

Dedication

To the memory of

GABE CALDWELL WALKER

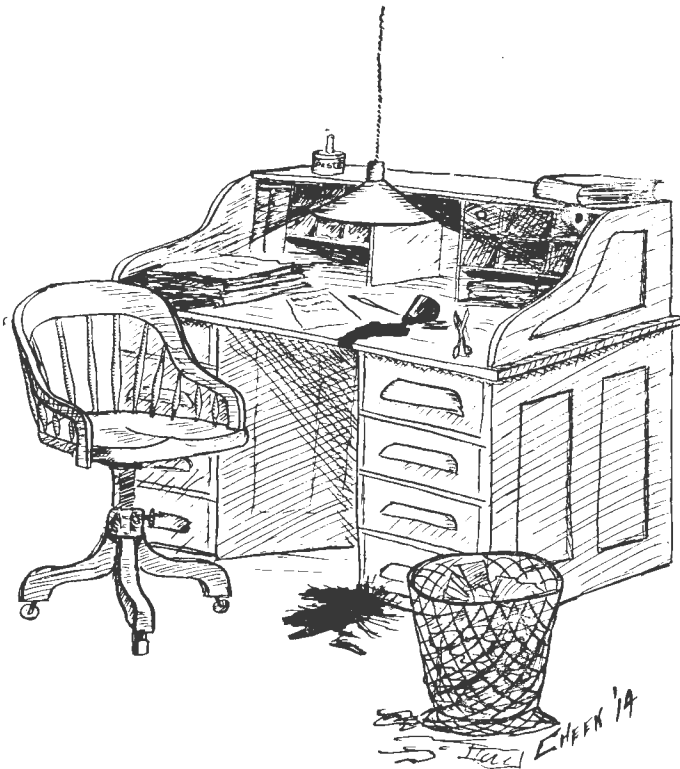

who passed away November 25, 1912, we his former classmates dedicate this volume, as an expression of the fondness and esteem which we held for him while he was yet one of us in the close association of those happy days at Centre, and as a token of these ever present reminiscences of our student life with which he was so intimately connected.

Foreword

“A book’s a book, although there’s nothing in it.” Be that as it may the construction of this particular book has not been an extremely unpleasant task, for in it we write about ourselves and we hope that it gives some idea of us and of our surroundings in these years which have meant so much; so much in the nourishment of hopes which may continue to elude us like filmy, ghostly figures; so much in the filling of our individual store-rooms of memory which must become for us ever a greater treasury as the years flit by; and, finally, so much in giving us some idea of how little we know, which idea leads us to beg the indulgence and charity of all of you, the readers, who peruse this, the twelfth volume of the CARDINAL AND BLUE.

“Friend, when you ope this book to read
The lines herein inscribed,
Please do not chide, but just concede
’Twas worth their while: they tried.”

Poem

EXEUNT '14, OR, WE HATE TO GO

Forgive me, O Byron,
O Wordsworth and Poe
For jotting down verses
That insult you so.

I'm rhyming perforce—
You wrote for fame.
My title is "EXEUNT"—
You've all done the same.

We're leaving Old Centre,
Her halls and her nooks:
The labs of her Hickey,
The math of her Crooks.

The thunder of Prexy,
The teachings of him
Whose voice was thrown downward
Crying loudly, "O, Jim!"

The shades of her maples,
Her learning-soaked walls
Her board walks so handy
Where we've had many falls.

New library and gym,
So full and complete.
The ravings of Smiley,
And the "Ja, ja" of Pete.

The roarings of Jacky
'Way back 'mong his books.
Long lectures of Flippy,
The terror (?) to crooks.

The haunts of Doc Rainey
Under whom we flunk (not),
And of Johnny, the Dean
An inveterate-what?

Sammy, the Roman—
Where is there another?
And last Coach O'Brien
Or "Pat," if you'd rather.

We love all the campus!
The trees every one
Hold for us some memory,
Some friendship begun.

Our heart's retrospections,
Our fondest hope's glow,
Have here with our friendships
Been shaped and turned so,

That whate'er sun warms us,
Tho' years lie between,
There'll be memories that bind us
To school and '14.

SIDNEY SMITH ARDERY, JR., K A

Paris, Ky.

Born at Paris, Ky., February 10, 1892; Prepared for college at Paris High School; Freshman and Sophomore football teams; Crucible Club; Ye Rounde Table; President Senior Class; K Δ Σ.

CHARLES BALDEN ARNOLD, Phrenocon
Danville, Ky.

Born at Perryville, Ky., March 27, 1893; Received earliest training at private school of Elmwood Academy, Perryville; Prepared for college at Centre College Academy; Entered Centre College in 1910; Charter member Phrenocon.

“SID”

“Well knows the moaning saxophone
The heel that Sidney slings.”

“Sid” has been a past master of the art of dancing for nobody knows how long. No wonder as he hails from “gay Paree.” But in spite of these propensities Sid has insisted for the last two years in classing himself among the women haters and has buried himself among the Kipps and acids of Hickdom. No such work or play, however, has interfered with the Beau Brummel effect of his personality nor with his heart-breaking tendency. “Oh, where is my darling ‘Sid’?”

“SKIBO”

“Besides he was a shrewd philosopher.”

“Skibo” is one of our members of whom we are justly proud. He is the only member of the class who has been around the world, having driven to school fourteen miles for seven years, making over twenty-five thousand miles. He took physics three years without losing either his mind or his religion, and as a mathematician he is unexcelled; always making exactly 75 in every test and exam. As a philosopher he is unsurpassed, having already merited the name of “Plato of the West End.”

FRANCIS JACOBS CHEEK, JR., ΣX

Danville, Ky.

Born at Paris, Ky., August 25, 1893; Prepared at Louisville Male High School; Entered Centre College in 1910; Deinologian representative in Ernst Debate, '10-'11; Cento Staff, '11-'12; Secretary of Deinologian, '12-'13; Assistant in Chemistry, '12-'13; Crucible Club; College Quartet; Y. M. C. A.; Dramatics; Art Editor of Cardinal and Blue; Life work undecided.

WILLIS GREEN CRAIG, ΣX

Danville, Ky.

Born at Pomona, California, December 23, 1892; Prepared at North Division High School, Chicago, Ills., and Northwestern Academy, Evanston, Ills.; Entered Centre College, '10; Assistant Business Manager Cardinal and Blue; Y. M. C. A.; Deinologian Literary Society; Vice-President, '13; Der Deutscher Verein; Carnival Director, '14; Manager Baseball team, '13; Manager "Tush Hogs" team, '13-'14; Freshman Baseball; Senior Minstrel Committee; Carnival Play, '13; Life Work, Business; $K \Delta \Sigma$.

"FANNY"

"A schoolboy's tale, the wonder of an hour."

The above means of designation does not denote the same thing that "Lizzie" does when applied to a young man. It results from a coupling of the subject's real name with a certain quality of precision which is almost housewifely in its thoroughness. To his ability and taste is due whatever of art the present volume may possess, for he can dream dreams and transfer them to drawing paper with even less hesitation than he can carve up a poor, unoffending cat for Doc Rainey. Francis can "roll 'em" or "bum 'em" with equal eclat and much frequency, but is very careful lest his basso profundo be injured. A man of many long stories. Hence the quotation.

