A FEATHER IN YOUR CAP!

by NORMAN SCHACK
President, Niles Township Community Chest

After the holiday season, most of us feel literally and figuratively "spent."

Yet, while we take a post-New Year pause to catch our breath and take a quick financial inventory, there's one organization that can't afford to ease up for a minute . . . let alone run out of funds.

Most likely you've heard of it . . . THE NILES TOWNSHIP COMMUNITY CHEST.

Somehow, the chest never seems to be quite full enough That's undoubtedly because there are so many deserving individuals and groups who benefit immeasurably from funds provided by the chest.

Supposing Community Chest did happen to fall down on the job. What would happen to:

- Niles Township Boy Scouts?
- Niles Township Girl Scouts?
- Family Service?
- The Orchard School?
- Niles Township Safety Council?
- Niles Township Human Relations Council?

Where then would these organizations – all within our own community – obtain sufficient funds to do the same wonderful, constructive things that have marked their past efforts?

It's simple. They wouldn't.

The key to the success of any community chest lies in the word, "community." In the case of the NILES TOWNSHIP COMMUNITY CHEST, it's the first three words that spell success or failure.

How about lending a helping hand? It'll be a feather in your cap a red feather.

Note . . . Watch for the Niles Township Community Chest "Cleanup campaign;" to be announced soon.

Please pardon our dust ... and noise!

We've begun excavation work on a major telephone project - trench-digging for the addition of underground cables to expand telephone circuits for Skokie.

So that accounts for the rat-a-tat-tat of air hammers and the rumbling of digging machines you've been hearing around town. Actually, these are the sounds of telephone progress. As Skokie grows, your telephone system must grow along with it.

We hope to have the trenching work finished late this month, and the whole job completed by late summer. For whatever inconvenience it may cause you, we apologize now and thank you heartily for your patience and co-operation.

Our Legislators Oppose Branch Banking Plan

The three state legislators who represent Niles Township have declared themselves firmly against any form of branch banking.

At the same time Lincoln Shonkwiler, of the Skokie Trust and Savings Bank, was named to the "Bankers Committee to Oppose Monopoly Banking" by the Illinois Bankers Association.

This means that if all Illinois communities take as strong a position against branch banking as Niles Township it will mean certain defeat for Rep. Paul J. Randolph's branch banking bill in this session of the Illinois legislature.

The bill would permit branch banking in and within 15 miles of the Chicago city limits, a radius that would cover all of Cook county and parts of Du Page, Lake and Will counties.

State congressmen from the 6th Congressional District see nothing but harm for the economy of the area if the bill is passed.

Rep. Arthur E. Simmons (R, Skokie) told the Villager: "I have been in close touch with about 20 banks in the 6th district and if I were to vote today, I would oppose it."

"The main reason for my opposition to it is that money earned and deposited locally should be used in the community. This is impossible with branch banking because major loan decisions are made in the main office."

Simmons said that in areas where branch banking has been in effect home owners and potential home buyers find it much more difficult to arrange loans.

Rep. John W. Carroll (R., Park Ridge) said, "I am opposed to the Randolph bill personally and philosophically because monopoly banking would not be in the best interests of the people in the 6th district."

Rep. Bernard Peskin (D., Northbrook), voicing similar disapproval, said "experience in other states where there is branch banking, shows that there is one loan officer for every ten branch banks and that this loan officer is directed by the main office."

Executives of banks in Lincolnwood, Morton Grove and Skokie said that branching would lead to monopoly of deposits and credit by a few large banks, the only ones that could afford to start branches.

Chicago's two largest banks, both of which support the Randolph bill, are the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Company of Chicago and the First National Bank of Chicago.

Morton Grove, Lincolnwood Papers Started

The Villager Publishing Co. has started two new publications—the Morton Grove Messenger and the Lincolnwood Lantern.

Parent publication, the Villager, was founded 9 months ago as a unique community news-magazine serving the Niles Township area.

Owners of the Villager Publishing Co. are Thomas E. Branagan, former Associated Press newsman, and Myron Greisdorf, prominent Skokie man who is president of the Plymouth Paper Co.

Greisdorf and Branagan stated that both Lincolnwood and Morton Grove "have for some time needed publications devoted exclusively to them."

"The new ventures were launched at the urging of residents and merchants in these two communities. We hope to provide up-to-date, thorough coverage of all important news events in Morton Grove and Lincolnwood."

