Preface

IT IS but fitting that, after four years of labor, and some amusement withal, just as the Class of Nineteen Hundred and Nine is about to pass from the portals of its Alma Mater it should present to the Faculty, the student body and future students some remembrance of its college days. With the hope that the seventh volume of the "Cardinal and Blue" will serve as such a reminder it is presented to you.

James Venable Logan

Dedication

To the memory of Doctor James Venable Logan, to whom the Class of Nineteen Hundred and Nine is deeply indebted for his careful guidance and tender solicitude for our welfare, this volume is lovingly dedicated.

Senior History

WE are almost at the end. Ere long our college career will be of the past, save in our memories, where it will remain unblurred forever. And now as we near the goal of our ambition, as we hasten on toward the time when we shall step forth from the days of preparation out into the world of greater opportunities, we cannot help but feel that we have fought a good fight. The obstacles have been many and great, but the joy in overcoming them has been so much the greater; the disappointments and failures have at times been deep and bitter, but the successes have been only the sweeter and more worthy of winning.

The thirteenth of September was a glorious day for Central. Never before in the eighty-six years' existence of the College had there been such an auspicious opening; for the Class of Nineteen Hundred and Nine had come into existence—the Class of which such wonderful things were expected—the Class which now, as we notice its history, we see has fulfilled so well those expectations. Those early days were turbulent times for us, fresh from the surroundings of home and old friendships. We laughed at and made fun of, tossed this way and that, driven to Caldwell and back, smoked time upon time, but we lived through it all. Never will we forget the Gym. receptions, when first pierced by Cupid's darts we were suddenly jerked from our dreams by ruthless Sophomores. Hallowe'en will ever be a pleasant recollection, for even though painted and paddled, we enjoyed the fun. And yet though thus tossed about on such stormy waters we made a record of which we are proud. In athletics we were represented by two men on the Gym. team, one on the basketball, four on the track and four on the baseball teams. A member of our Class captured for Central the honor of winning the last intercollegiate declamatory contest held in Kentucky. But the event of the first year, as with every class, was the annual flag rush with the Sophomores. For hours we fought on that beautiful spring morning. No battle in history was ever waged more bitterly. All through the morning the fate of the two classes hung in the balance and when toward noon neither was the victor the rush ceased as a draw. But let us hasten! The year ended! Acquaintances had become classmates and the companionship of the classroom, campus and athletic field had ripened into friendship.

The summer was fading, the leaves were beginning to change their beautiful garb of green for their more splendid cloak of all colors, brown, crimson and gold, when we began to gather back on the familiar old campus. Our ranks broken by the failure of some to return were replenished by new recruits. Willingly we gathered them unto us and they became of us. With the experiences of the preceding year still fresh in our minds we proceeded to take hold of the members of the Class of '10 and bring them up in the way in which they should go. We spared neither rod nor leaf and endeavored to train the Freshmen aright. But we were not too engrossed with them to forget the glory of old Central. On the football team Cave and Barclay contributed more than their share in winning for the CARDINAL AND BLUE the Football Championship of Kentucky. In the winter our Class was represented on the basketball team by Raworth and Hess. On the cinder path we find Ebbert, Hopkins and Barclay, the last of whom by his prowess won for himself the honor of being "King of the Carnival." And on the Varsity Nine the Sophomores were ably represented by Cave, Harper and Ware, the last of whom was the mainstay and spirit of the team. On the staff of the "Cento" two of the six editors were Sophomores. "As regards scholarship the records show that high averages were obtained by more members of our Class than by any other class in College." But the crowning glory of our second year at Central was the flag rush with the Freshmen. During the night preceding the battle the Freshmen raised their flag. When we came on the campus the next morning we saw the snowy white banner of '10 wafting in the breeze. In the tree to protect it were two "Freshies" and on the ground around the trunk was huddled the rest of the class. Thus we saw them, hopeful, aspiring great honors. But what a change Time and the Class of "Nought Nine" can make. In less than an hour the entire Freshman Class was securely bound in the Gym., and the banner of '10 was divided between the members of '09, an ample reward for a victory which had never before been equaled in the history of the College—for this was the first time a flag had ever been taken down in a Freshman-Sophomore Rush. And so it was only fitting that our glorious Sophomore year should end with this most glorious achievement.

Fully rested during vacation from our toils in classroom and on athletic field we returned in the fall of '07 to fight battles and win new victories. Our band had been sadly ravaged by the combined efforts of Father Time and the Faculty, but the fittest had survived and returned to begin the last half of the college career. We entered into the conflicts with a vim and a determination to win. We contributed to the football team, three men; to basketball one; to baseball, one; and to track, two; one of whom was captain. The editor and business manager of the "Cento" besides some of the assistant editors were members of our Class. The winners of the February and June Oratoricals were also Juniors. It was also during our Junior year that the Synods took an action which it is hoped will be very beneficial to Central—namely the taking of the University from the control of the church and making the Board of Trustees a self-perpetuating one. By this means we receive the benefit of the Carnegie fund. But this action was not one for rejoicing entirely. Nay, it has cost us dearly, for by it there were retired from the Faculty three men whom we had learned not only to respect, but more, to love—men who had meant much to us and from under whose guidance we were loath to depart—Doctors Logan and Nelson and Professor Fales.

The summer over, we again returned to our familiar haunts on the campus, to the scenes of pleasant memories in old "Breck" and to our walks up "Lexington." And yet it was with a feeling at once of joy and sorrow that we returned, glad to come back again to old friends—glad once more to grasp by the hand the fellows we had come to better know and like through the past years, and yet sad, very sad, with the knowledge that for the last time we were so assembling. And our sorrow was only deepened when we realized that no more would we be greeted with that cheerful good-morning, for the all-loving Father had seen fit to take him to his reward, so justly deserved.

The past three years had been glorious ones—we had learned and, so we thought, suffered much. But as we turned into the last lap we forgot the heartaches of the past and pressed on more determinedly. The road that we have climbed has been steep and dangerous and many have fallen. From fifty-two we could now count only twenty-one, but these are bound by ties which shall last through eternity. In athletics we have so far contributed the captain to the football team and two men to the basketball team. The prospects for the spring sports are exceedingly bright and we will do our share. The success of the "Central News," the reestablished weekly, is assured, for the editor-in-chief and business manager are Seniors. The young Science Hall of which we had heard so much—the building which had been heralded by President Hinit ever since we had come—is now a reality. On January eighth it was dedicated—an appropriate event for the Senior year of such a class.

But now the day of our college career is almost gone. It has been a bright one. At times a rift of cloud has drifted into the sky, but the sun of friendship and good fellowship quickly dispersed the shadows. Fellows, who four years ago were strangers, had become fast friends, the Faculty once, as we thought, to be dreaded, have come to be looked upon as our friends. The ideals of the Freshmen have ripened into the realities of the Senior. Then we dreamed of what we would do; now we are doing what we dreamed, but yet still dreaming of what we will do. But it is ever thus. The past has been filled with good things, but the glorious, yes, even marvelous, possibilities of the future, while compared with them, seem like vast eternity in its immensity compared to the fast-fleeing second, and then the past dwindles almost into insignificance. And as we go out into these possibilities of the morrow let us resolve to make for ourselves and the world not a Living but a Life. The Faculty and our friends to whom we soon shall say "Farewell" expect much of us. The existence of "Naughty-Nine" has scarcely begun and its glory and the honor of its members depend on every one of us. Let us depart from old Central determined to make the world the better for our being there to brighten its joys and lessen its sorrows. Then we for the last time join together with our honored President in that good old hymn "God Be With You Till We Meet Again." Let us resolve that we will bring shame on none, but glory on all. Then, truly, if we live a Life and not a mere Living, we shall

"See our Pilot face to face,
When we have crossed the bar."

And now to the Faculty, to our friends and to the undergraduates we say, in the beautiful language of the old Indian medicine man: "Farewell, Farewell, Thrice Farewell."

Born in Jackson, Ky., July 8, 1889. Prepared at the S. P. Lee's Collegiate Institute. Entered Freshman Class. "Tush Hogs," '07; Varsity Football Team, '08; Deinologian; Y. M. C. A. Expects to be a lawyer.

“GAWGE.”

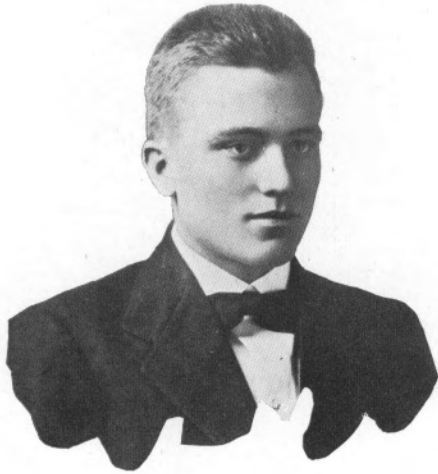

Those who know George will hardly see how he can turn into a lap dog because of his height, but nevertheless this is what the future holds in store for him. Not altogether because of the length of his ears, which resemble those of the animal named, but above all because there is something about George that none of the female women can seem to resist. In other words George is a lady-killer and a heart-smasher as well. He is like the powder rag; the girls always want him near. Go on, George, we're for you.