"GRUBE"

"When you do dance, I wish you a wave o' the sea that you might ever do nothing but that."

Our friend "Grube" is neither Argentine nor Spanish, but he is very original with the tango nevertheless. He hops crips now and then in college and even dares occasionally to swap compliments with Doc Rainey, in whose courses he sharks. In the old days when the Tammany system of politics was still extant, "Grube" held various responsible positions, but since then he has devoted himself to his histrionic talents, his pipe and the pleasing occupation of rushing visitors.

RUDOLPH PETER GILCHER, Phrenocon
Danville, Ky.

Born March 26, 1892, at Danville, Ky.; Prepared at Centre College Academy; Entered Centre College, '10; Secretary and Treasurer of Freshman Class; Secretary of Sophomore German Club; Vice-President of Junior Class; Der Deutscher Verein; Y. M. C. A.; Life work undecided.

JOSEPH HOPPER, K A.

Stanford, Ky.

Born June 1, 1892, at Stanford, Ky.; Prepared at Stanford High School; Entered Sophomore Class of Centre College in '11; Vice-President Deinologian, '11-'12; Secretary Y. M. C. A., '12-'13; Ye Rounde Table; President Y. M. C. A., '13-'14; Winner June Oratorical, '13; President Deinologian, '13; Treasurer Senior Class; Associate Editor of Annual; Salutatorian; Expects to study for the ministry.

"JOE"

"I am the Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end, the first and the last."

Brother of George, and, like his brother, possesses the happy faculty of "getting by." Has ministerial aspirations, believing himself the guardian angel of the spiritual welfare of the college. President of the Y. M. C. A.—"a burning and shining light." As steward of the Rounde Table, has succeeded in ruining the digestion of all the members of that worthy body. Made 98 in Philosophy of Religion, that fact alone being sufficient to condemn him in the eyes of all honest men. Like many another minister is "Spurned by the young and hugged by the old." Reminds one of the ancient proverb, "to the pure all things are impure." A hard student and easily graduates in three years.

"Love seldom haunts the breast where learning lies."

A loyal admirer of Old Centre, who believes that anything connected with college is unsurpassable. His sole visits to K. C. W. have been in the interest of music,—a fact that assures him a position in the gallery of "rarae aves." Has never been guilty of a flirtation, but has always been devoted steadfastly to the pursuit of knowledge. A good, hard student is Rudolph, but leap year is his sole chance for matrimony. His missing a class is as rare as Prexy's attending chapel. It is to be hoped that he will become reconciled to the fact that a bald pate is the price one must pay for great knowledge.

JOSIAH ELLIS LEE, B © II

Covington, Ky.

Born at Covington, Ky., January 4, 1893; Prepared for college at Covington High School; Entered Centre College, '11; Varsity football, '11-'12-'13; Crucible Club, '12-'13; Class baseball, '12-'13; Annual Staff.

HENRY MORRISON McCLASKEY, Φ Δ ©

Boston, Ky.

Born at Boston, Ky., October 16, 1893; Prepared at Boston High School and Central University Academy; Student Council, '10-'11; Captain Freshman baseball team, '11; President Athletic Association, '12-'13; Vice-President Senior Class; K Δ Σ.

"JOE"

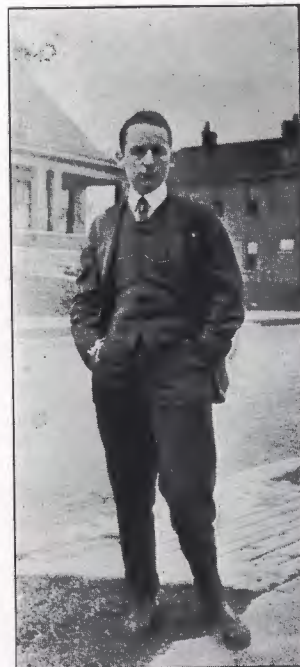

"You may as well forbid the sea for to obey the moon, as or by oath, remove, or council, shake the fabric of his folly."

In addition to his stubbornness, "Joe" is the only person who was ever on the "inside" of things at K. C. W. He is the legal adviser of "Johnny" and can always tell what church the girls will go to two weeks in advance. The only time he ever made a false prophecy was April Fool's Day and that's perfectly natural. He is studying voice at present in order to be companionable to one of his friends "up yonder." He graduated in three years in order to graduate the same time she did.

"MIKE"

"It warms me, it charms me to mention but her name; it heats me and beats me and sets me all aflame."

"Mike" is known better as "Flat Foot" and is famous on account of his sweet Irish tenor and his pure devotion to her. He makes frequent visits to see her, writes often and often pays extra postage to get sixteen-page letters from her. His favorite professor is Dr. Claassen, under whom he has made his best grades while in college. His favorite pastime is rocking and singing his foot to sleep. He expects to enter business—scientific farming at Boston. He was recently elected Mayor of Boston by a vote of 4 to 1 over W. L. Newman, who promised to put up a better race. Since "Mike" has been Mayor of Boston a new station has been built and all local trains stop on flag signal.

ROBERT BRIGGS McDOWELL, K A
Danville, Ky.

Born June 5, 1894, at Danville, Ky.;
Prepared at Centre College Academy;
Entered Centre College, '10; Y. M. C.
A.; Society Editor of Cento, '13-'14;
Secretary of Senior Class; Member of McDowell Club.

SAMUEL BOOKER McDOWELL, Σ A E
Danville, Ky.

Born February 17, 1894, at Danville, Ky.; Preparatory education at Hogsett Military Academy and Centre
College Academy; Entered Centre College, '10; Freshman football and Sophomore football; Y. M. C. A. Cabinet, '13-'14; President Deinologian
Literary Society, '14; Crucible Club.

"BOB"

"There is no pleasure like the pain of being loved and loving."

"Bob" is one of the survivors of the McDowell quartette and wishes to have it known that he passed Greek. "Bob" is affectionately inclined and has always been a conspicuous "treat" to the Caldwell girls. He is also a journalist, having contributed many articles to the "Farm Gazette" on "Home Making." "Bob" is going to take a post-graduate course at Princeton next year, after which he expects to settle down on the green banks of Salt River and make a home and love and be loved.

"SAM"

"He that complies against his will is of his own opinion still."

"Sam" is the larger half of the twin, the largest man in the Senior Class, accepted economic authority on "graft," ardent Y. M. C. A. worker and an eternal searcher of argument. He is the sole survivor of the McDowell triumvirate, and some politician, too; it was "Sam" who smashed the steam roller in Deinologian and was elected president by a huge majority over his nearest competitor. "Sam" has always spurned the fair sex and believes that any attention shown them would impair the accomplishment of his life's work. We predict a brilliant career for him because everyone loves a good-natured man.

WILLIAM LEE NEWMAN, Phrenocon
Boston, Ky.

Born near Boston, Ky., November 26, 1893; Prepared at Boston Graded School and Centre College Academy; Entered Centre College in 1910; Freshman football, baseball and basket ball teams; Varsity football, '11-'12-'13; Captain football team, '13; Varsity basket ball, '12, '14; Vice-President Sophomore Class, '11-'12; Secretary Chamberlain Literary Society, '11; Vice-President Athletic Association, '12-'13; Der Deutscher Verein, '12-'13; Charter member Phrenocon; Annual Staff.

