

near their home. Mrs. Umansky had recently received a check for $33 from the Henry J. Perkins Company of Springfield in payment for berries. This was a part of the $107 that was stolen.

The state police, assisted by the local police, are doing everything in their power to locate the two Poles. One of the puzzling situations in the case is why the doors of the Umansky home were all locked and one door barricaded with a beer keg. Another question is how the murderers could have thrown the body of Mrs. Umansky into the well without removing the wooden part over the well. It would have been impossible to have thrown the body of Mrs. Umansky into the well if the wooden part had not first been removed. The top of the well had been carefully replaced and pains taken to lock all the doors of the house after the murder had been committed and the body thrown into the well.