“LITTLE BACH.”

Although “Bach” is the largest man in the class he is called little, because there is another Bach in College larger than he. In fact, “Big Bach” is the largest man in six states. Now, I know others are wondering why we have changed little Bach into a hog. Those who know him well guess because of his facial resemblance to “Prexie.” Keep on guessing, you're getting hot. Of course, Little Bach's habits are not like the hog, but his general nature, his walk and grunting way of talking suggest that he will transmigrate into a Berkshire hog. That's the way Little one, always be the whole hog or none.

HUGH CASSIDY, A.B.

Born in Trussvill, Ala., May 23, 1889. Prepared at Carleton College, Farmington, Mo. Entered College as Sophomore. Class Football Team, '06; Class Basketball Team, '08. Expects to study Medicine.

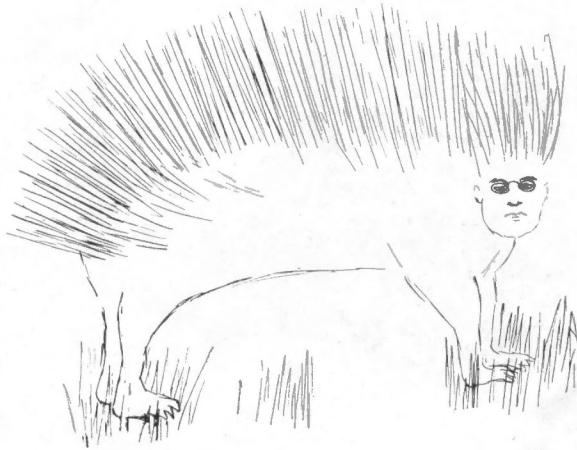

HENRY WISDOM CAVE, A.B.

“Cas” was always fond of being in style and so when the new way of wearing the hair struck College, he was one of the first to enlist, as a follower. Now, Cas’s hair was meant to wear one of two ways, either not combed at all, or bald-headed. Thus the porcupine effect from the pompadour. But this is not Cas’s only resemblance to the “sticky” animal. Hugh wants to be nice to the ladies, but—well, anyhow, the girl who accompanied him to the last dance said she had “a sticky time.” Everything seems to stick to Cas, even the terra firma has a great affection for him, and he always has an amount of real estate on his hands.

The personal friends of “Heinie” will know immediately why we have turned him into a cow. The casual observer would think because of his size, shape and walk. These likenesses of the two animals (the cow and Heinie) cannot be doubted, but they are not the main reason of this transmigration. Far be it from such. Here it is in a single word. Heinie’s appetite can only be measured by that of a cow turned out in the pasture. Did you ever see Heintz when he wasn’t either eating or chewing his cud (chewing gum). Of course, if we wanted to we could tell of the time on the basketball trip to Georgetown. Heinie ate three whole suppers and seven extra baked potatoes. But we refrain from mentioning this.

GYFFORD DAVIDSON COLLINS, A.B.

Born in Louisville, Ky., February 13, 1886. Entered Freshman Class, '05. Captain Freshman Basketball and Baseball teams; Captain Sophomore Basketball and Baseball teams; Sophomore Football Team; Varsity Baseball Team, '08; Round Table; Member of Honor Court; Vice-President Y. M. C. A., '07, '08; President Y. M. C. A., '08, '09; Deinologian; President Junior Class; Centre College Orchestra; Glee Club; Annual Staff.

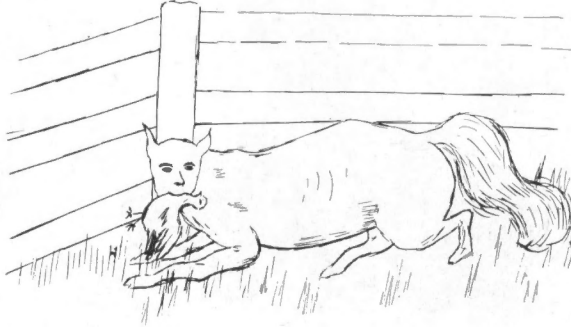

MILTON MITCHELL DURHAM, A.B.

Born in Danville, Ky., August 21, 1888. Prepared at Centre College Academy. Entered Freshman Class. Y. M. C. A.; "Tom Sawyer" Cast; Four-Year Seniors; Art Editor CARDINAL AND BLUE, '09. Expects to study Music.

"GIF."

I am not a scandal monger, but here is a secret too good to keep. "Gif" is President of the Y. M. C. A. Two years ago he had a girl at Houstonville. At that time Houstonville was a wet town, they actually sold the "bug juice" there. Of course, this has nothing to do with the girl, it is Gif we are discussing. Houstonville has gone dry and Gif has deserted the maiden fair. We have noticed lately that he rides the Lawrenceburg local a great deal, "going to see a girl," and Lawrenceburg is wet, in fact it is the nearest wet town in the vicinity. Now, of course, this is a secret and we don't want it talked about. Oh! "Gif," you're a sly old fox.

"MILT."

Those who saw "Milt" portray a female role, in the production of Tom Sawyer, have always wondered why the good Lord didn't make Milt a woman. That is easily explained; he started to, but then thought better of it, and made him a man so he could play the piano in chapel. Ever since Milt in his Freshman year edited the column on needlework and household hints in the College paper we have known that he was destined to be turned into a lady bug. Now, don't get rattled, Milt, and fly off, for the Class of '09 couldn't get along without its little Milton.

LAWRENCE W. HAGER.

Born in Louisville, Ky., on May 28, 1890. Entered Freshman Class in '05 from the Frankfort High School. Carnival Director, '07; Treasurer of Deinologian Literary Society; Secretary of Athletic Association, '08; President of Carnival Committee, '08; Treasurer of Junior Hop Club; Central News Staff; CARDINAL AND BLUE Staff; Senior Member of Honor Court; Manager of Baseball Team, '09; Kappa Alpha; Deinologian; Junior Club; Deutsche Verein; Salutatorian; Y. M. C. A.

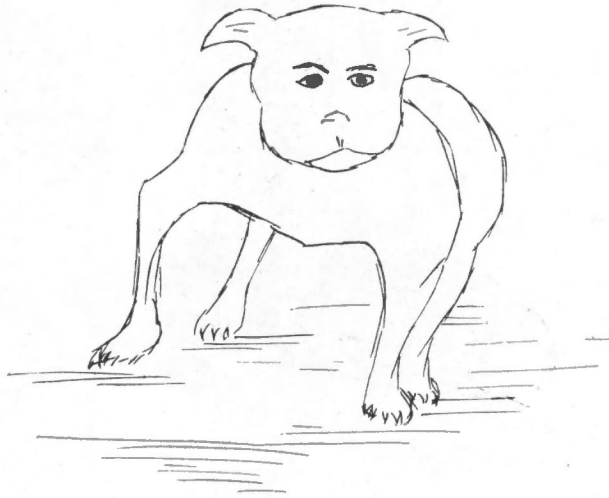

FREDRICK I. S. HESS, A.B.

Born December 22, 1888, at Louisville, Ky. Prepared at Louisville Male High School. Entered Sophomore Class. Sophomore Football and Baseball teams; Varsity Basketball Team, '07, '09; Historian Senior Class; Annual Staff; Life Work Undecided; Deinologian; Senior Club; P. E. T.; W. C. T. U.; Y. M. C. S. A.;  $\Sigma$ . A. E.

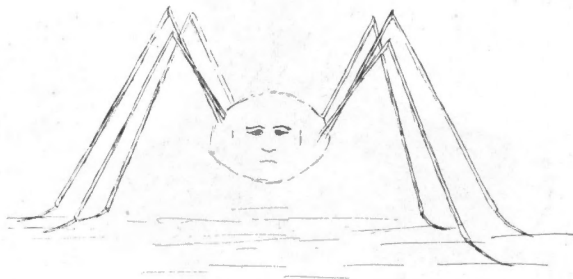

"Cuss."

Ever since Seelbach licked three Freshmen with one hand for calling him a name that in reality belonged to Professor Throckmorton's bull dog it has fallen to Cuss's lot to be "Moo." The resemblance is very close between all three of the above named, and a local post-card store is getting out a new edition of "when shall we three meet again," bearing on its face the photograph of this triumvirate. Of course, we want to cast no slurs on Professor Throckmorton's dog, for it is not poor Moo's fault. We feel sure he would change his face if he knew he would have to appear on a picture with "Cuss" and "Louie." Poor dog!

"FISH."

Our friend "Fish" is the proud possessor of the longest pair of limbs in the Class, as you can see from the accompanying illustration of him in the next world. What is still more wonderful, his feet correspond in size to the legs to which they are attached. Fish had prepared to go up to the masquerade party at Caldwell as a girl, but when he had rigged himself up in skirts and happened to notice his feet protruding seven rods from the edge of said skirts he gave up the idea and decided to go as a fishing worm. Needless to say he was a perfect success. All of the girls bit. Now, Fred, don't worry about your legs, they'll be with you longer than any part about you.