Separate offices and staffs have been set up in the two villages to handle the new publications.

Managing director of the Lantern will be Bert Rosenbaum, a veteran Villager ad man, while responsibility for the Messenger goes to Karl Martin, also a former Villager mainstay who has been active in Niles Township newspaper circles for a number of years.

General editorial duties will be handled by Tom Bayless, University of Indiana graduate who has been involved in news and promotional work for several years, and Leonard Furman, University of Illinois graduate who for three years was a foreign correspondent for United Press.

Each of the new publications will be distributed weekly on Tuesday mornings. Subscriptions and classified and display space will be sold separately or in combination with the Villager, which is distributed on Thursday mornings.

CAUCUS PARTY

The Skokie Caucus Party announced it will hold its nominating convention for the coming election on Jan. 25 at 1 p.m. in the Highland grammar school, 9700 N. Crawford Ave.

City-Village Debate Moves Into High

Staunch defenders of Skokie's village form of government tangled typewriters this week with those who want to change the community to a city. Both sides were busy issuing statements and preparing campaign literature.

More direct set-tos have been arranged for this coming Sunday and Tuesday—full-fledged debates.

A referendum will be held in Skokie Jan. 20 to determine whether residents want to switch from the present village system to a city-aldermanic form. Now, the village has six trustees, a village clerk and a village president, all elected at large, plus an appointed village manager. Under the proposed city-aldermanic system, there would be 16 aldermen—two from each of eight wards. The status of a village manager, or city manager, has not been spelled out by the Skokie Civic Federation, which was formed by political "outs" to push the governmental change—and, lacking any precedent, presumably would be decided by the courts.

The newly-formed Committee to Keep Skokie a Village took off against arguments advanced by the Civic Federation in favor of a city-aldermanic form of government.

The committee, headed by civic leader L.O. Green, published a comprehensive pamphlet which among other things argued the merits of the Federation's contention that in a ward system—with aldermen elected by district—the voter always has "somebody to see."

"Skokie doesn't need 'fixes,'" the campaign leaflet said. "This, in effect, is what 'somebody to see' means."

The pamphlet went on to say:

"The city with its wards and aldermen is the most expensive form of municipal government. Aldermen's salaries alone would cost over $20,000 annually, while the salaries of other elected officials is unlimited. This is only the first cost. Aldermen need patronage jobs to exist. These, along with log rolling, non-essential projects could run into millions annually.

"The high cost of aldermen and wards is evident from examination of tax rates in neighboring suburbs: Golf figures are 21.8 cents, Niles 31.6 cents, Lincolnwood 36.0 cents, Morton Grove 38.0 cents, Skokie, 46.6 cents, Oak Park 66.0 cents. These are all suburbs. The city of Evanston tax

The non-partisan League of Women Voters of Skokie announced they are sponsoring a debate this Sunday on the city and village forms of government.

Mrs. Alfred Kamin, president of the League, said the debate will be held at 2 p.m. in the Nilehi East assembly hall.

Speaking for the village-manager form of government will be L.O. Green and Russell Lee Carr. Green has been prominent in library and educational affairs, has been chairman of the Citizen's Advisory Committee and president of the Independent Republicans of Skokie. Carr is a member of the legal staff of the village.

Gilbert Gordon and Fred B. Lifton will speak against the village system and for the aldermanic-council form of government. Gordon is attorney for the Skokie Civic Federation and Lifton is on its committee.

On the following Tuesday, Jan. 13, another debate will be held at Stenson School. Sponsored by the Northwest Property Owners Assn., it will start at 8 p.m.

rate is 93.6 cents.

"Evanston and Skokie are nearly equal in size, have similar problems and offer similar municipal services. Evanston, a city, has a tax rate double that of Skokie and 50% higher than Oak Park, both villages. Are Skokians willing to pay twice this much in taxes for the same services?"

Meantime, the Skokie Civic Federation also unleashed a broadside in the form of a brochure. In arguing for the aldermanic form of government, the Federation's literature said:

"Electing councilmen by district guarantees you fair and equal representation in Skokie's local government.

"It strengthens the responsiveness of the elected officials

Liquor License Granted Twin Bowl

A liquor license has been granted the Orchard Twin Bowl, lavish 64-lane bowling alley being erected on Foster St. west of Skokie Blvd. in Skokie.

