At the beginning of the school year, a song was made to describe the first five days of school of the stereotypical. North Shore teenager. The tune came from the song "The First Twelve Days of Christmas" and went like this:

"On the first day of school, my mother gave to me a new Benetton shirt. On ond day of school, my mother gave to me two Reeboks and a new Benetton shirt. On the third day of school, my mother gave to me three Guess jeans, two Reeboks, and a new Benetton shirt. On the fourth day of school, my mother gave to me four new Swatches, three Guess jeans, two Reeboks, and a new Benetton shirt. On the fifth day of school, my mother gave to me five Polo shirts, four new Swatches, three Guess jeans, two Reeboks, and a new Benetton shirt."

Songs were fun, but serious things were also taking place. One of the most important events that happened was Freshman Orientation, held on August 26 and 27. The Freshman entered the school, many for the first time, and left knowing their way around the entire building. As always, the "Freshies" went to the B-100 room for a scholastic test and a hearing test in the library. They also picked up their books and school I.D.'s. For the first time. Freshman yearbook pictures were taken during Orientation. In past years, they were taken on the same days as Sophomores and Juniors. A lot of work was put into Freshman Orientation. To lighten the load on the adults, a number of Sophomores and upperclassmen volunteered their time to become members of Project Lead, a student organization

The rest of the student body had a choice of days to pick up their books and I.D.'s. For the third year in a row, the books were moved to the East Cafeteria. The change from the Bookstore to the cafeteria was made as a convenience for the Bookstore staff and for students. One senior commented, "Getting books used to be a real hassle. We had to wait in line at the bookstore, even longer than it took to return them. I'm glad they changed."

The cafeteria served many purposes for students aside from eating, such as chit-chatting, relaxing, and doing homework. Nobody would be scolded for talking too loud, while in the library, conversation was practically prohibited.

"Taking the school bus was a unique experience," explained Freshman John Passman. "On occasions there was a substitute bus driver who was different from the rest. He had WCKG blasting on the radio and was dressed like a teenager. But our usual driver was real quiet and avoided talking to us."

From Orientation to getting books, from eating lunch to riding the bus, another year at Niles North started with positive attitudes and new ideas.

Hearing tests were taken by all Freshmen. John Vitale waits for his testing card.

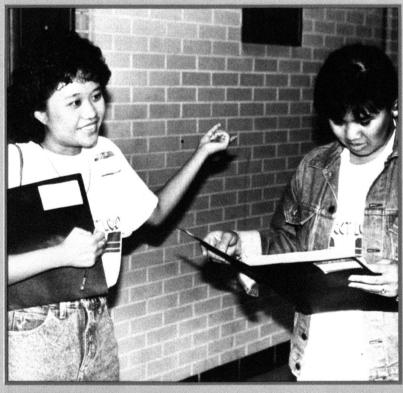

Picking up books for the first time was an adventure. Freshman John Passman finds the right book to take.

The five minute passing period between classes was a great time to talk with friends. Seniors Yury Starodubsky and Maureen Meshberg take full advantage.

HOT COLORS AT NORTH ARE TOO HOT TO TOUCH

"Buy your Niles North sweatshirt, the glorious PURPLE and WHITE," shouted Senior Class President Tina Rafael. Viking Spirit burst into action with PUR-PLE and WHITE T-shirts, sweatshirts & pants, and spirit buttons. It was especially exhibited during the Spirit Week with the Hippie, the Beach Bum, and the Nautical outfits. On the days of football games, the football players proudly wore their PURPLE and WHITE uniforms as well as the cheerleaders who sported their showy Viking outfits. Cheerleader Sandy Lee said, "By wearing our uniform, we promote the school spirit as well as advertise the football games." Viking Spirit was promoted by the Vikettes and the Northern Lights.

Students did not have to join the football team or the cheerleading squad to show their school spirit. They made a contribution to the school spirit by going to the football and basketball games and cheering for the Vikings. Homecoming parades and pep rallies were the school's special events to display Viking Spirit. Some students painted their faces with purple and white makeup and wore snazzy tin-stringed wigs.

The year's fads and trends exploded into Niles North, unleashnd jackets braided friendship bracelets, crop top sweaters, col-ored high top boxing shoes, and the bomber leather jackets with fifties prints. The unique styles that stood apart were the straight punked-up hair and the long kinky curls with whispy bangs. "Al-though this is 1988, we're reverting back to the fads of the fifties, the sixties, and even the seventies," commented Senior Laura Luckman. Penny loafers, mini skirts, and long hair were created in the past three decades, yet we molded the ideas to fit our modern image.

Viking and modern fashion promoted a special style for the students at Niles North. PURPLE and WHITE, the dominant emblem of the school spirit was drapped on Viking bodies and the students swaggered proudly with spirit.

One of the fashion statements of 1987 was a sincere color-braided friendship bracelet which were worn with pride.

Students enlightened the school's events by dressing in all erratic outfits. Danica Petrovic with a crazy hairdo, grins at a pep assembly.

Two Piles North

At 6:30 A.M. Jennifer awakes to the tune of "Louie, Louie" blasting from the radio. Slowly, she turns over and presses the snooze button so she could sleep a little longer. Ten minutes later, the alarm goes on again, and Jennifer reluctantly drags herself out of bed.

After a thirty minute shower she goes back to her room and quickly changes her brown eyes to blue with her colored contacts. She then opens up her closet and stares into it blankly. "What shall I wear today?" the asks herself. "Shall I wear my stonewashed Guess jeans, my Benetoniughy shirt, and my boat shoes, or my mini skirt with my Forenza cable knit sweater and flats. Maybe I'll go with the total college look: my lowa sweats and Reebok hightops. After 10 minutes of debating what to wear, she finally decides to go with the Deadhead look: ripped Levis, tye-dye shirt, and her Keds."

While Jennifer is choosing her clothes, her boy friend, Jim, is just waking up. He gets out of bed and heads for the shower humming the tune "It's Hip To Be Square". After his ten minute shower he picks out his clothes. Jim opens up his drawer and hasys, "What's clean?". Then he grabs his Bears jersey and Levis and puts them on. Afterwards he runs down to the kitchen to have a bagel. While eating his breakfast he opens the newspaper and reads the comic

"The Farside". Noticing the time, Jim puts on his Reebok gym shoes and leather "bomber" jacket, grabs his books, and hops into his Iroc to pick up Jennifer.

Meanwhile, Jennifer is in her bathroom deciding what to do with her hair. She asks herself, "Shall I wear it up in a bow, back in a bannana clip, in a high pony tail, or just french braid it?" She hears a horn, backs at her brass face watch, and says. "I'm latel USH! I'll just wear it down." She flips her head over, quickly bashes out her long semi-permed hair, grabs her coach purse, jean jacket, and books, and runs to Jim's car.

Getting into the car, she says "Hey dude, what's hip?"

Jim replies, "Hum babe, your late! But hey, what else is new?" While crusing to school, doing seventy down Golf, they listen to "La Bamba" playing on B96.

Arriving to school 5 minutes late for AAA, they dash down A Hall. As Jim is running down the hall, he yells, "Hey Jennifer, meet me by my locker for lunch."

When twelve o'clock rolls around, Jennifer meets Jim at his locker. While Jim looks at his buzz cut in the mirror, they decide where to go to lunch. Jim wants Bumpkins, but Jennifer wants to eat light. They finally compromise and decide to go to McD's (Mc Donalds). While eating a couple of Big Macs and a Chicken Oriental Salad, they discuss their weekend plans. Jennifer says, "How about hanging out here (McD's), and then seeing the new John Hughes movie?"

Jim replies, 'Really? Well I kinda wanted to go downtown to Ed's (Ed Debevics).

'Why not both?" Jennifer suggests.

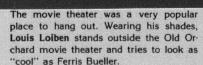

"That's coo!!" says Jim. They finish eat ing, walk outside, put on their shades, and go back to school.

After school Jim goes to football practice and Jennifer goes home. She takes a nap till Jim calls her at 6:15. As they are talk ing about his practice and the upcoming dance, Jennifer's call waiting goes off Jennifer then says goodbye to Jim and talks to her friend for another hour. When she gets off the phone with her girlfriend she turns on the t.v. and watches her favor ite shows: Growing Pains and Moonlight ing. At 9:00, Jennifer finally does he homework. After a couple of hours, she stops and gets ready for bed. Jennifer sets her alarm for 6:30, turns on the t.v., and falls asleep to the "soothing" voice of Da vid Letterman.

Students Study To Achieve Academic Success

The school day started as students got off their buses, walked hastily to their lockers, and finished their homework. Sounds of shuffling papers, closing books, slamming lockers, and yelling students filled the hallways. At the sound of the tone, Vikings departed from their morning gatherings and proseeded to AAA where they officially began their day. Sometimes they seemed to forget that the school's main purpose was education.

Squeezing in tin a the day to do homework task. Most of the time tually completed, but where to do it was the challenge. The library, study halls, and resource centers were available for studying. Throughout the school, students could also be found writing papers or doing last minute studying. Student Ann Schenk replied, "Whenever I try to fit unfinished studying in at the last minute during the day, it never accomplishes much."

The great diversity of classes gave students an opportunity to meet their graduation requirements and select classes that were of interest to them. A new class that was added this year was TRANSI-TION TO COLLEGE MATH. The course provided preperation for entry level college mathematics. "Many students who were in this course didn't have much success with mathematics in the past," commented instructor George Pryjma. "We tried to work out math problems in a variety of ways to help the students understand them." "The pace is just right," replied Eva Gyorgy, a member of the class, "With other classes I found myself rying to keep up t I feel Homeig, and classes were all parts of success at Niles North. VIKINGS IN THE SPOTLIGHT

Come, enter the Viking domain. Feel the surge of energy from the sounds of the band, orchestra, and members of the Niles North choir. Witness the performance of "Dracula Spectacula", and the technicians directing the special effects. Watch the actors and dancers flash across the stage radiating their stimulating vibrations to the audience. Stand back as the Viking students unleash the power of dramatic productions music festivals, and dance performances.

Room N142 was the heart beat of theater productions. Many tedious lines were memorized; but, explained Matt Sobel, "Theater is really a lot of fan, even if Mr. Proffit gets mad." The actors rehearsed on stage while the technicians pounded, sawed, and perfected the lighting for the play. "It is interesting to be backstage putting it all together and running the production." commented Jill Rosenblat. Opening night, chills ran up and down the spines of the actors. "I felt so relieved when the curtains were lowered and the applause continued," sighed May Soong.

In N hall the band and orchestrafiddled around following the lead of Mr. Eisele and Mr. Sklar. The members tapped, strummed, and tooted at their instruments following the notes on their sheet of music. "Being in choir is a way to unleash feelings of frustration. Music is an enjoyable class," stated Debbie Friedman.

Every day the cheerleaders jump, cheer, and clap in front of the gym, and on Wednesdays the members of Auroris met in the east cafteria; blasting the radio and coordinating their moves. The enthusiastic dancers helped choreograph the annual dance show. "In Auroris we express ourselves through dance routine and colorful program," commented Jenny Sigale.

Many events were produced using music, dance, or acting, but the main production at Niles North was the learning between students and teachers. Viking power was unleashed in every production.

The tone rang, doors closed, yet some students still had unschedualed time.

During school hours, North students hung out in many different places. "I go to the library to read or do homework," commented freshmen Simon Frumkin. Most students spent their free time hanging out in the cafeteria. They ate, spent time with friends, unleashed tention, or did last minute homework. "I go to the cafeteria to allow the machines to take my money," stated freshmen John Thornton. When breaks in the day were short, students had just enough time to stop at their lockers to pick up a few books. Some students fan into the bathroom to check their bair before the tone rang to go to their next class. Students involved in drama spent their time before and after school hanging around the theater room. "We sit in there to talk and joke around because we are all good friends," commented Matt Soble.

The nurses' office was used by students who didn't feel like going to class or were actually sick. Approximately 70 to 100 students were attended to everyday. "I would estimate that only 15 out of the 70 students we see are earnestly sick or troubled with a personal problem," stated Nurse Joyce Sweeny.

Many students who were friends with the nurses or regular customers were often seen at the Health Center.

If students could not handle the responsibility of quietly hanging out in the halls they were apt to find a new place to spend their time; the Behavioral Adjustment Center. Students served detentions from 7 to 8 a.m. or if they prefered 3:15 to 4:15 p.m. after school.

After school, students lingered around the halls, in the cafeteria, or outside on the lawn waiting for the bus ride home. As the sun set, students who had stayed after for clubs were seen catching the last bus home.

Sometimes the students of Niles North needed a little motivation ... school facilities provided more than enough to unleash their academic and social power.

A quiet study hall, cafeteria table with friends, or a secluded court-yard or library have always been frequently used. Many students took advantage of the college resource centers' move to room ATO4 Room ATO4 was different from the other resource centers in the school. ATO4 contained college catalogs, admission information, college visits, and the college counselor, Mrs Shirley Foss. Mrs. Foss helped many students—with their colege decisions.

As for the library, who could do without it? To a true Viking, getting good grades was always important. Students studied at one of the many tables or carrols in the three sections of the library. During their free time they would browse through the rows of books and leaf through the magazines. The avid use of the library was seen, as Vikings by the dozen poured out of the big double doors before the AAA bell.

When you thought of studying the obvious, the library and study halls, came to mind. At Niles North the most frequented facility was also a great place to study. In the cafeteria or "cafe", lunch, breakfast, and snacks from the vending machine could be purchased. In between the Viking special and your next class you could study the rules of the road for drivers ed or finish the homework that didn't get done the night before.

Facilities, the most common of which skip your mind ... locker rooms and bathrooms. After four years of five minute changing in and out of blue polyester, it's hard to forget the smell and sight of the locker rooms. But what about the throoms?Next to the cafeterie almost impossible through the day without one. A visit before the AAA bell was defi-nitely an experience. In the girls bathroom, clouds of hairspray fumes rose to the ceiling as girls carefully fixed their makeup. When you think of the boys bathroom, you remember that the stalls had no doors.

These places were doing more than taking up our time, they were helping us to enjoy our years at Niles North.

The library was always a good place to study alone or with friends. Nicole Gasinski gets comfortable while she studies.

It is usually a safe guard to assume that when a student reached his senior year, school pride increased a great deal for him. Homecoming and various sporting events should have been supported by the Seniors of the class. This was not the case for some of the members of the Senior Class of 1988.

Captain of the Varsity football team, Seth Novoselsky was disappointed by the minimal support from the Seniors. "The only fans who came to the games were parents and a few loyal students. It was really disappointing to look into the stands and see only a handful of fans, while the opposing team's bleachers were packed." Seth stressed the importance of Seniors showing support for their team. "It means a lot to players when fans are cheering them on. After all, the games were exciting to watch."

Another Senior, Joe Morwitz agreed that school spirit was in decline among upperclassmen. "There is a certain negative attitude that most seniors have towards school functions. They seem to feel that it is not important to support their school. I'm sorry to say that I am one of those people."

Contrary to all the negative statements about Senior spirit, Senior Class Board President, Tina Rafael, Accelerating in academics was a top priority for most students. The library was just one place for Jeff Liang to retreat for his studies

"HEY, WHAT ARE YOU DOING NOW?" "NOTHING! I HAVE ... "

School built stress for a student. Somewhere or sometime stress must be unleashed. Students must be given a chance to unwind. The place can be anywhere. Activities during free time varied from student to student. Junior Igor Murokh said, "Free time is the time to do whatever you want to do."

During school, free time was spent in the library, cafeteria, computer room, resource centers halls, or off campus. Sophomore Tate Schwab said, "I like to spend my free time in the cafeteria, talk to my friends, and do my homework." That was true for a lot of students. Most students had between three and six mods of free time a day and it was usually

What a student did during his or her free time was their own decision. A little "playful" wrestling was what Joel Carmen and Harry Litberg decided to do in the halls during their free time. Can you tell who's winning? enough for their needs. When lunch time rolled around, students headed for the cafe. Senior Douglas Bressler said, "School lunches are cheap and convienent but taste bad." A few students who had cars used the time to go off campus for lunch.