WALTER A. HOPKINS, A.B.

Born in Henderson, Ky., December 6, 1887. Entered College as Freshman. Track Team, '06, '07; Secretary of Y. M. C. A., '07, '08; Relay Team which won trophy cup for Central, at Louisville, Ky., in '08; Track Team, '08; Vice-President of Y. M. C. A., '08, '09; Member of Great Walkers and Canoe Club.

GEORGE FRANCIS LEE, A.B.

“Hop.”

When one of the Freshmen was asked in the English class the other day what of all things was the most read, replied “Walter Hopkins’ head,” and he didn’t miss it much. Did you see the Prep. fence burn up the night of the football rally? Well, Hop’s head is just the color that those flames were. So you see why he is turned into a woodpecker. Another reason is that when Hop wants anything or goes after anything he keeps pecking at it until he succeeds in getting it. Some might think that Hop will be a woodpecker because of the relation of his head to the first part of the above-named animal. But this is a false rumor.

“Kid.”

The casual reader would hardly see how any real live human could turn into a snail. But that casual reader doesn’t know Kid. Those of us who were interested in the basketball schedule know that Kid was even slower in getting that up than a snail could have been. At the present writing two thirds of the season for this sport is over, and only state games are arranged. No trips are scheduled. But Kid’s a mighty fine fellow; has been for the two years he’s been in our Class, the other four years he’s been in College here; and was the year he spent at Princeton. We don’t say how many years George has been in College, but he has turned into a snail.

"MAT."

"Mat's" grin is as broad as the day is long, and he's proud of it. That's right, Mat, always be pleasant because you never can tell when Doctor Gordon may have his eye on you. Well, two and two make four. Remember the Physics Fellowship and listen to Doc's tune:

Keep on smiling, Mattie, smiling,
don't be grieving
There's a time for me and you,
To the Lab we'll go together, and the weather
Will be smiling on us two.
'Tho the days seem long and weary,
don't be dreary
For I always want you near,
And if you will be my assistant
Keep on smiling, dear.

"JACK."

From the time "Jack" won the declamatory contest in his Freshman year even through the time he had himself elected President of the Class in the Senior year it has been evident that a peacock's fate will be his in the years to come. Just look at the pose of his head and watch him strut and the likeness becomes perfect. Ever since Jack became walking delegate and ward politician, holding the Frat vote in the palm of his hand, he has been "cock of the walk." Since then he has been president of every organization in College, and it is rumored that after graduation he will apply for Doctor Hinitt's position as President of the University.

EDWARD FORD McCONNELL, A.B.

Expects to study Law.

“ED.”

“Ed” is always in on every deal. But what did he ever get out of anything? Everybody likes Ed, and takes pleasure in working him. Then why not a sucker? Some will think that Ed has changed into a sucker because of the shape of his mouth and lower portion of his head, which resemble the above member of the finny tribe. Now, of course, I will not admit this slander on Ed’s countenance. But just take a good look at both pictures of Ed for yourself, the one as he is today and the other as he is to be tomorrow (or the next day, or some future time).

JOHN.

John is a wise old owl. He believes in doing things right. That’s the reason you never see him except at class time. The rest of his time he is in his room studying. He believes that if it takes all your time to do one thing right, then give all your time to that thing. One day John got ahead in his work, so he cut school all day so he could sit up all night and study to catch up. John is a very bright boy, studies a great deal and would be valedictorian of the Class—if there weren’t twenty other members.

LAWRENCE INGLIS McQUEEN, A.B.

Born at Milledgeville, Ga., January 26, 1889. Prepared at Covington, Ky., High School. Entered Freshman Class. M. C. A. Expects to study Medicine.

“MAC.”

Some will think that “Mac” is a lobster because of the pink complexion of his countenance. Mac went to a dinner party one day and like the proverbial lobster he blushed when he saw the salad dressing. There is another vital reason for turning Mac into a lobster. He is so easily worked. A certain young lady, living about a mile from town, has made a regular “red bug” out of him. When anybody wants anything done they just get Mac in on it and he’s always ready to put his hand in at anything, even to make extemporé speeches in public for the manager of the Opera House. Yes, old man, you’re a lobster.

“LITTLE CUSE.”

Like the mosquito “Cuse” is little—but loud. You always know when he’s coming, he makes himself heard. In fact, Cuse is very fond of humming around and he is just about as quick in this life as he will be in the one which the picture shows for him. Like the mosquito, too, he has a language peculiar to himself, which nobody else can copy. He is always inventing new slang phrases, and they are the pride of his existence. Just the general appearance and carriage convince us of the fact that he can be nothing else than a mosquito, so he can “bug” right on into the next world.

Expects to be a Lawyer.

"MIKE."

Rubber! "Mike's" neck? yes rubber. If you don't believe it just examine for yourself. Mike wears a size twelve and a half collar, but he has to have them manufactured especially for his personal use, as they have to be nine inches in height. If he doesn't keep his neck braced up with a collar of this height the weight of his head will cause his neck to double under him. One day, in a basketball game, he risked taking off his collar, and you can see from the picture what happened to him. Right then he turned into a giraffe. Now, Mike don't worry about your neck, it's the best part about you.

"BENNY."

Having written up the rest of the Class, and not being allowed to choose what I will be myself, my classmates have elected me to the high position of turning into a flea. I only know of one reason they could have had for this selection of comparing me to a flea. I certainly have "stung" some of them properly, and I think they feel "bit." And now they are "back-biting" at me. Well, I'd rather be a flea than a snake! Get out your old joke book and see why!!

"SAINTY."

Ain't it awful, Mable? Look what our friend "Sainty" has turned into! Well, that's what comes of always kicking up a stink in this world; we have to pay for it in the next. However, Sainty has his good points, too. He is so sweet to the ladies. His girl calls him her "essence of clover." She thinks quite different of him than does nature, which has turned him into a—, well, look at the accompanying photograph, taken in 1970, in another world from ours. Sainty is very fond of nice smelling talcum powder and all sorts of perfumes, too. There's a reason! Post 'em.

"VINS."

Although this is "Vins's" first year with us, we have no doubt in determining what he will be in the future. Just look at his noble countenance and the pose of his graceful head—and there you are,—without knowing it he has changed into a polly parrot. Then there's another reason, too, for this transmigration—Vins knows all his books off by heart. He can recite any lesson he's had since the beginning of the year, word for word as it is in the book. Just tell him the page and line you want him to begin on, and that's all you have to do, except stop him (and that's the hardest part).

HUGH ALLEN VORIS, A.B.

Born in Burgin, Ky., November 2, 1888. Prepared at Centre College Academy. Entered Freshman Class. Sophomore Baseball Team; "Tush Hogs," '07, '08; Treasurer of Chamberlain, '08; Vice-President of Chamberlain, '09; Four-Year Seniors; Astronomy Club. Life work undecided.

RICHARD GOTT WILLIAMS.

“HUGH.”

Did you ever see Hugh on the street in bad weather? No, nor in good weather, either. He is very fond of staying in his room by himself, as he says, so he will be sure of being in good company. In this respect he is very much like the mole. You only see him when you go after him and dig him up. And if you don't watch, he's gone back to his room again before you know it. He's just as quiet as a mole. Now, Hugh, liven up a bit, get gay, if necessary, but don't stay ten years too old for yourself all through life.

“DICK”

NOTE:—Owing to the fact that “Dick” has been forced to leave College we refrain from passing our opinion as to his future, his merits and defects, when he is unable to defend himself.

CHAPTER I.

1. There was a Class in the College of Central whose year was 1910; and that Class was perfect and upright and one that went to church and eschewed evil.
2. Its substance at first was two score and five, so that this Class was the greatest of all in this year.
3. But certain of its number fell into evil ways—and according to the Law and the Prophets were called upon to return back into the homes of their fathers.
4. Now there came a day when the sons of the Class came to present themselves for combat with their hereditary foes.
5. And, verily, in this evil day, owing to their scarcity of numbers in this first year of their service, they did fall victims to the evil devices of the enemy.
6. And now through the space of three moons they went each to his separate domain to build up their forces for coming conflicts.

CHAPTER II.

1. And it came to pass, when this period of rest was over, they came again to present themselves before the Chief Prophet, and behold "Satan" was in their midst, who lead many astray from the paths of righteousness.
2. But, lo, in certain exercises which it was the custom to engage in at this season of the year, they smote their enemy with exceeding great vigor and came out victorious and with redoubled strength.
3. And now the influence of "Satan" was made known through many misdeeds and mysterious happenings.
4. The holy place was desecrated and the seats of the Prophets thrown down.
5. Yea, and verily, the chariot horse of the Chief Prophet was deprived of his chief ornament—and the chariot itself was filled with an exceeding great stench.
6. The walls of the temples were covered with strange devices to heathen gods.
7. By reason of these happenings and the false interpretation of the Laws certain of their number were forced to return home as prodigal sons, their fathers, however, forgetting the fatted calves.
8. Yea, but pride goeth before a fall, this Class was exalted for a little while, but in the great conflict of this year they were cut off as the tops of the ears of corn and brought low.