Village President Ambrose M. Reiter, in his capacity as liquor control commissioner, announced this week that the license would be issued.

Some residents of the area had objected to liquor being served in the new lanes because, they said, it was too close to Sharp Corner school, and schoolchildren might be adversely affected.

Owners of the new lanes, headed by industrialist Neisen Harris, had questioned this stand, in view of the many such establishments patronized by parents with their children, and said that in any event the new lanes were a good 1,000 feet north and west of the school—hardly posing any immediate "danger."

Reiter said in a statement that the lanes "cannot be construed as being located in the immediate vicinity of a school, and I would, therefore, be considered to have been unreasonable in the use of the discretion granted (the liquor commissioner) by the law, if I refused to issue a liquor license."

However, the mayor said that he sought, and received, "certain assurances" from officials of the Twin Bowl about children. They included, he said:

1. No liquor will be served on the concourse when lanes are being used primarily by minors.

2. No pin ball machines will be permitted in the building.

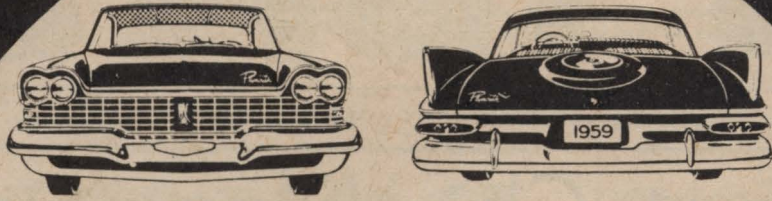

3. Persons under 21 will not be permitted to play billiards.

4. Children under 15 will not be permitted on the premises unless accompanied by a responsible adult, are participants in a sponsored junior league, or have the written consent of a parent.

To Change or Not to Change . . .

Thoughts that occurred to us while reading a pamphlet advocating that Skokie change its form of government from village to city:

The Village Manager (says the pamphlet) becomes the City Manager. Says who? We asked Tom Matthews, attorney for the Illinois Municipal League, and he says nobody can say for sure. There are separate statutes for cities and villages. The courts eventually would have to determine the status of Skokie's manager system.

Our schools need protection from irresponsible zoning changes and political intervention. We don't know what effect changing from village to city can have on schools, since they govern themselves, but we suspect 16 aldermen should be able to intervene a great deal more than six trustees - through sheer weight of numbers.

Only efficient government will protect and save tax dollars. How true. A "model" of efficiency as cited by proponents of the change to city is the city of Evanston. Tax rate there: 93.6 cents. In Skokie, a village almost as big: 46.6 cents.

Two Skokie Banks Buy Oakview Jr. High Bonds

The Skokie Trust and Savings Bank and the Old Orchard Bank and Trust Co., jointly purchased the last block of bonds ($270,000) of the $695,000 bond referendum passed by the voters of the Cleveland School District in January of '58 for the construction of Oakview Junior High School.

Members of the Board of Education of the Cleveland School District thus realized a $7,000 interest saving to the property owners of their district.

Signing bonds purchased by the Skokie Trust and Savings Bank and the Old Orchard Bank and Trust Co., for the construction of Oakview Junior High School in the Cleveland School district are the following officials: left to right, seated, R. C. Klehm, Niles Township school treasurer, and Conrad Smart, president of the board of education of School District 73½. Standing, left to right, are Louis E. Rieger, president of the Old Orchard Bank and Trust Co.; Dr. Homer O. Harvey, superintendent of School District 73½; Lincoln N. Shonkwiler, executive vice president of the Skokie Trust and Savings Bank; Marvin Temple, attorney associated with Robert F. Fuchs, and Marcella L. Brandt, secretary of the board of education of School District 73½.

SCREENING COMMITTEE

At a special executive committee meeting, held Sunday, the Skokie Regular Democratic Voters Club selected a candidate screening committee. Candidates selected by this committee will be among those running for office in Skokie's first election as a city should villagers decide in favor of city government in the Jan. 20th referendum, officials said.

"Our schools need protection from irresponsible zoning changes and political intervention.

"Anybody can run for councilmen in his own district. The candidates will always be your neighbors.

"Skokie is a community of 55,000 people, and 6 trustees elected at large are not adequate."

Martin "Scotty" Krier, Niles Township Democratic Committeeman, said today that rank-and-file Democrats have professed themselves "overwhelmingly against" any change in Skokie's village government.

