Sketch of Central University

THIS INSTITUTION was formed in August, 1901, by the consolidation of Centre College, Danville, Ky., and Central University, Richmond, Ky. While the corporate life of Centre College covers only eighty-four years, its germ can be traced far back into the eighteenth century. In 1780 the Legislature of Virginia granted a charter to a school to be established in the then province of Kentucky. In 1785 this school began its work, in Danville, with the name of Transylvania Academy, under the auspices of Rev. David Rice, over whose remains, in McDowell Park in this place, a beautiful shaft has been placed by the two Presbyterian Synods of Kentucky. It is difficult for us, in these "piping times of peace," to realize the primitive conditions under which this academy passed its earlier years. "Its career was often disturbed by the yell of the Indian and the crack of his rifle." After a few years of precarious existence it was removed to Lexington. Owing to diverging views as to the religious policy of the institution, in 1796, an influential body of its friends withdrew their support, and established the Kentucky Academy, at Pisgah, about eight miles from Lexington. The appeal for money for the academy met with a generous response. Nearly $4,000 was given in Kentucky, and $10,000 was collected in the East. Among the donors were George Washington, then President; John Adams, Vice-President, and Aaron Burr. In 1798 the institutions at Lexington and Pisgah were merged into one under the title of Transylvania University. In 1817 another convulsion occurred, and one wing of its former supporters, composed of Presbyterian ministers and laymen, applied to the legislature for a charter for another institution. It was chartered under the title of "The Centre College of Kentucky," and established at Danville. "And thus," in the words of its late president, Dr. Wm. C. Young, "after a wandering absence, under various transformations of more than thirty years, wiser, hardier by its mingled experiences of prosperity and adversity, this school, like Noah's dove returning to the ark, came back to its first home."

The charter made the college a state institution. Its first president, Rev. Jeremiah Chamberlain, D. D., was inducted into office in 1823. According to an arrangement with the Synod of the Presbyterian Church in Kentucky, the board of trustees procured, in 1824, an act of the legislature modifying the charter so as to secure to the Synod, on the payment of $20,000 into the treasury of the college, the right to appoint the board of trustees. The last installment of this sum was paid in 1840. Dr. Chamberlain resigned in 1826, and Rev. Gideon Blackburn, D. D., succeeded him, in 1828, Rev. David C. Proctor having temporarily filled the office in the interregnum. On the resignation of Dr. Blackburn, in 1830, Rev. John C. Young, D. D., was elected president. Dr. Young died in office, June 23, 1857, and, on the 6th of August following, Rev. Lewis W. Green, D. D., was elected his successor. Dr. Green died in office, May 26, 1863, and on the 16th of October following, Rev. Wm. L. Breckinridge, D. D., was elected president. He resigned October 16, 1868. Prof. Ormond Beatty, LL. D., then vice-president, was elected president, September 1, 1870, having been acting president in the meanwhile. Dr. Beatty tendered his resignation November 30, 1886, and it was accepted, to take effect upon the qualification of his successor. Rev. Wm. C. Young, D. D., son of the former President Young, was elected president June 18, 1888. He entered upon his duties September 5, 1888. He died in office, September 16, 1896, and on June 7, 1898, Rev. Wm. C. Roberts, D. D., LL. D., was elected president.

Centre College sent out its first graduating class in 1824, and has continued its work without interruption from that time. Its alumni number more than 1,500, in addition to more than 2,500 students who took a partial course. Among these are many, both living and dead, who have achieved distinction in the various professions and callings of life, and attained to the highest positions of honor and trust, especially in the South and West. Centre College has educated thirty college presidents, fifty college professors, some thirty representatives in Congress, six United State Senators, nine governors of states, two Vice-presidents of the United States, one Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, more than forty circuit judges, state and national, and many others eminent in both church and state.

The other constituent part of the institution, known as "Central University," was organized under a charter granted March 3, 1873, which provided for the establishment of an institution of the highest order, on the university plan, under the auspices of the Southern Synod of Kentucky. The College of Philosophy, Letters and Science, at Richmond, and the Hospital College of Medicine, at Louisville, were opened to students September, 1874. The Louisville College of Dentistry was organized and opened, at Louisville, January, 1888, and the College of Law, at Richmond, October, 1898. The charter gave authority to the curators: "To establish, under the auspices of the University, six preparatory schools in various parts of the state, designed to prepare students to enter the university." Three of these schools were put in successful operation, viz.: The Richmond Preparatory, The S. P. Lees Collegiate Institute, and the Hardin Collegiate Institute, Elizabethtown, Ky. The charter also provided for the establishment of a Theological Department in connection with the University, and, on the recommendation of the Synod, a special endowment was raised, and the department opened September, 1891, under the direction of Rev. T. D. Witherspoon, D. D., LL. D. At the end of two years the Synods of Kentucky and Missouri united in a movement to establish a Theological Seminary for the Southwest, at Louisville, and the endowment fund of the department was transferred to the Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary, recently consolidated with the Danville Theological Seminary, at Louisville.

The government of the University was vested in a chancellor, as chief executive officer, and a board of curators, elected at first by the Alumni Association, but afterward by the Synod of Kentucky. Rev. Robert L. Breck, D. D., was the first chancellor, and Rev. John W. Pratt, D. D., the first president of the faculty. In June, 1880, Drs. Breck and Pratt resigned, and the University was practically reorganized. Rev. L. H. Blanton, D. D., was elected chancellor, and Rev. J. V. Logan was elected president of the faculty, and both continued in office until the consolidation of the institution with Centre College.

Central University was the youngest, by many years, of the Kentucky colleges, and was in competition from the beginning with older and well endowed institutions. Great liberality and zeal were shown by its friends and patrons in its establishment, and in its maintenance, for twenty-seven years. Among the many generous donors to its funds may be mentioned S. P. Walters, Esq.; A. J. Alexander, Esq.; Mr. Orville Ford; Stuart Robinson, D. D.; Hon. W. H. McBrayer; J. V. Logan, D. D.; D. C. Collins, Esq.; T. A. Bracken, D. D., and Col Bennett H. Young.

The first class, consisting of nine members, was graduated in 1877; and for twenty-four years it has sent out classes varying from six to twenty-eight members, and the last three or four classes were the largest in the history of the institution. It has sent out in all about three hundred graduates, besides many others who hold certificates of proficiency in separate departments of study. These young men are found in all the walks of life. It has given to Kentucky her present Chief Executive, and many others who occupy positions of honor and trust. It has given to the church about forty ministers of the Gospel, who are among its ablest and most useful pastors.

The College of Medicine has graduated nine hundred doctors of medicine, the College of Dentistry has graduated four hundred and six doctors of dental surgery, and the College of Law has graduated fifteen bachelors of law. During the twenty-seven years of its separate existence over eight thousand students have received their education, in whole or in part, in connection with its four colleges and three university schools. The aggregate matriculates of its last year was one thousand one hundred and sixty-four.

The two institutions described above were legally consolidated August, 1891, under the corporate name of "Central University of Kentucky," located at Danville. No better location could have been selected for a great institution of learning. Danville is an ideal college town, healthful, beautiful, and free from most of the temptations to youth found in other places of its size. The campus embraces over forty-three acres of bluegrass, covered with a large variety of beautiful trees. The buildings are substantial and commodious, connected with each other by hundreds of yards of superb concrete walks and a macadamized carriage road. There are two comfortable dormitories, "College Home" and "Breckinridge Hall."

As at present constituted, Central University is governed by a board of trustees, composed of twenty-four members, one-half appointed by each of the two Presbyterian Synods of Kentucky, North and South. It comprises Centre College, as the classical, literary and scientific department; the College of Law, at Danville; the Kentucky Theological Seminary, at Louisville; the Hospital College of Medicine, at Louisville, and the Louisville College of Dentistry. There are also three excellent affiliated schools, as collegiate institutes, located at Danville, Jackson and Elizabethtown, which serve as feeders to the University, and one at Princeton, though not under the same management.

These constitute one of the most complete and efficient universities in the South.

J. ROCKWELL SMITH, Historian.

LOCKWOOD A. BARR, Poet.

GREEN JOHNSON, Prophet.

JAMES F. WINGATE, Grumbler.

EDWARD B. SNYDER, Giftorian.

L. C. ALLEN

Yes, this is "Parson," the great orator, poker player, crap-shooter, and boozier. How he got the name of "Parson" nobody knows. He may be seen strolling out Lexington Avenue any moonlight night, carrying a sweet and holy love for Orié Long. Verily, verily he is in a class all by himself. Deinologian.

B. ANDRÉS

The Dutchman is quite a heart-smasher, has a smile like a full moon, and a fondness for sour kraut and "weenies". Is an astronomer of some note and has been caught smoking a cubeb and drinking coca cola. His favorite motto is, "Consider the source where it comes from, all ready, yet." Pres. Y. M. C. A., Σ. A. E., Chamberlain.

L. A. BARR

"Pede" is something of a sport and also a jack-of-all-trades. Those who know, say he makes love divinely. When "Pede" was a Sophomore, his hat bill was enormous and the sizes ran from six to thirteen, but now a seven is all he wants. Wait until you hear him play that violin and you will fall in love with him. Class Poet; Annual Staff, B. Θ. II., G. R. E. K. A.

M. H. BEDFORD

"T. Hume" may be spotted by his grin almost any distance. He was formerly a great politician, but of late years he has taken Woolsey's advice and "cast away ambition." His love for the odor of H<sub>2</sub> S. is only exceeded by his reputation for being as harmless as boiled rice. Instructor in Chemistry. Chamberlain.

W. P. BIGGS

"Lizzie" is a great student. He comes to C. U. nine months out of the year and studies Law at Sewanee the other three. They say that he will be Chief Justice some day. "Well, maybe he will, but we doubt it." He is the greatest ladies' man that ever happened, according to Lizzie. His lips are irresistible. II. K. A., Deinologian.

J. P. BOLING

"Attorney Jim" has made a great reputation in the "Blue Grass" both on account of his efficiency as an Annual Manager and on account of his legal abilities. He has also attracted great attention in social circles on account of his distinguished appearance and other structure. He is the terror of all freshmen who delight in throwing fire-crackers under his door. However, he has been voted harmless by the Annual Staff. Manager of the Annual. Deinologian.