After school students went home. daround for clubs and other activi tephanie Powers participated in the National Honor Society, Spanish National Honor Society, and Student Congress. Steven Gershenfeld was a member of the Medical Science Club, Current Events Club. Acedemic Achievement Club, National Honor Society, and French National Honor Society. A variety of clubs entertained, taught, and informed members through their monthly and weekly meetings.

Some students had after school jobs. Senior Robert Saldana, a head usher at Old Orchard Theaters, said, "When I got a break at work, I ate, rested, saw parts of movies, or talked with my coworkers." He worked approximately thirty hours a week. Other students worked in just about every other store in the surrounding area.

When school and work were over and the weekend arrived, the fun began! Parties, shopping, watching T.V., hanging out, reading, going to friends houses, and some recuperating was done on weekends. Sophomore Dawn Feldman, when she was not working, liked to call, hangout, or go shopping with her friends but most of all she liked to party.

Use of free time varied, but what was done during that free time unleashed stress and tension for students.

Allen Kuo Mike Rynes

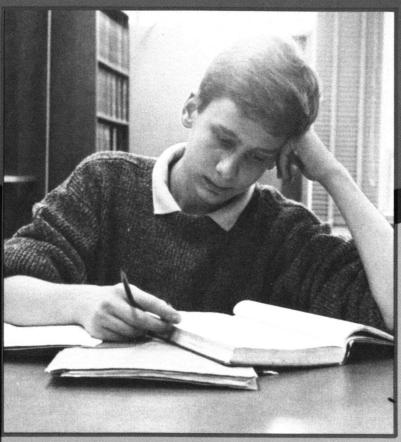

The cafeteria was a great place to do things during free time. Lauren Kurtz decided to use the cafeteria for contemplation and studying.

Free time was always special for students, but when the sun came out, it was even better. Dawn Hansen, with her shades, is deciding to take advantage of both her free time and the sun.

Who said the LMC was that bad?! The LMC provided a good, quiet place to study or sleep. Doing his homework with vigor Ben Halperin either is bored or is trying to figure out what is going on!

Want some popcorn? Mindy Klowden, one of the girls at Old Orchard Theaters, shows us that poping popcorn isn't so bad when you get to have some yourself.

The LMC also provided newspapers and magazines for students to look at during their free time. Pinki Pandya is intently entranced with her magazine.

Old Orchard Theaters was just one of the common work places for students after school. Jerry Chang shows his hospitality to customers while tearing their tickets.

Some students used their free time to just be with their friends. Sitting in the halls Laura Bercier and Jill Dinicola have a friendly "chat" as they wait for their next class.

Memories That Last A Lifetime

Lunch period; free time; school functions; certain teachers/classes, Prom; Homecoming; bashes; pep assembleys; homeaway games are powerful events people remember their whole lives.

Freshman, David Cohen, recalled his first meal at the Miles North cafeteria, "Boy, that sure wasn't tasty", remembered David." As I entered the lunch line, I was struck with a strange aroma. Knowing the legends of cafeteria meals I quickly left the cafe and realized that going off campus was worth the risk of becoming a B.A.C. brat rather than eating the "VIKING SPECIAL".

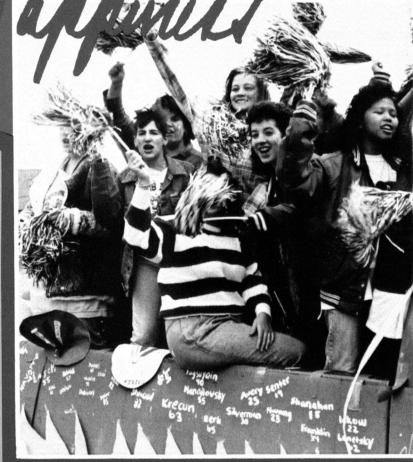

Don Avery, a sophomore, unleashed a memory about his first week in school. After uttering the phrase "Bolshevick" in algebra class, he was repremanded for being a smart alec. He quickly learned not to make unrelated statements in class.

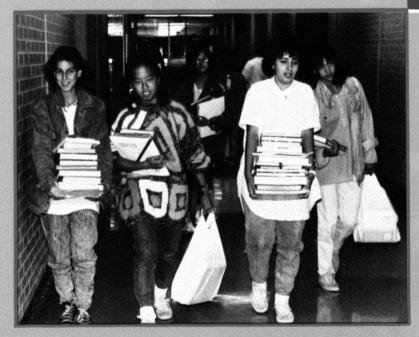

When Lana Tessler remembered her 1987 Homecoming, it was with great exhilaration. "I remember Homecoming junior year when my hunky date Al-Winkler picked me up in a red striped "killer van". On the dance floor, he swept me off my feet. I never had a more exciting time in my life."

Student Council President, Dan Goldberg, remembered the '87 Senior Showcase. "I put a band together and we rehearsed for two days. When performance time came our guitarist was nowhere to be found. It turned out that he was caught drinking an alcoholic beverage in the Old Orchard parking lot. A person who drinks often hurts other people than himself," commented Dan.

Memories, good, bad and indelibly imprinted are the key to recalling high school days.

Andrew Levin Sandy Zupancic

A tedious moment which we have all endured. Freshmen Holly Reschke, Sunny Chung, Michelle Rhinsa, and Carolyn Sachs cheerfully drag their books to their lockers.

No, it wasn't a Viking street gang marking their territory, it was the '87 Homecoming Committee who put positive graffiti on the cafeteria windows.

Parades and Viking Spirit are what Homecoming Memories are all about. The Sophomore Class Board lets out a Viking war cry.

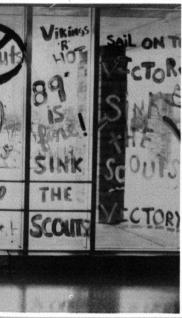

Like a portrait from a romantic novel, this Prom king and queen fullfill their high school destiny. Leah Borkowitz recieves her roses. Dan Yokahana admires their beauty.

At Niles North football games Viking Patriots cheered their team. Don Avery, Dan Veytsman, Albert Khilevich, and Ken Burmeister enthusiastically hurled bathroom tissue into the crowd.

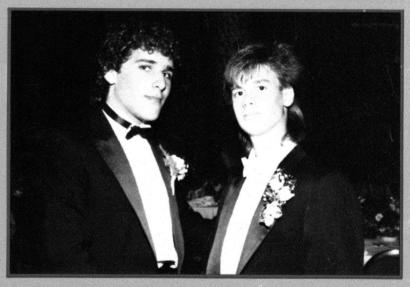

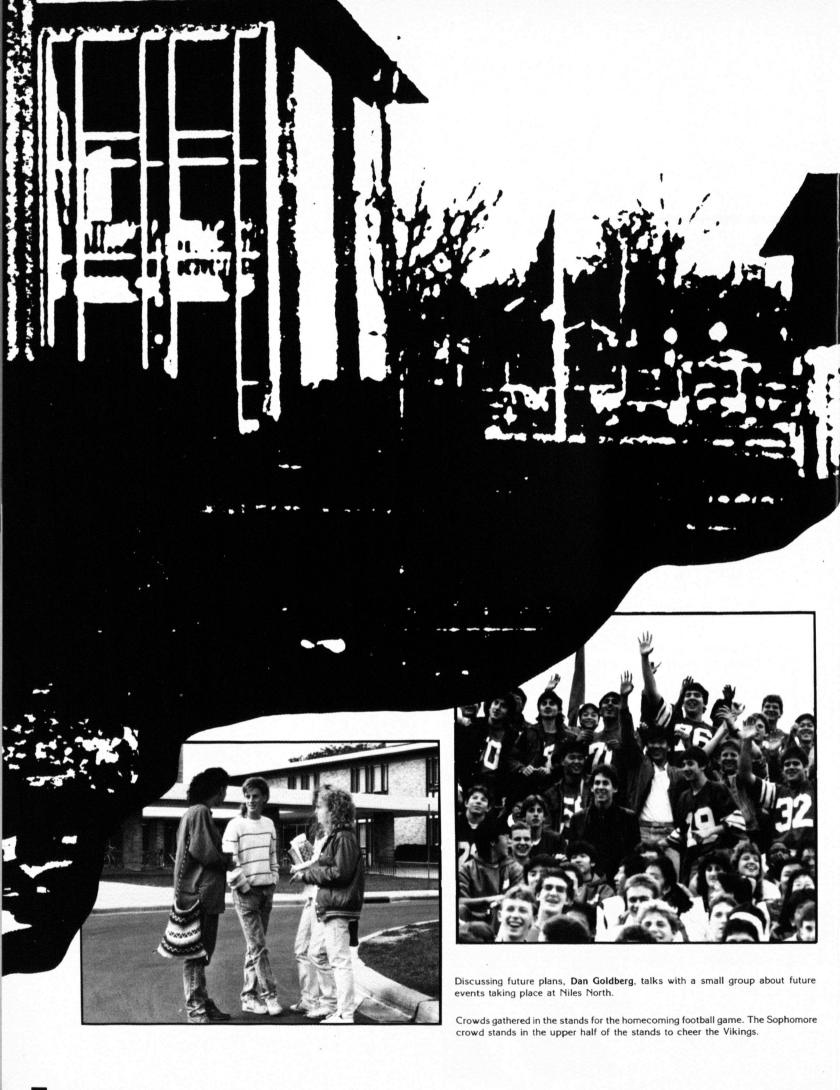

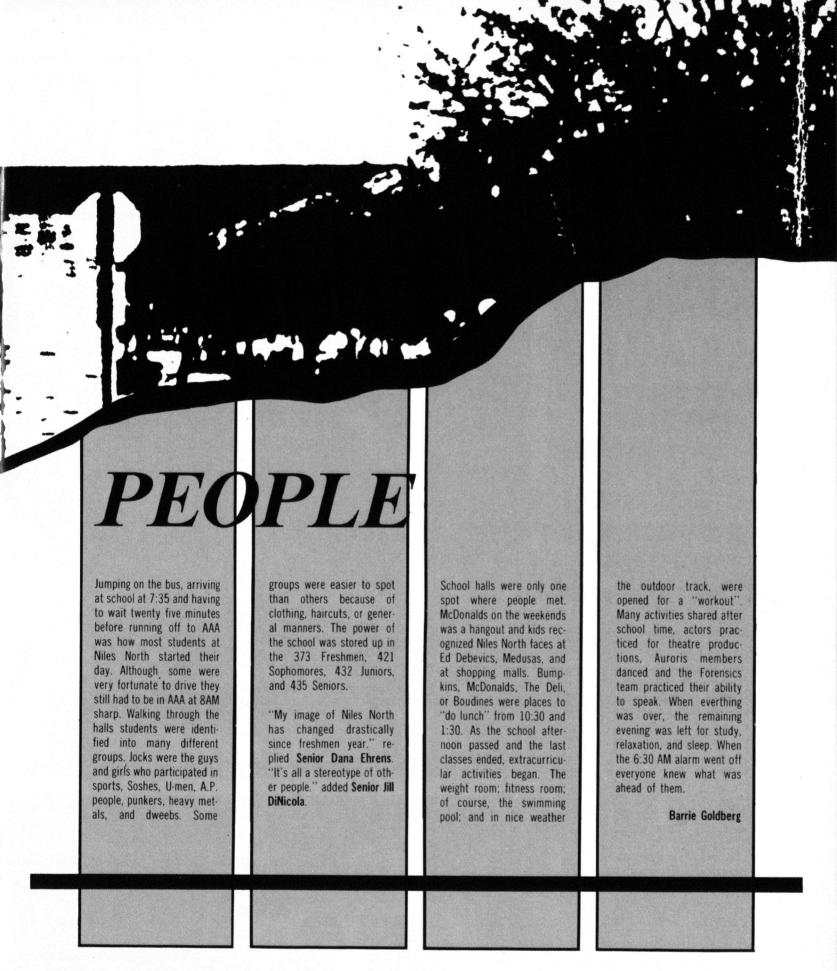

Excitement mounted the evening before the first day of school. Jim Benjamin lets off some steam.

Presidents past and present shook hands. Dave Sadkin passes on his title to Dan Goldberg.

Leaders In Education

"Niles North is dedicated to a program of comprehensive education preparing students for life's work and leisure." This was the motto seen on the walls of the school throughout the year. Both the school board and the administration worked together to help make Niles North operate. The board members who were elected, despite the numerous number of write in votes were newcomer John Lartz, Florence Sutker who served as a board for three and half years and incumbents Saul Weiner and Jonathan Minkus. Early in the school year the school board asked Superintendent Kenneth Olsen to resign giving no specific reason. John Hinck became the new superintendent.

The Niles North administration as Mr.Giles stated "Is a link and a chain, each person having a responsibility to help make the school operate." All Niles North directors shared common responsibilities. Directors had to make sure each teacher had a certain number of classes. They also had two years to evaluate each teacher in their department on their classroom and overall performance. Each director also supervised extracurricular activities within the school. They shared the responsibility of attending both home and away athletic events, concerts, dances, and other activities. Once a week a team meeting was held in which the directors shared information and tried to solve problems in each department. "The greatest problem," Dr.Schusteff said, "was not every student comes out of the same course with the same knowledge because of different ways of teaching." The administration's goal was to prepare students for college and to help them survive in society.

Different Teachers

Classroom teachers are a part of the common everyday life of an Niles North student. "Teachers" include substitute teachers as well as faculty staff. What is it that a makes the Niles North teacher different from any other teacher in Illinois? How do teacher teach their class and what techniques do they use?

Commenting on his teaching techniques Eugene Kuntz said that "I try get the students involved with hands on training to what I may be teaching in class." Kuntz used a variety of classroom speakers who lectured to his students. He added that he gets his student interest in class by using humor and a positive attitude and treats students as respectable people.

When John Barstow a IIC instructor commented that he relies on his students to be prepared when they get to his room to seek his help. Help differs from student to student and class to class but Barstow wanted each student to benefit from his help.

Marla Hoffman, a substitute teacher, commented that "Students respond better if you have a good attitude. To get group partisipation It's good to go into a classroom expecting the best. She also added "If I request a student to calm down and they don't, I send them to their dean. There are days when I'm more tolerant to students behavior than others.

WORK, WORK

AND MORE WORK

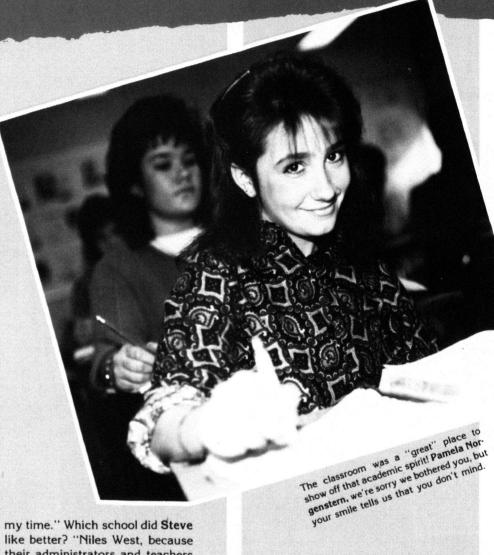

A wide variety of academic power from the students was unleashed during the 87-88' school year. All classes displayed some sort of this ability whether it was the hard working Freshmen or the Seniors with "seniorites". Academics for students were study habits, homework, and classes. Of course, everyone's study habits differed and some students didn't just go to North for classes.

How did some students deal with homework and study? Senior Nancy Malabanan remarked, "If I do my homework in school, I have more free time at home." The majority of her homework was done in study halls or during her free time. Sometimes she used the library. "When I go to the library, I read magazines. I really have no set schedule as far as homework is concerned." Some students did their work at home. The way they did it was "more advanced". Junior Kevin Kohn liked to use his computer to write papers and major projects. "It makes the report more presentable." To him the computer was a great way to type papers but, "I'm not a freak in computers.'

