WEEKEND MARINE WARRIORS ON CALIFORNIA MANEUVERS

A miniature locomotive of the Riverside & Great Northern Railway at Rockdale, Wis., taking on water for a run.

The president of the country's' only remaining steam railroad, Norman Sandley.

Engineer John Delmore turns locomotive around in outdoor roundhouse.

The Art Hellyers Ride ...

THE LAST STEAM RAILROAD

by ART HELLYER

I have always felt that the passing of the steam locomotive was the end of an era.

It was the steam locomotive and the trains it pulled that made this country what it is today. When the railroads sent their networks of steel ribbons reaching across this great country of ours in all directions, they carried to its unexplored corners the products of midwestern and eastern manufacture.

The steam locomotive brought the farmer his tools so that he might till the soil. The steam locomotive brought building materials so that giant cities and small towns might grow from barren prairieland. The steam locomotive brought the hardware and industrial goods that started the little shops on their way to becoming huge mills and factories. And as the steam locomotive returned from the four corners of our country it brought with it the fruits of our farmlands—wheat, oats, barley, corn, rye, and hay. The steam locomotive brought back fish, meat, gold, silver, granite, brick, clay eggs, wool, cheese, poultry, and livestock. The steam locomotive made America great and strong and the industrial giant she is today. Yes, and the steam locomotive brought people—it opened up the frontiers of the West. The steam locomotive crossed and re-crossed America until our country looked like one giant circulatory system.

But the steam locomotive has not completely vanished from the American scene because of a man named Norman Sandley—a man who loves the steam locomotive—a man who will not cast it aside. This sentimental gentleman is president of the Riverside and Great Northern Railway in Wisconsin. The R & GN is America's most picturesque and only remaining steam railroad. A trip on this miniature line is something you will not soon forget.

We had the pleasure of boarding the afternoon local at East Station recently. Our engineer was Mr. John Delmore... for many years in the same capacity on the Omaha branch of the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad. My lovely wife Elaine, the four Hellyer children and I, along with some light hand baggage (mostly camera equipment and diapers), had just seated ourselves we heard the familiar, but almost forgotten, sound of the steam locomotive whistle.

This whistle topped a beautiful Atlantic type steamer... the type I took for granted as I grew up in Elmhurst, Ill., along the Galena Division of the C & NW.

Precisely at 3 p.m., Mr. Delmore pulled his string of varnish out of the station and we were on our way, running over the original grade of the old La Crosse and Milwaukee Railroad dating back to pre-Civil War days.

The route over which we traveled was used in the opening of the great Northwest Territory, and many illustrious figures who took part in that great event journeyed this same way. We roared through the sleepy little hamlet of Summit at 3:02 p.m. and at 3:04 p.m. we stopped at Rockdale to take on water.

This took but a few moments and then we were highballing it down the mainline once again. Engineer Delmore poured on the coal, and again I was taken back to my youth and the Galena Division when the acrid smell of engine smoke came back into the passenger cars. This was living! This was railroading!

At 3:08 p.m. we rushed past the little town of Deer Pass... where there are more four-legged animals than two-legged ones.

Truly, this was an awe-inspiring trip as we passed through magnificent rock cuts and scenic canyons. This was the land of the Winnebagoes, Yellow Thunder, Red Bird, and Blackhawk.

3:10 p.m.... Bilty Falls. 3:11 p.m.... a mail stop at the almost-forgotten town of Deadwood.

The passenger agent came out and chatted with us while the mail (one letter) was being put aboard. He told us that the Riverside and Great Northern Railway has spared no expense to purchase the finest passenger rolling stock available, and that the steam locomotives are the safest ever built, and were purchased to insure speed and dependability.

He was telling us about the imported sand used in the locomotive domes, and about the crushed granite rock used on the roadbed, when the whistle sounded and we were whisked out of Deadwood for the last lap of our run—Western Springs, the end of the line.

All too soon our trip was over so we decided to return to East Station, so that we might visit the R & GN yards and shops. Our return trip was a fast one.... a non-stop run because we had picked up the mail and taken on water on the westward run.

We found our tour through the Sandley Light Railway Equipment Works to be most enjoyable and enlightening. We were a bit surprised to find the president of the road in a pair of overalls stretched out on the floor working on the Stevenson gear of an American Standard locomotive... circa 1860.

The entire mechanical exhibit is under the supervision of Professor Robert Grimm, G.M.E. This is a man who obviously loves the steam locomotive, and he is more than happy to explain the intricacies of any and all things that apply to this phase of railroading. He will also show you the world's largest steam railroading library with volumes dating back to 1831.

If you long to relive for a brief period some of the romance of your childhood, or if you have children who are too young to have known the steam locomotive, plan a trip soon on the Riverside and Great Northern Railway... the leading tourist line of America. You can reach East Station by driving one mile west of Wisconsin Dells on the Stand Rock Road. The fare? 35¢.

EVERYBODY WELCOME!

The City that saved itself

A city saved itself.

It was marked for destruction because it was a city of violence.

Yet it was not destroyed—because its people turned from violence.

Nineveh was the city. And Jonah was the prophet who proclaimed its destruction.

The prophet did not understand why the city was spared.

He had to be taught. And what Jonah had to learn about Nineveh, each of us must learn in our own lives too.

It is this . . .

Our errors need not be final

Inevitably, we make mistakes. We are not perfect. We are not expected to be perfect. We are human.

We imagine, for example, that the best way to protect ourselves is to concentrate on ourselves. We withhold. We pull away. We try to accumulate. We try to possess.

This is a familiar mistake. And often we continue to make it, even though we know it's a mistake.

Yet we also have the power to defeat our mistakes.

We can transform the error that separates us into a good which brings us together.

This is the great possession of Man.

At any point in our lives, we have the power to regret a mistake, to learn from it, to advance from it.

Not merely to be sorry, but to accept responsibility for our errors, and the hurt we cause others.

We can atone.

And when we do . . . we can feel as our own pain the pain we have caused.

At that moment, we experience far more than the pain of punishment. We close the space between man and man.

For to share pain, as to share love, joins us with someone else.

Certainly each of us can catalogue a long list of the errors we make. And these lists will differ, as each of us is different.

The ancient liturgy includes such a list: the errors almost all of us must continuously strive to revoke.

Let us consider just one of these; an error which has plagued many generations, and which becomes increasingly acute as the blessings of our time increase.

על חטא שהתאנו לפניך בזלזול חורים ומורים.