A. W. BRIGHT

No, "Rusty" isn't dull by any means. He is called "Rusty" on account of the complexion of his hair. Because of his innate piety and his way of looking wise by saying nothing, the Faculty has decided to let him graduate this year. It is said that Rusty will sacrifice anything for a cheese sandwich. Committeeman to I. C. D. A., Chamberlain.

RAY BROWN

Oh! He isn't tall—just six feet five. Came to college fresh from Frankfort and will return fresher than he was when he came. Flirts with anything that can wave a handkerchief. Does society, condemns everyone, praises himself and struts like a peacock for the benefit of lower classmen. Possessed of one aim, viz.: To swell and grow bigger. Assistant Business Manager of the Annual.

E. BROWN

This is "Damon," and you will find "Pythias" a little farther on. If you have never heard of him before, it is not to be wondered at, for he never says anything. You may know him, however, from the fact that he is with Denny, and you may know Denny from the fact that he is with Eli.

R. T. CALDWELL

Bob is the gallant of the class. Seeing a lady at the depot overburdened with bundles and small children one day, he asked in his sweetest tones, "May I not help you?" An icy stare and the reply, "My husband is with us, sir," almost killed him. It is needless to add that the lady was good-looking and that "Bob" didn't wait to see her husband. K. A., G. R. E. K. A.

W. T. CHEEK

Cheek by name, but "Stumpy" by adoption. A surveyor and politician—surveyed out his road and politicked himself into the office of Class President. A renowned football player and a parliamentarian. Some of his rulings are worthy of Czar Reed. Pres. "Stumpy" spent his freshman days in being hazed and he spent his latter days in hazing freshmen.

Annual Staff. Deinologist.

E. C. DAVIS

Those who love him call him "Rabbit", not Welsh, but Irish. He was once taken for Mr. Dooley's friend, Hogan, but that was before Hogan was well known. Prof. Throckmorton says that he is one of the brightest law students he has. It is said that he intends some day to run against Judge Prewitt for County Judge. We will all come back and vote for him when he does. Chamberlain.

W. DENNY

This is "Pythias", and like his friend, "Damon", there is nothing to be said about him. Like Cassius, "he has a lean and hungry look" and the freshmen believe him to be a devil and always flee at his approach. His favorite occupation is putting bent pins in the seats for his unsuspecting classmates to sit upon.

E. R. DONALDSON

"The boy orator", the man with a silver tongue. All hats off to "Judge E." Donaldson is a young man with an intellectual look and dignified carriage, wears nose glasses and usually a striped suit. Judge is the corresponding secretary of the Y. W. C. A. and others, mostly others. Donaldson's home is in Lexington; that is, he stays there most of the time. The chief worry to Judge's life is Lyon, who can and does talk boys to death. Editor-in-chief of Annual, Representative of C. U. in I. C. O. A., Committeeman to I. C. D. A., K. A., T. B. R. Deinologian.

G. W. DONALDSON

Sails under the dignified "nom de plume" of "Judge G." Mr. Donaldson is a widely traveled man, but of all his trips abroad he likes none of the foreign towns like dear old "boozy" Harrodsburg. He is a favorite with society, and especially Harrodsburg society, where he may be seen most any time in fine weather driving with some of that beautiful and historic town's beauties. Mr. Donaldson is studying for the ministry, and has already distinguished himself in temperance work.  $\Phi. \Delta. \Theta.$ , T. B. R.

CLARENCE EVANS

Evans came to college an unassuming freshman, lived a noble life until he reached the Junior Class, when he undertook to surpass Don Quixote in Knight Errantry. Degenerated in his latter days to a sub on a second base-ball team—an ignoble ending for so great a man—sad—sad—sad. However, Evans redeemed himself in his Senior year by taking Law. Having mastered Blackstone, Kent, Coke and all others, in two months, he walked out of the class room and said, "Fie upon this life, I want work." He then went into the cross-tie department of the R. R. Deinologian.

J. W. FARMER

This blooming idiot being driven out of the mountains as a result of a feud between him and "Booze" came to college with a Winchester, a barrel of "Moonshine" and a "hoss pistol". Baricaded himself in Breck. Hall and soon made a reputation for himself by breaking up a show at the Opera House. With a fire brand in one hand, a "hoss pistol" in his belt, a bottle of Booze in the other hand, he intimidated the Law Faculty and was Valedictorian of Law 1902. Deinologian.

C. HARBERSON

"Charlie's" highest ambition is to own and run an opera house. He is the ring leader in all "cuts" and has taken a post-graduate course in this art. It is said that he was corrupted by Yeager, but if the truth must be told we believe it was the other way. He expects to go into the drug business. We warn all owners of valuables to beware.

H. HENDY

Disclaimer, Orator and Society President. This voracious eater, inveterate smoker, habitual flunker and all-round society swell was the star dancer at the last Classe de Fees Hop. He knows all about the history of the college bell. Was the ring-leader of the Hallowe'en Gang. He has the admiration of the lower classmen, the dislike of the Faculty and the love of his classmates. Distinguished himself as the senior collaborator of the Hendy Biggs Carr papers. Chamberlain.

J. T. HUGUELY

The subject of this sketch is a little fellow about 4 feet 6 inches tall, being the smallest man in the college, besides one, Jimmy Parker. He is very fond of running, that being his chief occupation during leisure hours. "Jake" is one of the swellest of the swells in college, actually running in opposition to Harkins, the boy with a billy goat voice and diamond earrings. Jake can be seen most any time surrounded by a bevy of pretty girls, who vie with each other in doing nice things for him. Jake expects to be a farmer, and is now taking a gymnastic course to make himself taller so as to reach the plowshares. Φ. Δ. Θ., T. B. R.

G. JOHNSON

"Bull" is so fat that he never sees his shoes, consequently he never polishes them. Calls himself smart, but his friends can't see the point. He lives a glorious existence and will some day be a great man if he doesn't flunk. We hope that his greatness will be realized, for he has a voice like the braying of that proverbially stupid animal with long ears. Despises society, shuns the Faculty and flees from the class room in disgust. Would marry if he could. Class Prophet, Σ. X., Deinologist.

W. H. KENDRICK

"Bill" is a great big fat fellow and full of laziness. He usually spends his time by gulling freshmen to believe him the greatest "fish" in the ocean. Bill has the distinction of being the only married man in his class. In the recitation rooms he gets a mysterious look on his face and actually makes the Profs. think that he is very smart. B. Θ II.

R. LOCKHART

Now, here's greatness, knowledge and a regular walking encyclopedia for you. "Lock", having swallowed a dictionary, can and does read anything fluently and accurately. He quotes from any writer, either ancient or modern, living or dead. The only man in the class who can "cuss" in Spanish, sing in French, orate in German and make love in Italian. Can talk Chinese with a Jap, and Turk with a Russian. Carries Thucydides in his valise when he goes on his picnic excursions.

Editor-in-Chief of Cento. K. A., Deinologist.

O. W. LONG

Dear, sweet, old Orie, how you are loved and admired by your classmates, how we envy your architectural abilities. As a constructor of "dog houses" in Lexington you stand without a peer. Teach us, O Orie, the secret of your success. Let us be wise with you. Come out of your exalted state and associate with us. Though you are happy, we, your rivals, are not. Rejoice not too much, for some day we too will rejoice. Annual Staff, Cento Staff, K. A., T. B. R., Deinologist.

F. A. LYON, JR.

Strange, but true, that this manufactured article of Lee should be a "Hymn Histing, Psalm Singing Y. M. C. A." freak, and should continually say "Ships which pass in the night, please sail my way." Claims to be a minister, but his friends know that he has "Booze" on the brain. Introduced mountain politics into the Senior Class and gobbled up all the fat offices for himself. A schemer, manipulator and wire-puller. Works everything and everybody—Faculty included. Managing Editor of the Annual, Business Manager of Cento, Salutatorian Σ. N., T. B. R. Chamberlain.

GEO. D. MILLIKEN

It is noticeable of Milliken that as he grows older, he becomes more foolish and more persistent for his money. This is to be regretted, for "Dunk" worries boarders by his continual demands for money.

"Dunk" is a Junior Law student. "A farmer unique was destroyed when this freak left the plowshares to follow the law." We have all wondered in this world's economy where "Dunk" is to find a place. Pres. Athletic Association, Captain of baseball team, Cento Staff, Manager football team 1903. Φ. Γ. Δ., Deinologian.

J. W. PARKER

"Jimmy", little but loud, and a believer in "Silent Forces", hit Danville and the "Kaps" at the same time, with such irresistible force as to conquer both. With his football team, he cleaned up the "State" and "K. U." too. Favorite expression is, "He who fights and runs away (with a football team) will live to run (to a touchdown) another day." K. A., G. R. E. K. A. Chamberlain.

S. S. ROBINSON

Here is Robinson—a man among boys, a boy among men; a scholar among lunatics, a lunatic among scholars; a preacher among toughs, a tough among preachers; a dude among tramps, a tramp among dudes; an idle man among busy people, a busy man among idle people; a demagogue among patriots, a patriot among demagogues; a dwarf among men, a giant among dwarfs; and, last of all, a flower in the desert, and a desert among flowerers. These are dear old Robinson's eccentricities, peculiarities and idiosyncrasies. Deinologian.

H. G. SANDIFER

Commonly known as "Chick". Has a deathly smile which appears on his face at all times, especially when you are not looking for it. "Chick's" chief ambition is to be an opera singer and he intends to have his voice cultivated. When you hear him sing it reminds you of the days on the farm when the barnyard was in full sway, the roosters crowing, the hens cackling, and above all those dear old long-eared mules braying. Annual Staff, Cento Staff.  $\Phi. \Delta. \Theta.$  Chamberlain.

C. B. SCHOOLFIELD

"Fatty", for short, is the worst among the bunch and the bounciest among the worst, lives like a lord and acts like a clown. Gained quite a reputation among Danville society by conducting college minstrels. Of all the boys in the Senior Class he is the least deserving of a fair lady's love, yet he is the most fortunate of all.  $\Phi. \Delta. \Theta., T. N. E., G. R. E. K. A.$

J. R. SMITH

"Rox" rolled into C. U. with a printing press in one hand, a newspaper in the other and printer's ink on his face. "Rox", having edited the Central News for two years, has become a fairly good imitator of Henry Watterson. His editorials are the wonder of his contemporaries, and paragons of excellence (?).

He is the autocrat of the Senior Class and the trump of the Y. M. C. A.

