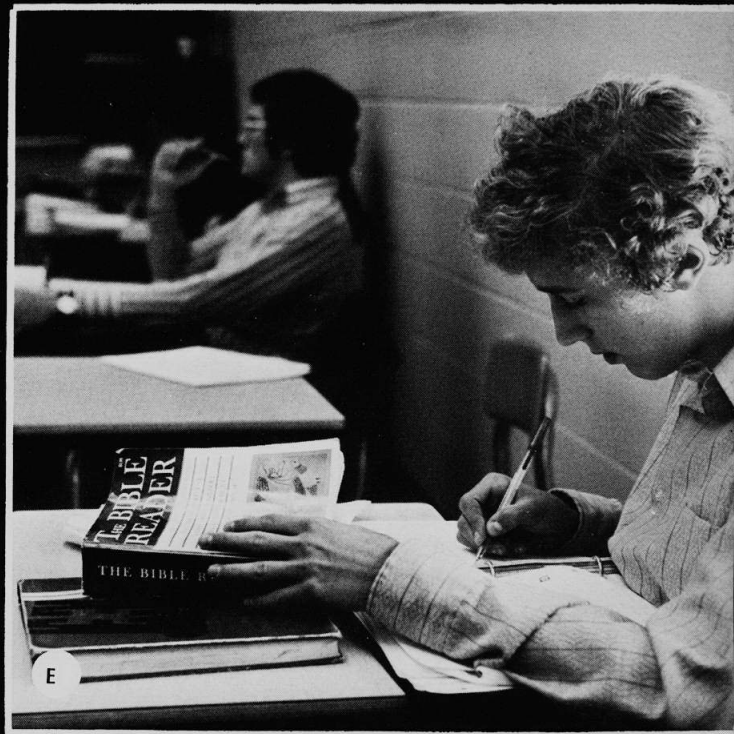

To appreciate the feelings many poems conveyed, students who participated in a poetry course offered for the first time, recited and interpreted various artist's works.

It is likely that many students were involved in courses such as individualized reading and composition because of the unstructured atmosphere which was provided.

Through public speaking, many students learned to vocalize within a group environment. Demonstrations of pantomime as well as humorous and dramatic interpretations were presented during class meetings.

Freshmen were required to take a two semester course consisting of speech and literature. This curriculum was designed to give the freshman an idea of other courses offered throughout the department.

- A. "Do you swear to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth?" asks sophomore Donna Wilson of Steve Friedrichs during the proceedings of a Literature on Trial class.
- B. As they learn different methods of communication, students participating in public speaking pantomime "moments of regret."
- C. Mrs. Ruth Pompian helps sophomore Irene Swiderski improve

- her advanced reading skills along with other classmates.
- D. "Lights, camera, action," shouts the director from behind the scenes as seniors Marty Schwartz, Iris Goodfriend, John Carlson and Michelle Massie prepare to roll their film.
- E. During Bible and Mythology class, junior Mark Perlman attempts to discover another interpretation of the Book of Genesis.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE

By correlating conversational and reading skills into the curriculum, the foreign language department diversified its classes.

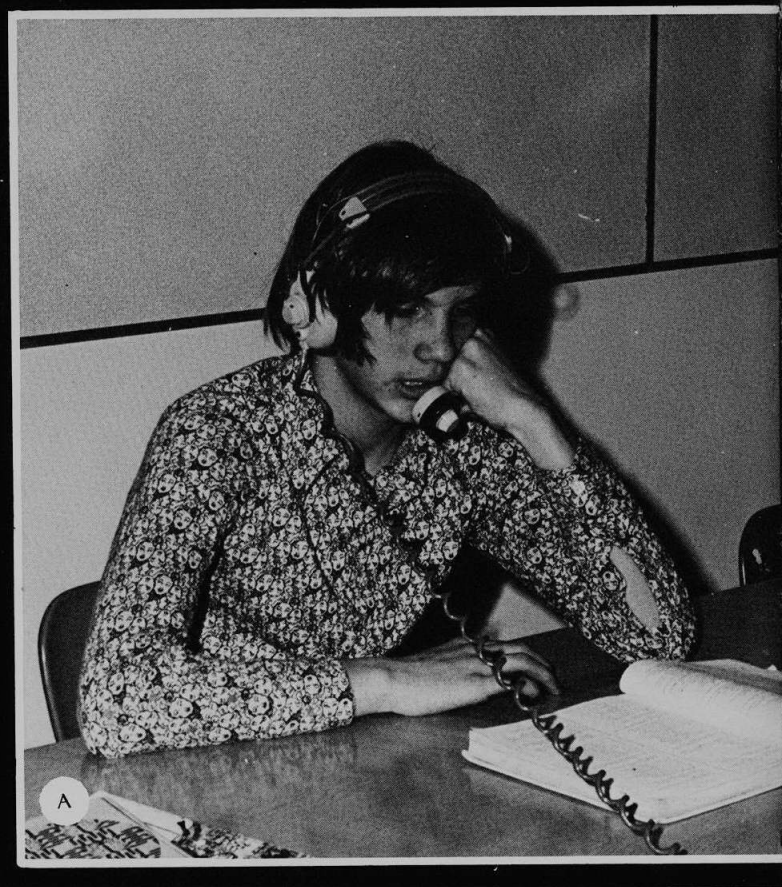

In addition to courses which taught the fundamentals of language, the French program added new, innovative classes. Current events in France enabled students to explore present day situations in France through the aid of newspapers and magazines. Because no specific textbook was used, students felt it was a change of pace from other courses.

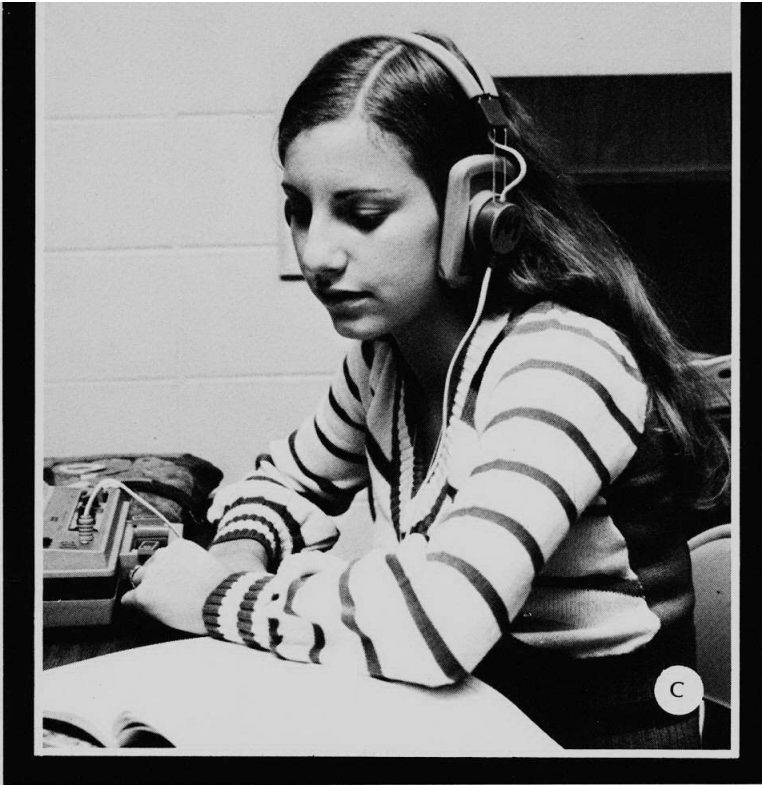

Students participating in conversational classes expressed satisfaction, although many believed that class size hampered achievement.

Through an independent study program, advanced German students were able to develop reading skills at an individual level.

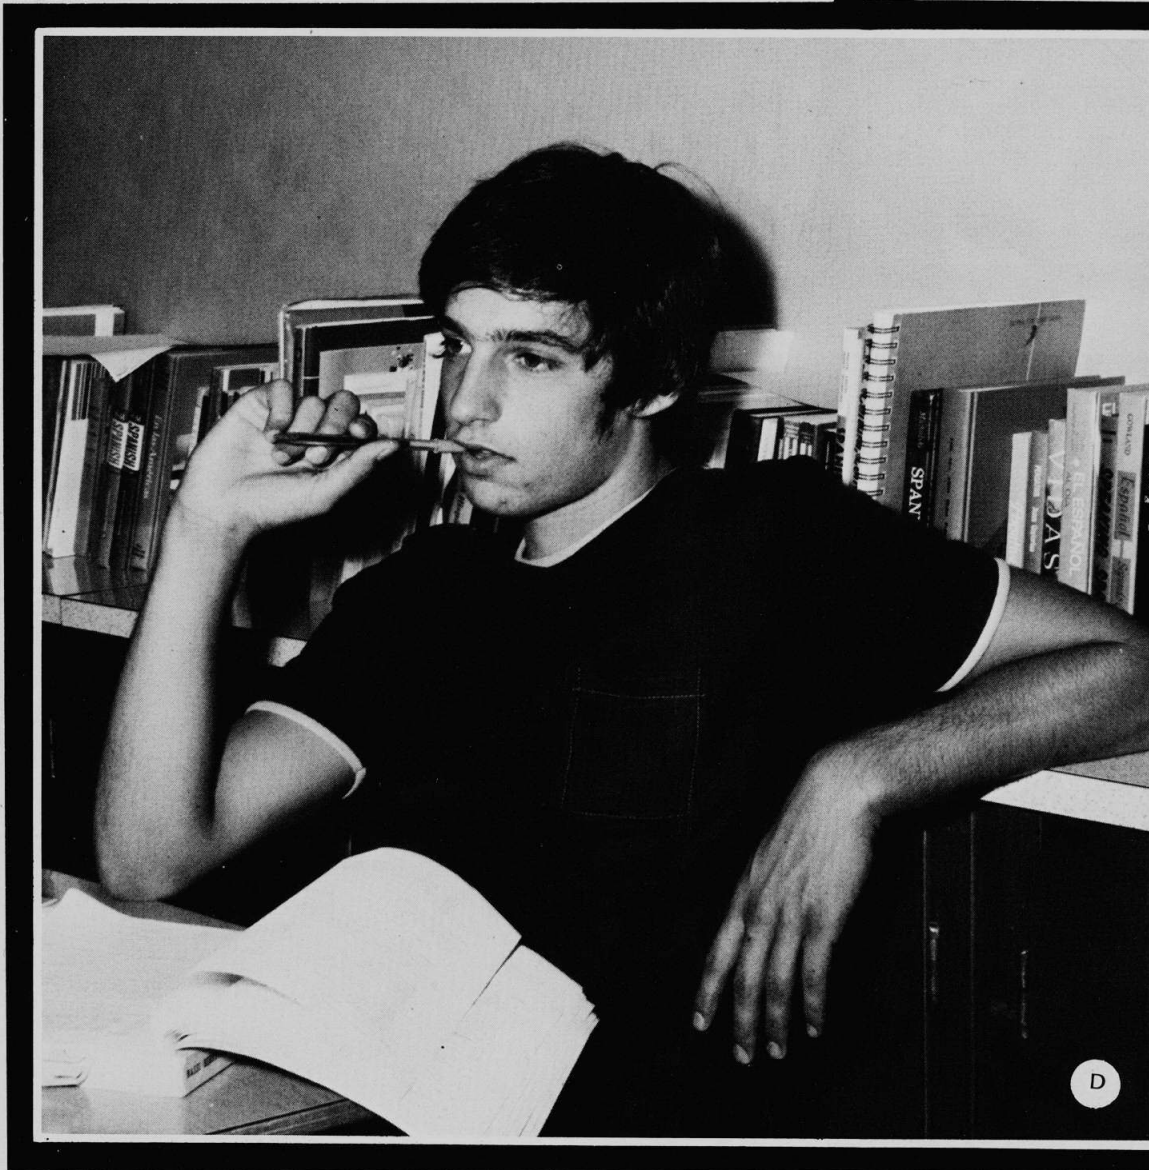

Possibly because of its relevance to heated issues in Israel, enrollment in the Hebrew program increased greatly. Classes were able to get a taste of the culture through the nature of their studies.

To interest students participating in Spanish classes, teachers attempted to vary the curriculum by incorporating interesting readings and tape recordings in the foreign language resource center.

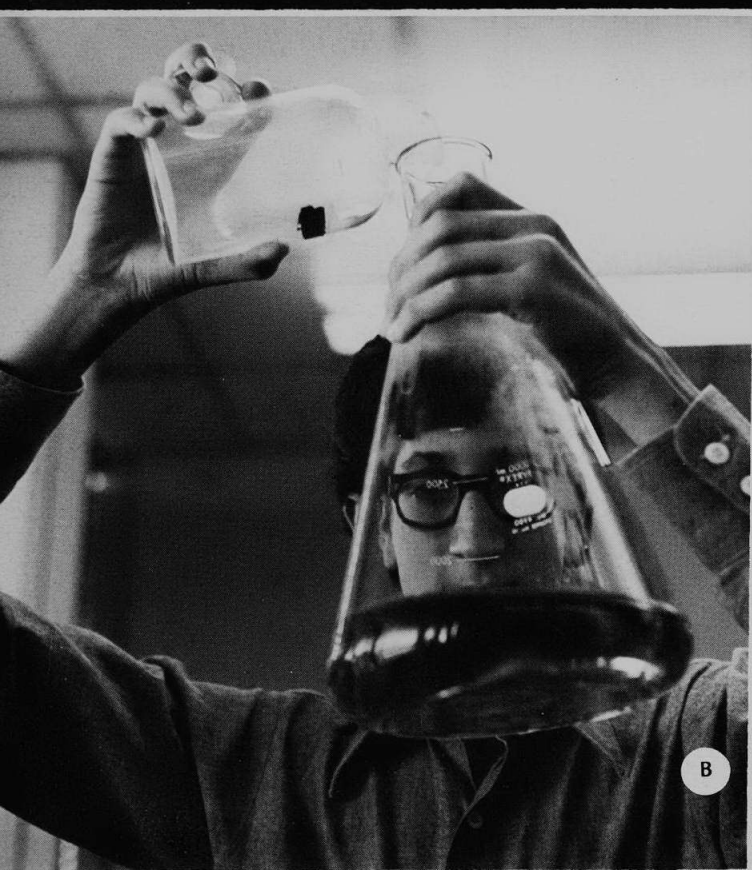

- A. Repeating the words he heard through the headset, freshman James Mallin is able to correct his pronunciation.
- B. Juniors Betty Wdowicki, Laurie Brandess and Robert Aaron closely examine the words their teacher enunciates as they follow their textbooks in French class.
- C. Through repetition, freshman Paula Cohen becomes familiar with irregular verbs as she follows her book.
- D. "What could the answer to this problem be?", ponders juniors Jeff Kost, as his teacher awaits his response.

- A. A fellow classmate anxiously lends a helping hand to junior Mark Schwartz in physiology class.
- B. Using his scientific ability, junior Eddie Warshaw skillfully utilizes lab equipment in Biology 3-4.
- C. Studying ecological changes, senior Linda Cleve examines various specimens of natural pond water.
- D. Senior Roberta Kasman adjusts the flame of her bunsen burner before executing an experiment.
- E. Juniors Lynne Woloshin and Scott Sherman realize that careful calculations are necessary in order to obtain the correct results in their experiments.

Technological advancements had an affect on those students participating in the science department program. Calculators played a role in reducing the tedious hours it once took to solve problems in chemistry, physics and biology courses.

Trying to give students a clear picture of the world around them, Environmental Science teachers gave their students an opportunity to visit the auto emissions testing center where cars were examined for traces of pollution. Many pertinent issues such as conservation and types of pollution control were discussed.

Students interested in pursuing different types of medical careers found that one semester of physiology was interesting and important to their future.

By taking chemistry, physics or biology students received detailed information by experimentation. During a lab period, the nature of various chemicals were analyzed or the behavior of animals was examined.

Earth Science was offered to all students for the first time. This provided another year of a lab science for those who felt courses such as chemistry and physics were too difficult.

SCIENCE

MATHEMATICS

Playing an important part in the math program was a computer available in the math resource center. Students had the opportunity to utilize a machine which has been a key to the advancement of technology.

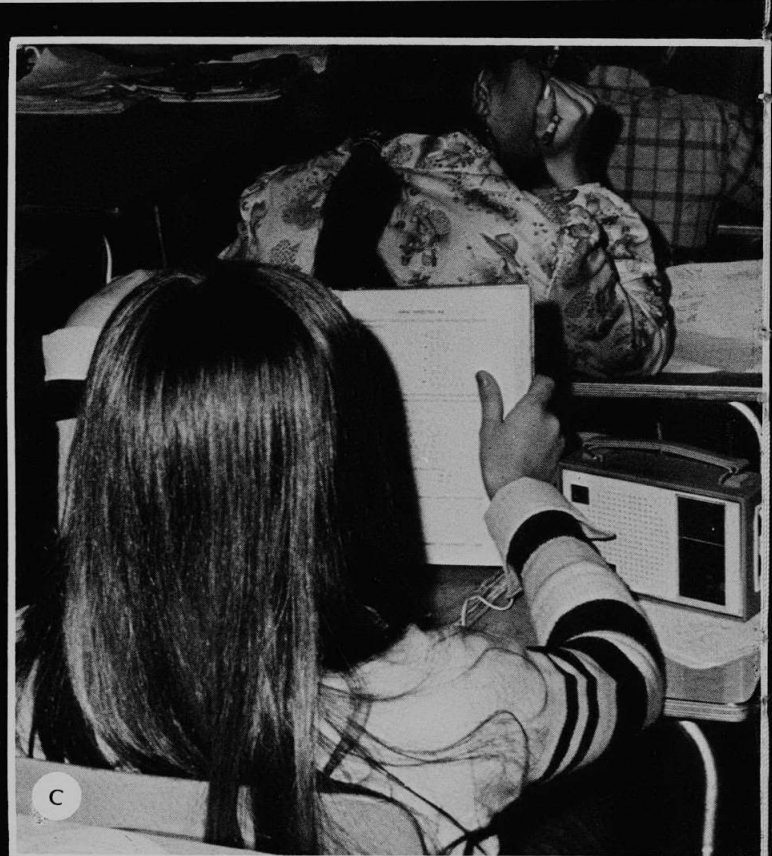

A variety of courses ranging from Basic Mathematics to Calculus and Computer Programming to Statistics and Probability were offered to interested students.