Students didn't attended classes just at Niles North. Students that needed classes at Niles West had regular schedules at North. These teens went to West in the morning and returned in the afternoon. Senior Steve Lin attended A.P.P. Physics at Niles West. "I attend A.P.P. Physics at West because there are no teachers at North to teach A.P.P. Physics." Steve spent half of his morning traveling back and forth from West to North and the other half in class. "It's a pain! Traveling takes up lots of my time." Which school did Steve like better? "Niles West, because their administrators and teachers are better. It's an enjoyable experience!" Another program students used was Oakton Community College. The students that went to O.C.C. were considered the "elite" because there were very few of them. "Most of the kids, about half of one percent, were Seniors." replied Principal Thomas Giles. Students attended O.C.C.for three reasons; Excellerated students exceeded the curriculum at Niles North; they needed a prerequisite course to enter an honors or advanced course at North; or Seniors missed a credit needed to graduate. Students that went to O.C.C. went at night or sometimes during their daily schedules. Giles added, "They're full time students at North. My preference is that they take courses in the building ..., but Oakton does offer a viable alternative."

Classroom activities were used to captivate the students' interest. Teachers were the important presenters of new material and ideas. They used interesting approaches to enrich the class as a whole.

In math classes, computers enabled the students to understand the material better and strengthened their weaknesses. Mr. George Pryjma provided "graphmaster" for his math students. "It was easier to understand the graphs when Mr. Pryjma programmed them on the computer." stated Helen Rachnovich. Films and videos helped to visualize written materials and explain scientific formulas. In English literature classes, after the students had studied the book, the teacher presented the theatrical version in order to reinforce the students' prospective and different ideas. Science students thought video lectures were helpful for understanding the theories and formulas. Labs and experiments also proved to bring out the students' attention.

The tradition of approaching the class with learning material was still the best method. Homework was one of the the key to the door of knowledge for the students. Examinations and quizzes were the frustrating ordeals in every class. Students were encouraged by extra credit which were created to bring out their enthusiasm. Participation was also a major function of class activities. Teachers tried to motivate class discussions and debates especially in the literature and history classes. Teachers also used other methods to test the students' study habits by asking questions. "By drilling questions, the students are forced to understand the material. It is an excellent way to get their attention." commented Mr. Frank Cardulla. In order for the class to cooperate and respect the teachers' presentation, teachers had to show their love in what they taught. Diversity academics 3

Many times, studying alone was not appropriate for reinforcing what a student needed to learn. It was at these times that the facilities of Niles North (excluding bathrooms) came in handy. Throughout the years, North has tried to provide places for students to enhance their skills and talents. Resource Centers and The Individualized Instructional Center (I.I.C.) enabled students to practice with their skills as well as increase their knowledge. This was accomplished with the help of teachers and other assistants. In recent years, North has tried to expand past the traditional "Math, Science, Social Studies, and Foreign Language" departments. For students who were thinking about pursuing a career in Architecture, North offered a wide variety of equipment such as drawing boards, a blue print machine, and computers such as the Mac-Cad and the Auto-Cad (Coputer Aided Drafting System) for students.

Additions such as practice rooms and the weight cage also gave students the oppotunities to do things which they normally would not be able to do at home. According to senior Jeff Chalem, "The weight cage is a very convenient place to work out. It's really good for lazy people like me because it is right in school. If we didn't have the weight cage, I'd probably just go straight home after school to watch t.v. and eat . . . Also, the weight cage saves me money. I don't have to go out and buy a membership at some health club because the facilities here are just as good as the ones in the health club.'

Senior Howard Holowaty found it very convenient to have practice rooms in school because of his busy time schedule. "Since I usually have to work or do homework after school, I don't really have time to jam on the piano. The only free time I have is in school ... Going to the practice rooms is a nice break in the school day. It's like being in another world ... But I wish we had bigger practice rooms, better pianos, and some amps."

North has even tried to expand its computer facilities by having four computer labs; for math, business, and two open for student use. Each lab was equiped with 32 computers. For some students, the computer room was a place to practice their computer skills, for others, it was a place for recreation. "I use the computer room all the time ... to work on my home programs, or just to play games," commented senior Mike Cohen.

Through the diverse facilities, it was evident that Niles North cared about their students. North provided them with the best possible facilities to enrich their talents and skills.

Gymnasts used the gymnastics gym to practice their skills and build their endurance. Junior Brian Kwon tests his stamina on the still rings.

Labs gave students the opportunity to test the "laws of science". Sam Kim, Alan Kruss, John Perry, and Syed Islam watch carefully to make sure that they do not "blow up" their chemistry experiment.

The fitness room was one of the more popular facilities of Niles North. While in gym class, students try to get the most out of their workout.

Resource centers were not the only useful to those who were seeking extra help. Tammy Hicks uses the resource center to catch up on some sleep she lost the night before.

Students used the facilities of the industrial arts rooms to enhance their drafting skills. Paul Echavez concentrates on perfecting his drawing.

Vikings On the Go academics NOR

To add variety and zest to the average day of a student at Niles North, field trips and special programs were scheduled in several times during the year.

Field trips allowed students to see things that were relevant to what they were studying, but to do it in an out of classroom atmosphere. One class which had an "out of school experience" was Physiology. Early this spring, Mr. Kuntz and his two Physiology classes went to the Gross Anatomy Lab at Oakton Community College. The purpose of the trip was to see real body structures and make clear to the students what they had only seen in their text. "We go to the lab to give students a proper appreciation of the complexity of the human body and the harmony of its many parts in relation to each other," commented Mr. Kuntz. When they arrived there, professors presented and explained the parts of the body and allowed the students to do minor examinations by themselves.

Early this year, advisor Dennis Grabowski and the yearbook staff attended a convention in Whitewater, Wisconsin, to learn more yearbook production. The class left early in the morning for a day of sessions on the latest in yearbook graphics, design, theme ideas, and development. Going to the conference gave insight to the students on ideas for the Saga 88'. Senior Barrie Goldberg replied, "Returning this year gave me another chance to learn more about yearbook production and it enhanced my previous knowledge."

Special programs were scheduled this year to inform students of important, interesting issues. One such program was presented to the freshmen class and was called Discovery. It was directed by former Bear Leslie Frazier. The program began with a speech by Mike Singletary, who spoke about peer pressure, drugs, alcohol, and related it to his life experiences. Editor of the school newspaper, Steve Klawans commented, "The program was more effective than usual anti-drug programs because of the caliber of the speaker, Mike Singletary." After the three-part program, "Myth Busters" presented humorous skits about the common peer pressures of drinking and driving.

An informative program that was open to anyone interested was a presentation about chewing tobacco. James Girdley, a dental hygiene advisor for the Illinois Department of Public Health, came to school in the fall. Throughout the day, he gave seven presentations about the harmful effects of chewing tobacco. Student Elisa Goldman replied, "I think it was a good program because it has become a habit among teenagers and they don't realize how dangerous it really is."

Ms. Lillian Mann was responsible for arranging programs that took place at Niles North. Her expertise gave classroom instruction depth and vitality throughout the year.

Members of the freshman class enjoyed the skits performed by "Myth Busters". They seem to be extremely caught up in the performance.

STUDENT CONGRESS

The Student Congress was the representative group of the students. Fundamentally, it served to promote school spirit and a better attitude twards school, by providing the Niles North student body with social events and different types of school activites. As the representative body it delegated to the Educational Policy Advisory Council, the Students Appeals Board, and the Parent Teacher Student Assocition, as well as a liazon to the School Board. Student Congress served as the "granddaddy" of all school organications, providing money and assistance to other clubs.

FRESHMAN CLASS BOARD

The Freshman Class Board was dedicated to the development of school spirit and the social activities designed to bring the class into focus. The secondary purpose was the accumilation of funds in order to underwright the Junior/Senior Prom.

Membership was open to all sophomores who wanted to plan various activities for the class such as a Movie Marathon, get togethers, and much more! Sophomore Class Board promoted school spirit by doing such things as selling pom poms and participating in the Homecoming Parade. Sophomore Class Boards biggest activity is preparing for Prom '89.

The members of Sophomore Class Board are: Marilyn Friedman, Melissa Levy, Teresa Vargis, Cynthis Goldstien, Mindy Nagorsky, Elizabeth Pilks.

JUNIOR CLASS BOARD

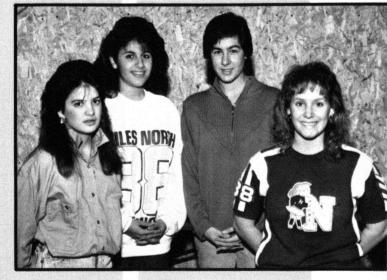

The Junior Class Board consisted of almost 100 proud and dedicated members. Junior Class Board sponsored the first All-American Basketball Bash, and many school spirited activities. The Junior Class Board's most distinguished and by far most successful activity was Prom '88. Nearly 500 students attended this very romantic and elegant event.

SENIOR CLASS BOARD

The Senior Class Board of 1988 was a very spirited group from the beginning of September. Senior Class Board started planning the senior float early so that it would be the best. Meetings were every Monday from 3:15 to 3:45 sometimes 4:00 PM. The members exceed 24, though only about 8 attended regularly. The Senior Class Boards two main projects for the year were to choose a meaningful gift for the school and to have the Class of 88 feel closer together.

$35,000 went into the massive production of the 1988 SAGA. The Yearbook Staff worked around the clock to document the 1987-88 school year. Members were exposed to weeks of instruction on the computer, writing/editing copy, designing layouts, and choosing/croping photographs. Even though this was their largest staff, cooperation and a sense of teamwork made this year's yearbook a reality.

The Parent-Teacher Student Association was a club in which parents were provided with a way to participate in their child's education. Throughout the year, the members of the PTSA met each month to discuss school issues. "Our goal was to try to enhance education and build a greater communication between parents, students, and faculty," explained Mary Murphy. The PTSA not only helped students during their high school career, but attributed to their college as well. Two available scholarships were awarded to graduating seniors who best deserved them for their achievemets during their years at Niles North. "Throughout the year the PTSA sponsored a variety of educational programs such as having the State Superintendent of Education speak to parents and faculty," stated President Sue Tessler. Money raised for scholarships was obtained through the selling of entertainment books and scholarship cards as well as the selling of refreshments at the football games. "I hope that next year more parents will become involved in the PTSA," remarked Mrs. Sue Tessler.

The library was a great place to hold serious meetings about important issues. Members take a moment to review their notes.

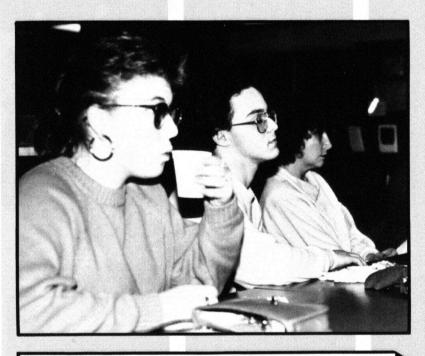

Student interaction was necessary for a complete view. Jordan Kagan offers his opinion concerning community affairs.

BAND BOOSTER CLUB

The Band Booster Club supported the band financially as well as in spirit. One of their main functions was to distribute and collect marching band uniforms at the beginning and end of the season. The Band Booster Club helped to financially support trips. The band played in two musical competitions in 1987.

Many important school as well as community issues were discussed and acted upon by the PTSA. Thomas Giles, Sue Tessler, and Shirley Becker look over a new proposal.

Students were a major part of the PTSA. Jordan Kagan and Yana Ginberg participate in deciding future events.

Principal Thomas Giles took time out of his busy schedule to take part in hearing the views of the PTSA.

ATHLETIC BOOSTER CLUB

The Athletic Booster Club was started to support athletes regardless of their record. The 200 members of the Booster Club consisted mainly of parents who tried to increase school spirit of other parents and students during the sports seasons. "We raised money by selling t-shirts, hats, mittens, and working the concession stand during home games," remarked President Martha Cooley. The Booster Club awarded two senior girls and two senior boys a $250.00 scholarship in 1987. The Club sponsered the three award night dinners at the end of each season. The Club was also there to help, if money was available, to supplement summer camps for athletes. "When a team made conference, sectional, regional, or state divisions we bought t-shirts for the team members, remarked Mrs. Cooley. Officers included President Martha Cooley, Treasurer Marge Sikorski, and Secretary Carol Salenger. The Athletic Booster Club met the third Tuesday of each month to discuss future activities.

FLASHDANCE

Auroris dances to the beat

Wednesday afternoon, at 3:30, the cafeteria was silent. When the music began the Auroris dance group started practicing for their spring show. The sponsor of Auroris was Suzi Gantz. The Auroris dance show was one of the more popular events of the year.

April 14th the show was presented for the senior citizens and April 15 and 16th for the school. The week before the dance the students had to practice everyday before 10 o'clock. "I enjoy dancing, but it's also alot of hard work." stated freshmen Jennifer Feldman. The dances in the show were chosen by the participants. Every student had to make up two dances and show them to everyone else. A vote was taken and the program included those dances which the group selected.

The Auroris dance group met every Wednesday after school from 3:30 until 6:00. The students learned the dances first in steps then they played it back in parts.

The Auroris dance group also performed at the basketball games at the high school and at the Chicago Sting game.

A NIGHT OF ELEGANCE

Elegant, described the '87 Niles North Prom. In this magical night girls wore their extravagant dresses and guys dressed in their sleek tuxedos, then they danced until midnight just like in a fairytale. The '87 Prom was held at The Drake Hotel on Michigan Avenue's Magnificent Mile. The ballroom of The Drake was maroon, turquoise and gold, with beautiful crystal chandeliers. On each table were gold and white flower centerpieces and mugs filled with chocolate pretzels. A punch reception preceded the dinner. Each couple was greeted by a reception line made up of Niles North faculty. After a wonderful three-course dinner the traditional crowning of the Prom King and Queen began. The room was filled with excitement as the Junior Class President, Tina Rafael announced, "The 1987 Niles North Prom King and Queen are John Yokahona and Leah Borkovitz." During the evening couples explored the beautiful Drake Hotel or took carriage rides in the near north area. After a glamorous evening filled with memories. Prom weekend was under way. The following day, some students went to a Wisconsin resort. Although these people went their separate ways, Prom '87 gave them an elegant night they will never forget.

John Yokahona and Leah Borkovitz were crowned king and queen at the '87 Prom.

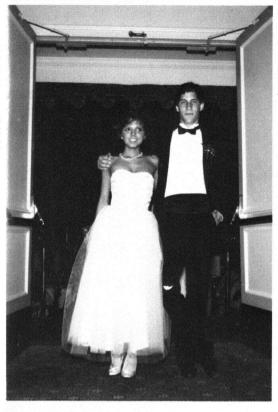

Friends were always glad to see each other at special events. James Watzel and Lisa De Chauteu are excited to see each other.

Prom is a very special time for friends to share good times together. Jim Shanahan and Duke Gavrilovic hint that summer is right around the corner.

CLIMAX

We're Outta Here

"We're outta here" were the immortal words of the graduating class of 1987. Practices were held inside the main gym, many hoped for the real thing. Another step towards graduation was the immortal ceremony, "fitting of the gowns". Yes, those waistless purple and white gowns which could be purchased for the low price of $11.00.

On June 8, 1987, parents with glaring teeth and cameras poised filled the stands. Suddenly the band struck up the graduation march. The moment arrived. The graduation class of 1987 prominated down the isle to their final high school resting place. They left Niles North forever or until their next visit.

Various students were singled out to make speeches for their accomplishments, Validictorians Jenny Berman, Jennifer Mezey, and Salutatorian Lisa Skolnick. Schoolboard officials and class presidents made speeches regarding the school year and extended good wishes to the graduates.