JAMES THORNTON NORRIS, B © II
Augusta, Ky.

Born at Augusta, Ky., December 30, 1893; Prepared at Augusta High School; Entered Centre College, '10; Freshman Historian; Freshman and Sophomore football teams; President Chamberlain Literary Society, '13; President Ye Rounde Table, '13-'14; President Junior Class, '12-'13; Basket Ball squad, '13-'14; Cento Staff, '12-'13, '13-'14; Editor-in-Chief Cardinal and Blue, '14; Vice-President Y. M. C. A., '13-'14; Student Assistant in English, '12-'13 and '13-'14; Class Poet.

"BILL"

"There's such a charm in melancholy
I would not if I could, be gay."

The champion sticker of us all. He has stuck around the academy until he gained the cognomen of "Prep." He stuck until he entered college and this name left him and then he stuck some more until he made all of the teams around college he wanted to. Made his reputation as a student early enough in his career to be able to get by for the remainder of the time without brain fever. Famous also as resident and assistant in "Pep's" pony stable. Was fortunate enough to get only one of Cupid's arrows in his anatomy. In this cast he has proved that "absence makes the heart grow fonder—not."

"JIMMY"

"When my lips meet thine, thy very soul is wedded into mine."

"Jimmy" has a habit of being kissed by all the girls unaware. This is accounted for by the fact that he is by nature a poet. "Jimmy" has been assistant in English for two years and his highest ambition is to look like Woodrow Wilson and be like Dr. Thomas. "Jimmy" has been justly named the "white hope," having successfully defended the basket ball team from the angry mob of spectators at Georgetown. He expects to take a course under Dr. Henry Van Dyke and occupy the chair of English at Centre College when Dr. Thomas becomes wedded or "Prof. Emeritus."

ROY IRVINE PEPPER, Phrenocon
Paris, Ky.

Born near Paris, Ky., November 3, 1892; Prepared at Paris Academy; Entered Centre College, '10; Class baseball, '10-'11 and '11-'12; Treasurer of Chamberlain Literary Society, '11-'12; Der Deutscher Verein, '12-'13, '13-'14; Charter member of Phrenocon.

GEORGE LÉCONTE RAMSEY, B © II
Raleigh, N. C.

Born March 3, 1893, at Clinton, La.; Prepared at Centre College Academy; Entered Centre College, '10 Class football team, '10, '11; Varsity football, '12; Track team, '13; Class baseball, '11; Assistant Calendar Editor of Cardinal and Blue, '14; Class Grumbler; Life work undecided.

"PEP"

"Sentimentally I am disposed to harmony, but organically I am incapable of a tune."

Chiefly known for his devotion to the filthy weed. Believes earnestly that "the man who smokes thinks like a sage, and acts like a Samaritan." The Society for the Abatement of the Smoke Nuisance had to give him up as a hopeless case. His efforts to sing inspire his friends to pity, if not with awe. His universe consists of pipes and tobacco revolving around a pool table as the center—an earnest devotee of the cue. His training on the farm well fitted him for the position of Grand High Master of the Ponies, which he has filled very successfully since his arrival at Danville—he is an accepted authority on Hinds and Noble products.

"PAT"

"A glass is good, and a lass is good,
And a pipe to smoke in cold weather;
The world is good and the people are good,
And we're all good fellows together."

"Pat" early fell a victim "to the light that lies in woman's eyes," his chief trouble being to make up his mind whether it was she or her sister. Does not have to wear the shamrock to proclaim to the world that he's Irish. Expresses himself as willing to undergo almost any torture, but draws the line at Joe Lee's violin playing. His association with Rogers has got him into the habit of trying to sing occasionally, but so far it has not resulted fatally. Has quit smoking 386,472 times—will probably reach the half million mark within the next two years. Through some mistake came out to football practice once on time and the coach had to be carried off the field.

THOMAS HUNTON ROGERS, Φ Δ Θ

Danville, Ky.

Born January 20, 1895, in Fayette County, Ky.; Prepared at Centre College Academy; Entered Centre College, '10; Winner Freshman Scholarship, '11; Secretary Y. M. C. A., '10-'11; Winner Sophomore Latin Watch, '12; Cento Staff, '11-'12, '12-'13 and '13-'14; Der Deutscher Verein, '12-'13; Represented Deinologian in Oratorical Contest, '13; Ye Rounde Table; President Crucible Club, '14; Cheer Leader, '13-'14; Business Manager Cardinal and Blue, '13-'14; Class Giftorian; Life work undecided.

JOHN LEO SALMON, Phrenocon
Madisonville, Ky.

Born at Earlington, Ky., April 13, 1892; Prepared at Madisonville High School; Entered Centre College, '11; Vice-President Chamberlain Literary Society, '12-'13; Treasurer, '13-'14; Assistant in Modern Language Department, '12-'13 and '13-'14; Sophomore Prize; Der Deutscher Verein; Cento Staff, '13-'14; Ye Rounde Table; Charter member of Phrenocon.

"HUNTON"

Let the singing singers
With vocal voices, most vociferous,
In sweet vociferation, out-vociferize,
Even sound itself.

Rogers—lexicographer, cheer-leader, songster of note, if the hideous din which issues ever and anon from his physiognomy can be said to bear the slightest resemblance to a note. As a chemist, has won immortal renown by the discovery of metallic "anatomy." Star chorus man of the "Mikado," even Danny at the hospital having expressed his appreciation of Rogers' efforts. Content to rest on his laurels won in Prep and the first two years in college, he has devoted most of his last two years to his musical education. His cheery voice resounding over the football field, and his advice to the team to "detain 'em, Central," have had a great deal to do with the games we didn't win.

"LEO"

"The true knight of learning—the world hold him dear,
Love bless him, joy crown him, God
speed his career."

You just naturally can't keep J. Leo from his book, and, strange to say, he remains plump and cute in spite of his fasting and the mid-night oil. He is very prone to tell the Profs., and especially Peter, just the point at which they err. But why not? He studies harder than any of them! If he can keep from being pugnacious with Freshmen he will probably be connected with education all of his life. In just what capacity we can't say.

WILLIAM FORREST STEVENSON, Σ A E

Born 1892 at Carrs, Ky.; Prepared at Millersburg Military Academy, Ky.; Entered Centre College, '09; Class football and baseball; Deinologian; Business Manager Cento, '13-'14.

“BRODIE”

“Alas! the love of woman! It is known
To be a lovely and a fearful thing.”

'Tis true, indeed, that bit of verse, as Steve will tell you, for he has borne that far-away look of his for many days. Has been in college longer than any of us, although this was due to a protracted stay at home. Is, therefore, able to tell better than anyone just how much we have all improved. Reads and writes much poetry. He destroys much of the latter, but we have been able to preserve a little for this volume. “Brodie” can sing also!

“KING”

“His intelligence seized on a subject; his eloquence illuminated it.”