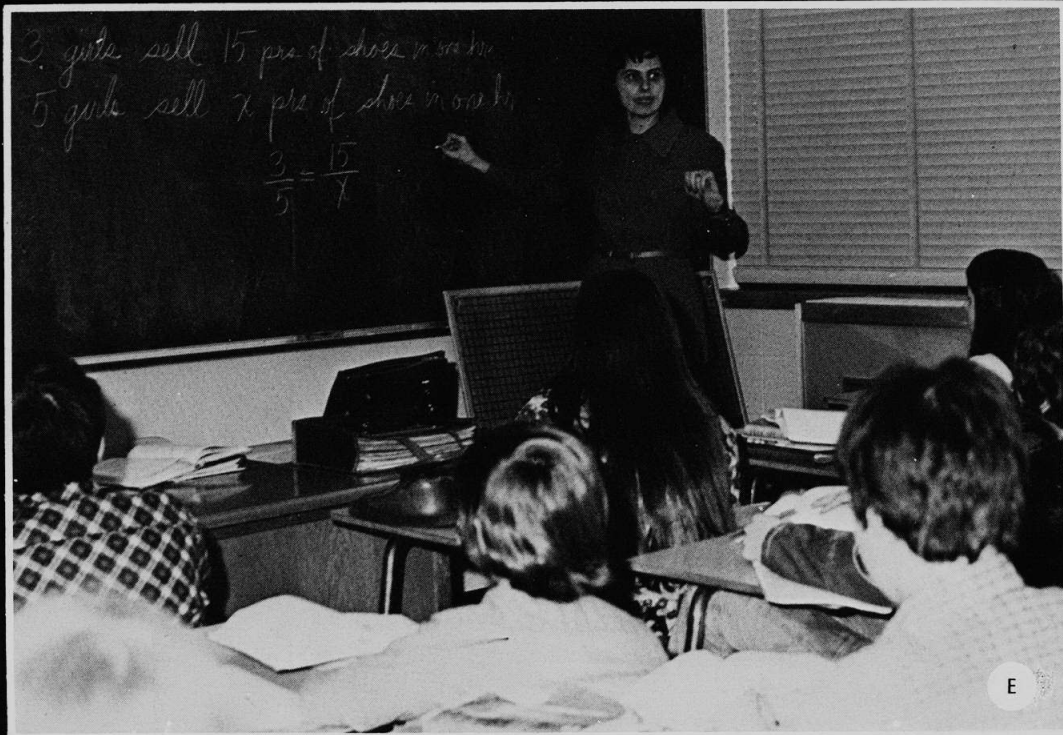

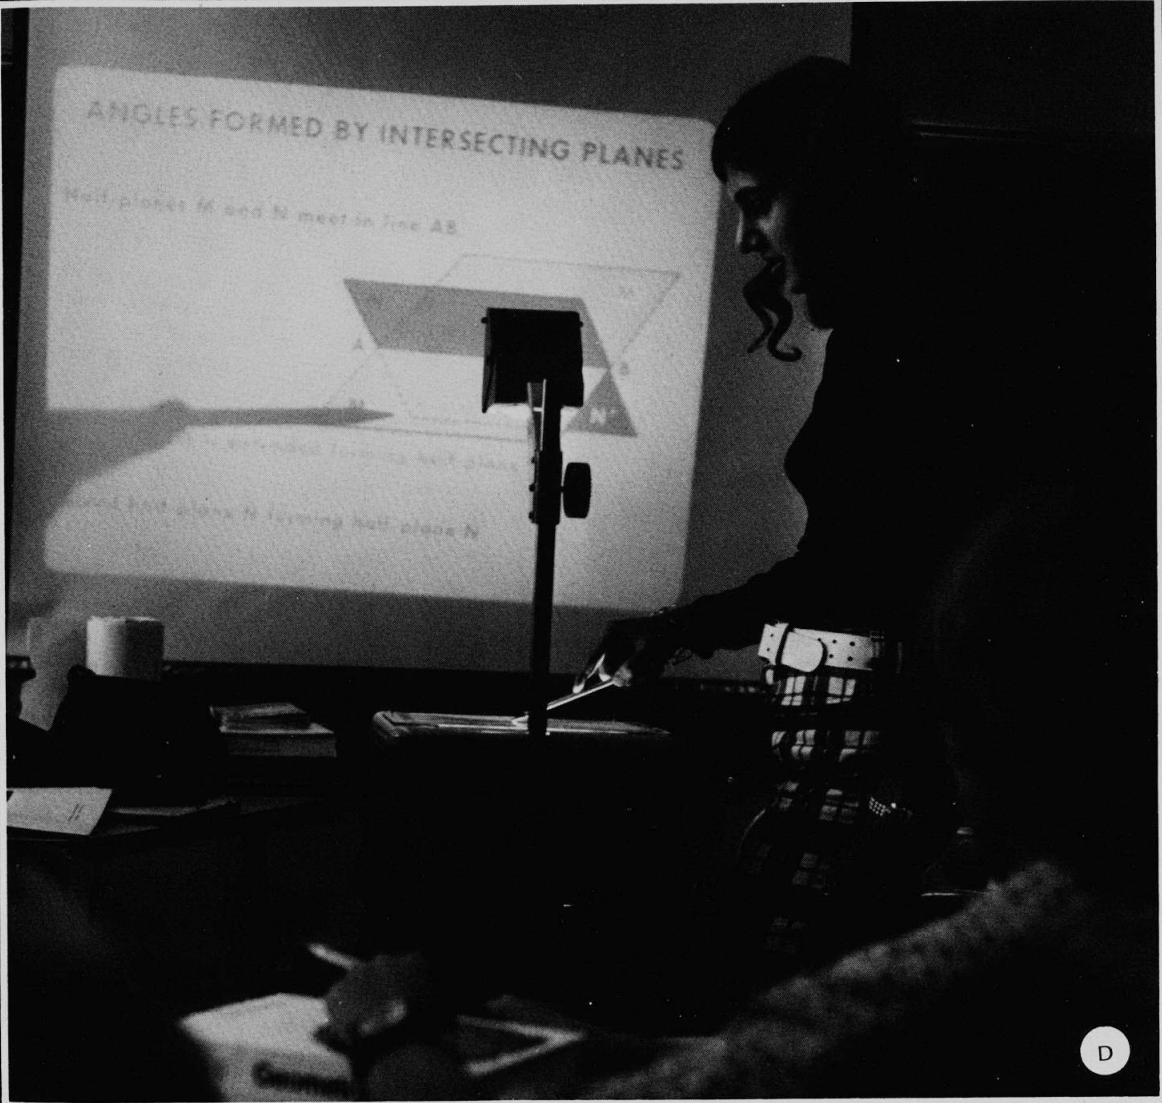

Individual and group work were encouraged during class time. To personalize the atmosphere, teachers split hour long class sessions in half, so that work could be accomplished with smaller groups.

Visual aids became an important factor in class presentations. Transparencies and three dimensional objects were used to illustrate problems. A newly purchased electronic calculator allowed teachers in classes such as elementary functions, to demonstrate concepts with speed and agility.

- A. Parallel lines seem to give junior Danny Zaitz no trouble as he successfully completes his problem in geometry class.
- B. "It's really not as difficult as it seems to be," says Mr. John Barstow to puzzled freshman Lynn Alpert.
- C. Music has a mathematical basis, you know, according to freshman Paula Schinberg as she jazzes up her math class.
- D. With the help of a visual aid, sophomore Deborah Kasman demonstrates how angles are formed by intersecting planes.
- E. Mrs. Joan Ginsberg, instructor, attempts to show her class the correct way of setting up a story problem.

MUSIC

Courses such as orchestra, band and chorus were offered to students in the music department.

Students who enrolled in Music Theory became familiar with orchestration and arranging. A well rounded knowledge of different forms of music such as classical and rock were acquired through discussions in a course entitled Understanding Music Through Listening.

Consisting of freshman girls interested in vocalizing, songs such as "Silver Bells" and "Camelot," were sung in Girls' Glee.

Vocal warm-ups started the Viking Male Chorus class where any interested boy could participate in a variety of songs.

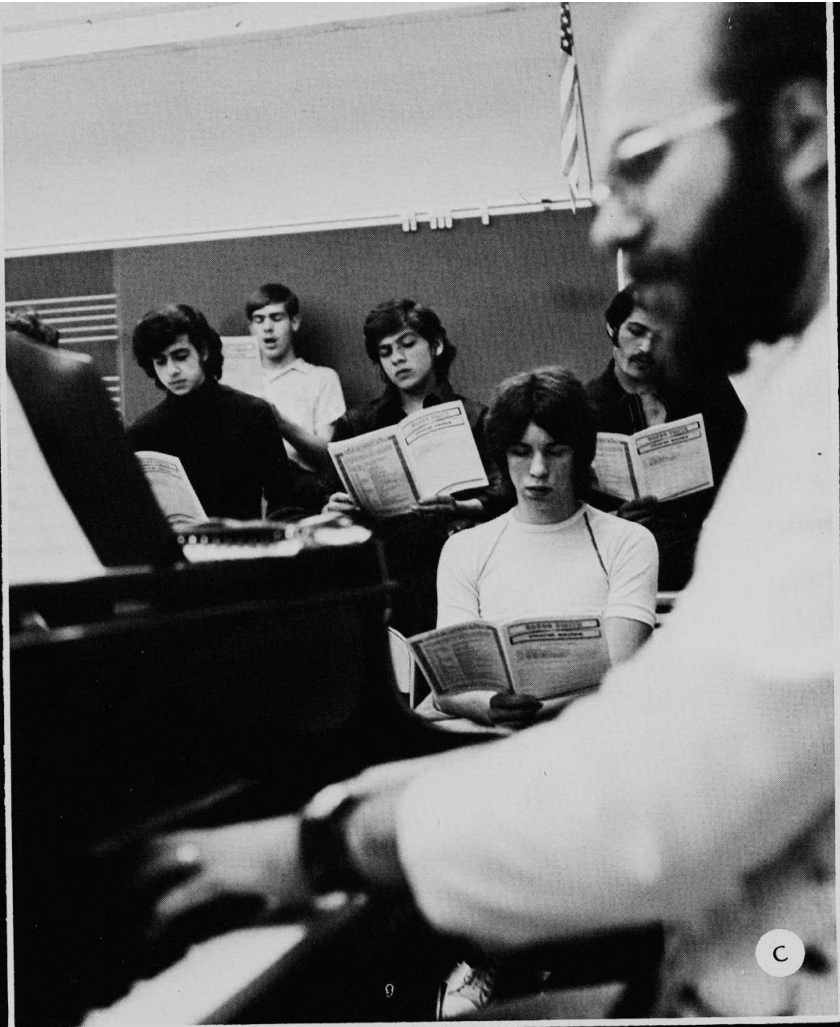

Students desiring to learn to harmonize and use their voices in other ways became members of the Choral Union class.

A selected group of students who auditioned were admitted to Chamber Choir.

Concert Band played at events such as pep assemblies and concerts.

Orchestra members presented performances many times during the year.

C

- A. Adding a bright note to the concert band during a pep assembly, sophomore Debbie Smith and Donna Guzniczak play the flute.
- B. As they harmonize, sophomores Marina Jankovic, Debbie Christoffersen and Kathy Benson carefully follow their music.
- C. Tenors and basses work together in Choral Union to achieve a melodic tone as Mr. Frank Winkler accompanies them on the piano.
- D. As they closely follow the music, cellists Ginny Voedisch and Gayle Herman practice their instruments during orchestra.

ART

Color and atmosphere were added to the environment of school this year due to the efforts of students who participated in the art department courses. Because of the creative artwork found throughout the hallways students were able to share the experiences and talents of those involved in art courses such as graphics, photography and crafts.

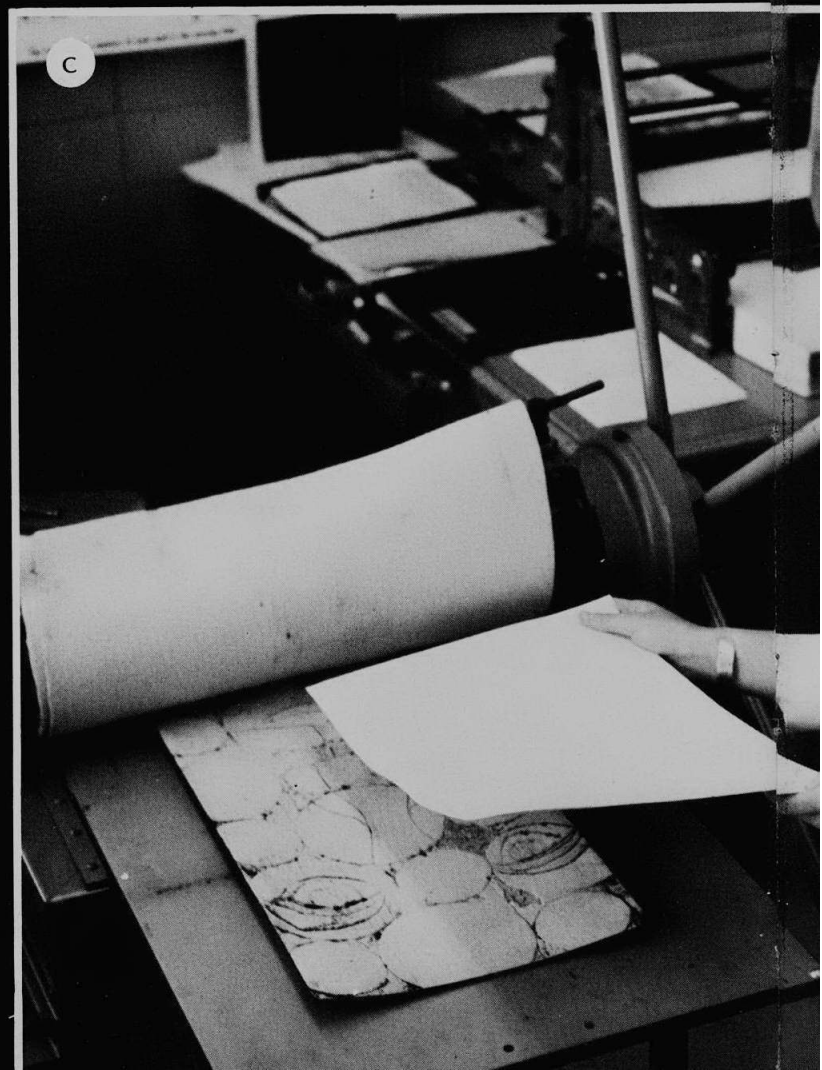

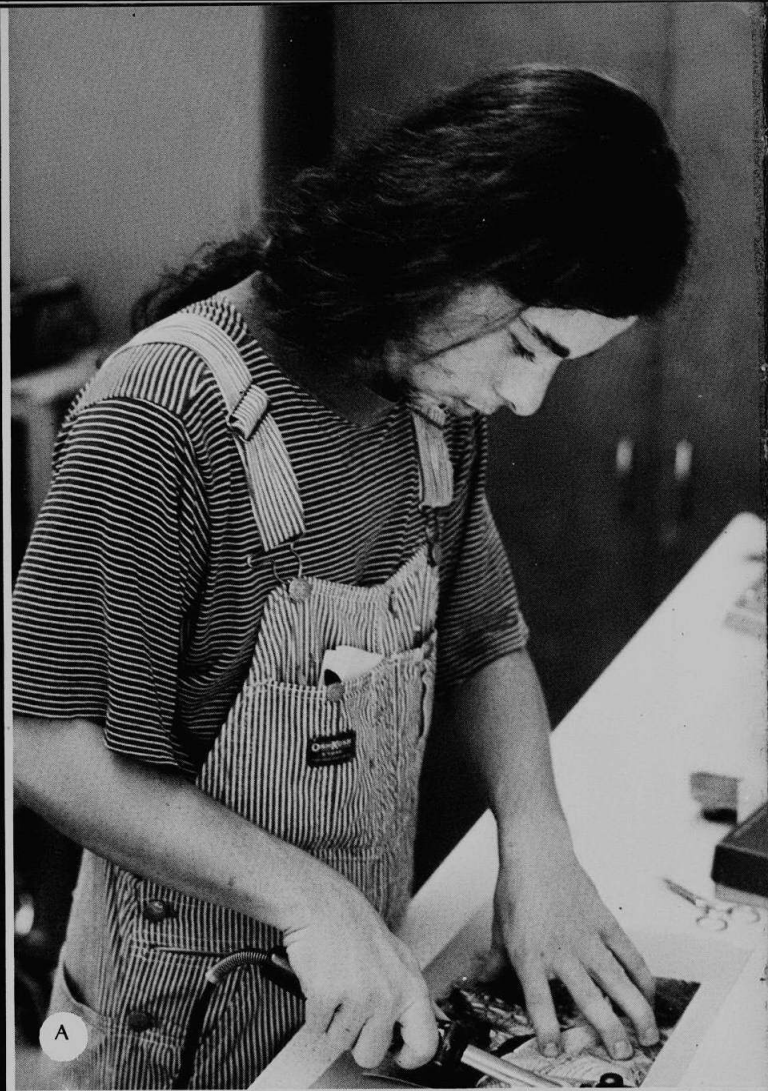

Face collages proved to be a fun and interesting experience. An enlargement of a particular area of the face was assigned to each student. The collages were then drawn in materials such as chalk, pencil and cray-pas and displayed through the corridors.

Taking much preparation and care, two crafts classes gathered colorful material and string to create a mexican mural.

Everyday objects were given aesthetic beauty when enlarged to unrealistic proportions. Hot dogs, hats and a variety of other objects were constructed in mixed medias.

Due to projects which stimulate students' interests in many creative aspects, the art department enrollment has greatly increased.

Expanding their ideas and imagination has motivated many students to express their artwork in various medias. Because many courses are offered, more students have learned to appreciate different forms of art.

- A. Concentration and confidence are displayed by senior Randy Wolfe as he dry mounts a photo.
- B. Sophomore Liz Soohen inspects her negatives for dust particles.
- C. Using her imagination, senior Alisa Jaffe creates a collograph plate.
- D. As a puzzled look settles on her face, freshman Judy Ellman searches for the missing piece belonging to her design problem.
- E. Carefully concentrating on designing his wood cut, junior Dave Marion utilizes various carving instruments during his Graphics class.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS

To further the cause for women's liberation, the industrial arts department added a woman to their ranks. Using innovative methods, Miss Patricia Taepke, attempted to teach the fundamentals of aviation in her aeronautics class. Because the curriculum of the course involved new ideas students participating in the class were enthusiastic.

An in-depth discussion on the history of aviation, lectures in meteorology and how it affects plane flight and airplane performance were presented to the students. By working with the different material, students gradually prepared themselves to answer questions similar to those on the ground-school test, a step which must be passed in order to obtain a license for flying.

Auto mechanic students found the knowledge they acquired in their class to be relevant to the effects of the gas shortage.

