dedication

to

dr. c. b. mcmullen

scholar and gentleman

whose sense of the "eternal fitness of things", whose exploitation and development of his excellent intellect, whose belief in and devotion to his God and fellow-men, and whose pursuit of the "good, the true and the beautiful", easily placed him at the top of the list of those who have contributed their part towards making this world a little better than it was before their presence—

we dedicate

this, the second combined volume of olde centre.

glancing over the 1931 football season with a record of eight victories, one tie, and two defeats for their year's work, the colonels again stood out as one of the best teams in the south. the tie gained by wittenberg a gift from the gods to that team, and one momentary lapse after fifty-six minutes of superior football cost the colonels the game with boston college. the chattanooga affair was unfortunate in that it never gave the gold and white team a chance to show its real form. that game was the sixth that the colonels had played in twenty-four days, four of which were played away from home necessitating over 3000 miles of traveling. of these six, three were with major opponents for which the colonels had to bring themselves to top form.

again centre annexed the state s. i. a. a. title, being undefeated within the state. her chances for three championships in one year was lost in the defeat at chattanooga.

however, practical assurance that centre would have football teams that would rank with the best the south would show for the next three years was given when coach edwin kubale was signed to remain as-mentor to the gold and white teams for that period.

again, as in 1930, the colonels will lose nine men by graduation. those men are: capt. n. j. anderson, center, art ruffini, end, fred arnicar, tackle, john horkey, guard, hugh davis noe, halfback, chief tenikat, halfback, andy hasara, quarterback, james bravard, end, and irvin huddleston, fullback. their places will be hard to fill, but from the ranks of the reserves and freshmen it is expected that material will come up to make the 1932 season the most successful in years.

centre—western normal

again, as in the previous year, western normal was the initial foe of the season for the colonels, and after a rather sluggish start by the gold and white, the hilltoppers were taken into camp 28-7.

despite the fact that the colonels were not given much pre-game credit for possessing an aerial attack, that was exactly the way that they rang up their four touchdowns, three tosses being taken by barksdale, sophomore end, and the other by "moco" noe, halfback. barksdale kicked for three points and noe plunged for the other.

western's one touchdown was also scored on a pass.

the day was designated as centre colonel day, and many of the grid stars of other years were guests of the 1931 squad at the game.

centre—wittenberg

the colonels second game took them to springfield, ohio, where they met wittenberg in a night battle that ended in a 0-0 tie. severely handicapped by the lights, the colonels were unable to cash in on their 16-7 first down advantage, although they pounded perilously near the wittenberg goal line on several occasions and clearly outplayed the ohioans but for a few brief moments in the second quarter. incidentally, wittenberg finished the season undefeated.

centre—xavier university.

back to ohio went the gold and white squad for their third game of the season and their second successive night game. This time they met the irish of xavier university and duplicated the 6-0 victory of 1930.

although xavier again presented one of her fine teams, not once did they get beyond their own 47-yard line—another tribute to the forward wall of the colonels. centre again ran up a top-heavy tally of first downs, and lost a second touchdown because of a penalty.

centre—washington university centre ended her nocturnal schedule of the year by taking a 14-2 decision over the washington university eleven at the latters' home grounds in St. Louis.

unable to get started in the first half, the colonels were trailing 2-0 at the end of the first half, but came back strong to push over two touchdowns in the last half, principally on the strength of long's plunging. the first of the counters followed the big fullback's smash of almost sixty yards in the third quarter.

centre—mercer university

following their trip west, the colonels returned to give the home folks another glimpse of them as they met the mercer university bears in the home-coming game. reputed to be one of the outstanding elevens of the south and with one of the fastest backfields of the year, mercer stepped out on cheek field in a drizzling rain and took a fine beating of which the 3-0 score does not tell the entire story.

the highly-touted bear ball-carriers were unable to make a single first down through the centre line, and made but three during the game, two of which were on penalties and the third coming on a pass.

the lone score of the game came in the third quarter when, after the colonels had pushed the ball to the 18-yard line, charley barksdale dropped back to the 28 and booted a beautiful placement through the bars.

centre—georgetown

the gold and white griders stayed at home for another week and met the georgetown tigers the following friday, defeating them 33-7. although kubale used as many of his reserves as possible in this game in order to give his regulars a rest for the terrific test before them, it was "moco" noe that led his team to victory. he tallied four of the colonels' five touchdowns. huddleston scored the other.

centre—boston college

after a furlough of nearly a decade, the prayin' colonels returned to the bay state where they first wrote their names in gridiron history, this time to meet the eagles of boston college on armistice day. fifteen thousand people heard the call of romance and watched the game little band from kentucky play the local eleven to a standstill, only to lose 7-0 in the final minutes of play on a blocked punt that was recovered for a touchdown.

