24½ Winter Street

This "Eastlake cottage" with all its fancy shingles, gables, dormers, bays, spindles and varied window shapes and sizes is typical of the "Queen Anne" style of architecture which was a reaction against the industrial revolution and an attempt to look hand-made. The style was an outgrowth of the movement begun by Hunt, Morris and Rosetti in England. The fancy brick chimney is a further reflection of the attitudes of the period. (Salem Historic Commission District Study)

The history of Winter Street is given in the Essex Antiquarian vol. 8 page 66: "Winter street was an ancient road. It was called a lane or highway in 1668; Road leading to Beverly ferry, 1705; Highway leading from the training field to Beverly ferry, 1760; the way to the ferry, 1769; Road, 1771; Way leading to ferry lane, 1771; the ferry lane leading to Beverly, 1779; Ferry lane, 1780; Ferry lane or the way leading to Essex bridge, 1793; and Winter street. 1795."

The lot on which this house stands was part of the early homestead of Thomas Watson, a tailor. He conveyed the lot, which included nearly the entire west side of Winter St., to Jacob Pudeater, a blacksmith, on Oct. 18, 1672. Mr. Pudeater was then married to Isabel Mosier who had the reputation for being a brawler, railer and drunkard. She pawned nearly everything in his house for rum. Isabel died suddenly on March 2, 1676. Jacob Pudeater then married the widow Ann Greenslett, a neighbor, and carried on his blacksmithing business until his death in 1682. All Jacob's estate was devised to his wife, Ann, for her life. There were then two dwelling houses, barn, shop and orchard upon the large parcel.

Mrs. Pudeater lived in one of these houses until the fateful summer of 1692. She was arrested on May 12 for "sundry acts of Witchcraft". Her neighbors and those "afflicted" by witchcraft gave testimony against her, and Ann Pudeater was executed as a witch on Sept. 22, 1692. (appendix A 1-6) A deed dated Nov. 12, 1746 places an "old cellar", which would have belonged to one of Ann Pudeater's houses, as being on the lot now known as 24 1/2 Winter St. (book 90 page 168)