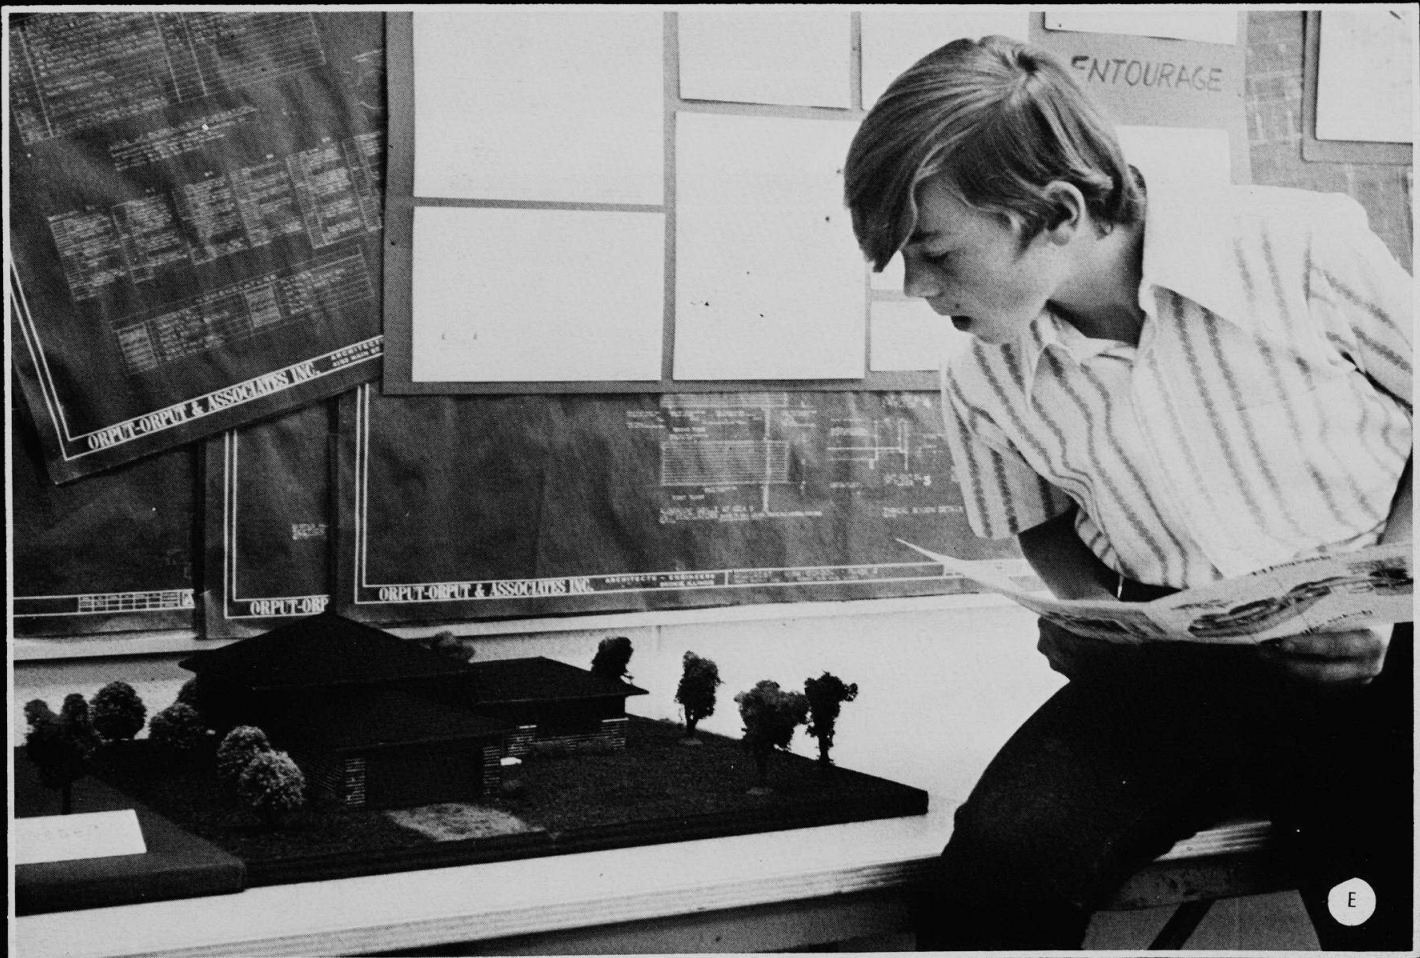

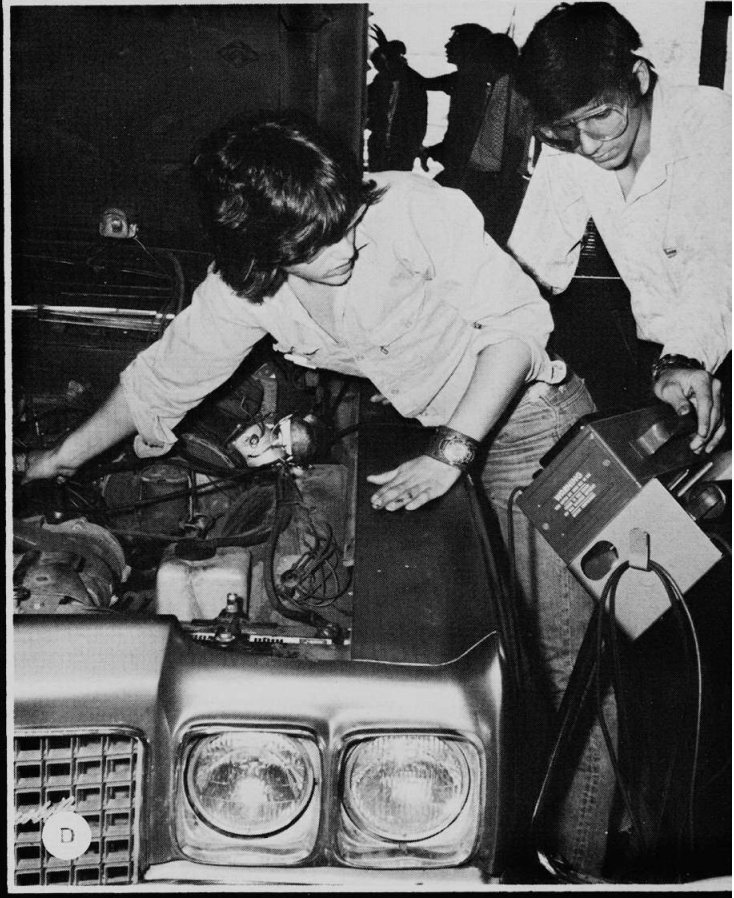

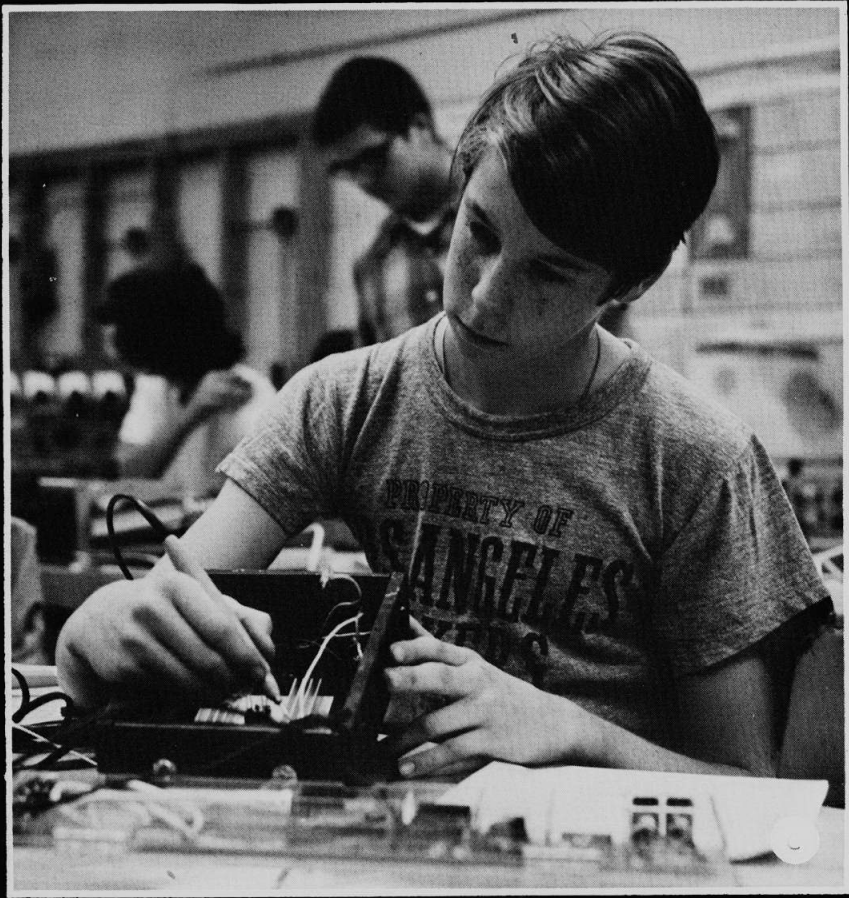

By using many of the mechanical tools and machines available to them, students following various courses within the department realized the great role technology has played in the industrial arts classes.

Offering options such as woods, metals, architecture, electronics and industrial drawing, students expanded their knowledge of the technical world around them.

- A. Carefully examining important elements of auto mechanics is senior Steven Feiwell.
- B. Mr. Bruce Sorensen, industrial arts instructor, helps his students in setting up a circular saw to cut a board.
- C. Dealing with a power supply circuit, freshman Jonathon Gunn experiences his first encounter in an electronics class.
- D. Junior Carey Weiman and senior Larry Finckle learn the tricks of the trade as they tune up a car with modern equipment.
- E. As he studies an architectural drawing model, freshman Mark Wolf notes important details within the structure.

- A. Changing the stereotype of a traditionally female course, senior Les Zun learns the principle behind operating a sewing machine.
- B. Learning the properties of different materials, senior Christine Busch and freshman Lisa Burner realize that they must adjust the iron to the proper temperature control.
- C. Checking to see if she has accurately marked her pattern piece is freshman Tracy Black.
- D. Junior Kathy Goebel gives sophomore Maxine Goodman a helping hand as they both learn that cooking is not as easy as it seems.
- E. As she applies the methods learned in home economics, junior Kathy Goebel periodically checks the food she is preparing.

HOME ECONOMICS

By participating in courses offered in the home economics department, a greater number of boys saw the practicality of taking courses such as sewing and cooking.

To give students the opportunity to become familiar with the many aspects of home economics, the curriculum was varied.

Home economic students were able to more efficiently create a multitude of styles in clothing because the department received new sewing machines for students' use. Dresses, skirts, slacks and shirts were enthusiastically displayed to interested parents during the evening of Open House.

Bringing back story-book memories students had the opportunity to make gingerbread cookies during cooking class. As their experience grew, students added some sophistication to their preparations as they baked various casseroles, cakes and deserts.

Students participating in the Child Development program learned that first hand experience cannot be replaced by reading or examining different types of literature. Working with children at grammar school level North students began to achieve a better understanding of behavioral problems and basic emotions often prevalent in the young child. Because it offers actual experience in addition to classroom instruction, advanced courses offer meaningful preparation for parenthood as well as vocational opportunities for future living.

BUSINESS EDUCATION

Helping students become aware of the world around them, the business education department offered instructional and practical courses to many interested students.

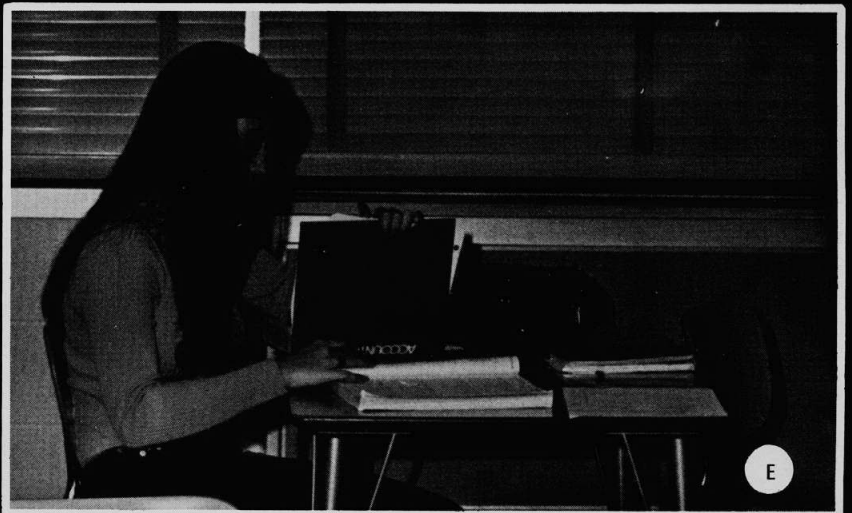

Data processing attempted to teach the principles of electronics, computer codes and related subjects, as teachers began to realize the effect computers had upon the school.

Because of the practical knowledge acquired through accounting, many students enthusiastically enrolled in the course.

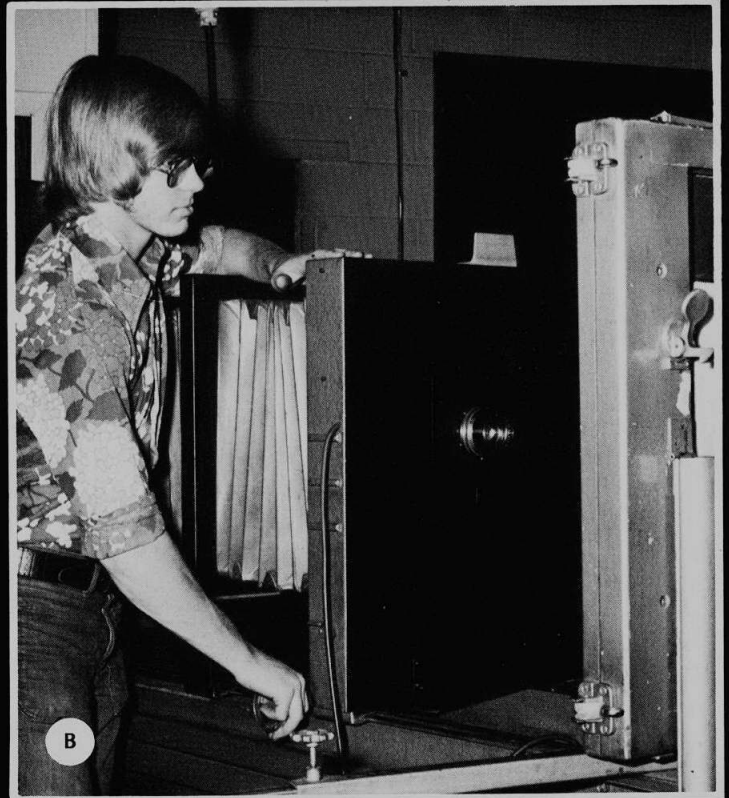

As students began to realize that new job opportunities which do not require a college degree were available, enrollment in courses such as typing and shorthand increased.

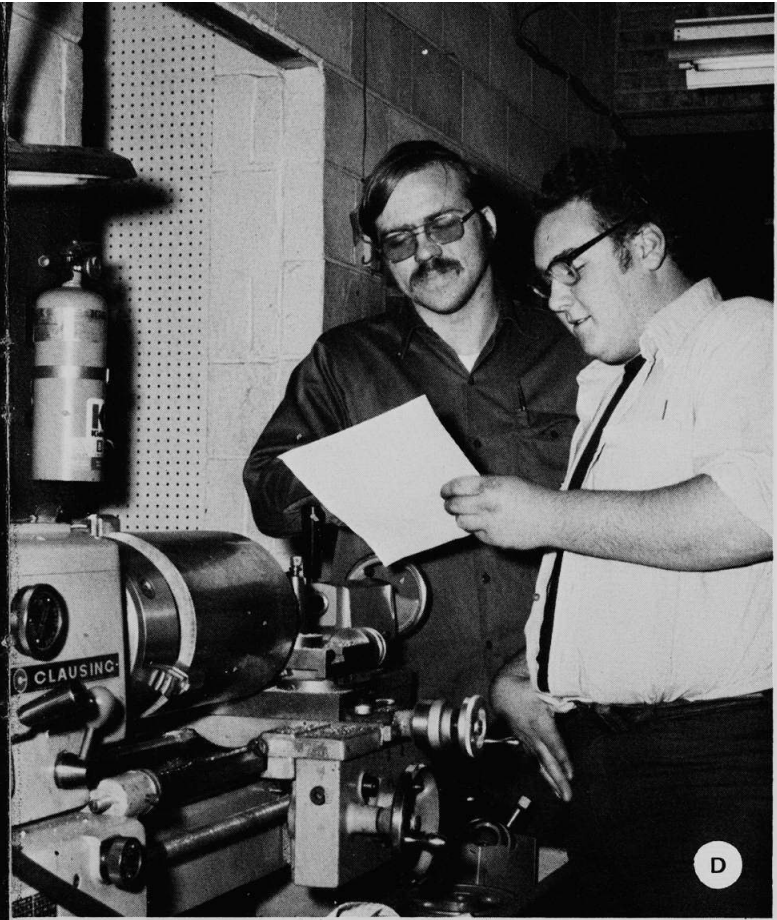

Movies, lectures and presentations were part of the business education curriculum. Through courses, students learned the principles of setting up a home or a business. Mortgages, insurance and credit ratings were basic topics of discussion.

- A. Because her efforts are important to her future, senior Chris Peterson diligently practices and evaluates the work she has done during class.
- B. Sneaking a lick of her sucker, junior Karen Solovy realizes that it takes more than two hands to handle a sucker and a typewriter at the same time.
- C. As she receives helpful tips, senior Debbie Berkowitz listens closely to the advice offered by her business education teacher, Mrs. Myrtle Zelke.
- D. Attempting to follow the touch-typing method are junior Mindy Jankofsky, freshman Lynn Kohan, junior Richard Koob and sophomore Bob Kozuch.
- E. Calculations and numbers float through the mind of junior Cindy Landt as she attempts to figure out her accounting homework in her free time.

The world of work became a reality for those students who participated in the Co-operative Vocational Education Program.

Many businesses gave Northi students a chance to experience daily situations in an adult environment. Brunswick Corporation had three phases in which students became involved. There were opportunities to become pages which taught business etiquette. Students were also allowed to work as secretaries and learn various types of office work. The accounting department was also open to students who worked with payroll and tax deductions. Jobs were also available at the Old Orchard Bank doing book-keeping, sorting mail and making a run-down on all the day's receipts. Skokie Valley Hospital welcomed students interested in lab technology, cytology and cafeteria food services. Bus boys, waitresses and cooks were able to learn different techniques at the North Shore Hilton. Those interested in designing, art work, printing and graphics displayed their talents at F and S Engraving Works.

In CVE students had the opportunity to learn skills in jobs under actual learning conditions. They were placed in occupations best suited to their abilities and interests.

