Around and About

by TOM BRANAGAN

People have been asking how we're getting along these days with Mike Barrett, subject of the Around and About column May 29. He's the Erin-born proprietor of the Fish Pond and was irked because the Villager ran his small ad one week when we weren't supposed to. The mixup caused customers to swamp his establishment - and he wasn't prepared for them.

We're happy to report that Mr. Barrett has been mollified and we consider ourselves again on friendly terms with him. To prove it, we're reproducing here a picture of a smiling Mike Barrett we took recently. Mike, as you can see, is still busy with the shrimp knife. He reports business is excellent.

Worried about "hot money" in the event of nuclear attack? The Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago is taking precautions to see that our cash isn't in radioactive zones and is available after disasters. Special 12-hour courses in radiological instrumentation and evaluation are being given at the Bank this summer.

While we're in a photo-reproducing frame of mind we're also including the one below, which was taken by the advertising man, Ben W. Glassman of 5120 W. Farwell Ave., Skokie. The dog is Tipper, owned by a friend. The lady is Mrs. Glassman, which explains why Ben happened to be taking pictures in the lady's bedroom.

Well, that's not the full explanation. Ben was attempting to prove a point, to-wit: Tipper sleeps with her eyes open.

He offers this photo as evidence. We are not convinced. We maintain that Ben was not as stealthy as he thought he was and that Tipper was wide awake, eying him curiously.

At any rate, Ben - as a livewire advertising man - should have sensed the inherent danger in the whole situation.

Supposing he had discovered that Mrs. Glassman sleeps with her eyes open?

Incidentally, Glassman reported that on Flag Day, last Saturday, he drove down street after street from Pratt to Touhy and Cicero to Laramie and there were no more than 4 or 5 flags displayed.

"We invite all interested organizations and individuals to joint with us in taking action, and to urge all members of the House of Representatives to vote for passage of the Act."

Skokie Trustees Okay Stop Light Program

Skokie trustees decided Tuesday night that permanent stop-and-go lights are needed at the Main and Oakton St. intersections of Crawford Ave.

They authorized village engineer U.F. Turpin to draw up plans for the installations. Cost will come from motor fuel tax funds.

Trustee Jum Smith also pushed authorization for portable stop-and-go lights at the

The Skokie Valley YMCA has acquired Ilg Park, site of Niles' famed replica of the Leaning Tower of Pisa, for 'Y' activities. (See story elsewhere in this issue.)

American Coach's McCreary Is Running Late Again

Frank McCreary, owner of two bus lines, is running late again.

The first bus company to get a hearing on taking over bus routes in "McCreary territory" is not one of his firms, but the South Suburban Safeway Lines.

The Illinois Commerce Commission will open hearings June 26 in Chicago on South Suburban Safeway's application to take over American Coach routes between The Loop and Evanston, Skokie, Lincolnwood, Glenview, Morton Grove, and Niles.

American Coach, taken over and out of bankruptcy in 1950

by McCreary, has been ordered off the streets, effective July 15, by the ICC, which held that the Skokie based firm flunked a two year probation period.

The commission found American Coach equipment inadequate, that breakdowns were frequent, safety rules violated, and that the company "is not fit" to stay in the public transportation business.

McCreary, who plans a court fight to keep American Coach running, was the first to file an application when the ICC invited bids from bus lines throughout Illinois for American Coach routes. He filed on behalf of Bluebird Coach Lines, a west suburban line he manages.

No other line has filed for the north suburban routes except South Suburban Safeway which put in its application two weeks ago.

Monday the ICC set the South Suburban Safeway application for hearing June 26.

Harold Poslusny, ICC examiner, reported no date for Bluebird's petition has been scheduled because that line hasn't furnished the commission secretary with required proof that all interested parties have been notified.

Trustees Table Sewer Proposal

Bob Starr Gets Swiss Government Fellowship

Robert Starr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben D. Starr, 6936 Keystone Ave., Lincolnwood, has been awarded a fellowship by the Swiss Government for study abroad next year at the Institute of International Studies at the University of Geneva.

Bob, 21, graduates this month from the school of Liberal Arts at Northwestern University. He also took part in extra-curricular activities, serving as president of his fraternity, in student government and in the model United Nations.

Bob has also been a teacher of the third and fourth grades during the past two years of the Religious School of The Niles Township Jewish Congregation.

After studying in Geneva, he plans to take advantage of scholarship offers to either the University of Chicago or Michigan Law School; then he hopes to write a book on Justice Black of the Supreme Court.

RAPPAPORT ARRESTED

Sought since Oct. 30 on a federal flight warrant for removal to Minneapolis on an arson indictment. Milton Rappaport, 48, of, 6600 N. Harding, Lincolnwood has been arrested by FBI agents. He was seized in Hyde Park outside a rented apartment where he had been living under an assumed name.

Morton Grove trustees Tuesday night turned down as "not in the interest of the community" a request by a group of property owners that a sewer system be re-inspected.

Tom Flynn, acting as spokesman for a group of homeowners in the southeast section of the village, maintained that, in laying the Linder Ave. sewer, the contractor had varied from specifications.

Trustee Ed Brice reported that village engineers had inspected the sewer line many times and had found no deviations.

The property owners asked that the village board hire a private engineer to check on the village engineers' findings.

With trustees Cy Wagner and David St. Pierre taking a strong stand against the proposal, the board voted to table the request.

In another case, the board referred to Gardner and Associates, planning specialists, an application for a building permit by Midas Muffler Shops. The board questioned whether the proposed building's parking facilities - at Dempster and Parkside - would conform with zoning regulations.

Sirens to Serve as Storm Warnings

Arthur W. Haab, Skokie civil defense director, announces that in the future civil defense sirens will be used for storm warnings as well as for attack warnings.

Three one-minute blasts with two minutes of silence mean an exercise or test.

One three-minute blast means a storm warning - go to your basement.

One steady blast of five minutes' duration or longer attack. Residents of the Village of Skokie should go to Antioch.

PAULL SENTENCED

After a prosecutor called him "the top fur fence in the middle west," Albert Paull, 46, of 7234 Keeler, Lincolnwood, was sentenced to one year and a day by U.S. District Judge Julius H. Miner Monday for transporting stolen furs across state lines.

Paull was arrested April 26, 1957, by FBI agents who recovered 85 furs.

YMCA Acquires 'Leaning Tower' Site

Ilg Park with its famed replica of the Leaning Tower of Pisa at 6200 Touhy Avenue has been acquired for YMCA purposes. It will become the Y's temporary headquarters about July 1, according to Leonard L. Robb, chairman of the Skokie Valley YMCA board.

"We consider this to be a remarkable advance for the Y," Robb said, "and we intend to use the property for many YMCA programs and activities beginning immediately." He went on to explain that the Y Day Camp will operate on the site this summer.

A Y-Indian Guide rally for fathers and sons will be held at the base of the tower tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. and work will begin immediately to improve the property for additional activities in the weeks and months ahead.

The famous replica of the Leaning Tower of Pisa was built in the late 30's by Robert A. Ilg, Chicago industrialist who developed the property for the use of his family and later as a recreation area for his employees.

M. Marvin Lotz, Executive Secretary of the Y, said today that the Ilg property contains a seven room brick house, formerly the Ilg residence, which will be converted into offices as quickly as possible.

The handsome bridegroom recently completed service with the Marine Corps and plans to attend Northwestern University, School of Engineering, in the Fall.

Following the wedding ceremony, a reception was held at a buffet dinner and dance in the Skokie VFW Memorial Home on Lincoln Ave.

Mrs. Hoskins' four daughters, Nancy, Sue, Pat and Kathy, will assist their mother as hostesses.

A BROTHER FOR BILLY

Little four year old Billy Busch got a new baby brother on May 31, when Robert Ronald was born in St. Francis Hospital.

Weighing 9 pounds, 12 ounces, the newcomer is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Busch, 5434 Lincoln Ave., Skokie.

Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. George Stezskal, 5434 Lincoln Ave., Skokie, and paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Busch of Prairie View, Ill.

We can't think of anything that could have de-sacked us more than watching some high school girls on television recently.

The youngsters were dancing on one of those teen-time tediums, (two hours of same music, same faces, same dance step) and in spite of the stone-like expressions on their faces, seemed to be having a good time.

A number of the girls wore sack dresses. Some of them looked like they were in clothes they might have borrowed from an older, much heavier sister (even though the dress might have cost Mom a pretty penny.)

But what distressed us most was seeing these pretty young things, with their lithe figures, looking like a number of shapeless husks.

Occasionally an "old fashioned" girl would dance by in a pretty, full skirt and blouse, or a fitted, simple sheath, and she would completely obliterate her more "fashionable" sisters.

Like a bolt of thunder it hit us: if a pretty youngster can wash herself out so formidably in one of these moronic inspired creations, what must it do for women like us who must utilize what little we have to work with.