CHAPTER III.

1. And in the third year they came back few in number, but fervent in spirit.
2. And up to the time when this chronicle did cease they had done many deeds of valor and won much honor in all things they did attempt.

Sophomore History

'T WAS back in the year 1907 we began our eventful career as college students; this Class of 1911. Well do the Faculty recollect our appearance on the green, and long will our virtues and vices be remembered in the annals of Central University, for we have done memorable things since our inception into the life of this Institution. No phase of college life has not been invaded by this most precocious Class, be it athletic, literary, musical or just a simple college-boy's prank. This Class of "Fun and Flunk" were there with "bells on," and you could hear them jingling all along the line.

In football we come in for our share of the glory with such men as Todd, Andrews and Whyne, who played an important part in holding up the honor of this College on the gridiron. In Stults we furnished the winning card in baseball, for none can deny that it was his superb work in the box that saved us from going down to defeat. And Temple was an able second. We also did our part in other lines of athletics, concerning which we need not make specific mention. In literary we had one man in the Ernst debate and several men in the Glee Club and Orchestra to uphold the musical reputation of the Class. As for our part in the fun we have not space to go into details. The evidences of our participation in this phase of college life have been of a most tangible character.

We are not altogether the Class that assembled under the banner of 1911 over a year ago. Some have fallen by the wayside for one reason and another; others played with fire too near that powder magazine, Faculty's Wrath, and in the resulting explosion turned up missing. But we are still "in the ring."

When the smoke of that explosion of December, 1907, blew away and the fragments were collected it was found that the Class of '11 was not entirely annihilated. We were shattered, but our spirit had not been broken. We had so far recuperated as to bring defeat and ignominy to the Class of '10 in that event of the year, the flag rush.

Thus in a few words we have put before you some interesting facts concerning this Class whose motto has been "Fun and Flunk."

Freshman History

THERE assembled on the campus of Central University, September 10, 1908, as "husky" a bunch of so-called Freshmen as ever collected anywhere at one time. But they, as everyone else, had their failing, neither knowing where to move nor how. As soon as some of those much feared Sophs entered upon the scene we began to move, and that at a fast rate, being fully stimulated with paddles and plenty of them, too. After so long a time we registered and found our Class officer, who sent us to the treasurer. We had felt pretty good until we had been at the treasurer's office when we began to feel somewhat depressed. But that was not anything as compared with the way we were forced to give up the hard-earned cash to one known as "Johnnie," in other words, John W. Redd, "the bookseller."

Thinking we would get the college spirit (which we did in abundant force), nearly all of us went to the Gym reception, which we found out later was given especially to us. We did not know we were so important then, but soon found it out, neither did we know what we could really do till we were given a fair trial up at Caldwell, "the old stand," where we found out we could pose as most any kind of animal, or object, or do most any kind of impossible act.

The football season having just opened we were given extensive practice for "rooting." Our boys were tested in a way never known in the history of medicine. Some days we would start to class and before we would get there, or most any other time, we would be bending over a pile of smoking leaves, inhaling the smoke just like an old-time smoker.

This fad, as we will call it, had no more than played out when on Hallowe'en night we were escorted from our room and were served in courses: first, paddles; second, paint, and purple at that; third, iodine, as a trimming, you know; fourth, a parodine, and the rest came so fast we could not keep account.

We have done exceedingly well in athletics, having three good men on the varsity football team and several other men who made good races for their position and will be in the game for certain next season. We, unlike the Freshmen of last year, won the Annual Fresh-Soph Game by a score of 4 to 0. The game was played on the middle of the field and won by a pretty place kick of Davant. Let us rejoice over our past victories and strive harder to win still more in the near future, and giving as the best wishes for our success nine RaHS for that Class of 1912.

History of Law Class of '09

THE largest and most heterogeneous class that ever passed through the Law School of Central University is now ready to go out into the world and see that justice is meted out to everyone. I feel that it is useless to say much concerning our past when I think of the familiar saying, "The past is gone—the future is what you make it." But, on the other hand, I also feel that the world would be greatly disappointed without a record of our past, so I will, in a superficial and desultory way, give a short account of our illustrious career while in College:

The history of every great country is made up of the histories of its greatest men, and the history of the Law School of Central University is made up of the histories of the various classes that it has graduated. As each great man leaves an impress on the history of his country, so this Class leaves its impress on the history of our Alma Mater. We have distinguished representatives in every department of College life, and I wish that I could give the various accomplishments of each individual member of the Class, but the space allotted to me will not permit even the beginning of such an undertaking. We have gained an enviable reputation as students, to say nothing of our record in athletics, oratory, etc. You may find on our roll any character of man you want from a demagogue to judge, and our debates are worthy of the United States Senate. We are also noted for our sticking qualities, in more senses than one, as some of us have been sticking to the Institution for six years.

In recalling our memories, pleasant and otherwise, we think of the J. Proctor Knott Debating Society. If the deceased judges of our Court of Appeals only knew how we here reversed their most important decisions they would become restless in their graves. Here we met in legal battles, armed with commentaries and reports, and expounded the law like experienced jurists. I will not mention any name, but here the biggest (?) man in the Class of Ten attempted to point out to the Court its error. Of course, the Court is presumed to know the law, but the gentleman to whom I have reference realized the absurdity of such a presumption. At any rate, we trust that these battles have prepared us for the actual conflicts of our professional life.

As we go out from the walls of our Alma Mater and others take our places and go over the old familiar walks and occupy the old familiar benches we envy them, for the last two years have been the happiest of our lives. We must go out into the world and grow bald and grey-headed in the battle with life, but we will take many happy memories with us, which will ever keep us young in spirit. We bid you farewell, hoping the next time we see you you will be in trouble, looking for legal advice.

E. L. GREEN,

Historian.

History of the Junior Law Class

---

WE, the Law Class of 1910, have been here enjoying every phase of college life in all its physical, intellectual and social aspects. Since the Law School was founded by Governor Knott it has had no class as large in numbers or as learned in the literature of the Law as that of 1910.

In the Law Debating Society the Juniors many times displayed their abilities as clear and acute thinkers, to the discomfiture of the Seniors.

As is natural in a professional school we have not failed to give the foremost place to our studies, in which we see with splendid optimism the key to our future.

Perhaps our Class will be longest remembered for its efforts towards the establishment of the Law School high-stand scholarship society of Chi Tau Kappa; which will do for the Law Schools what Phi Beta Kappa has done for the colleges.

To athletics our Class has furnished its quota. The University Football Team found material in Coleman. Hay made the Basketball Team which won the Championship for Central on February twenty-sixth. Wise warbled on the Glee Club. Wingate was unanimously chosen President of the University Democratic Club. Wakefield was early in the fall elected to life membership in the Criminal Club.

Vinton, he of the inimitable laugh, and Trent, our Class beauties, tied for the Directorship of the "Fussers" Club. These two heart-breaking, soul-stirring, eye-pleasing beauties go to "Court" on Lexington Avenue. There they demonstrate the "Power of the Press" to limited audiences. Vinton is quite a fusser, and it is indeed easy to see how the fair ones succumb to his many charms. His pagan peals of laughter alone are enough to capture the heart of the fairest Helen. Trent runs him a close race, though; he has just been elected honorary member of Caldwell's Freshman Class and offered the position of Instructor of Skating on Caldwell's Faculty for the coming year.

While I am on the subject of skating, it is perhaps fitting that I should speak of the Skating Club. The membership of this club is very limited, being under a dozen, and at that usually "full." Their motto is "Whoopededoo." Though the motto might suggest the "Blind Tigers of Second Street," still Diederich and Colonel Hawkins are above such things. Their first meet was held when the ice was thick, so that there would be no danger of water.

It would indeed be a pleasure to relate how Hawk saw 'em faster than he could kill 'em with his banjo, how Wallace tried to sit down, but the chairs were going around too fast, or to describe Wake gaping up at the Lanier twins and wondering how one plus one made four, or to have seen "Bushwar" approach the night watchman and inquire in desperate tones: "Say, beg pardon, where the deuce is the opposite side of this street?" "Why, across there, of course." "Mush 'blige, but a gemman over there told me this was."

I would like to tell you something about the "Poker Club," but that is impossible, as it is incorporated and, therefore, invisible, intangible and only exists for the initiated. However, this much I have heard, and as a veracious historian I must tell you of the deeds of misconduct as well as the misdeeds of conduct of this Class; rumor hath it that it is composed almost exclusively of members of the Junior Law Class.

And now, fellow-classmates, "cantores formularum":

"Some of you, if tales be true, "diabolus habebit,"
And if he should, well and good, "forsan nemo flebit."

And now, "valete omnes," my errand is sped,
I drop a benediction upon the general head.

