The future is hidden, even from the men who make it

Anatole France

"No one can really guarantee the future. The best we can do is size up the chances, calculate the risks involved, estimate our abilities to deal with them and then make our plans with confidence." — Anonymous

Our lives are spent in trying to view something we can never see, trying to feel something we can never touch, trying to understand something our senses are incapable of perceiving. No matter how hard we try to prepare ourselves, no matter how sure we are of our destinies, the future remains and always will remain unknown.

As youth, this situation frustrates us. We try to prepare ourselves for the future, yet it seems uncertain and indistinct. At times our lives seem to have no purpose at all because we are reaching for something abstract. We look deeply into ourselves, questioning our motives and needs. Trying to understand our own personalities is often as difficult a task as trying to understand our peers and elders. We must understand ourselves before we can attempt to understand others.

In order to understand ourselves better we look toward the future. The future confronts us in every aspect of our lives. For some it is the next class or the next gymnastic meet. For others it means choosing a college or a career. Whatever the future holds for each individual, it is the most prevalent force in our existence. No one can really guarantee the future. SAGA '72 is based on this premise. The following pages attempt to show how we, the students of Niles North High School, are trying to foresee the unforeseeable.

When two do the same thing,

We are all the same in that we experience, search and reach within the short duration of time we have — our existence. Within our lives we all encounter many occurrences, we all form goals, we all have ambitions and we all grasp. This reaching may be for something as small as a piece of candy from a shelf or as intangible as knowledge itself.

There are, however, differences that make people individuals at the very same moment that they are part of a whole. Each of us has singular experiences that make us unique. We are all searching for something that is distinct for us and therefore alien to everyone else. In this search that we all experience each of us reaches in different directions, at different times, for different reasons.

As Niles North students, we are not only concerned with the future that awaits us years from now. We are also aware of the uncertainty that each day holds. We make an attempt to prepare ourselves for each day but incertitude still remains. We are constantly being faced with problems that we tend to magnify out of proportion at the time of their occurrence. We try to anticipate questions on a test or what the outcome of a football game will be. We are always striving to achieve this knowledge, yet "Life is a test that has more questions than answers." — Anonymous

"Before a test I feel scared to death. I get uptight about it; I'm so worried about the final grade that I usually ruin the whole test." — Tracy Koy

"Tests make me nervous. I always feel I'm going to flunk even though I know I'm not." — Monica Karbin

"Before a football game I'm scared stiff because all I can think about is dropping a pass or running out of bounds." — Paul Blakey

"Right now I'm worried about trying to hit a certain average, doing my best to excel in sports and being more friendly." — Michael Cogan

"I'm trying to have as much fun as I possible can without endangering my grade point average or getting into a lot of trouble." — Howard Bloom

"I'm worried about my book conference in an hour." — Howard Lisit

"I'm not really worried about anything at all." — Gregg Johnson

"No matter how much I've studied or how much I know the material, I'm scared. Why? Because there's always the unknown." — Valerie Sanes

The future of civilization is to a great extent being written in the classrooms of the world

Milton L. Smith

Throughout high school we are confronted with many obstacles. These come in many forms and result in perplexity and confusion. We realize that we are really no longer children and that we have to make decision for ourselves. Even more aweresome is the realization that we are responsible for our own actions. We are thrust out on our own and we find ourselves exploring our new freedoms, our new situations and our new selves.

To find a starting point for the search of our future is as difficult as the task itself. Many of us find the confines of the school a good place to begin this confusing quest. We try in the short span of time we spend in high school to expose ourselves to as many experiences as we can. We are trying to make ourselves accessible to new educational experiences. At the same time our relationships with others are maturing.

We emerge from this transformation period, each gaining something different. Our achievements are dependent upon how hard we search, where we search and our initial idea of what we were searching for. Some of us will emerge thinking we know exactly where we are going. A few of us will emerge with a feeling of confusion, and perhaps the only knowledge that we will have gained is that we have discovered what we do not want and we must search further for our goal.

"Right now in school I'm trying to figure out what to do with the rest of my life." Paul Waverly

"I'm not interested in an education as much as I am in meeting people. I'm trying to find out what I'm interested in." Nancy Livman

"I'm not trying to accomplish anything. I really don't care; school's a waste of time. I really don't want to be anything." — Sharon Weinbaum

"I'm trying to get a good education in high school so I can get a good job." - Charles Sullivan

One can stand still in a flowing stream, but not in a world of men

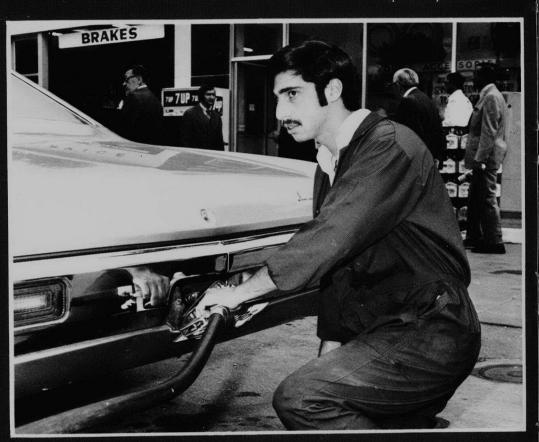

Japanese proverb

A whole world awaits us beyond the walls of the school. More than ever we as students are becoming aware of the fact that our knowledge does not and cannot start and end within our school. Realization comes to us that we are a part of the world, though it seems easier to remain in a community of just our peers and instructors.

Niles North has taken on the new role of a sounding board where students may launch themselves in pursuit of new interests. Northi students, through programs such as community service and work-study, are able to transcend the traditional pattern and experience the world as their classroom. The world is reaching out and voicing its need for us. We realize that we, too, have a desire to become a part of the world.

"Through community service I'm able to find if I will have the patience to teach deaf children; so many people get into the field without any practice. It's very rewarding to be able to do something on your own. Anybody who has an idea he wants to pursue should use this program." — Susan Grahn

"I plan to work after I graduate and by participating in the work-study program this year I've gotten a good head start." — Beth Anderson

What you have in store for the future depends largely on what the future has in store for you

In our continuing educational process, we begin to ponder that which lies ahead. Many of us have definite ideas as to where we are going when we leave high school. We realize that there are certain obstacles that we must overcome in reaching our goals.

"I want to be a musical therapist, helping handicapped children through music. The problem is it doesn't come that easy. You just can't want to be a therapist and then become one. It takes a lot of work, practice and patience."—

"I hope to get a scholarship so that I can attend school to become a nurse or a radiologist." — Tracy Koy

"I want to major in music. I'm doing an independent study course in music theory. Dr. Wathen is helping me in an elementary college music theory course. Playing in the high school band and orchestra gives me exposure to more music that I'll be playing in college." — Cheryl Gelder

There must be motivation to propel us toward a goal. In the never ending search of what the future has in store for us, we are always pushing ourselves to delve into the future for we realize how fast it approaches. It is just a matter of years until we will be shaping the future rather than having it shape us.

We are confronted as we look around our society by the roles that we must assume. Today we are students but we will shortly be the mechanics, secretaries and lawyers of tomorrow. No matter how idealistic we feel, we must accept the fact that we have everchanging needs that must be filled.

Some of us will shape our moral attitudes. Others will take on the job of forming our social structure. Many will assume the task of managing our economic affairs. We realize that we must look to the future for it is all ours. We are children now but we will not remain children forever.

"I plan to donate time and money to various causes — the mentally retarded, poverty-striken, cancer research. My father does this sort of thing now. I am planning to follow in his footsteps." — Steven Greene

Radicals in the 10's

We are children, questioning the methods used in managing our country and challenging existing morals and beliefs to which we are told to adhere. We are observant of the people filling these roles and cognizant of the problems that confront them.

Yet we do not remain children forever. There comes a time in the future when we must assume the very roles that we now question. We are youth possessing a new vitality and courageousness to withstand the rough stretch ahead.

We are proud to be able to contribute our share in the shaping of the future and want to present an unique approach in doing so. We want to avoid the traps that may await us in this process. We will not comply with the state of things as they are; rather we will continue to question values and priorities. We want to say not only make love, not war, but also make homes, not ghettos; opportunities, not despair; understanding, not bigotry; live beginnings, not dead ends.

"I've changed so many times and so many ways in the last four years it's hard to explain. My ideas and opinions are finally being molded into those that I think I will hold for the rest of my life." — Mara Kalmikoff changing so are we as individuals. In the processs of trying to foresee the unforeseeable we realize that the physical surroundings, society's attitudes and the entire social structure is going through a series of transitions. We are aware of these changes and this affects the changes within ourselves. Our priorities are reordered, our goals reshaped as we realize the changes that will occur in the future.

Just as our environment is rapidly

This shift in our beliefs during our high school years is both bewildering and frightening. We see ourselves questioning the values of our parents and searching for our own ideals. We can only hope that through our search for ideals and our interpretation of the future we can add meaning to our lives.

Students prepare for future goals

Through its academic programs and extracurricular activities, Niles North prepares its students for a wide variety of possible future roles. Courses are available for students considering a vocational job as well as those who plan to enter college. Northi students feel that the school, in stressing the future, has neglected to train them for the present. The current trend in student thinking is to view education not only on a strictly academic level, but also as a preparation for living with and understanding others.

"Education is for a person's own satisfaction." — Julie Heller

"The purpose of my education is not to learn facts, since I won't remember them. I don't believe in cluttering my mind with facts. Rather it is just an experience in relating to other people and learning how to work on my own."

Curriculum selection offers opportunities to develop interests

Every spring each student is faced with the task of planning his schedule for the following year. With over two hundred possible courses to choose from, one of the most difficult choices the Northi students face today is limiting themselves to four or five courses each semester. Graduation and college determine the students' schedules to a large extent.

"I am taking courses for a general background and to prepare to study medicine in college." — Terry Nicola

"Graduation requirements are the most important reason." — Brian Kaplan

"These courses fulfill the requirements needed for graduation and college. But it is sad that I don't have enough time to take the courses I am interested in." — Helaine Berger

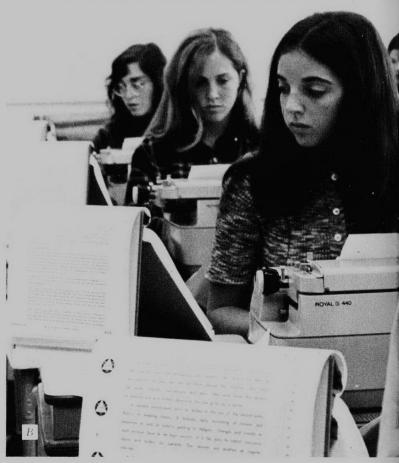

"Through my courses I am finding new areas of study that may or may not interest me, but how can I be sure if I never tried them?" — Meryl Yale

Semester courses provide variation in Social Studies

Social Studies took on a change this year by adding a variety of one semester courses, similar to the APEX English system. There is no traditional grade level as a prerequisite for enrollemnt. The only requirement is two semesters of Man and His Culture and two semesters of courses relating to United States History.

"Niles North is way ahead of the suburban schools with instruction, materials and teaching ideas. Now we must stop, reevaluate and continue stabilizing. We are at least five years ahead of ourselves," says Mr. Galen Hosler, area supervisor.

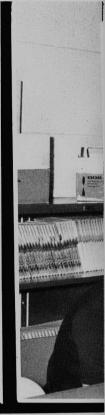

Students' reactions to the new changes have been very diverse.