If there is anything that “King” can't do in his own way we have been unable to find it. When Roosevelt was preparing for his come-back, King said, “Here am I,” and here he was gathering votes. When a debate or an argument or a basket ball game is on docket “King” is right out in the front row claiming victory, and usually getting it. We predict for him a career more meteoric than that of Teddy, his political patron. For “King” has, in addition to forensic ability, a certain ingratiating way with the powers that be. Witness his friendship with Keith of K. C. W.

ALEXANDER MCEWAN TODD, K A

Born at Frankfort, Ky., June 21, 1893; Prepared at Frankfort High School; Cento Staff; Editor-in-Chief Cento, '13-'14; Sophomore Prize; Junior Prize; Carnival Committee, '13-'14; Chairman Carnival Committee, '14; Ye Rounde Table; Historian Senior Class; Associate Manager Cardinal and Blue; Expects to be a politician.

GEORGE FRANCIS TURNER, Phrenocon
Campbellsville, Ky.

Born at Campbellsville, Ky., September 21, 1893; Prepared at Buchanan Collegiate Institute, Campbellsville; Entered Kentucky Wesleyan College, '10; President and Secretary of Philomathean Literary Society there; Entered Central University in '12; Treasurer of Junior Class, '12-'13; President Chamberlain, '13-'14; Charter member Phrenocon.

"CROKUS"

"May each true woman shun his sight, for fear his fumes should choke her."

"Crokus" tries to look like "Uncle Joe" Cannon. He wears a cigar morning, noon and night. He is also a scholar of no mean ability, but a journalist by profession. He is the first editor who has made the Cento a newsy (?) paper and self-supporting—to the extent of supporting himself. He is said to be quite a "stunner" in society in the Capital City, whence he hails, but while in Danville he prefers the company of McIntyre and the recreation of college politics.

"PINKY"

"Full many a flower is born to blush
unseen
And waste its sweetness on the desert air."

Many a maiden fair would give much coin for those cheeks of Gawdge's. But no one can buy them because they're natural, dawn color, rose tint and all. They bloomed upon us from Kentucky Wesleyan in the fall of '12 and ever since then Gawdge has been teasing the piano every morning in chapel. As full of jokes as statistics Gawdge is a good fellow to listen to and besides a student of ability. Gawdge is now engaged in teaching the youngest idea of the present Centre College dynasty how to conjugate amo.

RICHARD VEECH WOOD, B. C. II

Louisville, Ky.

Born October 26, 1893, at Louisville, Ky.; Prepared for college at Louisville Male High School; Entered Centre College, '11; Treasurer of Crucible Club, '14; Y. M. C. A.; Assistant in Physics, '12-'13 and '13-'14; Associate Editor of Cardinal and Blue.

THE SENIOR —

"DUKE"

"Free-livers on a small scale, who are prodigal within the compass of a guinea."

First won renown by refusing flatly to invest in a Senior cane and watch guard. Also conspicuous as a stellar German student—evidence, his friend "nick war." Retreats ever and anon into the depths of Science Hall, where he and Smiley are heard to engage in earnest conversations as to the effect of the ultra-violet rays upon the rate of digestion of pork chops. Heartily assured Peter that he was a gentleman, in spite of all evidence to the contrary. Always faultlessly gowned, keeping up with the latest from gay Patee. Is a "fusser" in more ways than one, his fretting and fuming over the inconsistencies of life being one of his chief occupations.

Senior History

We have arrived. As we come to the end, we look back over the four years behind us and something akin to sorrow creeps into our souls, for happy have been those four brief periods of time. As we stand ready to take the plunge into the endless pool of life, we recall with pride our achievements; with pleasure our social circles; and with renewed determination our failures—all the spice of life and “the makin’ of the man.” We sometimes wonder whether we have made the most of our opportunities, and in moments of despair, fear lest we have cast away those four years, but in the light of hope and ambition, we realize that our four years at Central were not in vain, but are the most valuable of our lives, and a heritage to which no monetary value can be attached. Nevertheless, dear as it is to us, we must break away. Old circles will be broken, friendships parted by fate, and our class will be scattered to the four winds of the earth, but always in each heart shall glow that fond remembrance of Danville, and Central, of thee.

We entered in the autumn days of 1910, fifty-three in number, with our hearts full of hope and our heads full of wonderment as to what was ahead of us. According to that time-honored custom, we were soon rounded up by the sophomores, and in the spotlight of the streets we were made to “wrestle with temptation,” “scramble like eggs,” etc., until our greedy captors were satisfied. Our class basket ball team was a pennant winner, following up the illustrious career of our football team. C. W. Lassing was our first president, and under his leadership we progressed nicely. The winter months passed slowly, but all the while a spirit brewed silently that meant death to the sophomores in the flag-rush. This year our class furnished the football team with two men, Wingo and White, whose names need only mentioning to recall their prowess. Bruce later starred on the basket ball team, while we were well represented on the baseball team by Lafon, Lassing, Wingo, and Coleman. Fleming was the long-winded man of the class and showed up well at track.

The next year we returned somewhat diminished in numbers, but yet, dauntless in spirit and full of enthusiasm. With the title of Sophomores, we made a little more noise, and people seemed to consider us a little more. The Freshmen were soon well attended to and then beaten in football. The routine of college work filled most of the winter months until the flag-rush came off and after a night of hard fighting the Freshmen were all tied and the laurels rested with the Sophs. Life became more easy and enjoyable as the spring days came on, and Carnival came to crown all the happiness. Among our athletes that year were Coleman, Lassing, Fleming, Ramsey, and Swope, all attaining distinction in their several lines of athletics. Our gallant helmsman during this year was Mr. Hunter Coleman, a right able man, as was later proved by his election as King of the Carnival.

In the balmy days of 1912, we came back twenty-five in number. Some new ones had joined us, but only a few. Though considerably decreased in numbers, we had that same fighting spirit and go. From the start the class went well, ever bent with intense interest upon the goal which they were so rapidly approaching. In the beginning of the year, Mr. James T. Norris took up the helm and it was a joy to see him steer the staunch little bark to safety over the turbulent waters. Now, too much dignified to deal in such trivialities as inter-class football games, hazing, flag-rushes, etc., their time was given over to more worthy things, such as literature and scholarship. Hopper and Swope, our bright and shining light in Oratory, brought down laurels on their own heads, and fame to the class. Newman burst forth in football and played a hard and steady game. Lassing and Coleman still sped around the path of the diamond. Things too numerous to mention were accomplished, and for lack of space I shall let my pen be silent. Suffice to say that as a unit the Class of 1914 shone with a brilliance in college affairs and bade fair to be a large and imposing one.

The fall of 1913 saw twenty-one of our number rally to the flag. This is the largest class in some eight years and we are justly proud of it. Under the able leadership of Mr. S. S. Ardery we have made a showing that we hope in the eyes of others is creditable. Months of labor and sweat have been expended to produce this book which will tell you more about us than I can. Take it and judge us thereby.

As I have said above we have arrived and here ends the career of a sturdy class as a unit to be taken up by each individual and the best possible accomplished. Let us hope, yes, let us say that it will be brilliant in each case: the kind that will make all proud to say "He was a member of the Class of Nineteen Fourteen."