the superiority of the colonels was shown in the first-down compilation in which they excelled almost three to one.

although defeated, the colonels were so impressive that they were immediately signed for the following year, by boston college and many of the other large eastern schools tried to place them on their schedules.

centre—transylvania

rushing back to kentucky from their game on wednesday, armistice day, the colonels met transylvania on the next saturday in lexington. the worn-out regulars gave way to the reserves during most of the game and the latter had little trouble in running up a 59-0 count on the pioneers.

chief among the trouble makers that afternoon was "little pig-iron" moody who chalked up four touchdowns during the afternoon, two of them on runs of sixty yards or better, and one on an excursion of 35 yards. every man on the centre squad but lancaster, who was nursing a broken hand, saw service in this game.

centre—louisville

centre played its fourth state s. i. a. a. game the next week against the university of louisville, and again the reserves did most of the playing and turned in a 75-0 victory over the cardinals. again it was moody who acted as the ball-carrying star for the gold and white, adding touchdowns to his list.

centre—chattanooga university thanksgiving day found a badly worn and over-footballed colonels eleven at chattanooga, and the mocassins rolled up a 25-7 count on the centre team. although unable to go far through the centre line, the 'nooga passes were effective. centre's lone touchdown came on a line plunge by dallas long in the last half.

a special train carried many centre students and danville people to chattanooga for the game.

centre—south carolina

answering the plea for charity games, centre and south carolina met in columbia, s. c., on december 5th, and there the colonels, showing relief from the terrible strain under which they had worked during the preceding month, came back and defeated their hosts 9-7.

moco noe was again the offensive star, throwing a carolina back for a safety and scoring the colonels' touchdown. carolina's score came on a blocked kick in the last half. danville charities were the beneficiaries of the centre share of the gate receipts.

varsity basketball

the 1932 colonel basketball team although winning but seven games against nine lost, proved to be, at times, a powerful court squad. admitting the fact that several teams beat them when the colonels should have won, it must also be admitted that whenever they "clicked," the centre five displayed real class.

after but three days of practice, the colonels went down before union college 37-32. there followed two games with independent teams that the centre team took handily; the one with louisville presbyterian theological institute 52-17, and the other against the versailles independents 57-29.

their next game took them to cincinnati where they met the xavier university five and lost 31-22, but they returned to meet and defeat berea 27-20.

after a poor start, louisville university ran up a winning streak that was lengthened at the expense of the colonels 32-19. the colonels atoned for that by beating kentucky wesleyan in the next game 24-12.

the fast-stepping transylvania pioneers then moved into danville owning a six-game winning streak, but were halted 30-19.

chattanooga university next appeared on the home floor and annexed a fiery game 29-23.

in one of the best court battles of the season the colonels met the pioneers in a return game on the latter's home floor and were beaten in the last thirty seconds of play 32-31.

louisville and georgetown followed this with victories over the colonels, the former winning 27-20, and the latter 34-20. centre stepped back into the winning path next against wesleyan, winning 30-19, but dropped their next battle to berea 32-25.

the last game of the regular season brought the tigers of georgetown to danville, and the colonels atoned for their previous defeat by winning 40-22.

in the state tournament, the colonels met eastern normal in the first round, and after a tight first half, eastern stepped out to eliminate the centre five 43-15.

by graduation this year the colonels will lose not only co-captains jim bravard and frank turney, but chief tenikat, jim garnett and "red" pile as well. that will leave kubale only hawthorne, meek and jones as a nucleus for his 1933 team.

freshmen basketball

the lieutenant court-squad duplicated the success of the yearling grid team and ended their season with a record of twelve games won of fourteen played. their two defeats were suffered at the hands of the danville independents and the danville high school admirals. this latter game was perhaps the tightest and the most bitterly contested of the entire season, the admirals getting their winning points in the last fifteen seconds of play on foul throws after trailing the looies throughout the game.

in his regular team composed of hollis edwards and griffith at guards, clegg coleman at center, and kirk brookshier and billy wray at the forwards, coach nemecek had a five that could do everything well. all these men, as well, as padgett, giles and hendren, will be valuable to the varsity in 1933.

with track replacing baseball as the major spring sport at centre, the cinder squad turned in the best record enjoyed in several years. while the only victory turned in was against georgetown, the scores made in the other meets showed greater strength. the gold and white team entered three other meets, those with berea and southwestern and the state meet held at georgetown.

the team was captained by gault robertson and andy hasara, and was made up almost entirely of juniors. besides the two men mentioned, the team was composed of garnett, goodloe, arnicar, tenikat, lane, hampton, isham, hamilton, wallace and milner.