Several students whose names were called tried to conceal beach balls. Thank heavens, teachers confiscated disruptive material! Pupils marched up the stage to receive their sheepskin and were crowned new graduates.

Andrew Levin

Validictorians preached their academic gospel. Lisa Skolnick addresses her Senior Class.

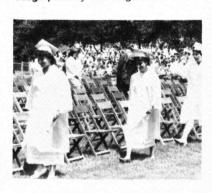

The Greatfull Deadettes sung the blues and performed their "Temptation" like dance steps. Amy Stuart, Michelle Swerdlick, Carolyn Boehm, and Michelle Clark perform to melodious tunes.

"Here no evil, see no evil, speak no evil". Luisa Alog, Susan Aliperta, and Missy Albaugh patiently wait to graduate.

Graduates hurried to their chairs. Lisa Skolnick, Jenny Berman, and Jolane Abrams hurry to their chairs.

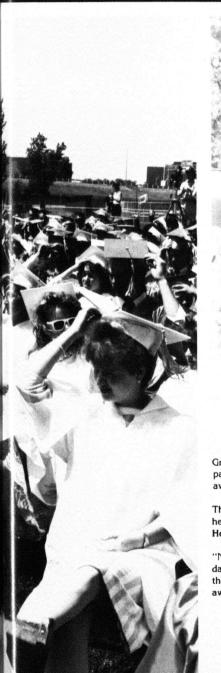

The first ranked student percusionist in the state of Illinois played the base drum during his graduation ceremony. Howard Windmiller displays his superior skill.

Validictorians were the first to be called to freedom. Dan Glickman accepts his diploma.

Graduation was the moment friends and parents all waited to see. The school board awards graduating Seniors their diplomas.

The graduators lined up to "Getta outta here". Meagan Hodges and Michael Holowaty march to the graduation stage.

"No, their not saluting, it was a windy day." The graduating class of 1987 hold their hats to keep them from blowing away.

TRADITION

"Quick, quick · Homecoming is soon!"

Said the special committee way back in June,

October 17 may be far away

The parade was held in the freezing cold Nothing could stop the Viking's bold. Everyone worked hard on thier floats But because of the judging, the Seniors could gloat.

At the brunch there were smiles From alumni of old Niles.

Though October 17 was not a winning date The dance later on was really great. When Homecoming 87 was finally done It left fond memories for everyone.

The contest gym was packed wall to wall with Niles North students. While twisting, shaking, and sweating everyone dances the night away.

The cheerleaders took a ride around town. While riding they cheer.

"Hold up your arms if you're sure!" Sandy Llenza wildly tosses up her arm as the musical sounds surrounds her.

The cold, bitter wind blew while the freezing fans intensely watched the game. The student body tries to cheer on the team while bearing the cold.

Decorating the windows helped Niles North to get into the winning mood. The Varsity football team names are on these windows.

Seth Novoselsky looked on while his girlfriend Cindi Blease was being congradulated on winning the 1987 homecoming queen nominations.

Keeping in step, the band marched on to the Chuck Pos stadium. With rhythm and blues filling the street, the people in the street sway to the sounds.

Before leaving the dance, the homecoming committee provided momentos of the night. Richard Mauarro shouts, "Here we are!"

Student Congress president Dan Goldberg had to be involved in all the activities of the day. Finding him irresistable, the homecoming nominees take him out for a carriage ride.

THE VAMPIRE EMPIRE

"DRACULA" HAUNTS NORTH HALLS To help publicize the play, Doug Mytnik dressed in costume, rode around in the homecoming parade. When it came time to destroy the decorations from the car,he hung the dummy from the coffin in a nearby tree.

Master Landau (Brian Pomper) takes Miss Naive (Irit Levit) and her students, Luke (Scott Topper), Kelly (Sonya Park), and Elvis (Brain Sherman) through the eerie streets of Transylvania.

The choreography, scenery, costumes, and props made the production more outstanding. The choreography was created by Gretchen Glader. Wild steps and pelvic thrusts entertained the audience when Nick Necrophiliac sang the song "Positive Action Man". Dracula imitated Michael Jackson when he sang the song "Rhesus Negative Rock and Roll". Dracula even looked like Michael with a flashy jacket and sequin glove provided by the costumes department. The costumes and wigs made the chorus numbers hilarious. One of the best costumes was worn by Dracula's mother (Man Wah Lee). The costume was part Gypsy and part vintage closet attire. The tech crew used smoke tubes to create an eerie aura on the set. The castle tower was ingenius. It revolved to reveal Dracula's lab. The tower was complete with smoke to convince the audience that Dracula was really cooking life blood. Props provided the perfect finishing touch for the play. A rubber hand, used in Dracula's experiment, was unique.

Josh Alsberg publicized the show by entering a car in the Homecoming parade, the car won first place in it's division. The car was completed with Doug Mytnik in costume as Dracula and a coffin with a dummy inside. A huge poster hung outside the auditorium facing the Edens Expressway. Cast members walked around the school in costume to help promote the play. Sponsors helped finance the play, which was a first for the Niles North Theater Department. As usual, there was a publicity blitz of show posters all over downtown Skokie.

"The show was successful because of the crews contributions as well as the casts," remarked the assistant director Kevin Goldsmith.

Joann Prekezes

The experiment for life blood was a success! Wraith (Man Wah Lee), Dracula (Doug Mytnik) and Genghis (Steve Handmaker) are anxious to try it.

Dracula (Doug Mytnik) was drawn to the Inn by the innocence of Miss Naive (Irit Levit). Gretal (Michelle Berkowitz) and Hans (Josh Alsberg) keep Dracula from Miss Naive.

Dracula (Doug Mytnik) turns into the super star Michael Jackson. Dracula besings "Rhensus Negative Rock and Roll".

Nick (Andrew Levin) comes to save the day. Nick and his helpers sprinkle "Glubcomes the center of attention when he lick" on Dracula and his followers to destroy them.

At the "Ceremony of the Fang", Dracula (Doug Mytnik) gets to sink his fangs into Miss Naive (Irit Levit) and make her his new wife. Dracula's followers look anxiously on while Miss Naive's students look on horridly.

Genghis (Steve Handmaker), Dracula (Doug Mytnik), and Wraith (Man Wah Lee) all do a time step to a "Connoiser of Crime", in which one can learn the art of being a criminal.

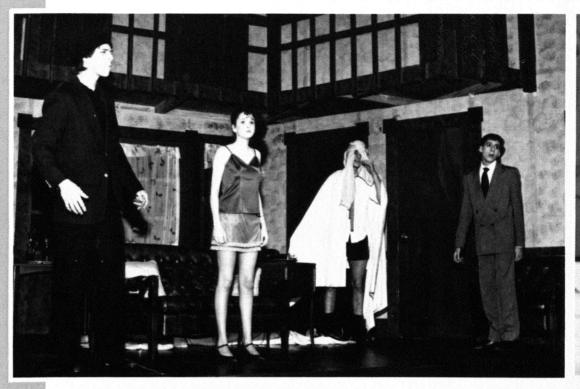

"NOISES OFF"

Takes It Off

Reading the theater bulletin in October, only nine cast members were chosen for the play "Noises Off". Since there were only nine cast members, they became very close which also made the play easier to work with. "Noises" ran the weekend of November 10-12. Despite the reviews that "Noises' received, few students saw the play because of a basketball bash and a lack of interest. "The play was very complex because it had plots within plots," stated Kim Berg, "inspite of everything, it was a good experience." "I thought the play was very funny," remarked Doug Mytnik, "this particular play was a British comedy and it was sometimes hard to understand." British comedies usually deal more with subtle humor unlike American one liners which hit you immediately. Throughout the play Kevin Goldsmith, Doug Mytnik, and Brian Pomper lost their trousers from an uncooperative cactus, some toxic glue, and just forgetting to pull them back up after a visit to the bathroom. Junior, Joel Sachs, stated "Trying out for the play, to the rehearsals, and finally to the opening show requires a lot of work, but it all pays off."

Sandy Zupancic

The cast was shocked and embarrassed as as a fellow actor lost his pants. Brian Pomper, Erin Jacobs, Doug Mytnik, and Scott Topper play their roles accordingly.

Surprise showed through all over her face. Tanya Malinsky is astonished when they find the missing character.

Who likes sardines anyway? Scott Topper complains about them being on his plate.

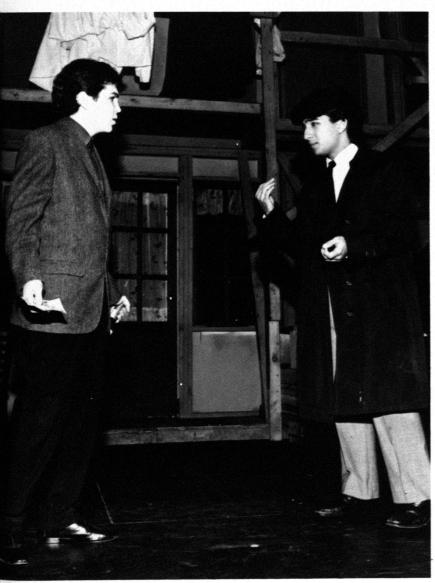

Concentration plays a key role in acting. Kim Berg stops and reviews the scene.

The stage technitions played an important role in this production. Stage technitions change the set for the next scene.

The director advised an actor before the curtain went up. Brian Pomper listens intently as Jerry Proffit gives him some pointers.

The technition, Joel Sachs, looked startled as the director, Kevin Goldsmith, handed him money to buy flowers for him.

"... I hated wearing tights.It doesn't matter now, since I've been on stage with just underwear on. One thing I liked about my costume was the cape, but I guess I was just meant to wear a cape ..." — Doug Mytnik

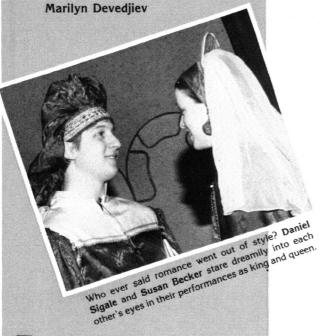

"Once Upon A Matress" was the musical chosen for Niles North's spring play. A take-off on "The Princsess and the Pea," the attendance at the play was "surprising and overwhelming," according to Lauren Kurtz, who played one of the Ladies-in Waiting.

The play contained three different plots, involving the prince Steven Singer, and the princess Jacki Greenberg. In keeping with the tradition of "The Princess and the Pea," the princess was the last of many to pass the unfair test given by the queen Jennifer Berman. This test involved not only a pea, but also a birdcage, spears, and suitcases.

"Almost everyone got along really well with everyone else, which helped the overall production of the play," commented Doug Mytnik in reference to the entire cast. "I had a fantastic time working with Edward Mussman and Scott Hirschman." The three of us would try to make each other laugh, even on stage."

The sub-plots in the play were equally amusing and entertaining, according to Joann Prekezes: "What'l enjoyed most about the play was Scott Hirschman's miming. He couldn't speak at all because of a curse and the other character had to guess everything he was saying," she recalled.

Needless to say, the hard work and long hours paid off, and the play was obviously a great success — not only for those who were in it, but for the audience as well.

On April 3 and 4, it all happened

Elaborate costumes were an important part in making the play a success. Jacki Greenberg catches the attention of her fellow cast members as she makes her big entrance.

"Breaking up is hard to do," or so they say. Steven Singer tries cheering up Susan Becker after the tragic breakup with her boyfriend.

ONCE UPON A MATTRESS

Something unexpected was always popping up.Doug Mytnik and Dan Sigale share the surprise as Scott Hirshman takes things quite calmly.

In order to marry a prince, every princess has to go through some cruel, unfair test. Brian Sherman questions Rebekah Friedman to see if she can pass.

Well-performed dance routines always add to a production. Sanford Diamond concentrates to perfect every step.

A New Look

Camp Helps Marching Band Students

After wearing the same uniforms for more than eight years, the Niles North Marching Vikings decided to introduce a new look. Recently, they replaced their marching pants with bermuda shorts. "We wore bermuda shorts to grab the audiences' attention", stated Abe Lee. Although the Marching Band wore boxer shorts for only the first football game, they tried to do something different at every game. Not every difference was visual like the first game. The differences were mostly musical instead of visual. The music consisted of pop songs instead of the contemporary band songs. This year several band students attended a "marching band" camp at the University of Wisconsin, Whitewater, to brush up on some skills. Norio Fujikawa, Jorie Perez, Mary Liz Bartels, and Heather Scheck went to the camp to learn how to be drum majors. Alex Sukoy and Jenny Pellman used the camp opportunity to improve their percussion skills. Philip Weiss went to learn everything there was to know about car leadership skills. For a week these students attended classes, thirteen hours each day, with breaks for lunch and dinner. Every night there was an entertaining show which only allowed four to five hours of sleep a night. "Even though we knew we were only getting five hours of sleep, it was the drive that kept us going", stated Norio Fujikawa. The last day at camp, they had the summer national marching band competition. Three aspects made the marching band more enjoyable in 1987. They included the new style of music that was played, the hard work that was put in by several students at the camp they attended, and the new look with the boxer shorts.

The homecoming pep assembly was one of the few times marching band didn't have to wear their uniforms. Ilan Cohen, Owen Roman, Jorge Fernandez, and Scott Mueller play their saxes.

Matt Warner totally does away with his band uniform. Two other slide trombone players only do away with their band pants with shorts.

Paying close attention to the band leader made for a better perfomance. Melissa You plays her flute with the help of the drum major.

Halftime provided a lot of entertainment. Marching band under the direction of Norio Fujikawa, boosts the crowds spirit for the second half of the football game.

Helping keep the band in order took a lot of work. Jori Perez leads the band with confidence.

Marching Band got to show off their legs during halftime at the first football game. Caroline Cadiz, Gina Ginnakopoulos, and Helen Wei play their instruments for the crowd.

Laughter, compassion, unity, friendship, and music was what you would see and of course, hear if you entered the band room at 11:15 to watch concert band.

"Band is fun because of the jokes we crack to get Mr. Elton Eisele to stop concentrating on music," said Anglo Douvris jokingly. "Concert Band is in the middle of everything in which people are striving to become better" said band member Seth Weiner. "Concert band is fun because it enhances your musical ability and you also meet new people," explained Melissa Alog.

This year's concert band consisted of many sophomores which gave this year's band the needed experience. "Band expands peoples musical talents," Sophomore Seth Weimer expressed.

Band also went on yearly tours. Some of the places they have gone to were Atlanta, New Orleans, New York, and this year Orlando. "Going on tours gives other people a chance to see how good our band is," said Alog.

With the new changes, friendships, spirit, and unity, Niles North concert band showed its all-american ability.

This year many band members used their free time in the band room. Jodie Sanders uses his free time to practice his music.

In band, harmony was a key in playing music. The french horn section shows their harmony.

Rythm had to be kept by all band members. Yvonne Soong and Nolan Frank show how they keep rythm.

Reading sheet music was one of the more diffcult things in band. Heather Brown reads her sheet music.

Playing the tuba takes a lot of practice. Phil Weiss practices playing his tuba.

During the year, practice was an important part of concert band. Mr. Elton Eisele leads a concert band practice.

MAN YOUR INSTRUMENT, LIFT YOUR VOICE

Orchestra and Choral "blasts" North to top.

"B flat, F sharp!" "Fa la la la la la" Sounds that came from the Orchestra and Choral rooms during the year. Hard work and rehersals were major ingredients for the Niles North Orchestra and Choral Ensemble.

Pursuing and pushing the Orchestra through another year was the job of Mr. Arnold Sklar. Senior Daniel Nahmod played the trombone for Orchestra. "As a brass player, being in Orchestra in addition to Band, gives an oppurtunity to play classical music, marches, and other band music. It's a good experience!" Danny practiced several periods a week. Orchestra rehersals presented a problem to Danny, "It was difficult to prepare to a level of excellence with only one rehersal a week. There were also scheduling problems, because I also had to be in Band."