We have no intention of getting rid of the sack and chemise dresses that hang in our closet, since they cost us some hard-earned money, but we do intend to make use of a needle and thread, and—

Well, a nip here, a tuck there, a few lines of stitching, and perhaps we can get back into shape again.

Mary Gillette, she of the music and gift shop in Old Orchard, was certainly using her creative talents when she sent out personal engagement calendars to her friends. A colorful, decorated engagement folder with your own name imprinted at the top. What an ego booster.

We wish to go on record as stating that we have never heard our boss, Tom Branagan, lose his temper. We state this publicly as an impetus (we hope) for his continued restraint.

However, we wish we had a thought recording device. It would be interesting to know what he is thinking when something occurs that should incur his wrath, and he merely smiles as he changes color.

Your birthday, my sweet..... 'Though I've ceased counting time..... For you'll always be young..... As when you were all mine..... That last birthday we shared..... With such great joy and bliss..... Your eyes sparkle yet..... And still warm is your kiss..... But this year my darling..... As the last two before..... Though I spend the day..... With you whom I adore..... There'll be no birthday songs..... no good wishes or cheers..... As your earth's home I cover..... With flowers and tears.

HOME

by Ray Kozub

As I sit here by the sea,
Wondering what will become of me,
Watching waves that roll to foam,
I think — when will I find a home?

As I sit and dream of dreams to come,
I wonder if they'll e'er be done,
For the days I spent were quite a few
Wishing for someone just like you.

Then I saw the blue of your eyes, the sun in your hair,
Just once I saw you, but I knew you were there.

Now my dreams have ended — I've found my home;
No more shall I wander, no more shall
I roam.

After first grade students of Fairview School towed the fire department recently with their teacher, Mrs. Lee, they decided to write thank you letters. We quote here from two of the many clever notes these youngsters wrote.

"Dear Mr. Wolters: Sunshine is cute (Sunshine being the dog in the fire station) and I never saw a fire dog before." Carolyn Glubok.

"Dear Mr. Wolters: Thank You for showing us how to go down the pole." Barbara Block and Christine Greven.

FATHER'S DAY

by Miss Essel

This is a story, so very true
Of two little girls not quite four;
Who were discussing the fact that
Father's Day
Was rolling around once more.

And one little girl, with quizzical look,
said,
"Tell me, are daddies for real?"
And the other child, with superior air,
said,
"Well, I'll tell you just how they feel."

"He is good and he's kind, and brings me a sweet,
When he comes home from work in the night.
When he sees me he sweeps me right off of my feet,
And he holds me, oh, so very tight.

"Sometimes he's tired at the end of the day,
And just wants to lie down and rest;
But he doesn't mind if I want to play,
'Cause he says playing with me is the best.

"Or he'll read me a story when I go to bed,
Then he tucks me in and what's more,
He kisses me here, right on my head —
Now do you know what a daddy is for?"

"Well," said the other, "Your dad be sounds fine.
But I don't mind, for you see,
I've got a mom, and you want to know what —
She does all those things to me."

Marlene McMillen Weds Milwaukee Man

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas John David

Marlene Rae McMillen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry McMillen, 8023 Kilpatrick Ave., Skokie, became the bride recently of Thomas John David, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry David of Milwaukee, in the Evangelical Lutheran Church, Milwaukee.

Miss Carol Topher of Milwaukee was maid of honor and Miss Marylin Schmidt of Lincolnwood, bridesmaid. Little Susie Sender of Skokie acted as flower girl.

The bridegroom's brother, John David, acted as best man and another brother, Gerald, and Richard Flugge, cousin of the bride, were ushers.

The lovely young bride wore a gown of ivory satin covered with chantilly lace seed pearls. Her veil was caught with a tiny crown.

She carried a white gardenia with white orchid bouquet.

The maid of honor and bridesmaid were gowned in blue chiffon and picture hats and carried pink and white carnations.

A pink embroidered satin dress with white accessories made up the costume of the mother of the bride, while the mother of the bridegroom wore pink lace with pink accessories.

Both mothers wore orchid corsages.

The wedding ceremony was held in the late afternoon, and in the evening, a reception was held in the Squeeze Inn in Milwaukee.

Following their honeymoon trip through Tennessee, the newlyweds will make their home at 8026 Knox Ave., Skokie.

The new Mrs. David graduated from Niles Township High School and is employed at present with Cook Research Laboratories.

Command Performance for Lincolnwood Club's "Chic"

A command performance of "Chic A-La-Mode" will highlight the Lincolnwood Afternoon Clubs' gala dinner dance to be held in the garden setting of Villa Venice in Northbrook on June 27.

"Chic" is an original satire written and directed by Clem McPhee, which pokes good-natured fun at current fashion trends and suburban living. Mrs. B.G. Spice, 7907 Lamont Ave., chairman of the evening, felt the gentlemen would find it as entertaining as when first viewed by the women.

Joe De Salvo and his orchestra will provide the music for dancing. The cast of twenty-five club members designed and made the outstanding costumes, which could well be a challenge to today's top couturiers.

The cast, that will also act as Mrs. Spices' committee, are as follows: Mesdames L.C. Allendorfer, J.T. Arenber, Samuel Booras, Philip Comiano, Charles Fallon, John Flannery, John Hoefler, Ewald Iwick, W.E. Johnson, J.G. Kennedy, Clyde Lorenz, Leonard Macaluso, A.J. Miller, Thomas

McGrath, James Montana, Arthur Rance, John Roman, G.G. Rowell, W.W. Schoewe, Lewis Shutan (commentator), Edward Toughy, and Robert Waller.

Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. Spice, OR 3-0753.

Niles Township Youngsters in Dance Recital

Over 100 Niles Township children will participate in the dance recital of the Maria Konapa School of Dancing. The performance, "The Wee Teens," will be presented on June 15, 2:15 p.m. in Taft High School, 6525 Natoma Ave., Chicago

One of the outstanding routines will be "The Mexican Hat Dance," executed by ten Niles fathers (and one grandfather) dancing with their 3 and 4 year old daughters, and granddaughter. Maria reported that she did not encounter one reluctant recruit.

Miss Kanopa has become a familiar figure in inter-village activities. A former Merriel Abbot dancer, she has been instructing her Morton Grove students for 3½ years. The Niles school has been in existence for a year and a half.

She has placed talented Niles Township girls who have reached age 16 with Miss Dorothy Hild's summer State Fair groups. These girls, always well chaperoned, spend a summer gathering experience travelling through the middle western and western states. Any qualified Niles Township girl who is interested should contact Miss Kanopa at Ev 4-7693.

Don't laugh. This current ad is like honey to a bee to a happy band of antique auto enthusiasts which counts 13 Niles Township residents among its members.

They belong to a really fun organization known as the Model T Ford Club. Members all own Model T's, and several own more than one. Through the club, they track down spare parts, exchange information, and share in costumed outings which put the restored tin Lizzies through their paces.

Right now, the members are up to their running-boards in work, getting their ancient vehicles as ready as they'll ever be for the club's annual summer outing. This year it will be a three-day trip to the Wagon Wheel motel at Rockton, some 100 miles down the pike.

They'll wheeze along at a 30-mile-an-hour clip, leaving Chicago at 9:30 a.m. July 25 and hoping to arrive at Rockton by mid-afternoon after a stop for a picnic lunch.

Walter Goodman of 9654 Karlov, Skokie, serving his second one-year term as president of the Model T Ford Club, International, and owner of seven antique autos, says the purpose of the club "is not primarily to run a restoration contest, but to have an organization where we can benefit both socially and in the pursuit of our hobby".

Need Parts, Club Starts

The club was chartered in Illinois in October of 1952 by a few Chicago area residents for the purpose of helping one another find spare parts and supplies. Annual picnics highlighted the year's activities, which for each member consisted chiefly of acquiring a pile of parts and building a respectable "T" almost from scratch.

Skokie's Ed and Mary Bayless show what the well-dressed couple wore when Henry Ford's tin Lizzies sputtered along the roads scaring horses and the crank replaced the buggywhip as a starting device.

The new club received publicity in other antique auto club magazines, and the membership grew to around 350, most of them in the Chicago area. In 1954, the Model T club began issuing a mimeographed magazine of its own and memberships came in from California, New York and places in between. Other chapters were formed.

"Then, unknown to anybody, we began to pick up members from all over the world," Goodman said. "We have members in Australia, New Zealand and Canada and we recently received a request from a group interested in old autos in Holland. Their need for parts and accessories brought them to us."

With such far-flung chapters, the original club became the Model T Ford Club International. Its current members number 925.

Once a person acquires a T, his life apparently becomes both more exhilarating and more complicated.

"We find it's a disease," Goodman said. "After you get one, you can't stop."

Stored In Barn

He himself rents a barn to house his seven antiques—a 1913 roadster, a 1924 coupe and a 1927 sedan, all T's, and a 1909 Buick, a 1919 American-LaFrance fire truck, a 1920 Peterson and a 1936 Pierce-Arrow. The fire truck is running and the rest are in "semi-running" condition, he reported.