"The new social studies program is great. I'm sorry they didn't have it earlier. It's a shame that I have to graduate soon."—Susan Friedman

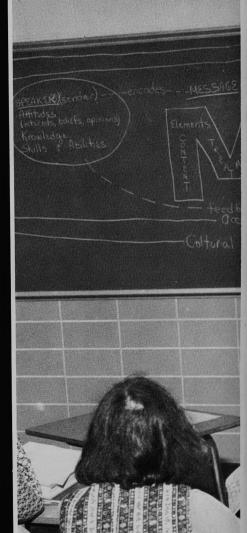

"The new program is stupid. The structure with sophomores, juniors and seniors in separate courses should be brought back. I don't feel that sophomores should have to compete with seniors. The teachers expect more then." — Gail Myers

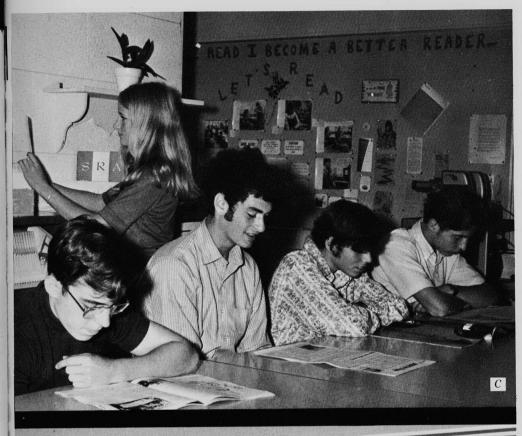

- A. Linda Gustafson and Lynn Valentine observe a map as they learn about the Black man in a new social studies course.

 - Mr. Melvin Stuit helps Alex Zobel look up a historical term in the social studies resource center's dictionary.
 - Learning becomes an easier process when students meet in small seminars.

APEX stresses individualism

Last year Niles North was introduced to modular scheduling. The most radical changes occurred in the English and social studies departments. There students found themselves mixed in with students of different class levels and selected their courses from a wide variety of one semester, more specialized courses.

"The choices are real good, but I am unhappy that they did away with the Honors and APP courses in English. They could have kept them, but not offered an extra point, as in social studies." — Marcy Helfand

"The English courses offered are so diffuse and varied that APEX has lost its original direction and meaning." — Carey Witkov

"APEX is good because it offers you a variety. You don't have to stick to a framework of ideas when you are choosing your courses; you are free to choose something from every type of subject." — Barbara Miretzky

Technology taught by various means

Changes in the content and methods of education are closely connected with the development of modern technology and the social changes accompaning it. At Niles North students receive the knowledge and specialization needed to cope with the enormous problems that industry has created for them. Just as North and its curriculum change every year, so do the students' attitudes towards it.

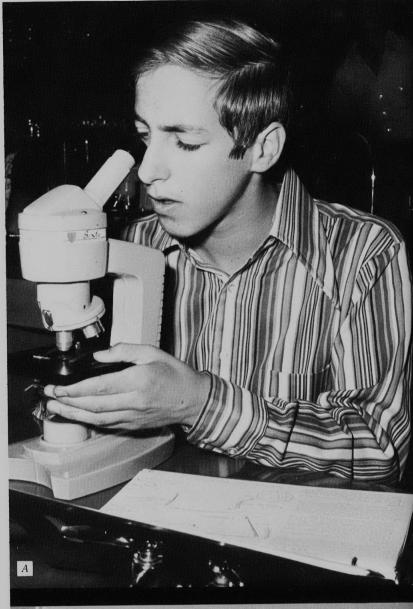

"When I first came to high school I accepted and wanted a very standardized and traditional system. Now I favor a lot more flexibility and individualism." - Kathleen Sasamoto

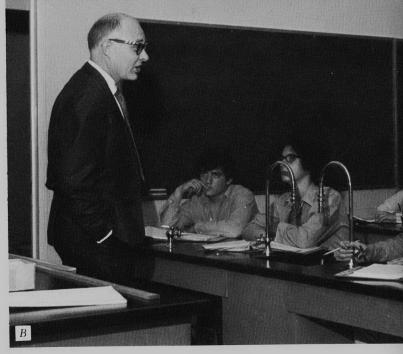

"I think school is going to help me. It's more for myself and my future, not grades." — Renee Smolen

"With increased technology no one or two courses can possibly cover any field. Thus, education will have to become more specialized and focus upon concentrated, individual study of one subject." - Marcy Helfand

Meaning of life reflected upon by Northi students

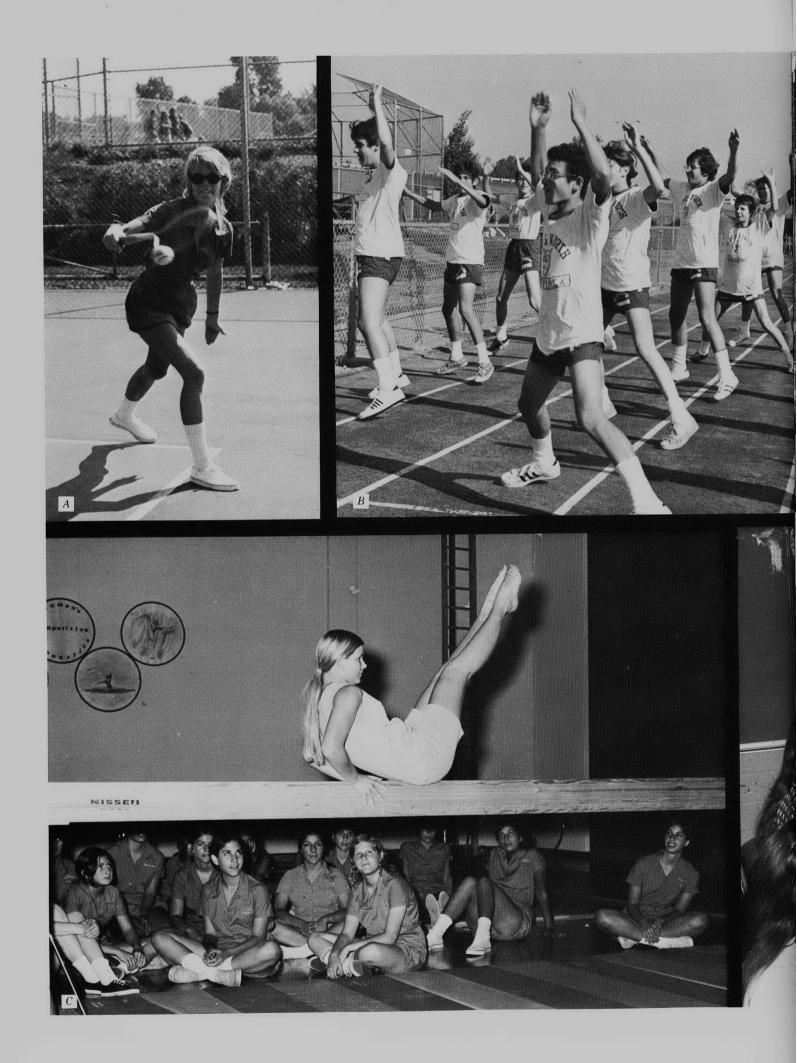

Northi students find that they must be resourceful in order to pass all the classes they are taking. Unscheduled time is used to work on term papers, study for tests and read assignments. Yet sometimes students wonder why they are doing all this work. Will it prepare them for the future? What is the purpose of education and life in general?

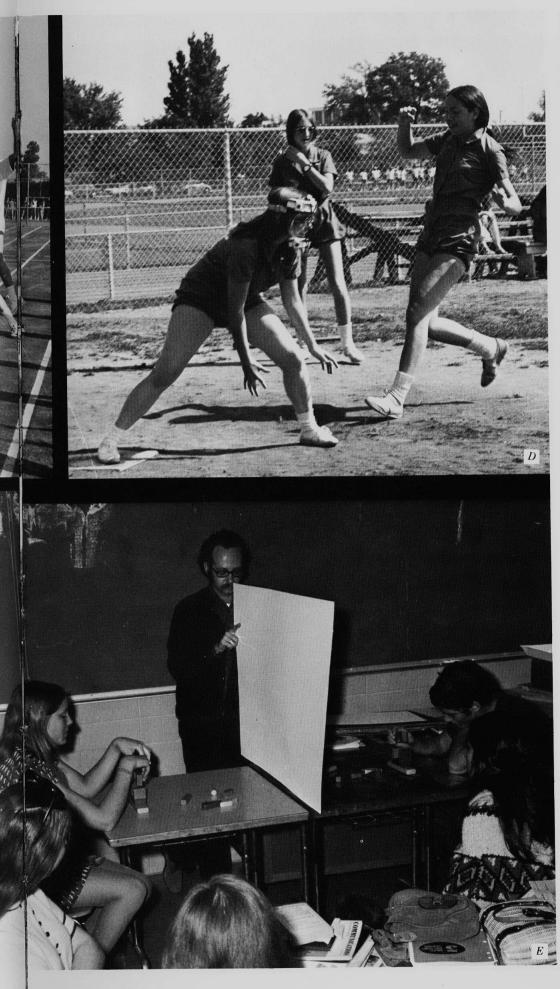

"The purpose of life is to make the best of yourself and do what you want to. After that you should never hold any regrets for your decisions." — Alan Schachtman

Students view future schools

Most of our lives are so coordinated that we don't even realize it. In order to successfully operate under modular scheduling, we must coordinate our wants with our needs and regulate the time we have to spend on each. What will happen to North and other schools of the future in about fifty years? This question was answered by several people.

"I think schools will be done with in fifty years. Scientists will have invented a medicine for pregnant women that will make their babies born with knowledge." — Marc Baba

"They are not going to have teachers. They'll have computers which won't talk back, grade fairly and have no favorites." — Michael Goldberg

"Schools are going to teach you how to live life. They'll teach you to get along with others, not things like English." — Steven Simpson

Students seek personal ties with teachers

"The best academic environment is a lax one with a lot of freedom, where you can get to know teachers on a personal level." — June Klein

Freedom and relevancy were key words in many student's responses as to the best academic environment that they would like to see in Niles North's future. Students also seemed to unanimously desire better relationships and more understanding between themselves and their teachers. Several students suggested possible improvements in teaching methods.

"Teaching methods can be improved by using the text less and relating to the environment." — Anne O'Brien

"I like open discussions, not when the teacher asks questions and points out someone." — Nancy Schilling

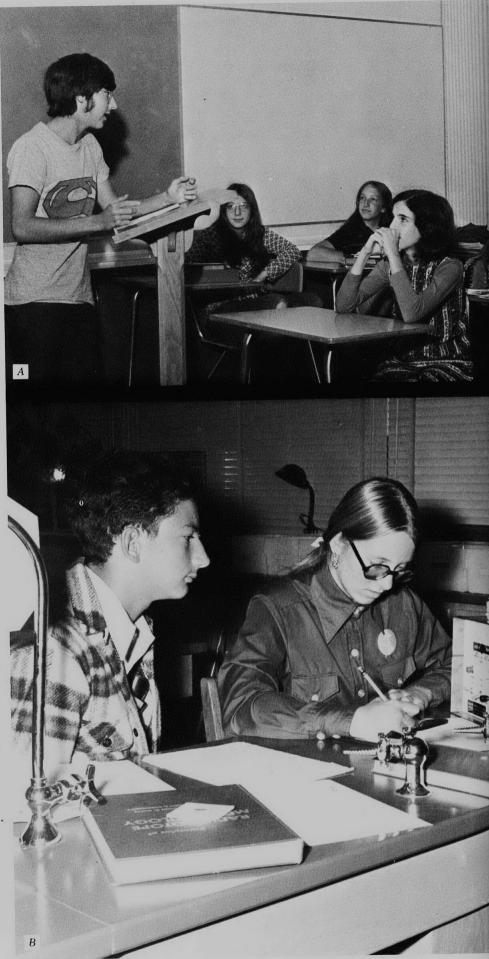

"Smaller, more personalized classes where the teacher goes to the student as person-to-person would stimulate education." — Alan Lander

Seniors seemed to be more cynical-towards education than underclassmen.