Associates almost entirely with freshmen, who continually exclaim, "And still the wonder grew, that one small head could carry all he knew." Editor-in-Chief of Central News, Annual Staff, Committeeman to I. C. O. A., Chamberlain. Class Historian,  $\Sigma. A. E., G. R. E. K. A.$

P. A. SMITH.

Paul blew in from Illinois after Christmas and immediately took Lockhart and all the ladies by storm. He is a "calicoist" of renown and may be found any afternoon casting "goo-goo eyes" at all the pretty girls that come down the street. He thinks that he is the only base-ball player in college. The class thinks so too and has ordered a special glove as big as a cart wheel for him. He is an all-around good fellow.  $\Sigma. X., T. N. E.$

E. B. SNYDER

Assistant Professor of Physics and Chief Engineer for Dr. Gordon. That's what he calls himself and wants everybody else to call him. This young man, better known as "Josh", wears a knowing look and delights in telling the Juniors how much they don't know. He is thought to have been disappointed in love, which accounts for his melancholy. One may see him arm in arm with his boon companion, Mr. Long, on any balmy Sunday strolling out Harrodsburg, his native haunt. He hopes to be called to the Chair of Engineering, now occupied by "Henry". Class Giftorian. K. A., G. R. E. K. A.

B. VAUGHN

This, the "Pride of Lebanon", the "wag" of College home, and the "Autocrat" of the dining-room, rushed into the college bare-footed. Having been chased for two weeks and captured, he was initiated and shod. Kind friends then led him back to college, where the Profs. allowed him to matriculate and become a student. Then began the arduous task of making him a gentleman. In this metamorphosised condition, Vaughn became the presiding genius of Dienologian, the orator without a peer, and the graceful dude of 1903. Bores his friends with jokes, and votes for Lockhart all the time. Deinologian.

J. F. WINGATE

Pat is a very bright little boy, and therefore never studies. He has an inordinate love for politics and poker. How he ever came to college and voted for a "wet" banquet is a mystery. "Pat" is always cussing out some one, and in order to give him an opportunity to do so legitimately, he was elected Class Grumbler. Chamberlain.

G. F. WILSON

This disciple of Carrie Nation rolled, or rather stumbled, into Danville with a hatchet and proceeded to demolish all saloons and blind tigers, including that one controlled by the (ex) members of the Y. M. C. A. Believes in racial equality and peace with those unfortunates of the colored persuasion.

"God made him, therefore let him pass for a man."

H. YEAGER

This is a rosy-faced youngster about two years old. He is the one that put the fire-crackers under Dr. Nelson's chair during his freshman year. Since that time, however, he has been voted harmless and is now guaranteed not to bite. We were all greatly shocked at "Yeage's" voting for a "wet" banquet. We did not think he was so bad.

ARCHIBALD YOUNG

Arch is the greatest sport in college, and takes keen delight in showing you how it is done at Washington & Lee, from which institution he was fired for general cussedness. He has turned over a new leaf since that time, however, and is now a great Y. M. C. A. member. It is said that "Arch" lives in deadly fear that Steele Bailey will come back and call him to a reckoning; and so he sleeps with a gun under his pillow.  $\Phi. K. \Psi.$ , T. N. E., G. R. E. K. A.

To My Classmates:

And I don't mean a thing that I have said."
Yours in fun,

THE EDITOR.

Samuel Wilson Glenn.

TO the Memory of SAMUEL WILSON GLENN, our beloved classmate, who departed this life March 24, 1903—a kind and sympathetic friend, a loyal and conscientious student, a firm and steadfast Christian, whose noble character will be an example to us, this token of love is affectionately dedicated by his loving classmates.

History of Senior Class

The largest and most heterogeneous class that ever passed through this illustrious institution was gathered together some four years ago in two distinct, verdant groups. One group came together under the shady trees of Richmond, and the other, one morning, found themselves occupying benches in the chapel at Danville, and, for the first time in their innocent young lives, heard that cry of derision and contempt, "Fresh." Within a week both groups had experienced all the longings for home and mother that are usual at this stage, and more than one letter was written to Pa, saying that son was coming home, and more than one telegram received stating that son would be sorry if he did.

Then we got down to work, and, with the assistance of a span of Hinds and Noble's Pelapanesian and Tarquinian Jacks, which, by the way, are the best on the market, we crossed innumerable Rubicons and helped Julius Cæsar through many forests, to say nothing of traveling countless weary parasangs with Xenophon and his Ten Thousand. Having come through these troublous times, those that survived were pensioned and retired to private life. As a body we settled down upon the "little Sabine farm," and studied the scientific way of abstracting roots, even to the second and third degree. It is recorded that one of our number, hearing that the use of dynamite was the quickest and cheapest way of solving the problem, thought of trying it by practical experiment. He, thereupon, secured a giant fire-cracker, and, having neatly arranged it under the professor's chair, he quietly awaited for results. It worked even beyond his fondest hopes, and proved that professors are only made of mortal clay after all, beyond the shadow of a doubt.

About this time those never-ending cries of "Fresh! Fresh!" became unbearable, and one morning we were forced to chastise those overbearing Sophomores and take their seats away. It was a glorious fight, but after that we had no more trouble, for we shortly became "wise fools" ourselves.

It was during this year that that section of us which came from Richmond traveled ten months with the children of Israel, under the guidance of our much beloved Dr. Barbour. At the end of that time we decided that we couldn't stand the pace any longer, as the atmosphere was too dry for anything but sleep. During the spring of this year the question of consolidation came up and was much discussed on both sides. Many of those in Richmond opposed it because the consolidated institution would not be co-educational, for you see this has always been a pre-co-cious class, and several of our number had already lost their hearts. Finally, however, upon being told that the Danville girls were even more beautiful than those of Richmond, these agreed to consolidate and see for themselves. Thus it happened that these two mighty streams were brought together to form the present mighty river—the Class of 1903.

Each faction held the kindest feeling toward the other; and it was unanimously agreed to know “no North, no South, no East, no West.” Thus united and welded into one, we proceeded to run the new institution as we had done its component parts; and we will leave it to future generations to say whether or not we have done our part well.

We were now assailed by that scourge, the Vikings, led by their renowned leader, one Ivan C. Everyone knows how we oft defeated him, and, finally, at examination time put him to flight, much to the envy of the other classes. It might not be amiss to tell of some of the events which happened during this fierce campaign. Having on one occasion been captured by our own dear little “Parson,” the mighty warrior was forced to chant his death knell, down by the spring in front of the president’s house, which he did with so much feeling that his captor had pity upon him and let him go, after making his promise to have his voice filed. Upon another occasion, after having been repelled three consecutive times in one morning, we finally took the enemy’s fortification by storm and piled all the benches in a heap in the middle of the floor. Five or six of our members came very near to being captured upon that expedition for having gotten into a personal squabble over some booty they failed to get out of the way in time, and were accordingly mixed in with the benches in very uncomfortable positions. We were next attacked by the Seniors of ’02, who defied us to send out six champions to meet them in a tug-of-war. The six were sent, and such another battle was never seen. The suspense was terrible for a few minutes, but at last we saw our opponents give way inch by inch, until they were finally pulled clear over the line. That was a great day, for we won the pennant, also, for the most events won during the Field Day contest, and accordingly went home rejoicing.

We were told much this year about the “generalization of the correlation of forces and the conservation of energy,” to say nothing of the Atlantosaur, Ptorsaur and Machairodus. It was while we were struggling with these things that we were, one day, admitted to “Jackie’s Holy of Holies”—the museum.

As has been said before, this is the most heterogeneous class that has ever passed through this historical institution. You may find on its roll anything you want from a politician to a preacher. Nevertheless, it has certain characteristics, as a class, that should be recorded. When it comes to politics we are right there, and our political debates are worthy of the United States Senate. But when the successful candidates are sworn in they are always sure of a solid support. We are noted for our sticking qualities, in more senses than one, as we have often demonstrated. In athletics we have always taken a leading part, and in orators we have been especially blest. In fact, we have leaders in every phase of college life, and our fondest boast is, "we run the college." To enumerate the honors our members have won would require too much space for this short sketch. Suffice it to say, that we have taken more than our share, and if we may judge the future by the past, will continue to do so in the broader life beyond the walls of our Alma Mater.

This, our Senior year, has been the most prosperous of the four, and as we approach the close of our college life, we feel that, whereas we may have missed much that we might have gained—and who does not?—still we have not lived in vain, and we are far better for the education we have received than we would have been without it.

Much have we to be proud of. Not only do we graduate one of the largest classes in the history of the college, but we are about to present to the world, as a memorial of our achievements, the largest and best annual yet issued by this institution. Our banquet, also, promises to be a great success, and will not be as dry as this history.

But one event has happened to mar the perfectness of our course. That is the death of our friend and classmate, Samuel Wilson Glenn, whom God in his infinite wisdom saw fit to remove from among us, when within only three months of graduation. His cheerful presence is greatly missed, but he is not forgotten, for the memory of his life will ever remain as sweet and fresh as when he was here among us.

As we go out from the walls of our Alma Mater and others rise up to take our places, and go over the old familiar walks, and occupy the old familiar benches, we envy them, for the last four years have been the happiest of our lives. Much trouble and worry have we given our professors, but we hope that we shall be able to repay them in the future by living up to the principles which they have so patiently instilled within us.

We must needs go out into the pitiless world, and grow bald and grey-headed in the battle with life, but we will take many happy memories with us, which will ever keep us young in spirit, as we were in our halcyon college days when we lived up to our motto, and one day "ate drank and were merry," and the next—we usually "went broke."

Junior History.

COMMENTATORS upon human events have risen to greatness more frequently as a result of themes upon which they have dwelt than from any excellence in themselves. Accordingly, in my attempt to write the history of the Class of 1904, I shall rely for inspiration entirely upon those deeds which have already brought a new glory to illumine the classic shades of our immortal Alma Mater. As yet, the achievements of this class are but a modest foreshadowing of what is to come; and great renown will come to the historian who, in later years, records the illustrious deeds of this famous body of students. Twenty years hence their star of fame, now just appearing above the horizon, will be at its zenith of brightness, an object of immortal beauty. But within, in the future, lies not my task, so I must return to the past, confident that what my classmates have already done is worthy of the genius of no mediocre historian. Time, traveling in her ceaseless cycle, has been disturbed. One more epoch has been added, one more date must be recorded by historians. This epoch dawned upon the morning of the 11th of September, 1900, when the classic halls of Central first sounded to the footsteps of the Class of 1904; it will terminate when the members of this class shall all have passed beyond the gates of life, leaving behind them darkness, save for the radiance emanating from the glorious memory of their imperishable deeds. From the first, the class has been marked by that spirit of determination which gives confidence to the soldier under the enemy's fire, and which has inspired all the world's great heroes. This spirit has encouraged the drooping hearts of the whole college; it has turned them from sadness over the distressful present, and taught them to find joy in contemplation of the bright future which is at hand.