"Most of our members leave their modern cars on the street and put their T's in the garage," Goodman added. "The theory is, if you have only one bed and your grandfather is living with you, you give him the bed."

Such devotion is common among T addicts. Reuben Barsamian of 5221 Cleveland, Skokie, owner of a 1927 T coupe, has been spending almost all of his spare time recently reup-holstering the venerable vehicle's seats.

"They're beautiful," he says, "better than the furniture we have at home."

Barsamian has had his T for two years and it still has no roof or wheels, but he's spent many a happy hour leading and soldering and eventually hopes to have it completely restored.

"The only pleasure one gets from this hobby is rebuilding," he said. "I know one man who paid $80 for men's suiting material to reupholster his seats to make his T look authentic, like the old striped material."

Barsamian's big sorrow is the one that got away. A 1917 fire truck was offered for sale for $50. Before Barsamian could snap it up, another man offered $35 for it and the owner said, "We'll burn it first." And he did.

"I've known that truck since I was five years old," Barsamian mourned. "I used to run after it when I was a kid."

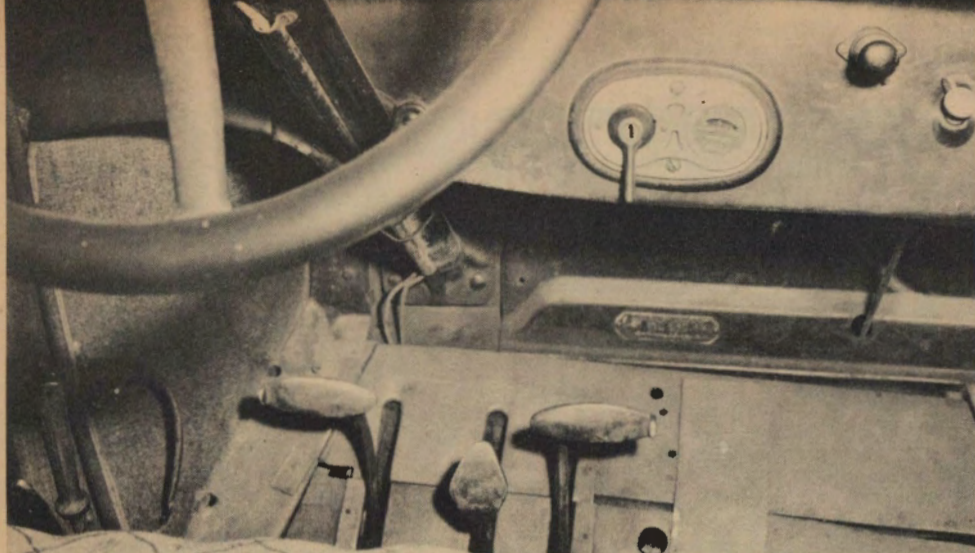

Joy of The Chase

Like any collector, the delight of the T addict is to make a "find." Model T's aren't as rare as most people think, Goodman says, but they are in varying stages of disrepair and their value hinges on (a) their antiquity and (b) their condition.

"You will find them stored in the most unlikely places," he stated, "usually in barns and garages where people left them when they stopped driving them and didn't find it economical to trade them in for new cars."

"As far as parts are concerned, there were so many T's around that parts are very plentiful—junk yards or even old-time Ford dealers can supply most of them. The mechanical aspects of the T changed very little from 1909, when the first ones were made, to 1927, when they were discontinued.

"They produced more than 15,000,000 of them

Compare the simple dashboard of the old Model T with the extensive dials and gadgets of a 1958 model Ford Skyliner, shown at right. Model T dashboard has only off-on switch, which also incorporated light switch, and battery amperes. At far right is choke and beside it dashboard light. Beneath steering wheel were the spark (a magneto control which started engine when it was cranked manually) and the throttle. On floor were the brake (right), reverse (middle) and forward drive (left) levers.

so there was a very big market for parts. Many small companies went into the business of producing parts for them. Then, during the war, thousands of these firms went into scrap metal, but even at that, because of the auto shortage, quite an inventory was maintained. After the war, parts were traded back and forth until they wound up with 40 or 50 separate parts sources."

Custom Body Parts

Several companies in the United States actually make body parts to order, Goodman reported.

The cost of the average unrestored T is anywhere from $5 to $500, depending on "its age, condition and who has it," Goodman added.

"Those manufactured in the '20s have a fair market value of from nothing to $1000," he said. "The 1915-1919 models might sell for from nothing to $150, and 1909-1915 for from nothing to several hundred dollars.

"A good restored brass radiator 1909 to 1915 Ford in perfect condition would have a market value of anywhere from $800 to $1,500, while those with steel radiators are worth from $200 to $700 or $800. But the cost of putting them in that condition is usually half again as much as they would bring."

Expense of restoring a T is directly related to a man's abilities, Goodman stated. A very good machinist or mechanic might spend $300 or $400 to fix up a car, while another man could spend $3,000 to $4,000 and come out with no better a job, he said.

"If a man understands the operation of a screwdriver, a pair of pliers and a paint brush, he can do a passable restoration job if the automobile he starts with is in running condition," Goodman declared. "That's the beauty of the T—it was made to sell to the mass of people who had never seen an automobile, and it's a very simple piece of machinery.

"The average household toaster is probably more complicated than the Model T Ford."

Local Members

Niles Township members of the Model T Ford Club include Edward Bayless, 9102 Kilpatrick, Skokie; Joseph Becia, 8026 Knox, Skokie; Charles R. Drake, 6856 Kildare, Lincolnwood; Walter Huber, 8021 Keating, Skokie; Rodney K. Johnson, 5827 Crain, Morton Grove; Matt J. Karleskey, 4934 Hull, Skokie; Walter Kutz, 7600 Kostner, Skokie; Seymour Neill, 6842 Kenton, Lincolnwood; Edward E. Peters, 6204 Lincoln, Morton Grove; A.J. Verschoore, 6724 N. Kenton, Lincolnwood, and George Wible, 9336 Nashville, Morton Grove.

Verschoore, treasurer and a founding member of the club's Midwest chapter, won the booby prize on the outing to Milwaukee last year. The report in the Model T Times stated he "was in a class by himself with a broken gas line, leaky radiator and broken fan belt."

This year's tour will feature obstacle races, coasting contests, slow-fast races, tire changing and cranking contests, a teeter-totter contest and—if you'll pardon the expression—a toilet paper race.

Many of these competitions are self-explanatory, but the slow-fast races have as their objective taking as much time as possible to travel from Point A to Point B, and as little time as possible from B to C. The teeter-totter is two tracks like a grease rack, anchored in the center. The object of the contest is to get a car in perfect balance and hold it there.

"It sounds a lot easier than it is," Goodman said.

The toilet paper race features two cars side by side, each driver holding one end of a strip of what the TV pitchmen call bathroom tissue. They drive over a rough course, endeavoring not to tear the paper.

"This can't be done very fast," Goodman said. "It's a safe race, but it requires a lot of skill."

Gals Get In The Act

Wives of members are busy making or assembling costumes suitable to the year of the family T. Mr. and Mrs. Bayless won last year's costume contest and plan to enter again this year.

Many of the women are quite active in club activities. "I myself have gotten out and helped sand down wheels," Mrs. Bayless said. "Most of the wives will help when there's an extra hand needed; and of course we give a lot of encouragement by mouth."

The Baylesses own two T's—a '23 touring car and a '27 coupe.

"My husband had had T's since he was able to drive," Mrs. Bayless said, "and we just have a ball. We're hoping to hold on to ours until our son gets into high school—then he can start out with a T instead of a hot rod."

The son is six years old.

A gaslight tour will be an evening highlight of the Rockton fiesta. Most of the T's have gas lights, and tour participants will have a police escort for their nocturnal ramblings because, as Goodman puts it, "there's more assurance that way that we'll get home again."

Goodman's wife thinks his antique autos "are kind of cute," he reported. He himself doesn't find the task of restoring seven ancients to shiny running order overwhelming—in fact, in discussing it he exudes the same sort of anticipation as a gourmet studying the menu before a delectable banquet.

