

Speaking out against Nazis

Virginia Gardner, of Arlington Heights, presents Skokie Mayor Albert J. Smith with a batch of 2,600 letters and statements from persons across the nation protesting the planned June 25 Skokie march by a neo-Nazi group. Looking on at Smith's office are John Matzer (standing, right), village manager, and Harvey Schwartz, Skokie corporation counsel. "Whether the march occurs or not, it is my personal opinion that great numbers of people should speak out and let their feelings be known," said Gardner. (Sun-Times Photo by Jim Frost)