After the consolidation, the two rival divisions of this class were blended into one, since "in union there is strength," and now it is that men from Old Centre and Central, alike, with all past rivalry forgotten, stand, hand in hand, ready to defend the "Cardinal and Blue." This class has ever been animated by one impulse, strengthened by one resolution, actuated by one consuming desire: the impulse to do noble deeds; the resolution that no endeavor shall be in vain; the desire to bring ever-increasing glory to their class, and to their college.

The deeds of the Class of "04" on the athletic field are of no little value. She has added great strength to both the football and baseball teams, and at times when it was most needed.

In the gymnasium also, her members have proudly upheld the banner of their class. Not to athletics alone are her brilliant records confined, but in every phase of college life her members are always found at the front. As I relate her victories, I shall also tell of her defeats. Among all her contests there is but one in which she has failed to be crowned with success. It was the day of the "great seat rush," when, in an unequal conflict with double their number, the Class of "04" was forced, for a time, to withdraw from the seats they had but just occupied. But even here they were not defeated until, by their heroic resistance, they had won the admiration of their foes. In such a victory there is little glory; in such a defeat there is no disgrace. So much for the past; it is secure. What is yet to come we can not foretell. The prophet refuses to open his secrets, and we stand unconscious of our destinies. But as we look down the long corridors of time into the future, as we listen to the echoes reverberated from the temple of eternal fame, we see flaming, in the distance, the symbols, "C. U., 1904."

Sophomore History.

HAVING been chosen historian of the Sophomore Class, it becomes my duty to follow my predecessors and give a brief sketch of the class and a few of its individual members. It seems only yesterday that we entered college, as Freshmen, but nay! a year has passed, and we have at last donned our "Sophomorical wings," and our eyes are now turned toward the morning, when we shall be the proud possessors of the title of Junior.

Whilst Freshmen we kept before us the old and familiar saying, "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," and so we mixed work and pleasure. It was when we stepped from Freshmen to Sophomores that we began to display our real worth to the upper classmen, but even before that time the class of '05 was recognized as one of the best that ever entered Centre College.

Our life as Sophomores has been both prominent and promising thus far in our course. We have gained an enviable reputation as students, and are unsurpassed in the athletic lines, having won nine events at the last Field Day, and also the prize to the best individual athlete in college fell to one of our classmen, B. F. Gill.

In oratory we are no less distinguished, for four of the eight speakers in the recent declamatory contest were Sophomores, and two of the six debaters in the Annual Inter-Society Debate were also Sophomores.

As to our bravery, that has been shown on many occasions, but especially in last year's Freshman-Sophomore seat rush, when we expelled our opponents from the chapel, and then, as conquerors, occupied the Junior seats. Also in last year's flag rush, when the banners of '05 and '03 were planted on the top of the main building, and there they remained, not to be taken down by our enemies.

We have distinguished representatives in every department of college life. Waller Hudson has long since been known as a great seeker after knowledge; Martin and Saufley are both prominent in literary lines; Sallee, who has been chosen as the leader of the '05 warriors, has become famous as a wrestler, and is also a great "ladies' man"; Anderson, Hutchings and Henson are known for their daring foot ball feats; Alexander, Thatcher, Sanders and Spencer are some of the many promising orators of the class; Tarkington is the profound and deep mathematician of the class; Francis W. Andrews is the champion Greek student; "Bonus" Ayres, "Pauline" Collins, and "Bobbie" Logan are the society swells, and Hager is the leading musician.

I wish that I might give the various accomplishments of each individual member of the class, but the time and the space allotted to me do not permit even the beginning of such an undertaking.

As a class I do not think a more friendly or congenial one could be found anywhere, and let us join in quoting that beautiful verse—

"Lend a hand to one another
In the daily toils of life;
When we meet a weaker brother,
Let us help him in his strife."

We love the past for its precious memories; our faces are turned toward the future. But allow me to suggest to the Freshmen, that they read the old, but appropriate stanza of Longfellow, and think of us—

"Lives of great men all remind us
We can make our lives sublime,
And, departing, leave behind us
Footprints on the sands of time."

History of the Freshman Class

“ Youth, with swift feet, walks onward in the way ;
The land of joy lies all before his eyes.”

It has been said that they are happy who have no history. Then it must needs be true that they are twice or thrice happy whose history is a record of unwavering success and noble attainment. As becomes this class, it does not care to exploit its own deeds, nor does it desire to flaunt ostentatiously its many laurels, but the historian is quickened to his task because he can no longer refrain from proclaiming the glories of his subject.

On the 10th of September, 1902, there stood upon the threshold of an untried existence, a noble band of students—the Class of 1906.

The brave assembled.”

Among the throng were those who came from the Academy, some who came from the eastern hills, some from the western plains, and some who had journeyed from the Sunny South, to drink of the copious waters of the Pierian spring. It is highly probable that the complexion of the class, at this time, resembled the verdure of the fields. But as every jewel requires polishing to reveal its brilliance, so the true lustre of the class, temporarily veiled, was soon made manifest by the various influences brought to bear upon it.

Hitherto, little had the Freshmen realized what troubles were in store for them. But upon their entrance into this life, shrouded in mystery, there swept over them, in gloomy reality, the reverential fear of the awe-inspiring faculty, and the bitter taunts of imperious Sophomores. To these trials were added the miserable days of pathetic longing for home and mother. This alone lacked very little of persuading them to abandon their noble purpose.

Despite all adversity, however, the class began, with an indomitable determination, the work before it, that it might taste the joy that springs from labor. And always has it evinced its willingness and proven its ability to accomplish whatever seemed best to those in authority.

Fully aware of the critical gaze of all, the Freshmen, by their manly deportment and studious propensities, have won respect. By their marked thoroughness and accuracy in class work they have gained the favor of the professors. No difficulty has been insurmountable to them; they have flinched at nothing. Among the pleasantest features of the year, and at the same time those which memory will forever hold dear, are the true friendships formed. These are the golden threads which college companionships weave into the fabric of human life, and nothing can spur one on to higher aspirations quicker than the enjoyment of these friendships.

That the class may not be regarded as effeminate, a few instances of its prowess in athletics should be cited. What Freshie's heart does not thrill with joy when mention is made of the gymnasium contest, in which his class reigned supreme over the Sophomores? An excellent football team upheld the honor of the class in every game, but defeats must sometimes be borne, else how can the full joys of victory be realized?

It is evident that the Class of '06 has been well represented in every phase of college life, and at all times has it shown that it is a valuable component of the college. Thus far in its career its life has run smoothly and quietly. It is true that the ravages of the faculty at the first examinations thinned the numbers to a considerable extent, but these, however, were circumstances over which the class had no control.

The election of officers was, mirabile dictu, void of factional strife, and an efficient corps was elected to guide the class and guard its future welfare.

As the year now draws to a close, the class nears the end of its Freshman existence. Soon the Freshman days will be gone "glimmering as the things that were," and our wonted places will be filled by another class pressing close upon our heels. But we shall rise to heights of broader erudition and our history, lately made, is but a preface to the story in which our successes are enumerated.

The guiding star of our career has not, like a meteor, swept with transient glare across the heavens, but with an ever-increasing effulgence, coming from under the horizon, it has now, in the fleeting days of our early college life, reached a position from which it lights, in vivid rays, our paths to glory and success.

Step by step we gain the heights,
Onward striving side by side;
Oh, the sweet and rare delights
Where proud learning's paths abide.

Still we labor in the field,
Prouder steps before us rise;
Patient toil at last will yield
Unto every one the prize.

The "Prep"
History.

AVE you heard the name of "Prep"?
Bosley says the road to knowledge
(Whether good or bad your "rep")
Leads through it to Centre College.
Years may pass but still you go
Plodding through the same old books,
Reading wars "De Gallico"—
Thinking of your fishing hooks.
"Take examples," ROSE would say.
This, for instance, is the kind
He would give us every day,
Wondering if we had a mind:
"Add the sense 'Squirt' now possesses
To one half he thinks he has,
Would he have all he professes?
Could he make the Freshman Class?"
Every thing is studied here,
From Geography to Greek,
Which is loathed by all this year
Save our friend there—Logan Cheek.
Professor asked one day in class,
"What animal gives shoes and meat
To you"? "Scrappy" let it pass,
"Dad," "Bob" shouted from his seat.
If we had a class in scrapping
We could pass in any fight;
None would dare to risk the strapping
That they'd get from "Prep" alright.
In athletics we're a leader—
To schedule games if not to win.
There's "H. A." we tried to beat her,
We will never TIE again.
With the "Fresh" we can't compete,
For it seems that every time
On the gridiron that we meet,
They repulse us line by line.
When we entered as "grade four,"
Our one hope then, to be seen
Left through many toils for lore,
Is—to be a Freshman green.
For perhaps that class can't shine
To the Sophs., who know it all,
But we think they're very fine
(Being them ourselves next fall).
Tho' the "Prep" to you seems small,
'Twas for small things that 'twas made.
There'd be no C. U. at all
If there's not a lower grade.

NELSON D. RODES, '07.

LAW

History of the College of Law

AT THE TIME of their consolidation in 1901, both Centre College at Danville, and Central University, at Richmond, had law schools in connection with the academic departments. The law school at Richmond was established in the early years of Central University, but after a time, the professors, who were also practicing attorneys, moved away, and the school was suspended. In the fall of 1898 it was revived under more favorable auspices, with the veteran law teacher, Hon. William Chenault, as dean, and Mr. R. W. Miller, of Richmond, associate professor, and these two gentlemen continued to conduct the school until the removal to Danville.