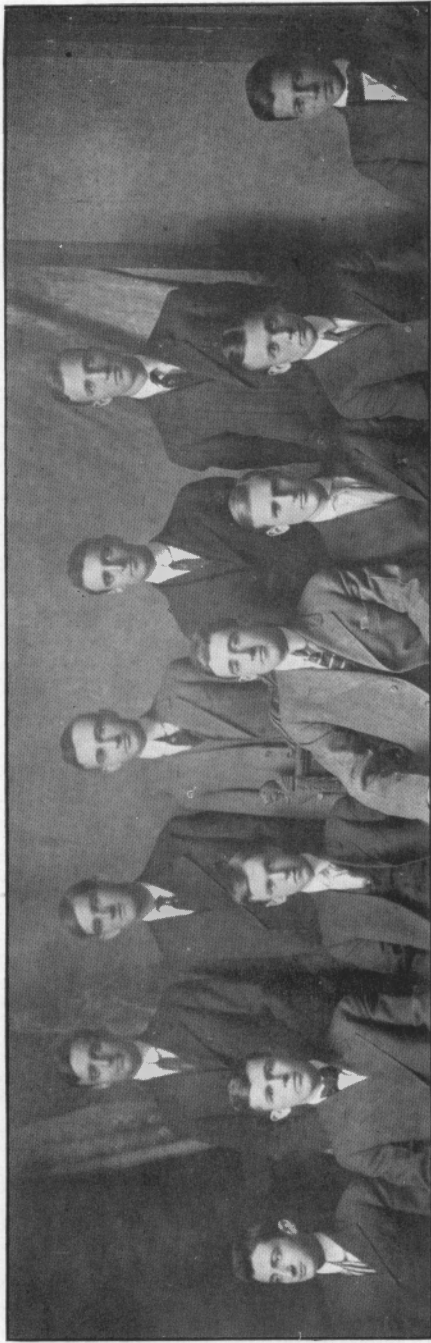

Let not the "honorarium" which laymen call a fee
Make your eyes so "caecos" that the truth they cannot see.

Speak "nitide et breviter," don't weary court and jury,
And when you have a "finis" reached, stop talking, I conjure you."

Chamberlain History

1828-1909

ANYTHING like a complete history of the Chamberlain Literary and Philosophical Society, would fill a large volume, so the limited space of an overcrowded annual from whose pages much that is good is necessarily turned away, permits only of a brief outline of its glorious deeds and achievements of the past and present and possibly a slight glimpse into the future.

The society was founded in 1828 by a number of students, lovers of literature and philosophy, for the purpose of increasing the interest in these subjects. It was named after the first president of Centre College, Reverend Jeremiah Chamberlain and, as the College, of which its namesake was the first president, has been a boon to the country in turning out great men, so the society has been a boon to the College in helping to train these men.

It is a well-known fact that Centre College of Central University has turned out more illustrious men than any other college in the South, and a large proportion of these men received their most important training in the Chamberlain Literary and Philosophical Society. To mention a few of these noted men I recall the names of the Honorable James B. McCreary, the Honorable J. C. S. Blachain, the Honorable Boyd Winchester, the Honorable Robert C. Wickliffe, Reverend Willis G. Craig, Justice John M. Harlan and many others too numerous to mention.

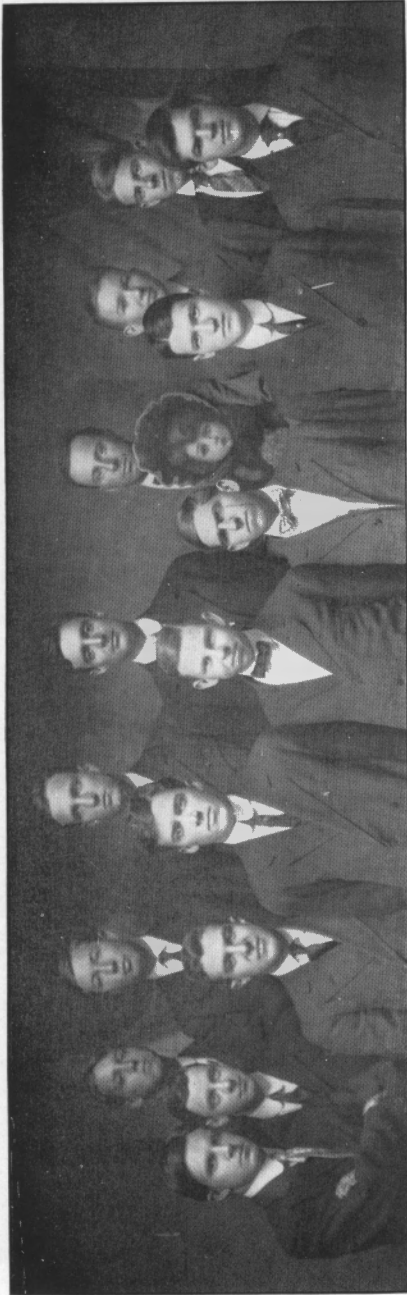

When Central University of Richmond united with Centre College, in 1901, the Chamberlain was glad to greet the members of the Philibethan Society, which had formerly existed in Central University, and gladly received them into the Chamberlain. The new men spurred on the old members of the Chamberlain and they in turn were inoculated with the interest shown by the old members, and thus the society seemed to take on renewed energy, which continues and increases even up until this present time.

In recent years the society has taken its full share of honors, both in inter-society and in inter-state contests. Thus far in this year no contests have been held, but we look forward, with interest and confidence, to those that are to come. On January twenty-ninth the Ernst inter-society will be held, in which the society will be ably represented, and for all the following contests there will be such a representation.

The members of the society come from the four classes in College, there being a goodly number from each. Thus the lower classmen will be trained in the society work and will be able to carry it on efficiently in their last years in College. Each member has the profoundest love for the society and the deepest interest in its welfare. From these facts we see that the society has a brilliant outlook for the future.

Space will not permit further details in regard to the society, but I know this splendid career of the Chamberlain will be gratifying both to the old society members and also to the present members.

Deinlogian History

NEXT year, the Deinlogian Literary Society will celebrate the seventy-fifth anniversary of its founding. On the eve of this event it will be well to take a glance at what Deinlogian has accomplished during its career. I feel it unnecessary to speak of her past achievements, which are familiar to every alumnus and student of the Institution, other than to say that from its birth Deinlogian has stood first in everything. This is particularly true of the last decade, in which the great majority of inter-society honors have gone to Deinlogian. Last year the three winners of the Ernst Prize for Debate, the winner of the Twenty-second Oratorical Contest and the winner of the June Oratorical Contest were members of this Society, and the prospects indicate that we will do equally as well this year.

This year marked a new era in Literary Society life at Central. By an action of the Faculty at the beginning of the year credits are now given for literary society work. The credits are three in number, and are given for sixty units to be made by a member during the year. These units are made by attendance and performance on the program. For each meeting at which a member is present one unit is given, and at least thirty units must be made by attendance, the remainder of the units to be made by performance on the program, the various features of the program giving from one to four units in accordance with the amount of work required to prepare the particular feature. At each meeting, some member of the Senior Class fills out a report, showing the manner in which each man on the program performs the duty assigned, which is handed to the Professor of English, and if the work done is of a sufficiently high standard the member is awarded the units for his work. In this way a high standard is maintained and exceptionally good work has been done under this arrangement. The Faculty intended this action to be a stimulus to the societies, and under its impetus Deinlogian has had better and more enthusiastic meetings than ever.

The change of the night of meeting from Friday to Tuesday has also materially assisted the Society, the Faculty again aiding by making Wednesday an easier day by scheduling no afternoon classes, so that a student may attend the Society without neglecting his studies. Another advantage of this change from Friday to Tuesday is that there are rarely ever any entertainments on this night as on Friday, and to this fact the increased attendance is undoubtedly due.

With these two innovations working most successfully there can be no doubt that when our seventy-fifth anniversary comes it will find Deinlogian at the zenith of its prosperity.

Beta Theta Pi History

THE Beta Theta Pi Fraternity was founded in 1839 at Miami University. This Fraternity was founded by John Reily Knox, who felt that the great secret of success consisted not in numbers, but in union. In the seventy years of its existence Beta Theta Pi has grown to be one of the strongest national college fraternities; gaining strength both in point of membership and in number of chapters. There are now seventy-two active chapters, all situated in first class colleges and scattered over every section of the land from Toronto, Canada, to Leland Stanford, California. The membership has almost reached the sixteen thousand mark.

Beta Theta Pi is governed by a convention, composed of delegates from each of its chapters, which meets annually to elect general officers and to attend to the business of the Fraternity. The publication is a magazine—The Beta Theta Pi—published each month of the college year and edited by William Raimond Baird. Also a catalog, containing a complete record of the life and works of each member is published every fifth year.

A conservative desire to own their homes and real property is noticeable among the chapters of the Fraternity. Twenty-eight chapters own their homes and all of the others, with the exception of six, rent.

Epsilon Chapter was founded in 1844 at Transylvania University, Lexington, Ky., but was moved to Centre College in 1848, being the first Fraternity established at Centre. From the first, Epsilon has prospered and has always been active and strong in college life. The chapter has initiated three hundred and fifty-one men.