The sin we have committed in lowering our parents and teachers

For many generations, we have tended to think of the commandment to honor our father and mother primarily as it concerns young people and their parents.

But no time-limit was set on the commandment.

And now that science has bestowed on us the gift of longevity, we are essentially unprepared for it.

We have yet to learn how to remain children to our parents after we ourselves have become fathers and mothers.

We have yet to learn that, to keep the generations of a family together, everyone must be given the opportunity to serve.

That is why we cannot fulfill the deepest need of the aging until we meet their need to give us of their wisdom, their need to continue to belong, to continue to serve . . . not merely to be served.

And what of our teachers?

In the midst of abundance, we have turned away from the people in whose hands we have put the teaching of our children.

Everyone knows we must have the teacher and the school to help us give wisdom and character to our children.

Yet we continue to give less of ourselves, of our imagination, of our energies and resources, to the quality of our children's schooling than to almost any other part of our life, today.

In the ways we fail to honor our parents and teachers, we reject the wisdom we need for ourselves as well as for our children.

We do not sufficiently remember—in fulfilling our own gifts and the gifts of our time—that progress consists of more than going forward. It must also mean going inward—to those timeless truths with which men have struggled since the Beginning. And when we do this . . .

We will remember that wisdom builds the house, and that the teacher is the guardian of the city.

We will remember that each of our errors, properly understood and corrected, can lead us to still richer rewards of wisdom, of love given and of love received.

For the sin we have committed in lowering our parents and teachers, and for all our errors, O God who forgives . . . bear with us, pardon us, grant us atonement.

Skokie Chosen for First Store in New Food Chain

Artist's conception of exterior of the Convenient Food Mart soon to be erected in the 3500 block of Dempster St., Skokie. The idea for the Food Mart is a joint creation of the Bresler Ice Cream Co., Meadowmoor Dairies, and H. S. Davies, Inc., wholesale grocers.

The corner grocery store, long the backbone of neighborhood shopping, is slated for a revolutionary face-lifting.

A new concept in retail food marketing, "express shopping," has been created by a group of leading food and dairy products suppliers here as the first step in a national chain of independently-owned drive-in franchises to bolster "mom and pop" operations.

Under the name of Convenient Food Mart, Inc., the stores will be located along main arteries in cities and suburban areas, with 1,000 units planned during the next twelve months.

The Greater Chicago area is slated for 200 franchise operations, all independently owned, which will be geared to provide convenient express shopping for daily food and sundry purchases. For customers' convenience, the superettes will be open 7 days a week to midnight.

The first Convenient Food Mart in the Chicago area will be erected in the 3500 block of Dempster Street, in Skokie.

MG Jewish Groups Form Conference

At a recent meeting of the presidents and representatives of seven Jewish organizations of Morton Grove, the Conference of Jewish Organizations of Morton Grove was established. The purpose of this group is to coordinate activities and join together on mutual projects of common interest.

A calendar clearing system was agreed upon with the office to be maintained at the Northwest Suburban Jewish Congregation at 7644 Churchill.

Rabbi Lawrence H. Charney, spiritual leader of the Northwest Suburban Jewish Congregation agreed to serve as advisor to this new group.

Among the first projects planned will be a community children's Chanukah party, to be held on the afternoon of Sunday, Dec. 7, at which time all the Jewish children of Morton Grove will be the guests of the Conference and its constituent organizations.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

The truth that man made in the spiritual image and likeness of God has dominion over sin, sickness, and limitation will be brought out at Christian Science services Sunday, Sept. 21.

Ground and About

by TOM BRANAGAN

We frequently receive congratulatory communiques from subscribers who wish us Godspeed and say they'd like to help the Villager along as much as possible. Sometimes they ask how they can do this.

We believe the most significant contribution these persons can make is to patronize our advertisers. Villager advertisers are our real strength; they are merchants who have been generous and farsighted enough to welcome and support a venture designed to give Niles Township the finest possible community publication.

In a very real sense, these ladies and gentlemen have pioneered this new concept in weekly journalism every bit as much as have we, its publishers.

If our individual readers make it a point to trade with Villager advertisers they will be giving us the finest kind of support.

It's strictly a family affair—the operation of the new Hunt's Sinclair Service station at Touhy and Niles Center Road in Skokie.

The station is operated by Vern Hunt and his sons Vern Jr. and Chuck. The Hunts, who will have their grand opening Sept. 25-26-27 (and give away just about everything except the station), are shown in action below. That's Vern Sr. cleaning the rear window of a customer's car while Vern Jr. checks the tires and Chuck cleans the headlights.

Dr. Thomas G. Baffes, 3615 Main St., Skokie, who was "profiled" in the Apr. 17 issue of The Villager for his development of the first surgical correction of "blue baby" conditions, performed the same type of operation recently on a local youngster.

Two-year-old Randy, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Kessler, 8325 Keating Ave., Skokie, was a "blue baby" until he was operated on by Dr. Baffes in Children's Memorial Hospital.

When the Kesslers learned that it was Dr. Baffes who was going to perform the operation, they remembered reading about him in The Villager and thus were able to inform other relatives about the doctor by sending them The Villager story.

Prior to Dr. Baffes' research, many babies born with this congenital disorder were doomed. Since young Randy's operation, he has been doing fine—a healthy normal little boy.

The Skokie Valley YMCA will again be conducting swimming lessons this fall. Classes are designed to meet the experience and capabilities of the individual. The successful and proven National Aquatic Program of the "Y" is used exclusively. All instructors are fully qualified. Lessons start on Sept. 27 and continue for ten weeks, with classes being held in the Niles Township High School pool. To insure proper attention for each individual, the number of persons in each class is limited. For additional information, call the Skokie Valley YMCA (at the site of the Leaning Tower), 6200 Touhy Ave., NI 7-6161. Registration for swimming begins Sept. 20.

HOLY TRINITY

An integrated plan of worship and study for the children of Holy Trinity Parish has been developed. It will give the children the opportunity of joining their families at worship, and still have class work at the same time as the later service. One purpose is to make it possible for families to make one trip to the church, and not have to bring one child to the kindergarten at one hour and another to the upper school at another.

The new schedule will be at the same hour as the summer services: low mass at 8 a.m. and choral mass and Church School at 10:30.

HOME BUILDING

Skokie is riding high in first place among 119 Chicagoland suburbs in value of new home construction started this year, the Bell Savings & Loan Association reports.