arnicar again established himself as the premier weight-man in the state, taking both the discus and shot events with new records. hasara, also set a new state record in the broad jump.

with lane as the only letter man graduated, the outlook for a successful season in 1932 is extremely bright. coming up from the freshman ranks are coming such men as luxford, hudson, and hawthorne, all of whom will be valuable.

meets have been scheduled with vanderbilt, georgetown, and berea to precede the state meet. a return match between southwestern and centre hinges upon the latter's entering the dixie conference meet in which event the two will postpone their dual struggle until next year.

tennis, as did track, also profited by the dropping of baseball in 1931, and the result was a more extensive campaign by the clay court men than ever before.

as in the years before, the team was coached by professor harvy j. alexander, and his team turned in three victories against four defeats.

during the season the netters met berea twice, breaking even as they did also with xavier university. on a trip through tennessee, the colonels met and defeated tusculum and lost to maryville. in its other meet, centre lost to louisville university.

the team, captained by john faurest, was made up of lytle chambers, tevis cobb, creston lynn, gus fowler, and houston wood. two freshmen, clayton barker and tommy jones, were also used wherever eligibility rules would permit. the team was managed by "doc." hopkins.

the yearling track team at centre in 1931 was the strongest first year outfit in the state and certainly the best that centre has had in many a year. the squad went through its entire schedule undefeated and usually by topheavy scores.

opening with georgetown, the lieutenants moved on through the berea and k. m. i. contests without a hitch, and in the state meet more than doubled their nearest rival's score.

donald mckisick, frank mckisick, orme, ward hudson and snyder won practically every sprint race throughout the season, while orme and haley were consistent winners in the hurdles.

luxford was undefeated in the mile and half-mile, and was assisted by hawthorne in the latter event. moody ran the two miles.

in the field events, haley, who broad-jumped, high-jumped and pole-vaulted besides his other activities led the looies. starkweather, edwards and anderson consistently won the weight events, and henn placed often with the javelin. hawthorne also helped with points earned in the high jump.

haley, after a day of great activity in the other events, ran as anchor man on the relay team at the state meet and amassed a total of 21½ points to win high scoring honors among the freshman entries during the day.

on sincerity to ideals

in the february college humor, philip wylie wrote his rather sensational "abolish fraternities?" which caused much comment on campuses around these parts.

quote:—"that is the aim, the function of the fraternity—to make everything look all right and better than all right if it is possible. . . ."

quote:—"college fraternities make fools of tens of thousands of young americans annually, and in the best, they bury virtue so deep that a national crisis is needed to uncover it. . . ."

quote:—"he (fraternity man) graduates—a lodge brother, a small time party politician, a snob whose superiority is based on trivialities of conformity, a man hungry for luxury. . . ."

all of which is rather hard to swallow; principally, i think, because there is a single grain of truth in each of these three statements, however cynical.

then it is time to consider the real purpose of fraternities, their aim, and their function.

their purpose, (all of them), is to set certain ideals of purity, honesty, integrity and character. the falling short is due to insincerity to those ideals.

their aim is to be an outstanding group on the college campus, which is as noble as their purpose. here the falling short is their means to attain their end.

their function is to discover the really fine relation called friendship. their falling short there is due to taking advantage of good nature.

in the second point, mr. wylie complains that fraternities make fools of young men. i disagree, and agree. i disagree, because i believe fraternities have helped many men to understand each other more thoroughly, to sympathize and evaluate compatibility. i agree, because fraternities bring out lack of character, as well as character, and if the men are fools by nature, it will surely come out in discussions, actions, and attitude.

if virtue is buried so deep as he says, it is not a condition peculiar to fraternities.

in regard to the third point, many men do graduate small time party politicians, snobs, men hungry for luxury. but, i object, why blame fraternities for everyday types?

may i use an analogy? if decay sets in a tooth, what happens? if it is slight, it is filled. if it is serious, it is extracted.

"abolish fraternities?" well, rather not!

mr. wylie might have done better toward making his point if he had been less bitter, a little kinder.

ideals are ennobling, essential to the making of character. if they are disregarded, torn down, there is no substitute which takes their place.

i remember a fragment of a poem, "i think i have grown taller by walking with the trees". ideals are too often cast aside as sentimental slush. . . .but they are intellectual "trees". let's grow "taller by walking with them!"