Phi Delta Theta History

ON the 26th day of December in the year 1848, at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, six sincere and true-hearted men of the University, who wished to be linked together in a closer bond of friendship, founded this Fraternity known as Phi Delta Theta. The purpose of the Fraternity is of a very high character, that of bringing men of high moral and intellectual character into a closer bond of real friendship. Robert Morrison, one of the founders, first proposed this organization to John McMillan Wilson and these two drew up the Bond of Phi Delta Theta, which is the fundamental law of the Fraternity. It was the intention of the founders from the first that it should become National. This it has done and very successfully having seventy-two active chapters well established in all the large colleges and universities of the United States and in two of the strongest universities of Canada. There are today seventy-one Alumni Clubs of Phi Delta Theta, these being located in nearly all the larger cities throughout the Republic. Phi Delta Theta's enrollment ranks second with over fifteen thousand men, many of whom have become distinguished in the different walks of life. It might be interesting, right here, to know that the Kentucky Alpha and the Kentucky Alpha-Delta Chapter of Centre College, now Central University, at Danville, has furnished, with the exception of one other chapter, more of these men than any other chapter of Phi Delta Theta.

Kentucky Alpha, the third chapter of the Fraternity, was established at Centre College in 1850, being the second Fraternity established here. This chapter has grown with prosperity at its heels and has never had its charter for a single time suspended. But this chapter united with the Kentucky Delta Chapter under the name of Kentucky Alpha-Delta in 1901, upon the consolidation of the two institutions, Centre College and Central University.

Sigma Chi History

THE Sigma Chi Fraternity was founded at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, June 28, 1855. The founders were Thomas C. Bell, James P. Caldwell, Daniel W. Cooper, Benjamin P. Runkle, Isaac M. Jordan, Franklin H. Scobey and William L. Lockwood, of whom the last three mentioned are deceased. The name adopted then was Sigma Phi, but a few months later the new society was reorganized, and the present name of Sigma Chi was adopted.

The establishment of Sigma Chi was a protest against artificiality and pretense, a plea for personal independence and for congeniality and genuine friendship as the only basis of association in a college brotherhood. Sigma Chi was not then known as a distinctively literary or scholarly or athletic or political or social organization, but its laurels have been won equally in all these fields; and in them all, and through success in them all, the chief thing it has sought has been the fraternity—the fraternity of mutual helpfulness and of mutual pleasure.

The first branch established by the parent chapter was Gamma Chapter at the nearby Institution of the Ohio Wesleyan University. These two chapters held the first biennial convention at Cincinnati, June 28, 1857. Before the war clouds gathered in 1861 nine more chapters had been added to the roll. The Civil War had the same dreadful effect upon the chapters as upon everything in the South at that time, and they were destroyed. But after peace was restored a vigorous policy of extension and reestablishment of the southern chapters wherever possible was immediately carried out. By 1870 a total of twenty institutions had been entered, and this roll was doubled in the next decade. And thus Sigma Chi has developed rapidly into a national Fraternity of fifty-seven chapters, located in the principal educational institutions of our country, with a total membership of nine thousand.

At the Cincinnati Convention, in 1884, the government of the Fraternity by the parent chapter was wholly abandoned and was entrusted to the Grand Chapter. In 1887, the Fraternity Journal appeared under the title of "The Sigma Chi Quarterly" and along with it "The Bulletin," the first secret periodical of this nature. In 1890 an elaborate biographical catalogue of eight hundred pages was compiled. The Endowment Fund for erecting chapter houses was adopted in 1893, and each year has brought forth fruits of the untiring efforts of the Fraternity Officials and loyal Alumni.

In the year 1905, at Cincinnati, the Semi-Centennial was celebrated in connection with the biennial meeting of the Grand Chapter, which met that year. The ceremony was fitting to the occasion, and the whole Fraternity was honored by the presence of the four living founders, aged and gray-haired, but still full of spirit and fraternal love. Judging from the spirit and the class of work exhibited at the last Grand Chapter meeting, in the summer of 1907 at Old Point Comfort, Virginia, the present condition of Sigma Chi may be characterized as one of great activity in every department of its life and work. The entire membership is conscious as never before that this Fraternity is national, not sectional, in character. The first half century with its marvelous growth from a little group of noble fellows at Miami University to a national organization which is today erecting to them a lasting memorial in a Memorial Chapter House is indeed prophetic of what the coming half century of its life shall be.

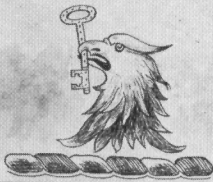

The Zeta Zeta Chapter was established in 1876, at "Old Centre." For thirty-two years Zeta Zeta has held her own and her men have received well their share of the college laurels. But to do this is not our motto. Instead, we stand for fraternal love and the performing of duty toward our Alma Mater.

THE Kappa Alpha Order had its origin in a Fraternity organized at Washington College, now Washington and Lee, Lexington, Va., December 21, 1865. The first members were William Nelson Scott, of Virginia; Robert Sharp Thompson, of Tennessee; James Ward Wood, of West Virginia; and William A. Walsh and Stanhope McClellan Scott, of Virginia. Happy in the bonds of friendship, formed in the classroom and on the campus and noting the stimulus to self-improvement derived from intimate associations with persons animated by like aspirations, these collegians united to found a Fraternity which should strengthen and perpetuate the ties they had learned to love. To this new Fraternity they gave the name Pi Kappa Chi, symbolizing in these letters the sentiments of personal loyalty and kindness that were conceived to be the basis of everlasting friendship. After a few weeks the name Pi Kappa Chi was dropped and the name Kappa Alpha assumed. On the seventeenth of October, 1867, S. Z. Ammen was initiated. The new brother is the author of the Ritual and has held the highest office of the Order three times. Brother Ammen is now the oldest living Kappa Alpha.

Our Fraternity, having been founded by southern men who had been Confederate soldiers, has always remained "Southern," never establishing chapters north of the Mason and Dixon Line. We have Alumni Chapters in every large city in the United States (more, in fact, than any other fraternity), and State Associations in every Southern State. The spirit of the Fraternity is, however, strictly southern, and will in all probability remain so.

The Omega Chapter was established at Centre College by Marion Dargon, of the Chi Chapter, in December, 1883. At that time there were only ninety students at "Old Centre," and already three fraternities in the field. Omega, however, after many struggles overcame all difficulties and reached the position she now holds.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon History

THE first chapter of Sigma Alpha Epsilon was founded on the ninth of March, 1856, at the University of Alabama, in Tuscaloosa. Eight students led by Noble Leslie DeVolie were the founders of this Fraternity and they constituted the first chapter. These young men were typical college students, lovers of "youthful jest and jollity," yet being men of high and noble aspirations they held in common the plan of a great national Fraternity. Another chapter was established in 1857 at the Western Military Institute of Nashville, Tenn. From that time chapters have not only been established in the leading Institutions of the South, but in those all over the United States.

During the Civil War every chapter but one was disbanded, because many of the soldiers and officers of the Confederate Army had been students in Southern Colleges, and in keeping with the teachings of S. A. E. they felt it their duty to take up arms in defense of their government. When the war was over the old chapters were revived and in the midst of the "confusion of the times" new life and energy was put in S. A. E. New chapters have been established with great care, and in 1907 there are seventy-one, and thirty-six alumni associations and a membership of thirteen thousand.

Kentucky Kappa of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, being the twenty-fifth chapter established, was organized in 1882 at Central University, in Richmond, Ky., and was moved to Danville, Ky., in 1901, upon the consolidation of Central University and Centre College.

During its history of twenty-five years it has initiated one hundred and ninety-one men, who have gone forth in the world to perform the many duties of life.

STARTING the season with only two of last year's veterans back, Captain Cave and Todd, it seemed hard to predict a winning team for the season of 1908, but with the systematic training of Coach Johnston and Assistant Coach Harlan, the new recruits fast rounded into shape; with the result that the opening game with Berea College was a victory for us by a score of 18 to 0. Hanover, a week later, suffered the same result by a score of 24 to 11. The week following we suffered our first defeat by Miami University, the champions of the State of Ohio, by one touchdown made in the last three minutes of play of second half, although they outweighed us twenty pounds to the man, and were all experienced players.

On the southern trip we defeated the University of Chattanooga, 23 to 0; who in turn held Tennessee to a very small score. However, we lost one game to Tulane University, who lost but one game this season and finished third among southern colleges. They were much heavier and accustomed to the warm climate, however, defeating us only ten points, which indeed was a good showing. The source of greatest regret was the losing of the game to St. Mary's College, who scored on a fluke in the first two minutes of playing. This and several costly fumbles cost us the game.

In the State we defeated Transylvania and Georgetown both, but owing to superior weight lost the Thanksgiving game to Kentucky State University. The season did not close so favorably perhaps as some of us wished, yet the team won 106 points to opponents, 78. Which was a credit indeed to themselves and to the Institution which they represented.