The Danville Law School was established in 1894. Through the influence and untiring efforts of President William C. Roberts, ex-Governor J. Proctor Knott was induced to give up his practice at Frankfort, and, as dean of the law school, to devote his entire time to the work of instruction. Associated with ex-Governor Knott were Hon. Robert P. Jacobs and Hon. John W. Yerkes, both men of wide fame and splendid abilities, whose lectures, like those of ex-Governor Knott, were eagerly sought by the students. When, several years later, owing to the pressure of other work, Mr. Jacobs and Mr. Yerkes gave up their positions in the school, they were succeeded by Hon. Robert T. Quisenberry and Hon. Charles H. Rodes. Ex-Governor Knott remained at the head of the school until June, 1901, when, on account of failing health, he felt compelled to resign and retire from active life.

At the same time the consolidation of Centre College and the Central University was effected, and the law department of the consolidated institution was established at Danville, under the name of the College of Law of Central University. Hon. Thos. P. Hill, of Stanford, was elected temporary dean, and, with Mr. Rodes and Mr. Arthur C. VanWinkle, carried on the instruction of the school during the session of 1901-2. In June, 1902, Mr. Archibald H. Throckmorton, the present dean, was elected, and, with Mr. Rodes and Mr. VanWinkle, constitutes the present faculty.

At the opening of the session last fall, the quarters of the law school were moved from the main building, where it had been greatly cramped, to the north wing of the old college building, which was overhauled and thoroughly adapted to the convenience of the school. The large room on the first floor was fitted up as a recitation room, while the room on the second floor was adopted as the library and general working room. The recitation hours were also changed from the afternoon to the morning.

In February, 1903, the law school received its first important donation. Upon the death of Mr. Jacobs, the honored and beloved member of the first faculty of the Danville school, his widow, Mrs. Zillah G. Jacobs, generously presented to the law school Mr. Jacobs' valuable and well-selected law library, accumulated by him during nearly forty years of active practice at the bar. In addition to the gift to the library, Mrs. Jacobs also gave a sum of money, which has since been used for the improvement of the appearance and convenience of the law recitation room and library.

The attendance upon the school during the last session has increased over fifty per cent, and the prospects of the law school are better than ever before in its history.

LAW BUILDING

History of Law Class '03

"VOLENS ET POTENS"

Be it known to all to whom these presents come, that the law class of '03 has passed into history. The history of every great country is made up of the histories of its greatest men, and the history of Old Centre is made up of the histories of the various classes that have graduated from its walls. As each great man leaves an impress on the history of his country, so this class leaves its impress on the history of our Alma Mater, and on the minds of our dear professors. Those who have done nothing worse have cut their names on some valuable piece of furniture. Classes ten generations hence will swear because we have left no place on which they may cut their names. Our dear instructors will never forget us, for their premature gray hairs will remind them of our moot court petitions over which they have worried so much. Whenever they hear of a student cutting classes, they will be reminded of one of our number, who is a graduate in the art of cutting.

The happenings of this class have been so numerous and so impressive that it is difficult to decide which ones should be chronicled for the enlightenment of future classes. At least, it should be remembered that the class went into politics early in its history. The brother who had the promise, as he thought, of the vote of every member of the class for president, and who was defeated by almost an unanimous vote, will remember that a vote does not count till it is cast. Our young aspirant for political honor will learn to take the advice, "you must not wince when some enthusiastic fool grasps you by the hand and twists and squeezes till you hear the bones pop." Politics is second only to courting Danville girls.

Much to our chagrin and mortification, we soon found that there were more aspirants for office than anything else, and as there were not enough offices to go around, we decided to elect those whose eternal fitness and long experience best prepared them for the respective places. "The Sucker," on account of his long connection with Centre and his ability to catch votes, most especially the latter cause, was made president. In order to have offices to go as near round as possible, we determined to have a vice-president, and "Sand-lapper's" desire for political honor was satisfied by this exalted position. Realizing that our secretary's duties would be very onerous, we elected our "King," who claims that all he has to do is to start his pen and it works automatically. For want of something better to do the class then elected your humble scribe historian.

In recalling our memories, pleasant and otherwise, we think of the J. Proctor Knott Debating Society. Were it not for the fact that we here had to mingle with the pesty Juniors we might call this one of the most pleasant departments of our work. If the deceased judges of our Court of Appeals only knew how we here reversed their most important decisions, methinks they would become restless in their graves. Here we met in legal battles before our honorable court. Armed with commentaries and reports, till we most fell under the load, we stood forth ready to face the fierce "Numidian Lion," or even a fellow-member of the Class of '03. These battles we trust have prepared us for the actual conflicts of our professional life.

If the reader of these lines ever chances, in passing down the streets of some of our cities, to see the "shingle" of some member of this class hanging out, we will go a ginger-cake, if he will step inside, he will find a thrifty-looking, busy man.

It should be remembered that our class has held its own in every department of college life. Had it not been for the law school, whence would have come two-thirds of the famous football players of fall of 1902? In every contest where we were not barred we have been, and not without honor.

When it comes to courting Danville girls, we have furnished three that are hard to beat. Though these may sometimes meet with reverses in moot court, they say the demurrer is unknown in Cupid's court, where they practice.

Whenever we hear of an attorney winning a case in spite of himself, we will be reminded how the judges ordered the sage of our class to take his seat, declaring that he (the sage) had forgotten what he was trying to prove. Yet he won the case. The law must prevail, and the court is presumed to know the law, even when the sage fails. Judge is still trying to find out when a special demurrer will lie. The judge favors demurrers, because they do not take much writing. We must not be understood as accusing the judge of the lack of industry, because he has been known to spend whole days finding excuses for not studying.

There are a number of other things that we would like to narrate, but we refrain to speak farther of our achievements for fear of making some of our members vain. It would not do to tell much, because the preachers would have less to tell at our funeral exercises. We bid you farewell, hoping the next time we see you, you will be in trouble, looking for legal advice. We are looking for trouble.

Chamberlain History.

1828-1903.

---

“ And from the sky, serene and far,
A voice came like a falling star,
Excelsior ! ”

This history of the Chamberlain Philosophical and Literary Society is the history of an organization, founded at Centre College, in 1828, and named after the first president of that institution, the Rev. Jeremiah Chamberlain. It is, in other words, but the narration of the deeds of seventy-five years, of which every student, who has been connected with them, may well feel proud.

The Society, in its infancy, fostered by college authorities, and enlivened by spirited rivalry and public demonstrations, grew and prospered from the very first. Its purpose was the encouragement of the literary efforts of the student body, and the first members never wavered once in their loyalty to its origin. Not alone the first, but each succeeding year has proven this equally true.

Thus by a close adherence to the example first set, its existence has been one long era of progress and success; one sweet reality of glowing deeds and great achievements, and the glory of its accomplishments sheds lustre not alone upon its own name, but upon that of the college as well.

At one time it stood as high as sixty-six in membership; and still, that year has by no means proven itself to be the most flourishing of the seventy-five, for while to-day it numbers only thirty odd members, yet, when we take into consideration the great number of other clubs that now exist, but were then not known, we see in proportion that the success and prosperity which first greeted the society still does not cease to be characteristic of each succeeding year.

Among those of the most distinguished who have honored her roll, we might name the Hon. Jas. B. McCreary, the Hon. J. C. S.

Blackburn, the Hon. Boyd Winchester, the Hon. Robt. C. Wickliffe, Rev. Willis Green Craig, Justice John M. Harlan, and many others.

With the consolidation of Central University, at Richmond, in '01, with Centre, there came also members of the Phililethean Society, which had formerly existed in the aforesaid university, and this society was consolidated with Chamberlain. For the society this union has proved to be a great success. The men from Richmond have captured several prizes and ever acquitted themselves with the highest honor and praise. The first of these was the declamatory contest, won by G. Oscar Letcher; the second, the oratorical, won by James Parker. The third contest of the year was the annual inter-society debate, and, after a hard-fought battle on both sides, victory was finally awarded our sister society, the Deinologian. Up to this writing there has been but one annual event of the scholastic year of '02-'03. This was again won by Chamberlain, her representative being Mr. Carl T. Michel. And it is, therefore, with good chances and hopeful feelings of victory, that we await the coming of the others.

Comparatively speaking, the society at present enjoys the most prosperous year of its long reign. "Still achieving, still pursuing," she has gradually climbed upward, and now upon the starry heights of fame sits crowned with glory and success. In her hands is still the old banner, "Excelsior," the token of her past struggling days, the emblem of her present attainment. And to the breeze does she fling it to wave triumphantly above. For her coffers are full; her hall large, convenient and comfortable; her new by-laws, the most successful and the best ever yet obeyed; her programs interesting and instructive; and her library of 1,400 volumes of the choicest literature.

In the West the sun is slowly sinking, and I turn from the thoughts of this wonderful career to gaze upon nature in her fairest form. I see the whole Western horizon clad in a blaze of glory, while clouds, once fleecy white, are now tinted with a fiery red. I am appalled! I am astounded at the beauty of the scene. And as I gaze upon the glory of that distant picture, I can but compare it to the glory of the Chamberlain Literary Society—established by the deeds of the past—ever to be preserved by generations to come.

SOCIETY*

DEINOLOGIAN Literary Society was organized in the year 1835, by a number of former members of the Chamberlain Society. From its earliest days to the present time, it has been a potent factor in college life. It has accomplished a great work in transforming shy, awkward, raw material into elegant and forceful speakers, and it points with pride to the many able men it has given to state and nation. No similar organization, in the South or West, can boast a more splendid array of noted characters, who have passed out from under its fostering care, to achieve honor and fame for themselves, and to shed a lustre upon the glorious records of the college and literary society with which they were connected.

The most distinguished of the earliest members of old Deinologian was John C. Breckenridge, Vice-president of the United States under James Buchanan, and a man prominent in the annals of his country as an orator and a statesman of great ability.

In 1853, during the time when the brilliant administration of John C. Young, as president of Centre College, was in its flower, the Athaenean Literary Society was organized, having among its members many men who have distinguished themselves in their respective walks of life. A few years after its organization, this society was merged into Dienologian.

Conspicuous among the many illustrious members of Deinologian, since the days of John C. Breckenridge, are James B. McCreary, United States Senator from Kentucky; ex-Governor John Young Brown, one of Kentucky's foremost orators; W. C. P. Breckenridge, ex-Congressman from the Ashland District, the "silver-tongued," whose fame for eloquence has been spread abroad in two continents; Thos. J. Crittenden, ex-Governor and ex-Congressman from Missouri, and Thos. Z. Morrow, Circuit Judge of the Eighth Kentucky District. These men were all members of the famous Class of '55. Among other distinguished names, which appear on the records of the society, are Wm. C. Young, D. D., former president of Centre College; John W. Yerkes, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Washington, D. C.; Judge Alex. P. Humphrey, and J. St. John Boyle, of Louisville, noted members of the legal profession, and Thos. W. Swope, of Kansas City, Mo., who so recently gave $25,000 to our institution.

