

The Rainbow Tallit

“Sometime in the 1950s, I was meditating on the midrash, “How did God create the world? He wrapped it in a robe of light and it began to shine” and I suddenly imagined a prayer-shawl that was like a rainbow of light with each color representing one of the sefirot and its corresponding day of creation.”

Zalman Schachter-Shalomi, A Hidden Light

“You go to the Holy Wall in Jerusalem, and you will see people wearing the ‘rainbow tallit’ I designed who have no idea where it came from. And if they had an idea, they might not wear it.”

Zalman Schachter-Shalomi, Wrapped in a Holy Flame