WHEN the referee's whistle ended the last basketball game of 1908 it also rung up the curtain on the baseball season, and everyone was sanguine as to the quality of "play" they were to see. True, the prospects did not loom up so brightly as in former years, for there were only three veterans to take their places on the stage of conflict. But some good material was unearthed, and at times the fans had an opportunity to see some sterling quality of baseball. The team was greatly handicapped in having so many raw recruits, and also in not having but one reliable box-artist, but this handicap was neutralized by the indomitable spirit and gameness of every man on the team. We had no glittering stars, but everyone went into the game with the determination to win, and to fight to the last ditch. With this sort of team we were able to capture the State Championship, a goal toward which Central had been striving for some years, but which, eel-like, had barely slipped from her grasp each season.

The last game of the season, which decided the intercollegiate championship of Kentucky, was the most exciting game of the season and the most arduous for the players. This resulted in a defeat for Georgetown, and when the last man was thrown out. we realized that we had gained the trophy which had been fought for and lost in the past.

Manager English arranged an excellent southern trip, the schedule calling for games with the very best teams south of the Mason and Dixon line. Although the trip was a disastrous one, every scoreboard showing the large side of the score chalked up against us, too much credit cannot be given to the team. For they entered every game with confidence and determination; nor did this spirit lag in the least, but was as strong in the last game as in the first.

To Coach Johnston is due the credit for winning the championship. He worked hard and conscientiously, ever having the good of the team at heart, and each player enjoyed every moment spent on the field with him. It is with exceeding regret that we note his recent resignation, leaving us to accept a higher and better position in the field of athletics. May good fortune ever smile upon him.

Bright prospects attend the opening of the season of 1909, and to all eyes it seems as though it will be our banner year in baseball. Here's hoping that Captain Stults's regime will be attended with brilliant victories and few defeats.

Season of 1908

FOR a sport to become so popular in four years as to equal and almost surpass its older rivals, football and baseball, seems almost impossible. And yet this has been true with basketball at Central and in Danville. In the winter of 1906 Mr. N. H. Dosker, '07, from Louisville, instituted the game at Central. The season, though not a particularly bright one in regard to victories, was a successful one, considering that the sport was a new departure and an untried experiment. The next year we succeeded in downing our old rivals, State College, in two out of three games. The games for these two years had been played in the gymnasium, but in the winter of '08 the scene of conflict was shifted to the more spacious floor of the Skating Rink. Released from the narrow confines of the gymnasium our team won the "Intercollegiate Championship of Kentucky."

The pre-season prophesies of '09 were that our team would be the best ever. The results of the season show only too well how true those prophesies were. Under the able leadership of Captain Louis Seelbach, Jr., we have again won the honor of being "Champions of Kentucky." On our own floor we have not been defeated through the whole season. And with but two games to be played our team has lost in the whole season but one. Kentucky State won on their own floor, the first of the series of three games, by one point.

The season has undoubtedly been a prosperous one and the team has fulfilled all expectations. But the prospects are brighter for next year than ever. Let then the slogan for '10 be "Thrice Champions of Kentucky."

Season of 1908

THE season of 1908 was very successful in some respects for the track team. We again annexed to our laurels the championship of Kentucky—and also won the college relay race at the Dupont Manual Indoor Meet. The team was seriously handicapped at the first of the year by the loss of its captain, who left school—but we were fortunate in selecting a man to fill his place who was capable in every respect—this man was Sprigg C. Ebbert of the Class of 1909. We were particularly weak in sprinters and hope that this shortage may be filled in the future. Our team also showed lack of coaching—as Coach Johnston spent all of his time with the baseball team—and we had no one to help us.

Our first meet was the Dupont Manual Indoor Meet at Louisville, on March twenty-eighth. In this we easily ran away with the college relay,—we came near lapping on our opponents. The men who composed this team were Long, Hopkins, Gray and Ebbert.

Our next meet was with Miami University at Oxford, Ohio, on May 16, 1908. Here we were not only outclassed, but also had a tough track to run upon and were beaten by a rather large score. But the score did not tell all, for nearly all the races were close and exciting.

The last meet of the season was with Transylvania University. This was held on our own grounds—and we won by a score of 55 to 49. This was rather a close meet and one of the best ever held on the Central University Athletic Field. On account of the inclement weather it had been impossible to have a meet to decide who was entitled to the honor of being King of the Carnival, so a secondary meet was held in the Kentucky University Meet to determine who should be the fortunate man. Herschel A. Long, of the Class of 1910, won the honor by defeating Eugene Gray, by a score of 20 points to 18.

Herschel A. Long was elected captain of the team for 1909 and everything points to a prosperous year.

Moo

(With apologies to the Raven, the Seelbach Hotel and everybody in general.)

---

On an evening illy fated, as I slowly navigated
Through the corridors and lobby of the Seelbach o'er and o'er—
While I ambled, idly smoking, suddenly there came a croaking,—
Came a queer yet natural croaking from above the Seelbach door
Where the marble bust of Prexy has been placed for evermore—
Placed up there for evermore.

While I stood there in dejection, with no answer to the question,
Gazing at the bust of Prexy placed up there for evermore—
While an answer thus invoking, came again that outer croaking;
From the statue came the croaking, from the statue o'er the door.
Said the pompous bust of Prexy, "Moo is dead. Can I say more?
Moo will bark, ah, nevermore!"

"Moo has fled to other regions where there are no law decisions,—
Where bold students never paint red splotches on the walls and floor;
Let us, therefore, reverence paying to a great Professor's canine,
Bury Moo with much lamenting as was done of yore."
Said the pompous bust of Prexy just above the Seelbach door;—
Merely this and nothing more.

"Wisdom's voice said indigestion, but 'tis a truly mooted question,
For numerous frenzied dogs have lived, yet eaten Throck's gum shoes before;
But the fact is Moo ate several and he left for a long revel—
For a long, unbroken revel on the night's Plutonian shore."
Said the pompous bust of Prexy just above the Seelbach door;
This it said and nothing more.

"Tell me, marble! tell—oh! tell me, from thy higher knowledge tell me—
From thy wisdom gained by travel long the night's Plutonian shore—
Tell a soul with sorrow laden if, within the distant Aidenn,
Throck will ever find that canine that we'll rock again no more—
Find that white, black-spotted canine that we'll rock again no more."
Prexy's bust said, "Nevermore."

Many of the denizens of Breck Hall were continually complaining of mysterious noises, which disturbed their slumbers once a week, some sounded like pop guns, others as if some one was afflicted with a bad case of sea-sickness. After much investigation made by a young Princeton detective in College he informed us that it was the above company which produced these mysterious noises while engaged in their weekly Bacchanalian revels in the cellars of Breck Hall.

The joint has been raided, the blind tiger run by this notorious company has departed this life, and now Breck is peaceful the whole week through.

Rainey's Dream

---

'Twas a night after Christmas: I sat in the Lab,
Surrounded by cultures, some slant and some slab;
With a start I remember my students at home,
And the media I've promised to make them while gone;
I get out the stew pan and chop some meat
Then pour in some water and turn on the heat;
After boiling, and boiling and boiling again,
I filter quite carefully and neutralize then:
I sterilize well and boil once more
When, lo! by mishap, it is all on the floor.
While deploring my luck and of care such lack
I am startled to hear not far from my back
A voice of sympathy pipe out quite clearly
"Such things will happen in families most orderly";
Turning around my eyes open with wonder
The germlets are stirring, beginning to wander,
Enormous proportions I see them assume,
Old noises and faces are filling the room;
A commotion I hear; McConnell, the rube
Is helping Fish Hess get his feet from the tube;
Frank, Cave and Ryan make a dive for the eggs;
Cassiday and Watkins grow weak in their legs;
McQueen cuts a caper and cries out "Confound"
While the "Rager," gone bad, he turns round and around;

As Miller and Durham are sealing their tubes
The paraffine gets hot and burns like a fuse;
Miller consolingly says "Shall we get more?"
Durham to the hiding place runs with a "shure";
Clashing into Hager while closing the door.
He cries out "Beg Pawdon" and then sets up a roar.
To get a good hanging drop, causes confusion,
Some lose their temper and all their religion;
But "Wat" finds the alcohol and dopes up the germs,
Which enlivens quite much and causes them to squirm;
The discovery made known there's a terrible stampede,
All rushing to see, with Hess in the lead;
The noise is so great I wake with a scream,
To find that my horrors are only a dream.

May we never, no less

For—should they know less

To the Inseparable Pair

(With Apologies to "The Village Blacksmith")

Across from the village skating rink
The little cottage stands;
The owner a mighty Prof. is he
Who bought it with his own hands;
And in it live the family of the Prof.,
Who came from other lands.

Full seven years ago he came
From Virginia, the mother state;
And oft his brow is wet with sweat
When of her he does relate,
As he looks the whole class in the face,
Talking at a terrific gait.

Week in, week out, from morn till night,
You can hear his bellows blow,
As he tells his class in history
How Sir Throck of old would often go
To nobles and kings, inviting them
To regions far, far below.