The announcement followed a general meeting of the party organization Tuesday night at which, Krier said, he asked for "an expression of opinion in plain language."

Krier said that his workers, who helped defeat the recent $8,625,000 bond referendum for Niles Township High School expansion, "again have become angered by this attempt to force a high-tax, inefficient, system upon them."

Krier said his party members "said to a man - and woman -

Arthur E. Simmons, township Republican Committeeman, issued a statement which, said, in part:

"I wish to go on record as wholeheartedly favoring the passage of the referendum.

"With our population now in excess of 50,000, I believe it is time for a change that will give each neighborhood the privilege and responsibility of selecting and electing the man or woman of their choice to represent them in their community's council."

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth A. Johnson pose before the altar in the First Gethsemane Lutheran Church, Chicago, following their candlelight wedding service on Saturday, Dec. 27. The Rev. Wilbur Palmquist officiated.

The lovely young bride, the former Bette Alice Olsen, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herluf Olsen, 2834 Kilpatrick Ave., Chicago. Her handsome bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Johnson, 7534 Tripp Ave., Skokie.

Grand Central Station must have been like a morgue compared with our house this past holiday season.

Take four children, all home at the same time, multiply this by three or four friends for each, and have them all spend the same weekend in your home.

We didn't mind sleeping in the bathtub, but we forgot to wear our shower cap and the faucet insisted on dripping.

Never before were we surrounded with so much cooking, so many dishes to wash, and so much merriment.

Marshmallows burned in an open fire tasted so much better; corn made in our own popper, vanished by the ton; fruit, candy, cookies disappeared—by the time the weekend ended, we didn't know one child's name from another.

What affinity we achieved with "the old woman in the shoe."

We're certain the good Lord forgave us our unset hair, our dishpan hands and the rings around our eyes from lack of sleep, as we gave thanks to Him for bringing us the greatest joy a mother can receive—being surrounded by her children.

The information counter: Bob Bell, who does the Midnite Ticker show with Herb Lyon, will be Uncle Fred on the Lunchtime Little Theatre television offering, working along with our own Dardanelle (Aunt Dodie) Hadley. Good wishes to Bob; our best to Uncle Ned, whose place Bob is temporarily taking, and felicitations to Uncle Buckey, whose wife gave birth to a 9 pound daughter.... What very prominent blond president of a prominent local women's group was stopped by the Morton Grove police after a recent Christmas party because of her "slightly waving" driving? ... Kay Thompson's yearly Yuletide soirees can do more for sending folks soaring into space than is done down in Cape Canaveral....

So you dash about the house New Year's Eve getting the youngsters ready for their dates.

Suddenly you find yourself alone in a large, much too quiet house. You watch the revelers on television, hear honking of impatient cars outside, and find gay voices from outdoors penetrating your storm door.

You turn off the set and make your way to bed. Not to sleep, because you'll be listening for the others to be returning home. Rather, to think. You're tired and you're lonely, and even the tears are dry.

I'm making resolutions.... A man was heard to say.... I'll give up cards and drinking.... Come home on time each day.... No more with "the fellows".... Will I choose to go.... And I'll be true to wife, dear.... Let her know I love her so.... These vows were made one midnight.... As chimes rang the New Year in.... But alas, they all were broken.... 'Ere the next year did begin.... For soon the phone was ringing.... A "hand" was needed for a game.... And as he went in years before.... Our hero now did just the same.... And those saint like wings he sprouted.... When he promised to be true.... Disappeared like magic.... As a cute face came in view.... So we've come to this conclusion.... Resolutions made are broken.... It's how you think inside that counts.... Not mere words that are just spoken.

BULLSEYES and BIFOCALS

Dr. Robert Graf Introduces Archery Golf

by MORT KAPLAN

There's a dramatic television commercial that features a rugged individual with a bow and arrow and tattooed back hand. On the spoor of wild boar, this video-version Robin Hood fells his quarry with one mighty zing of bow and arrow.

Then, of all things, he drops bow and arrow... ENTER CIGARETTE COMMERCIAL...

Dr. Robert Graf, an optometrist by profession, who has lived, worked and played in Niles Township for the past 21 years, might well be the huntsman except for two factors:

First, he smokes another brand. Second, his hands bear no visible saddle-stitching.