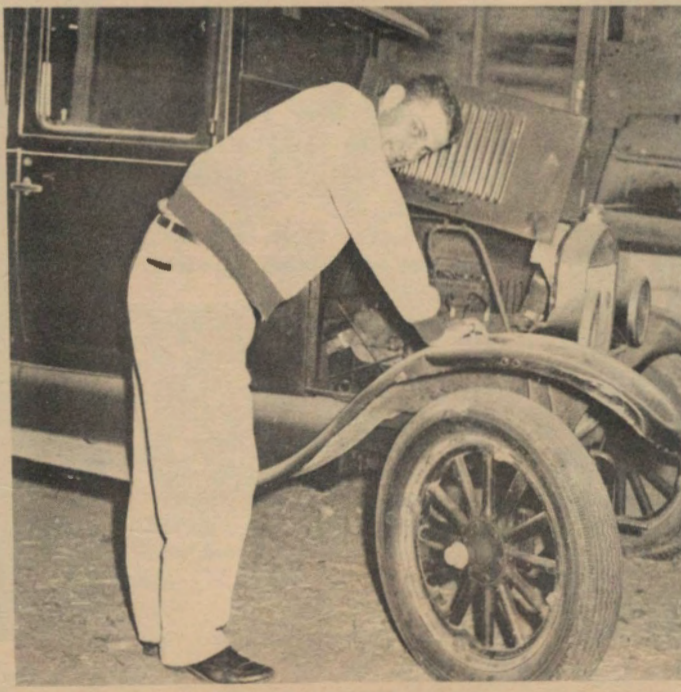

"I'm 29 and I've got a long life ahead of me, so I have plenty of time," Goodman says with relish.

In this attitude, he echoes the sentiments of his fellow club members, whose hobby suits them to a "T."

motor of the sedan while, at right, he cranks up Ed Bayless' 1927 Ford coupe.

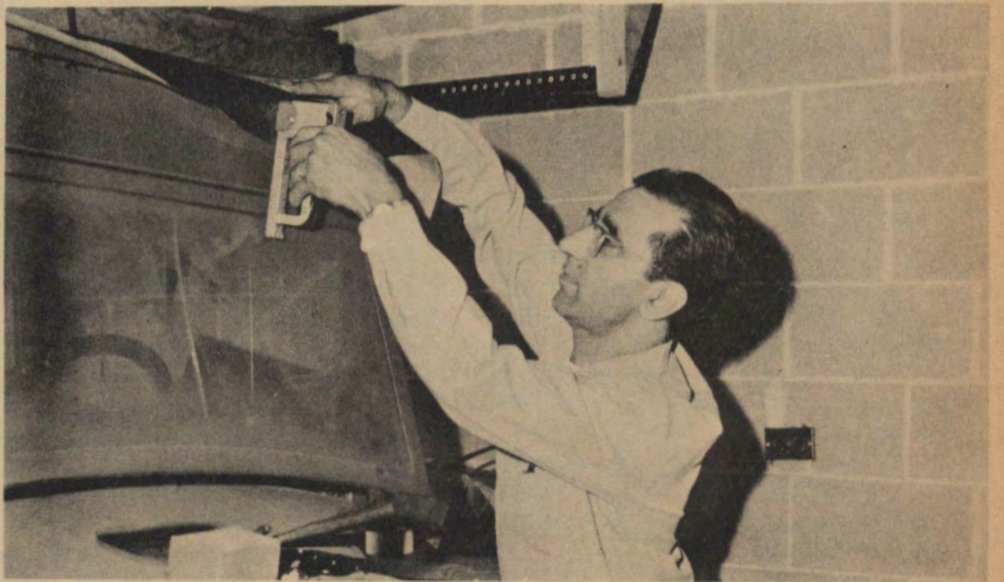

Reuben Barsamian, Skokie Model T enthusiast, has been working for two years trying to get his oldtimer into shape—and still has a long way to go.

At left he re-upholsters seat of his 1927 Ford coupe, using pure nylon which, he says, almost matches the original covering. Looking on,

First Grade Version

When the first grade students of Fairview School South decided to make a panorama of Skokie, they were constantly amazed at the many different people and places involved in the village.

Mrs. Lee, their teacher, helped the youngsters organize their ideas.

In addition to the almost authentic reproduction of Skokie as they saw it, the youngsters visited the fire and police departments in order to better understand the purposes and function of these departments in the community.

Two Eighth Graders With Problems . . .

Create Electronic Answer

• In this day and age of electronics and science, our educators and students are more alerted to the need for greater achievement in these fields. When we think of students in connection with science, we are apt to think in terms of those young people on the high school or college level.

However, two eighth grade students completed a project recently that would do credit to those much older than they.

It all started when Miss Mildred E. Tess, principal at the Edgebrook School, showed a picture of a "matching board" to a group of students and asked if anyone could duplicate it.

A "matching board" is an electronic mathematical device that matches up correct answers with problems.

Two Volunteered

Two youths, Mark Hollinger and Duane Novak, volunteered to see what they could do. A third boy, Roger Matsckhe, offered his help.

The boys had no plans from which to work when it came to wiring the inside of the board, so they had to use their own ingenuity and knowledge in putting in the proper circuits.

Duane's father supplied the material for the cabinet and Mark's father came up with the wiring supplies.

After about a month of spending afternoons after school on their project, their mission was accomplished. The board they created had 80 division problems on it.

An alligator clip was applied to one of the problems, with another clip touching the various answers. When the correct answer was touched, a bulb would light up.

Cost Only $7

Their whole venture cost them $7, and the completed matching board was immediately put to work in the fourth grade.

While this matching board handles only division problems suitable for third and fourth grade students, it can be made for any other type of mathematics such as multiplication, subtraction or addition, and can be keyed to any grade level.

When the boys demonstrated their board at a PTA meeting, Mrs. Coffman of 6109 Landers Ave. was so impressed she asked if they could duplicate it for use at the Spaulding School for Crippled Children.

That's when Mark and Duane went to work in real earnest. Only this time they purchased what-

A close-up view of the wiring as it is attached to the batteries.

by Sheryl Leonard ever equipment they needed, and as a result, ended up spending $11. Mrs. Coffman promised to take care of all of their expenditures.

As with the first matching board, Duane made the cabinet and both boys worked on the wiring.

Since they knew their new matching mathematical board was to be used by the Spaulding School, they thought there might be a possibility of it being used by blind students. Therefore, in addition to the light on the board, they rigged up a buzzer, so that when the correct solution to a problem was touched, the buzzer would sound.

Eighty Problems

The new matching board has 80 problems on it which can be answered electronically.

Their teacher, Miss Lucille Carlson, asked them to exhibit their project at the science fair for grade and high school students held recently in the Museum of Natural History, where it drew forth many favorable comments.

Mark Hollinger, 13½ 6305 Legett Ave., will graduate from the Edgebrook School this June. Duane Novak, 13, 6430 Leoti Ave., will graduate next February.

Both boys are interested in electronics and mechanics and plan on becoming mechanical engineers.

The boys display the interior of the cabinet, showing the intricate wiring which they completed without benefit of any diagram.

FROM SETTLEMENT TO VILLAGE

by BERTHA M. ROSCHE

Chapter VI of Niles Township History

Niles Center (Skokie) was incorporated in 1888, and so named because it then occupied the center of Niles Township.

Its eastern limit was the Northwestern Railroad and its north boundary was Main Street. Adam Harrer was elected president. Trustees were Michael Harrer, Peter Blameuser Sr., Ivan Paroubek, Fred Rose, Red Stielow, and Chris Baumann.

The town hall was the present fire engine house for the apparatus of the original volunteer fire department organized May 6, 1881. The upper floor was the meeting place of such organizations as the village had: the Catholic Order of Foresters, the Plattdeutsch Guild, the German Singing Club, and several lodges.

Morton Grove was incorporated Oct. 24, 1895. George Harrer was its first president and served as such for fourteen years.

The village was named after Levi Parsons Morton, who was then governor of New York but had been vice president of the United States the previous term. The Americana Encyclopedia has an imposing list of the great financial institutions he founded in the East. He had assisted in floating the government war loans during the Civil War, was a Republican member of Congress one term, and was minister to France. His only connection with the village seems to have been his service on the board of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad which passes through the town, and whose station became the nucleus for its growth.

Niles Settlers

The village of Niles had had the earliest settlers in the township; the Shadigers, Perrins, Rulands, Ebingers, and John Ketchum. By 1884 it had two stores, two hotels, a drug store, harness shop, two blacksmiths, three churches, two schools, a doctor, and about 200 inhabitants. Andreas, the Cook County historian of that time, makes it 250 inhabitants and adds six saloons.

Incorporated in 1902, it took the name "Niles" from the township. Previously it had been known as "Dutchman's Point." That name was not official, but was in general use. The origin is easily seen. It lay in a point of the North Branch and its people were German. Until well after the turn of the century Germans were quite commonly known as "Dutchmen," probably from their own name for themselves, "Deutsch." Perhaps the disuse of the term begins from the first World War.

At any rate the old name, "Dutchman's Point," stuck long after the new name had been adopted. By the census of 1910 the place had 569 population, outstripping by just one its neighbor town, Niles Center, which had 568.

Tessville (Lincolnwood) organized in 1911, had 365 by the same census. It was named, as has been mentioned, for Johann Tess, one of the early pioneers. The first president was Frank Meier, and his brother John was its first clerk. As in its three companion villages, all its earliest families had been German or Luxembourgian, and the business was truck gardening and flowers.

