Here's a bit of the history of the house through word and deeds:

I have an original Warranty Deed that indicates there was a house on this parcel of land that was sold on December 19, 1910 by Lewis H Richards of Lynn, Ira G Taylor and his wife Sarah E Taylor of Salem and E Osgood Richards, also of Salem, to Paul N Chaput of Salem for "one dollar and other valuable considerations."

Then I have original mortgage papers showing that my maternal grandfather, Giuseppe Giunta (misspelled as Guinta on most documents), took out a $2,600 loan from Salem Co-operative Bank for that house on April 15, 1911.

I have another $600 mortgage between my grandfather and Paul N Chaput dated July 18, 1911 that indicates there were actually two mortgages from Salem Co-op totaling $3,200. This mortgage is stamped July 18, 1911 by the registry of Deeds and again on June 16, 1914 which is probably when it was paid off because the Salem Co-Op mortgage shows that theirs was discharged on June 13, 1914.

Unfortunately, the Great Salem Fire destroyed that house just days after my grandfather paid off the mortgage.

That takes us to this present house. We were always told that "your grandfather built the house". Whether that means he literally built it or had it built for him, I do not know. I assume it was a bit of both since he didn't have a load of money and probably worked on it to keep costs down. He may have employed friends and family from the old country. The present house has interior details like many houses in the area – I'm assuming some materials were supplied to people after the fire.

My grandfather was a gardener in Sicily who came here and worked as a caretaker for homes in Marblehead. He made wine in the cellar wine press which is literally built into the foundation of this house. Many other houses here have wine presses. During Prohibition the Salem Police looked away while wine was being produced by the many Italian families here, and then often came calling for a bottle or two.

I have original papers from Salem Five for a $3,500 mortgage dated Nov 25, 1916. That was paid off on May 25, 1927 and I have papers for another $3,500 mortgage taken out on June 25, 1927 that was discharged on October 2, 1985.

Long before 1985, in May of 1918, shortly after his new house was built, my grandfather was riding his bike up Lafayette. At the corner of Ocean, he was struck by a motorcyclist, smacked his head on a trolley rail and died on site. So, after struggling to get to America, buy a house, get his family over here and build a new house – he had but a couple years to enjoy it.

My grandmother was left with seven children. She spoke no English and was pregnant with my Mom at the time, who was subsequently born in the house in July of 1918. That whole clan grew up in this present house, mostly on the first floor, with occasional boarders on the second. Various other relatives and friends lived here when they came over from the old country or just needed a temporary stay. It was a crowded, lively and loving home for generations.

When my Mom got married, she and my Dad moved upstairs in the house where they raised my brother, sister and me. In 2006, when her sister Katherine died at 100 years old, she and my Dad moved downstairs. After returning from 30 years in New York City I moved in upstairs in 2017.

In 2016, my Mom died - in the same room she was born. She was the last of that Giunta generation.
