

Fund Hosts Rodeo Benefit Rodeo Planned

Nearly 200 rodeo entries from 50 schools will "take their licks" Friday and Saturday in the Sandy Anderson Benefit Rodeo. Volunteer clowns, judges and other personnel have been working for weeks on MCC's first rodeo.

Performances will begin at 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, with another afternoon show scheduled at 2 p.m. Saturday at the Bosqueville Arena.

Events include bull riding, bareback and saddle bronc riding, and calf roping for men. Women's events are steer riding, goat-tying, and barrel racing.

Buckles will be awarded for each event. Anyone of high school or college age is eligible to enter.

Bill Ainsworth, an MCC freshman, and Billy Keith Crawford will both clown at the rodeo. Jimmy Coslett, originally scheduled to clown with Ainsworth, broke his leg three weeks ago when thrown from a bronc.

Announcing the events will be Bill Gammage, sophomore. Judges will be two professional cowboys, Pogo Scoggins and David Robbins, both Wacoans.

Half of the $1,400 prizes have been donated by the parents of an MCC student, who wishes to remain anonymous. The Sandy Anderson Fund will provide the rest of the prizes.

Refreshments will be provided by the Bosqueville Arena.

Tickets are $2 for adults, while children under 12 will be admitted free.

Entry fees in all events are $8.

Logan Huffman is the owner of the stock to be used in the rodeo.

At least $2,000 is expected to be raised at the rodeo for neurosurgery for Mrs. Anderson. The fund's goal is to raise $15,000 to correct the cerebral palsy which has handicapped Mrs. Anderson since childhood.

All prospective entrants should enter as soon as possible to assure a place in the rodeo. The deadline for bull riding entries is Thursday. All other events are open until Friday, unless their capacities are filled sooner.

Brothers Win Domino Tourney

John Pederson, freshman, and Wayne Kleypas, sophomore, shuffled their way to victory in the "Forty-two" domino tournament March 20. They won every game.

"We love to play dominoes," said Kleypas.

Second place winners, Travis and John Broughton, both sophomores, said they entered the tournament as a joke. The brothers had not played "Forty-two" in at least seven years.

The first place winners each received a large set of dominoes. The second place prizes were the two smaller sets of dominoes used in the tournament.

Eleven teams, 22 players in all, entered the competition which began March 11 in the Student Center.

The games continued March 13 and 15, with the final championship game being played March 20.

'Requiem' Back By Request

"The Requiem" by Brahms is back by request. The McLennan Singers have scheduled its second Waco performance for 8:15 p.m. Friday in the Student Center.

The Singers presented "The Requiem" on campus last Thanksgiving weekend as a part of their first reunion since their organization in 1968. Members from that year on attended the reunion.

Presented in English, "The Requiem" is technically difficult, said Kenneth Alford, director of The McLennan Singers. However, he selected it for the Singers to perform because of "its beauty, its timeliness and its profound humanity," he said.

Brahms wrote the piece during a period of grief following his mother's death. Although most requiems are built around a traditional funeral service, Brahms' "Requiem" is not a sad dirge.

He chose instead to inspire the audience by setting to music scriptural texts which uplift the soul, Alford said.

Solo parts in "The Requiem" will be sung by Singers Miss Caterina Micieli, voice instructor, and David Westerfeld, freshman music major. The Singers' group includes 80 members.

The performance will be open to the public with no admission charge.

Communist Threat Is Real Today

By Cathy Sulak

In May of 1919 at Dusseldorf, Germany, the Allied Forces acquired a copy of the "Communist Rules for Revolution." Now, 55 years later, the Reds are still following them.

As quoted from the Red Rules:

"Corrupt the young; get them away from religion. Get them interested in sex. Make them superficial; destroy their ruggedness.

"Get control of all means of publicity, thereby:

"1. Get people's minds off their government by focusing their attention on athletics, sexy books and plays and other trivialities.

"2. Divide the people into hostile groups by constantly harping on controversial matters of no importance.

"3. Destroy the people's faith in their natural leaders by holding the latter up to contempt, ridicule and disgrace.

"4. Always preach true democracy, but seize power as fast and ruthlessly as possible.

"5. By encouraging government extravagance, destroy its credit, produce fear of inflation with rising prices and general discontent.

"6. Incite unnecessary strikes in vital industries, encourage civil disorders and foster a lenient and soft attitude on the part of government toward such disorders.

"7. By specious argument cause the breakdown of the old moral virtues, honesty, sobriety, self-restraint, faith in the pledged word, ruggedness.

"Cause the registration of all firearms on some pretext, with a view to confiscating them and leaving the population helpless."

Quite a list, isn't it? Now stop and think—how many of these rules are being carried out in this nation today? Is it just a coincidence?

These rules may not seem important to Americans, but the ambitions of one country could change their minds.

Communism is entrenched within 100 miles of the U.S. coast. Cuba is still ruled by Fidel Castro, the Communist dictator starting his 16th year of power in Havana.