In the first eight months, Skokie Building Commissioner John E. Seeley issued permits for 478 new homes whose total construction value is placed at $8,932,850. In the value category, Skokie is a shade over a million dollars ahead of runnerup Palatine's $7,928,790.

Civic Theatre Casts Play

The Skokie Civic Theatre launched the new season by announcing the cast for their next production. The play, "Light Up The Sky," is Moss Hart's comedy about the Boston tryout of a play unmistakably headed for disaster.

A smash hit on Broadway, "Light Up The Sky" deals with theatre people and the difficulties they encounter in dealing with some of Broadway's vultures. The comedy will feature many popular SCT players along with several new faces.

Those selected to play roles in the production are Marcia Rice, Jack Gordon, Pheobe Baumgarten, Herb Soloman, Lorry Young, Cliff Jahr, Wess Snider, Gene Lichtenstein, Pat Bradley, Len Laskin, Sam Galler, and Tony Pucello.

The play, which is being directed by Kenneth Jenks of the drama department of Wright Junior College, will be presented on Nov. 7, 8, and 9.

Skokie newcomers are Mr. and Mrs. Norman Marnstein, 9113 Niles Center Rd. and son Marshall, 15, and Mr. and Mrs. Leo Klugman, 9111 Niles Center Rd. and son, Jerry, 8½.

Krier-Smith Plan Would Limit Skokie Gas Stations

A possibility that construction of service stations will be curtailed more severely in the future was raised Tuesday night at the Skokie village board meeting.

Trustees Ray Krier and Jum Smith, who took it upon themselves to make a survey of the Skokie area and its stations, presented to the board a map carrying the locations of such establishments.

Krier pointed out that there are 47 stations in Skokie now, with six more under construction. In addition, he said, there are 15 on the village's outskirts.

He and Smith proposed — and the board concurred — that the plan commission consider the possibility of changing zoning for service stations from B2 business to B3 business. The change would eliminate many areas of the village from qualifying for service stations.

In other actions Tuesday, the board:

Agreed with Plan Commission recommendations that off-street parking requirements in commercial areas should not be changed and that, with certain provision, Joseph J. Hansen's request for a special permit for a 15-space parking area near Lincoln and Niles Center Rd. be approved.

Rejected a plan commission recommendation that property at 7600-7624 Crawford be changed from single family to multiple dwelling use. A petition signed by 145 residents of the area had urged that the recommendation be turned down.

Unanimously approved the reappointment of Wilbur Kellogg to the plan commission. His term expires in 1967.

Heard Arthur Haab, director of civil defense, give a report on the recent five-day meeting of civil defense directors, held in New York City. Haab said he intended to ask the trustees to call a meeting of all responsible village officials so that an adequate defense plan can be set up. He said a shelter program was the first consideration.

ROOSEVELT REUNION

Village-or-City Still in Court

Morton Grove Trustees OK Grove Auto Hotel

The Grove Auto Hotel at Waukegan and Caldwell has been permitted to proceed with the construction of 17 motel units.

The firm is situated in the Classic Bowl Building.

The Morton Grove village board Tuesday night ruled on the question.

The action culminated an issue that has been on the village board docket for several weeks.

Several of the trustees had argued vigorously against the permit. They maintained that the building was zoned only for certain types of shops — and not for hotel or motel use.

Mayor Koller and others took the position that although the owners of the auto hotel, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Alongi, had shifted from shops to a motel without notifying the village board, they had done nothing illegal. Furthermore, they said, the Alongis could get the permit through legal action, so there was no sense in delaying them.

A number of property owners also had argued against the permit at recent board meetings.

DEMOCRATIC WOMEN

Committeewoman Mrs. Ruth Janis and Niles Township Democratic women recently hosted members of the Federation of Illinois Women's Democratic clubs at the party's East Oakton St. headquarters in Skokie.

The group made plans for the federation's luncheon and style show to be held Oct. 18 at the Morrison Hotel. The date has been proclaimed Democratic Women's Day.

ber and completion of the new bridge is expected by next spring.

The new bridge, 613 feet long, will have a 44-foot wide road, flanked by six-foot wide sidewalks.

Traffic will be detoured over Dempster and Oakton street bridges during the work.

MAIN ST. BRIDGE

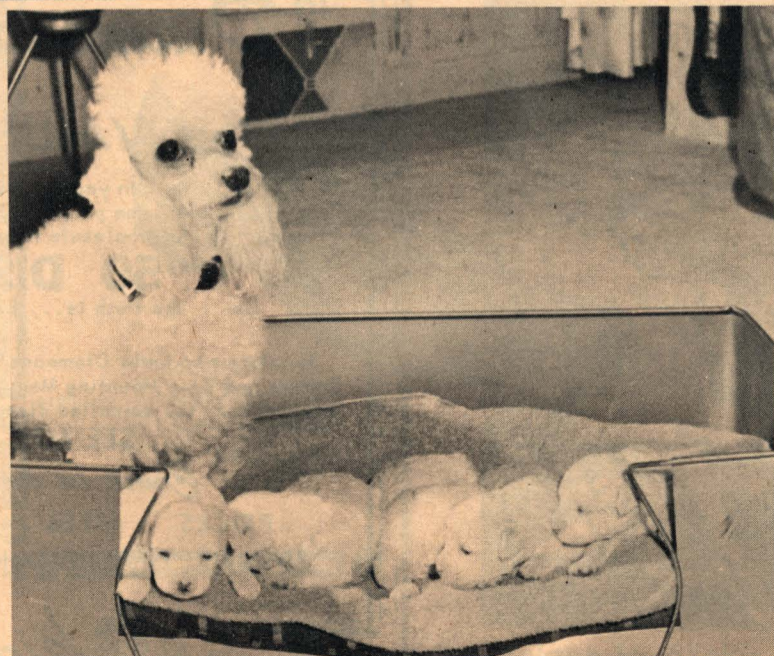

The Metropolitan Sanitary District has taken another step forward in its plans to build a new Main street bridge over the North Shore channel in Skokie.

It awarded a $255,126.75 contract Thursday to the Krug Excavating company, the lowest of four bidders seeking the construction job.

The old two-lane bridge, constructed in 1910, will be removed and replaced by a three span steel superstructure with a reinforced concrete deck and a substructure of reinforced concrete piers and abutments.

Plans and specifications for the project were approved earlier this year.