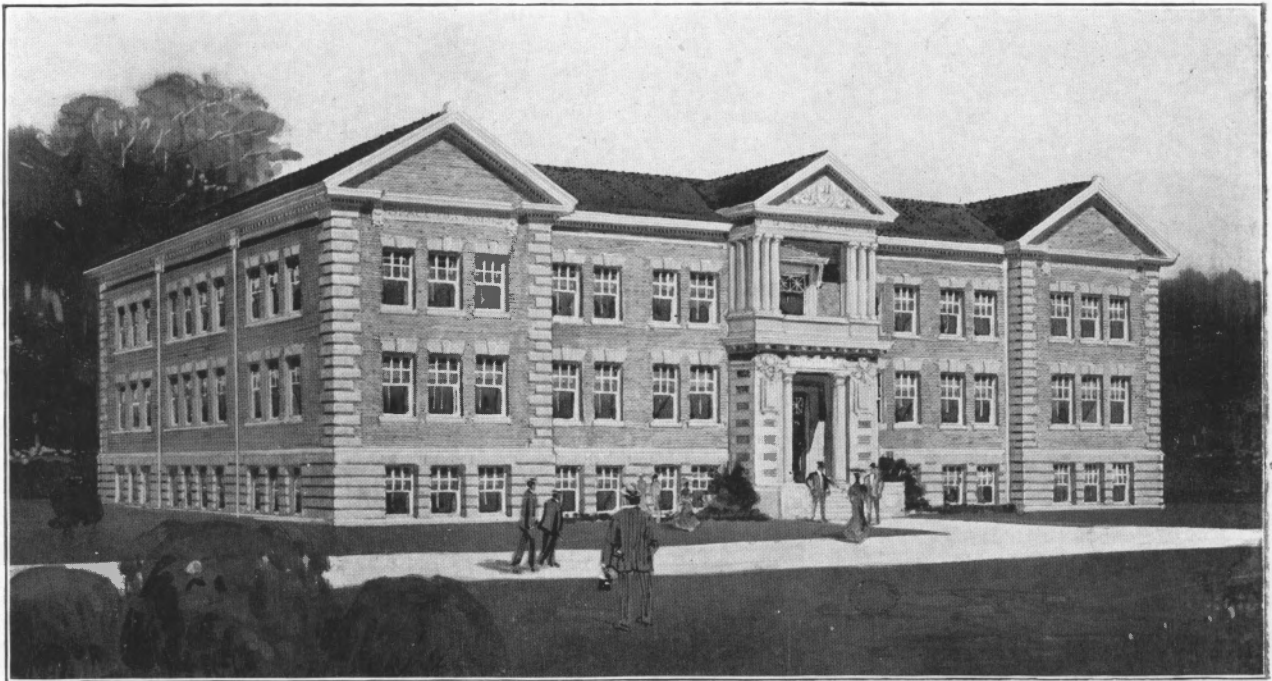

And Freshmen, coming over from Breck,
Look in at the open door.
They love to see the flaming forge
And hear the Professor roar,
And catch the flaming words that fall,
Like chaff from the threshing floor.

He goes on Sunday to the church
And oft takes Moo along;
He listens to Sargon preach and pray
And then will sing a song.
But always with one eye on Moo,
Lest the boys do him a wrong.

This Moo to him is near as dear
As any living soul;
This old, fat, ugly bull dog
Whose feed is his only goal;
And with a loud, shrill whistle he calls
When Moo away does stroll.

Toiling, rejoicing, sorrowing,
Onward through life he goes.
Each week sees Arch give Moo a bath
From the tip of his blunted old nose,
Cheerfully, joyfully, nothing o'erlooked,
Down to his cute, pink toes.
But ah! alas! my worthy friend,
This Moo may soon die.
And then perhaps after the death
Poor Throck will ever sigh
When of Virginia he does prate,
As in the days gone by.

The Autocrats of the Lecture Table

THE President of the University, with an effort on the part of his arms, lifted himself from his chair, detached his glasses from his nose, hung them upon his upright thumb and thus addressed the session of the Faculty "Gentlemen: We have met upon this auspicious occasion to establish by thoroughgoing and vigorous proofs the momentous statement that a cat has nine tails."

The Professor of Mathematics seemed a bit nervous and over-anxious, hence was called upon to submit his argument first. He removed his finger from his mouth and spoke as follows: "Mr. President: (with bow) We all know the question, my proof is this: (1) One dead cat has one tail; (2) no cat has ten tails. Subtracting (2) from (1) we have one dead cat minus no cat equals one cat; and one tail minus ten tails gives nine tails, hence one cat has nine tails!"

The whole Faculty arose and with fists in the air declared "Professor, you have got your signs wrong! Your answer has a minus sign!"

"But," cried the Professor of Mathematics, "I was talking about a dead cat. Change the signs then and then one live cat has nine plus tails!"

The Faculty was silent and the Professor of Mathematics with a "There you are," replaced his finger in his mouth and himself upon his chair.

The Doctor of Physics had his turn next. Silent (but not so the cat), he drew back a curtain from one corner of the Faculty Chamber and revealed an apparatus consisting of one electrical lantern and one electrical Prof., from "Illinoy." The latter, managing the scene shifting for the Doctor turned on the electric current and extinguished all other lights. He then introduced as a slide the rigid tail of a quarreling maltese. Immediately, in the yellow circle cast by the lantern, was the wiggling silhouette of a tabby's nine tails!

"Crucify him!" the remainder of the Faculty yelled. "He has used a diffraction grating!"

The Physics Doctor and the Electricity Prof. made good their escape with difficulty; but what cared they for their expulsion? The older had a date on the corner of — and Lexington, while the other was already ten minutes behind his daily time of getting to Caldwell.

The Economics Professor could not disgrace his family name by remaining unheard from longer, hence was the next to rise and this submitted—but think not without that double cleaning of the wind pipe and customary smile— "Mr. President, Schentlemin of the Autocracy," here his nasal facilities were enhanced by virtue of a blow through a red-bordered kerchief, and he proceeded in his good old Anglo-Saxon, "We have here one cat"; but here

Moo sneezed and it was with difficulty that kitty was recaptured. But with the cat safely restored to his arms he proceeded so: "One cat in one life has one tail. Every cat has nine lives. This cat may be killed nine times by amputating at each death its tail. Hence, I say, without fear of successful contradiction, that a cat has nine tails." He sat down, the shades of his ancestors applauding, while the horns of the lune of his smile extended far into the edges of his hair.

The Latin Professor next arose and without exordium came to his peroration, thusly: "Taila, Tailae, Tailae, Tailam, Taila; Plural, Tailae, Tailaumn, Tailis, Tailas, oblativ plural, obsolete; hence, nine tails to a cat!"

Prexy in his enthusiasm to rise and restore order upset the chairman's desk while Moo ran away with the gavel!

Decorum and furniture restored, the Herr Dr. of Art, German Liquors and French Wines arose, rearranged the creases of his trousers to the true perpendicular, and held aloft a seemingly bob-tailed kitten. He stood thus for a full minute, his proof without utterance like a song without words.

"Did that specimen of the feline race ever possess tail at all?" questioned the presiding member.

"Nein!" said the Herr Professor.

"Put him out," vociferated the Greek Professor. "I refuse now to submit my proof entirely."

The Doctor of Kipps, acids, and gases was thereby forced to take the floor. Absent a minute he bustled back with a test tube in each curl of his locks, and nine bottles under on arm and a senatching machine under the other. He began thus: "You thee, gentlemen, this cat hath its natural tail now. Mark it tail number one." Then using poor pussy's tail like a test tube cleaner he treated it with eight reagents and a restorer, kittie's tail (also eyes) assuming all the shades of the prismatic colors. "Hence, gentlemen, I have demonstrated that a cat hath, so to speak, nine tails."

The English Professor was up next and turning to their notes read as follows "my wife and I find that a cat has a God-given tail or no tail or may be bob-tailed, retailed, curtailed, detailed or under—; mediocre or supertailed. Hence, a cat we find may have nine tails."

The Biology Professor left his chair next; stripped off his indifference, put on a smile and proved as follows, "Mr. President and Honorable Faculty: You have heard the eight tales of a cat by my fellow autocrats; mine makes the ninth. I move that the meeting stand adjourned!

A Toast

Come fill your bumpers, student friends

With the best, if you please, of wine;

I'll pour instead, as I do not drink,

Every good wish in mine!

To a man who'll wander a little wrong

To do us a little good,

I fill my cup to the very rim

And would pour in more if I could!

We were in late, boys, from the holidays

And were slow to matriculate;

"But no extra fee, my boys," says he,

"Just hand this note to ———."

Then fill each glass to one made up

Of kindnesses alone;

And leave no liquor in the jug

Till the last drop is gone!

Come, drain the goblets to the last,

Gar aus! with it, I said,

The best man on the Faculty—

To Johnny W.-Redd!

"KEITH" clothes appeal to young fellows in college. They are a bit too swift for "dad," they do not appeal to his sense of dignity so very much, but they make a great big hit with the young fellows who are absorbing knowledge, and who are mighty particular to keep right up with the procession and, in fact lead the procession a bit.

"ROGER PEET" clothes are just as good as any clothes made. They are more conservative, more dignified than the other line, and appeal to men who have settled into the business groove and are putting their college work into practice. In carrying the two lines we are able to meet all kinds of requirements satisfactorily.

Full dress and Tuxedo suits in both lines always in stock