- B. Intensely working in an engraving plant is senior Daniel Gistenson as he utilizes a piece of machinery.
- C. Through his job at Standard Vogue, junior Chuck Platt experiences problems of the gas shortage as he learns the principles of auto mechanics.
- D. At F and S Engraving, junior George Gilbert is shown how to perform his job using technical equipment.
- E. Working as a lab technician at Skokie Valley Hospital, senior Patti Wilgrube records blood samples as her supervisor checks for accuracy.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

Women's Liberation has made its move into the physical education department as more girls have taken an active interest in physical education courses.

To insure students of a solid background in physical education, they were required to participate in courses which involved individualized as well as group instruction.

Classes in dance, swimming, golf and archery were well-liked, but most popular were tennis and softball. A mandatory course in first aid prepared girls for emergency situations which occurred in every day living.

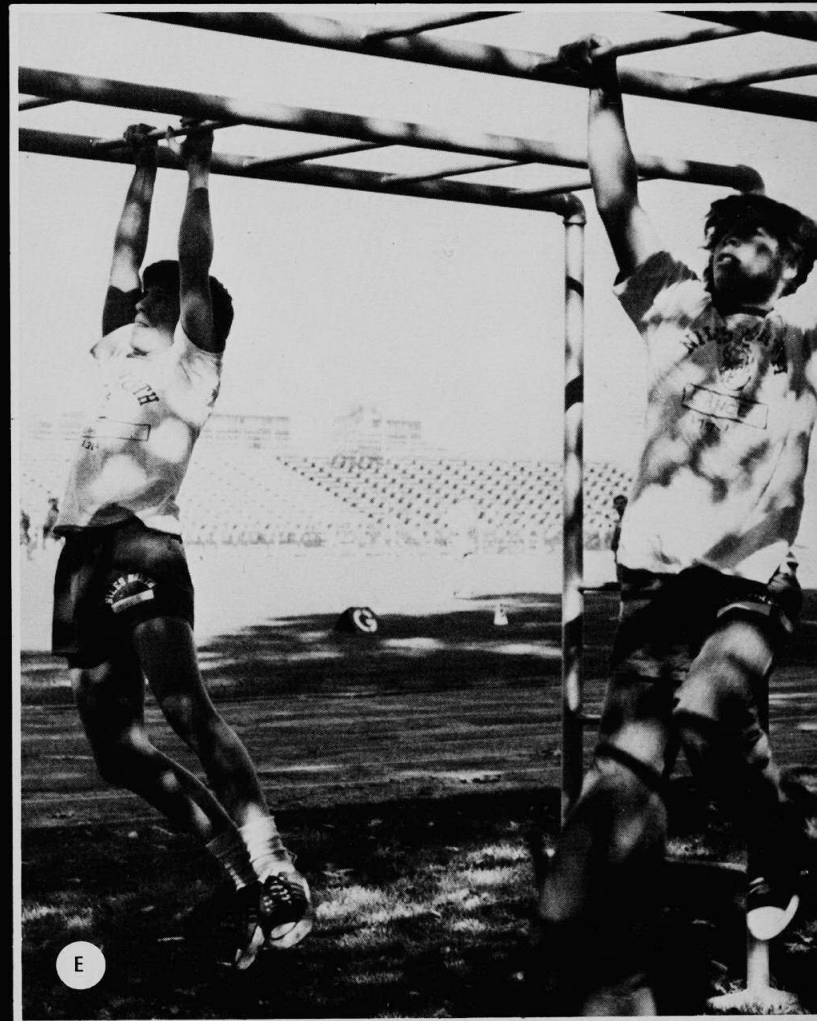

An important segment of the boys' physical education course included exercise. Speedball, soccer and team handball provided necessary stimulation and recreation.

Seniors who participated in the leaders program, aided underclassmen in understanding the principle movements behind sports such as volleyball, gymnastics and swimming.

Because it tends to break away from academic aspects of school life, the physical education program proved to be exciting for students who enjoy a change in curriculum.

- A. Seen through her opponent's tennis racket is junior Marilyn Miller as she uses a forehand swing to return the ball.
- B. Senior leader Sheri Kaplan helps sophomore Donna Karp execute a routine on the uneven parallel bars in girls P.E. class.
- C. Teamwork is the goal in field hockey as senior Ellen Terry, junior Estee Wolke and sophomore Nancy Jaman soon realize.
- D. Urging his gym class to make it over the high wall of the obstacle course is senior leader Dave Weingart.
- E. Trying to improve arm strength are seniors Ben Spiegel and Michael Lance as they attempt to cross the monkey bars.

DRIVER EDUCATION

Enthusiasm was dulled somewhat in the driver education program, when students participating realized the great impact the gas shortage would have on their future driving.

Through actual experience, use of simulator and classroom instruction, students learned the fundamentals of driving.

While acquiring defensive driving skills, they developed confidence behind the wheel. Simulators prepared classes to face hazards or serious obstacles.

Classroom instruction provided students with knowledge necessary to pass permit and driving tests. Students were informed through the use of a textbook and various films.

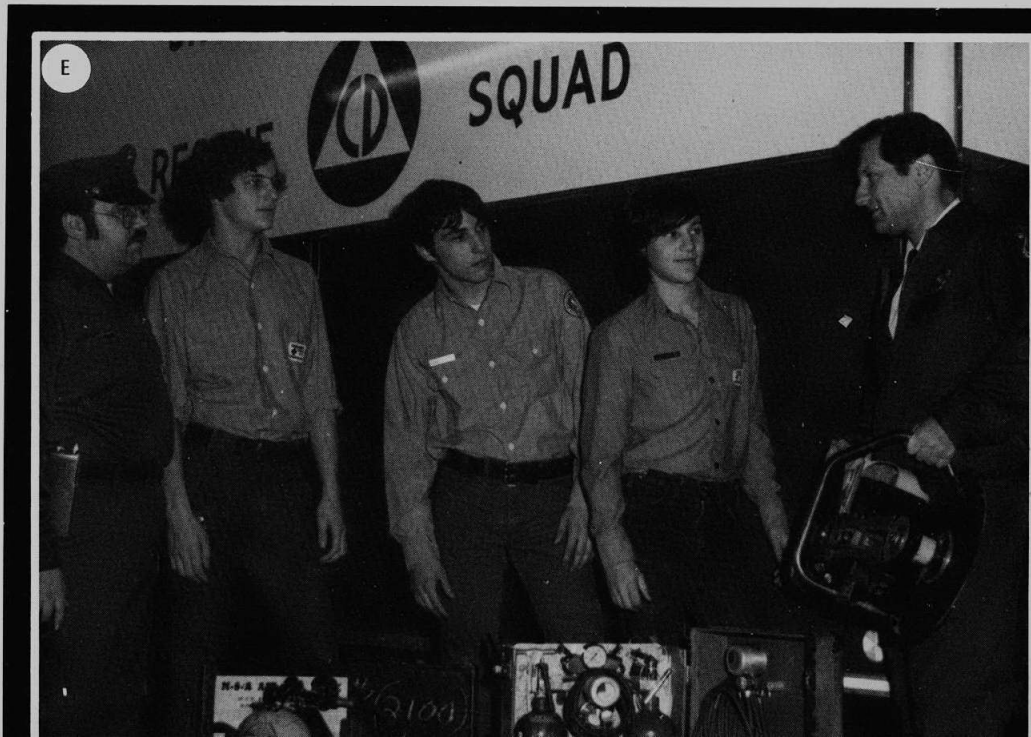

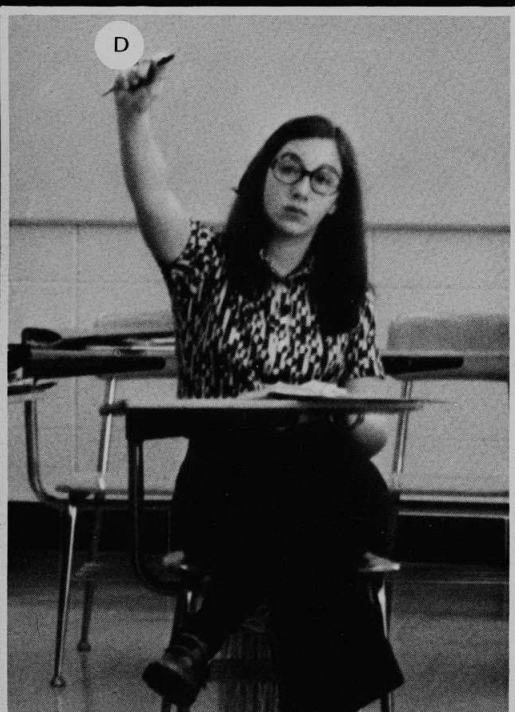

Teachers tried to impress upon the students the importance of the rules of the road and the ability to drive well.

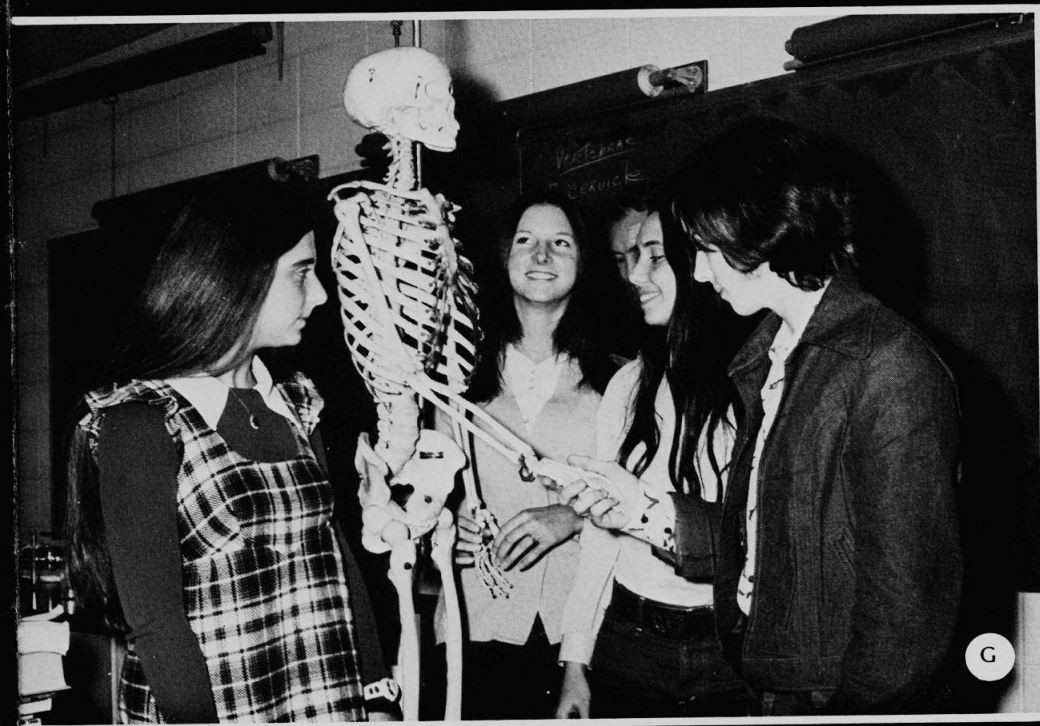

- A. While keeping an eye on the road, students in driver education adjust to the use of the simulators.
- B. "No, it's done this way," says Mr. Richard Casten, driver education instructor, as junior Michael Stern attentively looks on.

- B. As she sits in deep concentration, senior Sheryl Sibul examines her photo.
- C. Mrs. May Pietz shows senior Allen Feurstein and juniors Carey Weiman and Jay Lerman some equipment which must be used in her film class.
- D. Senior Sue Rivkin quickly responds to a question posed by her teacher.
- E. Through community service, senior Stuart Volkow and juniors Paul Zucker and Carey Weiman become involved with the civil defense rescue squad.

- I. As he searches for the exact information required, senior Art Levinson closely examines his books.

AUXILIARY PROGRAMMING

Often influenced by a cold, empty background, students strived to find ways to express themselves. Through activities many were given the opportunity to display their identity, to illustrate to others they were an individual among thousands of others at North.

While more students became active in a group such as Students for Israel, which endeavored to help the plight of millions, participation in groups such as cheerleaders and Vikettes declined. By redirecting their interests, students began to break stereotypes.

C. Piecing together a lay-out by scaling a picture is Joel Levy.

Portraits need typists! We need people to stay after school today! Don't all volunteer at once . . . The pictures didn't turn out. The deadline is tomorrow? . . . You're kidding! Things don't always go right, as the 1974 yearbook staff soon found out. The staff worked many long and hard hours preparing Saga '74. Seeing the book from the beginning, page by page, gave the staff an on-the-spot learning experience. Saga '74 has attempted to show how technology has taken over a great part of our lives. Without really being aware of all the technology around us, we are still able to maintain our identities and human feelings.

- D. While looking over their layouts, sophomores Jody Rein and Arlene Schiff discuss future plans for their section.

North Star

The North Star strived to be the voice of the student body. It expressed as clearly as possible the opinion of the majority of the students, at the same time informing the school and surrounding community of relevant issues.

With the aid of sponsor Maureen Armbruster, co-editors Cindy Block and Robin Bakal molded a

Quill And Scroll Calliope

The national honor society for journalism, Quill and Scroll, is a goal not easy to achieve. In order to be eligible, a student must have at least 200 column inches of material published in SAGA, North Star, or an outside paper.

Calliope consists of contributions of students compiled into a complete literary magazine. It is made possible through the efforts of its staff, working together to edit all materials and submit their own works.

The distinction of being selected as a National Honor Society member was granted to a small number of seniors on the basis of their scholastic ability, leadership qualities, and character. Chosen by a committee of teachers during junior year, these students met as a regular class and on occasion tutored other students.

This year seven North students were National Merit Scholarship Semi-finalists. They were chosen on the basis of high test scores in the National Merit Scholarship qualifying test.

Consisting of elected representatives and interested volunteers, Student Caucus met to decide the best way to promote school spirit and to appropriate the money earned by several vending machines. Their main fund drive of the year raised over $4,000 for the Forgotten Childrens' Fund. Money was also distributed among the Homecoming Committee, Senior Class Board, SAGA, and Students For Israel.

School Government is composed of administrators, teachers, parents, and students working together to improve the school. This year, one relevant goal was to improve the conditions of the east and west cafeterias.

Donating time, money, and material goods to charity was the main function of Hall D Council. Through various sales, they visited the Angel Guardian Orphanage as well as Holland School.

Acting as a consideration board for many school and course improvement proposals was the Educational Policy Development Committee (EPDC). During meetings, ideas were suggested, discussed, voted on and referred to the School Board, regardless of a negative or positive vote by the committee. The School Board evaluated these proposals, with the decisions of EPDC serving as an influence in the final outcome.

EPDC consisted of parents, teachers, administrators and students from all three Niles District high schools. Seniors Mindy Wolfe and Yak Lubowsky were chosen as the representatives of Niles North through a school-wide election.

PTSA was comprised of parents, teachers, and students striving to improve relations within the school and the surrounding community.

Twice monthly, board meetings were held to discuss issues which concerned members. Special programs, such as drug awareness and other related subjects, were planned to inform the community of situations which occurred at Northi during the school year.

One function of PTSA was to discuss topics which the School Board would later be voting upon. The opinions evolving from the discussion were then relayed to the School Board to help them in their policy-making procedures.

Class Board

Through a variety of sales, class boards raised funds to finance their year end programs.

Getting off to a good start, Freshman Class Board did well with their bake sale and licorice sale. Their major goal was to have a spring dance in which the whole school would attend.

Sophomore Class Board worked to raise money for an all-school sock hop. Selling lollipops, salami sticks, and having a concession stand at the basketball games were their main sources of income. They also helped charity by giving fifty dollars to Saint Jude's Children's Fund and helped Hall D Council with the Holland School clothing, food and toy drive.

Class Board

With the money they raised from selling candy canes, donuts and taffy apples, Junior Class Board sponsored films and the annual donkey basketball game. They devoted the rest of their time to planning the junior-senior class prom.

Senior Class Board planned the senior picnic, class gift and the class prank. They also raised money by sponsoring movies such as "Mash" and "Sounder", in order to give money to the Forgotten Children's Fund and support Homecoming.

The class boards did an excellent job of supporting and representing the entire school.

Timing and perfection were important elements to the crews involved in a production. Building and designing sets, making costumes, and working with sound and lighting were some of the many jobs Technical Services Club performed. Members of the club were responsible for the lighting of special programs at school. They also maintained the back stage equipment.

P. E. Leaders

By taking Leaders' Gym rather than the regular P.E. class, students were not only able to improve their athletic skills but also acquire a greater sense of leadership and responsibility. Although they had to work harder than someone following the traditional gym course, leaders were rewarded by being in class with others who shared their interests and abilities.

The ultimate goal of the Leaders' Gym Program is to prepare a student to assist a teacher in instructing a class. Leaders take attendance, referee during games, demonstrate skills, and help others. Those involved felt that leading was well worth the time and effort.

N Club was headed by a council of five members instead of a president as in the past. Despite this change, N Club's main goal still was to promote school spirit. They did this by sponsoring such activities as the Pro Wrestling Tournament. To become a member, it is necessary to have won a Varsity letter in a sport or to have been a manager of a team.

In addition to keeping and recording times at home swim meets, timers assisted referees in many other sports events. Their duties included flashing scores at gymnastic meets, acting as linesmen during volleyball games, and generally officiating at track and field, and cross-country.

Timers

One of the largest and busiest organizations in the school was the Girls' Athletic Association. They not only held co-ed nights, over-nighters, and an awards banquet, but also sponsored the all-school volleyball tournament. At the end of the year, charms were given for points earned.

Cheerleaders' pep and spirit did not go unnoticed this year as the freshman response to "Class Fight" echoed through the gym during the first pep assembly. With the encouragement of a winning season plus student spirit, the cheerleaders were given the opportunity to cheer at all athletic events.

Varsity Cheerleaders

Raising money for freshman uniforms and summer camp by working together was a long term goal of the cheerleaders.

To initiate the collection, the varsity cheerleaders received $35.00 for a ten minute routine performed at the Covenant Club's Big Ten Dinner Dance.

This year freshman cheerleaders cheered for all levels of swimming and wrestling as well as their own teams of football and basketball.

Enriched by the performance of the Vikettes at half-time were many home games this year. They created their own routines to a variety of musical numbers such as "Peter Gunn" and "Feeling Groovy." The marching band, directed by Dr. Lawrence Wathen, provided their accompaniment and entertainment for all.

This year the girls have been working desperately for new uniforms to wear at basketball games. As part of their effort, they sold "Happiness is a Viking Victory" spirit buttons. Bake sales and concession stands at several home basketball games also helped earn money.

Mrs. Monica Delrahim, a former pom-pon girl at De Paul University, helped the Vikettes create new routines. This was her first year as a sponsor for Vikettes. In addition, she was the sponsor for all three cheerleader squads.

SPECIAL PROGRAMMING

Computerization and today's fast-moving society made students seek new ways to have fun. Indeed, automation, war and political scandal brought out the best in Northi students.

The ceremony involved with traditional events, as shown by dwindling participation, was overshadowed by the Forgotten Children's fund and the Students for Israel fund drive.