The outdoor market made Niles Center really a center, not of Niles Township alone, but of all the surrounding country. It reached from the intersection of Lincoln and Oakton to the fork at St. Peter's Catholic church and around the bend of old Market Street, which has in recent years been renamed Warren.

Market days were the first Tuesday and third Thursday of each month. On those days farmers arrived from miles around with their vegetables and livestock, especially pigs and poultry. Merchants from the city sold a great variety of goods.

It was also a horse fair. Horses that had gone lame on the cobbled pavements of Chicago were brought to work out many more valuable years on the soft soil of the fields.

On those days the village was full of strangers. Mingling with the crowd were Gypsies whose caravans camped at the edge of town and where women told fortunes. Farmer, merchant, beggarman, thief: the last two species being sufficiently numerous to require extra police protection.

Three Old Churches

A few random items gleaned from those who remember, may well find their place in the story at this point.

The three old churches in the center of the village were the first north of the city—probably north of Bowmanville. The land for St. Peter's Catholic church and its cemetery was donated by Peter Blameuser Sr., as was also the land for St. Peter's Evangelical and Reformed on Oakton Street. He contributed the bells for both churches; those in the Catholic church were named for him and his wife, "Peter" & "Clara." He offered the land for St. Paul's on Carpenter Road, but Mr. Robr's donation of a site had already been accepted.

Ferdinand Baumann was the keeper of the railroad gates at Niles Center Road. They were raised and lowered for trains by pumping. In his spare time he laid out a miniature park fifty feet square with little walks, and fashioned a zoo for it from odd-shaped slag picked up from the tracks.

Ice cream was first introduced here at a picnic about 1882. A large dishful could be bought for three cents. Later it was peddled from a wagon on Sunday afternoons. You ran out with your dish and it was ladled out for you at a penny a serving.

There was a picnic ground all the way from Harm's store at Lincoln and Oakton to the south end of the block. A picture of this area is one of those on the wall of Skokie's First National Bank.

An eventful occasion came to Morton Grove in the summer of 1897. The three-day convention of the Plattdeutsch (German middle class) Guild was held on August sixth to eighth in St. Paul's Park near the railroad station. It attracted first and second generation Germans from the entire Chicago northern area.

Old Newspaper

A German-language newspaper, Der Westen (The West) of Aug. 8 of that year, devoted a full page to the celebration. It makes a vivid story of the thousands of German people, young and old, streaming from all directions to the picnic grounds.

They came, it says, by every means of travel, by "Dampfross und Stahlross" that is, by steam horse and steel horse (bicycle).

It describes St. Paul Park in glowing terms as the most beautiful spot near Chicago. Created and owned by George C. Klehm, it was a tract of land bordering on the North Branch, which had been dammed to form a pond large enough for boating. Klehm supplied the boats.

The reporter waxed poetic as he pictured the joy of drifting downstream between banks so heavily wooded that the sunbeams only flickered through. The park also contained a pavilion ideal for dancing and useful, too, as a shelter for picnickers caught in sudden summer showers. The old yellowed and wrinkled German paper, now in the possession of a Klehm-Harms family, proudly recounts the stories of the pioneers, tracing each on his long voyage from the Old World, through the hardships in the New, to their successes and triumphs as their toil and native perseverance paid off.

BLUEBEARD? HENRY VIII? JACK THE RIPPER? TERRIBLE MR. BANG?

HERE'S THE REAL MARTY FAYE

by TOM BRANAGAN

Editor and Publisher Tom Branagan, interviewed last week on Marty's Morgue, WBKB television show, gives his impressions of the program's star, Marty Faye.

The voice is shrill and the face is sharp and the eyes are mocking. He bullies and he goads and he sneers.

This, you say to yourself, is Marty Faye—proprietor of Marty's Morgue, WBKB-TV's late-night show and by reputation a vain and irascible man with a vicious temper and a tongue to match.

And this is the man who, in a few minutes, will be interviewing you. You have no excuses—you wanted the interview to publicize your paper. But you dread it all the same.

You throw back your shoulders and stick your chin out and you try to swagger a little. "I'm a brave man," you tell yourself. "If he starts cutting me up I'll slash him to shreds."

But you don't really believe it—any more than you believed you could lick the big kid down the block 25 years before. You told yourself you could handle the bully then, but when the show-down came, you ran.

If you had the chance now, you'd run again. But it's too late. The friend you took along for support becomes a sort-of warden. Run, and everybody knows you're yellow.

So here you are, a lamb leading itself to the slaughter. Lamb? A lamb would have sense enough to flee.

You? You're a great big bowl of mashed potatoes, ready to be served.

Mr. Mashed Potatoes, accompanied by a friend he hates mightily at the moment, walks into the dining room—onto the sound stage, rather.

It is a large room, bare in the middle, but along its sides are several sets—a kitchen, a workroom, a conference room and, finally, the lair of Mr. Faye. This consists of a large, plain desk with three chairs behind it and several television cameras in front of it.

A small man with thinning hair and a large mouth is seated at the desk. He is wearing a rich dark suit and a white silk tie. You recognize him:

Henry VIII, Terrible Tempered Mr. Bang, Bluebeard, The Man Who Came To Dinner, Jack the Ripper and The Original Guy Who Pulls Wings Off Flies.

For this is Marty Faye. There is a plate on the desk which says, Marty Faye. It means much more than it says: It means, and you recite a sort-of litany to yourself: tormentor of the slow-witted, belittler of the weak-at-heart, sneerer at the dull, beleaguerer of the fumlbers ... Oh, Lord, from this wasp of a man, Deliver Us.

So Mashed Potatoes—poor old slow-witted, weakhearted, dull, fumbling Mashed Potatoes—ambles to the desk and blurts:

"I'm Bran Tomagan."

The man smiles—somewhat sweetly, you notice. But his eyes indeed are mocking.

He has a copy of your pride and joy, the Villager. He slaps it: "Excellent paper," he says. "I like it." You feel like genuflecting.

"This girl here," the sharp-eyed man continues, pointing to a picture of Society Editor Sheryl Leonard. "Why is she winking?"

"To get over the between-us-girls idea," you say. And you add, with some pride: "It was my suggestion."

He smiles, but not sweetly this time. "Why don't you stop suggesting?" he says. He searches your face for reaction. Then he smiles—sweetly again.

You feel yourself redden as he turns away.

You turn yourself and find a seat back in the studio. A man you remember as a Tribune reporter, Les Money Penny, now one of the exalted TV clan, smiles sympathetically. "It'll be all right," he says. He talks of old times, old stories, but you don't really hear him. You're thinking: "Faye wants me with gravy."

The program starts, but you're not on immediately. You sit through a Faye interview with a 22-year-old school teacher who is going to Kilimanjaro. You think that's not a bad idea for yourself—right now.

Then a man with earphones who has been standing beside the cameras turns: "Mr. Branagan?"

Numb, you walk to the desk and seat yourself beside Marty Faye. He turns.

"You're nervous. But just relax. You're the better looking of the two of us. You have all your hair and all your teeth. (turning to the cameras) This is a guy that's got a lot of guts. He's editor and publisher of the Villager."

And then Marty Faye describes you and your paper in such glowing terms that it almost shocks you. More, he leads you through a description of its founding, its ideals, its goals.

He doesn't goad, or sneer, or belittle. He prompts you, almost gently, into putting yourself and your firends—and your paper—in the most favorable light.

And in the end, he has the words tumbling out of your mouth. You are at ease—so much so that, afterwards, you feel you've been somewhat pompous.

And soon—too soon, you think—he is shaking your hand and loading you down with cuff links and smoked fish and salami and saying, "If I can ever do anything to help, please let me know."

And you walk out of the place, ashamed of yourself for all the fears and suspicions and prejudices you had about the man.

The voice is shrill and the face is sharp and the eyes are mocking. He can bully and he can sneer.

But Marty Faye ... the real Marty Faye ... is soft as ... well, as mashed potatoes.

Apprehensive Villager editor, Tom Branagan, eyes interviewer Marty Faye warily as program opens last Wednesday night on WBKB television show, Marty's Morgue.

Warming up, Branagan smiles at one of Faye's quips. Faye's Girl Friday, Peggy Winslow, is at right.

Completely charmed by reputedly waspish entertainer, editor laughs heartily as entertainer good naturedly complains about a reference to him in earlier Villager.

"Pip, pip and tinkertytonk, old chap," Branagan appears to be saying after enjoyable 25-minute appearance on Faye's show.

MARTY'S STORY:

'ALWAYS A PITCHMAN'

Marty Faye, brother of cafe singer Frances Faye and cousin of comedian Danny Kaye, has spent the better part of his 37 years as a pitchman.

He's "hawked" everything from vegetable slicers to patent medicines and plastic towels, and in such locations as New York's Fifth Avenue, Atlantic City's Boardwalk, and county and state fairs not only all through America, but in Australia and New Zealand as well.