(the scene is an open place in a wood. at rise of the curtain, david and john are talking. john is seated lc. david glancing beyond a rock, backstage.)

john—"here, what's the matter with you? you aren't listening to anything i say!"

david—"excuse me, what did you say?"

john—"i said 'eternity is a long time, isn't it?'" david—"i don't know. i hadn't noticed. especially time—one doesn't notice that here, you know."

john—"oh, it's nice enough for you, i guess—you having your writing and all—i haven't much to occupy me, you see."

david—"you never think of your father, any more—do you?"

john—"he doesn't exist—i don't think of him—so, he doesn't exist."

david—"i guess he does for your mother—he had somebody interested in him—everybody does."

john—"Sometimes i wish i could die!"

david—"you've had that experience!"

john—"maddening, isn't it? not to have anybody think of you—so you can enjoy people—think of somewhere better to be, david. i don't like this wood!"

david—"i like it here—you see it inspires me. you should have made other friends, john—or loved your father more!"

john—"i gave up everything for you david—you know that!"

david—"what happened to amy? she was in love with you—" john—"that was long ago—i was the first she loved—first love is sweetest they say—but it never lasts. she married some college professor, i think—george—i forget the last name—she's probably forgotten me—" david—"maybe if i forgot you for a while—and went off to see some of my friends—" john—"don't ever, david—it's terrible when you're gone. i think about you as hard as ever i can, but you're thinking about those other people and you don't come back until you're ready. besides—what do you see in all those people?"

david—"you never liked many people, did you, john?"

john (passionately)—"stop looking over those hills, will you?"

david—"i just thought of a new poem. 'great, is thy name, o fame!'" john (interrupting hurriedly)—"don't think of him just yet, david."

david—"why?"

john—"you never talk to me about old times, anymore—"

john—"sometimes our friendship seems like a strange mythical dream."
 david—"oh, we used to squabble over things—even before—" john—"you used to say our friendship was like david and jonathan's—" david—"that was a nice thought—I wrote a poem about it—remember—I wonder if they're still reading it—back on earth?"
 john—"can't you forget your writing for just a minute?"
 david—"i can't forget my purpose in—eternity!"
 john—"don't you like to remember the old life?"
 david—"i have so many other things to think about—" john (wearily)—"i know! the future! but how can there be any future—there isn't any time here—you said so, yourself."
 david—"you're always thinking of the past—there is a sense of time!"
 john—"somehow, i though 'forever after' would be different!"
 david—"it is different to other people—(to john) take those greeks for instance, they have a marvelous time—at least they like it! their philosophy never appealed to me—" john—"you know, i wish i'd been able to read greek when i was back on earth."
 david—"philosophy never bothers you—that's the main trouble. we both have the same god here, because you follow me in everything—even let me think for you! maybe that's why you didn't want me to call him."
 john—"well, david, i don't know him as well as you do! i never get to say anything to him. i just sit back and listen to you 'alk to him."
 david—"that's because you never had any ambition—I don't think you've got any god john."
 john—"there never was any necessity—it's true—I did let you do the thinking about those things!"
 david—"well, you see the result, don't you—? come to thing about it—I don't suppose you ever understood the poetry i wrote, did you? you'd just read it and said you liked it whether you really did or not."
 john—"your writing was part of you, david—and i was interested in you!"
 david—"i feel sorry for you, john!"
 john—"you always did—I'm afraid your love was akin to pity!"
 david—"now you're getting philosophical—at last!"
 john—"what can i do, david?"
 david—"i don't know—maybe i'd better call him now—he may know."
 john (resigned)—"all right—think about him."
 (david stands, concentrating. in a moment, a figure comes from behind the rocks. fame is dressed in bright yellow.) david—"i called you, fame!"
 fame—"you thought about me—I came! what is it, david?"
 david—"it's about my friend, john—here."
 fame—"is he still here? well, what can i possibly do for you?"
 john—"i—I don't really know—" fame—"it's useless, david—never had any ambition—never sought after me—why should we bother about him?"
 david—"i suppose you're right."
 fame—"besides, i've wonderful news for you—a college professor down on earth has just really discovered you david—he places your poetry with that of keats and shelley—you're among the great david."
 david (delighted)—"how much you've done for me, fame!"
 fame—"and he says—let's see, the man's name is george—I forget the rest of it—he says you're the first poet who has really in'epreted the endless search for truth on earth."
 david—"i thought of a new poem today—but it escaped me—john got me to reminiscing."
 fame—"come away, david—all of your poet friends can't understand your preference for this—this john person—" david—"i don't think i should leave john—you see he hasn't anybody else—to talk to—his friendships were rather limited—" fame—"say rather admirer—than friend, david—and there are so many others—why confine yourself to the praises of one—when there are thousands to worship you?"
 david—"i'm sorry, john—I'm forgetting you—you see—" (stage darkens, when lights go up david and fame have disappeared—john is left alone on the stage).
 john—"nothing—nothing to look back or forward to—now—not even god? what is god? is there any god? for me?"
 (george and madge come from behind cliffs).
 george—"perhaps—though, i'm not quite sure."
 john (startled)—"why—why, who are you? i didn't think of you—how can you be here with me?"