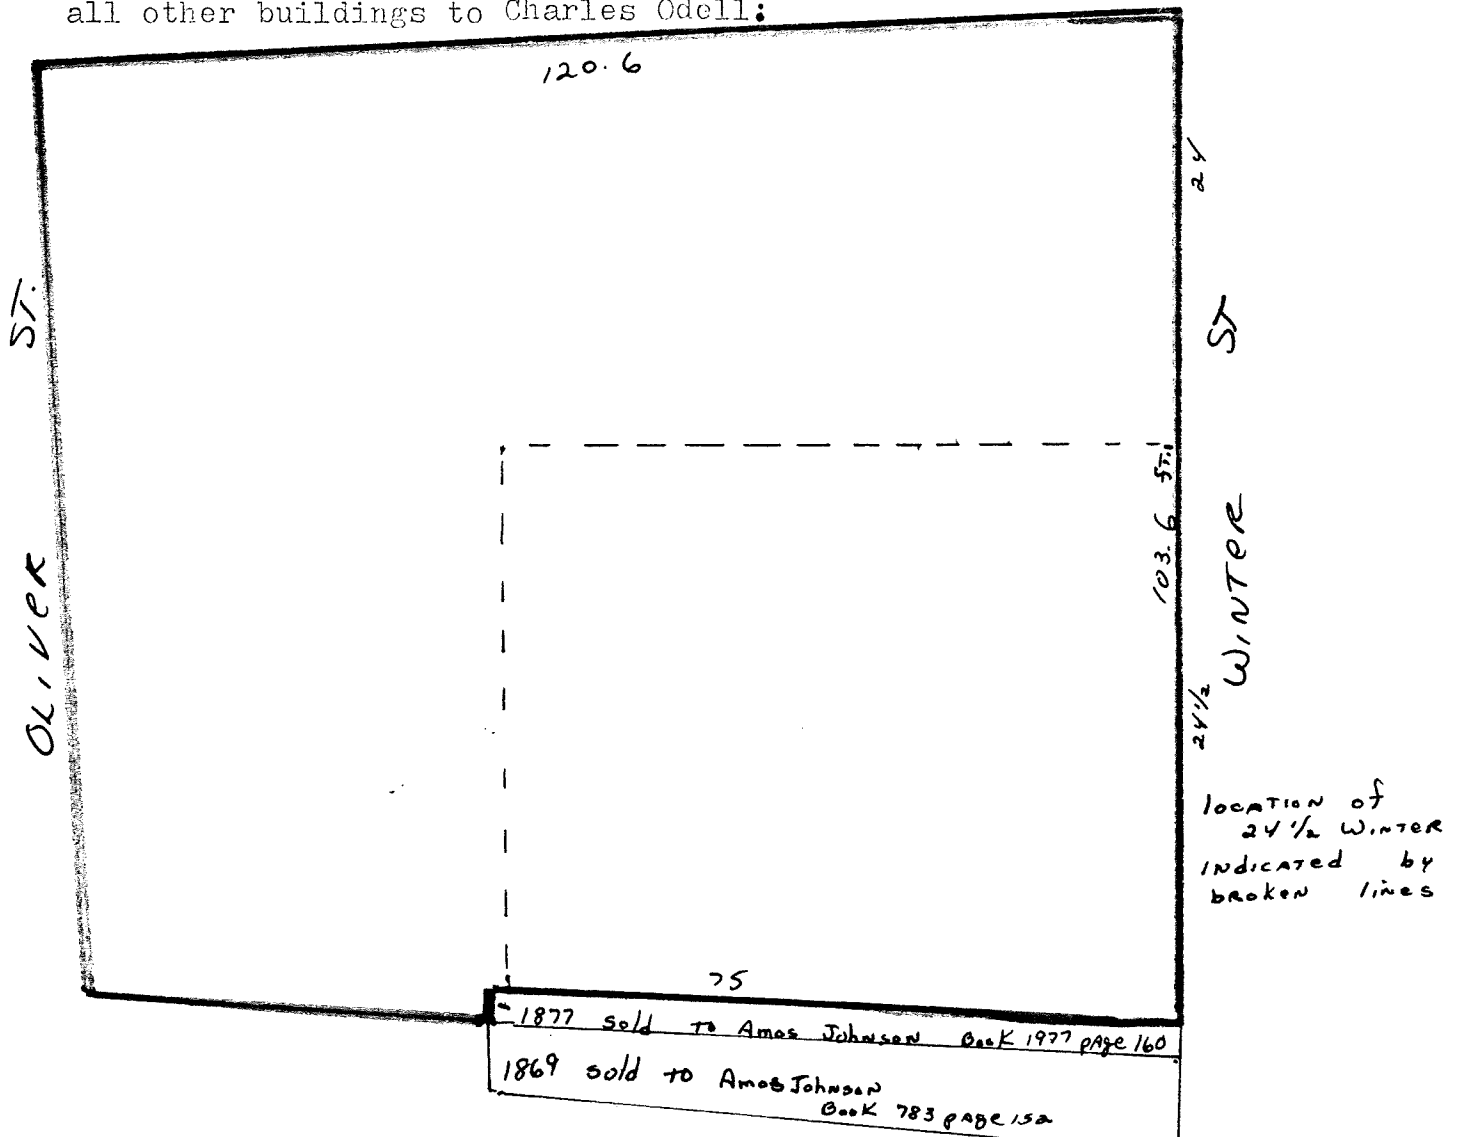

Captain John Bertram, one of Salem's most prominent citizens, purchased the land now known as 24 1/2 Winter St. by two deeds:

(The land formerly belonged to the owners of 6 Oliver St.)

Captain Bertram built his house at 24 Winter St. in 1844 and used the two parcels previously described as a garden spot. On May 19, 1855 John Bertram sold his dwelling house (24 Winter St.) and the land adjoining to John Jewett. (book 513 page 165)

John Jewett, cabinetmaker, and his wife Catherine made their home at 24 Winter St. using the adjoining land as a formal garden (the layout can be seen on the 1874 map). Mr. Jewett died on Feb. 28, 1874. The property, which then included 24 Winter St. and 6 Oliver St., was left in trust to his wife Catherine. After Catherine's death, the trustee Gilbert L. Streeter, sold on May 4, 1887, the land, dwelling houses and all other buildings to Charles Odell:

On May 13, 1887 a building permit was issued to Charles H. Odell to build a dwelling house for one family, 28' X 52', of 2½ stories with a "Swiss" roof. (Essex Institute, Salem Building Permits) This house is 24½ Winter St.

"Charles H. Odell was born in Salem in 1864, receiving his education at the high school in this city, upon leaving which he entered into partnership with his father, Charles Odell, in the real estate and insurance business." He later assumed complete management of the business having his office at 62 Washington St. (Salem and Environs 1626-1897, page 139)