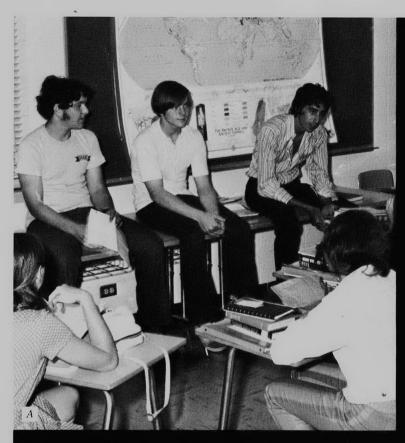

"I learned the most over the summer at camp when I knew everyone, had small classes, no grades, and no busy work assignments. I learned stuff really affecting me. I haven't learned anything this year that is worthwhile to me." — Susan Kesselman

"When all the kids are really serious about school and not just there to goof off, learning will occur most effectively." — Renee Smolen

Informal classes serve to promote academic growth

The pass-fail option instigated this year at Niles North was welcomed by many students. It released them from the academic burdens associated with grades and enabled them to take harder courses without the fear of receiving a low grade and thus lowering their grade point averages.

"Pass-fail is great. You can take more courses without as much pressure on grades." - Marcy Helfand

"I really like pass-fail. It gives you the opportunity to take more challenging courses that you wouldn't otherwise take." — Rhonda Behr

Some students, however, were hesitant about the new pass-fail option.

"Colleges don't go for it, and that's what really counts. You have to learn just for the colleges, not because you want to." — Robin Felix

"I really don't like pass-fail. I was thinking of taking an academic course pass-fail but I realized I would not try enough." - Robin Shield

The termination of the honors point this year also created some controversy. Some students feel that it is unfair in determining class rank.

"The honors point should not be the reason for taking an honors course, but it is deserved for the amount of work done." - Kathleen Sasamoto

- To encourage class participation of every student, Stuart Behrman, William Brown and Steven Doroff lead a discussion on the causes of the Civil War.
- Mr. Herbert Brigham helps biology students Paula Ablim and Arlene Crown focus clearly on a microscopic specimen

Vikings use free mods for study, relaxation

This year modular scheduling supplies the Northi student with long spans of unscheduled time. Numerous facilities are available for his use.

"I go to the LMC because I can study there. I never spend time in the cafeteria because it's too noisy and I like to spend my day doing my homework assignments." — Robin Shield

"I spend my time in the English resource center because there are a lot of resources available there. If you want to talk, you can go in the back, you can have conferences with teachers, and if you want you can do homework at the private carrels. There are also a lot of books to read there." — Michael Kaufman

"I am in science seminar basically because I am concentrating on advanced math and science. The informal atmosphere is conducive to learning these subjects." — Michael Ruchim

"I spend time in the cafeteria because all my friends are there and I can do homework and study better with noise." — Ilene Newman

Students get freedom needed for pursuing individual interests

The benefits and effects of modular scheduling can be very simple or complex depending upon the student. What each student gets out of this program relates to what his input is. Modular scheduling aims to increase the student's freedom and thus allow him more time to pursue his individual interests, both in and out of the formal classroom. Northi students responded to this change quite differently. Some favored the new type of scheduling while other students saw numerous faults in it.

"Modular scheduling benefits good students. They tend to take advantage of their free time. On the other hand, poor students don't know what to do with this free time and their grades drop." — Ellene Hiller

"It's strange. This type of scheduling is supposedly more flexible, but it's more difficult to schedule your courses without a conflict or overlap now." — Cecilia Schwab

"Niles North does not have the facilities needed for modular scheduling. There are too many students and not enough places for them to go during their self-scheduled time. However, it does have its good points. You can take whatever you want to and you have more feedom to do things on your own."

—Ione Richards

"The practical purpose of modular scheduling is to prepare you for college where not all of your time is taken up by classes; you must schedule it yourself."

CVE students gain business experience

Northi upperclassmen participated in a work-study program consisting of one-half day spent in school and the other half on the job. As a part of this program, students were required to attend a class where they learned about various jobs and the many responsibilities involved in them.

In addition, the students worked a minimum of fifteen hours per week at the job of their choice. The goals of the CVE program are two-fold: to develop responsibility and maturity in students and to provide them with business experience and a more varied and interesting scope of activities for pursuing their educational goals.

"I signed up for work-study to get credit for working. As a dental receptionist, I'm improving such skills as my typing." — Sandra Bymel

"I want to be an executive secretary and working at the Old Orchard Bank as a clerk and typist gives me the background." — Wanda Weglarz

"Through CVE I am making money and gaining experience working with people. It gives me the chance to get out into the business world and find out what's going on there. I learn how many different kinds of people there are as well as how to get along with them." — Linda Zolt

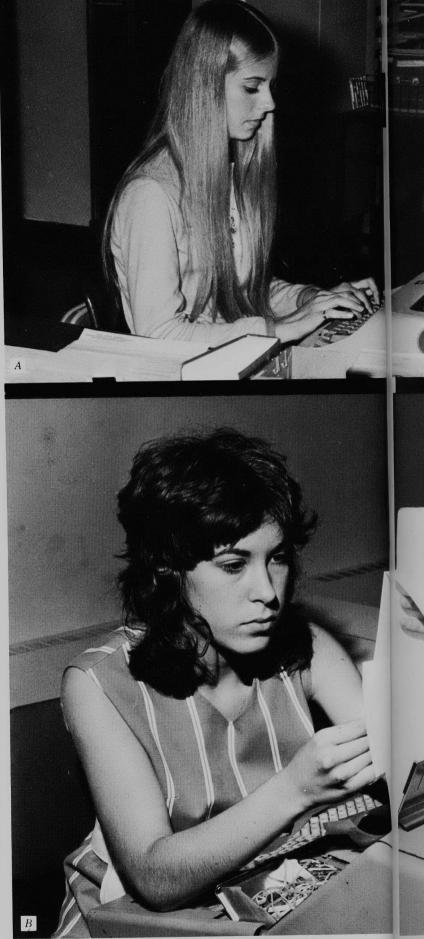

"In the class I'm finding out the responsibilities entailed in working. On my job I learn different things about banking that will help me in the future. If I ever need money I've got the experience to get a job in a bank." — Cathy Burland

Life plans explored in community work

In June 1970 the social studies department offered to the students of Niles North the opportunity of receiving credit for volunteer work. This work is accompanied by an academic assignment related to the service. In two years this program has greatly expanded. Social, civic, political and conservation agencies, as well as schools, hospitals and nursing homes, seek students as volunteers.

"I'm gaining a lot of practical experience working with deaf children. I have learned to look at people who have a handicap as having the same potential as those without a handicap. While working with these children I feel wanted." — Karen Marx

"By working with mentally retarded and normal kids I have decided to make special education my life's work. I did this without getting credit for the last two years, so I want to get credit for it this year. I get satisfaction out of making kids laugh and smile and I like the appreciation that they show me in return. Sometimes you can get much closer to a retarded child than you can to someone who is normal." — Marla Dubin

"It is good to do community service because I'm out into the real community and away from the school. This way I am able to use what I've memorized in school." — Paula Weinbaum

Education involves more than academics

A student's total educational experience is not complete if he stays within the traditional classroom structure. Northi students are discovering that they must expand their scope of activities in order to gain a complete understanding of life and the people around them. This knowledge is gained by students outside the school through workstudy and community service as well as through independent study projects and innovative classes. These new classes encourage students to search for knowledge as opposed to being fed knowledge.

"Learning is a process by which one becomes familiar with all facets of life. Thus, the most important part of learning is out of the traditional classroom." — Susan Emalfarb

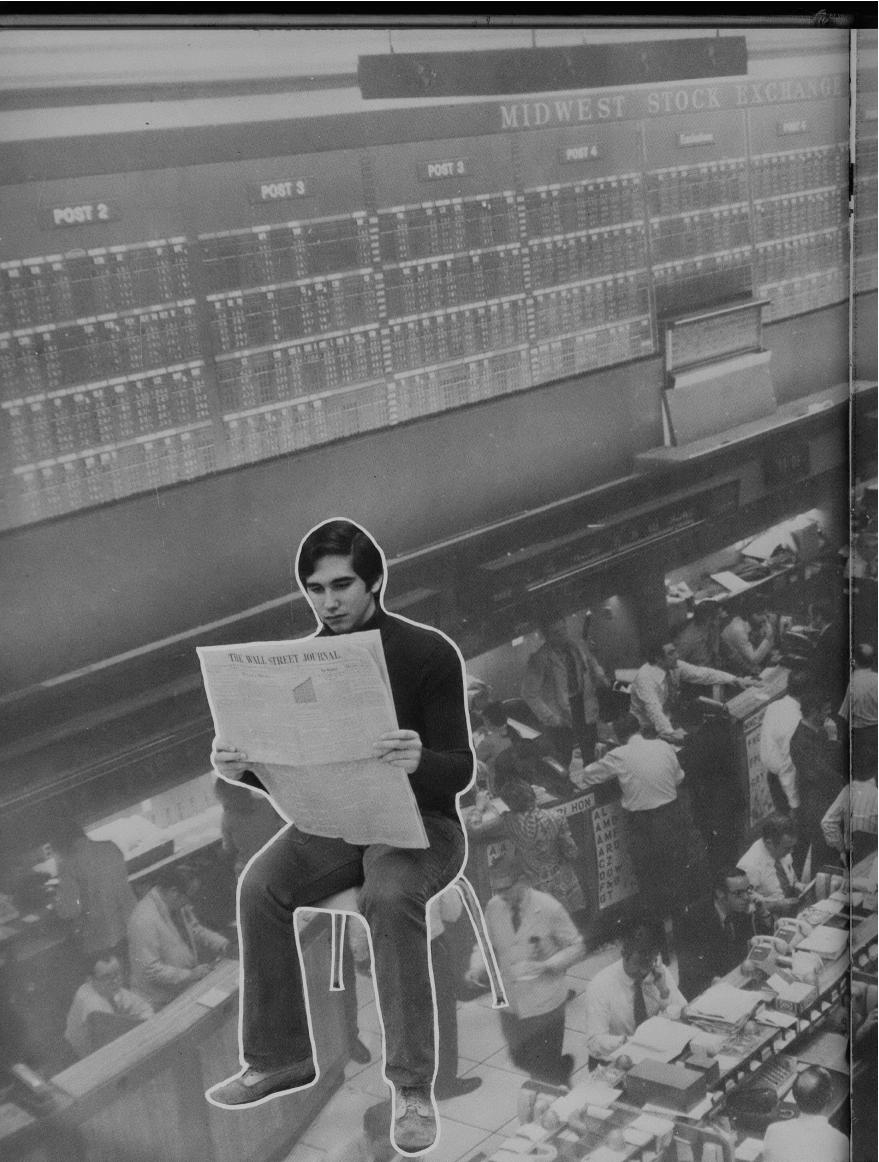

"One learns merely the basics at school. A person's main knowledge of life comes from experience. School helps you make the best out of these experiences." — Nancy Schwartz