At present Deinologian is the most flourishing literary society in college. Her membership is large, and her financial condition excellent. Her members are faithfully striving to follow in the footsteps of the illustrious men who, in former times, made the walls of the society hall ring with the echoes of their youthful eloquence. Without doubt many will realize their ambitions and attain to eminence when they shall go out into the active duties of life.

In inter-society contests Dienologian has ever held her own. Within the last five years her representatives have more than held their own, winning fifteen out of the nineteen contests in which they took part. Of the men from this institution who have won state, inter-collegiate and national contests, Dienologian has furnished a large percentage. Of the three contests held between Chamberlain and Deinologian this year, Deinologian won two. In the inter-society debate, held shortly after the Christmas holidays, Mr. R. C. Saufley won the medal as the best individual debater, and his team won the decision on the merits of the argument. Mr. E. R. Donaldson was the easy winner of the 22d of February oratorical contest, held in the Second Presbyterian Church. This is, indeed, a glorious record, and testifies to the earnest and determined spirit which characterizes the members of Deinologian. The spirits of those who have gone before, beckon us on to achievements yet more illustrious than theirs. Without doubt, out of her present membership there are many who will take their stands in the front ranks with the most influential men of the nation, in the legal profession, in statesmanship and in the ministry.

Y. M. C. A.

From humble beginnings, the Y. M. C. A. has been steadily growing during the last fifty years, until now its potent influence for the noble in life is felt the world around. It has entered many spheres of usefulness, but one in which it has been eminently successful from the first is its student department. Indeed, nowhere is there more need for a Christian association than in our schools and colleges. Christian civilization demands that its leaders shall be Christian men. The future leaders, whether they are to be ministers, doctors, lawyers, or business men, are now in our halls of learning, and must be won to Christ in the days of their youth. Hence the Y. M. C. A. is an association of men, in the fullest sense of the word, who believe that the future progress of the world rests with Christian men.

Nor were the students of Centre College, twenty-five years ago, blind to the advantages of the Y. M. C. A.; for in 1878, here at Danville, was founded one of the earliest student associations in the South, to be followed, not many years later, by a sister organization at the old Central University, in Richmond. Both did splendid work in the years that followed, until the consolidation of the two colleges, in 1901, brought the two together. The union seemed to act as an inspiration to all the members of the old associations. The membership increased, and with it the interest in the Sunday afternoon meetings grew. The Bible Study and Mission Classes gained new impetus. All the friends of the association were willing and anxious to help, and one lady, who was especially interested in the work, refurnished our rooms at the gymnasium. A reading room was also started for the use of Y. M. C. A. members. New life and enthusiasm seemed to be in all, and to crown a successful year, the association took an active part in Commencement, by having Dr. Lilly, of Alabama, deliver an address before its members, on the Sunday evening before the close of college.

The fall of 1902 showed a continuation of the interest. With the addition of a general secretary, the work has progressed rapidly and successfully. The membership has increased greatly during the past year, and we now have seventy-six members. Several prayer meetings have been organized in the dormitories, and interest has been especially aroused by the meetings of Mr. Buswell, of Wisconsin, last fall, together with the earnest talks of the delegates at the student conference held here in the early spring. The reading room has been increased and improved, until now it is an established feature of the association. Ten delegates were sent to the state convention at Lexington, this spring, and twenty-five dollars subscribed to the state work. Such are a few of the features of the association work for the year. Under our new officers, there is every reason to look with confidence toward the future, and believe that next year will be even more successful than the one just past.

THE DRAMATIC CLUB

EARLY in the fall of 1902, acting on a suggestion from members of the Senior Class, Dr. Chase proposed to the literary societies that an association be formed for the study of the English drama. Committees were appointed by each society, and the work began in November. Since then meetings have been regularly held in the English recitation room, at 7 o'clock Tuesday evenings. The work has been confined to the reading of plays at the meetings. The parts are assigned to the different members, a "stage" is cleared in the front of the room, and the characters make their entrances and exits as in a regular production. The plays thus read—one might almost say "presented"—have been Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night," "Julius Cæsar," and "As You Like It," Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer" and "The Good-Natured Man," and Sheridan's "The School for Scandal" and "The Rivals."

The work of the year has been enjoyable and profitable, and great progress has been made in the awakening and training of the dramatic instinct in the college. The members take their parts with a freedom and intelligent enthusiasm which is far removed from the stiffness which marked the readings in the early fall. Good dramatic material is being developed, and there is no doubt that a standard play can be given effectively next year.

No organization has as yet been effected. The following list includes the names of those who have been most regularly in attendance and have taken part in the "performances": Alexander, Allen, Biggs, Byrd, Caldwell, Cheek, F. P.; Cheek, W.; Clay, Collins, Cory, Crain, Edmonds, Faulconer, Ginn, Glenn, Hendy, Hicks, Hopper, Howe, Johnston, B. B.; Kagin, Lander, Larens, Linney, H. H.; Linney, J.; Lockhart, Logan, McMullen, Martin, Michel, Miller, Morgan, Morton, Muse, Rhorer, Robinson, Ross, Sandifer, Saulsberry, Smith, J. R.; Thatcher, Thompson, were elected honorary members.

At the meeting of March 3d, Judge James Denton and Mr. Edward Saxon Vaughan, Wilson, W. N.

The Seniors' Farewell.

To thee,
Farewell,
Old college dear!
The time has come to leave;
When we Must tell
Each other here
That which our souls doth grieve.

Adieu!
To you,
Old college walls,
You've seen us four long years.
We too
Love you,
Old college halls,
You've rung with all our cheers.

To thee,
Farewell,
Old college bell!
You've called us to our work,
And we
Would tell
You, warn those well
Who follow, not to shirk.

Good bye,
To thee,
Old campus green!
We hate to leave you here.
In joy,
In glee,
Have we been seen
Upon your bosom dear.

We grieve
To leave
Our college town;
Her maids have won our hearts.
We go,
They know,
Then others come
To whom their love departs.

Farewell!
Farewell!
To you we say,
Dear faculty, so true.
You taught
And wrought,
May we some day
Bring rich reward to you.

Again,
Farewell!
To friends so dear,
And scenes we leave behind.
In vain
We'll dwell
Through every year
For better times to find.

Hospital College of Medicine

THE HOSPITAL College of Medicine has the largest class this year in the history of the institution. The growth of this department of Central University should be most gratifying to all the Alumni of our beloved and esteemed Alma Mater, for it is a positive and palpable tribute to the efficacy of its teaching and shows that Central University in this, as in its other departments, is abreast if not ahead of the times.

On account of the removal of the Louisville College of Dentistry into its handsome new building the whole of the large four-story building has been devoted to the various departments of medical education and has afforded a much needed room for expansion. The space formerly occupied by the Louisville College of Dentistry has been converted into the most approved and up-to-date laboratories of Chemistry, Histology, Pathology and Bacteriology. The latest and most approved appliances and fixtures, designed by the best authorities in this country, have been secured, regardless of the expense, and the Hospital College of Medicine can boast of as complete an equipment in this line as will be found in the South or West.

While adequate and appropriate attention is paid to laboratory teaching, the policy of the school has been to insist upon clinical teaching, the bringing the student into direct contact with the patient, as the most practical and effective way in which the student could become acquainted with the phenomena of disease and its diagnosis and treatment. Although it was one of the first schools in this country to employ clinical methods of teaching in contradistinction to didactic methods, it has developed and added to its facilities in this department until now the students of the third and fourth year classes are required to spend five hours each day in examining and prescribing for patients, under the direction of the professors and their assistants in the various departments. The whole lower floor of the large building is devoted to section and clinical teaching.

Finding that the Gray Street Infirmary was inadequate to accommodate all the clinical and operative material which could be shown to the class, the Faculty has added very greatly to its already large capacity by building out to the street line and by adding another story, in this way practically doubling its former capacity.

The location of the College Building, across the street from the Louisville City Hospital, is most favorable for the students who wish to attend the clinics and lectures which are held in that building. The City Hospital is under the exclusive control of the faculty of the Hospital College of Medicine for a certain period of time during the regular session. The students of the Hospital College of Medicine are able in this way to get the benefit of the very varied experience offered by the sick poor of the entire city for that period. In this way they see a very great variety of surgical and medical cases.

Graduates of literary colleges with a degree, who have pursued the study of Chemistry and allied branches at college, are admitted to advanced standing, which places them in the Sophomore Class, and thus requires of them only three years of attendance on medical lectures instead of four.

The work of Y. M. C. A. of Hospital College of Medicine for Year 1902.

WE feel that a voice from our Association should be heard, hoping that the excellent work done in our school will create greater interest not only in our Institution, but in all others that have Associations, and may it prompt those that have none, to organize as soon as possible.

Our Association was organized Jan. 14, 1902, and enrolled one hundred and thirty-six (136) members, which was 31 per cent. of the students of the school. This was said to be the largest enrollment of any professional institution of the kind in America.

Its work was unsurpassed by any of the schools of this city. The treasury receipts for the term amounted to sixty-five dollars and  $\frac{20}{100}$  (\$65.20).

The Gospel Meetings were held regularly once each week, and were attended with much interest. The total attendance was 484.

The Popular Lecture Course was a grand success; it consisted of five splendid lectures, four of which were delivered by four of the ablest and most distinguished men in Louisville, as follows:

- DR. CARTER HELM JONES, D. D.
- THOS. HUNT STUCKY, A. M., M. D.
- JOSEPH M. MATHEWS, M. D., LL. D.
- LEWIS S. MCMURTRY, A. M., M. D.

The other lecture was given by DR. FENTON B. TURCK, from Chicago University, Chicago, Ill. The total attendance at these lectures was 1,700.

H. C. M. was well represented at the "Students' Volunteer Movement" Convention held in Toronto, Can., Feb. 26 to March 2, 1902. Five delegates were sent, as follows:

- |                            |                           |
|----------------------------|---------------------------|
| CHAS. L. WADDLE, Class '03 | S. J. HATFIELD, Class '02 |
| G. R. STOKER, Class '02    | T. S. SHARP, Class '04    |
| MASON COMBS, Class '05     |                           |

Mr. T. S. Sharp signed the "Volunteer Delegation Card." Mr. S. F. Parker, Class '05, Chas. L. Waddle and T. S. Sharp were delegated to the "Asheville Summer Convention," held at Asheville, N. C., June 14th to 24th.