The major part of Orchestra was the string section. "It's a break from studying and really refreshing!" commented Senior Joann Bautista. Joann enjoyed playing the violin but was unenthusiastic about practicing. The Orchestra went on tour with the Band "It gave me the oppurtunity to meet new people. It was lots of fun! You should really want to be in Orchestra and dedicated to it. You have to like playing your instrument." concluded Joann.

Under the leadership of Mr. Robert Anderson Choral Ensemble excelled in many areas. Work and fun was the ultimate combination. Sophomore Marilyn Friedman, an accompanyment (one who plays piano) for Choral, and Freshman Kelly Murrin in the Tener section both agreed that Chorus was fun. "It's great to meet people and fun to get in trouble with Mr. Anderson." commented Kelly Murrin. Not only did the group improve in their singing capabilities, Choral also enhanced individual abilities. "Choral helps me with my piano. I'll never forget the experience." replied Marilyn. "Choral defintely improves your voice." added Kelly. Here's some added advice given by Marilyn Friedman, "It's exciting in Choral, but it's not a good idea to take it for a grade."

Hard work, practice, determination, and a drive to unleash musical talent propelled the Niles North Orchestra and Choral Ensemble during the 1987-88 school year.

The strings was the major section in Orchestra. They provided the bulk of sound. Ellina Khotimlyansky and Claudia Tsesis really know the meaning of sharing and cooperation.

Orchestra had many sections. "Boom, Boom!" Drums and Martin Bany seem to go together.

To be in Choral you not only needed a voice but some "Heart and Soul". Dena Zakaman closes her eyes and is either sleeping or really getting into the music.

A cheerful face and right position helped while singing in Choral. Wanda O'Quinn is singing as well as standing right.

Of course, the piano provided the background for Choral singers. Substitute Mr. Wesly Smith teaches, sings, and plays the piano all at the same time.

A key element to good concerts were rehearsals. Mr. Sklar directs the orchestra during a rehearsal.

Learning to play the trumpet took many hours of work. Steve Andrey practices for the Marching Band.

Learning to recite sheet music was vital to a good performance. Wanda O'quinn recites the music to herself.

Students spent many hours of practice for a performance. Al Winkler concentrates on playing for an upcoming performance.

Rehearsals were important to a good performance. Mr. Eislie directs the Band during a rehearsal.

Parkview School was a school that the cast of Bag of Tales performed for. The cast grabs the audiences attention by performing a poem at the start of the show.

A performance in front of a large audience took courage. Melissa Solovy concentrates on keeping in harmony.

Gowan, the famous dragon killer, finally meets his match. The cast becomes one ferocious dragon that eats Doug Mytnik at the end of the act.

Preparation for a concert was essential. Maricellis Rivera practices the flute for an upcoming concert.

There were many concerts performed throughout the year at Niles North. Anabelle Jimenez concentrates on performing during a concert.

Once Upon A Mattress was a musical performed last spring. Jackie Greenberg makes a dramatic entrance.

School spirit and all times.

Student Congress

Student Congress greatly influenced the student body with football and basketball bashes and the Turnabout Dance in February. The flea market sponsored by Student Congress was also developed to raise funds for the charity, Cerebral Palsy. The Congress members were exposed to many opportunities to get involved politically, benefitting to their experience and knowledge. In fact, Student Congress elected two members to represent the school at the School Board, PTSA, EPAC, and TRY meetings. Two chosen members were rewarded with $500 scholarships to a political trip to U.S. Congress. As a whole Congress was designed to hear the students' voice and respond to them with support. The Student Appeals Board was then developed to uphear justice. "I think Student Congress was a great challenge for me. Motivating the members, installing leadership, and uniting everyone to work together to make Niles North a more interesting, spirited, and a fun place for themselves and their fellow students," commented president Dan Goldberg.

Along with class boards the Student Congress sponsored the bashes after the basketball games. Dancing to the music and socializing with friends students enjoy themseves.

Student Congress met every Thursday after school. Nancy Goodman helps president Dan Goldberg lead the meeting.

Student Congress was involved actively in school spirit. At the Homecoming Parade, the Congress members show off their pep and enthusiam.

"I second the motion," exclaimed Reenie Meshberg and Carolyn Addleman. After they heard a motion by another Congress member.

Students Involving Students

Chess club participated at the Activities Fair held by Student Congress. Mr. Frank Cardulla encourages students to join.

"Churros ... churros for sale!" shouted the Spanish National Honor Society. As they took advantage of the Student Congress' Activities Fair, to raise money for their club.

Reaching out to the crowd, Student Congress president Dan Goldberg motivated Niles North with his inspiring message.

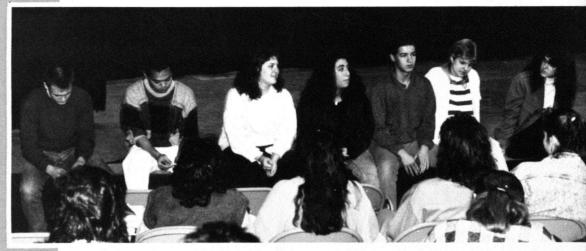

Socrates once said, "I am not an Athenian or a greek, but a citizen of the world." It's easy to agree with him. Niles North was a melting pot of cultures. Even those students who were born in the U.S. have family who were originally from different lands. Understanding different cultures was the purpose of International week. Every day different presentations were offered including a Frank Lloyd Wright presentation and a Russian ballet. The cafeteria joined the celebration of cultures with food and music from other countries. Teachers tied the cultural information to their lessons. Latin America Day, European Day, Middle East Day, Asia Day, and American Day were all celebrated during the week. Senior Alan Winkler commented, "It was a great idea because it gave people an opportunity to learn about other customs other than their own. I especially enjoyed the Peruvian presentation about the Ma Chu Picchu ruins."

One of the more intresting presentations was the Niles North German exchange students thoughts about their recent trip to Germany . There were lectures about Egypt, Burma, Thailand, and China . Whatever your intrest was, International week had something to offer for everyone at Niles North no matter what their cultural background was.

Niles North held an exchange program with Ahlen, Germany this past year. Lisa Parker, Lisa Greenburger, Sabastian Scobercea, Tanya Schensema, and Laura Luckman share their experiences with fellow students.

The presentations were well attended. Principal Tom Giles introduces the next program.

Even though this was a lip sync contest, the instruments and the talent was real. Mark Jacobson performs to the song "I Want Action" by Poison.

The lip sync contest was held outside the cafe during International week. Congradulations go around after the winner is announced.

t all of the presentations were slides or tures. Tom O'Connor and Dr. Gregg ustra demonstrate the martial art of Taeon-Doe.

So maybe it wasn't Mettalica performing on stage, But Heinz Hackl and band were the winners of the lip sync contest. All contestants won tickets to that evenings bash.

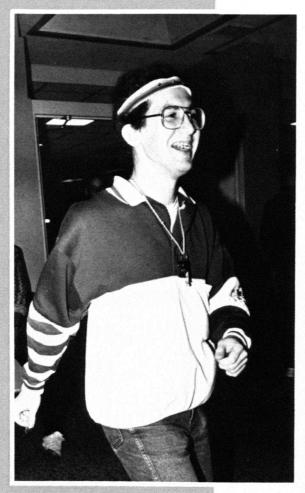

Architecture is taught in many subjects; art, math, and history. Lyman Shepard brought his knowledge of Frank Lloyd Wright and his architecture to Niles North.

Student participation helped to hold events together. Howard Holowaty takes over the controls during the lip sync.

REMINISCE

The lip-synch contest was fun yet competitive. But watch out! Stacy Friedman and Lisa Friedman flash their bow ties and tuxedoes.

Although basketball games often resulted in defeat, spirit flowed on to the bashes. Taking the dance floor and not holding back is Senior Daniel Caschetto.

Wasn't this face on the cover of "Seventeen"? After lip-synching to "Walk Like An Egyptian", Mitchell Jacobson takes a break-only this time without his wig.

It took hours of practice to be in the marching band. Brian Aron holds his trombone in perfect position.

Promgoers often arrived fashionably late. Before catching dinner, these two couples take a quick glance at the beautiful Drake Hotel.

The Spiral Spin-out was a success with the student body. Senior Jeffrey Liebling cools off with some pop.

Following conversations with friends and eating dinner, it was time for couples to "show their stuff" on the dance floor. Jessica Rothstein boogies the night away.

Participating in a class float gave one a sense of accomplishment towards his own graduating class. Members of the Junior Class tell onlookers that Niles North is #1.

Graduation was a time for final speeches. Ivy Rosenbaum gives the class of 1987 a last word.

Practicing before an Orchestra concert was always a neccesity. Annabelle Jimenez gives her complete attention to the music.

Orchestra practice was just as important as the concerts. Mr. Sklar, director, leads the Orchestra to prepare for the upcoming performance.

The Activities Fair promoted the clubs and activities of Niles North. Laurence Mallette of the chess club challenges Shawn Green to make move.

Bashes were a popular post game activity. Students enthusiastically dance the night away.

The Martial Arts was a popular skill to view during International Week. Teacher-Gregg Youstra demonstrates a hold on Mike chung.

Halloween gave students the opportunity to be creative. Theodora Kamaratos casts a spell.

The Lip Sync contest was a popular event. Deborah Krader, Francine Bulmash, and Angela Heller perform even though their tape was destroyed.

The art department found many talented artists. David Bramble works on carving his clay sculpture.

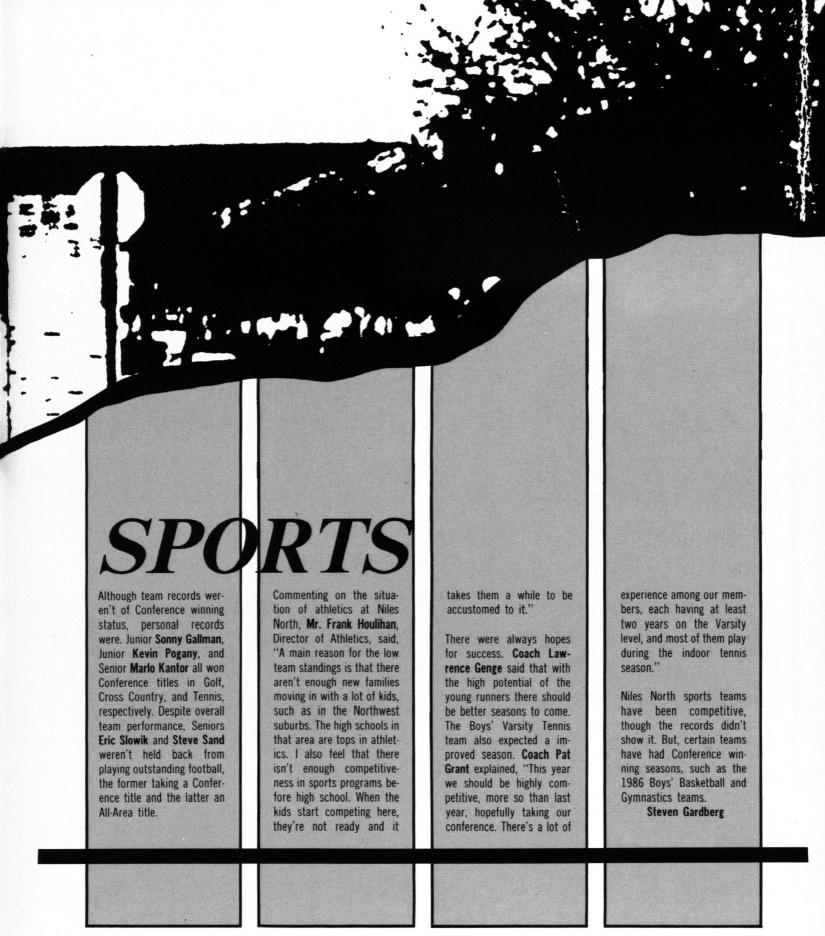

For most, Prom was a memorable night. Stephanie Powers and Walter Alvendia take a break from dancing to relax in the lobby of the Drake Hotel.

Graduation day was looked foward to by many Seniors. The Class of '87 listen to their valedictorian.

Many students found the orchestra quite challenging. Mr. Sklar directes the next piece of music.

IT'S NOT A POPULARITY CONTEST

We work hard at what we do

One day at the pep assembly . . . Applaud, applaud, let's hear it for the Niles North cheerleaders! Now for half-time entertainment the Vikettes will perform to the tune "Rock in America" hopefully the music won't stop in the middle of the routine.

The cheerleaders and Vikettes teams were sterotyped as a kind of popularity contest. That's not true. Popularity contests don't involve hard work, but being on one of these teams does.

Cheerleaders practiced everyday from 3:30 ·5:30 P.M. and learned cheers, chants, and mounts. A bit tedious? Yes, but fun. "You get to make a lot of other friends outside your own group." stated Julie Schwartz. To be a cheerleader is wasn't required to be pretty or peppy just dedicated and able to

The pep assembly would not be the same without the Vikettes dressed up. Lana Tessler and Ellen Feldstein swagger to their position.

Routines were practiced for hours a day. Members of the Vikettes work hard after school before the actual performance.

PEPPY OR NOT

One doesn't have to be peppy just dedicated.

Good friends were hard to come by. A close knit relationship develops among the cheerleaders.

Why do cheerleaders go all out to be peppy? "To go out and represent the school." explained Nikki Markowitz.

During the summer, the Vikettes attended cheerleading camp at the U. of I. Camp lasted a week, but it was a long week. Spending ten hours a day practicing paid off at the end. The Vikettes took first place in all the required routines, and not to mention first place over

Being a cheerleader or Vikette required memorizing a lot of routines, but there were warm memories as a result of the routines." I remember the time, when everyone was doing a kickline and someone's shoe flew into the air. Everyone laughed and tried to keep in step. It was almost impossible," recalled Marni Gitler.

Play Ball The players attitudes were

Due to a young team, made up of two Seniors, five Juniors, and two Sophmores, the varsity season was a great struggle.

One major achievement by senior captain Tony Tichy, was that he was chosen for All-Conference and All-Area for the 1986-1987 season.

Patience is a virtue. Senior Mitch Jacobson waits for the ball.

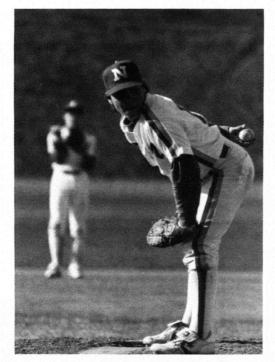

This was the first time Tichy received such an honor. The record of the Varsity team was not comparable to that of a world series team.

The young team beat Stevenson, who was on a winning streak. This win brought a great sense of pride to the players. The Sophomore team, made up of seventeen players, certainly were playing up to par. They finished off the Conference with a record of 12-10. As for the Freshman, the A team completed the season with a record of 6-16 and the B team with a record of 10-6. Motivation was a necessity for the team. "The attitudes of the players were very strong and they always gave 100 percent; for they knew better days were ahead." said Coach Jim Sakas.

Randy Gross

Concentration was a necessity. Seth Novoselsky gets ready to throw a powerful pitch.

Running the bases at a fast pace is great gift to have. Dennis Soco races to third base.

BATTER UP! Good Teamwork Is An Important Factor

Strength as well as accuracy were the major ingredients for batting. Jim Depkon seems to have both.

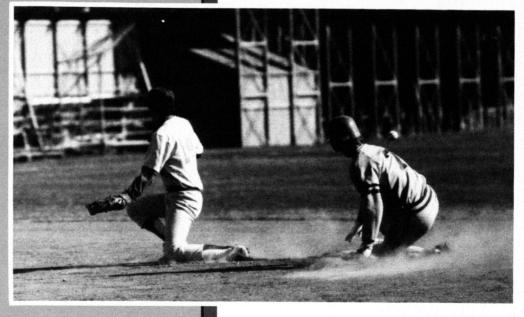

Good sportsmanship is part of losing the game. By the smile on Jeff Gonzales' face, it seems that Niles North is winning.