With the advent of television, Faye, for the most part, gave up his in-person, on-the-spot huckstering, and turned his not inconsequential talents to the new electronic medium.

His subsequent rise as a television and radio pitchman has gained him a certain success, notoriety and "Marty's Morgue," his first "legitimate" television show which is seen Sunday through Friday nights at 11:30 over WBKB.

Marty Faye was born in Brooklyn, N.Y. on October 21, 1921. He's a graduate of the Samuel J. Tilden High School in Brooklyn, and he spent two years at Brooklyn's St. John's University studying law.

Chicken-Plucker

At the age of 14, he spent his summer vacation working in a Catskill Mountain hotel as a chicken-plucker (no kidding!). Subsequent summer vacations were spent working as a bell-hop, a bus-boy, a "hawker" of kitchen gadgets in a Fifth Avenue dime store, and a taker of blood pressures on Atlantic City's Boardwalk. For this service he charged 25¢, wore a white coat and was addressed as "Doctor." He was 17 years old at the time.

After quitting college, he went on the road selling "anything I could lay my hand on," covering the county and state fair circuits and the nation's home and auto shows. For seven months in 1940 he performed the same "services" throughout Australia and New Zealand.

With war threatening, Faye returned to America, and with the outbreak of war he entered the U.S. Army, working his way up to platoon sergeant in the infantry. The war ended and Faye was discharged March 31, 1946.

He then returned to New York City where he developed his own line of vegetable slicers and plastic towels, which he sold himself, both on television and in department stores.

Started TV Career Here

In February of 1952, he came to Chicago, where he became a television pitchman for hundreds of products on all of Chicago's TV stations. A year later he became a disk jockey for Chicago radio station WAAF, spending approximately 36 hours a week on the air. And Faye has had programs on that station continuously ever since.

While with WAAF, he developed a recorded radio interview show which he dubbed "Marty's Morgue" and which is still carried in Kansas City, Indianapolis and Los Angeles.

In March of 1957, Faye brought "Marty's Morgue" to WBKB as a late evening television program - and the rest, perhaps, is history.

Faye now lives quietly with his wife Vivian, whom he married in 1944, and their five-year-old daughter, Sydney Fran. "My huckstering days are behind me now," Marty explains. "I'm certainly not ashamed of them - they were good years. But they were hard years, too. I'll now just concentrate my energies on a nice, relaxing show like Marty's Morgue. After all, I'm not a kid anymore - that is, if I ever was."

Alice Mendera, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mendera, 5032 Harvard Ter., Skokie, won her scholarship to the Egyptian Music Camp in DuQuoin, Ill. She has studied the flute for three years under the direction of L. Provost, band director at Niles Township High School where Alice is in her sophomore year. She plays first chair flute and piccolo with the Nilebi band and orchestra. She intends to participate with the Northwestern University band and orchestra summer program.

Gail Sullivan, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sullivan, 6014 Grove Ct., Morton Grove, won her scholarship to Allerton Art Camp. She is a junior at Niles Township High School and feels a great deal of her art work came from Thomas Blackburn, art instructor at the school. She does most of her drawing at home, and hopes some day to attend Stevens College and major in fashion illustration. Gail feels going to Allerton will give her a better art background.

Linda Noyle, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard E. Noyle, 7046 Beckwith Rd., Morton Grove, will be attending Egyptian Music Camp as her scholarship award. Linda has played the piano for six years, studying with Miss Katherine Recclin and Lionel Lile. She played for the graduation at Golf School, a fashion show, and a formal banquet of the Order of the Eastern Star. She also plays viola in the Niles Township High School concert orchestra.

COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY

A business office can operate without women — but not very well. The male employes of Allstate Insurance Company's home office and Chicago regional office in Skokie found this out recently when the women employes took an afternoon off for a company outing at the Villa Venice.

Left alone to operate the office, the men conducted their routine business operations and, in addition, attempted to fill in on duties normally handled by the weaker sex. Male employes manned the telephone switchboards, reception desks, business machines and typewriters, discovering that they could handle these functions if necessary, but not with the dispatch, efficiency and charm of their feminine co-workers.

With more than a touch of ham, several of the Allstate men demonstrate for the camera the problems they encountered the day the girls went away.

A Man's World?

Allstate employes Ralph Jackson and John Swanke watch wistfully as Allstate's feminine employes leave for an afternoon's company outing.

Staff Assistant Stan Lettas of firm's accident prevention division juggles three phones as he attempts to answer all of them at once in the absence of the division's secretaries.

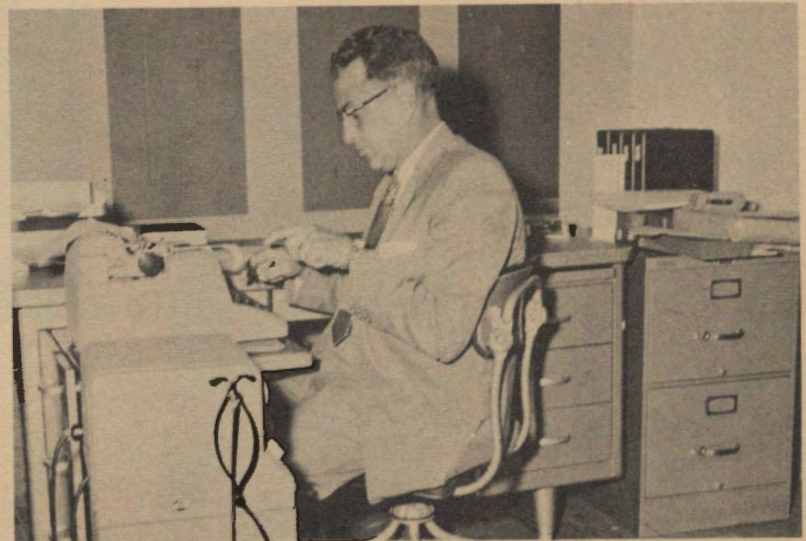

Reports supervisor Harry Stewart works out a lengthy computation on a business machine in an office area empty of the staff of girls who usually handle this operation.

Advertising production men Bob Hall (standing) and Paul Reynolds find that it is just a bit difficult to find things in the files when the girls are away.

Assistant underwriting manager Lew Burritt, Jr., of the Chicago regional office took over switchboard duties while the ladies had their day and found himself temporarily confused by the maze of wires and cables.

Leon G. McKnight, director of Allstate's fire insurance operation and assistant secretary of the company, adopts a hunt-and-peck technique to type a letter in the absence of his secretary.

Industries and Individuals In Home Beautification Contest

A considerable number of "landscaping-beauty contest" entries were received from property owners associations and Skokie industries in the Skokie Chamber of Commerce third annual beautification contest. June 7 was the deadline for entries.

The beautification contest was originated by the Chamber of Commerce in 1956 to encourage and insure Skokie's present standing as one of the north shore's most attractive communities.

This year, for the first time, the contest was open to industrial organizations.

Contest judging will take place immediately after July 1 and winners will be announced.

Entries including individual property owners and industrial plants are: Associations: Crawford McCormick Property Owners, Williamsburg Village Home Owners, Timber Ridge Homeowners' East Side Property Owners, Northeast Skokie Property Owners, Central Civic Improvement and Fairview Property Owners.

Industries: American Colloid Company, Rolled Steel Corporation, Master Molded Products Corporation, Wm. W. Nugent & Company, O.C. Keckley Company, Mohr Lino-Saw Company, Allstate Insurance Company, Ciba Company, Inc., and Chicago Seven-up Bottling Company.

Police Complete Training Program

Members of the Morton Grove Police Department completed a 50 hour training program on June 4.

The eighteen-man force attended classes three nights a week since the school opened on April 21. The course included all phases of police work, covering traffic court, testimony, arrest and various other police duties.

PLANS POLIO DRIVE

James B. McCahey, Jr., 9438 Hamlin Ave., Skokie, treasurer of Dunn Coal Co., was elected to the executive committee of the Cook County chapter, National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, at the recent annual meeting.

McCahey served as a section leader of the business division in the 1958 March of Dimes.

Building Permit Up for Hearing

Hearings on a Skokie land-owner's petition for administrative review of Skokie's refusal to issue a home building permit for a 30-foot wide lot at 9910 Keystone in the village, are scheduled to open June 26 before Judge John T. Dempsey in Circuit court.

The lot is in the highest type of residential zone set up in the village zoning ordinance. Skokie officials say they are backing up this code which requires a minimum lot width of 55 feet for a single family residence.

Village attorneys so far have beaten back motions by John M. Janecko, the owner, for a quick court decision in his favor.

The court also has granted Skokie's motion to strike out the work "fraudulent" from Janecko's charge that the village zoning board refusal last year to issue the permit was "arbitrary, capricious, and fraudulent."

Janecko's attorney, William Wilson, had alleged he didn't get a fair hearing before the zoning board.

Bell & Howell Movie Preview

Bell & Howell Company of Lincolnwood, world's largest producers of motion picture equipment, went to the movies - en masse.

