Miss L. C. M. Terman: - ?

Most cordial friends;

I assure you it is with the most profound pleasure that, thoughts ever revealed to my dull and gloomy mind that I take the occasion to extend to you these present warm greetings. In coming home last evening I was indeed surprised and enthused over a message of which came as an echo from heaven inquiring as to my whereabouts. I am of the opinion that I am not equipped with the proper English and penmanship to pay my respect to such message in expression of words. But, it seems when that the world is most dark, and one has lost all hope in friends, and the "storm of gloom is raging", somewhere some place "a bit of sun" seems to peep in upon the "gloomy soul of despair", saying somewhere there's someone who would if they only knew send a few words which would console a lonely a lonely heart. Whereas to lift the veil of sadness from "a forgotten heart". It makes my manly pride leap with joy, to realize that my association and correspondence, with <sup>my</sup> little girl has not been vainly spent and yet leaves "sweet memories." No jewels to my estimation is as profound in valuation as friendship. Science has discovered many precious stones, which their value runs into millions, but, the "interwoven and binding friendship of human hearts" are greater still. For only of us that are blind to nature, could only see & appreciate what it gives unto us, the whole world would be happy. If I would have you to fully see my point of view I will paint it plainer. In life we as human place our valuation in people that we think we like and love dearly, but the maturity of time we find that we have been blind to the real offer of happiness which we all desire in life. However Miss L. C. M. I shall not tie your patience with such long missives at this time, I shall appreciate a card at anytime, I always am eager to hear from my friends, I cannot in my guess I will remain here during the fall. Give Mrs & Mr Jones. my regards also your beloved sisters. Will ring off for this time. Write and tell me (all?)

Yours very respectfully

Wesley Dyer