Removal of the old structure is to be started early in Octo-

Suzie, toy poodle owned by Mrs. Jacqueline Goldberg of 3923 Jerome, Skokie, poses with understandable pride beside litter of five young 'uns she gave birth to recently. Experts say females of the breed seldom have such large litters.

Skokie village officials were to give their answer in court tomorrow (Friday) to a demand that they be forced to call a special election on changing the village's form of government.

Circuit Judge Cornelius J. Harrington so ordered in a hearing Tuesday. Harrington presided in the temporary absence of Judge Harry Fisher. However, Fisher was expected to be back for Friday's hearing.

Proponents of a move to change Skokie's government from the village form to the city council type have petitioned for a writ of mandamus — an emergency measure which would make it mandatory that village officials hold a referendum on the proposition before Oct. 3.

At issue is the interpretation placed on the Illinois statutes covering petitions which were submitted by persons favoring the change from the present system.

The village fathers threw out the petitions because 1,139 of the 2,748 turned in were signed by persons who had not voted in the last municipal election. They based their action on the wording of the statute, which says that such petitions must be signed by "one-eighth of the electors of any city voting at the last preceding municipal election." The 2,748 figure covered more than an eighth of those voting in the 1957 election.

Those who circulated the petitions say the statute should be interpreted to cover any qualified voter — even if he didn't actually vote in 1957.

Under the city council, or aldermanic, form of government 16 aldermen would be elected — two from each of eight wards.

At present, the six village trustees and the village president are elected "at large" — by the entire electorate.

The status of Village Manager Arthur Lowther under such a change is in doubt. The petitions made no provision for a village manager. The village manager form was voted in at the 1957 referendum. However, the government-changers say the system would be retained.

Dr. Bond Writes from Belgrade

Following are excerpts from the latest communication from Dr. and Mrs. Ray Bond. Dated Aug. 22, from Belgrade, Yugoslavia Dr. Bond remarks:

One of the differences we found in Rumania from the Soviet Union was the absence of teaching atheism in the schools. Otherwise Rumania, the better off than the USSR, is also under tight control. Consumer goods were more evident but high in price. Flying from Bucharest for Belgrade stopped briefly at Sofia in Bulgaria. Yugoslavia is quite different from the USSR. It is a federation of six republics who need each other. Tito, whose past achievements are amazing, still merits uncontested leadership.

The main problem is food, aggravated by a summer drought which will reduce production by 15% from last summer. Industrial productivity per worker and per total is steadily increasing. The industrial drive is profit, instead of the plan quota fulfillment of the USSR.

Yugoslavia is officially recognizing the fact of religion in human life and while maintaining a strict separation of church and state does help the religions represented.

We are both quite well in spite of much hot weather this past week in Belgrade. See you soon.

INJURY SUIT

A $150,000 personal injury suit has been filed in Superior court against Skokie and the American Coach Company.

The plaintiff, Paula Banion, 8507 N. Christiana avenue, Skokie, suffered injuries to the head, back, spine, feet, and eyes while riding an American Coach bus that collided with a Skokie garbage truck, her lawsuit says.

Both defendants are charged with negligence in the collision last July 28 at Monticello and Keeney in the village.

The bus was southbound on Monticello and the city-owned truck westbound on Keeney, the suit says. It was drafted by Attorney Daniel L. Weisz.

TOM THUMB PLAYERS

by FRAN MILLS

"My students might be future theatrical stars but I consider it much more important that these children learn, through dramatic training, to be happy, well adjusted adults."

This is the teaching philosophy of Lester Netzky of 7328 Keystone Ave., Lincolnwood, director of the Tom Thumb Players. His students, approximately sixty-five percent from Niles Township, are an outstanding group of children whose dramatic abilities have received wide recognition.

An audience of several hundred hushed, attentive children, attending a performance of "Beauty and the Beast" presented by the Tom Thumb Players, was a great tribute to the drama group. During the school term, "Beauty and the Beast" was one of three Tom Thumb Players' productions sponsored by the Niles Township Parent Teachers Association. The dramatic talent, discipline, and training of the children was particularly evident during a dress rehearsal attended by the Villager.

These talented youngsters combine a serious interest in drama with all the exuberance of youth. Although Netzky's students range in age from four to eighteen and study drama, dancing, and singing, most of the drama students are in the eight to fifteen-year-old group.

On the stage, the Tom Thumb Players have appeared in "Pinocchio," "A King Is a King," "Hansel and Gretel", and "Beauty and the Beast" before hundreds of school children from Niles Township.

Radio and TV Stars

The group has been featured in a series of children's classics and fairy tales on WNMP-Evanston, "The Queen of Hearts" on WCFL, and "Rescue" on WFJL-FM.

Television audiences will remember the Tom Thumb Players in a 26 week series on the "Hi-Ladies" program, WGN; the "Bob and Kay Show," WNBQ; and the "Breakfast Club," WBBM.

Individual Tom Thumb Players have appeared on "Super Circus," "They Stand Accused", "Motorola TV Hour", and "Captain Hartz and Marianne."

Since 1946, when he organized the Tom Thumb Players Theater Studios on Chicago's northwest side, Lester Netzky has devoted himself to the training of children in all phases of the theater arts.

Director, actor, playwright, and teacher, Lester

This "old gentleman" is anything but. It's Donna Gendell, age 12, after she's been made up for role in a Tom Thumb Players production. The work she and her young acting colleagues are doing is described in the Feature Section.

Netzky has been acknowledged by critics as one of the country's great children's theater directors. He was a portage of the late Maria Ouspenskaya, international actress of Hollywood, and has appeared with and directed Eddie Dowling, Edward Everett Horton, Charles Farrell, Douglas Montgomery, Mildred Natwick and Boris Tamarin. Netzky was a student of Margaret P. McClean, author of "Good American Speech," and Hanya Holm, dancer and Choreographer.

Netzky began his teaching career in New York, with adult students, but he prefers teaching children. "I love children," he says, "and it is easier to communicate with them since they are not burdened with inhibitions and preconceived ideas."

Having a son and daughter of his own gives Netzky an added advantage in understanding and training his students. He stresses the importance of giving his young students a feeling of importance and being understood.

"If a child is born with talent, it can be developed but every child is not a star," he says. Above all he wants the children to be natural on stage as well as off stage.

Regardless of their individual talents, his students are taught to play the lead roles as well as the minor ones. Alternate casts were used for the two performances of "Beauty and the Beast," affording the children an opportunity to portray more than one role.