As happens every once in a while, Castro is said to be trying to get back in the good graces of both the U.S. Government and the U.S. businessman.

Castro's willingness to resume "normal relations" with the U.S. if it lifts its embargo on Cuba could be due to the fact that the U.S. is now on better terms with the Soviet Union and Communist China.

Castro's willingness could also be attributed to the fact that some hemisphere nations want increased trade with Cuba, and that American-owned subsidiaries in those countries are not permitted to get in on the business under the embargo.

However, some very practical things must be considered before Castro is welcomed with open arms.

What does he intend to do about the $2 or $3 billion worth of American property he stole when he and his band of conspirators seized power in Cuba?

Not one cent of compensation has ever been paid, nor has any of the property been returned to its rightful owners.

Since the establishment of Castro's empire the quota has been spread among 30 other sugar-producing nations.

The U.S. will surely invite trouble if it takes those allotments away from these suppliers and gives them back to Cuba.

What about the thousands of Cuban refugees who have found safety in the U.S.? Some of them were among Cuba's finest citizens before they gave up everything to flee from the grip of Castro.

They are still Cubans and hope to return to their homeland someday. They will have to abandon their hopes, though, if Castro's dictatorship gets Uncle Sam's seal of approval.

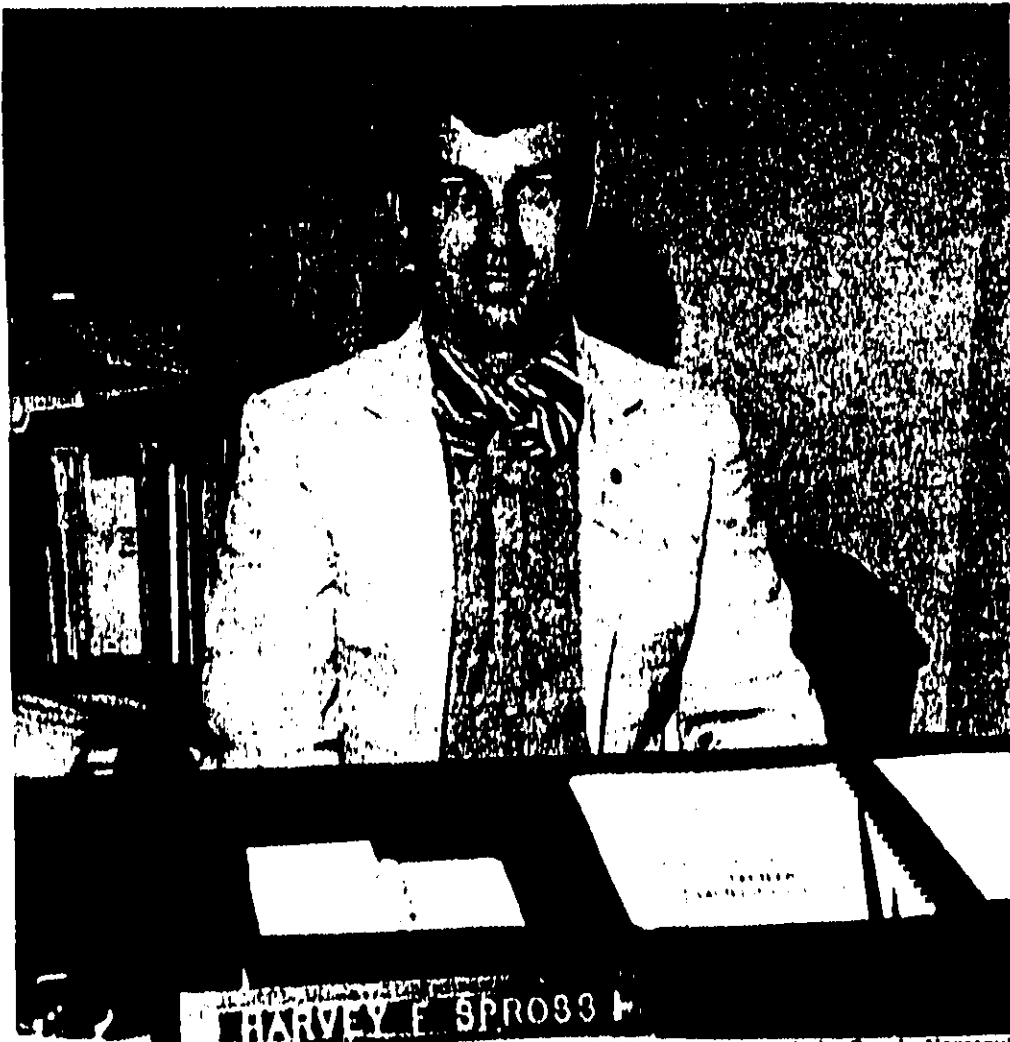

Overall, Fidel Castro still does not seem to be the sort of person the U.S. ought to forgive and offer a helping hand.

In practical terms, Soviet Russia is keeping Castro afloat, and it is costing the Kremlin $1.5 million a day.