george—"we, too, are seeking a god—on earth they called me george—the lady madge—i was a scholar, then seeking for the truth."

john—"doesn't everyone seek truth at some time or ano:her?"

george—"perhaps! i don't know—did you?"

john—"i—i think so—at least, i sought to understand, but i failed—tell me, what is truth?"

george—"i am still seeking. and, yet that is strange—for i have heard that others have found it—but i only find people like myself—uncertainty their only companion."

madge (to john—"you can't imagine how he bores me, sometimes—with his 'i don't knows'.") john—"you—you are his wife?"

madge (laughing)—"that's very good—ch, george! (serious) oh, amy! what—what's happened to her?"

john—"amy? what—what is your last name—is it—gray?"

george—"that's it, all right—george gray!"

john—"so you're the man amy married!"

george—"here—here—you seem to know all about my wife!"

john—"you see, i loved her once—sort of puppy-love—nothing serious."

madge—"you'll see your amy—soon!"

john—"she—she's dead then?"

madge—"we'll just sit down for a bit, george—the story's rather interesting"—(sits).

george (sitting)—"nice to have some one besides ourselves to talk to."

madge—"oh, he'll love this, george."

george—"don't be morbid, madge."

madge—"you see—your amy was the typically mis-understood wife—she was neglected by george, who was too concerned with gathering wisdom to bother—" george (interrupting)—"it was as much amy's fault as mine—our marriage was a mistake—amy and i just weren't meant for each other, that's all."

madge—"how like you to say that, george! so amy became interested in a former student of george's college—an interne, i believe."

george—"and i became interested in madge—she's the loyal type of woman, john—platonian philosophy—all that—sort of wedded to learning—we, too, had mutual interests."

madge—"you were never bothered about the fact that i was a woman. perhaps it's just as well—anyway, last night—or rather the last night we spent on earth—amy left a note saying she was going away with noel—the interne."

george—"so madge and i—" madge (annoyed)—"are you telling this—or am i?"

george—"go ahead."

madge—"so george and i decided that we'd go away together—" george—"a glorious sort of elopement—ours."

madge (dryly)—"platonian, you see! it so happened that our car met amy's and noel's at a cross-road and we crashed."

george—"so—we're here, you see!"

madge—"that's all it means to you, george—a brief comment like that!"

john—"you—you're sure they were killed?"

madge—"i don't quite see how we could know positively—but it was an awful smash-up—i don't even remember feeling pain—it was so quick—our spotlight happened to strike their windshield—we saw their faces for just a moment—i had turned to warn george—and then everything turned black."

george—"it didn't even seem as if it were more than our imagination."

john—"strange—imagine seeing amy again—it was so long ago."

madge—"it should be quite amusing—meeting her again—like this."

john—"it's rather difficult for me to be amused—here."

madge—"where are we, anyway?"

john—"wherever you think you'd like to be."

madge—"what do you mean?"

madge—"well! this shouldn't be so bad."

george—"thank, god, it is like this!"

madge (startled)—"that sounded unreal, george—i had a peculiar sensation along my spine."

george—"i just said—'thank god—' (nervously) does sound odd."

madge—"perhaps, if you'd said—'thank goodness—'."

george—"don't try being funny, madge."

john—"why not! say—thank goodness—for there is no god!"

madge (nervously)—"isn't there?"