Through creative drama, Lester Netzky strives to develop the personality of his students. He frequently writes monologues keyed to the student's personality.

Tom Thumb drama students follow six levels of training, ranging from the beginner to those trained for players groups and the professional touring company. The children are taught creative acting, pantomime, speech, stage technique, and characterization. They manage their own costume changes and, in the advance classes, learn the principles to makeup.

Classes consist of one to one-and-one-half hours of group instruction weekly, after regular school hours and on Saturdays. The average class has twelve students. Netzky is assisted by an outstanding faculty of teachers in the drama, music, and dance departments.

Masterful Improvisers

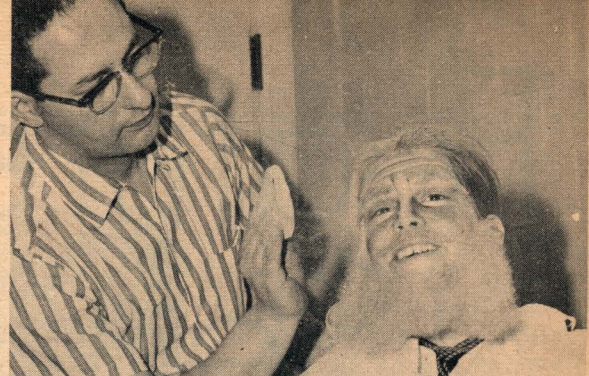

Before giving the children a script to study, Netzky tries to discover how familiar they are with the story. The children relate the story familiarizing themselves, and the class, with the plot. He finds this system very successful, specially in the case of fairy tales such as "Jack and the Bean Stalk", which has 30 to 40 versions.

On stage, these pre-teen Thespians portray their roles with outstanding poise, sincerity, and conviction. During the "Beauty and the Beast" rehearsal there was a minimum of forgotten lines and some outstanding incidents of clever improvisation. Genuine ability and understanding are required for young actors to substitute their own words, thoughts, and feelings for the written script.

When the group presented "Hansel and Gretel" there was a misunderstanding about the date of the production. The result was a much shorter time in which to learn the script and rehearse but the children were so adept at improvisation that the audience was completely unaware of the situation.

School children from Niles Township can look forward to another series of plays by the Tom Thumb Players. The group will again be sponsored by the Niles Township Parent Teachers Association.

From here, it is difficult to tell whether Lester Netzky's influence on the brilliance of tomorrow's stars, or the inspiration and entertainment given both children and adults by the productions of the Tom Thumb Players, is the greater of his contributions to culture and society.

With the expert application of makeup Lester Netzky ages twelve-year-old Donna Gendell of 7331 Kolmar Ave., Lincolnwood for her role as an old man in "Beauty and the Beast."

Behind the frightening costume and makeup of the Beast Michael Goodman, 12, of 4044 Greenwood St., Skokie.

A dramatic moment in the Beast's garden. Left to right, the Father, played by Heni Semiloff of 6606 Kenneth Ave., Lincolnwood; the two old men, Donna Gendell of 7331 Kolmar Ave., Lincolnwood, and Maureen Chidel of Chicago; and "Beauty", Nancy Stagman of Chicago.

Beauty, Nancy Stagman is a bit reluctant to look at the Beast, played by Michael Goodman of 4044 W. Greenwood St., Skokie. Donna Gendell, one of the old men, is in the background.

The two old men, Donna Gendell and Maureen Chidel, seem to be playing a trick on unsuspecting "Beauty", Nancy Stagman.

The Portland Cement Association's new Structural Laboratory is called "the world's largest testing machine." Except for floor and foundations, the entire building was assembled from precast concrete units. It contains facilities for structural testing unmatched anywhere.

Business Feature:

Skokie's Big New CONCRETE CRUSHER

The "world's largest testing machine" was publicly shown for the first time last week at the Research and Development Laboratories of the Portland Cement Association in Skokie.

The "machine" is actually a three-story high Structural Laboratory, constructed above ground entirely of precast concrete building units which were tilted or lifted into place by giant rigs and cranes. The massive floor of the building is designed like an exceptionally strong bridge, and is pierced by a total of 690 holes. By using relatively simple apparatus in combination with the floor, technicians at the new laboratory are able to conduct many tests that cannot be carried out anywhere else in the world.

The building, part of a $3 million expansion of the Association's research and development facilities, is expected to produce information having a far-reaching effect on design and construction of many types of concrete structures. It adds 22,400 sq. ft. to the 103,400 sq. ft. of research facilities already at the site. A second new laboratory, a Fire Research Center, will be placed in operation early in 1959 to provide an additional 35,400 sq. ft. of test space.

Floor Two Feet Thick

The Structural Laboratory is unique primarily because of its testing floor. The top surface of the floor is 24 in. thick, and is joined to an 18-in. thick basement floor by a series of 8-½ ft. high walls. In cross section, it resembles a large hollow box-girder bridge. Actually, the floor is built much stronger than an ordinary bridge because it acts as a test frame for all the forces applied to specimens in the Laboratory.

The top surface of the floor is pierced by holes every three feet along its 120-ft. length and 56-ft. width. To make most tests, steel rods are attached to the test beam or girder, and extended downward through the holes to connect with hydraulic jacks located in the basement. These jacks pull down on the rods, exerting enormous loads on the test structures above.