Junior History

A class undefeated! How many classes can boast of this peculiar honor? But so it stands written. The Class of '15 with 15 men has thrice risked its laurels and thrice has risen with the smile of victory. As we look back to the year when we were supposed to be the under-dog, we find that by our football victory over the Sophomores we were at once recognized as a great factor in the college's future achievement. And in the flag-rush, out-numbered and with everything against us we managed with the aid of five of the best men of Centre to plant the flag of '15 high on the wreck of the gymnasium and to guard it until the sun arose.

After vacation we returned to Centre. Some of the familiar faces were absent, but undaunted we faced the trials of a Sophomore Class and with determination succeeded. Acting in our new role of commander instead of commanded, we initiated the Freshmen into the secrets of subordination. And in the spring, though again overwhelmed in numbers, we easily managed by our well-laid plans to securely tie and guard all but a few of '16, and these few were easily conquered. The sun, rising on March 15th, again saw the pennant with "15" written upon it hanging high in the flag-tree.

Our present year has been a great success. Standing high in classes and socially we are in a position to promise to our friends and professors a class which will not only be seen but also heard in after years. But as we think of our first rush and of the two splendid victories in our first year, our hearts are saddened and our eyes grow dim with tears. Our friend and fellow-classman, our one big hero and president of our Freshman Class, has within the last few months been called in death. We cannot eulogize. Everyone knows personally or by repute of "Skeet" Wilhelm. His was a short though worthy career. He stood always with his class and college in soul and body. And we pass to our last year in college and to our life's career, we will never forget our former chum who has gone to the beyond ahead of us.

Sophomore History

In September, 1913, '16 returned to college as Sophomores. In short order we formulated plans whereby we successfully humiliated and subdued the Class of 1917. Festivities were begun the first Saturday afternoon of the year with a few manœuvres on Main Street. The Freshmen, much to their own chagrin and to the mirth of the townspeople, obeyed every order and mandate of the Class of '16. That evening the Freshmen received at our hands their first taste of real college life. By midnight the fun was over and '16 had proven her worth.

Soon after this the Class held the election of officers. T. J. Turley, Jr., was elected President; R. B. Dunn, Vice-President; J. R. Benika, Secretary-Treasurer, and R. W. Gallaher, Historian.

The Class now so strongly organized at once began to lay plans for a Hallowe'en reception. This event was a wonderful success and proved to the Freshmen that they had not been forgotten.

On November 8th, '16 won the annual Fresh-Soph Football game by the score of 6 to 0. This game was the result of a challenge from the Freshmen, as the Sophomores had no desire to further humiliate the Class of 1917.

Time flies and so it did with '16. Before we realized this, Spring arrived and it was time for the annual flag-rush. Greatly outnumbered and thus severely handicapped by the Freshmen, the Class resolved to use strategy in order to preserve their dignity and honor. In some inconceivable manner the Freshmen became aware of our intentions and a battle royal took place in the fourth floor tower room of Breck Hall in which all but five Sophomores were tied up and stored away. But thanks to the coolness and bravery of Turley and Crockett the flag of '16 waved in the breeze on the top of Main Building as the sun arose to greet the seventeenth of March, 1914.

We would not have you believe that this is merely a history of a struggle for mastery between classes. '16 has been represented by her members on all the athletic teams of the college, in literary and society circles, in scholastic attainments and in politics. Polk, Turley, Brown, Gardner, Cloyd won athletic honors in their Freshman year. White and Bethurum tied for the Freshman Prize for scholarship. Three of the seven assistantships in college belong to '16. We are also ably represented on the Carnival Committee by two men, by one man on the Ernst Debate and by one man in the Kentucky Intercollegiate Oratorical Contest.

We might mention others but space does not permit, and now at the close of our second year of college life we cannot help but realize that the Class of '16 is an important factor in student life and activity at Centre College of Central University of Kentucky.

Freshman History

They came from the regions afar,
 From the north, south, east and west
 To see the courses of knowledge
 And to enter Centre College.
 Their numbers, the greatest in years,
 Mounted to half an hundred mark,
 And as they filed into chapel
 Each Junior and Senior remarked,
 "They'll surely win the flag-rush."
 Refined in appearance and speech,
 They stood before the eyes of all:
 The Freshman Class with purpose true
 To do their best and better, too.

Received in the highest of style,
 By the joyous Sophomores,
 Each Freshman shall never forget
 Those two eventful days of old —
 The Thirteenth and old Hallowe'en.
 The fun was over for a while;
 The classmen to their books returned
 And left the outside world to rest.
 The class was strongly organized —
 G. C. Thompson was president,
 Vice-president was W. Pidgeon,
 "Bill" Cotton held the finances,
 "Tom" Lockett spoke the history.
 But now the year is at an end,
 And as they look across the past,
 O'er trials, pleasures and the like,
 They wonder how they could have been
 The Freshmen, green and true to self.
 To them the college gave its best
 Of everything it had to give
 For mind, the soul and the body —
 A love for dear old Centre lies
 Within the bounds of Freshmen true ---
 Not only does it lie so still,
 But echoes back from hill to hill
 'Till all the boys come flowing in.

Young Men's Christian Association

MARCH, 1913 — MARCH, 1914

During the past year the Y. M. C. A. at Centre College has accomplished much, although its activity has been limited to some extent because of the incompleteness of the Y. M. C. A. quarters in the new gymnasium. The completion of this building means a marked increase in the power and efficiency of the organization, and the prospect was never more bright for the association to go forward "still achieving, still pursuing."

The president of the association was its representative at the summer students' conference held at Black Mountain, N. C., June 17-26, 1913. Professor Crooks, Cotton, '15, Sweets, '16, and Lyons, '17, attended the Student Volunteer Convention at Kansas City during the Christmas holidays. Due largely to the enthusiasm which they brought back with them was the organization of three mission study groups with a total enrollment of twenty-four. These classes meet on Sunday afternoons. The text used is the "New Era in Asia," by Sherwood Eddy. A number of mission talks have been given in the Sunday Schools by different students.

For a few days in February, Dr. J. Beveridge Lee, pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church of Philadelphia, visited the college and held a number of meetings and special conferences for the benefit of the students. He dealt with the vital problems of the Christian life in their relation to the college student in such a clear, convincing way as to make a lasting impression upon the whole student body.

The annual Y. M. C. A. Reception given to the young ladies of the Kentucky College for Women was held in Science Hall this year. The hearty co-operation of the ladies of Danville and the college authorities caused the occasion to be one of the most pleasant social events of the season.

The Y. M. C. A. Handbook presented to the student body at the beginning of the session was a very attractive little booklet containing much valuable information not only about the Y. M. C. A., but college activities in general. It was especially useful to the new students.

The work of the club this year has closely followed the plans of last year and the second year has been a very successful continuance of the first. Journal reports, biographical sketches, symposiums on topics of current interest, have consisted in the major part of the programmes. The attendance and interest have been good throughout the year. Among others the work of Maisson, Liebig and Kebule has been taken up and studied fully. To further interest in all matters chemical, both theoretical and applied, has been consistently our aim, and we believe that thus far our efforts have been attended with notable success.