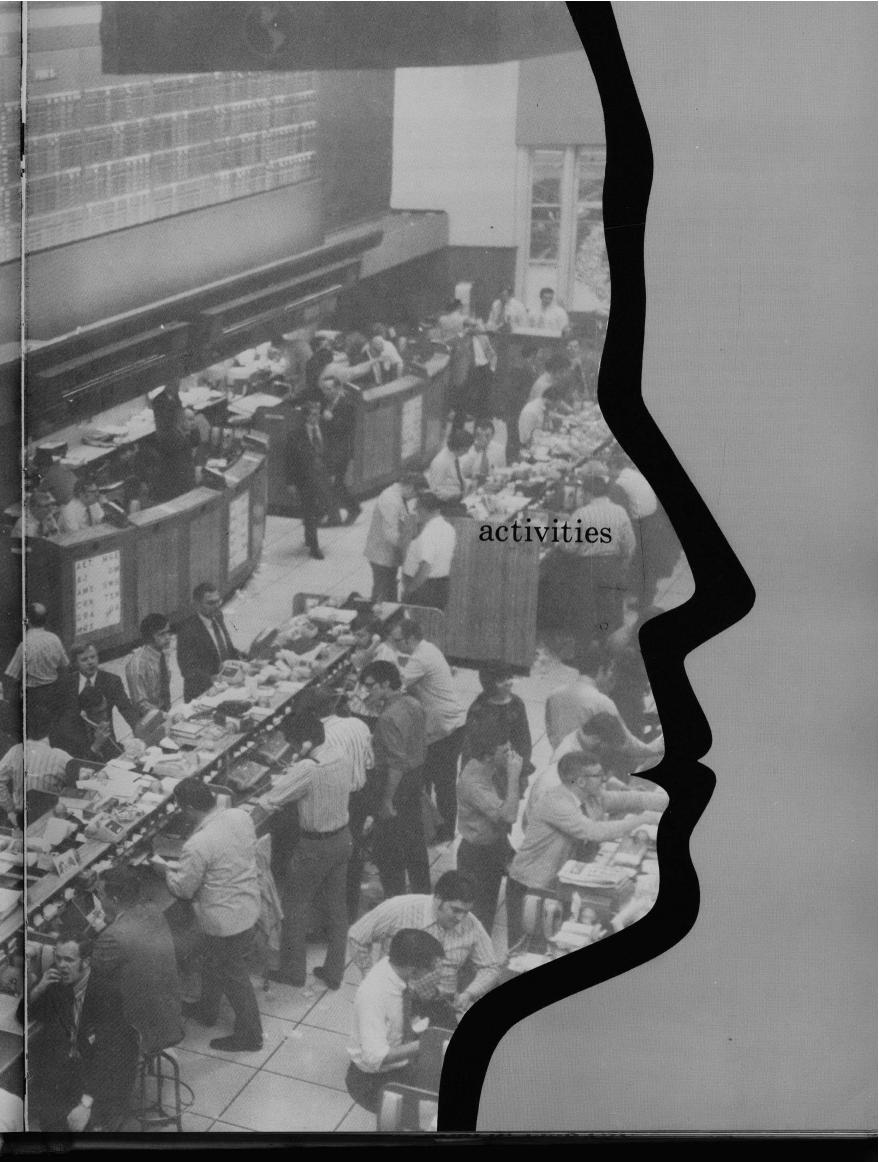

"The special experience of learning shouldn't be wasted on book knowledge. Instead, it should be a total involvement in finding out about the world, its people, and what needs to be changed."

— Marcia Wisper

"To me, learning is finding out about things around me, not only history. I'd rather learn about current affairs and possible solutions for them than history." — Vicki Gordon

Unpredictability of students' futures

The production of Saga includes the cropping of numerous pictures, designing layouts, writing copy and cutlines in addition to a great deal of typing. It also includes tension right before a deadline and the feeling of not knowing exactly how the end product will turn out. However, Saga '72 includes the challenge of trying something new in the form of a different physical appearance. Each section of the book has a different layout style making it unique from every other section. Theme is emphasized throughout the book by the use of quotes from the student body, faculty and administration in an attempt to capture their thoughts and feelings as they try to foresee the unforeseeable.

"When we began working on the yearbook last summer, the most difficult task was finding a general thought that we wanted to convey throughout the book. This was really hard because there is no typical Niles North student. One thing we felt everyone had in common, however, was that each student is searching for something different that no one can really understand or grasp."

— Gail Hoffing

"Through Saga I have had the chance to meet a much larger portion of the student body. It has been a good experience, I think, and I will benefit from it." — Judy Jacob

"I enjoy the responsibility and challenge of meeting yearbook deadlines. It gives me satisfaction when I get it all done and see the finished product." — Danny Minkus tries to improve communication

The North Star serves as a means of communication between faculty, administrators and students of Niles North. This year the newspaper received more voice from its readers through "Letters to the Editor." A new column, "Most Anything You Want," was introduced which reviewed coming events in the area.

"The greatest satisfaction is getting reactions on things you've written and knowing you've reached just a few people. When this has been accomplished, it makes the whole issue worthwhile." — Robin Goland

"Being a North Star photographer combined an activity I enjoyed doing with the reward of putting out a group project." — Jeffrey Baerman

"I get personal satisfaction by writing for the column because I like to let people know about constructive things they can do." — Brian Cogan

"The newspaper really taught me what communication is. From newspaper, I've discovered the basic key to communication — how to think logically and how to write clearly and effectively." — Pamela Abramson

Northi upperclassmen again captured literary and scholastic honors this year. In order to become a member of Quill and Scroll, a student must have published his photographs, cartoons or 210 printed inches of news stories or have been an outstanding editor on the school yearbook. Calliope, Northi's literary magazine, served as an outlet for students to express themselves creatively. Entries submitted included essays, short stories, poetry, artwork and photography.

Membership in the National Honor Society was determined by each student's grade point average, school and community activities and teacher and student recommendations. National Merit Semi-finalists were selected according to their scores on the National Merit Semi-finalist Qualifying Test. Students took the test on a voluntary basis in their junior year.

"Being a National Merit Semi-finalist, I find that colleges are impressed by this and that they show their approval by sending me information about their school." — Scott Soloway

"So far, it has helped me with prestige. Schools are anxious for me to attend them." — Neil Levin

School Government, COMPASS

School Government was newlyformed to organize a group that had an effective voice in school matters. It consisted of three administrators, three parents, five teachers and seven students. Among other activities, the group investigated the best form of hall movement, made open study rooms available to students and proposed to change the music in the halls during the five minute passing periods.

"I ran for School Government because I thought it has good potential and I could get some of the things I thought students were entitled to." — Richard Hoffman.

"I wanted to try to change rules that bothered me as well as others. Everyone seems to get along by keeping an open mind." — Marty Zwick.

MARTY ZWICK discusses the proposal to change hall music as Mr. Joel Baker listens.

COMPASS COMMITTEE MEMBERS make plans for OK Day.

COMPASS (Committee on Pride and School Spirit) was formed this year in an attempt to eliminate student apathy. One of its main projects during the year was sponsoring OK (Opportunity Knocks) Day. A full school day was devoted to various club meetings which allowed students to attend those that interested them.

"I felt school spirit wasn't just cheerleading and going to athletic games and meets. I joined the COM-PASS Committee to show the student body that school spirit could be evolved through the other side of school activities." — Debbie Magad.

"I feel that COMPASS wasn't as successful as it should have been. Most of the student body won't take it upon themselves to promote pride in the school." — Cheryl Melman.

"I feel the purpose behind it was good. It's too bad it didn't get off the ground." — Cindy Block.

Class Board sponsors school activities

Sponsoring school activities is the main goal behind class board. Each group has a special purpose in carrying out a specific project. As the class level progresses, each job becomes more important and requires more unification among its members.

"As members of senior class board, our main purpose was to plan homecoming. We tried to make it a memorable and entertaining experience to the student body. We also organized graduation." — Arthur Simon

"The whole function of a class board, I feel, has been to provide extra activities for students outside of the academic scope in order to expose students to as many experiences as possible." — Harold Dembo

"The purpose of class board is to do things for the class. One of our main duties is to plan prom. We try to raise money during the year so we can plan prom which is doing something for the class in a way." — Joseph Hankin

"As students get older, they lose interest in the school itself. Because of this, I feel class board is dissolving." — Paula Weinbaum

"I'm on class board because I feel our class needed good officers with good ideas to make money for fun projects. This year we had more organization. We sponsored the Freshman Kickoff Dance, the Tarshis concert and the carnival."

— Harriet Seitler

"I wanted to be on class board because I feel it's the only student government left in the school with any real purpose behind it, although it seems to be only social. I hope to make it more by being on it. People identify more with their own class and it's too hard to reach the whole school." — Ellen Hoffing

"Freshman class board served mainly as a year of organization. Preparing for the future, we began moneyraising projects." — Shelley Waxburg

"This is my second year on class board and it's basically the same as last year. However, now we know what to do, how much money we should have and how to go about doing different things. This year mass confusion was over for us." — Patti Weisman

Originally hall council's purpose was to promote spirit within each hall and extend that spirit to the rest of the school by sponsoring activities. Each hall traditionally sponsors projects during the year. But each year these projects become fewer as it is apparent that school spirit is dying, and thus hall presidents are afraid to schedule more activities because of the lack of involvement from the rest of the student body.

"Hall Council doesn't plan activities for the hall anymore. This year we are planning projects for the whole school because hall spirit is dissolving."

— Terry Waxberg

"I feel hall councils should be abolished as they're not serving their original purpose." — Sheryl Waxburg

"I joined hall council to instill what's left of a dying school spirit into the students." — Susan Grahn

"This year Hall D Council members joined on a volunteer basis. Meetings were opened to all students who were interested." — Marsha Bosley

"There wasn't really much going on in the school, so I felt that there should be more enthusiasm and I think if we put more into it by the way of spirit we'll get more out of it. The reason that a hall council still exists is that the members think maybe they'll be able to get more accomplished than what has been done in the past." — Kenneth Hechtman

"I wanted to be part of an organization to make different and interesting projects for students to do outside of school." — Marcy Plotkin

"What we really need is more participation on the part of the student body." — Carlen Magad

Students practice speaking techniques

This year the Debate Club practiced the art of logical reasoning by debating the topic Resolved: That jury systems should be significantly changed in the United States. Forensics team members participated in various aspects of oration at inter-scholastic speech tournaments. PA announcers kept the students and faculty informed of school activities.

"I enjoyed doing radio speaking for the forensics team, so I tried out for PA announcers." — Rich Cowin

"There are more aspects to debate than just the intellectual one. There are also the social and the ego-boosting aspects." — Carey Witkov

"I joined the debate team because I like the speaking experience. I'd like to become a lawyer, and I want to be able to argue points well enough to win cases." — Susan Goldman

"You might say I want to do my thing by talking to others. I've gained the spirit of team effort because in forensics you win by team effort, not only individual." — Gary Ruben

BEFORE GETTING into costume, Carlen Magad takes a final look at her make-up application.

Certain requirements must be met for one to become a member of the National Thespian Society. A student receives one point for every ten hours of work. He must earn a minimum of ten points. These points can be earned by working on any kind of crew or by performing on stage.

"Thespians is a group of students interested in promoting the theatre department. We're raising money to take a trip to a unique theatre. We're mainly a fund-raising group now." — Marla Berman

"It gives me such satisfaction knowing I worked so hard." — Gayle Novak

Drama Club membership was opened to interested students. Meetings consisted of activities from improvisations to make-up demonstrations.

"Drama Club gives anyone who is interested in theatre and has not participated in a production a chance to get a taste of what it's like being in a show." — Gail Myers

"It's important to help the freshmen so they'll know about drama before they perform." — Terry Sacks

Students voice talents

Music written by great composers, such as Bach and Brahms, is the type of music sung by Chamber Choir. All types of music are sung by Viking Male Chorus and Girls Glee. Madrigal singers were forced to meet outside of the school because it was not possible to fit Madrigal into the modular schedule. They sing sixteenth century music from the Renaissance period in four and five part harmony. These groups give students interested in singing the opportunity to chose from a wide variety of musical groups.