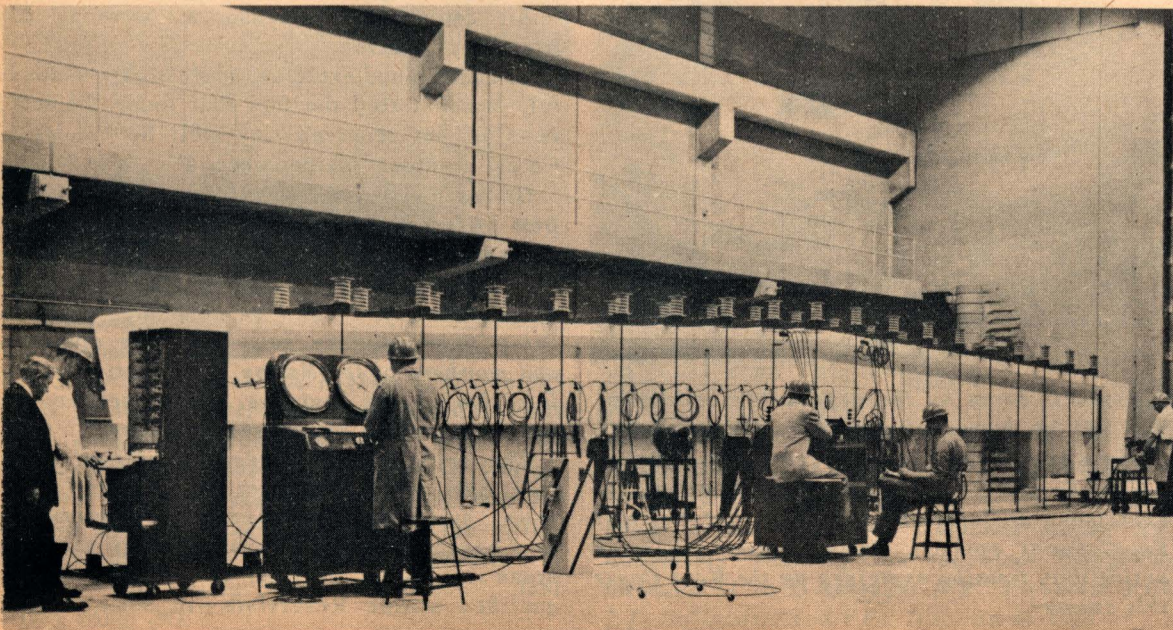

The Laboratory earns its title as "the world's largest testing machine" not only because of its size, but because of the tremendous test loads it can handle. The floor can withstand pressures produced by the hydraulic jacks of more than 10 million pounds. By comparison, one of the largest conventional testing machines, recently installed, can produce a load of 5 million pounds. In addition, the Structural Laboratory can apply its loads easily at any point, and in any direction, on specimens of practically any size or shape.

In the building, a floor slab or roof shell can be subjected to local loads of as high as 30,000 lb. per sq. ft. A slab the size of the entire test-the girder down through holes in the floor. Under the floor are hydraulic jacks which pull down on the rods. This beam was later broken under a total load of 360,000 lb.

MARINE WEEKEND ON CALIFORNIA

Marine airreservists stationed at the Glenview Naval Air Station recently completed their annual two-week summer training "cruise" at the West Coast base of Marine aviation, El Toro, Calif.

Represented were reservists from throughout Niles Township—plus a Villager informant. Here is his reaction to the cruise:

Highly-mobile and ready for immediate deployment, Marine Air Reservists at Glenview already have flown thousands of hours.

The flight time these Marine reservists have accrued offers testimony to the state of readiness civilian defenders can attain with spirit and training. For these men, in their daily lives, are engineers, lawyers, educators, businessmen, farmers, students, laborers, civic leaders and civilian officials holding important town, city and state positions. The fact that such men can drop their slide rules, lay aside plows, briefcases and their civilian pursuits to capably assist in the defense of their country indicates their importance as a force-in-readiness.

As General Frank C. Croft, commander of all Marine Air Reserve Training in the country, states: "Many citizens today talk of mass death through nuclear annihilation or mass poverty because of business depression. As a result, they seem to live in fear rather than in confidence. As civilians, they work and meet the challenge of business and economy head on. They contribute to the productive capacity of the nation. As Marines, they devote time to study and train in the aviation and electronic complexities of modern military defense. And they are ready for any emergency."

Members of Glenview's Marine Air Reserve Fighter Squadron-543 executed a brisk "eyes right" when they stepped from the plane at the Marine Corps Air Station, El Toro, Calif. Little wonder, for they were greeted by pert Sue Boucher, recently-crowned "Miss Marine Corps League of Illinois." The 18-year-old beauty lives in Joliet.

As further evidence of exactly what the General meant when he said "ready", the Marine reserves—both ground and air—have just completed a joint air-ground exercise on the Pacific Coast off the shores of Camp Pendleton.

Complete Reserve Show

For the first peacetime maneuver of its kind in history, this exercise was executed entirely by reserves and was highly successful.

In this exercise, Marine aircraft were the primary support weapons. No artillery or naval gunfire was employed.

Helicopter assault troops made the landing instead of the familiar landing crafts.

Air defense and aggressor air were all controlled by reserves.

The air-ground exercise, while highly-successful, demonstrated the fact that today the readiness of her reserves may well be the Marine Corps' greatest "secret weapon".

Or, as Major John Kennicott, a reserve pilot from Glenview, and a highway construction engineer, stated: "Today, world events in aggression and defense are moving so rapidly that those who say it can't be done are constantly being interrupted by somebody else doing it—and members of the Marine Air Reserve have no intention being outdone, out-maneuvered or caught asleep by any aggressor nation."

The spirit and knowledge exemplified by the reservists at their summer training here is the same spirit and knowledge they exemplified at Chosen Reservoir, Pusan, Inchon and other areas in Korea. In fact, the rapid call-up of qualified Marine Reservists—in some cases a Personnel, borne by the dependable helicopter, can set up bases of operations on any given "inland beachhead" at any given moment. Marine Air and Ground Reservists ran through on-the-spot exercises, utilizing the Marine Corps' Vertical Envelopment concept, during annual two-week active duty training exercises on the West Coast this summer.

WARRIORS MANEUVERS

matter of days after "Condition Red" was sounded by the President—proved the difference between success and failure, victory and defeat, for the small force of regulars operating and holding there.

Reserves Vital

At one time in Korea, over 54% of all Marine pilots were Marine air reservists with practically the same percentage for ground crews. One out of every three missions flown by all forces in Korea was flown by activated Marine or Naval air reservists.

To the American taxpayer, the training of these Marine Air Reserves not only represent efficiency in time of war, but economy in time of peace. It costs less than one cent of the Naval defense dollar to maintain both the Marine and Naval Reserve.

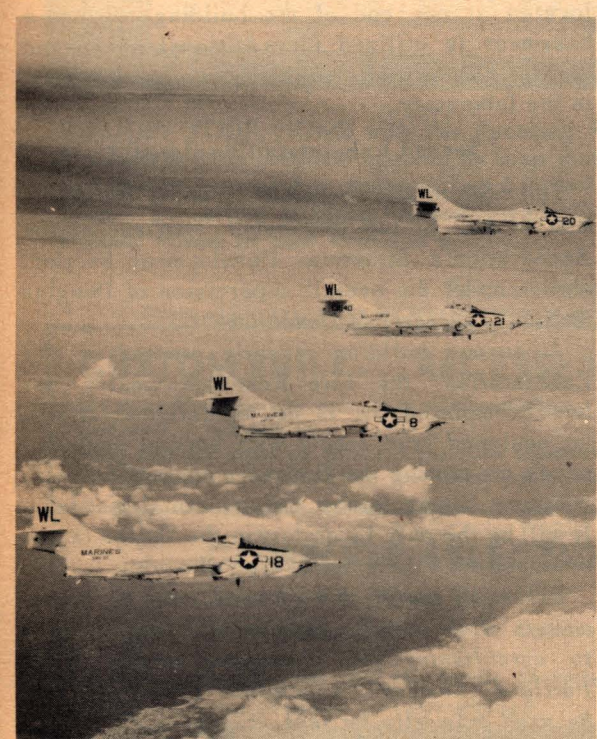

Six reserve squadrons can be maintained for the cost of one regular squadron.