OUT OF BOUNDS

Good form with the ability to jump high made it possible to score a basket. Going through the motions, Mike Binder prepares for a lay up.

From the beginning of the season and continuning to the end, the 1987-88 Boys Varsity Basketball Team had a very rough and disappointing season. Even with many veteren players returning, the pressure of school work, late night games, and lack of sleep caused the team to end the season with a record of 3-20. Though they didn't do as well as they hoped for, the team still went to practice from 3:30 to 6:00 P.M. The players drilled on the basics, studied stradegies, and most important dedicated. "As long as I know they're trying, I remain patient and encourage them.", stated Coach Pete Christie.

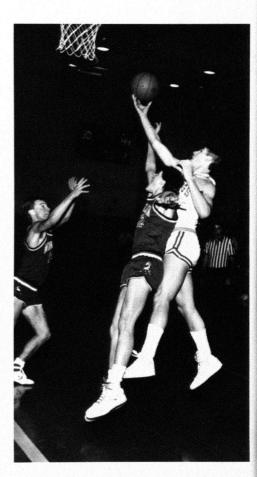

The basketball players started out competitive with high spirits. Unfortunately, the basketball team went into a slump of losing by four or less points in most of their games and remained in that slump. With the bad came the good memories. For example, "When the team beat Niles West or in a game against Mundelein, Mitch Jacobson was running out on the court for pre-game warm-ups, and he tripped over a sophomore's foot. He landed on his face and kept on going on all fours." recalled Al Winkler

In a different atmosphere, the JV players had an exceptional year. With a record of 11-2, the JV team were able to go to conference with a chance to win the championship. JV team member, Binel Patel stated, "If we're able to win Saturday's conference at Niles North, it will be the high light of our season."

Successful passes were key factors in a game. Wally Mattner passes a ball to a teammate to score before the buzzard sounds.

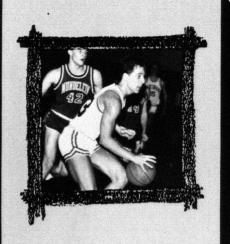

Determination was necessay in order to make a valuable play. Charlie Pearl dribbles away from the opposition.

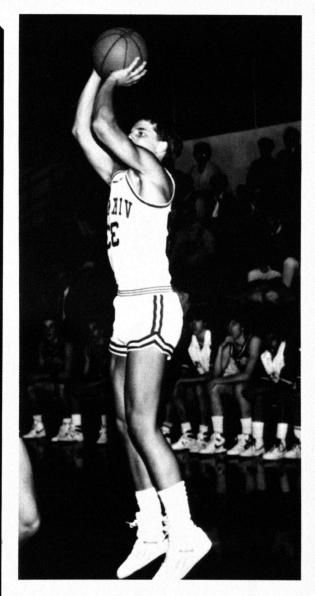

Occasionally, time out was called for brief but needed pep talk. Before going back on the court the Varsity members scream a motivating cheer.

We had many high expectations for the season.
I tried to do the best for our team.
Mike Diety

In the game of basketball not all shots were easy to make. Mike Dietz tries to score from the outside.

To keep the ball in the team's offensive hands, ball control was a necessity. Dennis Soco dribbles the ball with speed and accuracy.

Starting out fresh

The boys Freshman and Sophomore teams have a good start in the beginning

"We're doing great because everybody knows each other. Its not a one man team," said Sophomore Mark Ostrom. His words summarized how the Freshman team felt. They showed good teamwork and friendship through victories and defeats. The Freshman A team has a 6 and 12 record. The B team has a 13 and 2 record. According to coach Marsh, the Freshman A team should end up in fifth or sixth place. The B team should be in second place. "We had a roller coaster year with its good and bad points. I think we're doing pretty good and always improving," said

We are better this year than last year because we have been together for a year and we know each other very well," said Steve Senter of the Sophomore team. Right now the team's standings are 10 and 6. "I am very pleased with the team this year. They are very coachable and they always want to improve," said coach Swanson.

Both the Freshman and Sophomore players enjoy the game because of the sense of friendship and teamwork. "I'm hoping to finish this year off well so I will be ready for Varsity," said Sophomore Jeff Michaels. That is what a lot of the players hope to do, to go on playing next year. And if that happens, we could have as good if not better teams next year.

Michael Rynes

The other team always tries to block your shots. Freshman Bob Klemme finds a way to take the shot.

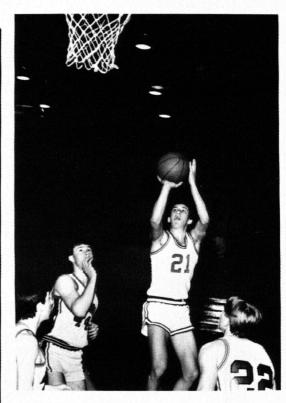

Sometimes the players look like gymnasts while shooting. Freshman Emmanuel Cecilio does as he makes the shot.

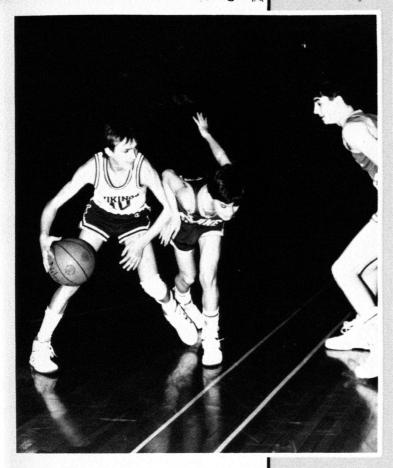

"It was a great year. I tried my hardest and gave 100% in the games."

Bob Klemme

Jumping is often required to make a better shot. Sophomore Jason Saltzman soars through the air to try to make a shot.

Before a player can take a shot, he must get into the right position. Freshman Ron Mattner attempts to do so.

During a game, the players need coaching to improve their performance. Coach Marsh tries to help a player.

TEAM UNITY Was The Key To Their Success

Three, Two, One . . . Their twentieth victory for the Girls' Basketball had finally come true. They had come a long way in order to achieve their determined goal. With long and vigorous practices everyday, the girls had built their stamina to triumph over their competitors, and nothing was going to stand in their rampage. "This year's team was probably the second finest group of players ever in this school's history." commented Coach Clarence Flor-

Three important factors led the Varsity Team to a 21-5 victory. The majority of the team were experienced and skillful players. "We had to set a good example in terms in skills and discipline for the younger members." stated Danica Petrovic. The second factor was their will to succeed. The team had set their goal to place high in conference and worked hard together to make it come true. Team unity was their most important ingredient to success. "The team as a whole had a common goal to achieve our potential together. In fact, individual achievement was not as important as the team." stated Shari Rozmus. For the Jnnior Varsity and the Freshman Teams, it was time to build their skills and techniques. With this experience, they had learned to strengthen their fundamental skills as well as work together. The Girls' Basketball team had accomplished a great deal this season. Not only they placed second in conference, they experienced and participated in the glory of victory as a whole.

BOWLING TEAML STRIKES AGAIN

Debating whether the ball will be a strike or a gutter is in everyone's mind. Francine Smith hoped for a strike.

Team improves over course of the year

The girls bowling team had made great improvement this past year. At the begining of the season, that started in November, the team had an average of 1100 to 1200 pins knocked down, and at the end of the second week of Febuary their average was up to 1700 pins. The team played 15 to 20 games. They played against Fenton, Antioch, Warren and Madonna High School in Chicago to name a few. The bowling team practiced 3 days a week from 3:30 to 5:30 at Fairlanes Bowl. The most valuable player was Wanda O'Quinn and Susan Struthers was the most improved. Coach Lange added, "Anyone who is interested in bowling can join. No experience is necessary, although a physical must be taken to participate." If someone has a 150 average they could be up for a scholarship.

Concentration is very important to insure that the ball goes straight down the alley. Susan Struthers came up to the line and threw a strike.

A RACE FOR THE FINISH

"It Was The Best Of Times, It Was The Worst Of Times ..."

"... it was the age of wisdom, it was the age of foolishness, it was the epoch of belief, it was the epoch of incredulity, it was the season of Light, is was the season of Darkness, it was the spring of hope, it was the winter of despair ... "• Charles Dickens

Running through the fields, competing to discover who had the best endurance, was the goal of every member of the Cross Country team. An outstanding runner, Junior Kevin Pogany proved himself to be the best on the team. He was named All-Conference and MVP of the team. Although the team placed sixth in the conference, it was the best season in the past three years. "We did so well this year because of the increase in dedication to the team," commented Coach Lawrence Genge. At the Conference Meet, the team had an important win over Antioch, who they had lost to during the regular season.

During the Spring portion of the school year there was a team that was overlooked, Track and Field. Similarities between the two involved running and the same coach. The pole vault, high jump, and shot put were also parts of Track and Field. Despite the team's weak performance, there were outstanding members. Senior Eric Fliszar, as a pole vaulter, was named All-Conference and placed third in the state competition. Senior Troy Klosterman was the MVP of the team.

The number of members at the beginning of the season was higher than that at the end. A main cause for the low number at the end of the season was the drop-out rate from the team. Coach Genge stated, "I'd like to see more kids come out for the team and stick with it. They've got the talent, but don't stay around long enough to let it come out."

Strength and power were needed to successfully throw a discus. Sophomore Yury Dubinsky unleashes the necessary force to break a distance record.

Striving for excellence was one aspect the team worked towards. Amy Gadlin runs to the finish line.

Members of the Cross Country Team are: Amy Gadlin, Miriana Pehar, Coach Richard Howard, Kris Mannette, and Nikki Markowitz.

"We never gave up, we always did the best we could and that's what was important," remarked Senior Nateba Montgomery. The Track Team was made up of twenty eight girls. In the winter, the team built up their muscles after school on Tuesdays and Thursdays in the weight room and on Mondays and Wednesdays they practiced at Niles East on the indoor track. When the weather began to get warmer they worked outside. "For people who came to practice, we worked well as a team. I didn"t like how people would show up for the meets and would expect to perform when they did not show up for practices." concluded Montgomery. The Track Team ended their season with 1 victory and 14 losses. The four member Girls Cross Country Team ran on grass and hills. This small group was combined with the Boys Cross Country because of the lack of team members.

DEDICATION

The Power of Unity

Pride, loyalty, and integrity were emphasized by the team and coaches during the 1987 Football season. Cooperation was a helpful factor when the games did not go as they had hoped. "I was really happy to see the team pull together during such adversity," commented Coach Giambeluca, "They did not blame each other for their losses." They did not win every game, yet their friendship remained in tact.

A team's skills were a way to foretell the outcome of a game. "We had outstanding passing, great defensive backs, and most importantly a feeling of camaraderie," said Giambeluca. "Losing is never easy to handle, but as the weeks went on and the losses kept coming, it got a little easier," stated Seth Novoselsky.

Since football is a rough contact sport many injuries can occur. As a result of the injuries, that a few team members suffered, the team failed to reach it's full potential. Brett Schlifka, Jeffrey Cohen, and James Benjamin were taken out of the game for injuries. "Michael Dietz twisted his ankle during the game against Mundelein, which put more pressure on Steven Sand," commented Erik Slowik. "I'm willing to take the risk of getting hurt because I love the game," explained Seth Novoselsky.

In conclusion, Giambeluca stated, "I am thankful to have such good assistant coaches to work with."

WIN OR LOSE

After a disappointing season, the Junior Varsity Football Team still felt that they had the potential to be better. "The one thing that we don't lack is confidence," stated Allen Cepeda, "Without confidence and friendship our team wouldn't be worth much." Towards the end of the season, the goal was to learn to be better by handling their losses with the knowledge that they had done their best. Perhaps their cup did not run over with glory from victories, yet the experiences they encountered left lasting memories. What most Niles North students did not know was that the Freshman Football Team had an extremely successful season. They finished the season 6-0-1 and went on to become Conference Champs. "It was really exciting to win," remarked Mitchel Ruben-stein. That excitement coupled with strong confidence helped the team. Striving to make themselves better, the Freshman Football Team stuck it out through long practices. When their skills were put together they achieved victory. Their hard work paid off.

FLYING HIGH GYMNASTICS TEAM FLIPS OVER SEASON

The Niles North Boys Gymnastics Team has made Niles North proud once again. The 1987 varsity team scored the highest at the regional tournament. This is an extraordinary achievement for such a small team. What made this small team such a success was their drive. determination, and practice. The hard work really paid off for Lee Wolochuck who won state on the pommel horse. Lee Wolochuck wasn't the only one who went to state. Alan Hirsh and Dror Zetouni joined in the competition. It paid off in a great way for Alan Hirsh who won fifth on rings and went on to become most valuable player for the 1987 season. Not only did Alan Hirsh have a very high number of total points, but he led the team in high spirit.

The team wouldn't have been where they were is it weren't for the coaches. Coach Bro and Coach Sokalski were with the team day in and day out, making the team the best they could be. They gave the team advice and pointers and kept their spirits high throughout the season.

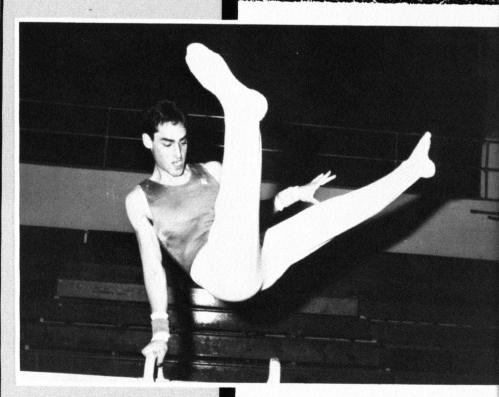

If the Boys Gymnastics Team can keep their spirits high, and the hard work going, it should be no problem for them to bring Niles North more victories in the future.

Concentration was important for the still rings event. Senior Dror Zetouni holds the "L" pose to earn a better score.

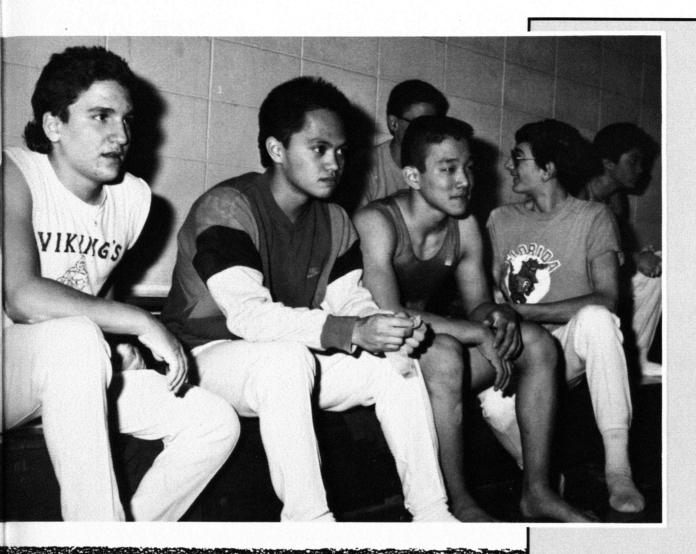

To help better their performance, members of the gymnastics team watch closely while their other teammates perform.

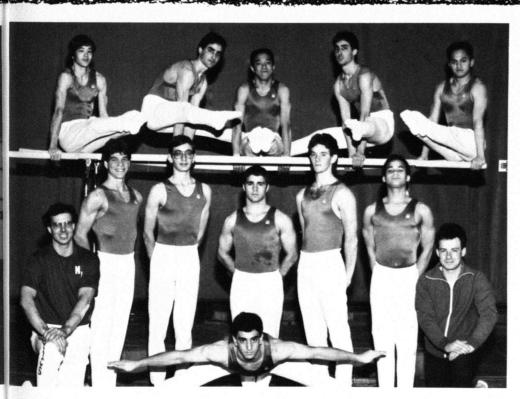

A good strong landing bettered the performers score. Norio Fujikawa finishes his performance with a strong landing.