Chamberlain History

It was eighty-six years ago, in the year 1828, that a body of Centre College students organized themselves into a society for the purpose of acquiring a greater efficiency in oratory, in debate and in other forms of literary activity. "The Chamberlain Philosophical and Literary Society" was named in honor of Rev. Jeremiah Chamberlain, the first president of the college. Encouraged by the college authorities and fostered by a lively spirit of interest and rivalry on the part of its members, the first literary society west of the Alleghenies grew in numbers and importance as the years passed. At one time its membership numbered sixty-six and such names as the Hon. Adlai Stevenson, the Hon. John M. Harlan, the Hon. James B. McCreary, the Hon. J. C. S. Blackburn, and the Rev. Willis Green Craig are on its long and illustrious honor roll.

The present year has been an especially successful one for Chamberlain. It seems that the enthusiasm and spirit which for so long made the society an important factor in college life, is again procuring for her her former prestige. There are at present almost twenty members in the organization and general improvement is seen in the regular exercises and conduct of business. In the annual public contests Chamberlain has also come to the front. The Ernst Debate resulted in a signal victory over the sister society. Messrs. Swope, '14, and Cox, '13, of Chamberlain, received first and second places. Mr. Boggs '15, of Deinologian, received third place, and Mr. Bethurum, '16, of Chamberlain, received fourth place. In the Twenty-second Oratorical, Mr. Boggs, of Deinologian, received first place and Messrs. Swope and Chebithes, '17, of Chamberlain, received second and third places.

With her present splendid material and the new members that this year's successes should bring, with a commodious and well-appointed hall, and with a valuable library of over a thousand volumes, the "Chamberlain Philosophical and Literary Society" is equipped to take a place of great importance in the life of Centre College next year. A great past is behind her; a greater future, let us hope, is before her.

J. LEO SALMON, '14, Historian

History of The Deinologian Literary Society

Although three score and ten years have long since passed over the venerable head of dear old Deinologian she still flourishes in a hale and prosperous old age, and each year refills her repleted ranks with buoyant youth and unlimited resources. For although we cling with just pride to those who have gone out to make Deinologian's name one honored in the big, wide world, we will consider the past but a moment and think of the time that is now.

Among our number who have aided in our present success we cannot fail to recognize Mr. Samuel D. Boggs, one of this year's debating team, who won the Ernst Debate and also carried off the honors in the February Twenty-second Oratorical Contest.

What lies in the future can be predicted only by what we can see in the present. A healthy, earnest, studious and capable membership assures us that the old age of Deinologian will be a prosperous and happy one.

The fact that credit is granted for literary society lends to the activities of literary societies a further responsibility which Deinologian has not failed to appreciate and as long as the present spirit continues the quality and character will be that which assures to old Centre alumni able and willing to speak her praises and proclaim her honors.

With an enrollment of twenty-four who are not only enrolled but attendants, there is no cause for pessimism in literary circles. Our sister society, Chamberlain, is in as flourishing a condition as she has been for years. Then let us agree with the optimist, "all is well at the present and the future looks bright."

Organized 1914 by Swope, Craig, McDowell and Ardery. The only requisite is half-wittedness. The pledges are Ramsey, Lee, Pepper and Cheek. Norris was black-balled because he had too much sense; Rogers black-balled because he didn't have enough; McClaskey black-balled because he didn't have any. Fulton and Hoss, of the Freshman Class, have a good chance.

HISTORY

The season of 1913 opened with the return of Peters, Lee, Turley, Ramsey, Gardner, Newman, Lassing and Polk of last year's squad. Captain Hunter Coleman failed to return because he wished to study medicine and accordingly entered Tulane University of Louisiana. Newman was elected to be Captain to fill his vacancy. With a promising squad of recruits Coach O'Brien set to work early in September to whip into shape a team worthy of representing Centre on the gridiron. The men were given an opportunity to show their ability in the first game of the season against Louisville Manual Training High School. The most promising were put in the game and all showed up well. The High School boys went down in defeat against Old Centre to the tune of 19 to 0. With only a week to prepare for the conflict with the Commodores, Centre was unable to withstand the mighty line plunging and the swift end runs of the sturdy Vanderbilt eleven. Although our line stood fast against the advances of the opposing backs, we were unable to impede their progress and for the third consecutive year we lost to their team of superior weight.

The following week another long and tiresome trip was ahead of us. After a few days of rest and recreation in classes we left for Columbus, Miss. Due to the exhaustive trip and extreme heat we were unable to hold forth and in the last quarter the A. & M. boys made five touchdowns, making the score 30 to 0. After the Kentucky Military Institute game, Centre 44, K. M. I. O., there was a period of two weeks in which to get ready for the Chattanooga game. On a wet field and with the rain pouring in torrents they "slipped one over on us" and bested us by one touchdown. We were hindered from playing the game with Sewanee on account of a railroad wreck which made it impossible to reach our destination in time to keep our engagement.

Our ill-fated team suffered another defeat at the hands of Georgetown, although supported by a large following and a brass band, but weakened by injuries inflicted on two of our linesmen we were unable to check their advance. Thanksgiving Day we made our annual visit to Lexington where for the first time in seven years Centre lost a football game to Transylvania. This ended the football season of 1913 with few laurels won, but there is a lesson here for the team of 1914 to learn.

BASEBALL

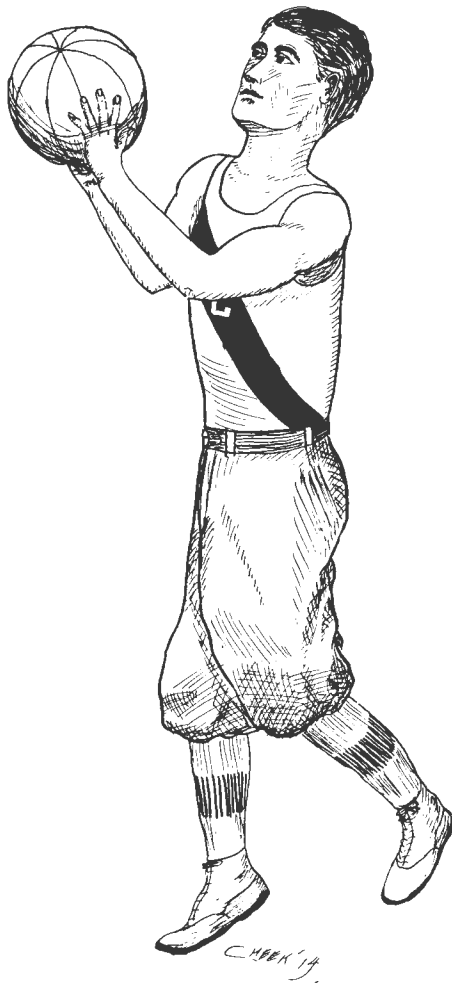

Baseball History

At the present writing the baseball season of 1914 is just opening. The first practice has uncovered some very promising new material in college. This fact is quite encouraging when one considers that only two men of last year's varsity nine are back in harness. These are Lassing and Turley. With the former again on the mound this year and with the stick work of the latter, Coach O'Brien has a small, but valuable nucleus out of which to build a team. Cheek Field is in excellent playing condition and every afternoon the cheery smack of the ball against the bat or the glove can be heard on the diamond. Ere this season is half over the team will find itself installed in the new gym where the most desirable and convenient locker rooms and shower baths will be available together with the batting cage in which to practice on rainy days. From now on the history of all kinds of athletics will improve, as the gymnasium fills the want long felt for adequate athletic quarters.