Aside from that, however, he performs the same derring-do with bow and arrow as the man in the commercial. Nor does Graf confine his efforts to TV studios or location. He is acknowledged to be one of the foremost archers and bowhunters in the middle west, and many will add... in the nation.

Graf's picture has appeared on the cover of The National Bowhunter magazine, bible of game-hunting archers and he has appeared on Norm Barry's telecast, "Let's Look At Sports", and on Johnny Earp's network radio sportscast.

In addition, a Chicago publication has run a feature on the skilled Skokian as have numerous other publications. The topic is invariably archery and its splinter' games, many of which were either devised or introduced locally by Graf.

Dr. Graf shown here with bow and flu flu. (Flu flu is not a respiratory condition but a type of arrow with a powerful striking force at a distance of 30-40 yards.)

Archery Golf

Among the latter is one that he introduced in Illinois called archery golf.

As the name implies, archery golf combines features of both sports, seasoned with brisk doses of winter weather. It is confined to that period of year when snow blankets the golf course and Jack Frost has reduced the golfers digits to icicles. This usually retires him to the sanctity of his fireplace, there to thaw until the weather breaks.

(Ed. note. For the golfer, also a breed apart, winter usually breaks during the "warm" part of February)

Even the super-enthusiastic Graf concedes that no golf course owner in his right mind would permit flying arrows on the same course at the same time that golf balls (and often clubs) are sailing about.

Game Like Golf

"You're playing a game of golf," detailed Graf in the runaway-locomotive style of an enthusiast speaking of his favorite pastime.

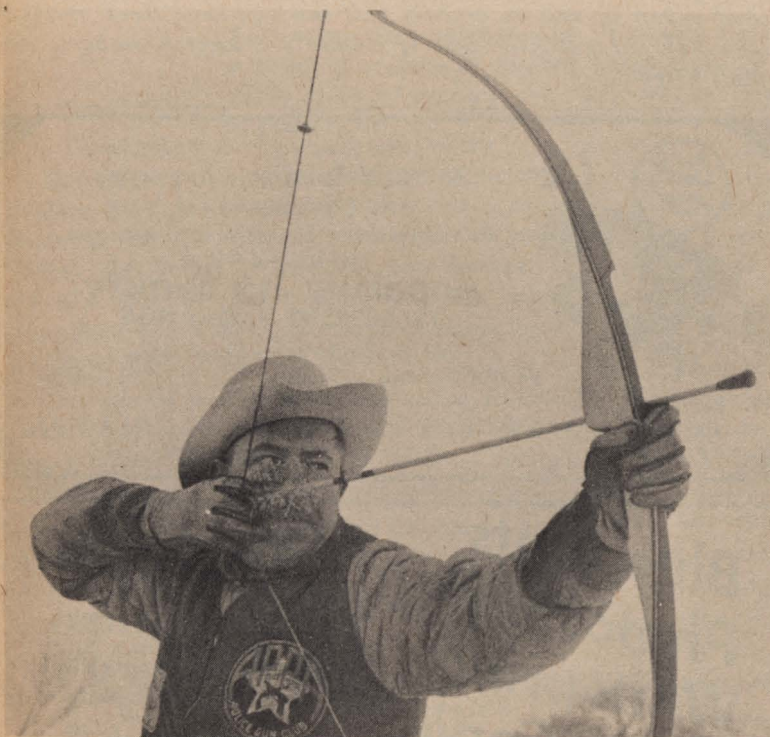

"Instead of getting your birdies and eagles with a golf club you get them with bow and arrow... and not out of the sky," he winked.

He illustrated that just as in golf you drive off the first tee, using an arrow with a minimum of resistance or "fletching." This insures maximum distance and should put you well out on the fairway.

"Next, there are 'approach' arrows with long, sharp points making it impossible for the shot to hold fast in the turf... or snow, which is more likely during the time of year the game is played.

"This is like the chip shot in golf," he averred. "It places you within striking range of the pin. But, instead of the pin and cup, there is a wire with a yellow, rubber-covered ball perched atop it, right where the hole would normally be. The idea is to knock the ball off the perch with a blunt-pointed 'putting' arrow, geared for short distances.

"Knocking the ball off," he glowed, "is the ultimate on each hole, the same as 'canning' a putt would be in golf."

Dr. Graf takes sharp aim during a round of archery golf. Opponent tried to kid him out of the shot... and succeeded.

