THE ANNUAL MEETING
OF THE NOTTING HILL
PHILANTHROPIC SOCIETY WAS HELD AT
ST. PETER'S SCHOOL ROOM,
ON TUESDAY EVENING, DECEMBER 14th, 1869.
REV. J. ROBBINS, D.D.,
IN THE CHAIR.

THE FOLLOWING REPORT WAS ADOPTED AT AN ADJOURNED MEETING.

The number of Cases relieved during the past year is calculated at 2160.

The Society has now, after a gradual development during 15 years, assumed the form of a well-organized system for the relief of temporary distress.

Its operations, as shown by the Secretary's books from year to year, have been productive of some substantial results.

Far more extensive good may be anticipated from a generous support of its admitted claims.

The Committee would earnestly press upon the great body of their fellow tradesmen throughout the area of the Ward of Notting Hill, the vital importance of securing a faithful band of Visitors, who, acting in harmony with them, will by personal visitation of the homes of the poor, and by using every available means of inquiry, exercise the most careful discrimination in their distribution of relief, so as to detect imposture and encourage industry.

During the past year, the Meetings of the Society were, with the consent of the Incumbents, held in the School Room of St. John's, on the 8th of January; at St. Clement's, February 12th; St. James's, February 26th; St. George's, March 9th; St. Peter's, March 23rd; All Saints', April 13th; St. Mark's, May 14th. This was done with a view to a closer co-operation with the clergy, and the diffusion through the several districts of the Ward of a wider knowledge of the principles, objects, and organization of the Society.

The Committee trust that this plan has produced the effect desired, and that full confidence is felt in the Society, as a valuable agency for grappling with some at least of those difficulties which pauperism presents.

Its future success depends, under God, upon the support it receives, the spirit in which it is worked, and the intelligence and energy with which its operations are carried on.

The Committee appeal to the public, not so much upon the ground of work done, of which they acknowledge the defects, as from a desire to be able to meet promptly the urgent call for renewed efforts which the fluctuating condition of the poor is increasingly making, from want of employment and depression of trade.

From the displacement of the poor, the neighbourhood of the Potteries is densely populated by a class of persons who have to struggle hard for existence; and severe are the trials to which many are reduced, whose sufferings might at least be lightened by timely relief judiciously given through Visitors who, by close contact with them, will learn their true history and sympathize with their wants.

It appears to the Committee that the ultimate object of the Philanthropic Society should be to lower the Rates by elevating the poor.

The accomplishing of this end is obviously retarded by a system of relief indiscriminately administered to the dependent pauper and the industrious labourer.

The first is a fit subject if hopelessly reduced for parochial relief, or emigration. The second, suffering from temporary or accidental causes, is encouraged, by timely assistance, to recover his position of manly independence and self support.

The Committee are well aware that, with the best intentions on their part, and the greatest discrimination on the part of the Visitors, the immediate results of the Society's work may disappoint the sanguine, and perhaps shake the faith of its supporters in its utility.

The best answer they can give to such waverers is, redoubled exertions to stem the tide of pauperism which is flowing in so rapidly, while they remind their friends at the same time that, if their means are crippled, their action must be relatively feeble and ineffectual.

Since the last Annual Meeting a new Society for organising charitable relief, and repressing mendicity has been formed, the Earl of Lichfield being chairman of the Committee, a branch of which has been introduced into this parish.

The plan proposed is to establish a Charity Office in a central position in the Parish, at which office a Committee, consisting of the representatives of the various parochial and charitable agencies, and Metropolitan local Relief Societies, ministers of all denominations, Poor-Law Guardians, and others, is to meet weekly.

The Committee of this Society think that every information and countenance should be given to the requirements of the above Society so far as refers to the Ward of Notting Hill.