People working to help their fellow citizens — this purpose took Northi students in a different direction and changed the traditional special events to something truly special.

Because of a week delay in starting school, the fall play took much more work and cooperation this year than ever before. This began during the summer when the cast and crew spent many long hours working and rehearsing.

Including a cast of four members, "The Glass Menagerie", directed by Mr. Fritz Fett and his assistant, Lynn Chausaw, was a difficult play to perform. The cast had to get emotionally involved in their roles.

This was a memory play about a boy looking back at his life before he walked out on his mother and sister, like his father had done previously. He remembers his crippled sister and her inability to cope with the real world, which caused her to eventually escape into her own world consisting of glass menagerie animals.

Laura and Jim dance alone together for the first time.

To dream about her daughter's future brings a gleam in her eyes as Amanda (Iris Goodfriend) sits outside with Tom (Ben Spiegel) gazing at the stars.

Jim (Gary Ruben) listens attentively as Laura (Debbie Lyons) spills out all the problems of her past and talks about her glass menagerie collection.

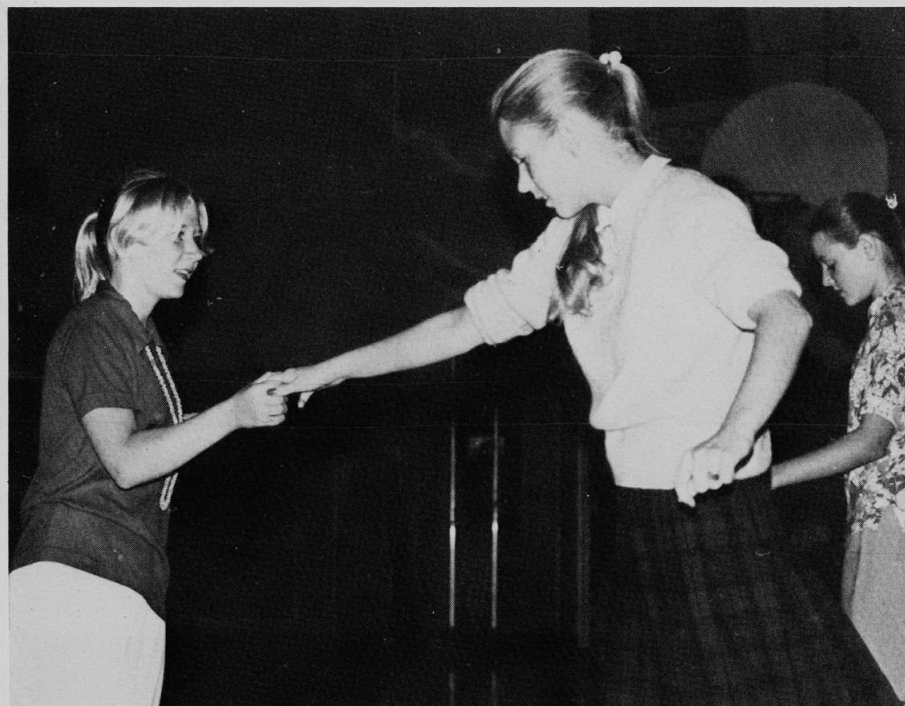

Carol Ley carefully prepares Iris Goodfriend's make-up and also gives her encouragement before her performance on opening night.

Crazy socks and old magazines help to create a 50's atmosphere at the dance, as shown by Carol Patikin and three of her friends.

Two energetic freshmen, Gigi MacShane and Lisa English, find it easy to boogie together to the old-time records played at the hop.

The tradition of a sock-hop is displayed by shoes thrown on the gymnasium floor.

Few come to jitterbug at spirit promoting sock hop.

Long skirts, pony tails, rolled up blue-jeans and saddle shoes brought back the spirit of the Freshmen Sock Hop. Following the tradition of a sock hop of the 50's, shoes were removed and records from that era were played while couples danced.

Originated by senior Mark Hefter and sponsored by Dean Ramirez, the dance was to serve as a promotion of school spirit for the freshmen class. Lack of spirit yielded a turnout of about only thirty students. However, those who attended felt the idea was a success. Most of them thought that a freshman dance was a good way to get to know fellow classmates and make new friends.

Music from the 50's is enjoyed by Dan McDade and Gigi MacShane.

Getting off to a good start, Homecoming '73, Tame the B-East, began with one of the best pep assemblies Northi ever had.

Perking up Viking spirit with an enthusiastic speech, Coach Houlihan undoubtedly had the attention of every student present. Former Chicago Bear center, Mike Pyle was guest speaker at the assembly. He also generated spirit with a pep talk encouraging students to support the Vikings.

The Vikettes and varsity cheerleaders presented their original routines. Following that was the traditional class cheer. Everyone was so involved that the response was almost too much to handle. The big moment came when it was announced that senior Nancy Grahn was elected queen.

A faculty comedy band and a film about homecoming preparation added to the fun. For the first time, "home-made" movies were enjoyed by everyone as they witnessed some of the preparation behind Homecoming '73.

Of course it wouldn't have been homecoming without the floats that displayed the theme, "Tame the B-East". Working their hardest, students spent the evenings of homecoming week preparing for the upcoming parade.

For the first time in three years not a drop of rain fell; the sun was out; it was a beautiful day. Cars and floats lined up early Saturday morning at Devonshire Center waiting to be judged and hoping to win a prize. Leading the parade was a police escort and Mayor Albert Smith. The Vikettes led the Northi marching band. Also for the first time the band from the opposing school, Niles East, took part in the parade. Included in the procession was the queen's float and other decorated floats, cars, and bicycles. Bringing up the tail end of the parade was a walking float created by the administrators.

Petal paper aids Shelly Sutker to create a winning monument.

Assembling the dummy that appeared on their float "Unity" are Lone Richards, Mike Samuels, Rhonda Behr and Sharon Lipschutz.

Sophomore Larry Steffens adds a few finishing touches to the "Friendship" float.

Working late to complete the float is sophomore Debbie Richmond.

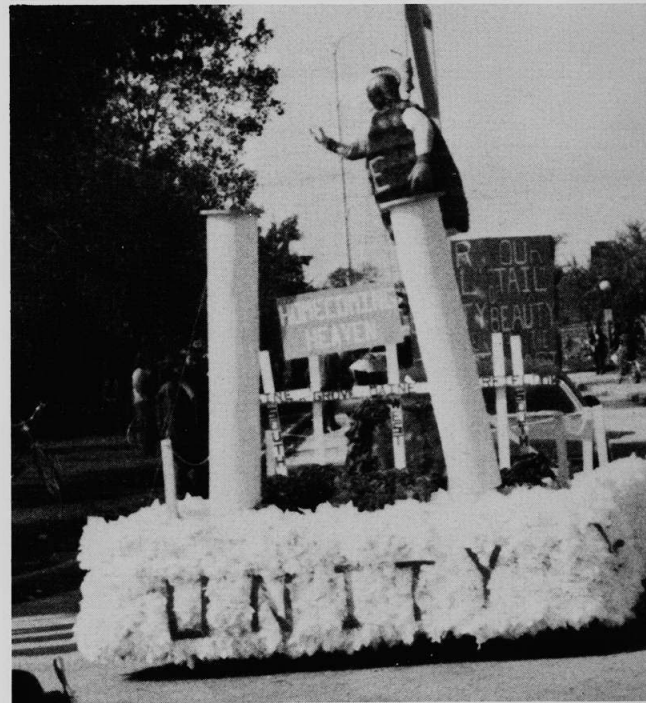

Marci Levin carefully staples pieces on her float while Steve Malone and Angelo Colantonio offer their counsel.

Ingredients for successful parade: hard work, sunshine

Working together is not the only essential ingredient for constructing a winning float, but it is also a necessity when building a pyramid.

Unity, the key word on the winning float, also helped the Vikings become victors.

While they ride by, Homecoming Queen Nancy Grahn and the members of her court smile at onlookers.

On their way to cheer on a Viking victory, student caucus members watch an enemy Trojan grimace as the Viking prepares to Tame the B-East.

After the parade, alumni met in the school cafeteria for a brunch. Talking with old friends and reminiscing about previous homecomings, helped to enliven the afternoon's festivities.

Kicking off against Niles East, the homecoming game was under way at two o'clock. Viking support was tremendous and really helped toward North's victory.

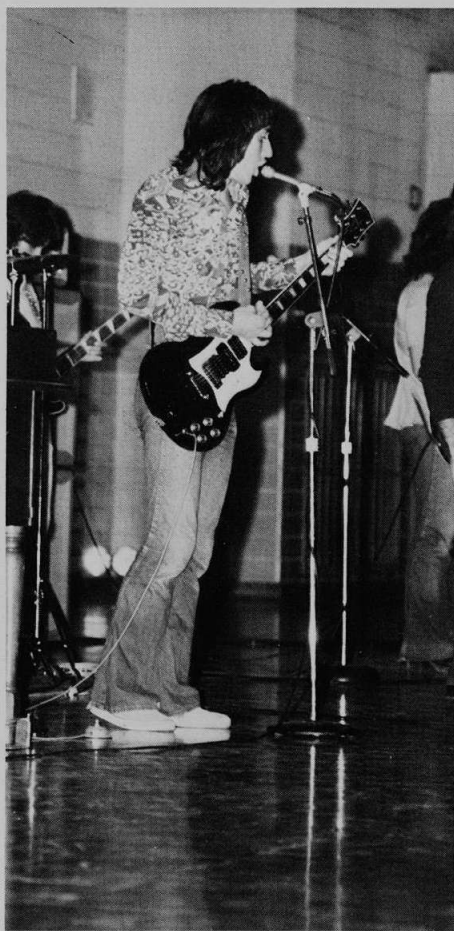

Halftime entertainment was provided by the Vikettes and the marching band. Then Paul Kohlenbrenner, the senior class president, presented queen Nancy Grahn with a souvenir football signed by all the players. The floats and decorated cars were displayed on the track around the football field.

Ending the day and this year's homecoming, the Senior Class Board sponsored a dance in the gymnasium. Entertainment was supplied by "Jamestown Massacre", a well-known Chicago group.

Large crowds of Viking fans came out to support their team against the opposing Niles East Trojans.

Coach John Cress anxiously waits to run on the field to measure 10 yards.

A fairy tale with talking animals portrayed by Niles North students was presented in the children's play, "Peter Rabbit". A crow, squirrel, hedgehog, rabbits, mice, plus a grandpa, grandma and granddaughter comprised the cast of actors and actresses.

Proving that disobedience to parents can lead to disaster and possibly even a spanking, Peter Rabbit managed to get into all kinds of trouble. But he helped out a friend and was saved from Farmer McGregor's wrath.

Singing and dancing added to the enjoyment of the story. Some of the younger children in the audience sang "Three Blind Mice" along with the characters. A special performance was held for local school children.

Originality, talent, and lots of hard work were the ingredients for this year's Norsecapades, "Put a lid on it!" The script, chosen by the materials board and the directors, was composed of a variety of creative student materials, well-known comedy acts, and popular songs.

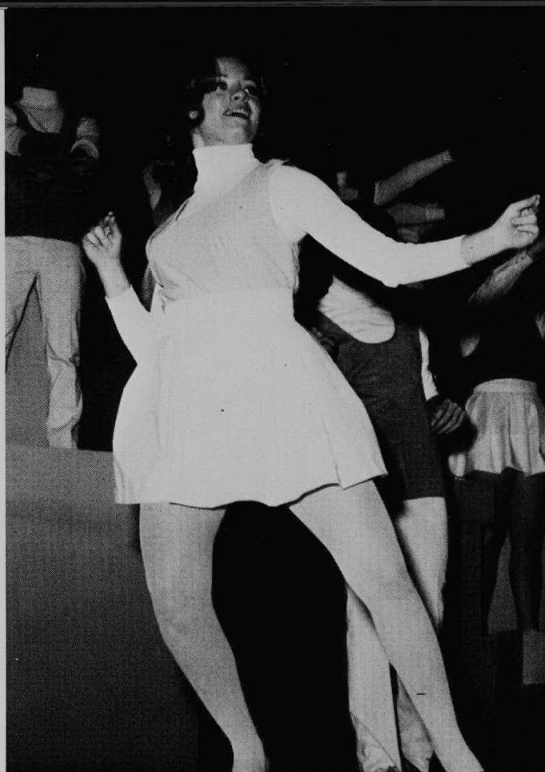

Airplane difficulties and shoplifting, as well as skits about North's cafeteria, library, and past strike provided much entertainment for those in the audience. Also included in the script were such controversial topics as Women's Liberation and abortion, which added a more serious note to the production.

The efforts of a cast of fifty-four and all of the different crews made this year's Norsecapades an enjoyable experience for all those viewing it.

Norsecapades cast, crews work to 'put a lid on it!'

Junior Debbie Lyons compares the past to the present while portraying a teacher.

The opening number of the show brought senior Jeanne Bavaro on stage to dance to the music.

In a more serious scene, Greg Edelman sings to the audience.

Norsecapades '73 included the original scripts of many comedy skits such as the one above where Debbie Lyons employs Paul Shapiro to find her husband.

"I'm a big boy now," claimed Lynn Chausow after exhibiting the superiority of a five year old by pushing a building block onto the stage.

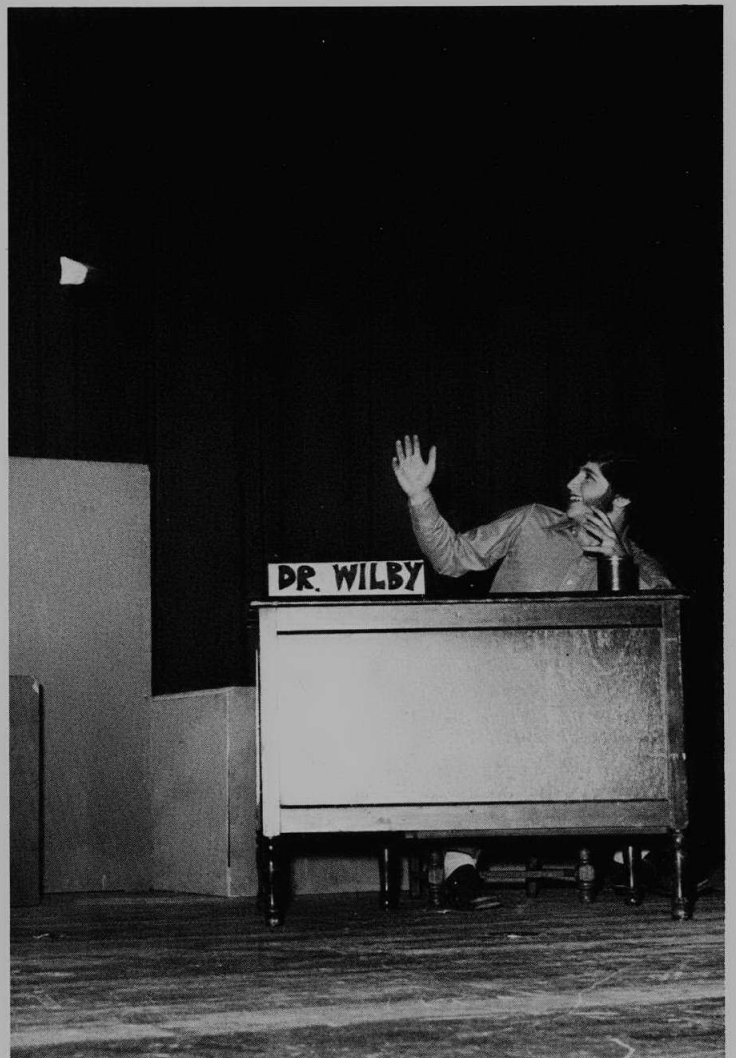

Through the Rock 'n' Roll Classroom skit, cast members of Norsecapades '73 were able to depict a normal day at Niles North.

"Broads ain't people" is a common consensus of opinion among an all-boy chorus line of male chauvinists.

Television commercials have a great effect upon our daily lives and way of thinking, as shown by senior Diane Temkin's secret rendezvous with the man in her toilet bowl.

Bombarded by student demands hurled from all sides, senior David Brandwein portrays Dr. Wilby during a student strike.

Senior Paul Kohlenbrener consoles himself after a traumatic love affair.

The Norsecapades' chorus generates the spirit of the holiday season as they sing, "We need a little Christmas."

Passengers aboard the airliner panic when the pilot announces slight difficulties with the airplane's mechanical system.

Although a heavy snowstorm plagued the evening of the annual December holiday concert, a large and responsive audience appeared, according to student performers who participated in the event.

Performing in the concert were all the groups in the music department. Chamber Choir and Choral Union were directed by Mr. Frank Winkler. Girls' Glee and the Viking Male Chorus, under the direction of Mr. Stanley Carey, also performed. The Concert Band, directed by Dr. Lawrence Wathen and the Orchestra, with Mr. Ted Kaitchuck as conductor, also added to the concert.

A wide variety of songs were featured in the program. Some highlights of the evening included two different arrangements of "Greensleeves" performed by the Concert Band and Orchestra. Also adding to the program's success was the production of "Dixie" as sung by all the combined choruses in the music department.

Even though the Viking Male Chorus had few members this year, their selections also brightened and added spirit to the evening.

Signaling the start of a selection, Dr. Lawrence Wathen conducts the Concert Band.

Girls' Glee brightens up the holiday concert and brings the audience into the Christmas spirit with their performance of "Silver Bells."

Attentively following their music, five students in the clarinet section of the Concert Band are careful to play in unison.

Anticipating the cue to begin the next number, members of the Concert Band watch Dr. Wathen as they turn their music to the correct page.

The shiny bass clarinet presents no problems for senior Howard Runge as he performs skillfully.

Despite small audiences, North's second drama production of the year "The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man in the Moon Marigolds" achieved great success.

Contributing to the quality of the play were a cast of five, a variety of hardworking crews, and much time and effort. Mr. Fred Fett, Ms. Ellen Lees, a student teacher, and senior Wendy Rosen directed the play.

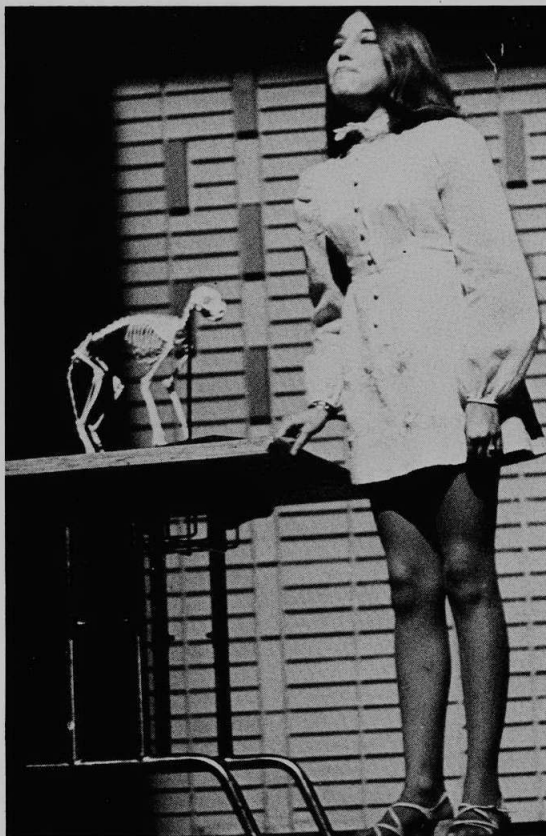

Due to the illness of cast member, Dawn Packer, as Ruth, Ms. Lees substituted for her on the second night of the performance. Ms. Lees portrayed this part a few years ago.