Any hardy readers possessed of enough personal anti-freeze can get a first-hand glimpse at archery golf by journeying out to Rolling Green Country Club in Arlington Heights. There, each Sunday come cold weather or colder, you're apt to find Doc Graf and a hardy band of archery golfers sharpening up their game.

The sport has found such an enthusiastic reception at Rolling Green that the members have brought in a professional archery instructor.

Five or six other golf clubs in and around Chicagoland are also "warming" to the game, including nearby Itasca and Carey, Illinois where the old Indian weapons are being used to scalp par these winter days.

Where did the sport originate? Nobody, according to the doctor, seems to know for sure. "The nearest we can tell," he related, "it grew up in the Cleveland area around 1925."

Graf believes that in a short time, archery golf will be played at local golf and country clubs the way district league golf matches are played today.

He gives the impression that any minute he's going to reach for the nearest closet, pull out his paraphernalia and put a dent in the modern equipment that adorns an immaculate office in the Morton Grove Medical Center. It's at the center that he puts in a good many hours practicing optometry, much as this story may sound to the contrary.

Eye Doctor

Graf maintains a complete lab service and also specializes in fittings for contact lenses. His brother, Carl, a physician and surgeon, also has offices at the center.

The optimistic optometrist pointed with professional pride to a huge mechanical apparatus that looked as if it could treat an eye all by itself.

Prize Weimeraner "points" the way for Doc Graf and friend Brad Gross. Dog nosed bird into flight and another pheasant was bagged. Day ended with about 4 birds.

"That's my pride and joy," he beamed. "A Christmas present from my wife. I've wanted modern, technological optometry equipment like that since I first came to practice in Skokie."

"That's going back some," he confessed. It was around 1937 that I had an office on the second floor of a building at Lincoln and Oakton. Why, I can recall being able to see Lincolnwood right from my window. Even hunted pheasant at Long avenue and Main."

Graf shifted his 225 well-proportioned pounds packed on a 6ft. 2 in. frame, and reminisced further. (This physical stature is undoubtedly no "drawback" when it comes to pulling a bow.)

All Around Athlete

The good doctor, whose friends call him Bob, recalled his early school days in Assaria, Kansas, his birthplace. He was a vigorous sports participant even as a 14 year old.

"Haven't you ever heard of Assaria?" he winked. "Why, it's right near Salinas."

"When I was 14 I weighed 200 pounds and had to play with the high school kids. I guess that's when I learned the rudiments of athletics... the hard way. But, by the time I was in high school, I knew pretty well how to handle myself in football, baseball, basketball and of course, archery."

"In those days, I had to make my own bows and arrows. To tell the truth I can't recall the first time I took up the sport. It seems like I've always been stringing a bow and carrying a 'quiver,' (arrow holder).

Add a pair of skis to archery golf and you have three sports in one day. At extreme right is women's champion archery, Mrs. Hall Wright.

Although he practices optometry in Morton Grove, Graf lives at 7921 Kenneth, Skokie, with his wife, Lois, and a talking parakeet called "Mickey."

The bird, perhaps a little resentful of his master's publicity, has, himself been the subject of a story for his remarkable mimicry.

Wife Also Accomplished

Graf met his wife Lois at Schurz high school in Chicago. He had moved to Chicago from Kansas by way of New York city where the family also lived for a short time. Lois was Lois Grimes at the time, and both were seniors when they discovered one another.

Graf boasted: "She was a park district skating champion then. Paced the Illinois champion, Art Staff."

Mrs. Graf, even now is hardly what you'd call a golf widow, according to her husband. "If anything it's the reverse," he smilingly stated.

"When it looked like she would be a golf widow and then an archery widow and finally a combination of the two (archery golf), she decided to take the bull by the horns and zero in on a target of her own. She took up golf and plays a darned good game," he affirmed.

Not Dangerous

"There were 63 deaths in 1958 in Wisconsin and Michigan that were the direct result of rifle hunting. Not a single one," he related, "was attributed to bowhunting."

Apparently neither snow nor sleet nor hail can stop either the postal service or Bob Graf, who recalled that he hunted deer a week earlier in Nechedeh, Wisconsin in 29 below zero weather.

"If you think that's crazy," he quickly added, "there were 5,000 other lunatics traveling bumper to bumper all the way from Beloit to Nechedeh, a distance of about 175 miles. Within 8 hours from the time we got there, about 500 deer had been bagged."