john—"not for me, anyway—i've been trying to fine one—" george (briskly)—"of course there isn't any, madge—not for us, either—or any other intelligent people—it's all philosophy."
 madge—"no—of course not—tell me, john, you—you're happy, of course."
 john—"are you?"
 john—"you'll get used to tha—until you've found a—a purpose in eternity—i have a friend david, who's found his purpose—writing poetry just as he he did on earth—his god is fame—they were here a little while ago—fame said david's poetry had been discovered on earth by some college professor—and now david's classed with the great wri ers."
 george—"not—not david barry?"
 john—"how—how did you know?"
 george—"i'm the professor who made david famous—i was working on his biography just before—before we were—killed."
 john—"funny—all this."
 madge—"i don't quite like it—i think you're right about not finding much to amuse you—it—it's all so weird!"
 george—"did you like this god of david's?"
 john—"not at all—you see, he just wasn't my god, tha's all."
 george (amused, chuckling)—"i'd like to see the sort of thing i believe in—personified by a god—he'd be a funny sort, i'll wager."
 (the lights flicker—agnosco comes around the cliffs—he is dressed in black—his voice is drab and dead). agnosco—"you thought of me didn't you—i wasn't quite sure you see—" madge (dryly)—"not so funny after all—is he, george?"
 john—"who are you talking about—i can't see anybody."
 madge—"you—you're not—blind?"
 john—"there is someone? i'm not thinking of him, you see—so i don't know he's there!"
 madge—"oh—oh. i sort of wish i couldn't see him ei her."
 george—"now that i've seen you—you can go away."
 agnosco—"you can't get rid of me so easily—you created me, you see."
 george—"listen to the fellow, madge—as if i'd create anything i didn't need—so drab a person—i say, go away!"
 agnosco—"i'm part of that which you're seeking, george!"
 george—"not god? not truth?"
 agnosco—"i don't know—do you?"
 madge—"quite satisfying—eh george?"
 george—"you two just sit quietly while i tell this fellow what i think of him!"
 agnosco—"are you so sure you know what you think of me?"
 george—"am i? you just stand there a moment!" (starts to bluster) "and yet—and yet, i'm not sure that i do know!"
 agnosco—"we are old friends, george!"
 madge—"your name—?"
 george—"well, you think the same about things as i do!"
 agnosco—"i am your god—!"
 madge—"are you?"
 agnosco—"do you have any other?"
 madge—"well—no! you see our philosophy doesn't recognize the real need of any god—so we don't believe in any."
 agnosco—"i am, then, your god!"
 madge—"john's forgetting about us, george—i feel myself slipping away somewhere—" (the lights darken, when they go up, john is again alone—).
 john—"amy! i wonder—if she'll remember—" (amy and noel come from behind cliff).
 amy—"nice here isn't it?"
 noel—"like i thought it would be—quiet—just you and me!"
 amy—"it's wonderful being—you know—what i started to say, noel?"

noel—"what, darling?"
 amy—"i almost said—"it's wonderful being alive."
 noel—"we're not, you know. we're dead, dearest amy—don't you remember the cross-roads—hat blinding spotlight—and then—" amy (shuddering)—"yes—yes i do remember—someone leaning over me—saying my neck was broken—i didn't die right off, you know."
 noel—"i—i don't remember anything except the terrific noise of the cars crashing together—i wonder what happened to them."
 amy—"you mean—the people in the o'her car?"
 noel (nodding)—"they—they can't be dead can they—else we'd see them."
 amy—"we have each other—that's a nice thought."
 noel (kisses her)—"this—this is the forever af er, amy!" amy (lightly)—"and the "after forever after?"
 noel—"silly! there isn't any 'after forever'—there is just forever—and this is it!"
 amy—"forever is a long time noel—sure you won't tire of me?"
 noel—"darling!"
 amy—"i've thought of something—something to amuse us."
 noel—"another kiss?"
 amy—"greedy! no—we'll just sit down here—" noel—"just—sit?"
 amy—"and tell all about our pasts."
 noel—"you mean about the people who made us what we are today?"
 amy—"and i'll so enjoy being jealous of all those other women—you can't get away from me, you see."
 noel—"i'll enjoy being haunted by the spirits of your sweethearts, too—amy!" amy (nervously)—"there—there never was really any other—noel—" john—"you have forgot'en, amy! it was a long time ago!"
 noel—"i knew there wasn't, really, amy—" amy—"if—if you'll play this thing fair. too—i'll tell you something."
 noel—"of course, dearest amy!"
 amy—"i had forgotten—years ago—'here was a boy—named john—my first real love af-fair."
 john—"nice of you to remember, amy."
 amy—"why—why did you say that noel—why did you say, 'nice of me to remember'?"
 noel—"what's the matter with you? amy—i didn't say anything."
 amy—"john! not—not here!"
 john—"amy! you do see me!"
 amy—"oh—oh, john!"
 john—"who—who's that with you, amy?"
 amy—"oh—noel—"
 noel—"what is it, amy—anybody'd think you were mad—talking to yourself."
 amy—"you—you don't see—john?"
 john—"you never see anybody here unless you think about them."
 amy—"noel! this—this is the boy—john—" noel—"i'm beginning to see him—well, this is rather embarrassing—i don't think the spirits would begn to haunt me so soon."
 amy—"oh, noel—don't spoil everything by being sarcastic."
 noel—"probably just a trick of yours—to get john here with us—oh, this is amusing."
 amy—"you'll see pleny of me—can't you be civil to john?"
 noel—"after john—who will it be—you probably have enough ghosts left to last us forever."
 john—"all you have to do to get rid of me is to forget you ever saw me—i'm sorry to have caused this trouble, amy."
 amy—"it's good to see you john—noel's just being nasty—i—i—i'd sort of like to talk over old times!"
 john—"would you, amy—nothing i'd like better—" noel (petulant)—"i can see why you complained of being—mis-understood—neglected—any husband that'd put up with your reminiscing—" john—"you're married now—that's right, amy—i—i've met your husband—" amy—"oh, george—do you know. i'd forgotten about him!" (enters george from behind cliffs).
 george—"well, amy—here at last, eh?"
 amy—"you—dead, too?"
 george—"it was our machine that cracked with yours!"
 amy—"what do you mean 'our' machine'."