At the result of last year's games we have no great reason for chagrin although the majority of the games went to our opponents. Our team was weakened somewhat by the absence of some of the veteran squad of the year before. The pitching staff consisted of Lassing, who stood quite alone as the only man really competent as a hurler in college. The team lost the state championship in a close game to Georgetown. This was the first Carnival Game lost in many years. There is no reason to fear, however, that this defeat will not be wiped out by the victory this year as the student body and the Centre College spirit, stronger than numbers are with our team as the season opens with the first game with Miami on the fifteenth.

BASKETBALL

Basket Ball

Immediately after Christmas, Coach O'Brien met the candidates for the basket ball team on the floor of the K. C. W. Gymnasium. Captain Swope, Newman, Lassing, Turley and Polk of last year and about ten new men made up the very promising material from which the team was to be selected.

The first game was played on the home floor against Kentucky Wesleyan College. In this game the most promising candidates had a chance to show their ability and Coach O'Brien had an opportunity to select his quintet. The game was a one-sided one with a score of 47 to 21. A week later at Georgetown our team suffered defeat at the hands of the Baptists. Although at the end of the first half we were several points ahead, luck seemed to be against us and Georgetown piled up score after score until at the last it stood 19 to 26. However, it was not long until we got our revenge. On our own floor and with the players in perfect condition we beat Georgetown by the score of 31 to 19. This made one game apiece for the main contestants for the State Championship. On the fourth of March the third game was played which was to decide the issue. Unfortunately our team was in a bad condition, with Coleman on the sick list and others little better. However, the game was hard-fought but to no avail. A second time we lost the State Championship to Georgetown.

Out of the three games we played against Transylvania only one was lost and that by a small margin. The game with Southwestern Presbyterian University was a walkover with the resulting score of 55 to 5. The annual game with the Louisville Alumni was played in Danville on the twenty-first of March. A large crowd witnessed the defeat of the former stars who have gone out from Old Centre.

TRACK

Track

For the last few years Centre has taken small part in track meets, due in part to lack of material and in part to lack of a gymnasium in which the proper training could be carried on. Now, however, with the completion of a new and up-to-date gym in which are all the most modern facilities, much interest will be shown and a better opportunity will be open to those who wish to take up this branch of athletics. One of the main features of the new gym is a banked running track which runs around the floor and forms the balcony. On this, track training may be done in bad weather when it is impossible to get out on the sod. The inter-collegiate meet this spring will find Centre among those in the lead.

The page features eight oval portraits of young men, arranged in two columns of four. The portraits are as follows:

- Top-left: H.M. Todd
- Top-middle: Dr. Ramsey
- Top-right: Looging
- Middle-left: Craig
- Middle-right: Dunn
- Bottom-left: Lewis
- Bottom-middle: T.R. Lewis
- Bottom-right: Johnston

Carnival

"It seems as if the land
Were breathing deep beneath the sun's caress
Trembling with tenderness
While all the woods expand
In shimmering clouds of rose and gold and green
To veil of joy too sacred to be seen"

HENRY VAN DYKE

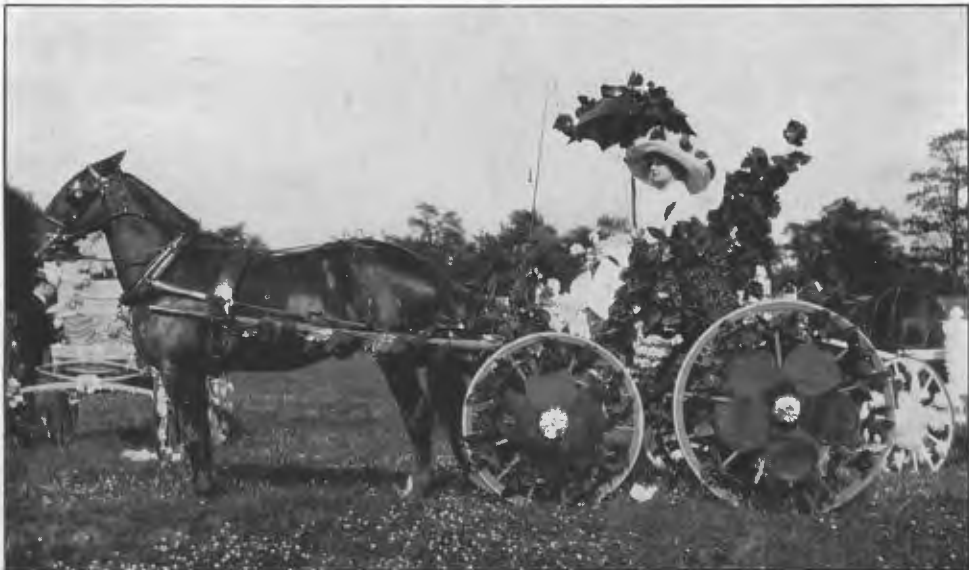

That's what it is. Spring in the Blue Grass. And that's the reason of the Athletic Carnival at Centre College. The professors may call it spring fever and others may say it is something else, but it is not, for the poet is right and not only the land but we also want to "breathe deep beneath the sun's caress" of the pure joy of living and of the bliss of forgetting everything else in the time when spring blossoms into summer and "cuts" increase in proportion to the number of hours which one carries. Away back before any of the present college generation donned long trousers, eleven years ago in fact, the Carnival began. It has run along through all of these May-times to form the goal of the years which it has brightened and the final hilarity of joy of each session of college life. Early in the spring the Queen is chosen from among the girls of Danville who brighten somewhat this arduous four years of toil. Her lot it is to rule the days of happiness as a queen should rule, with smiles and with beauty alone. She needs no scepter and no crown adorns her head save the flowers of the summer and the wealth of the Southern sunlight. Her rule is absolute, however.

This year the programme of affairs will be slightly altered in that the date of the Carnival is to be moved up to Commencement Week, but the round of events will be the same as before with the additional attractions of Class Day and Commencement to close the week.

On the opening evening will come the play in which the pent-up historic talent of several months which has been finding vent in various ways takes form and direction. The opera house thus becomes the first assembly place for those visitors from far and near who are here in never-failing numbers. Now they catch the spirit of freedom and spontaneity and are launched upon a delirious feast of fun of which the denouement is the unraveling of the plot and the fall of the curtain. The next day is taken up with tennis tournaments and other athletic events, possibly a baseball game. But throughout the day there is a flutter of excitement and of preparation for the dance which comes in the evening as the very highest point and joy of the social life of the Carnival season. Until the blue mists and the golden light of the summer morning peep in at the skylight the dance continues. Then comes rest and nothing else until time for the parade in the afternoon. From pictures one may get only a filmy idea of the combination of modern beauty and old time chivalry, of knightly pageant and of lovely faces that make up the parade. In the background of the beautiful streets and decorated houses one can well imagine it all a fairy-land. But one soon comes back to life when the parade reaches Cheek Field and the Carnival Game is on.