Pleased with the outcome of the play, Mr. Fett entered the second act in the Illinois High School Association Tournament.

"Where's Daisy Mae?" "I have the wrong make-up on." "My clothes don't fit," were the frantic cries of those involved in North's spring musical, L'il Abner.

A production of concentration, diligence and long hours of hard work, the characters in Dogpatch U.S.A. participated in humorous episodes of satire.

As crew members constructed the quaint setting of a small town, the cast created a more realistic atmosphere by attempting to utilize a southern dialect.

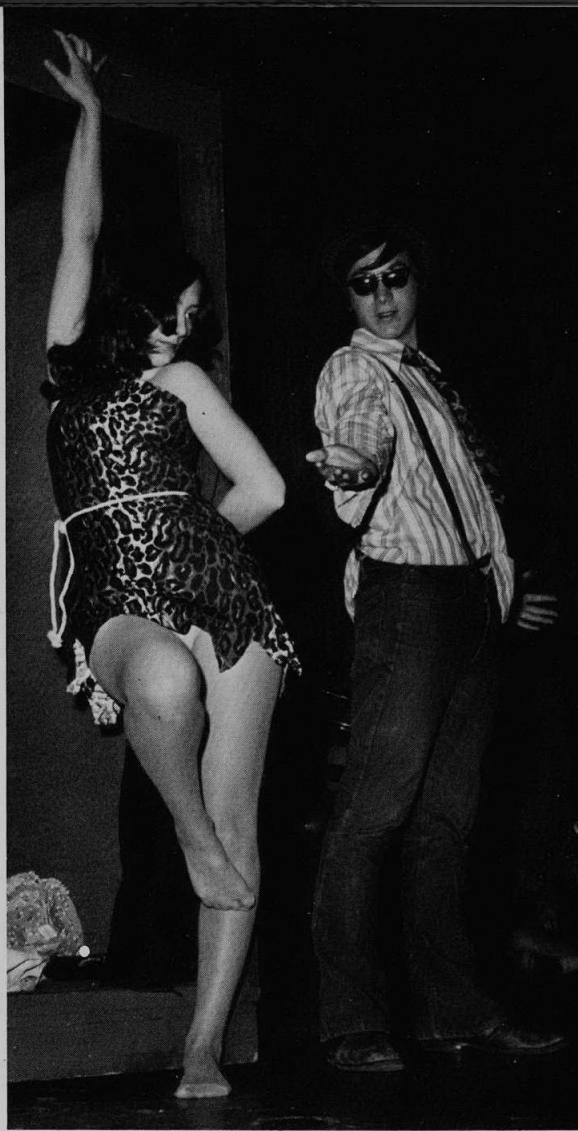

Through Daisy Mae's efforts to hog-tie L'il Abner, Greg Edelmam dislocated his thumb. With the illness of Mr. Frank Winker, musical director, cast and crews had their doubts about the success of the show.

With the help of Mr. Rich Green, Stu Leach, and Mr. Fred Fett, director, the show did go on to be an enjoyable production.

For the third consecutive year, Student Caucus sponsored a fund raising drive for the mentally retarded children at the Lincoln-Dixon State Institution.

Senior co-chairmen Beth Byster, Kerry Teplinsky and Mindy Wolfe scheduled many activities to raise money for the Forgotten Children's Fund.

Performing during the school day, a few members of Second City, a local comedy group, got Northri into the spirit of the drive.

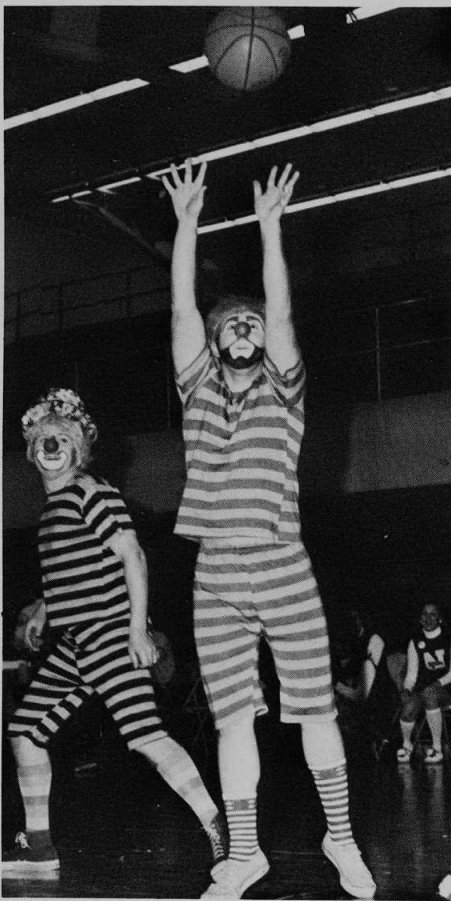

At half-time of a basketball game, the Chicago Police Department Clowns challenged the Vikettes to a basketball game. Later they collected money from the fans and at a Norsecapades show.

An auction hosted by Connie Szerszen, WIND radio disc jockey and a skating party at the Axle Pollar Rink also helped raise money. Canning in AAA's and around the neighborhood brought much of the $4,100 total collected.

Flowers, music and soft lights made Prom '73, "Only the Beginning," a night that would be difficult to forget. Sponsored by Junior Class Board, prom was held in the Grand Ballroom of the Covenant Club in Chicago.

Entertainment provided by the Hal Erwin Orchestra set the mood for this special evening. While not dancing, couples spent time socializing over punch and petit-fours.

Highlighting the evening was the coronation of seniors Mike McDade and Mary Schroeder as prom king and queen.

"Only the Beginning" signified the end of another school year.

To many seniors, it also meant the culmination of their four years of high school life at Niles North and the beginning of many new experiences ahead.

Potpourri of activities highlights 1973-74 school year

Besides the well-known traditions at Niles North, a variety of special programs and events occurred during the year.

Spurred on by the Middle East war, Students of Israel worked diligently to earn $8,000 to send an ambulance to Israel.

Car washes, candy sales, a garage sale and donations from other schools were a few of the many ways by which they earned the money for their goal.

To culminate their drive, SFI planned a concert where they presented an $8,000 check to Skokie mayor Albert Smith.

Niles North's "It's Academic" team placed second in their competition against two other Chicago area high schools. The team consisted of captain Larry Kinoshita, Jeff Olian and Harry Schoenburg.

Because they were on the team last year, Larry and Jeff conducted this year's audition session. Answering the highest number of questions, Harry qualified for a place on the team sponsored by Mr. Jim Vandelinder, English teacher.

An appearance by Miss Gwendolyn Brooks, poet laureate of Illinois, was one of the highlights of the school year. Coordinators of the program, Ms. Pat McGuiness, Mrs. Ellen Shapiro and Mr. James Olsen, Hall C principal, felt that it would be an enriching experience for students to meet and listen to a contemporary poet.

During the program, Miss Brooks explained her poetic philosophy and later recited her works.

This year's District Orchestra concert was held at Niles West. Mr. Ted Kaitchuck, orchestra leader at Niles North and Niles West, directed the program.

The District Orchestra consisted of the members of all three Nilehi orchestras.

North's senior Alan Feuerstein was chosen to be District soloist. He played Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto in D Major.

The team of Jeff Olian, captain Larry Kinoshita and Harry Schoenburg wait to answer questions during their television appearance on "It's Academic."

Striving to reach their $8,000 goal, dedicated members of Students for Israel work hard and efficiently to scrub cars at their car wash.

Coffee pots, wigs, clothes and other household items were sold at the Students for Israel's garage sale which raised over $1,000.

Paulette Herbstman extends her gratitude to Miss Gwendolyn Brooks for coming to Niles North and presenting an excellent program.

With expression, emotion and feeling, Miss Gwendolyn Brooks recites some of her famous poetry to students and faculty members.

Paying close attention to his music and the director, freshman Matthew Eisenstein plays his cello during the district concert.

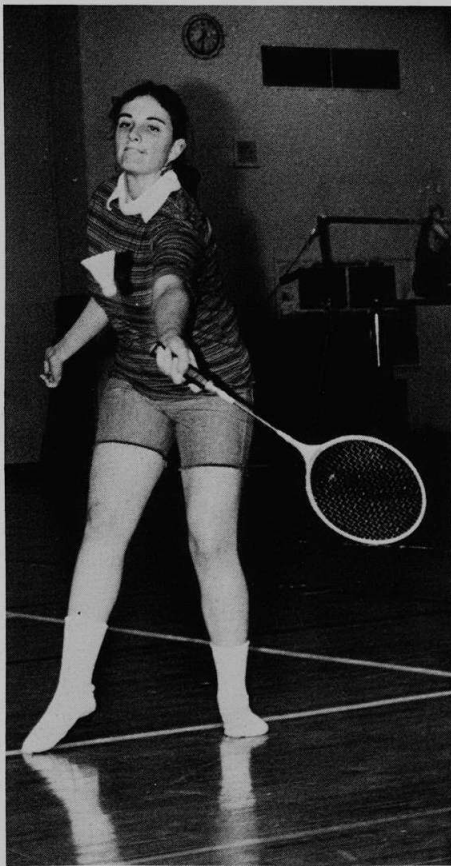

Much practice is necessary before a performance in the District Orchestra Concert as shown by senior Eric Eisenstein playing the violin.

Giving physical rather than mental exercise, the Girls' Athletic Association provided athletic involvement for both boys and girls three times during the year on co-ed nights.

Students found enjoyment in volleyball, badminton and basketball games. All of the gymnastic equipment was free to use including the trampoline. Recreational swimming in the pool was open all night long and the ping pong table was set up in the cafeteria.

Co-ed nights gave a chance for some to play against coaches and teachers in an informal situation. It also gave boys and girls a chance to compete on the same team or against each other.

Always a success with students, co-ed night was something to look forward to over the long week-end. It provided fun and relaxation, along with a chance to spend more time with friends.

Four years of learning, growing and working together have come to an end. As students realized graduation was a time for parting, tears mixed with happiness were apparent during the commencement exercises.

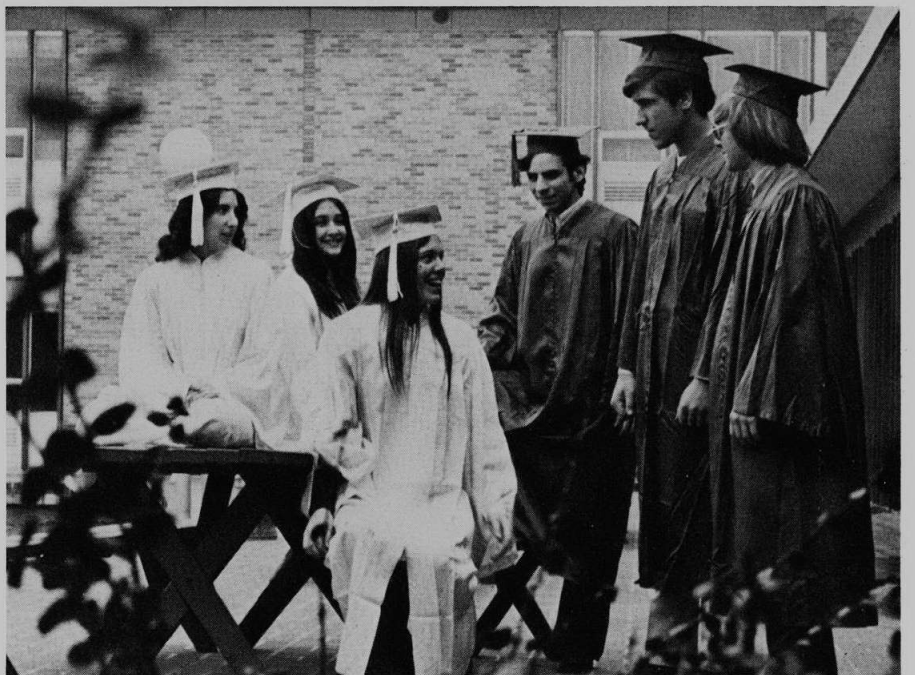

Graduation. For many it simply meant going from one school to another, encountering more hard work and more fun times. For others, careers began, a completely new lifestyle emerged.

The class of '74 was indeed special. With them came a new superintendent, a new method of scheduling and new teaching procedures. They were the beginnings of a new breed of Northi student, and although influenced by computers and machines, it is the people they will remember. The lasting friendships made during their years in high school will allow these memories to live on.

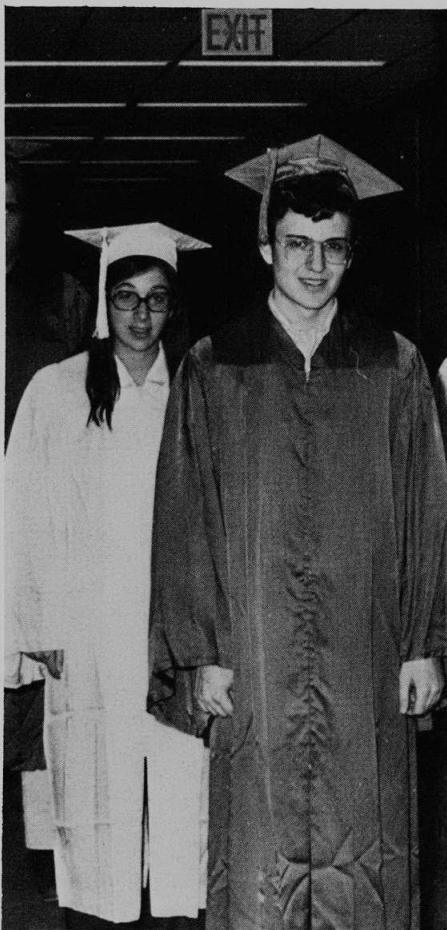

Four years of work, experiences end at graduation

Anxious seniors in caps and gowns march onto the football field. The important day so many have waited for has finally arrived.

Memories of their now past high school days are the topic of discussion for a group of students socializing before the commencement ceremonies.

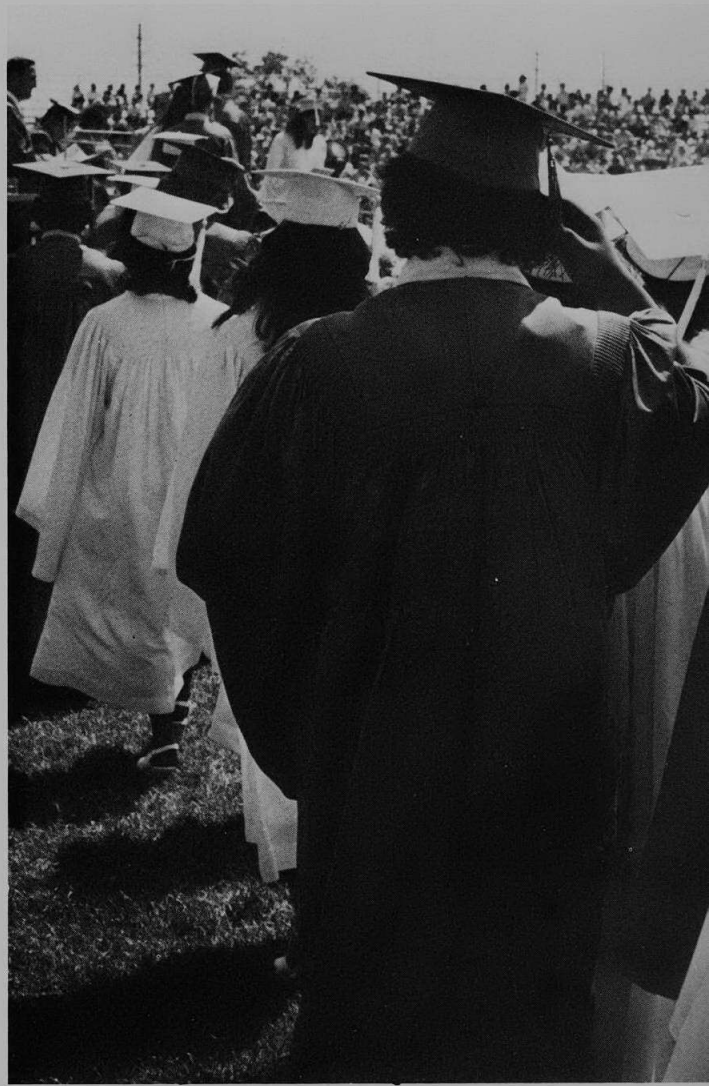

Sue Rivkin and Jeff Olian walk down the hall one last time before graduation.

Wondering where their future endeavors will take them, Jeff Olian and Bruce Koch look toward the door leading out of Niles North and into the future.

To make sure everything is perfect for this special day, Elaine Weinstein checks to make sure the collar of Sue Rivkin's gown is straightened correctly.

Seniors wait impatiently for their names to be announced so they may receive their diplomas.

Hurriedly filing out from the commencement exercises, graduates with diplomas in hand can not wait to take off their caps and gowns and congratulate their friends.