george—"madge was with me."
 amy—"madge?"—(madge appears from behind cliffs).
 madge—"well, isn't this clubby though—we could hardly call this the conventional triangle, could we? more like a pentagan! amy—her first affair—husband—and latest lover—and of course me, who is called—the understanding type, i think!"
 amy—"you have it all figured out, haven't you, madge!"
 george—"now, see here—we'd better make the best of things, i think."
 noel—"very annoying, i'd say! come on amy, let's get out of here!"
 madge—"your young man has his amusing moments, amy—just try getting out of here!"
 noel—"you mean we can't rid ourselves of your company?"
 madge—"not as long as you think about us—and i'd say forgetting us now would be a considerable difficulty!"
 noel (disgustedly)—"i hope you're satisfied, amy—here with—with all your friends! i should have eloped with a dumbie!"
 madge (sweetly)—"speaking of dumbies how about a game of bridge or something?"
 amy—"you've certainly shown your cards! george, have the decency to take her away— it will be a pleasure to get her out of my mind!"
 madge (looking at noel)—"i'm not so sure i want to be taken away—just yet—your husband has found another interest in some sort of a god—i no longer find either of them anything but dull."
 george—"really! well, i'll tell you frankly that i'd hoped this "heaven" business would be womanless! you females give men enough trouble on earth god knows and i'm sick of you— i'd give a great deal never to see any of you again!"
 (lights darken suddenly—when they go up, george has gone).
 madge—"i—i don't understand—" john—"his god granted him his wish that's all—there's always that way of getting rid of people—if you've found your god, i mean—" noel—"then let's not lose any time finding our god, amy."
 john (interested)—"what sort of god do you believe in, noel?" noel—"why—how silly—to ask me that."
 john (gravely)—"not—so silly—!"
 noel—"why—the god that everybody believes in—omnipotent, merciful—loving—all those things."
 john—"oh, but that's not quite accurate. noel. the god that satisfies everybody hasn't been found just yet—here in forever, everybody has an individual god. In some cases a person never discovers a god for himself—you see, i know—i haven't found my god—just yet—" noel—"how—exasperating—!"
 john—"you'll express yourself more eloquently after you've searched as long as i have! it—it's that lake of fire they probably told you about in sunday-school."
 noel—"you mean—a kind of—hell?"
 john—"you can call it what you like—another thing—if you find a god that satisfies you for a while—and yet you find that he's not really your god—it's far worse than not having any—you can't get rid of him until you have decided what kind of a god you positively want to worship—and there's no deception about it either—" noel—"well—this is delightful!"
 john—"that's it, amy!"
 (amy stands thinking—in a moment, eros comes from behind cliff. he is charming in appearance—wears a bright red robe—has a warm insinuating voice).
 john—"you—you've found him, amy—i can't see him, you know, because i'm not thinking about him—" amy—"i—i think so, john!"
 eros—"you've wasted a lot of time you two!"
 noel—"why, he knows us, amy!"
 eros—"i first met you in a hospital room, noel—amy was there with you, remember—? it was the first week you served as interne!"
 noel—"you—you know about us?—who are you?"
 eros—"you know me, noel—i am called eros here—on earth i am known as physical love!"
 madge—"rather a charming fellow, i think—can't i be introduced!"
 amy—"you see him?"
 madge—"i've thought about him for a long time—now, i want to know him! inhibitions— suppressions are such foolish things after all, aren't they?"
 eros—"they are to me, too—madge—we should be great friends, you know!"
 noel—"the real reason we wanted to find you was—to appeal to you to get us out of here."