That is a lot of money. Russia would certainly appreciate it if the U.S. picked up part of the tab for running a Communist Cuba.

Whether it uses rules for revolution or money in the bank, communism is there for the asking.

Does Castro have any buyers?

Harvey Spross

Registrar Harvey Spross has resigned from his position to accept a job with Brazos Electric Power Cooperative Inc. He will leave MCC Friday.

Spross came to MCC in 1968 as a counselor. He became Registrar the next year and has held that position since.

Spross will be the personnel manager at Brazos Electric. His new responsibilities will include recruitment, selection and placement of employees; the training and evaluation of employees; and arranging benefits for employees.

He will also be responsible for the cooperative's safety and health program.

"I consider the new position to be a challenge and an interest," Spross said. "There are a lot of opportunities in it."

Brazos Electric's headquarters are at 2404 La Salle. The operation includes 57 Texas counties.

Anthropologist Speaks

The anthropological studies of the Texas Indians and anthropology in general were topics of a speech presented last Friday on campus.

Anthropologist Mrs. Bilye Fogleman, an instructor at Texas Women's University, was the speaker. She is an adjunct professor at Texas Christian University one night a week.

Mrs. Fogleman studies the anthropology of Indians in Texas, especially around the Dallas area. In her lecture Friday, she talked about the Navajo and the Comanche Indians. The largest group of Indians is located in the Oak Cliff section of Dallas.

"You can't stereotype Indians," she said, "but the Navajo likes the cowboy style."

Mrs. Fogleman said that the Navajo like to wear cowboy hats and clothes. The Navajo is also an individualist, and unlike the Comanche, does not like to be a leader.

The Navajo is also concerned about spirits. Mrs. Fogleman cited a personal example about talking to one woman of her plans for Halloween. The woman planned to entertain her relatives that Halloween Sunday, only the relatives who were coming to visit were already dead.

Catalogue Ready To Be Printed

MCC's general catalogue for Fall 1974-Spring 1975 has been sent to the printer. The Instructional Council has been meeting twice a week to complete the catalogue.

Dr. Ronald A. Smith said that the Council plans to have the catalogue back before the end of the semester so that the students can obtain one before leaving for the summer.

The Instructional Council is composed of Dr. Smith and the six division heads. They have been considering possible changes in the sequence of courses taken in certain majors or in dropping or adding courses to the catalogue.

"The new courses... usually begin with a faculty member who sees the need for new classes. Sometimes the students perceive the need and relate it to their instructor," said Dr. Smith.

New courses that will be offered this fall are Legal Terminology, Keypunch, Theatre Workshop, Introduction to Statistics and Forensic Activities.

Legal Terminology is a course primarily geared for legal secretarial students.

Keypunch is a course designed to give the students the basic skills in keypunching and verifying, with some orientation on data recording methods.

Theatre Workshop is a laboratory course dealing with many phases of dramatic theatre. Emphasis will be on techniques and procedures, with practical experience being gained through participating in a play production and workshop.

Introduction to Statistics is a math course for business majors.

Forensic Activities is designed for laboratory practice in debate, discussion, oral interpretation and public address.

NC State Wins NCAA National Title

By Bill Gammage

With the defending NCAA champion UCLA Bruins on the sideline for the first time in eight years, the powerful North Carolina State Wolfpack breezed to a 76-64 victory over Marquette Monday night for the NCAA basketball championship.

UCLA axed Kansas 78-61 in the third place contest.

The Wolfpack edged UCLA in the "game of the year" in a Saturday semifinal game, 80-77 in double overtime. The Bruins appeared to be on their way to an unprecedented eighth straight title after they opened up a seven-point lead during the second overtime, but couldn't hold it as State, led by All-American forward David Thompson, came back for the victory.

The championship game, played before 15,742 fans and a national television audience, was decided in the last three minutes of the first half and the first five minutes of the second half.

Thompson again led the Pack with 21 points and spurred his team to a 12-2 shooting spree to put the game out of reach 51-32 with 15:32 left in the game.

Whether scoring his patented alley-oop shots or intimidating Marquette's shooters, Thompson was never better as he performed in front of the Wolfpack-oriented crowd.

Tom Burleson, overshadowed all year by the play of UCLA's Bill Walton, was also prominent in the Pack's victory. The 7-foot-4 senior dominated the boards all night including a 30-second spree early in the half when he blocked three consecutive Marquette shots.

The Wolfpack took advantage of two technical fouls called on Marquette Coach Al McGuire to score 10 straight points in less than a minute near the end of the first half. The score at the half was State 39, Marquette 30.

When North Carolina State scored the first six points of the second half, three by Thompson, there was no doubt about the verdict.

Thompson was voted the most outstanding player in the tournament by the sports writers.

In the third place contest, the Bruins started its regulars, but they left early in the game. They used 14 players in the first half against Kansas, all they had suited up.

Bill Walton, Keith Wilkes and Dave Meyers inspired a 14-point out-burst early in the second half, sending the Bruins to an unbeatable lead.