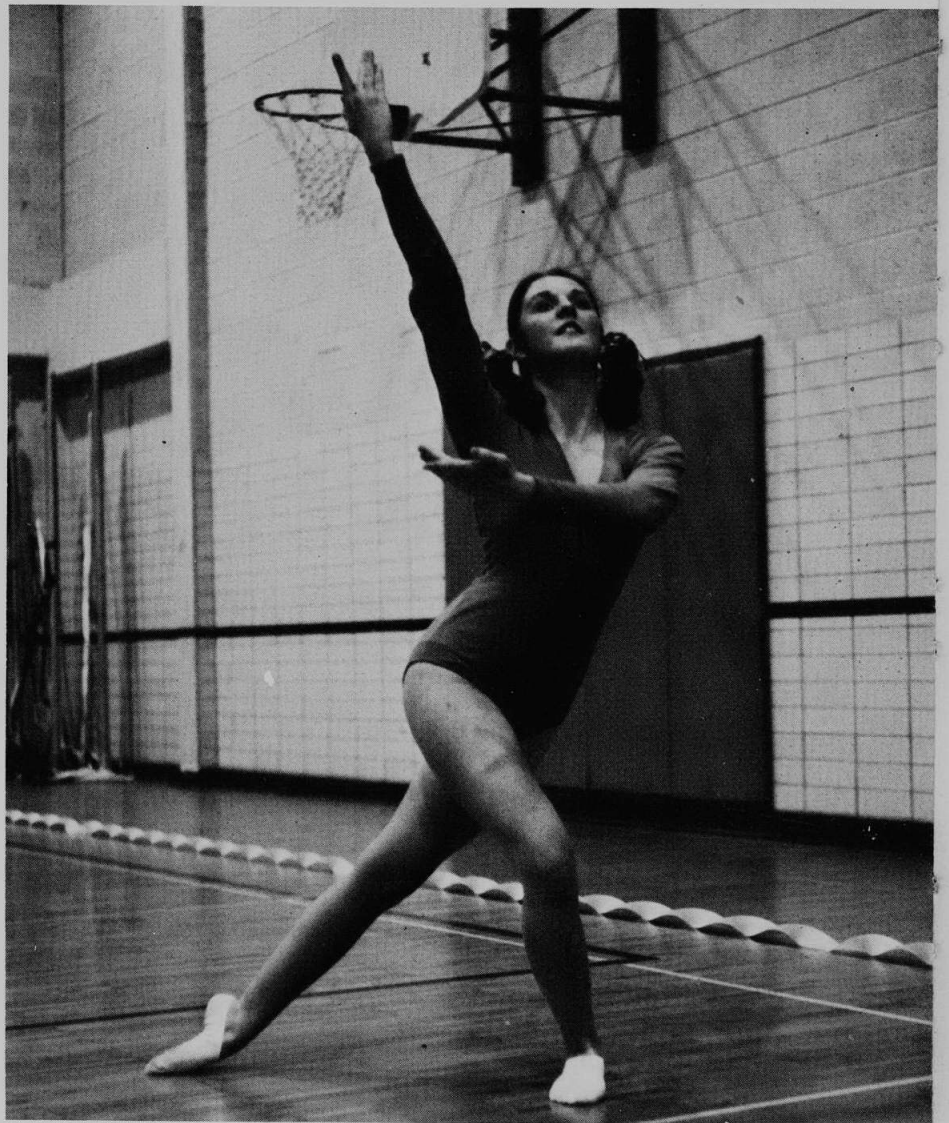

Bruce Horgan and Jeff Olian offer each other good luck wishes for the future.

WORKOUT

What makes a winner?

Machines seem to play a greater role in creating winners each year. In training, the Hercules and pitching machines have become vital aids. As old devices were not accurate enough, the computerized world around us forced Northi to purchase a more precise electronic timer.

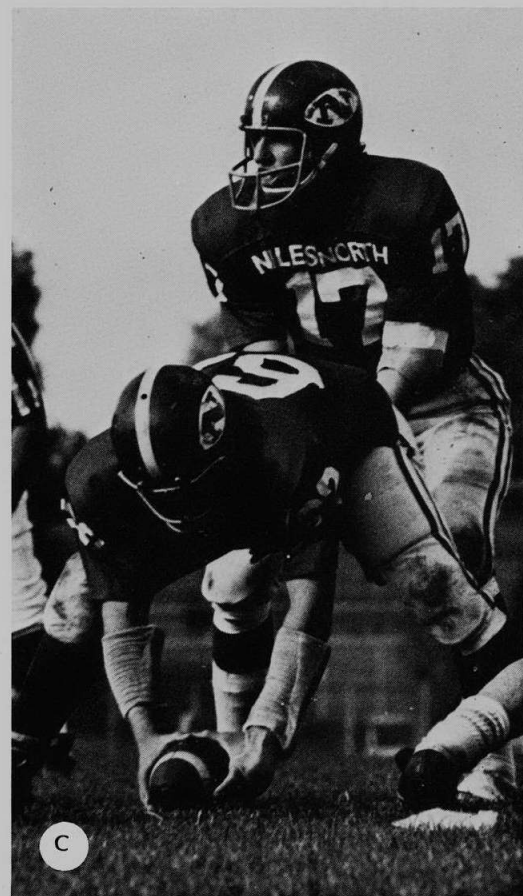

Though these technical devices are important in sports, athletes find that much hard work is still necessary for success. As Northi becomes more computerized, individual drive and determination still create winners.

VARSITY FOOTBALL

Compiling the best Varsity record in the history of Niles North, the Vikings have established themselves as contenders in the CSL and have brought new life to the football program this season.

In his premiere season, Head Coach Frank Houlihan has stirred up school spirit as it has never been before. He believes a winning tradition must be set up before fans should show support.

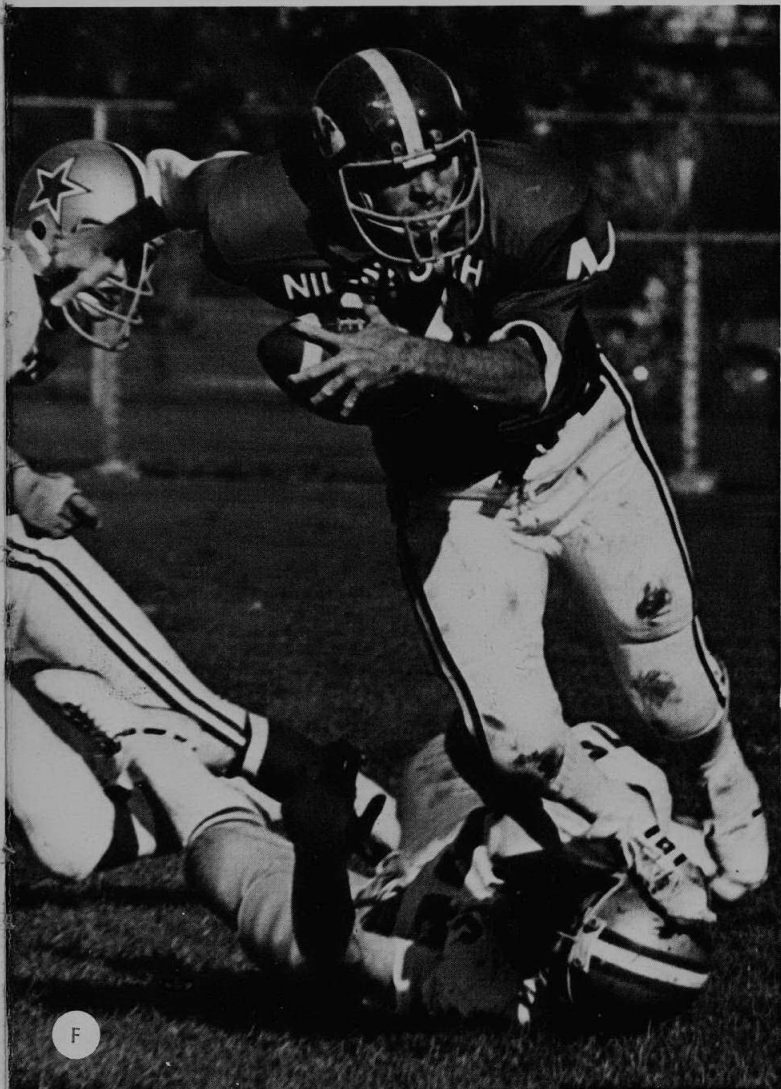

Coach Houlihan attributes the team's success to his assistant coaches. But most of all he credits this success to the leadership of his senior athletes.

It was a season of All-Conference honors for seniors Paul Blakey, Sean Bowlen, captain Dan Weldy, and junior Bob Neuhaus. All three seniors were also named Chicago Tribune Golden Helmets.

With great improvement during the season, the team has a bright future, said Coach Casten.

FRESHMAN FOOTBALL

Establishing a winning tradition on the lower levels which could be carried throughout the coming seasons was the goal of head football coach Frank Houlihan for the freshman teams. By compiling a 4-3 season record the coaches goal was achieved.

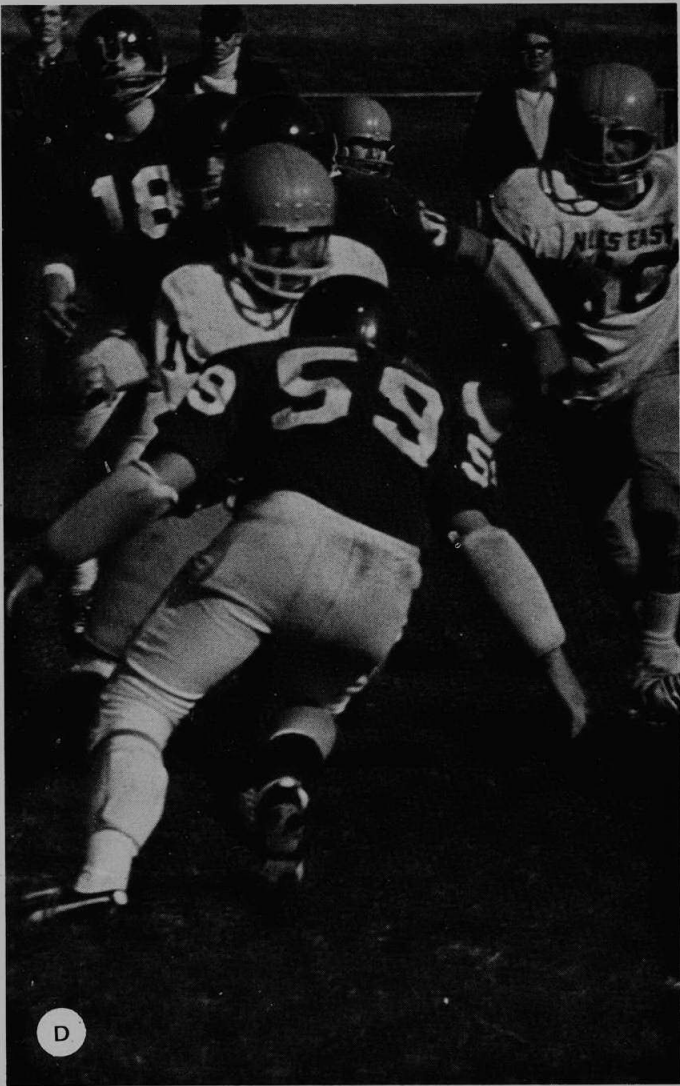

Led by the continued efforts of freshman Larry Olshan, Glen Norberg, Larry Rhum and co-captains Bruce Pivar and Ken Blakey, the Frosh A Vikings had the best personnel in the CSL, according to freshman coach Jeff Spies.

"When we scored first we believed in ourselves, and when we believed in ourselves, we were unstoppable," said Coach Spies. In the three games the A team lost, the opponent scored first.

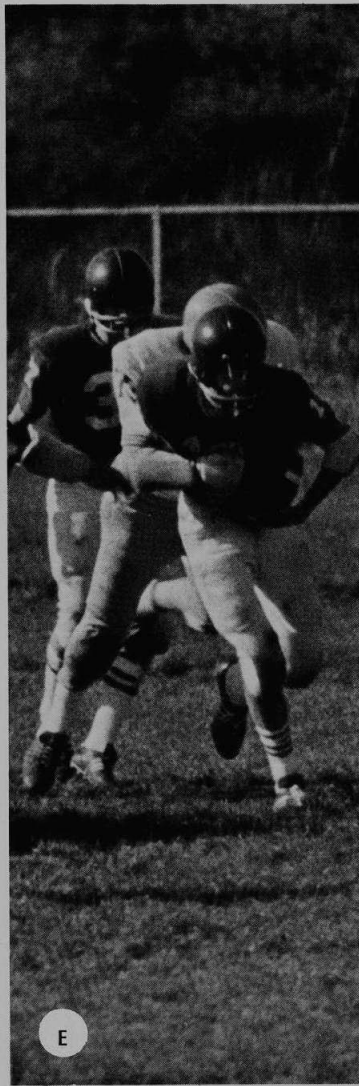

The Frosh B team finished the season with a 2-1-3 record. An 8-6 victory over Niles West High School lighted the season. Freshman Daniel Ley was selected MVP.

According to Coach John Ramirez, the Freshman B team was the most spirited bunch in ten years.

CROSS-COUNTRY

With a season record of 2-9, the Viking harriers placed eleventh in the CSL South Division.

Coach Don Waddell felt the team was improved over last year, though their place in conference could have been better. Injuries, illness and lack of student support hurt the team.

Seniors John Kuhnle and Kerry Riemer were the Varsity team captains. John was also chosen most valuable player.

Because there were too few boys on the sophomore team, many meets had to be forfeited.

The Vikings were led this year by one of the biggest scoring threats in the conference, their co-captain and MVP, Steve Goebel. He broke the all-time North scoring record set in 1969 by Mike Sachs by scoring 753 points. He also was the MVP in two different tournaments, the Niles East Invitational and the Niles North Invitational.

Although Goebel was the leading scorer, the team could never have been so successful without the services of seniors Sean Bowlen, Steve Anderson and co-captain Brian Wolf.

Fine crowds were in attendance at every game to cheer on their Vikings. Their spirit and presence spurred the team on to a six game winning streak at one point in the season. Their support enabled the Vikings to compile an 18-6 record during regular season play, which broke another Niles North record.

As many excellent gymnasts graduated last year, this year's Varsity program was in a process of rebuilding.

Seniors Rob Waldman, Scott Goldman, Scott Frumm, Ed Grossman, Wayne Williams, and Greg Wolflick led the squad to a respectable fourth place finish in the CSL and a 5-4 record. Grossman, Goldman, Frumm and Wolflick participated in district competition.

Highlighting the season was a meet against Niles East. According to Coach Turpin, the teams were equally matched and Niles North won in the last relay.

Closing the season with a 5-2 record, the girls' tennis team placed second in the CSL South Division. Coach Mary Alfus had expected an improved season and was not at all disappointed.

Most consistent high scorers were juniors Robin Lewis and Estee Wolke. Sophomore Erin Kleifield was the high singles scorer.

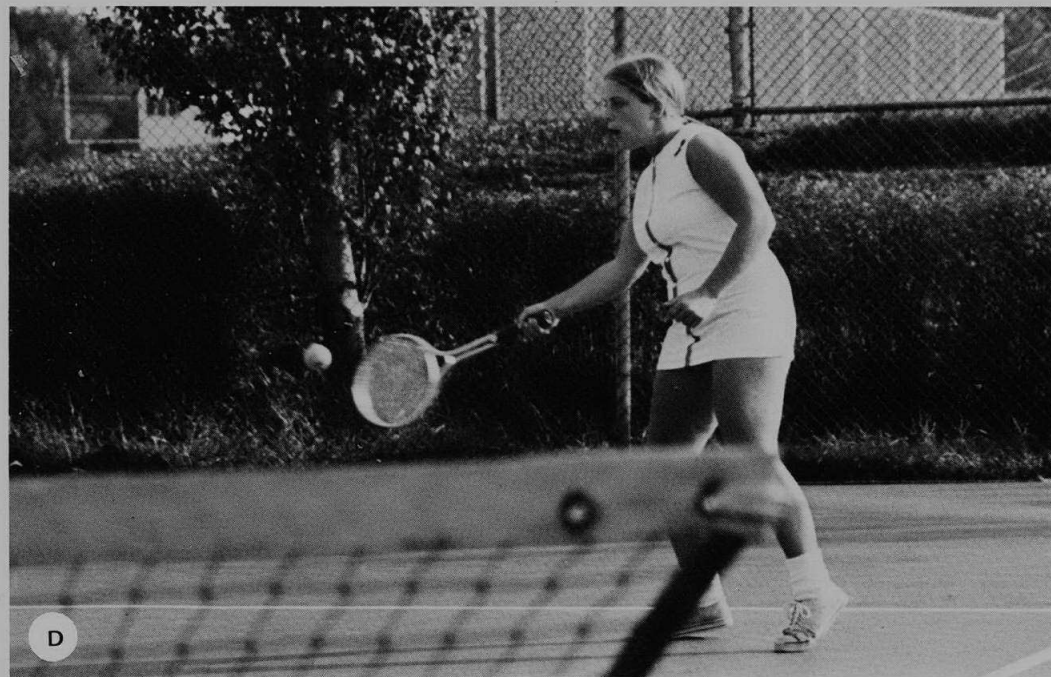

A positive attitude helped the girls this season, said Coach Alfus. The new tennis courts were also beneficial in drilling.

VOLLEYBALL, BADMINTON

Enthusiasm prevailed as the girls' volleyball and badminton teams worked diligently towards a rewarding season.

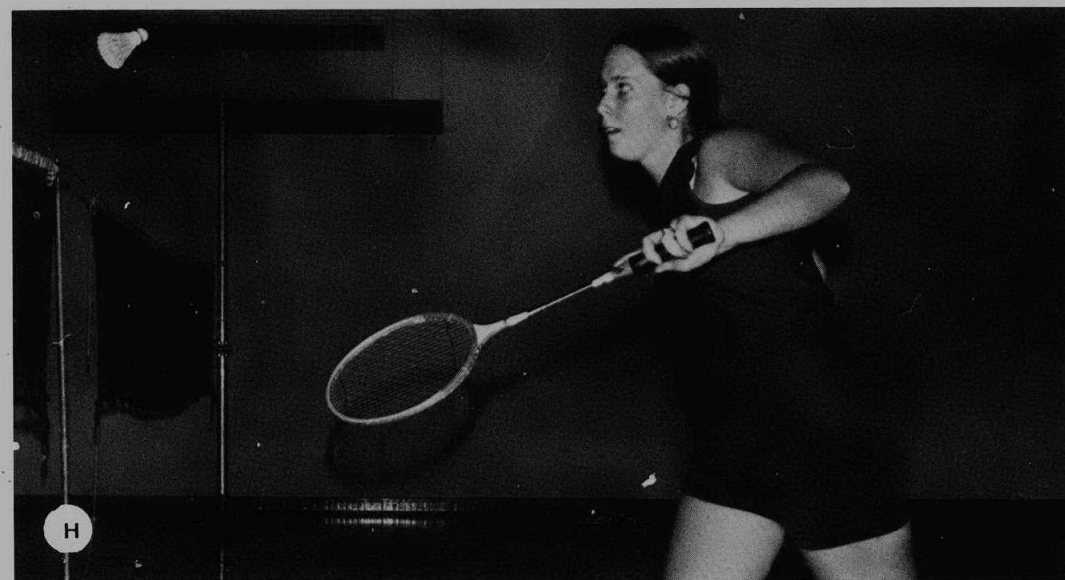

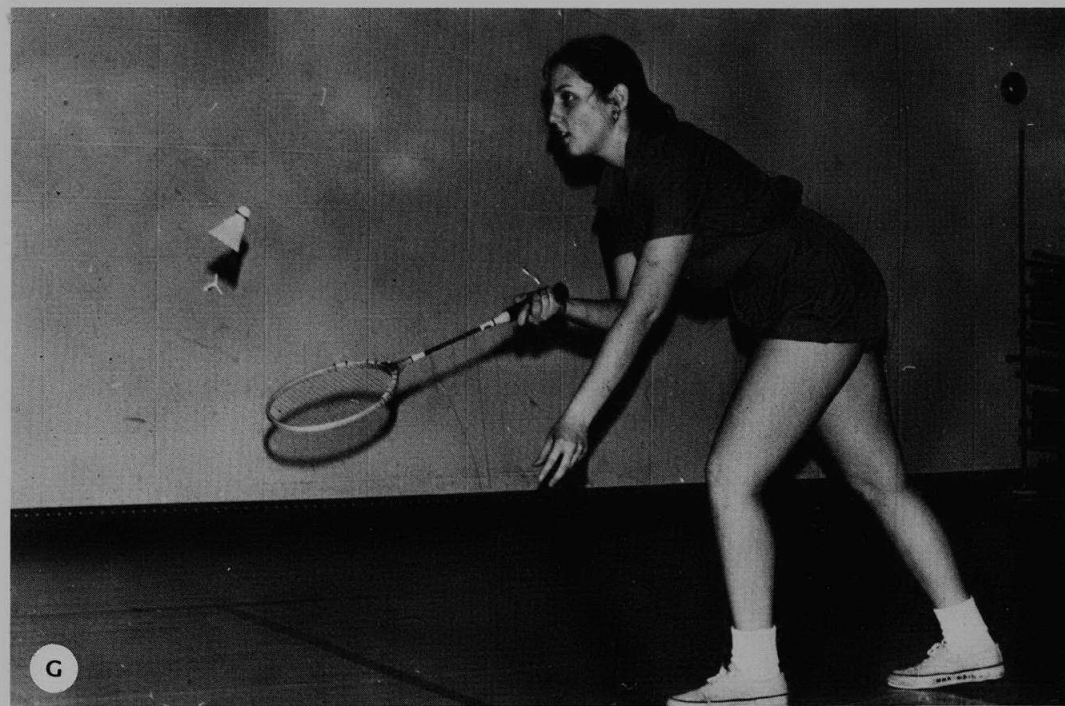

Great interest in volleyball created a need for a girls' volleyball team at North. Although their varsity conference record was 4-4 and their J.V. record was 5-3, the team felt that they had a good season. Their greatest challenge was playing Maine West. The team did not win, but felt that they did extremely well and played their best game.