"I plan to major in theatre so I think Chamber Choir is good voice training." — Gail Myers

"I enjoy music and singing in class.

It's a break from the normal routine."

Northi's orchestra joined the orchestras of Niles West and East to perform in concert last April. The winter and spring concerts gave the orchestra other opportunities to perform in public. The Clarinet Choir took part in the State Solo and Ensemble Contest and in the spring concert. Singing all types of music, Choral Union participated in various concerts throughout the year.

"Being a member of the Clarinet Choir enabled me to gain experience by playing in a musical ensemble group."

— Jeff Sampson.

New and different experiments were discussed and demonstrated at Alchemists Anonymous meetings. At the beginning of the school year, Biology Club members chose various subjects in the fields they wanted to pursue and explore as a group. Due to the decreasing membership in each individual foreign language club, the clubs combined to form one unified group. At each meeting of Infinity Limited, a member presented to the group a thought-challenging problem.

"I had taken a chemistry course and became interested so I joined Alchemists Anonymous." — Bruce Elenbogen

"Biology Club is for students interested in the subject. It gave us the chance to look into aspects we were interested in. We also had the opportunity to use the school equipment and to discuss and take part in group experiments." — Richard Levy

Students explore future professions

Looking ahead to the future, FBLA was formed to help its members decide what business career to pursue. In the spring, the club attended a convention held in Springfield where they met with other FBLA clubs from Illinois. Each month the Health Careers Club went to Skokie Valley Hospital where they toured the facilities and attended lectures on vocations. They also made stuffed animals for the Red Cross. Watching movies on different teaching situations and attending lectures given by Northi teachers were among FTA's activities this year.

"The main problem FBLA faced was that we weren't recognized by the student body. As a result, our membership was low." — Deborah Zielen

Home Economics Club members engaged in various activities throughout the year, such as sewing, cooking and making ties and decoupages.

Office Occupations members raised money during the year to hold their annual employer appreciation banquet.

"Since I'm president, I have to demonstrate to the club how to make things. This way, I feel I am gaining experience, as I want to become a home ec teacher." — Carrie Seltzer

"I joined Office Occupations because I'm on work-study and if you work in an office it is a requirement to join the club." — Margaret Blanck

"The Home Ec Club sounded appealing because I thought it would do fun things. It would be more interesting, though, if we did more things out of the ordinary." — Julie Ezrin

MONEY CLUB — J. Chaitman, D. Reich, M. Bryskier, R. Kessler, M. Sherman.

For the first time since Stock Club was established, members invested in the market. They gained insight into the field by watching their money fluctuate. Money Club members traded or auctioned their coins and talked about their collections at their meetings. By participating in original trials and cases, Law Club members got a taste of what it's like being in a real courtroom situation.

"In order to have a knowledge of current issues, the Stock Club serves as a springboard to come together with others who can comprehend and intelligently discuss this field. It serves as both a hobby and potential profession."

Ski, Riding, Scuba clubs

Weather permitting, the Ski Club continued its Friday night trips to the slopes. Aside from skiing at Alpine Valley in Elkorn, Wisconsin, a weekend trip to Galena was planned. Many members went to Aspen, Colorado, during spring vacation.

Horse shows gave Riding Club members the opportunity to compete with other riders for awards. Each Friday the group went to Northwestern Stables where they learned how to ride English saddle and care for horses.

Newly organized Scuba Club certified its members as divers. The club went for weekend dives in Illinois and Wisconsin. During spring vacation some members went diving in Florida.

"I joined Ski Club because the transportation was cheap. I was able to practice and gain experience in the sport I enjoy most." — Tracy Koy.

"The ski trips gave me more of an opportunity to ski inexpensively with my friends." — Guy Droze.

"I love animals, especially horses, so I joined Riding Club. In the future I plan to be a veterinarian in the country." — Barb Oakes.

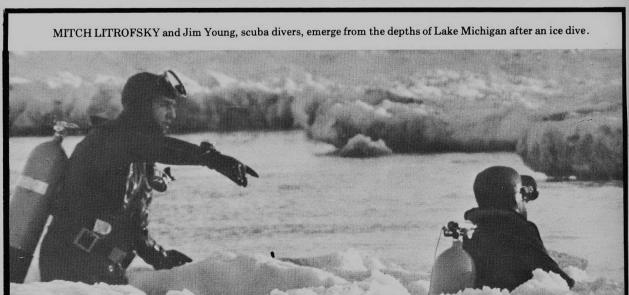

"I plan to live on a ranch. I wanted to learn more about horses so I joined Riding Club." — Penny Kraft.

"I find scuba diving a challenge. It intrigues me to find out what's going on down there." — Jim Young.

"I have been diving for six years. I helped organize Scuba Club because I wanted to get more people interested in the sport." — Mitch Litrofsky.

GAA, N Club promote student involvement

GAA Board this year planned more co-ed nights in order to raise money for four scholarships. Two scholarships were offered to senior girls planning to major in physical education in college. The physical education department also chose two girls to receive scholarships to a leadership training camp.

Girls on the overnighter spent the night in the Niles North gym with the facilities open to them. A weekend trip to a camp in Michigan was held in May. Each GAA club demonstrated its activities at the Eighth Grade Play Day for the girls from Old Orchard and Golf junior high schools. A banquet which honored the girls who received the required amount of points completed the GAA year.

"The primary interest of this year's GAA Board was to include as many girls as possible in a variety of activities—something for everyone." — Dr. Jan Gund, GAA advisor.

"There is apathy all over the school. GAA also has this problem. Scheduling this year makes it hard for after school activities, because many girls are finished with classes as early as 12:30 p.m." — Donna Johnson, GAA president.

Members of N Club have proven themselves to be accomplished athletes, but sports is not their only interest. Instead of the traditional dances, N Club sponsored concerts this year. From the funds raised, a $75 contribution was awarded to the Forgotten Children's Fund. N Club also attempted to boost attendance at all fall, spring and winter sports events.

"N Club is a school service organization that strives to promote school spirit and to sponsor school functions in which the entire student body can actively participate." — Keith Schirmer, N Club president.

Northi's interscholastic tennis team went from last place to second place in the conference. The team expanded to three squads this year, as varsity, JV and freshman squads were formed. Their schedule was also widened as seven conference and two nonconference meets were held.

"Tennis is an exciting sport." — Janice Garfield, captain.

"Tennis gives me a chance to show off my skills." — Carol Kozuch.

More opportunities were opened to this year's badminton team as schools participating rose in number. The return of four girls aided the squad in improving its season record.

"Badminton is a sport where one must vary his strokes and use strategy in order to win." — Elaine Rosenberg, captain.

"I can release tension while playing badminton." — Margret Kozuch.

"Determination for each girl to win the next match, no matter if she won or lost the last match, is the spirit that says we are winners." — Mrs. Carol Turpin, badminton and tennis teams coach.

This year the girls' volleyball team was expanded as membership was opened to all girls. Tryouts were not held; rather, members competed for the first string team. Volleyball skills were taught at clinics that were held in January. Competition against other schools was limited to two playdays. The team aimed to improve their skills this year.

"I hope to improve this year's team so that they can play against other schools." — Miss Patricia Taepke, volleyball sponsor.

"Volleyball provides the needed competition for girls. It is also exciting and challenging." — Sue Zalon.

"I like to compete against other girls and this gives me the opportunity." — Kathy Kochevar.

Leaders, Timers, Cygnettes

Developing leaders to assist the gym teachers in their classes was the goal of the Leaders Gym Program. It also gave the girls experience in leading their peers.

"The program will help me in my college work as I am going to major in physical education." — Laura Stream.

"When I taught swimming, it was rewarding to see all my beginners finally floating." — Christi Hansen.

Timing and recording the swimmers' times at home meets was the responsibility of the Timers. Before the seson began, the timers perfected their skill with the stop watch.

"It was the closest that I could possibly get to competitive swimming my sophomore year." — Randy Kay.

Cygnettes, the girls' swim club, spent the majority of the year on perfecting their skills. Their annual water ballet show, "Toys," was a product of their effort and style.

"It's an interesting method of expression." — Cathy Ransdell, president.

Homecoming'71 attempts Civil War repeat

This year homecoming was based on the Civil War. It was a time for students to express their school spirit by building floats, attending the pep assembly and rally and cheering the Vikings on to victory.

"We worked longer and harder on homecoming than most people realize. We tried to please the entire student body, but it seems that we'll never know if we did." — Homecoming codirector Pam Abramson.

"The results of homecoming showed a lot of thought and time had been put into it. Homecoming gets you going with school activities after being away so long." — Linda Ruesch.

"The pep assembly brought about unification throughout the school. Even though the mood was not as enthusiastic as previous years, I really felt good. A lot of kids cared enough to come." — Mary Curran.

Fall play demands emotional maturity

"The Children's Hour," a play written by Lillian Hellman, deals with the lives of two teachers, Karen Wright and Martha Dobie, who run a private boarding school. Their careers and reputations are ruined when a student from the school, Mary Tilford, spreads lies about them.

"The play is a difficult drama for high school students to perform. The personalities of the characters portrayed were deep, and it takes mature actors to play the parts." — Mrs. Nancy Knopik, stage director.

"It was a creative attempt to capture the frustrations of the two school teachers." — Marci Eisenstein.

"The play displayed the fine talent that the students at Northi possess." — Barbara Greenberg.

"I thought the audience was uneasy about the subject involved. That is why they laughed at scenes that were not funny. Laughter was a way of covering up their uneasiness on a subject they were embarrassed about." — Liz Werres, cast member.

'Snow White' introduces new Northi talent

Characters of the well-known fairy tale "Snow White" were brought to life by Northi students in the Children's Play. Because of the number of parts available, students who had never performed on stage before were given the opportunity to do so. Working in the theater for the first time proved to be a rewarding experience for cast members.

"Some people didn't realize their ability until they were able to perform."

— David Brandwein

"I got a lot out of performing in 'Snow White.' It was fantastic because it helped me overcome my shyness of audiences." — Lisa Lipton

"The play was fun, and I met a lot of nice new kids." — Tim Schnell

"I feel the children in the audience understood and believed in the characters on stage." — Terry Sacks

"We didn't expect a full house for 'Snow White' due to the lack of interest concerning the theater department. However, we did hope for one. I felt in a way that I was bringing happiness by being in the play. If I can make one person smile, it seems worthwhile." — Laura Millman

One-Act Plays show all aspects of theatre

For the first time, Northi students presented an evening of theatre composed of four one-act plays. The plays, under student direction, showed various aspects of theatre. "The American Dream" represented absurdity while "The Informer" and "The Jewish Wife" illustrated drama. Comedy was emphasized in "Plaza Suite." Student involvement increased because of the need for more cast and crew members.