It was the period of rebuilding and strengthening young skillful players for the Niles North Golf team. Although the Varsity team consisted of mainly sophomores, juniors, and one senior, they managed to reach their desired place in conference. Because of the lack of freshmen and sophomores, Junior Varsity was forced to forfeit most of their conference matches, yet they played for the experience and the challenge. Varsity players except for captain Darin Arves and Sonny Gallman were obligated to play the Varsity and Junior Varsity matches due to a shortage of golfers.

The team worked vigorously every day after school at Glencoe Golf Course, With baskets of golf balls, they practiced putting, chipping, and driving for about four hours each day. They started practice early in mid-August to prepare themselves for the upcoming season. Coach Joe Rusk taught the players the fundamental skills as well as new strategies. "This year the team learned from their mistakes which would enable them to improve and grow skillfully for the next season," stated Coach Joe Rusk.

Some golfers played competitively and consistently throughout the season. Sonny Gallman placed twelfth out of sixty-three golfers in conference. He was nominated as the most valuable player of the Golf team. Captain Darin Aryes, Steve Friedman, and Bill Sikorski also contributed their efforts to make the year successful. "I feel that we worked well together as a team, next year with experience under our belts we will compete aggressively and set upon higher goals to achieve." commented-Sonny Gallman.

Working with limited number of players, they achieved their goals to improve and build their skills in order prepare themselves for the next season. The golf team had their ups and downs with their close matches. "At one match we came up short by one hole. It was frustrating and disappointing to accept the news," said Coach Joe Rusk. The golf team pulled themselves up and they succeeded in rebuilding their skills for the upcoming season.

"HEAD OVER HEALS" TEAMMATES KEEP UP HIGH SPIRITS

One of the hardest obstacles that a gymnastics team could face is a lack of man power. The 1987 Freshman and Sophomore teams had to face such an obstacle. Through a lot of hard work and patience two great teams came into existance. Under the training of coaches Goone, Cress, and Sokalski, the teams learned valuable skills and techniques that will show in the years to come. Practice after practice the teams worked on such events as floor exercise, the pommel horse, the still rings, the horizontal bar, and the parallel bars. William Sikorski was named Most Valuable Player due to his high scores at meets and versitility. Neal Sillins, of The Freshman Gymnastics Team, said, "What made the gymnastics team so great was that we all worked together as a team, we all supported each other and that shined through at the meets"

Young With Room To Grow

Help from the coach was needed. Coach Bill Bro spots Jill Prevendar as she attempts a back flip.

Eva Gordon took all conference with a 9.28 average. Being the only junior Eva Gordon led the Girls Varsity Gymnastics Team. She set three Niles North records in vaulting, floor exercise and all around.

The Girls Varsity Gymnastics Team was a young but very motivated team. It consisted of only three seniors, Nicole Cunnea, Traci Segal, and Marlo Kantor who placed second in vaulting in regionals. Marlo Kantor commented, "I knew I had to work hard to achieve my goals, but once I did it was worth it." The remainder of the team consisted of sophomores. They were a great asset to the team.

The Varsity and Junior Varsity teams practiced together everyday for three hours and on weekends. Although being a young team they worked hard to improve and do their best. They encouraged each other to continue the good work and strive to do their best. "They worked well together, a very cohesive group," stated Ann Halberg.

Eva Gordon won regional championship on every event. Eva Gordon made it to sectionals. The team came in Third place in regionals and fifth place in conference. The Girls Varsity Gymnastics team finished the season with a 4-4 record.

Boys Soccer Goes for the Goal

Big plays were hard to get this year. Dan Yonan tries to make a big play.

With hard work and a team of who wouldn't quit, Boys Soccer set out in a new direction. "Our defense was our biggest strength this year" said Coach William Coulsen. A defense that included goalie Marcello Freitas and all-conference selections Walt Alvendia and Nick Gatzionis.

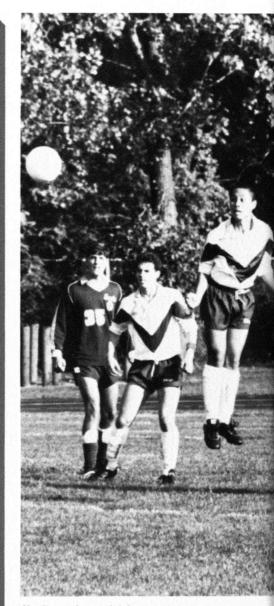

The one key weakness was a scoring offense which seemed to be coming back under the direction of all-state team member Dan Yonan. Yonan this year scored 15 goals and 6 assists. "On the field Dan is a fierce competitor" said Walt Alevendia. Yonan was the second person in four years to be named to the all-state team. "It was a great feeling, and I know that I won't have to answer those questions anymore, like are you going to make all-state like your cousin Ferris?" says Yonan referring to Ferris Youhanna a member of the 1985 Niles North soccer team.

This years team had many wins over teams like Stevenson, Lake Forest, Rolling Meadows, and a tie with St. Josephs. With a 7-8-4 record being ineligible was another problem in which the team lost two starters. "We could have probably been able to score more goals" said a soft spoken Yonan.

State scoring record is broken.

Team spirit was very important in all sports. Shari Rozmus and Julie Finkel congradulate each other on making a goal.

The most valuable players of the 86-87 girls Varsity Soccer team were Shari Rozmus and Marlo Kantor. Shari set the state scoring record with 49 goals that broke a Niles North record. Shari was nominated for All-American.

A soccer game was cancelled once in six years due to a terrible thunderstorm. The girls Varsity Soccer team won 17 games, lost 5 and tied twice. The minimum number of games played in a season was 17, plus tournaments they can enter. Half of the total of 25 games were away and the rest of them were played at home. Mr. Coulson has been a soccer coach in the District since 1973 and has coached Girls Soccer since the 80-81 season.

The soccer season lasted from February 3rd to May 3rd for approximately three and a half months. Unfortunately the student body does not come out to see the games. "The attendance is very poor," said coach Coulson.

The Junior Varsity soccer team's most valuable player was Wendy Allen. The Junior Varsity team played a total of 16 games; half of the games were played away. The team won 8 games, lost 7, and tied once. The games were played at Niles East and West. The student body really didn't show up for any games.

The total number of games the Varsity and Junior Varsity played was 33 and both teams won a total of 25 games. They won more than half. That shows us that the girls soccer team has team effort and spirit.

Up to bat Vikings pitch their spirit.

Every game brought more chances for the team to do their best ever. Rhonda Wendt swings for a homerun.

Every year, when spring rolls around, the Viking Girls' Softball teams get ready to play ball. 1987 was no exception. The varsity squad was composed of eleven members, one Senior, seven Junios, one Sophomore, and two freshman. The team, coached by Charles Balciulis, finished the season with a record of 7 wins and 14 losses. The J.V. squad, coached by Suzanne Colantonio, ended the season with a record of 3 wins and 13 losses. Most valuable J.V. player, Debbie De Salvo, commented, "Encouraging team members helped us continue to work hard. Winning the last three games made our practices and hard effort worthwhile." The Freshman team, like the others, was held together not only by coach Chris Busch but by the spirit that always seemed to be present during games and practices. Varsity member, Lauren Kurtz, remarked. "Even though we didn't win as many games as we would have liked to, I'm still happy with the way everyone worked together. The team always stuck together. Even players that weren't playing that day were at the games to cheer on their friends."

Debra Bernstein

UNLEASH THE VICTORY

Getting ready for the big swimming meet was just as important as performing. Coach Sandsted gives the team a pep talk.

With strength and endurance, Tom Blumenfeld swims for the finish line.

SWIMMING FOR PERFECTION

This was a season of new beginnings and great accomplishments for the Niles North swim team. Coach Sandstead described the swim team as cooperative, enjoyable, and hardworking. The season was not great due to the number of losses. But individually they were very successful. All the members of the team were important, but the essential participants were Todd Kantorezyk and Eric Salinger.

Practices were held everyday after school for two to three hours. They contributed everyday and grew stronger with every practice. Swimmers broke their own records and did better than before. 'The look on a swimmers face when he had broken his previous record, or achieved what he couldn't achieve before was just as memorable as any victory " exclaimed Coach Sandstead. Although this was a season of ups and downs, the Niles North Swim Team gave a hundred percent of themselves.

Girls Swim To Excell

Team Builds Strength

During a meet, cheering was an important factor. HOLLY SCHECK, MELISSA NEHRLINC, BETH TOKOWITZ, cheer a teamate onto victory.

The Niles North Girls Swim Team finished strong by taking a fifth place at their conference meet.

Even though it was a losing season, they finished with a conference record of 1 in 8. This years team was led by co-captains seniors Tracy Allen and Holly Scheck. Tracy Allen received a third place in the Zion-Benton Invitational. Sophomore Dori Moses was voted the most valuable swimmer for the 1987 seaosn, and received fifth place in the 500 freestyle at the conference meet. Heather Scheck placed fifth in diving at the conference meet. Janine Hubiczek was one of the best freshmen swimmers this year.

Swimming wasn't all hard work. There was time for fun and games. At the end of the season, a going away party was thrown for the seniors. The seniors were presented roses and because of the 1987 season, they finished their swimming careers with many memories.

Barry Halperin

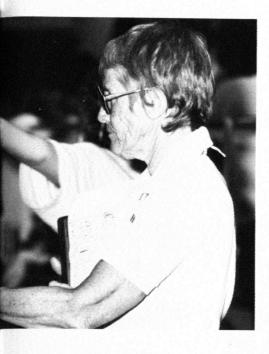

Nervousness was setting in before the race. Dori Moses is given last minute advice from coach Wellman.

Go, Fight, Win! Not just a bunch of swingers!

When a team member returned the serve on game point, as a winner, the crowd cheered. This not only stimulated the crowd, but team members also felt a sense of joy and accomplishment. The Boys Tennis Team practiced Monday thru Friday and on Saturdays when they didn't have a meet or invitational. The weather never stopped practice or meets, they continued, rain or shine. "The competition was tough but we were able to handle it" replied John Chun. Ramash Subramani was named most valuable player. Other conference players included Andy Mabadi, Steve Sand, John Chun, and Ray Arceo. The team ended the season with a record of 7 and 2 in the duel record. A 7 and 1 record in the conference and a tie for second place was a climax for the season. Coach Pat Grant appreciated the contribution of the teams two seniors and anticipated the strength of the returnng under classmen for next year.

Concentration is important in a match. John Chun gets ready to receive the ball.

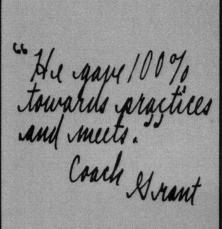

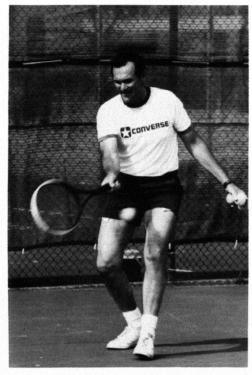

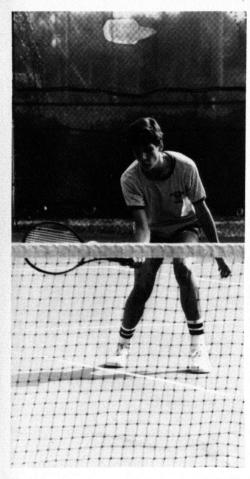

Returning the ball to his apponent, Denny Kim uses a forehand stroke.

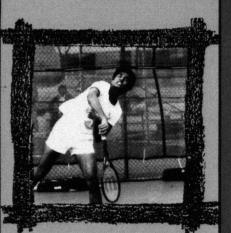

Taking time out of practice Coach Grant gives a demonstration for the team.

The opponent put a top spin on the shot. Andy Mabadi reaches low to volley the ball.

Perfect timing and form was essential in tennis. Junior Conrad Ayala unleashes his powerful serve.

Masters of the Court

The team's great attitude made the season more enjoyable

Having many experienced players return from last year's team was a key to the Girl's Varsity Tennis Team's finishing with a 9-5 record. The team ended its nine week season with fourth place in Conference. The underclassmen were the nucleus of this year's team, however, the seniors played a dominant role during the season. Co-captains Valerie Weiskirch and Marlo Kantor played number one singles and number two singles, respectively. According to Seema Singh, "Without the freshmen playing on the Varsity Team, we wouldn't have done as well as we did. They really had a lot of talent." Arlene Valera added, "The team as a whole proved to be successful. As the season went on, we learned to work together, we matured as individuals, and tried to make our team the best it could possibly be. We might not have won first in Conference, but the support and help we gave each other proved that we were winners!"

A high point of the season was having M.V.P. Marlo Kantor make All-Conference. It was the first time in six years that a girl tennis player achieved the honor. According to Coach Mark Recker, "Marlo was a great athlete, had a competitive attitude, and was always working to improve her skills." Marlo commented, "Towards the end of the season, when I thought I had a chance for All-Conference, Coach Recker gave me the confidence I needed to win."

The Junior Varsity Team finished their season with a 6-7-1 record. Coach Carl Field stated, "Some of the girls on J.V. have the potential to play on the Varsity team next season."

Carol Mui recalled one unforgettable experience. "It was game point, I faulted once, and had to make the next shot. I added too much top spin on the ball, and hit my partner in the rear end!"

Ira Penner

Stefanie Mabadi waited for her opponent to serve the ball. Determination is written all over her face.

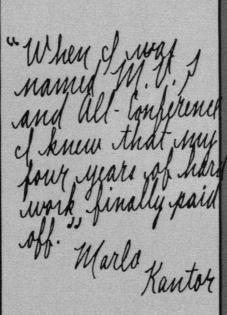

Concentration was so essential for tennis players. Arlene Valera uses super form or her forhand hit.

Good form was the name of the game. Roxanna Rahim follows through on her backhand.

A match couldn't start without a good serve. Melissa You hopes the ball stays in fair territory.

The team practiced hard for every game. Seema Singh is pleased after a hard work session.

Bump, Set, Spike! Moving On With Determination

Challenges and difficulties plauged the overall preformance of the Varsity Volleyball Team during their season. "Our season really wasn't as good as last year," stated Senior Rhonda Wendt. "Especially with the loss of our five graduating senior starters". The majority of the Varsity Team consisted of underclassman. These underclassmen lacked a lot varsity playing experience, which also contributed to the teams difficulties.

The Varsity Team finished their season with a record of 5-18-1. This record didn't really show their capacity though. "People don't seem to realize that we play against very competative schools, such as Evanston (19-2), "commented Coach Sue Colantonio. This year, Coach Colantonio tried a new game plan rotation in order to improve the team both offensively and defensively.

The thing that the Varsity Team seemed to lack most of all were fans. "We need more support from fans, "commented Coach Colantonio. "Fans motavate the team to do better and try harder. They pick the whole team up and help carry the momentum."

Although there were several stumbling blocks throughout the season, these difficulties brought the team closer together. "We all became friends," stated Rhonda Wendt. "We worked very well together and had good camaraderie".

The Junior Varsity Volleyball Team also had their share of hard times. With a record of 2-22, team members realized that togetherness was essential for victory. "When we didn't play together, the whole team fell apart, but still we worked hard to play well and to keep the team together," commented Sophomore Susie Herr. The Junior Varsity program provided the preparation needed for girs planning to play on Varsity in the future.

Joann Bautista

Concentration is required to keep the ball in play. Sophomore Michelle Gaa sets the ball over the net to keep the game alive.