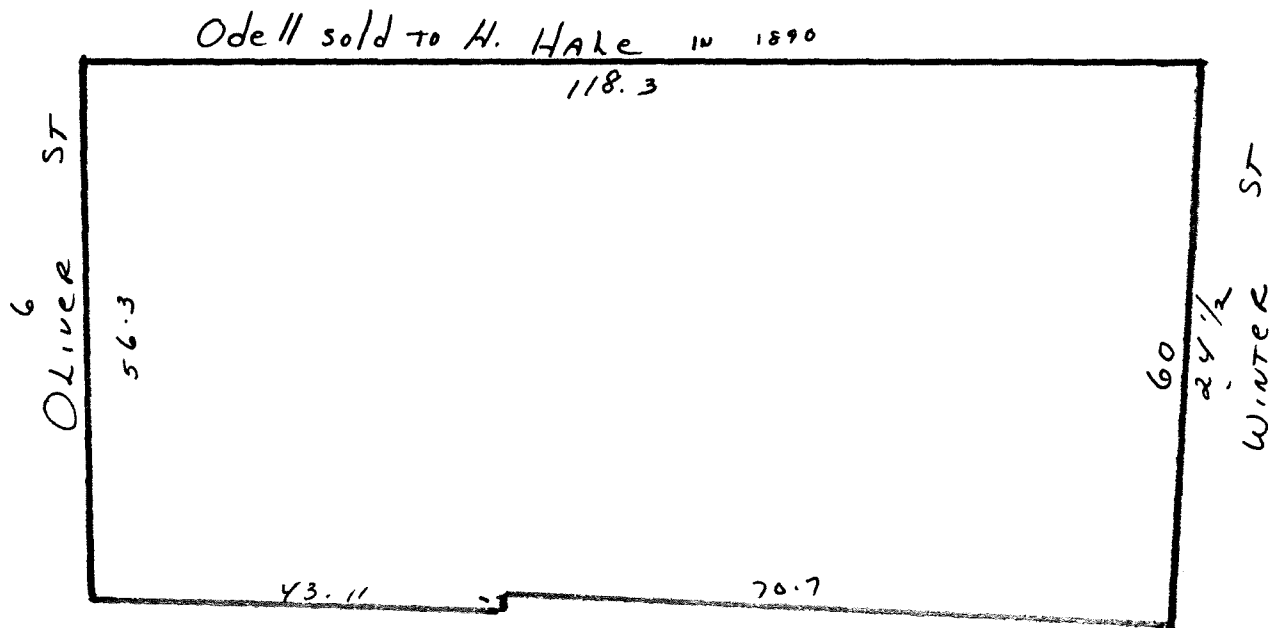

CHARLES H. ODELL.

The 1888 tax records show:

24 $\frac{1}{2}$  Winter St. - new house Charles H. Odell real estate broker
House value $4,500; 3,744 sq. ft. land value $1,400.

Charles Odell declared bankruptcy in 1899. Jeremiah T. Mahoney was appointed as trustee of the estate of Charles Odell. On June 6, 1899 Mr. Mahoney transferred the property title to Alice Odell wife of Charles:

Amos Johnson

The Odell family lived at 24 $\frac{1}{2}$  Winter St. and rented their other property at 6 Oliver St. to various tenants. The 1900 federal census gives a close look at the Odell household:

24 $\frac{1}{2}$  Winter St.

The Odells lived in the house until 1915 when they leased the house at 24½ Winter St. to E. H. Parker. The exact month Mr. Parker moved in is not listed but his departure is clearly noted:

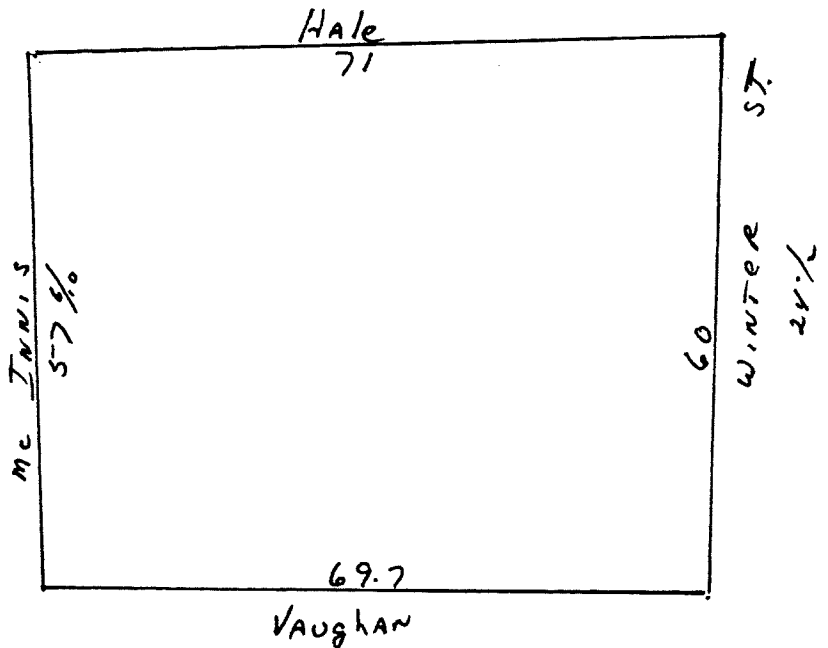

Salem Evening News Oct. 13, 1915

"TREASURER OF GAME CO. DEAD - Edward H. Parker Was Man Of Sterling Character, Leaves Widow, Son and Two Brothers