The entire air-ground exercise on the West Coast was completed without the cost of a single aviation accident or casualty, also; nor were there any aviation accidents to mar the entire West Coast phase of training.

This training is all directed toward one purpose; to enable the American people to stand up to any aggressor and say—"Do n't tread on US—spelled U.S.!"

Rugged terrain presents no obstacle for the versatile helicopter. Troops and their supplies can be loaded or unloaded from an area just above their assigned objectives. The helicopter, the primary feature of the Marine Corps' concept of Vertical Emvelopment, was utilized extensively during the Marine Air Reserve Training Command's recent "Operation Brace" on the West Coast this summer.

F9F Grumman Cougar jet fighters from Glenview's Marine Air Reserve Fighter Squadron-543 streak gracefully through Southern California skies during the recent two-week active duty training exercises at the Marine Corps Air Station, El Toro, Calif. Marine Air Reservists from the western and midwestern sections of the United States wound up the parent Marine Air Reserve Training Command's "Operation Brace" last Friday (Aug. 29).

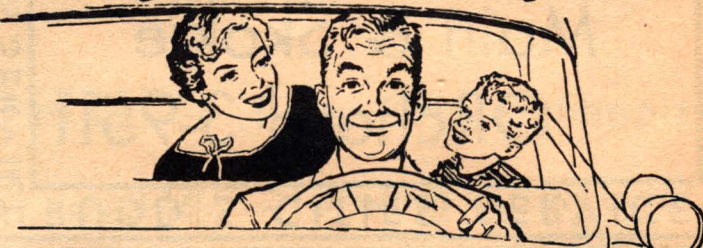

Modern-day jet aircraft require approximately 10 hours of ground maintenance for each hour spent in the air. Some Glenview Marine Air Reservists handling the technical operations included (1 to r) Sergeant R.F. Trevisan, PFC J.J. Hollander, and PFC D.C. Gathercoal.

Underside of the first floor slab during test of the 60-ft. girder. Such compact hydraulic jacks can exert forces of up to 100,000 lb. through each of 690 holes in the floor. Each jack is carefully calibrated, and hydraulic pressure is accurately measured to determine test loads.

floor could be subjected to a load of many thousands of lb. per sq. ft. A 50-ft. long beam can be given a total load of some 2 million pounds—forces considerably in excess of those that actual structures are required to withstand.

In fact, according to Dr. A. Allan Bates, the Association's vicepresident for research and development, the floor is designed to handle every test for which the staff could imagine a future need, plus a little more.

The new laboratory is already at work testing various types of structures and building units. A project is now underway to develop additional engineering information about newer types of concrete shell roofs. This type of roof, which can span great distances with a shell of concrete only a few inches thick, has become increasingly popular for large buildings such as stadiums, aircraft hangars and exhibition halls.

Another project is aimed at development of better methods of connecting precast concrete units, such as factory-produced beams, wall panels, columns and girders. Prestressed concrete, a very rapidly growing type of concrete construction, will also be studied, to extend its applications still further.

Building Interesting in Other Ways

Although the testing floor is the most unusual portion of the new laboratory, the rest of the building shows off some advanced practices in the structural and architectural use of concrete.

The entire laboratory above the first floor was assembled from precast units, erected by power equipment. These units were designed by a new method of engineering analysis called "ultimate strength design," which is beginning to supersede the method currently used by most structural engineers. The "ultimate strength" method takes into account more exactly than older methods the inherent strengths of concrete and reinforcing steel, and makes possible the construction of longer spans and higher buildings out of reinforced concrete.

The walls of the building were cast in forms lined with rubber mats. After the concrete had hardened, the mats were stripped away, leaving the wall surfaces with an attractive, textured surface.

The steel used for reinforcement was specially rolled from alloy steel having about twice the strength of ordinary reinforcing. The concrete is also much stronger than that used in most structures.

The entire building is air-conditioned to a constant temperature and humidity to prevent atmospheric changes that might affect test results. Three stories of offices and shops are located at one end of the building, and the basement is utilized for additional shops and storage. Test specimens are usually cast right in the laboratory.

Second Laboratory Completed

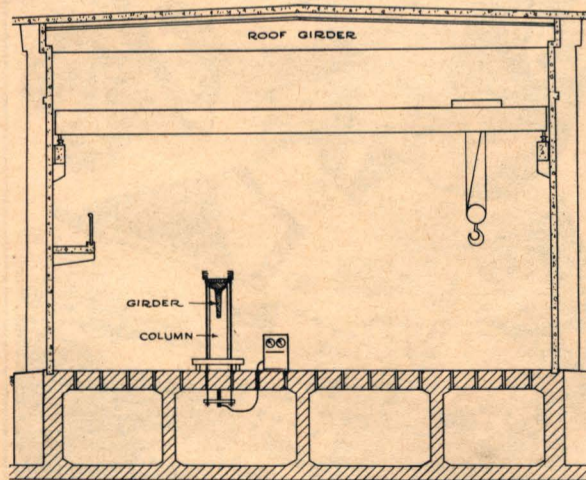

The Structural Laboratory is under the direction of Dr. Eivind Hognestad, Manager of the Association's Structural Development Section, and is under the overall supervision of Douglas McHenry, Director of Development.

A second building recently erected at the Laboratories, the Fire Research Center, has been completed but is not operational. It will be equipped next spring with several huge furnaces for testing the fire resistance of full-size concrete beams, slabs and structural members. It will be the only laboratory in the United States equipped for this specific type of work.

Other fire testing laboratories, such as Underwriters Laboratories in Chicago, are devoted to establishing fire resistance ratings. The Portland Cement Association laboratory will be used primarily for research aimed at improving the fire resistance of concrete and concrete building elements.