Physical Devotion Words They Lived By

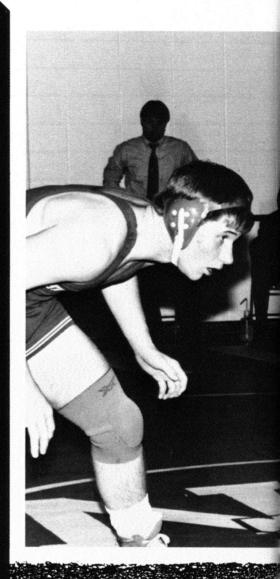

A good wrestler had control at all times. Jordan Sanders puts the opponent right where he wants him.

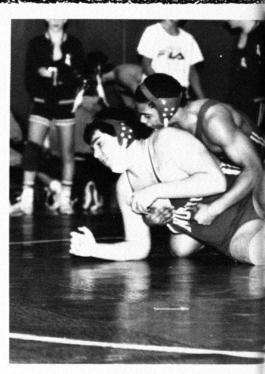

Varsity Wrestling was the ultimate in physical activity. Devotion and concentration were the words they lived by. The wrestlers could not maintian a level of commitment and dedication without some help. The help of the coaches and the Wrestlettes was important to keep their level of concentration. Wrestling also built character for these students. Chang Hwang commented "It's a hard sport, the commpetition is tough and you have to be very dedicated to remain on the team.

Karl Nygard Debbie Gradman

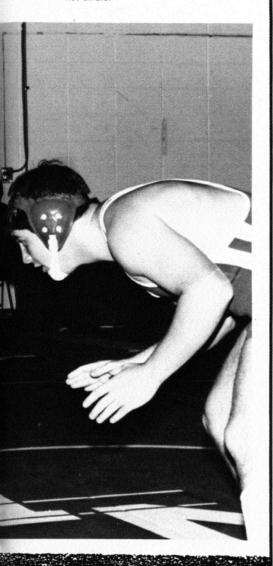

A little pep talk before a match never hurt. Members of the J.V. and Freshman teams concentrate before the game.

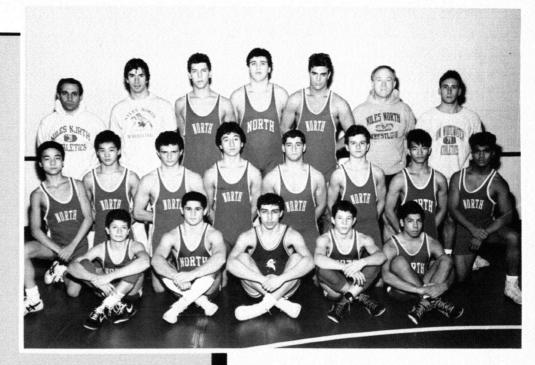

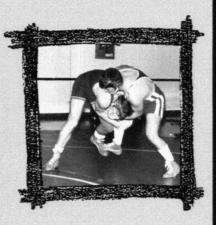

The "Intimidation Stare" was usually how a game was won. Robert Spiro shows he's not afraid.

Wrestling had its ups and downs. Yury Dubinsky gets his opponent off his back.

An Experience Of A Lifetime

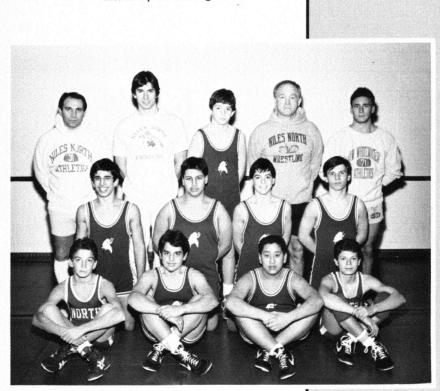

Training To Be The Best

As the clock ticked down, Gregg Feinstein tries to flip his challenger.

The Freshman Wrestling Team was an experience for new students to challlenge their body and their mind for a tough and demanding sport. Wrestling was a sport that took a lot of training and dedication. They trained to be the best. A wrestler had to be committed to the sport. Freshman Mike Sher commented "If you want to get in shape, join the wrestling team. It's demanding and takes a lot of time. If your mind and body are not committed, this is not the sport for you."

An intense look was the key for a successful match. Rich Navarro has determination to win.

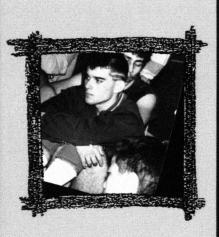

The way to win was to pin. With much effort, Sam Kim gets his opponent down.

"If your mind and body whenot committed this is not the sport for you."

Mike Sher

To beat an opponent one had to be fast on his feet. Chang Hwang pulls down the challenger.

KEEP'EM COMING . .

Practice makes perfect. Joshua Bilow goes through his routine before the meet begins.

Rest was needed after playing a hard game of football. A varsity player relaxes on the grass.

Becoming flexible took practice. Mahendra Patel stretches out.

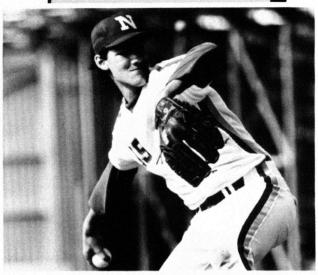

Form was important to achieve high scores. Francine Smith gets ready to "knock them down."

A good eye is a great gift to have when golfing. Marc Silverman lines the ball up with the hole.

Concentration was an asset. Warren Hubert shows his ability to keep his cool.

Going over plays refreshes players memories. During halftime the Freshman team listens with great enthusiasim.

Concentratin was important. Valerie Weiskirch waits for the ball.

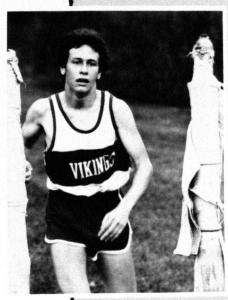

Form was a great way to win points. Jim Depkon makes sure everything is correct.

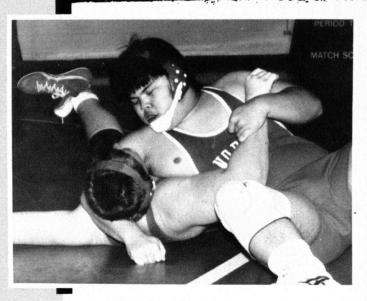

A pitch with great form lead to victory. With much concentration Deborah Hedberg pitches to the opposing team.

Getting to the ball before your opponents did was important. A Niles North player goes for the ball.

Running cross-country was definetly not an easy task. Jason Mezey appears tired.

Technique was a good thing to have when wrestling. Mark Kato pins his opponent.

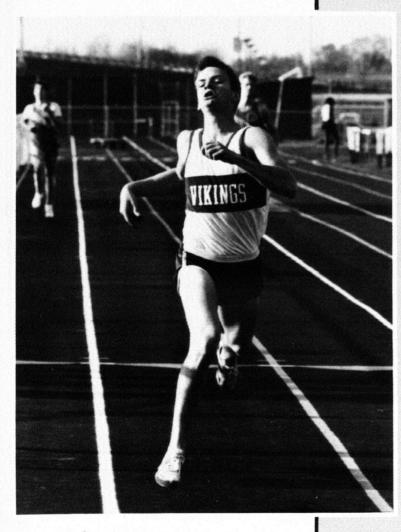

DON'T HOLD' BACK

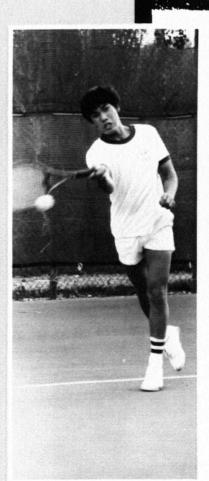

Strength was significant in good shot putting. Brett Schlifka prepares to throw.

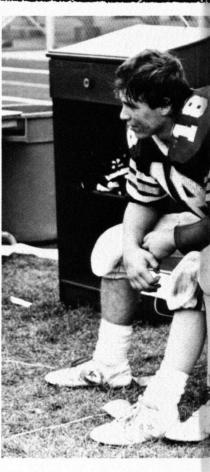

Warming up before the game was a necessity for better performance. Stacy Goldberger dribbles the ball down the field.

Going that extra yard makes a difference. Eric Flyzer sprints to the finish line.

Endurence and concentration were required to come out on top. Gary DeCastro returns the serve.

Even when your not in the game, it's a real good idea to pay attention. Seth Novoselsky and Mitch Jacobson watch with great concentration from the bench.

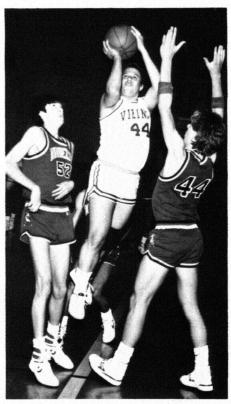

Determination to win was the key to success. April Reshke throws the ball in to resume the game.

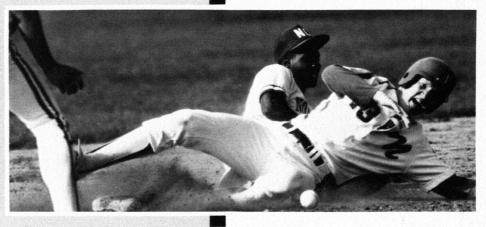

Winning an event made one feel terrific. Josh Alsburg definetly seems to be pleased with himself.

Good offensive playing was imperative. Al Winkler shoots for two.

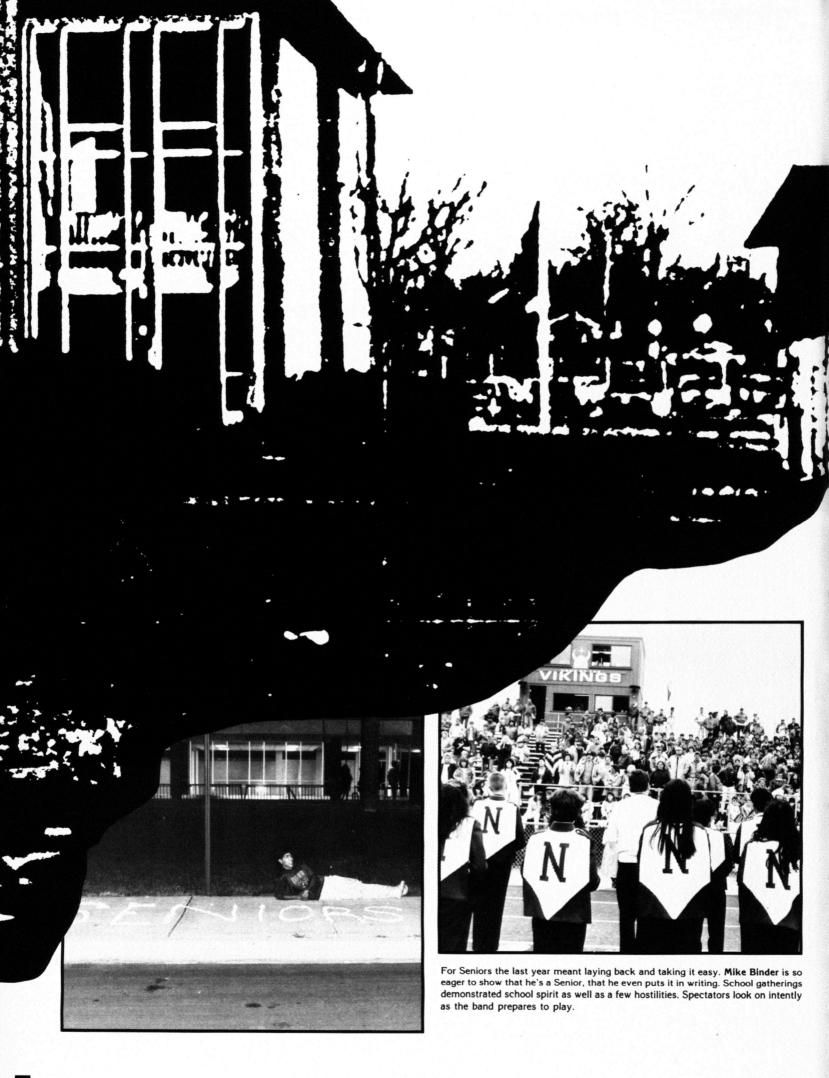

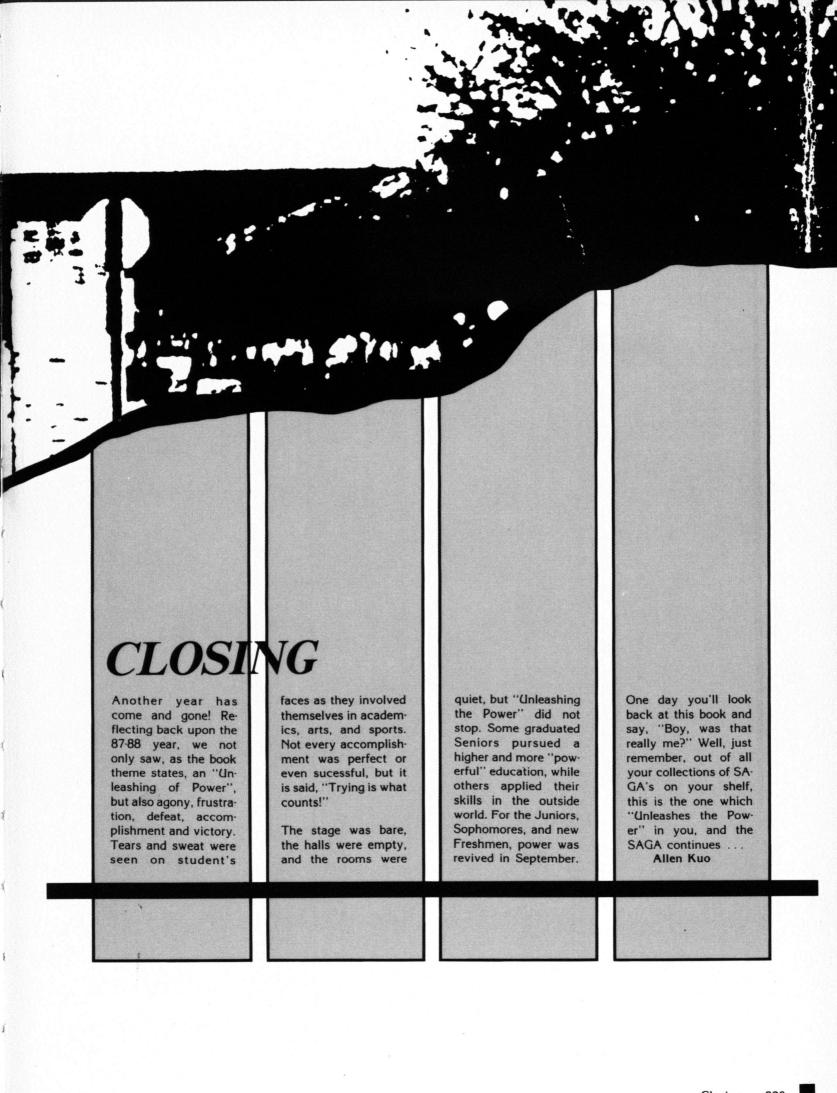

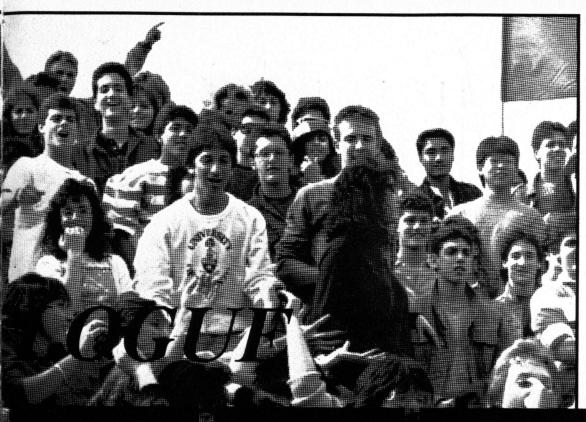

Being able to get to the base in time took great speed. Eric Slowik slides into second.
