CYNDY Groffman of Skokie landed a role in the film about the village's fight to avert a Nazi march. Groffman, shown here as a member of the Jewish Defense League, has also done work in 'The Rose' movie. (Photo by Jorie Gracen)

For real and for feel

THE NAZIS NEVER CAME to Skokie, but a large crowd waited for them at village hall Saturday, April 30, 1977, until news came that they had been turned back by police at the Touhy Avenue exit of Edens Expressway. In photo below, the crowd looks a bit more cheerful and the signs more professional — and for a good reason. Playing the role of Jewish Defense League members are “extras” in the made-for-TV movie, “Skokie,” currently being filmed by Titus Production Co.