At night the campus is crowded with booths as at a fair and everyone comes prepared to do his worst with confetti, slap-jack and all such instruments which are ready at hand. The fun is contagious and when it has boiled at its highest there comes by general accord a cessation and a quiet. Young ladies withdraw themselves from the confetti battles and dignified professors put away their slap-jacks. For up between two rows of eager spectators towards the Queen's throne comes the King with his liege following of lords and ladies and thereupon he is crowned by the Queen with the laurel of victory. More precious than the diamond tiaras of all Europe is the crown, for it has been won in doing honor to Centre College and the acclamations are loud, "LONG LIVE THE KING AND QUEEN!" And another Carnival becomes a memory.

SAYRE LIBRARY

Beneath those maples solemn and serene
 You've stood there many years without a blow,
 Though students have oft wondered so
 While passing those dark lentiled doors between
 And striven oft with wondering eyes and keen
 To figure out what, in that twilight glow,
 Wherein but one may enter—only
 Jacky go,
 May be of mysteries, dark, monstrous, unseen.

Soon must come creaking down that wall of glass
 And on those dust-black tomes unwelcome hands
 Will soon be laid: we'll find therein some pretty pass:
 A crap game, still, or creaking iron bands
 Where have been chained in some unhallowed nook
 Those men whose vaccinations have not "took."

WHY NOT

'Tis queer the tricks our thoughts will play
 And how they'll wander far away
 Into the past and carry back
 A vivid scene, p'rhaps an act
 Long gone, long done, but yet exact.

It may be loathed, it may be loved
 Yet back 'tis brought unclothed, ungloved,
 A thing perhaps we now regret.
 Oh, were it granted to forget
 And what we wished remember yet!
 W. F. STEVENSON, '14.

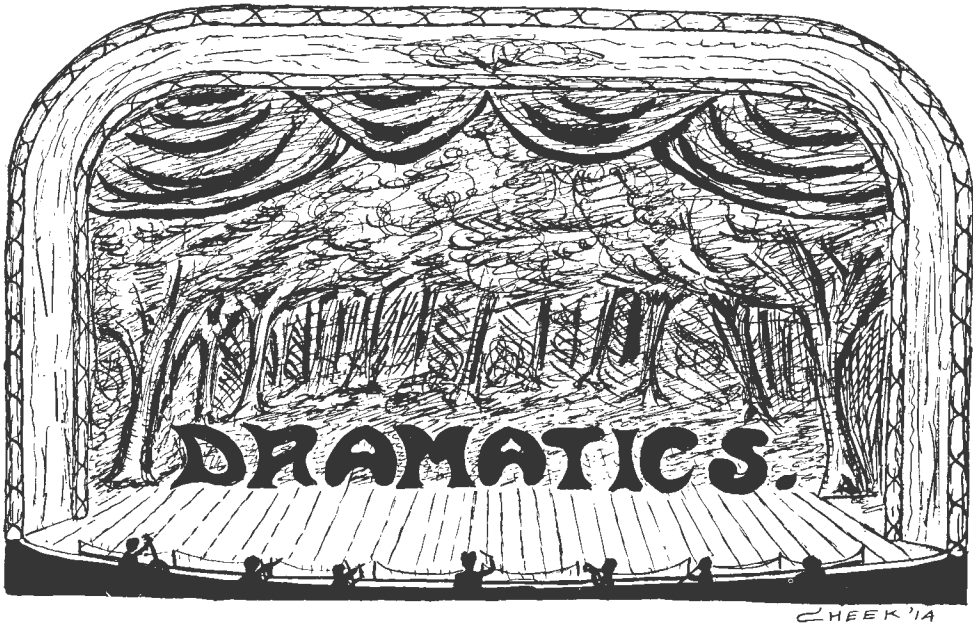

THE FLEET OF '14

At the wharf of old C. U.
 Our ships are ready to start,
 Equipped with Captain, mate and crew,
 We await the day to embark.
 With anchors weighed and sails all spread
 We wait for a favorable breeze,
 With our pennants fluttering straight ahead
 To vast, unfathomed seas.

So while we wait for the lingering wind,
 And the great white sails to swell,
 We spend the time with the mates behind,
 Bidding them all farewell.
 The winds may drive us to forts and bays,
 In foreign lands, may be;
 But many a vessel, long away,
 Will follow the homeward sea.

The same sure Pilot's at the helm,
 He keeps our goals in sight,
 Whatever land, whatever sea,
 He'll lead our steps aright.

The Demons of Breck

This little colt of a comet, called Breck by the earth beings, floats in space in an orbit quite its own and in an atmosphere quite unique. Without stopping here to promulgate, and prove transmigration (which I can undoubtedly do), this young planet is the favorite haunt of the shades of those departed dignitaries (now dwelling in other bodies) who have not been good enough to enter the pearly gates or quite bad enough to be permitted to wander in the land of Dante's nocturnal walks.

As I already stated, Breck is their favorite haunt, yet never before had they all assembled in one of its spacious temples in so great numbers and begun really to talk with each other, as on the day from which this leaf was snatched.

They were all seated in a circle when Demosthenes, disguised in the costume of Gladstone Wesley, entered the room. On seeing such a chance he slipped a few pebbles in his mouth and began to speak.

"Gentlemen," he said, swallowing another pebble, "I think the best thing we can do is to organize and meet at this temple every Friday morning. The first thing therefore is to select a janitor."

"Judging by the way William over there brushed up while on earth, he ought to make a good one." Hamlet's shade speaking through the mouth of Jake finished with a groan and continued speaking: "To marry or not to marry: that is the question. Whether ——."

William Shakespeare, looking up through the peepers of Lord Fulton, said, "Gentlemen, "I accept this honor. But," he said, handing over an asbestos parchment, "here is an invitation for me to attend a party on earth to be given for the Louisville boys. So I'll just begin by taking a day off."

The wit of Shadwell now abiding in a walking mechanism called Prewitt arose and thus spoke: "A matter that deserves our consternation is the fact that I saw two conspicuous looking characters with one eye prowling around this comet. I'm no judge, but they look like Polarks going under a consumed name."

The shade of Dr. Johnson on this planet known as "Cupie" stopped pulling at the frock of Sir Walter Raleigh (alias Count La Ray) long enough to remark: "Shadwell, if you keep that hole in your head shut you won't show so much of your ignorance tangled up with your big feet." This the Doctor said as he turned so that Boswell sitting close by in the personage of Bird might catch every word and put it in his biography.

At this juncture someone was heard without murmuring in somewhat Hell-enic accents, and Caesar, looking out through Jimmy Coleman's orbs of vision, saw the shade of Herodotus reciting his history of the Greeks through the mouth of John White. "What is that, Julius?" asked Solon, who thinking he heard his name mentioned, looked up from a piece of asbestos book in which he had been jotting down a few more laws not for the Greeks but for Five Hundred. "Oh," said Julius, "nihil est. Only history repeating itself."

At the same time those Polarks going under consumed names came in and were discovered to be smallpox germs, at which discovery Turley ran like the proverbial bat. Demosthenes and his eloquence attempted to stay the flight, but he either swallowed two pebbles at once, or the ones he had swallowed came up and met the one he was trying to swallow. At any rate the meeting broke and the shades departed in their own private offices in the deep and gloomy caverns of the planet. The shade of Nero stopped long enough to tack, with the hand of Savage, a sign above his door:

"FIDDLING DONE WHILE YOU WAIT."