"To me, directing a one-act play was a real challenge. I found it very hard; however, the end result was rewarding." — Gail Meyers

"Performing in the play was a lot of fun, but at times there was a lot of pressure on me." — Mayo Pardo

"At first I was disgusted with being in the plays because I felt things were bad. I think it was worth it, for the end result gave me a great feeling." — Diane Temkin

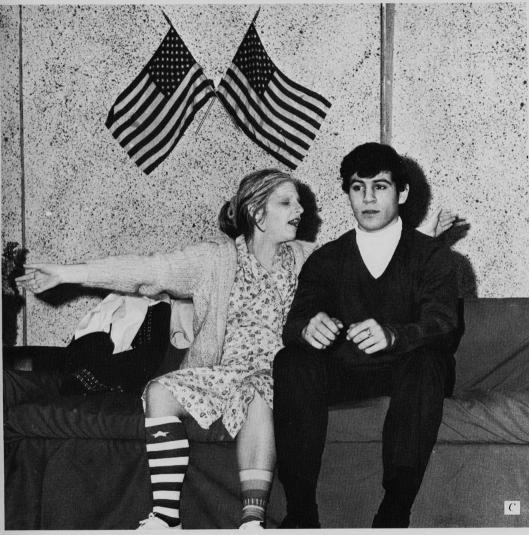

"I really enjoyed working on 'Plaza Suite.' This comedy was different from the dramas presented in the respect that it involved timing as well as acting." — Howard Delman

"I found being in 'The American Dream' was rewarding because I met many different people and it gave me a chance to act. It was an experience I'll never forget." — Ron Eichaker

Norsecapades utilizes student originality

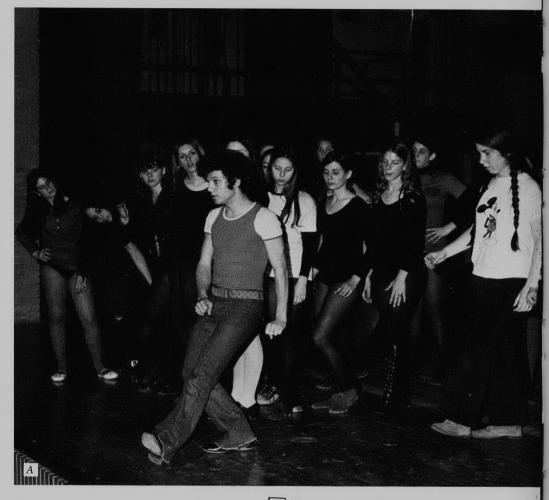

This year approximately 110 people, using their talents and inventive ideas, initiated "Send It Back It's Still Kicking." Students became more involved with the show because the script, music and ideas were all student-oriented. The format of Norsecapades was altered because the script for the show was written before auditions took place. This enabled the directors to select people who seemed to fit the designated parts best. As a result, more time could be utilized for rehearsals.

"There are a lot of very talented kids at Northi and Norsecapades is the time when these kids can exhibit them." — Larry Fishman

"I think that having directors who are strict as well as efficient is an important factor to the success of any show." — Susan Fortunato

'Let Me Be the One' Upholds tradition

Turnabout, Northi's only semiformal dance this year, was sponsored by Hall B Council. Girls were given the opportunity to break tradition by asking out their favorite beau. Music for Turnabout was provided by a group called "The Lost Cause." Attendance at the dance was not as great as Hall B Council had hoped for, but the evening was one to be remembered for all the couples who attended.

"I could tell a lot of planning and time had been put forth to make Turnabout a success, but it seems a shame that such a wonderful tradition is dying out." — Dan Minkus

"If there had been more publicity I feel Turnabout would have been a bigger success. There did not seem to be as many people there as in previous years." — Judy Jacob

"It seemed more fun because it was the last Turnabout dance I'd ever go to." — Karen Johannes

"I really liked the theme song of Turnabout. I also felt the group was fantastic. — Connie Hacket

COMPASS formed to unify student body

COMPASS is the newly-formed committee designed by administrators and members of the student body to circulate pride and spirit throughout Northi. Stop and Shop Day and OK Day were developed by COMPASS to acquaint students with the available facilities and endless opportunities open to them. The two days consisted of a relatively flexible schedule which allowed students to devote their time to areas of individual interest.

"Both Stop and Shop Day and OK Day could have been a lot better if they were more organized. I felt that too many kids didn't take advantage of the opportunities opened to them on these days." — JoEllen Kaufman

"I would have enjoyed OK Day much more if other activities had been offered." - Laurie Leon

Carnival provides 'A Time of All Times'

"A Time of All Times" was the theme chosen by Sophomore Class Board for their traditional carnival. By choosing a theme concerning time relating to the era in which we are presently living, students would have the opportunity to use a variety of original ideas for their booths. Sophomore Board wanted to combine the fun, games and excitement associated with a carnival with student involvement.

"I don't think the carnivals in the past have been as successful and effective as ours was this year. We hoped to involve more of the interested student body by permitting them to form their own booths instead of just the kids involved in clubs." — Howie Seitler.

"Sophomore Class Board worked especially hard in encouraging all the kids to come to the carnival this year."

'Color My World' climax of senior year

"Color My World," Prom '72, was the highlight of the year. It was held at the Sheraton Chicago on May 26. This was the one formal dance attended by Northi students. It climaxed the end of the four years spent together by the senior class.

"I think Prom can be good for the student body. It offers a change of pace as well as variety." — Joey Hankin, Junior Class president.

"The participation in Prom is not as great as it used to be. People would rather skip the formalities of the dance. Prom weekend in itself is still very popular." — Marcie Price.

"I believe that Prom is extremely over-rated but nice." — Lisa Davis.

"Prom is something I looked forward to all year but it didn't fulfill my expectations." — Bruce Donenberg.

Graduation is the last experience seniors will ever share together. It is the culmination of four years of growing, learning, hard work and cherished memories. It is a time when a student can look in retrospect at himself and others and cite the changes that have occurred during the past four years. At the same time he is wondering what the future will bring. What will I become? What will the people around me become?

Varsity team closes season with 2-7 slate

Contrary to preseason expectations, the varsity football team finished with a 2-7 overall record and tied for seventh in CSL play. Injuries to key players and lack of practice time contributed to the season's losses. Highlighting the season was the 34-6 victory over Sullivan.

Although Keith Schirmer was injured after two games, he made the honorable mention all-conference team.

Seniors Mark Hamilton and Phil Steffeck were selected to the all-conference team, while senior John De-Correvont was awarded honorable mention status.

"We performed well, but had some bad breaks. Losing Schirmer was a letdown because of his running ability. Beating Sullivan was the highlight of the season." — Wayne Cohen

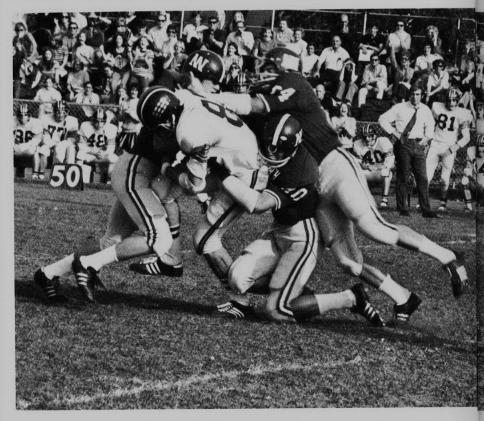

"We had a good season, but could have done better. If we had a few key breaks in certain games the whole season would be changed around, giving us a better record." — Brian Murphy

"I felt I had a good group of men to work with. It was a dissapointment when Schirmer got hurt. The team members had a good attitude. Modular scheduling affected practices because we would have to wait until 4:15 p.m. to practice." — Coach McCarrell

Poor attitude contributes to season's losses

The sophomore football team under Coach John Lorenz posted an overall record of 3-6 with a 2-5 conference record. Although they lost, Coach Lorenz felt the sophomores played their best game against New Trier West. Coach Lorenz added that the losing season could be attributed to the poor attitude of the team.

Sophomores capture third, varsity fifth

Although there was a shortage of runners the varsity harriers managed to end the season with a fifth place in the conference meet and a season record of 4-7. On the sophomore level the Vikings posted a season record of 7-3 and third in the conference. Next year's teams show a lot of potential on both levels.

"The highlight of the season was our victory over Niles West in the dual meet after they beat us by only four points in the township meet. Jeff Baerman was the most improved runner. We enjoyed being together as a team and had a good time throughout the entire season." — Rory Packer

"In the beginning we did poorly because of the lack of runners, but we improved as the season progressed. In cross-country I get a feeling of satisfaction by trying to do the best job I can."

— Jerry Leikin

"The highlight was when we took four out of five top places in the Maine South and Deerfield meet. I like running competitively." — John Kuhnle

"I feel that the students' attitude to not go out for a sport contributed to the poor turnout for cross-country. If we could solve this problem and do a better job at informing people of what cross-country is really like, there would be a better turnout at meets and there would be a larger student interest in the sport. For the varsity Purple Porpoise it was a rebuilding year, although they managed to finish fourth in the Proviso West Relays. Bill Anderson, Errol Chavin and John Mullenix were the team's leaders throughout the year.

Timewise it was the fastest sophomore team ever at Northi, according to Coach Ron Vender. The sophomores took a fifth in the CSL and placed third at the Maine East Sophomore Invitational. Outstanding team members were Andy Berman, Mitch Berman and Sam Kramer. Freshmen Neil Hersh and Glenn Zimmer also added to the team's strength.

"What I find rewarding is finishing the last hard set in a hard workout and knowing that I gave it 100 percent and knowing not too many kids in the school could do something like that." — Bill Anderson.

Speed, hustle demonstrated in cager wins

"In the future I'll be able to look back and see whether or not basketball helped me. Right now I can't say." — Matt Menze.

"Besides playing basketball, learning teamwork and meeting people is also enjoyable." — Kent Schirmer.

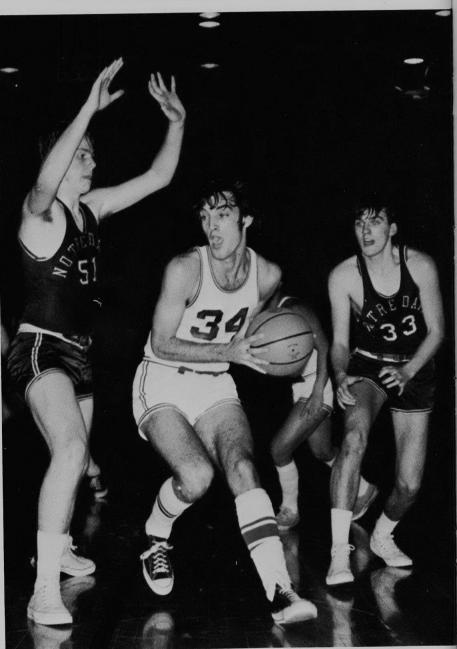

"Only time will tell if basketball will help me in the future." — Tom Goebel.

"Basketball makes me a better person. It teaches me how to get along with people." — Steve Goebel.

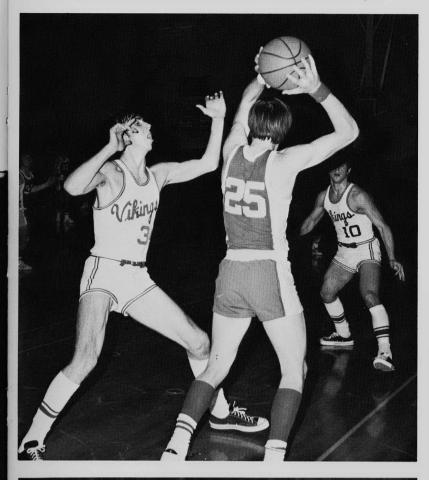

"There is a great deal of personal satisfaction involved in playing basketball. Just knowing you're good enough to make the varsity team is rewarding."

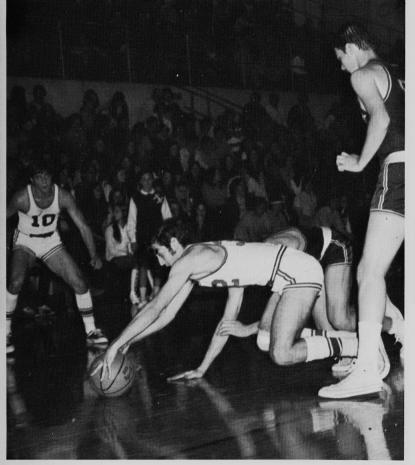

— Keith Schirmer.

"There are certain intangibles which make basketball rewarding. Cooperation, discipline and teamwork are some of them." — Curt Johnson.