Realizing that the work of 1902 was a grand success, we are in eager expectation of like results for the present year, 1903.

A Student's Dream

I HAD SPENT one hour on a Wald's Diseases of the Stomach, and another on Nat 'a Nuggles Materia Mediker. In some mysterious manner either the mental psychic effect of the chloral of which I read or the omnipresent hand of Morpheus—the light grew dimmer and dimmer—the printed words grew jumbled, and, finally, the book seemed to fade away. My individuality was gone; my self-control had also fled; an irresistible force carried me through vast space with the ease of a west wind. Suddenly a huge building loomed into view, with a tall spire, like a church; there were crowds of men going in and out; now and then a fine pair of horses were driven up, and dignified, portly men descended, and, amidst the cheers of the crowd, entered the open portals. A huge gong rang, the crowd disappears, entering a long, dark corridor, filled with whispering, vague images, musty volumes lining its walls. A phrenologist coon was pulling violently at the cord to the gong. A vast amphitheater next fell before mine eyes; the upmost seats topping the ceiling, with a diminutive circle at the bottom. Along the tiers of seats sat rows of distinguished-looking men. Then a tall, embonpoint, open-eyed, smooth-headed, big-voiced man entered, who, for one solid hour, proclaimed that the typhoid bacilli had lost their heads, and that the work was being done by scab labor. He said that unless the Eberth bacilli delegates were compromised, much trouble was in store—then he vanished. Somebody said, "you, sir," and, looking down, I saw another figure occupy the circle at the bottom. This man broke six long hickory sticks on a table down there, and seemed to be much worried because he didn't have time to tell anything he was thinking about. He made all sorts of faces at the men on the benches, but I couldn't see what he did it all for. All of a sudden he jumped off the table, picked up a wooden box he carried in his hand, and ran out. I didn't understand. Soon a big raw-boned man, with a gray mustache, rushed in, and said, very hurriedly: "Anybody seen my note-book? I don't know who took it; it's gone, anyway," and then he talked so fast that his mustache stood straight out from his face, and he declared he didn't see what made that dog bark so loud outside. Everybody thought it awfully funny. He said if anybody ever got struck in the head, you must always tell his wife he might not get over it, and told everybody to always not be surprised if all those kind of people didn't have concussion of the brain. He said he didn't know whether he made it plain or not, but if anybody saw his book to leave it lay where it was next time. Then he and a tall, thin-faced fellow, who had been watching him all the time, went out; everybody sat still; somebody said "daddy" was coming. Then a dignified, white-bearded gentleman came in a little doorway down there, hawked his throat twice, and walked around a table three times, and told a story about a quack female doctor, who gave a man who had a hole in his side for more breathing space, some medicine that made him move around forty-eight times before he died and twice after. He said for them never to do that; woke somebody up to ask what time it was, and walked out, very slowly. I didn't know what it all meant, but had begun to catch on a little.

Suddenly, a tall, straight blonde-whiskered, curly-haired man came in, and looked right at the top seats all the time. Everybody seemed mighty glad to see him—they made so much noise about it. He didn't seem a bit embarrassed, and talked a while about how many grams make a pint, and said he had a boil on the back of his neck, and another man was going to talk a little while to them, and left.

Then a tall, graceful, easy-mannered man, with a smooth-shaven head, walked in, and, in a most enthusiastic voice, said that since the days of Robert Koch, Sir Joseph Lister, and three or four other lords and ladies, that more ivory soap and wash-tubs and scrubbing-brushes had been used than in all the centuries before. In consequence of this the amalgamated society of improved color-bearing flagellated cocci and the dichotomous colon bacilli had gone on a strike, and were wailing about the empty dinner pail, the bichloride combine, and were only awaiting opportunity to show what they would do about it. No one seemed to doubt it, for everybody smiled so. I was beginning to catch on. Suddenly everybody left, and soon all was dark, and still something held me. Then a still, small voice echoed through the air, "on these seats many men do make their mark—never before has the upward trend of mankind been so verified; among those who sat here to-day are those who shall heal the kings and monarchs of the future; who shall carve deeply and lastingly upon the history of medicine. Weinberg, the cunning and shrewd shall rediscover Bassini's operation; Minetree shall find new lines of thought and expression in children's faces; Estill shall publish tracts of learning on diseases of young manhood; Carney shall edit special works of reference on the needs of a young country doctor; Depp shall follow Stucky's tracks, and honor will be vindicated. That great analyzer of men, Professor Dusch, shall unite Airiopathy to H<sub>2</sub>opathy and we shall see; Cox shall lead the demented to vales ambrosial, and make two and two make five. Such investigators as Allen and Paine shall surpass Robert Koch, and his Lordship, Lister. Pomeroy's histories shall chronicle wonderful variations of fungiform papillary bodies. Through Stahl's efforts at reconciliation much of the white man's burden will be lessened." With a wail of delight the voice vanished in nothingness. A loud voice, and I awakened. My materia medica had fallen to the floor; the light was out; the gray light of dawn came through the window.

Now—stern reality. My dream was over.

THE LOUISVILLE COLLEGE OF DENTISTRY.

Historical Sketch of College.

THE LOUISVILLE College of Dentistry was founded in 1887. The opportunity offered at that time to establish a dental college in Kentucky was recognized by the Central University, located in Richmond, and the faculty of the Hospital College of Medicine, also a department of Central University, founded a dental department in connection with the medical department, in Louisville.

THE FIRST SESSION.

The length of the term at this time was five months, and two terms were required for graduation. The first session there were received eighteen students, eleven of whom were graduated, they having attended their first course at some other college. At the second term there were in attendance twenty-three students, and at the third, forty-five. At the first session there were in the faculty two dental members. The college has grown from year to year, until, in the term ending May 7, 1903, the faculty numbers twenty, with fifteen other instructors, and matriculates three hundred and twenty.

In 1895 the college building had been further enlarged by the addition of a four-story, handsome structure, in front of the old buildings, extending to the property line. This large addition was made necessary by the great increase in attendance. Very shortly, even this was not adequate to the needs of the constantly increasing number of dental students, and, in 1897 and 1899, several thousand dollars were expended in re-arranging the interior of the building, to give the needed expansion of floor space for the dental department. These changes sufficed for a short time, when both departments found themselves uncomfortably crowded and it was finally decided that the schools must be separated, that each might have its normal growth unhampered by the other. As a consequence, the dental department was completely reorganized, a plat of ground was purchased, on the northwest corner of Brook and Broadway, on which was erected the building. The situation is one of the most desirable in the city, being accessible from all points by the car lines running past its doors, and their connections, and just far enough from the center of business to be free from the noise and dust there prevailing.

In the fall of 1900 we left our old home, in the Hospital College of Medicine, and proceeded to our new home, the finest and most thoroughly equipped dental college in the world.

Regular session begins October 6th and continues seven months.

History of Y. M. C. A.

The Young Men's Christian Association of the L. C. D. is now in its second year, having been substantially organized in the fall of 1901. There had been efforts made to substantiate such a movement in our school previous to this date, but the organization had not enjoyed any real fruition. We are now proud of a healthy body consisting of about forty-five members, a goodly per cent of whom are fervent, active Christians. We have also been able to reach some, and induce them to join us, who are not professed Christians. Our object is that of our sister organizations in schools, to keep burning brightly the fire of Christian love in the bosom of all who will cast their lot with the lowly Nazarene and bear up the other end of the yoke with him.

We have a class in Bible study for the purpose of promoting a thorough knowledge of the Scriptures, and these men are doing good work, evincing an earnest desire to know the truths as set forth in the teachings of the Messiah, and His followers.

In addition to the regular gospel meetings held once a week, we have introduced a popular lecture course, consisting in an occasional lecture for the general public, given by a minister or some other intellectual man who is interested in our work. This so far has resulted very satisfactory, giving new vigor to those already interested and bringing the work to the notice of others, who had not given serious reflection to it.

Although we feel our infancy yet in this department of our college, we are beginning to look forward with some hope that there will, in the near future, be a paid secretary employed for this special work in our college alone, just as there is now an inter-collegiate secretary employed by the central department of this organization for all the schools in Louisville.

Students' Sick Benefit Association.

One of the greatest movements of the Louisville College of Dentistry was the organization, during the session of 1901-2, of the Students' Sick Benefit Association. This association has, during the two years of its existence, reached an average membership of about one hundred students, and each member, who has been unfortunate enough as to need the services of a physician, realizes the fact that it is, strictly speaking, a sick benefit association. Said association has for its medical staff some of the most able physicians of the city of Louisville.

Meetings of said association were held, in which officers were elected and the following constitution and by-laws adopted:

CONSTITUTION AND BY-LAWS.

ARTICLE I.

This association shall be known as the Students' Sick Benefit Association.

ARTICLE II.

The object of this association shall be to provide medical services to the members of the association when they are sick, and all undergraduates, students in attendance upon the Louisville College of Dentistry, shall be eligible to membership.

ARTICLE III.

The officers of this association shall be a president, vice-president, secretary, and a treasurer, who shall perform the usual duties of their respective positions, and who shall be elected annually, except the treasurer, who shall be the dean of the Louisville College of Dentistry.

ARTICLE IV.

The fees of the association shall be one dollar per school term. Upon the payment of the above fee the treasurer shall issue to the member a card, which shall entitle him to free medical attention by any of the medical staff and a discount on all drugs, also hospital attention when ordered. The cards shall be non-transferable, and if presented by any other than the member whose name is upon the card the same shall be forfeited, and the said member and the one presenting the card shall not be eligible to membership in the association.

ARTICLE V.

The medical attention shall be for all medical diseases, and shall not include genito-urinary, surgical, or special attention on the diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat, but for such attention to members or attention to the members of the family of a member of this association, the usual charges shall be reduced one-half.

ARTICLE VI.

Modifications of these articles shall not be made without an affirmative vote of the association on the one part, and the medical staff on the other part.

College Glossary

BITE. Closure of jaws, during which the patient attempts to occlude the superior incisors with the lower third molars. Not to be confounded with correct occlusion.

BORROW. (a) A form of expression requesting the loan of an instrument for time and eternity. (b) A diplomatic request for a gift.