The Portland Cement Association is a national organization to improve and extend the uses of concrete. It has its headquarters in Chicago, and offices in 32 major cities of the United States and in British Columbia, Canada.

Its Research and Development Laboratories in Skokie are the largest in the world devoted to research on cement and concrete.

Cross-sectional view shows how one type of testing is carried out in the Portland Cement Association's new Structural Laboratory. The test floor is designed by bridge design methods to act as a tremendously strong girder. In the test shown, loads are applied by hydraulic jacks under the floor acting on steel rods that extend through holes to specimens above the floor. A 50-ft. long girder can be subjected to a 2 million lb. load in this manner.

ONLY
MAKE BELIEVE

Funny what a grown man will do. I was checking my display case of movie cameras this morning when I picked up a Brownie Movie Camera to polish some fingerprints off the chrome trim.

Out of habit, I guess, I snuggled the camera into my right hand, raised it to my eye and looked through the viewfinder. All of a sudden I found myself taking make-believe scenes with the Brownie Movie Camera.

Kids started running through the spray of the garden hose... neighbors were clustered around the barbecue... in the middle of the store, no less. I shook my head a little and continued "shooting." Next there was a birthday party and then a family get-together. The store was really getting crowded.

I don't know how long I kept this up, but when the mailman came in I guess I looked silly standing in the middle of the store playing "make believe" with an unloaded camera. He muttered something about, "This guy's working too hard," set the mail carefully on the counter, and tip-toed out.

I guess I was working hard but not too hard. Taking movies, even make-believe ones, is fun. THE SKOKIE CAMERA SHOP, 8002 Lincoln Ave., ORchard 3-2530.

FLOOD CONTROL

A comprehensive flood control study estimates communities within the Metropolitan Sanitary District of Greater Chicago will shell out upwards of two billion dollars in building local sewers during the next 50 years.

To cope with this vastly expanded sewer network and also control future extreme floods, the report recommends a big construction program by the sanitary district in the next half century.

The study was released by William F. Patterson, sanitary district president. It is being studied.

The projects recommended and estimated costs include:

For the north branch of the Chicago River above Niles: A lagoon system above Touhy avenue in Niles to store two inches of runoff, also enlargement downstream from Niles of the channel, and miscellaneous small ditches. Total cost: $16 million. Cost of initial phase: $11 million.

Channel enlargements and pumping station at Wilmette along with a detention basin in the lake—total cost, $25 million; initial phase, $19 million.

ANNIVERSARY

Henry W. Schappert, 5324 W. Monroe St., Skokie, will observe his 30th anniversary in the employ of R.R. Donnelley & Sons Company this month. The veteran member of the printing concern's 25-Year Club is a color etcher in the photo engraving department.

Mr. and Mrs. Schappert's children are Henry Jr., 21, and Edward Paul, 16. The family attends St. Paul Lutheran Church of Skokie.

Ask American Coach To Extend Service

Extension of American Coach company's certificated routes to carry 70 International Minerals and Chemical corporation employes to the firm's administrative center at 5401 Old Orchard road, Skokie, from the Old Orchard shopping center was sought Monday in Chicago.

Appearing before the Illinois Commerce Commission, an International official said the bus service is now rendered on a charter basis by American Coach. Extension of the Old Orchard route on a regularly scheduled basis requires ICC approval.

Presently, International guarantees American Coach $26 daily to make four trips each way between the shopping center and the administrative center, said Walter B. Knorst, International's assistant director of transportation.

These buses carrying the firm's employes between the two points originate at Irving Parkroad and Cicero and at the Howard street "L".

Knorst said the company is satisfied with the present charter service but wants an ICC certificated operation along the .8 mile route to guarantee permanent transportation for the 70 employes.

The only alternate transportation is via the North Shore railroad—termed "inadequate" by Knorst.

Herman Kunar, American Coach company's general manager, declined to say whether he opposed International's petition until he could study cost figures.

Kunar said he doesn't know whether the bus line would lose money if the extended service is changed to operate on a regularly scheduled basis.

ICC Examiner Harold Poslusny asked Kunar to submit cost figures at another hearing in Chicago September 22. The figures are to include a breakdown of costs by trip under the charter operation and the proposed certificated operation.

The figures must support Kunar's opinion on whether he is opposed to or favors International's request.

Poslusny also asked Knorst to submit data showing the exact number of riders on each trip between the shopping center and the administrative center, and whether they ride the buses originating from Irving Park and Cicero or the Howard street "L".

International moved its general offices from the Civic Opera building in Chicago to Skokie last June.

Ordered to quit operating by the ICC for failure to meet required standards, American Coach is continuing to serve the north suburbs pending a Circuit court review of the state commission's action.

Teen-Agers Hold Service at NTJC

FAIRVIEW PTA

Fairview P.T.A. will hold its first meeting of the year on Monday, Sept. 22, at the Fairview South School, starting at 8 p.m.

The day has been changed to Monday for this month only. Hereafter P.T.A. meetings will continue to be held on the fourth Tuesday of every month.

Russell J. Mills, principal, and the school board will present a discussion of the Oct. 4 referendum, which is of vital interest to every resident in the Fairview district.

All parents of students in the Fairview schools are invited to attend this opening meeting. It promises to be of much importance to their children's future schooling.

Refreshments will be served in the cafeteria following the meeting. Hostesses will be Jewel Garganp and Marie Janesch.

The sixth grade girl scouts, Troop 323, will present the colors. Troop leader is Mrs. Donald Graham.

FRIDAY
The Vikings SEPT. 26th

This will be a year of many "firsts" for the Notre Dame high school football team in Niles. And if team spirit is any indication of a winning team, then one of these "firsts" will be Notre Dame's first undefeated team.

Unfortunately, spirit alone does not make a winning team. It takes work, hard work. And that is exactly what 150 Dons, all that remain of the 250 who came out for the first practice August 25, are doing.

One of the major "firsts" for the team this year, is that this is the first year the Varsity squad will have more than a handful of seniors. Last year there were 9; this year there are 18.

The addition of two new coaches to the staff is another important "first." Bob Berg joins Freshman Coach John Cole, and Tony Viola will aid Sophomore coach Griff MacDonald. Head coach Joseph Yonto, and assistant coaches Frank Mariani and Don Nie continue to work with the Varsity team.

As far as Notre Dame students are concerned, the biggest first is the completion of the football field, meaning home football games can be played at home. Previously, they were played at Glenbrook High School.