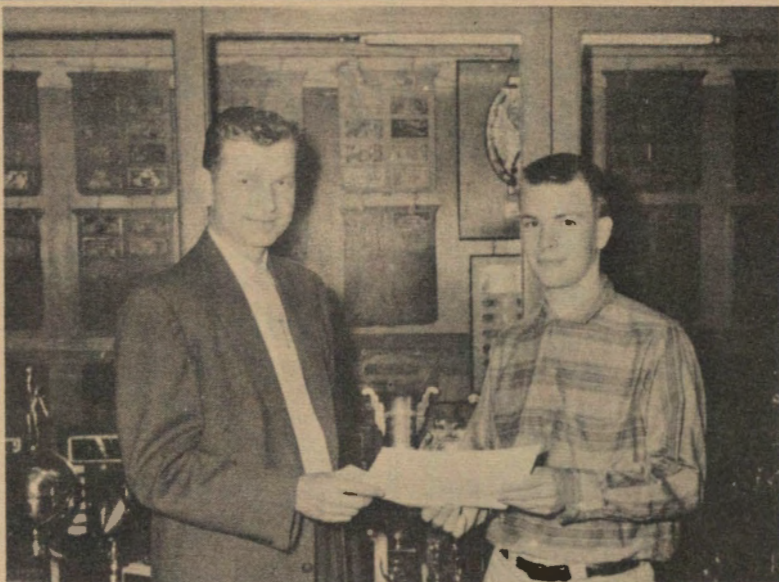

Some 4,000 Bell & Howell employees and their families previewed a new Hollywood motion picture

The affair is sponsored by BAHEBA, Inc., (Bell & Howell Employees Benevolent Association), which this year arranged for a Hollywood "pre-premiere" showing of the new 20th Century Fox film, "The Bravados," a western movie starring Gregory Peck.

GUEST SPEAKER

Morton Grove Police Chief Milton Scanlon was guest speaker at the June 10 meeting of the Northeastern Home Owner's Association of Morton Grove.

The male members of the group have formed a softball team and have made plans for an active schedule.

The Dole Valve Management Club's scholarship award was presented recently to John W. McKillop of Glenview. John, an outstanding member of the graduating class of Niles Township High School, plans to attend Marquette University. The award certificate and check were presented by Donald Ross, Chairman of the club's educational committee.

The change, was necessitated by the recent destruction of Villa La Maine.

The "Around the World" travel motif will remain the same, despite its "takeoff" from the "emergency field." Points of Interest in every part of the globe will be highlighted.

Music will be provided by Martin Pidovic and his orchestra.

Drama Group To Appear at Northwestern

The Skokie Civic Theatre has been invited to do a play at Northwestern University, employing radically different stage techniques.

The invitation for the Aug. 5 drama was extended by Prof. Robert S. Breen of the NU faculty.

The new technique, developed by Breen, is called "chamber theatre." Its purpose is to stage novels and short stories without destroying the author's narrative. Thus, a story can be told and acted at the same time.

Mildred Wiseblatt of the Skokie theatre group gives this explanation:

"In a play only the characters are able to communicate. If the playwright wishes to expound a thesis, he must do so in the words of one or more of his characters.

"Chamber theatre" is able to take advantage of the best of both media. While the narrative takes place, the actor plays out his part (the action and narrative are simultaneous), but should the narrator wish to suspend action in order to explore the character motivations, he can do so without sacrificing dramatic integrity."

Breen has chosen "Duo," a novella by Colette, for the Skokie group's production. In the cast are SCT favorites Pat Terry, Jack Barza, Lorry Young, Jack Gordon, and Irene Kramsky. Ticket information may be had by phoning OR 5-1609.

SKOKIE THEATER FEATURES

Having proposed to Claire Kelly 50 feet beneath the sea, Dan Dailey clinches his proposal with a kiss on the water's surface in the exciting new M-G-M release, "Underwater Warrior," thrill-drama based on the heroic exploits of the Navy Underwater Demolition Teams.

Robert Taylor, as he appears in his role as an Early West rancher in M-G-M's "Saddle the Wind." Taylor has been handling six-shooters in plenty of outdoor action-dramas since his first one, "Billy the Kid," filmed in 1941.

'Seven Brides for Seven Brothers' and 'King Solomon's Mines' at Evanston

Academy Award-winning films, "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers", big Cinemascope and color musical and "King Solomon's Mines" in Technicolor, opens Friday, June 20th for one week at the Evanston Theater.

"Seven Brides for Seven Brothers" co-stars Jane Powell and Howard Keel. Jeff Richards, Russ Tamblyn and Tommy Rall head a supporting cast of 20 principals recruited from Hollywood, Broadway, light opera and the ballet stage.

The picture unfolds a laugh-and-tune-filled story of a family of brothers who carry off the prettiest girls of an Oregon town in the 1850's to make them brides. The movie brings to the screen one of the finest examples of a film musical in which plot, songs and dances dovetail as integral parts of a musical entity.

The co-feature, "King's Solomon's Mines" in Technicolor Stars Stewart Granger and Deborah Kerr. The picture is billed as a spectacle.

At the first show on Saturday, a "Kartoon Carnival" will be the added feature starting at 1:30 p.m.

Jane Powell, determined to make gentlemen out of her husband's rowdy and unkempt brothers, gives them an ultimatum - "No cleanliness, no chow!" "Brothers" are Jacques d'Amboise, Jeff Richards, Russ Tamblyn and Tommy Rall. It's from M-G-M's "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers" at the Evanston Theater.

Symphony Studio, Lucille Ritter, Prop., Presents Miss Ritter in 'Silhouettes'

Miss Lucille Ritter, 15, proprietor of the Symphony Studio of the Dance, will present a ballet entitled "Moonlight Silhouettes."

Miss Lucille Ritter, publicity director, told the Villager that the production features a number of budding young stars all of whom received their instruction from that noted danseuse, Miss Lucille Ritter. "Moonlight Silhouettes" is under the direction of Miss Lucille Ritter. Producer: Miss Lucille Ritter.

Taking the starring role as Kristabelle Kay, described in publicity releases as "a young and beautiful maiden," is Miss Lucille Ritter, prima ballerina.

Watter's Cardinals Nip Evanstonians

On the strength of an extra-inning, bases loaded, two out wind-up, Watter's Morton Grove Cardinals nipped Evanston State Bank Saturday at Herrer Park 6-5.

Phil Miller went the route for Morton Grove, making his first start his first win. Miller scattered five singles, struck out eight and walked only three.

The regular in seven-inning game ended with the score 5-5.

In the last of the eighth, with one away, Rog Sheffield lined a single to right center. "Lippy" Lipman, Evanston's second chucker, eased the situation by fanning the next batter for the second out. But then Jay Busscher poked a solid hit to center and Lipman walked the next two batters to force in the winning run.

Evanston pitchers passed out 12 walks.

Picnic Time: Seul Warns of Hazards that Fires Create

Fire inspector Francis "Pat" Seul of Skokie warns that, as picnic time begins, outdoor fires become an ever-increasing hazard.

Carelessness, he says, is the big factor in these fires.

"Every shooting spark, every flame, every glowing ember has the power to set fire to clothes and to cause suffering," said Seul.

"The most important rule is: never leave a fire until you are sure that the last spark is out."

"Fire must always be treated with care."

X-Ray Unit In Niles Next Week

A mobile chest X-ray unit will move into Niles on Monday, June 30, for two days of free chest X-raying in the 1958 summer survey to find unknown cases of tuberculosis.

The unit will be parked at Birchwood and Milwaukee avenues. X-rays will be taken from 2 to 9 p.m. Monday, and from 10:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. on Tuesday.

The summer X-ray program, conducted in the suburbs by The Tuberculosis Institute and the Suburban Cook County Tuberculosis Sanitarium District, will continue through the end of September. It began the first week in June.

Last year 921 Niles residents had chest X-rays in the summer program. Found at that time were 5 suspected cases of tuberculosis; 5 suspected cases of cardiac disease; and 2 suspected cases of some other type of chest pathology.

On June 1 of this year two Niles residents were receiving hospital care for TB.

New Telephone Building

Construction was scheduled to begin last week on the new Morton Grove telephone garage, according to J.C. Ramsey, Illinois Bell manager.

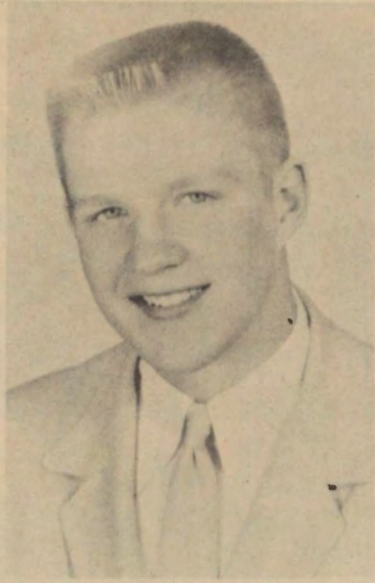

The Pepper Construction company of Chicago has been named general contractor for the building project. Present plans call for the completion of the garage and office early next year.