BRACKET. A revolving inclined plane.

CALL-DOWN. (a) A solar plexus blow, after which a fellow takes the count, and, on rallying, says privately to a friend he wants another match. (b) A buzz-saw in full action.

CLASS MEETING. A collision of thoughts, resulting in spontaneous combustion "with untoward results."

CLASS PICTURE. A beautiful work of art, portraying faithfully the marvelous beauty of its subjects.

CLASS SONGS. Choice selections from all kinds and grades of music, from religious hymns to comic operas.

YELLS. A series of Rah, Rah's, and Yaw, Yaw's—an extract from the minutes of Lakeland Insane Asylum.

DEMONSTRATOR. A human being much sought after, but seldom found.

DISSECTING ROOM. Enough said.

EXTRACTING ROOM. Musical department of the institution. Patti's notes daily surpassed. Tremulo furnished by students.

FIZZLE. Unsuccessful bluff.

FLUNK. Failure of a students to answer a professor's question. Almost too frequent to be remarked upon.

GAS EXTRACTION. An operation, during which the student learns that very little ossification has taken place in the cartilaginous vertebrae.

HELLO. The usual salutation, the intonation of which is the mercury in the thermometer of his opinion.

INSTRUMENT CASE. The eighth wonder of the world.

"KICKING." Persistent action of the voluntary muscles following a wound. Usually accompanied by disordered function.

LABORATORY. A circumscribed collection of noise.

LOCKER. A closet or drawer, in which a student is supposed to keep all his belongings. N. B.—Belongings must be made on the telescope plan.

METHODS. A highly developed system by which the impossible is made probable, as "I do not know whether it was accomplished by superior knowledge or superior methods."

ON THE CARPET. (a) The pro and con of a student's deportment. (b) A probable suspension of the student, and a promise of suspension of hostilities by the student.

PATIENT. A handy thing in the office.

PLASTER SIFTER. One like mother used to have.

PONY. An aged adjunct of the institution. Well groomed but twice a year, but active and hard to catch.

QUIZ. A system of questions, causing hyperæmia of the internal organs, accompanied by colloquative sweating and violent agitation of the lower extremities.

STUDY. A term formerly used to designate the evening occupation, but only referred to by the boys in their letters home.

SUPERINTENDENT. The hub around which our universe revolves.

SWIPE. A comprehensive term, which seems a convenient alley-way for conscience.

HISTORY OF S. P. LEES INSTITUTE

THE S. P. LEES Institute, formerly known as Jackson Academy, passed under the control of Central University in 1891. It is situated at Jackson, Breathitt county, Kentucky, in a healthful mountain region, on the north fork of the Kentucky river. Through the generosity of Mrs. S. P. Lees (from whom it derived its name), Mrs. N. F. McCormick, and other friends, many improvements have been made in the buildings and equipments. Two new departments were added, those of manual training and domestic science. These were fully equipped by Mrs. McCormick, who also established an electric light plant, to light the manual training shop on winter evenings; also to furnish light for the institute building and girls' dormitory. Mrs. McCormick has also provided for an entirely new branch of this great work, in erecting, in the mining district of Jackson, a neat and commodious chapel for religious purposes, and also for a free day school for those who do not attend the free school or institute. The building is known as the McCormick Chapel, and the school as the McCormick Free School. The buildings are surrounded by grounds which afford opportunity for out-door games. The chapel attendance, including that of McCormick Chapel, is over three hundred. Material progress has been accompanied by steady growth in attendance and in influence, until the institution is now the most potent factor in the educational and moral life of the whole region.

Location

THE Hardin Collegiate Institute, one of the four preparatory schools provided for in the charter of Central University, was established at Elizabethtown, Ky., in 1892. The buildings were erected at a cost of about twenty thousand dollars and are particularly well adapted to their purposes. It has a beautiful campus of eight acres, affording ample room for baseball, football and other outdoor sports. The demand for a Normal Department being so great, this was added to the curriculum and now offers excellent training to those who wish to become teachers. Its graduates are prepared to enter the Junior year of Central University or other first class colleges. The Hardin Collegiate Institute has steadily grown in size until it has several times the number of students with which it started, and is now enjoying its most successful year.

Law '03—In 1916.

On entering dreamland's portals,
I beheld a sight so fair;
'Twas a sight of wondrous beauty,
For the Class of '03 was there.

In the scene were the friendly faces
Of comrades loyal and true,
Men who are in life's struggle,
Who wore the "Cardinal and Blue."

Brown, with hair red and curly,
Was the first one on the scene;
He, with all of his notions,
Had really been made a "Dean."

Cornelison, the baby of Centre,
Was in the easy chair,
For he, by dint of hard struggle,
Had "Governor" for his share.

Harris, the meek and lowly,
Had "Senator" before his name;
But, in spite of all this honor,
He was friendly just the same.

King, with his winsome ways,
A name for himself had won;
Was a candidate for "Congress,"
And expected to make a good run.

Morgan, the true and faithful,
Was the pride of my whole dream;
For he, above all the others,
Was "Our President" in this scene.

Roberts, the sage of our Class,
Still had his New York way;
He was the head of "Our Bank,"
For with him law didn't pay.

Smith, ever valiant and true,
Represents the "Morgan Combine";
He, the best of our lawyers,
Is ever on the climb.

Walker, the widows' protector,
Is still making amends;
Has for his ever watchword,
Our motto, "Volens et Potens."

Respectfully dedicated to the Law Class of '03 by one of their number. B. A. LAW.

Nonparatus Hendy dixit,
With a sad and mournful look,
Omnes recti Prof. respondit,
Scripsit nihil in his book.

Though college days
Have their delights,
They can't compare
With college nights.

A short time before the ending of the second term, the Seniors had a test in Civics. One of their number, known by the name of Bill, desiring to make an excellent mark, busied himself on the night previous to the test, by making a most thorough preparation. He studied as he had never studied before, and the night was far advanced when, exhausted, but satisfied by the consciousness of a complete mastery of his subject, he laid down to pleasant dreams of the morrow's triumph.

The examination was held at a quarter to nine, but, unconscious of fleeting time, this Senior was still wrapt in the sound and peaceful sleep that only comes to the innocent. And when Morpheus' magic sway was at last broken, the fond hopes and aspirations which Bill had cherished a few hours previous were dismally shattered, for it was after ten o'clock.

MORAL: Do not study too late, even when you have an examination the next day.

Judge Mulligan's Famous Poem

“In Kentucky”

The moonlight falls the softest
In Kentucky;
The summer days come ofttest
In Kentucky;
Friendship is the strongest,
Love's light glows the longest;
Yet, wrong is always wrongest
In Kentucky.

Life's burdens bear the lightest
In Kentucky;
The home fires burn the brightest
In Kentucky;
While players are the keenest,
Cards come out the meanest,
The pocket empties cleanest
In Kentucky.

The sun shines ever brightest
In Kentucky;
The breezes whisper lightest
In Kentucky;
Plain girls are the fewest,
Maiden's eyes the bluest,
Their little hearts are truest
In Kentucky.

Orators are the grandest
In Kentucky;
Officials are the blandest
In Kentucky;
Boys are all the fleetest,
Danger ever nighest,
And taxes are the highest
In Kentucky.

The bluegrass waves the bluest
In Kentucky;
Yet bluebloods are the fewest (?)
In Kentucky;
Moonshine is the clearest,
By no means the dearest,
And yet, it acts the queerest
In Kentucky.

The dove-notes are the saddest
In Kentucky;
The streams dance on the gladdest
In Kentucky;
Hip pockets are the thickest,
Pistol hands the slickest,
The cylinder turns, quickest
In Kentucky.

The song birds are the sweetest
In Kentucky;
The thoroughbreds are the fleetest
In Kentucky;
Mountains tower proudest
Thunder peals the loudest,
The landscape is the grandest—
And politics—the damndest
In Kentucky.

WITH APOLOGIES—

The railroads are the fleetest
In Kentucky;
Passenger trains the neatest
In Kentucky;
If you wish to travel fast,
Use the “Henderson” first and last.
You don't want your time to waste;
That's the “road” that makes “the haste”
“To and thro' Kentucky.”

“Wouldn't it Jay You to SEE” —

Dr. Roberts on roller skates.
Prof. Fales cake-walk with his skeletons.
Dr. Blanton “speeling” for a side-show.
Prof. Redd in a bear dance.
Dr. Crooks on the police force.
Prof. Cheek in love.
Prof. Palmer without a grin.
Dr. Logan in a hurry.
Dr. Nelson in baseball costume.
Prof. Wagner with curls.
Prof. Chase become a husband.
Prof. Gordon as a bloomer girl.
Prof. Throckmorton on dress parade.
Prof. Bosley chastise the “preps.”
Prof. Rose without a pleasant smile.

SOMETHING SUBSTANTIATED

1. Something is nothing,
How can it be?
If something is nothing,
Then nothing we see.
2. Nothing is nothing,
All men agree,
And something is something
As something must be.
3. "Knowledge is nothing,"
Some men profess,
By such affirmation,
They knowledge confess.
4. I think and I know,
Therefore I am,
I know by this token,
That I'm a real man.
5. Some men would have it
We are deceived;
The knowledge is nothing
Which thus is received.
6. If I am deceived,
I then exist,
And on three meals daily
I find I subsist.
7. He then who is not,
Should you such find;
Deceived never can be,
Nor is he mankind.
8. He then who knows that
Man nothing can know,
Is a wise ignoramus,
His own bitter foe.
9. I consequently
Know that I know.
With knowledge I reason
And truth I find so.
10. I know that I am, and
Also I know
That if I have knowledge
I know that I know.
11. Something is nothing?
Do you still say?
To prove it you'll find, is
More work than play.

Young isn't mistaken for a statue ?
Yeager loves the "Chase" ?
Robinson is so proud of his red mustache ?
Allen is so extremely handsome ?
Milliken is so fond of Caldwell College ?
Donaldson is not a temperance lecturer ?
Biggs don't go on the stage ?
Boling lost his taste for milk ?
Lyon is so fond of Prof. Crooks ?
Lockhart is so deeply in love ?
Farmer don't like the farm ?
    ? tied Prof. Chase's door ?
Johnson is so shy of the girls ?
Sandifer doesn't get some new jokes ?
Schoolfield takes anti-fat ?
Smith P. is so fond of Danville ?
