

from the Pall Mall Gazette

5596 February 17^m 1874

"The Sacred Anthology" a book of Ethical Scriptures, collected and edited by Monseur Daniel Conway (Tribner & Co) The purpose of this Anthology is carefully stated in the preface. Mr Conway considers that it would be useful "for moral and religious culture if the sympathy of religions could be more generally made known and the converging testimonies of ages and races to great principles more widely appreciated;" and he adds that, beyond the Hebrew and Christian Scriptures, he has confined his selections to those books of a moral or religious character which, having commanded the veneration of the races among whom

Dear Mother
I received your letter of the 10th and was glad to hear from you.

I am well and hope
these few lines will find you the same.
I have not much news
to write at present.

I have been thinking
of you very much
and wondering how
you are getting on.
I hope you are happy.

I have not much news
to write at present.
I have been thinking
of you very much
and wondering how
you are getting on.

I have not much news
to write at present.
I have been thinking
of you very much
and wondering how
you are getting on.

They were produced, are still the least accessible to European readers. The extracts chosen are classed under various headings, and of these extracts a large proportion are from the Old and New Testaments, not, however, from our authorised version, but from a revised translation produced by the Unitarians. The principal authorities for the beautiful thoughts and precepts so skillfully collected by the editor are given at the close of the volume to make his work as complete as possible: Mr Conway also publishes chronological notes and it is scarcely necessary to say that his views with regard to the dates of our Sacred books differ considerably from those adopted by Orthodox divines.