Soph cagers display spirit during action

This year's sophomore basketball team faced tough Central Suburban League opponents. Coach Ackman's sophs ran up a 4-10 conference record and finished sixth in CSL action. Brian Wolf and Bud Swanson were named the outstanding players by Coach Ackman.

"By playing basketball I learned how to gut it out." — Bud Swanson

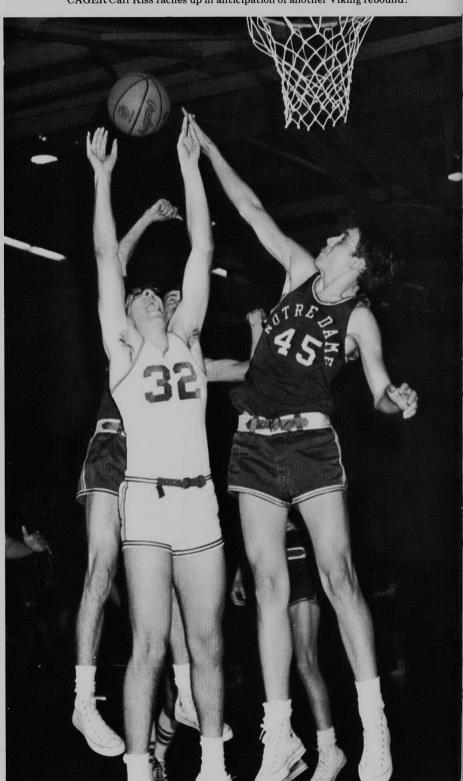

"I enjoy being part of and associating with the basketball team." — John Phipps

"The 57-51 victory over a strong Deerfield team, one of the league contenders, was the highlight of this year." — Coach Ackman

Varsity squad finishes fourth in indoor track

Attempting to improve upon their fourth place finish in the indoor CSL meet, the varsity cindermen boasted six returning lettermen. They were Dennis Fredrichs, Stuart Goldsmith, Marc Klessman, Brian Myhr, Rory Packer and Jeff Baerman. Also adding to the team's strength were Steve Robbins, Marty Magida, Brad Anstadt, Joel Horwitz and Jerry Leikin.

"From being on the track team, I learned how to be competitive." — Joel Horwitz

"I try to stress a feeling of competitiveness. Stamina and endurance are a part of the workout." — Coach Conway

Sound defense stressed as key to Viking wins

This year's varsity baseball squad was built around the nine returning lettermen, the most in Viking history. They were Don Andrzejewski, Kent Schirmer, Barry Ruttenberg, Joel Chernoff, John Barnefield, Keith Schirmer, Mark Goldberg, Rich Levin and Dennis Cooper.

Coach Kmet cited Barnefield as the number one pitcher, Chernoff as the most consistent hitter and Ruttenberg as the team's slugger. According to Coach Kmet, Niles West and Maine West were the teams to beat.

"Baseball is a sport where you must learn to cooperate with your teammates." — Stu Cohen

Vikings swing toward triumphs over CSL foes

Varsity tennis team members found themselves up against tough CSL opponents. With only two returning lettermen, Shep Gould and Phil Jacks, the netmen looked to Paul Dhaliwal to help the team. Coach Grant felt the team was good even though it was young.

The golf team boasted three returning lettermen. They were Bob Cooper, Bob Pollitzer and Jeff Johnson. According to Coach Rusk, the Viking golfers met strong CSL competition against some of the top players in the state. The team's preseason goal was to finish with a winning record.

"Being part of a winning team gives me a feeling of self-accomplishment."

— Shep Gould

"I enjoy the competitiveness of golf."

— Bob Cooper

"I look at a golfer's mental attitude as well as his fundamental swing." — Coach Rusk

Northi differs from frosh's expectations

Most freshmen found high school different from what they had anticipated. Some were disappointed, others were relieved to discover that school was not the terrifying place they had expected. Freshmen had their entire high school life confronting them at once, which made plans beyond high school difficult to conceive.

"Before we went to high school, older kids said not to go to the washrooms or you'd get beat up and only sit at certain tables or all the greasers will get you, but it's not true. I didn't think it would be as hard as it is. In eighth grade the teachers said, 'You're smart. You can get into this class.' But you get in with all the brains." — Steve Feller

"School seems a lot easier. There is more free time, more time to talk to people." — Susan Rein

"I didn't expect all this free time and I thought school would be a real bore, but it's really fun out-running the security guards." — Marc Baba

"I don't have any plans so far. I do know which college I'm going to go to, though." — Dave Katnik

"I always wanted to be a secretary. But now I have typing and I don't like it. Now I want to be a doctor and help kids on drugs and things. That's one of my latest ambitions; I got that from health class." — Kim Smith

"I guess that life is just everything that happens." — Gary Frankel

"Life means freedom." — Danny Zaitz

Juniors explore ideas in self-discovery

THE BEST WAY to clean something is to wash it in the sink, as demonstrated by Donna Wiora.

MICHAEL LEVIN, Rosanne Angell, Julie Gutmann and David Brodwin talk in the courtyard.

Juniors could no longer be sure of their futures because their interests had changed as much as their personalities. College was often thought about; it seemed so near and so important. Their views on life had matured but were still incomplete. Juniors realized that they had only begun to discover who they were and where their lives were headed.

"The future is unpredictable yet very real to me. I know only that I am supposed to go to college. I don't know why." — Marcy Kornblith

"I know I would like to do something in the field of math or science, but I don't know specifically what, as of now." — Richard Shapiro

"I guess that I have really begun to start to grow up." — Jeri Friedman

"I think I have grown more mature. It seems like all of a sudden I've grown up very fast." — Sheryl Tucker

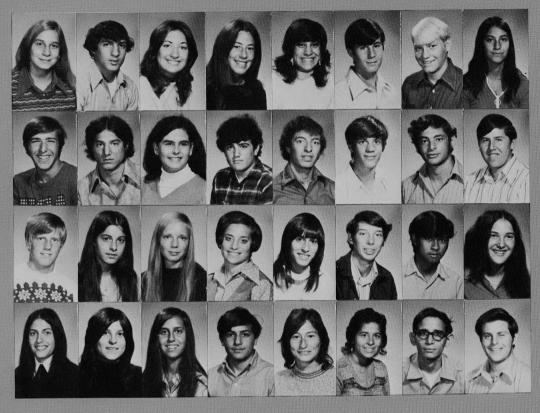

"I'm worried about the present, how things are day-to-day. I have more to worry about today, right this moment, than tomorrow." — Ann Pedone

"I feel as though I have a better outlook on life." — Roberta Zigman

"I think life is something pretty good. I want to live it to the very fullest. I don't really know what it means." — Jeri Friedman

"People are here to pursue happiness. All beings should be happy in one way or another." — Bruce Dolitsky

"I have to consider myself as a student first, so most of my life centers around school." — Ann Pedone

Class of '72 anticipates new lifestyle

What is life?

"How do I know? I still haven't figured it out." — Steven Goldberg

"Life is existing day to day and attempting to find happiness in the world around us." — Bruce Fogel

"Life is a gift from God, so it should be treated like something very sacred." — Phyllis Shapiro

"Life is searching but never quite finding." — Keith Schirmer

Seniors had attained a better understanding of life than the underclassmen, but the answers to the question "What is life?" showed they were still searching for the key to their existence. Some seniors believed that the answer might lie in their relationships with other people, so their future intentions were to work with people. High school experiences were limited; therefore, seniors looked forward to graduation. It promised new opportunities to explore the mysteries of life.

"I would like to work in the ghetto with underprivileged children because then I would feel like my life had some meaning." — Rebecca Collins

"I learned that you have to get along with people. Aside from my occupational plans, I plan to look into social areas and learn more about human nature." — David Perry "I've learned to look at things from more angles than I ever have before." — Jonathan Sales

"I've become much more liberal and learned how to live with different kinds of people." — Debra Feldman

"I think that graduation is the beginning for everyone. It is the first time in our lives that we are on our own." — Caryl Alter

"Graduation is an end to an inane high school career. Junior and senior years of high school have been the most wasteful years of my life as far as learning is concerned. Socially, it's helped."

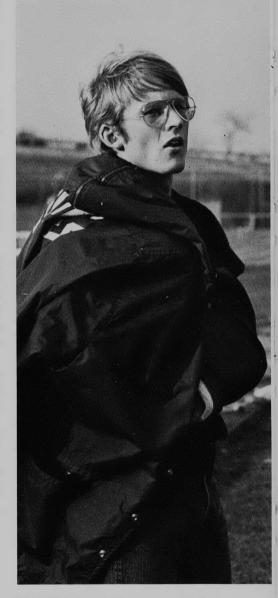

— Carol Morath

"Graduation is definitely both a beginning and an end. But it's more of a beginning because I'm going to be a lot more on my own— which I am looking forward to. It's giving me an opportunity to do what I haven't done before."— Linda Schubert

"It's kind of like the end of a beginning. High school is one step which is the beginning and when you graduate, it ends." — Kent Schirmer

"Graduation is just a preparatory thing for life." — Janet Larsen

"Life is a preparation for something else which is a preparation for something else." — Mark Sanz

Dr. Gibbs promotes student awareness

Working closely with the School Board, Dr. Wesley Gibbs, beginning his second year as superintendent of the Niles Township High Schools, initiated advisory committees to all school activities. "We provided a directory of advisory committee members for all parents and students by mid-January. With the directory, parent and student reaction to all school activities may be readily channelled to the teachers and administrators for consideration," he says.

Dr. Gibbs feels modular scheduling clearly offers distinct advantages over conventional scheduling in the opportunity it provides to more adequately meet individual student needs and wants. "Our challenge will be to find ways to make learning opportunities attractive to all students, so that each student will recognize that Niles North is a place to get help," he says.

NILES TOWNSHIP HIGH SCHOOL BOARD OF EDUCATION — Standing: Mr. Lionel Gilbert, Mr. John Carlson, Mr. James Moore, Mr. James Gottreich. Seated: Mr. Angelos Poulakidas, Dr. Irwin Ginsburgh(President), Mrs. Herman Medak(Secretary).

Dr. Weldy encourages student involvement

During the past summer, Dr. Weldy worked with students and faculty members to formulate a program which would combat apathy and encourage student involvement in school activities.

Their work developed into COM-PASS, which stands for Committees to Promote Pride and School Spirit. The group was divided into four smaller sections concerned with athletics, student services, extra-curricular activities and educational review.

"The purpose of the COMPASS committees is to get students involved in their education. A student involved and contributing to the educational program of the school gains more himself. Students were too apathetic in previous years," says Dr. Weldy.

Dr. Weldy also tried to make modular scheduling more valuable for the students and faculty members by encouraging them to use their unscheduled time more wisely than last year. "My goal is to make modular scheduling serve education for teachers and students. Each student should have full opportunity to use all resources of our school to full advantage," he says.

Hall principals take on new assignments

IN ADDITION to his duties as Hall B principal, Mr. Galen Hosler is also in charge of the social studies and art departments.

WELCOMING a student into his office is Dr. Charles Thompson, Hall A principal.

Reorganization at the administrative level took place at Northi this year. The position of department chairman was abolished, and the hall principals took over the job as directors of instructional groups.

Hall A's new principal, Dr. Charles Thompson, was in charge of business education, home economics, industrial arts and foreign language. "I feel that my new job is both exciting and challenging," he says.

Mr. Galen Hosler, former social studies department chairman, became principal of Hall B and director of social studies and art. Transferring from Niles West, Dr. Peter Egan, Hall C principal, was responsible for English and music. "I like working with teachers, instructing and helping them prepare for their classes," he says.

Mr. Jack Morris, Hall D principal, took charge of mathematics and science. Former Hall B principal Mr. George Baptist became assistant building principal and building manager.