The modern brick building to be located at the northwest corner of Main and Lehigh Sts. will be 122 feet wide and 163 feet long.

The garage will provide quarters for telephone construction and installation technicians serving Morton Grove, Skokie, Glenview and other north suburban communities. The new structure will provide indoor parking for several dozen telephone trucks and other service vehicles, as well as an administrative office.

DE PAUL GRADUATES

Niles Township residents who received degrees at the recent DePaul convocation are: James E. Carmel, 8919 N. LaCrosse, Skokie, bachelor of laws; Richard Jamgochian, Jr., 8925 N. LaCrosse, Skokie, master of arts; Robert F. Clausen, 6929 N. Seward, Niles master of business administration; Seymour Greenman, 6970 N. Crawford, Lincolnwood, bachelor of laws; Earl F. Nicholas, 8615 Frontage, Skokie, bachelor of philosophy; and John W. Muldoon, 6549 N. Drake, Lincolnwood, bachelor of science in commerce.

Don Searle Samuelson, son of Mrs. and Mrs. W. Samuelson, 8602 Waukegan Rd., Morton Grove, was recently notified by Dartmouth College that he was accepted there as a scholarship winner from Niles Township High School.

Since a youngster, Don was always interested in sports. He played with the Morton Grove All Star team for two years, and then spent a year with the Pony League.

At Nilehi he concentrated on football, making the conference selection team.

Even with this interest and activity in sports, Don made the National Honor Society in his junior and senior years.

Music has also played an active part in this young man's life. He played clarinet in the Golf School band and played in the Nilehi band when a freshman. He scored "superior" at the district and state finals of the Illinois Federation of Music Clubs with his piano playing.

Don also served as accompanist for the Junior choir of the Holy Trinity Lutheran Church of Glenview and later as Sunday School organist.

Painter

A portrait of the former dean and late Episcopal bishop of Minnesota, the Rt. Rev. Frank Arthur McElwain, S.T.D., by Eugene A. Montgomery, 9439 Lincolnwood Dr., Skokie, was unveiled at recent commencement exercises of Seabury-Western Seminary in Evanston.

Student Honored

Keith Long of 4826 Wright Terr., Skokie, has been awarded the Delta Phi Delta award for the outstanding freshman male student at the Art Institute of Chicago. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Long.

Long is working for his degree in Art Education and majoring in drawing, painting and illustration. He is a 1957 graduate of Niles Township High School.

NEW DIRECTORS

Robert Kepes, John Sullivan and Clemens Walters recently were named directors of the East Side Property Owners Assn. at a meeting in the Devonshire Park Recreation Center.

Mrs. Paul J. Houghton, resident of Skokie, has been re-elected Secretary of the Niles Township Community Chest and Council by the board of directors to serve for another year.

Board Members

The Skokie Valley Traditional Synagogue's School Board, which is responsible for the maintenance of the daily religious Hebrew and weekly Sunday school's standards of education, is again to be headed this year by Arnold Abrams, 9504 Lowell Ave. Mr. Abrams will be assisted in school affairs by Dr. Harold Mosak, 3650 Crain St., who will be in charge of the Hebrew school section.

On hundred and thirty-six Skokians struck out to explore the state of Iowa recently. This was the annual trip taken by the graduating class of Sharp Corner School. The trip included sightseeing in the city of Dubuque, a two-hour boat trip down the Mississippi and an underground venture into the Crystall Lake Caves. Above is a shot of the eighth grade graduates going abroad a river vessel for the two-hour Mississippi voyage.

NEW OFFICERS

George Savage of the Lincoln school district has been elected chairman of the Niles Township Superintendents' association for the 1958-59 school year. Clarence Culver, of the Niles public school district, was named secretary treasurer.

Leslie E. McAlister, recently appointed manager of the special products division of Rolled Steel Corporation, Skokie. McAlister has been manager of Rolled Steel since 1956.

CROSSING CHANGE

The Illinois Commerce Commission has approved changes in protection at the Chicago North Shore & Milwaukee railroad's grade crossing over Gross Point road in Skokie.

The change involves the installation of a time cut out circuit at the Skokie station platform to reduce unnecessary operation by northbound trains of automatic flashing light signals and a short arm gate now maintained there.

The ICC resolution ordering the change directed the railroad to proceed immediately. The resolution contended the change in protection will "materially improve conditions of public safety."

Expand Nilehi Summer Music Program

Summer music opportunities now are available to both elementary and high school students at Niles Township High School.

Increasing interest from the community has made it necessary for the directors to expand the scope of the activity to include courses for students from the grade schools. Classes are planned to include vocal and string instruction, concert, intermediate and cadet band.

Beginning students with or without previous musical experience are also urged to take advantage of the beginning classes in vocal or instrumental music.

Elected Director

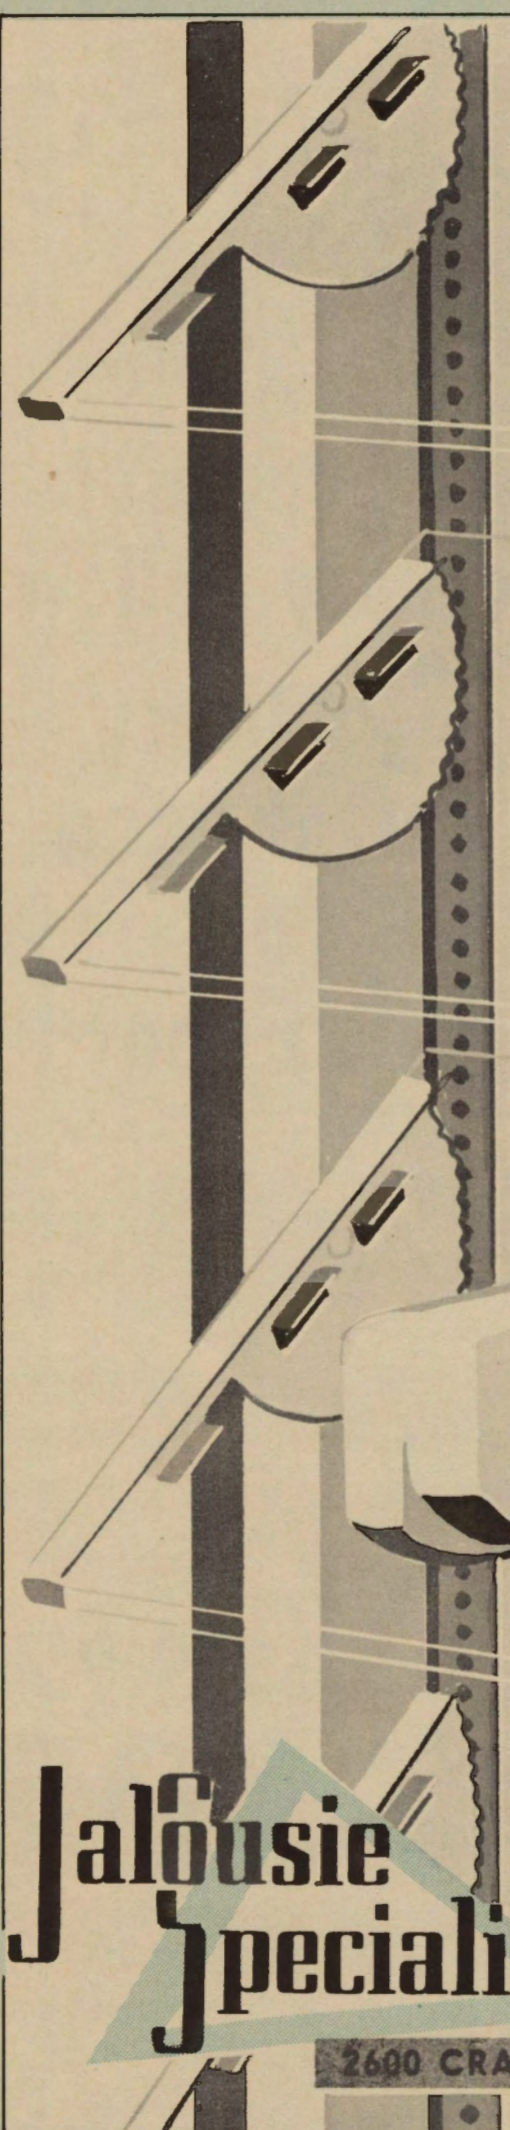

Harold Mayotte, 7820 N. Harlem, Niles, has been elected a director of the Junior Association of Commerce and Industry of Chicago.

35 YEARS

Harold W. Wilson, senior plant assigner in the Skokie offices of Illinois Bell, recently marked 35 years' service in the telephone industry.