Coach Elda Scaramella, quite pleased with the season's outcome, felt that credit should go to the entire team. Co-captains Jackie Smith, Marge Kozuch and Karen Stuckmann's high spirits led the team to a successful season.

The badminton teams' expectations for a winning season were high. Defeating Maine West, their co-champions last year, gave the season a good outlook.

The team feared that the loss of last year's top players would weaken them however, this year's experienced players successfully took up the gap.

Coach Mary Alfus' greatest goal was to develop a strong J.V. team in order to guarantee a powerful team for next year.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

In their first year at Niles North, the girls' basketball team missed placing second in their division by three points. Though the girls competed against long established teams and practiced on non-regulation size courts, they had a successful season.

With increasing enthusiasm, the girls' track team worked to improve over last year's record. During the season, the girls developed basic track skills.

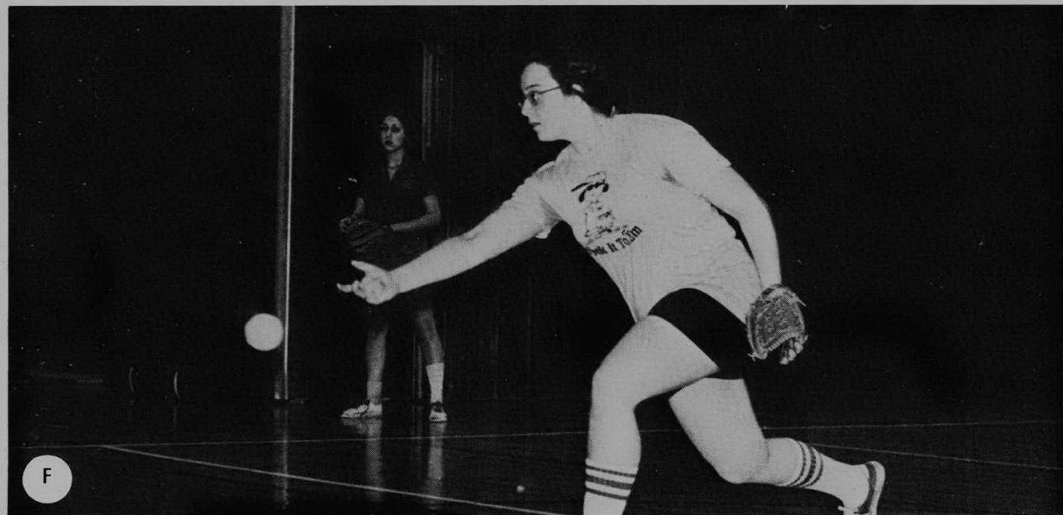

On the softball team, batting, fielding and base running were the most important skills improved during this season.

OUTPUT

At a time when many students began to question their identity, a computerized atmosphere could not simplify the answers to problems of consequence.

Paradoxically, many students became dependent on calculators and computers, an advent which aided in achieving accuracy in school problems. Confronted daily with data mailers and computerized tests, each student learned to adjust to the advanced technological situation for the conveniences it offered. Among the machines, students attempted to find themselves.

PROCESSORS

To recognize teachers as people. When young, this realization is difficult to achieve. Yet, as students grow older, they see teachers are people and perhaps, even friends.

Yes, automation has assigned numbers and groups according to sex, class and grade point average. But, within these groups are people with feelings, opinions and ideas.

All these people effect each other. Perhaps North faculty has a greater effect on students than either realize. A teacher's kind words or helpful opinion can influence students for the rest of their lives.

Dr. Wesley Gibbs
Superintendent

ADMINISTRATION

DURING a press conference with student reporters from all three Nilehi schools, Dr. Gibbs begins to answer a tough question.

Beginning with the teacher strike in September, this year may be termed one where the most emotion was displayed — the most humanness shown. By contrast, this year also saw the greatest amount of technology ever to come to Niles North and the community.

Yet as more technology was brought forth at Niles North, more humanness was brought out to supplement it.

"Technology is simply hardware; a thing which can be produced at will and destroyed when it no longer serves a useful purpose. Education, by contrast, is people. Education is the master of technology. Education has created it," said Supt. Wesley Gibbs.

At Northi this year, the atmosphere of humanity — one helping another, can be shown in all aspects of education.

"It is precisely because of the relative position of technology and education, that technology will never dehumanize education. If anything, it could make it more human," said Supt. Gibbs.

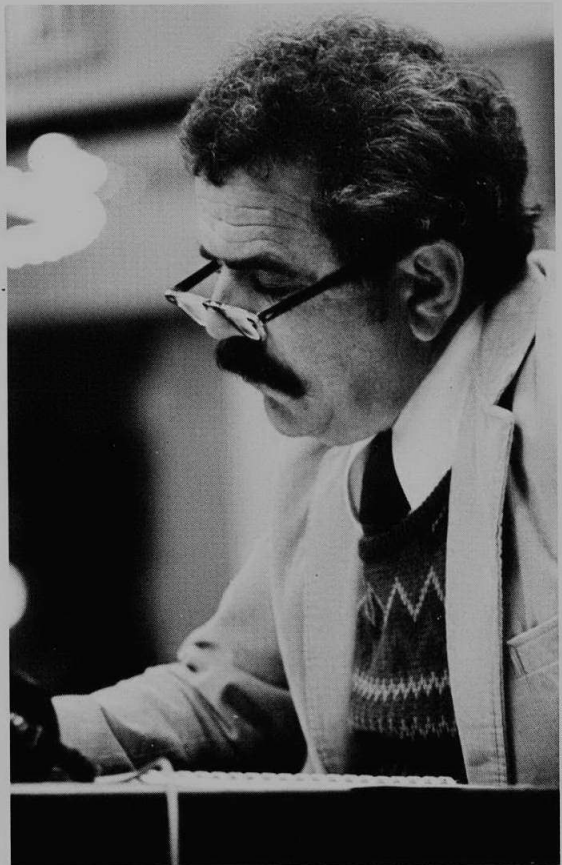

DR. GIBBS and the board members examine one of the many proposals before them as they prepare to discuss the pending issue.

ADMINISTRATION

SHUFFLING through his papers in an attempt to familiarize himself with the evening's agenda is board member Mr. Ben Lipin.

MR. MICK HERZOG, Director of School and Community Relations, takes notes at one of the board meetings.

DR. WELDY casually speaks with NBC meteorologist Harry Volkman at the basketball game against Maine North.

Agreeing with Supt. Gibbs that technology does not tend to cause dehumanization of the individual student or teacher, Dr. Gilbert Weldy said, "We do enjoy the best available technology to assist students in learning. Machines, however, will never replace the human element so important to good education."

Technology has many advantages. At Niles North, through computerized scheduling and various machines to help students with their daily activities, students are given more alternatives with which to decide how to spend their four years in high school. Students also receive finer methods with which to attain the goals they have established to achieve during their high school careers.

ADMINISTRATION

Dr. Gilbert Weldy
Principal

"We must use technology to improve educational opportunities and to increase alternatives," said Dr. Weldy. "Computers and teaching machines will always be tools to make certain education functions easier and more efficient."

But technology and its use can get out of hand. Students can become merely numbers in a vast pile of computer and ID cards; teachers can become merely guides to the use of the computers, or indeed, computers could replace the teacher's role in the educational process all together.

"We humans must learn how to use the technology we have available to keep our educational process as humane and as personal as it can be. Technology can never be an end in itself," said the principal.

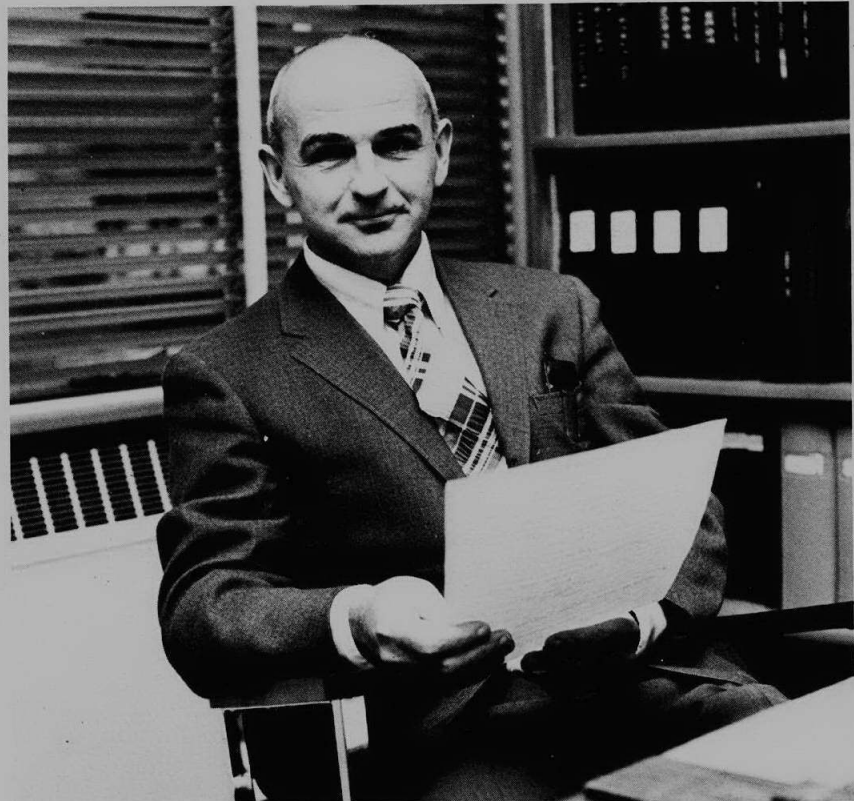

HOMECOMING '73 gives Dr. Weldy an opportunity to address the whole student body at the pep assembly.

ADMINISTRATION

"There have been massive industrial and agency efforts to produce packaged instructional systems for teacher use," said Mr. Jack Morris, Hall D principal. "It may appear that some 'innovative' groups seem to be promoting change for the sake of change," he said.

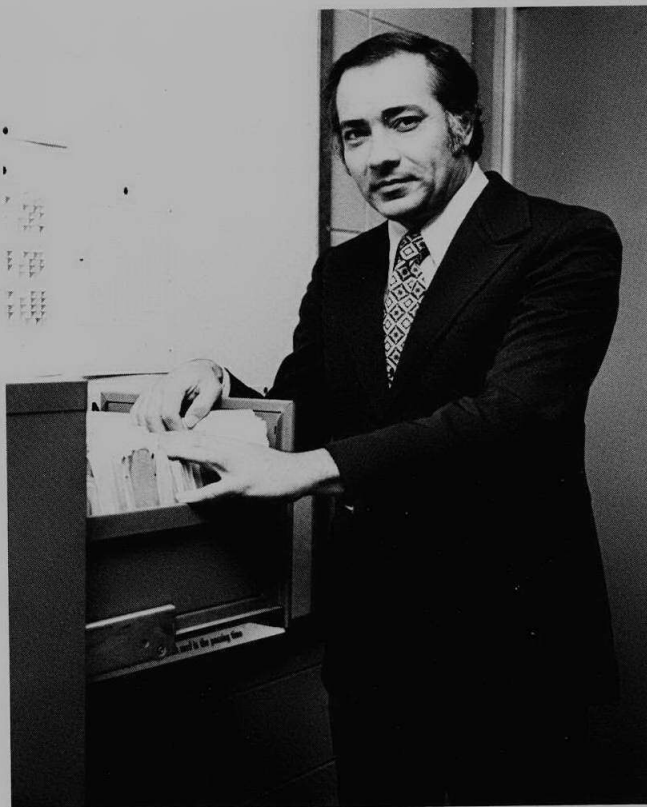

Although technology does serve an important role at Niles North and in the community, one cannot be certain if all the technology used today is really necessary.

"Change must include concern for student needs as well as proper evaluation of the proposed innovation," said Mr. Morris emphatically.

Technology does make certain procedures easier and does provide more alternatives, sometimes it can cause problems. He may feel lost in his identity.

"An individual can better cope with our vast technological society today, if he is able to understand the human condition in relation to all these rapid changes," said Mr. James Olsen, Hall C principal.

Mr. Olsen feels, however, that the problem of individual instability and loss of identity can be overcome. "Study in the broad area of the humanities helps bridge the gap between advanced technology and backward human relationships," said Mr. Olsen.

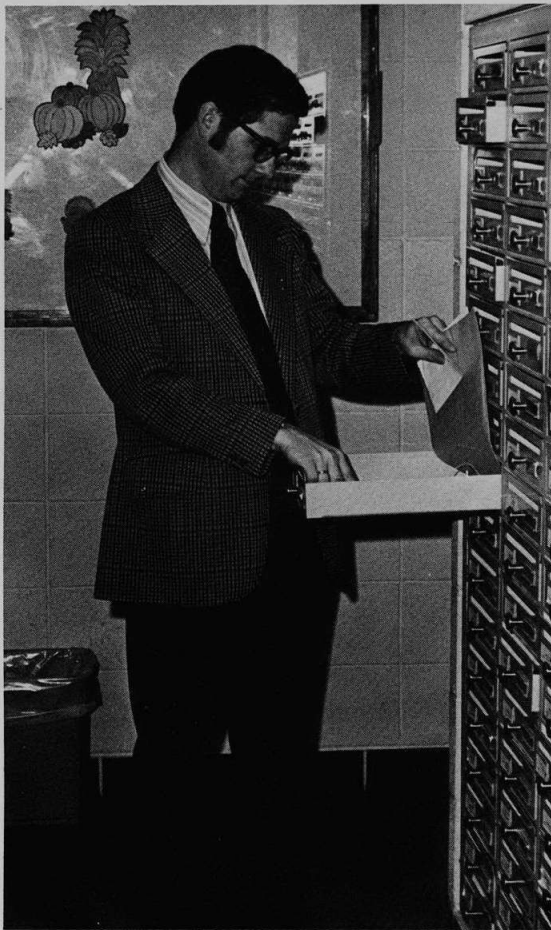

Indeed, technology can be misused, but according to Mr. Morris, "Good schools will seek ways of using new technology better."

DISCUSSING his plans for next year with his hall principal, Mr. Olsen, is senior Steven Dolins.

CAUTION:
HUMAN BEINGS HERE
HANDLE WITH CARE

Well, I think it's fine building jumbo planes, or taking a ride on a cosmic train,
switch on summer from a slot machine,
yes, get what you want to, if you want
'cause you can get anything.
I know we've come a long way, we're changing
day to day, but tell me,
where do the children play?

Well, you've cracked the sky,
scrapers fill the air,
but will you keep on building higher
'til there's no more room up there.
Will you make us laugh, will you make us cry,
will you tell us when to live
will you tell us when to die.
I know we've come a long way, we're changing
day to day, but tell me,
where do the children play?

Cat Stevens

"What type of message should we convey in our editor's note, Mindy?"

"The machinery, the humanness, the theme: although we are surrounded by a world of technology, so many of us have been able to retain the most acute human feelings."

"It is so important to thank all those who put time and effort in the creation of this book. We must convey our gratitude, yet it is hard to do so on one small seemingly insignificant page."

"Reflecting back on moments of Saga '74, Joel, I can remember happiness, anger, tears, and laughter, but what is most prominent in my mind are the times we shared together."

"Remember how hard we thought the year would be with a new staff? Everyone seemed to adjust quickly. There were definite loopholes in our production, but we had an eager, hardworking staff."

"Miss Carol Thompson made many sacrifices as our advisor, to help us in achieving our deadlines. I don't know how she survived us, but there must be some way to extend our appreciation to her."

"When our morale was low because we thought no color could be used, Miss Thompson and many others seemed to work things out. Mindy, wasn't it Dr. Weldy who first suggested that we talk to Student Caucus about a $1000 donation? Without Caucus' help we could not have used any special effects. We are deeply indebted to their generosity."

"What about Mr. Dennis Eder, our yearbook representative? I'm sure we couldn't have made some big decisions without his resourceful advice."

"Beth Byster and Barry Solomon, friends who were always on hand, did an outstanding job with the division pages. Beth's artwork on the computer printouts was beautiful and each drawing tested Barry's patience because of the involved and tedious key punching which had to be done."

"One thing that had its impact on us was the atmosphere at the IBM building, where Mr. Hank Hruby, representative, attempted to create the computer pictures. Joel, those large machines were so awesome, cold and empty, in contrast with Mr. Hruby's smile and willingness."

"Do you know what I believe?"

"What, Joel?"

"That though many errors existed, Saga '74 was a most valuable learning experience. Perhaps we will never again experience the coldness and the warmth, the emptiness and the fulfillment of working together as one on Saga '74."