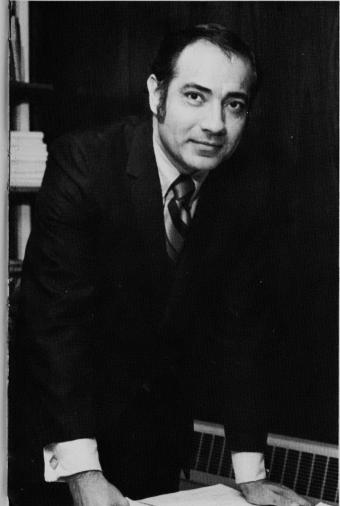

DR. PETER EGAN, Hall C principal, cnecks the development of his newly-grown beard.

MR. GEORGE BAPTIST is busy at his new assignment as assistant principal.

MISS PATRICIA TAEPKE, dean of students, finds time to pilot her own airplane.

Two teachers appointed deans of students

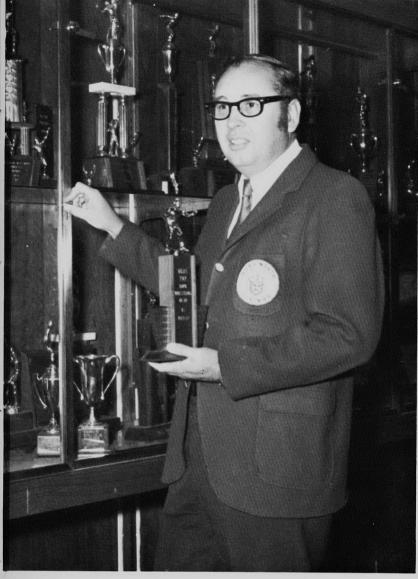

"And I thought I used to be busy! Teaching was paradise compared to my new job," says Mr. John Ramirez.

Because the hall principals were given extra responsibilities as directors of instructional groups, they had little time to deal with discipline. Two deans of students, Mr. John Ramirez and Miss Patricia Taepke, were appointed to take charge of all disciplinary duties the hall principals previously handled. Mr. Ramirez, in charge of Halls A and B, and Miss Taepke, in charge of Halls C and D, dealt with all disciplinary problems in an attempt to establish uniform policies and procedures.

As director of student services, Miss Virginia Landwehr managed the guidance and special education departments. School psychologists, social workers and nurses were also under Miss Landwehr's contro. Dr. George Bauer, director of physical welfare, took charge of the boys' and girls' physical education departments, health education, driver education and all interscholastic athletics.

DR. WELDY, Mr. Baptist and Miss Landwehr discuss the grand opening of the Sunoco Station with senior Barb Greenberg.

DR. GEORGE BAUER, director of physical welfare, prepares to place another well-deserved trophy in the Viking display case.

What are students striving for today?

Students are forever altering their priorities in order to establish goals suitable for themselves as individuals. They are in constant search of the intangible and the unknown, questioning actions and demanding reasons for their occurrences. Each student views his goals in a different perspective. Faculty members who are involved with students can at the same time view them objectively. They see a great variation in the ambitions for which they are striving.

"Some students are searching because they sense that change is a very integral part of life and they can be a part of the change process if they try. In short, they're sensing that alternatives are possible and are trying to feel out which ones might be most viable for them." — Miss Ruth Belser

"What a good many are clamoring for is relevancy and individual rights. They want to grasp ideas which have bearing on their lives rather than become automats regurgitating useless facts and figures like IBM machines."

— Miss Marla Adelson

"Student goals today are what they have always been: to find the answer to the question "Who am I?" and to develop an environment that will allow them op an environment that will allow them unlimited opportunities to experiment with a host of these potential answers."

— Mr. Joel Baker

"Most students look forward to becoming responsible adults by adapting to an environment that is constantly changing." — Mrs. Marian Behr

How do Northi teachers view their position in education?

In the past few years, the role of the teacher in relation to his students has been questioned but never resolved. Faculty members interviewed at North feel that the teacher should not merely be an instructor but also a motivator of student interest and learning.

"A teacher's role is to bring out the best in every student and help him stand on his own feet. Through his daily personal contact, the teacher should guide each student toward the realization of his self and his goals." Mrs. Marilla Feld

"Rather than being a teacher, the role, as I see it, is that of an organizer, a planner and a leader of opportunities for learning. It is the student's responsibility to take advantage of these opportunities and from them learn." — Mr. Clarence Florence

"The role of the teacher in education is that of a guide and a resource person who is concerned with the varied individual needs of the student." — Mrs. Mardonna Isenberg

"The teacher is to help the student mature and realize his fullest potential by exposing him to the teacher's area of expertise and stimulating his curiosity and cognitive capacities to the fullest."

What causes student apathy?

Apathy is generally described as a lack of interest or concern, yet it is difficult to define because of its measurement in degrees. What one person may consider to be apathy on the part of the students, another might just label as a lack of motivating interest originating from the group involved. Remedies for this problem are constantly being sought. In order to cure a problem, however, one must first be familiar with the causes.

"Maybe apathy is a realization that the power is concentrated in specific persons and functions, and that student participation is either token, minimal, exploratory or ineffectual due to tradition, resistance to change, or the actual power balance even when student participation is sincerely encouraged." - Mrs. May Pietz

"Students are not apathetic. They care a great deal about a great many things." — Mrs. Ann Levinson

"Apathy results from not being involved. Involvement in constructive activities increases the chances of an experience being worthwhile and brings about constructive criticism. Non-involvement leads to apathy and senseless criticism. Involvement means true dedication to a cause or event, and it isn't only Niles North students who are failing in this. Our whole culture has somewhat lost sight of this value." — Mrs. Barbara Massmann

"Calling a person apathetic is condemning that person for not considering important the same thing you hold important." — Mr. Alphonsus Niec

Is student learning affected by self-directed study?

Modular scheduling, initiated at North last year, was designed to give the student more time to enrich his education by utilizing various facilities made available to him both inside and outside of school. With an abundance of unscheduled time, the decision as to how it will be spent is placed upon each individual student. The question as to whether students' independence has been beneficial or detrimental to their studies is one that arises in any discussion concerning modular scheduling.

"For many, it has blurred their sense of values and goals. For others, it has freed them from a burdensome schedule and allowed them to pursue, with great enthusiasm in some cases, their education at a far greater pace than would be possible on a fixed schedule." — Mr. Michael Rotchford

"The serious, motivated student is willing and able to manage his own education very well indeed. In our rapidly changing world where facts often become obsolete within a few years, or even months, it is more appropriate that the student "learn-how-to-learn" than store facts. In my opinion, student independence, if positively directed, is most likely to accomplish this." — Miss Ruth Smith

"A student who is motivated to learn will probably find that having blocks of open time has helped him to make greater use of the school's educational resources. Students who are disorganized or uninterested in school probably don't learn any the less under the modular system. Neither do they learn any more. At least modular scheduling gives those students who want to learn the greatest opportunity to use teacher assistance, library facilities, and other resource materials." — Mrs. Lorraine Rubin

Northi faculty works toward better rapport with students

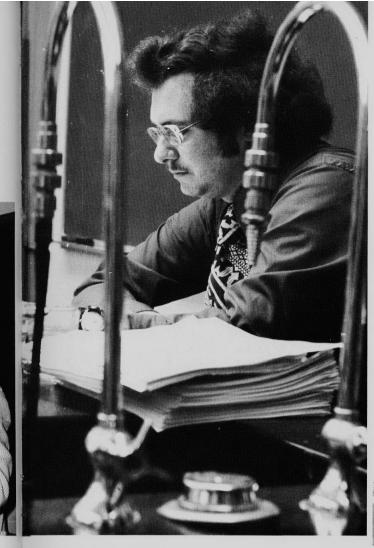

"I REALLY was in class yesterday!" exclaims Sandra Steinhandler to her triple A mod teacher, Mr. James Tomson.

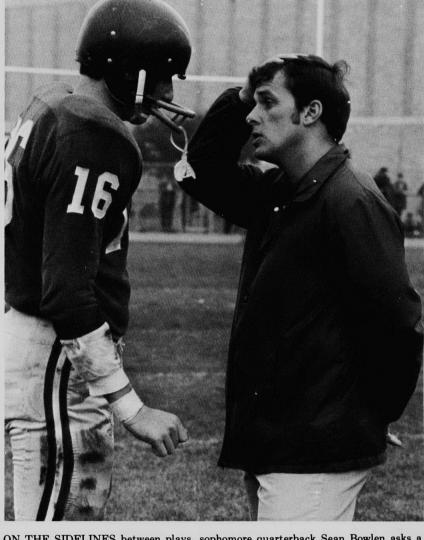

PRONUNCIATION plays a major role in learning French, as demonstrated by Mrs. Jacquelyn Coleman.

 $\label{eq:mr.correction} \begin{tabular}{ll} MR. ROBERT MILSTEIN finds his free mods useful for correcting chemistry labs. \end{tabular}$

ON THE SIDELINES between plays, sophomore quarterback Sean Bowlen asks a bewildering question of head sophomore football coach John Lorenz.

DURING BAND PRACTICE, Dr. Lawrence Wathen shows drum majorette Cheryl Gelder the proper use of the baton.

We have spent this past year in trying to foresee the unforeseeable. We have been faced with the difficult task of characterizing a year before it had been completed and capturing the thoughts and ideas of a diverse student body. We learned that it is impossible to create a yearbook by merely sitting in the publications room. Instead, we brought various questions to the students and used their quotes as the basis for our copy. Because of their changing needs, we have tried to create an innovative yearbook, leaving the traditional style to the past. During this transition we were confronted with many challenges. We owe much gratitude to our staff who went along with our new and somewhat vague ideas. We learned how difficult it was to express ourselves to people who knew nothing of what we were trying to convey.

We've all spent long hours working on the yearbook, missing meals and classes to meet deadlines. We've been forced to give up much more appealing activities in order to get some layouts drawn or copy written for the following morning. We became frustrated when copy and cutlines had to be typed and retyped so that we could attain perfection. We've come up against trying situations which taught us patience, but more important, responsibility. Our main goal was to produce a successful end product. This we feel we have accomplished, but we are aware of the vast room for improvement. Ours was merely an experiment; we hope that in the future the editors will continue where we left off.

We, alone, cannot take all the credit for this production. There are so many people who gave us ideas and helped us carry out our own. We want to thank everyone without whom the year-book would not have been possible. We would like to give special thanks to Mr. Michael Almeida, our personal representative from American Yearbook Company, who turned us on to the different controls for each section and donated so much of his time to helping us tackle our new problems; to Root Studios for providing prompt and efficient service and withstanding our last-minute orders; to Jim Morgan and Len Novak for their consistently good photography and their willingness to travel all around the city for our picture ideas; to Phil Jacks for leaving his own world of creativity and becoming a tool for our imaginations; to Mrs. Nancy Crowther and Mrs. Mary Howell who gave up much of their time in helping us with community service and work-study photos; and to our parents, teachers, and friends who put up with our forever changing moods and whims.

Our advisor, Miss Maureen Armbruster, deserves even more than this small paragraph can offer. We are positive that without all the time and effort she has contributed we would not have made it through to the end of the book. When other teachers were home relaxing, Miss Armbruster was sitting in her office proof reading copy and correcting the mistakes we had overlooked. We sometimes wondered how anyone could have the patience and stamina to plough through so many pages at one time without a single complaint. We want to thank her for permitting us to stray from the traditional yearbook style and for sitting quietly by as we constantly changed our minds. But most of all, we feel we have benefited greatly from the friendship she has given us. We appreciate her departure from the typical student-teacher relationship to that of a friend, someone we could talk to on a personal level. Thank you very much.