As for the dangers of bowhunting as compared with rifle hunting, Bob Graf will tell you in a hurry that the bow and arrow is far safer. He points out the possibilities of injuring someone with a high powered rifle who might not be within shouting distance of you. This, he reveals, is not true in bowhunting, where one is comparatively close to the game being targeted.

This scene does not represent "Custer's Last Stand," but merely a group of archers at Rolling Green Country Club sharpening up for a round of archery golf. Dr. Graf is just to right of center in cowboy hat.

Doc Graf is one of the founders of the Skokie Valley Elks and is now one rung under Exalted Ruler in the organizational hierarchy. He proudly wears the badge of Kiwanis and Shriner. One of his most precious possessions, in fact, is the Skokie Kiwanis golf trophy, which he has captured three years in a row.

His advice to anyone who'll listen is to take up a game (archery golf—what else?) that combines "the healthy outdoors with a sport just active enough to make you feel really alive."

He feels so strongly about it he insists he will give any interested groups a good start in the rudiments of archery golf. "Just call me," he enthused.

Graf explains his fascination for archery, in part, by the many pleasant associations he has made. He claims that the bow and arrow enthusiasts have different ideas on even the most basic aspects, keeping it always dynamic.

Not content to be idle, Dr. Graf recently sprung another innovation on his friends at Rolling Meadows, Skeet-shooting with bow and arrow. He's convinced the game will soon catch on, as he and a few other enthusiasts spread the gospel.

If you should happen to bump into Graf when he won't enthuse over archery golf, it's probably because he is concentrating on bringing his bowling average up from its more than respectable 175 average, or because he's concentrating on knocking a few more strokes off his golf score.

The athletic

The athletic doctor tours the links in the middle-to-high seventies and has brought home more than a few cups in recent years. He matches pars in the summer with "bulls" (for bullseyes) he registers the year round.

Friendly, graying Bob Graf has many friends, all of whom you might say stand solidly behind him He is also a person who CAN hit the broad-side of a barn... and that's no bull!

SKOKIE FIREMAN KNIFED IN HEART...AND LIVES

How many people do you know who have been knifed in the heart and lived to tell about it?

If you live in Skokie, you may know one—but he doesn't tell about it much unless you ply him with direct questions. He's Fireman Bernard "Bernie" Weber, and he doesn't like to dwell on what happened on a dark night in Bizerte, Tunisia, 15 years ago.

Weber was a quartermaster 3/c in the Navy in 1943, and on the night in question he was en route back to his ship after liberty in Bizerte when he spotted a fellow sailor who was obviously "a little inebriated." Two other fellows were jostling him about, and Weber went to the sailor's aid.

"I thought he was being rolled," he said, "but the two fellows said they were taking him back to the ship. Just before I turned to go, the sailor I'd tried to help came to me with a knife and that was it. He got 20 years or so; I got the the knife in my heart."

As a vital piece of luck, a regular patrol of military police came by "within less than a minute," Weber said. They rushed him to a hospital, where luck also was on his side. The physician on duty happened to be a heart specialist.

"They ripped me open and sewed up the wound," Weber said. "They had to take a couple of ribs out. While I was there they flew in quite a few doctors to see me, and took pictures from every imaginable angle. I was told I was one of nine persons who had been knifed in the heart and had survived."

Weber, then 18, was transferred from hospital to hospital until he was placed aboard a States-bound ship. In this country, another operation was necessary. Two ribs were taken out of his back and grafted into his chest, where the other ribs had had to be so hastily removed.

When he was discharged from the service, he had trouble getting a job because prospective employers looked on him as a semi-invalid. But when the Korean War came along he was recalled to Navy service, "so I guess they figured I was all right," Weber smiled.

by BETTY NEFF

"Lucky-to-be-alive" fireman Bernie Weber with Pauline and children Kathy and Skipper.

Subsequently, he went to work in a factory, but his employer would only let him work a few hours a day because of his medical history. He had a wife by that time, and the young couple couldn't live on his factory earnings, so he quit and applied for a civil service job as a fireman. He has been on the Skokie force since 1955 and lives with his wife and two children at 4836C Kirk street.

"As far as I'm concerned, I'm healthy as an ox right now," he smiled.

And the sailor whose brutally-wielded knife shaped so much of Weber's life?