Edward H. Parker died at his home, 24½ Winter street, this morning having been ill for two weeks with grippe-pneumonia. Mr. Parker was treasurer of Parker Brothers and the eldest of the three brothers. He was the son of Capt. George A. Parker and was born July 28, 1855, in the old family house at the corner of Essex and Union streets. He subsequently resided in Medford and married in 1879 Miss Laura Foster, daughter of Hon. Joshua T. Foster, famous old time shipbuilder of Medford. He leaves beside his widow a son, Foster H. Parker of Chestertown, Maryland, and two brothers, Charles H. and George S. Parker. Salem loses in his death a man of sterling character and kindly heart."

The Odells moved back into 24½ Winter St. after Mr. Parker's death. On April 25, 1922 Charles H. and Alice F. Odell, in her own right, sold the land and dwelling to

William E. and Adelaide S. Haywood. "Meaning to convey the east portion of the premises conveyed by Jeremiah T. Mahoney in 1899." (book 2514 page 245)

William E. Haywood was the proprietor of Haywood's Market on Central St. for many years. William and Adelaide lived in the house at 24½ Winter St. for a short time and sold the property to their daughter-in-law Margaret K. Haywood, wife of Ralph W., on May 17, 1929. (book 2806 page 335)

Dr. Ralph W. Haywood was one of Salem's highly regarded members of the medical profession. He maintained a family practice before specializing in gynecology. Along with the late Dr. De Witt S. Clark, he was one of the last interns at the former Salem Hospital on Charter St. and one of the first interns after the new building was completed on Highland Ave. Dr. Haywood attended Salem schools and graduated from Bowdoin College, class of 1916, and Bowdoin College Medical School in 1917. During World War One, he served as a surgeon with the Army Medical Corps in France. (Salem Evening News clipping 1978 - Salem Hospital Public Relations)

In 1930 Dr. Haywood's sister-in-law, S. Lillian Haywood, painted a beautiful mural on the walls of the dining room. Old Derby Wharf with the Custom House and surrounding area graces the main wall, with the House of Seven Gables and Ropes garden depicted on the other walls. The upstairs front bedroom was also decorated by Mrs. Haywood as a nursery with Mother Goose characters gaily portrayed on each wall. (These are now covered with wallpaper)

S. Lillian Haywood was born in Salem the daughter of Chester and Sarah (Upton) Arey. She lived in the House of Seven Gables as a child and had "Clifford's" room as her bedroom. She told the story that when she was stricken with the mumps and confined to her bed, tourists still insisted on seeing the room and were marched through. Mrs. Haywood was also noted for her hand-painted china (samples at the Essex Institute) and worked with Sarah Symonds a well known Salem artist. However, her first love was that of puppeteer in which capacity she traveled throughout New England.

Among the memories of Mrs. Wesley Bevins, daughter of Dr. Ralph Haywood, was the sight of the circus parade as they marched down Winter St. heading for the circus grounds on lower Bridge St. The circus people would take note of the Doctor's offices on the route and would walk in to get treatment and advice. On one such occasion the "thin man" came into her father's office. This caused her father to snatch her up and be brought out of harm's way "for circus people carried strange diseases and were not the kind you would want to be near".

On Oct. 7, 1939 the title to the property was transferred from Margaret K. Haywood to Ralph W. Haywood. (book 3197 page 357) On Oct. 11, 1939 Ralph W. and Margaret K. Haywood sold the land and buildings to J. Robert Shaughnessy. "The same premises conveyed to Ralph W. Haywood by deed of Margaret K. Haywood." (book 3201 page 251)

Dr. Shaughnessy lived in the house and used a portion of the first floor for his medical practice. On Oct. 13, 1959 J. Robert Shaughnessy sold the land and buildings, at 24 $\frac{1}{2}$  Winter St., to Americo H. and Gilda R. Mazzarini. (book 4608 page 234)

After selling his home to the Mazzarinis, Dr. Shaughnessy moved to Marblehead but continued his medical practice at 24½ Winter St. until the Shaughnessy Rehabilitation Hospital, named in his honor, was completed. With the completion of the hospital Dr. Shaughnessy transferred his office to that facility.

Mr. and Mrs. Mazzarini are now the proud owners of this fine home which is pictured on page 59 of The Salem Handbook by Historic Salem Inc.

Notes: Reference to book and page are deed books at the Registry of Deeds. Probate numbers are cases at Probate Court. Both offices are located in the same building on Federal St. All maps in this report are not meant to be exact, just for illustration purposes.