"I wouldn't know him if I saw him," Weber said.

Fireman Weber gets a goodbye kiss as he leaves for his "trick" at the station.

PENSION RESTORED
Circuit Judge Thomas E. Kluczynski has ordered restored to the pension rolls Robert A. Kutz, 7921 Lincoln, Skokie, a village fireman from 1926 until his retirement in 1957.

Kutz filed suit charging the Board of Trustees of Firemen's Pension Fund of Village of Skokie reneged on an old agreement, on which he based his retirement plans, when it dropped him from the pension rolls last July.

Godell Case Due Jan. 13; Magistrate Post Abolished

Sidney Godell, Niles Township Justice of the Peace, will appear before Circuit Judge Joseph A. Pope Jan. 13 to answer charges of misconduct in office.

Godell is charged with malfeasance, an accusation which grew out of his refusal to sign a waiver of immunity before a grand jury and to keep or produce proper records.

Godell's appearance on the charges has been postponed twice—the latest postponement occurring at a scheduled hearing on Dec. 29.

Godell's Republican colleague in the hearing of state cases in Niles Township, Police Magistrate John O'Connell of Skokie, pleaded guilty to similar charges Dec. 8. He was fined $100 and Judge Pope authorized his removal from office.

In the meantime, Skokie trustees formally abolished the job of police magistrate.

The records showed that O'Connell, despite several warnings by Judge Pope as to the seriousness of his plea, persisted in a statement that he wanted to plead guilty, without advantaging himself of a jury trial.

Indians Waited Here for Great White Father

George Washington didn't eat here but, just the same, you'll enjoy the several dining rooms of the Colonial Hotel at 9101 Waukegan Road, Morton Grove... whether it's the 135-year-old Oak Room, with its original pegged oak floors, panelled walls and hewn ceiling timbers, or one of the younger rooms dating back a mere 74 years.

The history of the Colonial has its beginning in the early years of the west when the site was called Battle Hill. From here Indians watched, with tomahawks in hand, for the Great White Father, for this little knoll rising from the Illinois plain is the highest spot around for miles.

On this spot was built the precedent of the Colonial Hotel — then it was Dilg's Wayside House — a trading post for early white settlers where cattle, horses, grain, etc. were traded or bartered. Also, it was a convenient stop-over for travelers headed toward a swamp area around which another village was developing in the vicinity of Fort Dearborn.

Now a later breed of white settlers from a slightly larger trading post called Chicago stop at the Colonial Hotel on their way home to new suburban settlements.

The culinary arts of the Colonial are under the personal supervision of Ira Chenowith who, for the past decade, has studied under several French Chefs. Mr. Chenowith is a member of the International Chef du Cuisin (in which membership is extended only by invitation).

Owner Ed Roberts describes Chef Chenowith as, "a culinary artist in all departments... an expert in cooking with French wines, a designer of pastry buildings, a creator of buffet tables, and a master in the vanishing art of ice carving."

Dinner guests have their choice of the Oak Room, the Broiler Room, the Chez When with its piano bar, or the North American Room.

The standard menu is quite large and varied and a sampling would disclose such appetizers as jumbo Louisiana shrimps with a piquante sauce, shrimps in wine sauce broiled with garlic; such entrees as spring chicken, roast sirloin of fine beef, french fried lamb chops, T-Bone steak; and such seafoods as African Rock Lobster tail, french fried shrimps, or fresh Lake Superior whitefish.

In addition, the daily menu might include roast loin of pork, calf's liver saute with fresh mushrooms and smothered with onions, stewed chicken with fluffy dumplings and sauce supreme, or a broiled ladies size filet mignon with crisp onion rings. A complete wine list is offered with helpful suggestions to complement a good dinner.

Both the Oak and Broiler Rooms are particularly enjoyable these wintery days with the two large stone fireplaces which Ed Roberts says are "the only two in the world built back-to-back which will draw at the same time."

Incidentally, the huge ox yoke over the fireplace in the dining room was used by the oxen to haul the large oaken beams used in the ceiling. The beams are held in place with wooden pegs—not a nail in them.

Reservations are recommended for groups and the North American Room may be reserved for private parties. Breakfast begins at 7 a.m.; breakfast parties from 9 a.m. to 10 a.m.; buffet luncheons 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.; and dinner from 7 p.m. to 1 a.m.