eros—"you—and?"
 noel—"amy of course!"
 madge—"i should like to go along, too—" eros (shaking his head)—"i'm sorry, madge—you see just two people can go away with me—never an uneven number."
 madge—"oh noel, take me with you! amy is satisfied here with john."
 noel—"amy!"
 amy (her hand fumbling with her forehead)—"oh—this is so disgusting!"
 john—"you—you were wrong, amy—he isn't your god! if—if he disgusts you, i mean."
 amy—"noel—are you satisfied—with things just as they were—nothing else—ever?"
 noel—"aren't you?"
 amy—"not—not for ever—" noel—"from bad to worse! oh, this is fine. i tell you!"
 amy—"oh, i thought you understood, noel!"
 noel—"mis-understood again—is that it!"
 amy—"i'm sorry, noel—i could have been happy with you for a little while—" noel—"but forever is a long time, huh? i guess i am getting tired of you, too—" madge—"you will take me with you, noel?"
 amy—"yes, take her and get out, bo'h of you!"
 noel—"i will! i'll go and leave you with that—that ghost of yours—and you're welcome to her, john!"
 (lights darken when they come up—eros, madge and noel are gone).
 amy—"living happily ever after isn't so easy, is it john?"
 john—"don't think about them, amy—it isn't any use—" amy—"do you know—i'm not really sorry about it all—" john (softly)—"i'm happier now than i've been ever since i—i came here! it's wonderful having you here, amy—"
 amy—"even—even without a god?"
 john—"we'll find our god, amy—we'll search together—" amy—"i wonder how it will all end—? or is there an ending?"
 john—"do you know i think this is all a sort of in'erlude—that in this space called eternity or forever we wander in search of our souls—the things which link us to the god or philosophy in which we believe."
 amy—"and—and after this—after forever?" (john shakes head as lights darken and curtain slowly draws together).

colonettes

gym-dandies

basketball, '31-'32

this year, as has been the custom for the last three, the "colonettes" basketball team defeated the "gym-dandies" for three straight games of a series of five, thus winning the basketball trophy, a silver cup.

more people than usual seemed interested in basketball this season, and there were enough candidates "out" to compose two full squads and two "second teams," the latter playing each other between the halves of the main games.

after the regular season was over, a game was arranged between a faculty-alumnae team and picked members of the second teams. ten cents admission was charged, and the attendance was good. in fact, the enthusiasm aroused by this game was so high that there is reason to believe that the custom will be continued as an institution in the future. dean mcafee and martha alice buckingham were outstanding players for the two teams respectively.

leo and jeannette adams carried off the honors on the gym-dandy side, closely followed by ann goodykoontz, a freshman, and as mary rollins was unable to play this term, j. adams was acting captain. miller, johnson, and mcintyre were best among the colonettes, and johnson was high-scorer for the series, followed by l. adams.

the line-ups were as follows:

| gym-dandies | | colonettes |
|--------------------------------|-------|----------------------|
| leo adams | f. | lib mcintyre (capt.) |
| jeannette adams (acting capt.) | g. | lucile miller |
| harrison holloway | c. | emily homans |
| lucy b. denny | c.-g. | anna elisa andres |
| anna b. thurmond | f. | elizabeth johnson |
| ann goodykoontz | g. | gertrude buck | substitutes: g.-d.—h. boner, e. whitehouse. col.—e. van winkle, e. marcum, h. chambers.

miss keep, athletic director, coached the teams and acted as referee in all the games, besides playing in the faculty game, which was refereed by leo adams.

the past season was notable for some excellent basketball, and it may be said truthfully that it was much enjoyed by all concerned, in spite of the fact that the modified girl's rules in vogue at k.c.w. confine the games solely to members of the women's department.

gymnasium (k. c. w.)

1st beta: "my father's in congress!"
2nd beta: "my father's one step further."

1st beta: "what's that?"
2nd beta: "in jail!"

charlotte: "my lips are for another."
milner: "what?"
charlotte: "another kiss, foolish!"

prof. j. reid sterrett: "there are at least two sides to everything."
student: "have you ever seen a girl's bathing suit?"

mae moore: "when better dates are made, they won't be blind!"

college is merely a matter of give and take. give money, and take examinations.

bell-hop: "check your bag, sir!"
goodloe: "yeah, put it on ice!"

mr. terhune: "mr. summers, this is the third time i have called upon you this week and you have not known the lesson anytime! what have you to say?"

summers: "thank goodness, it's saturday, sir."

"my own flesh and blood", exclaimed herndon, as he amputated his finger.

e. c. brown: "i have a terrible cold in my head."

elizabeth gant: "never mind, easy, that's something, anyway!"

are you an acquaintance of the dean?
only in a cursory manner.

my room-mate is a perfect triple-threat man. he begs, borrows, and steals my neckties with equal ease.

we would like to remind our lecturers that the longer the spoke, the greater the tire.

snore, and you snore alone; walk in your sleep and danville walks with you!

did you have a nice time at the party?
well, i had a nice party at the time.

it has been suggested that the old covered bridge between stanford and danville be called the hoover bridge because it is dry above, wet below, and faces both sides.

byron swam the hellespont with a club foot, lindberg flew the atlantic with a ham sandwich, but it took irving berlin to write all alone.

'35: "i'll bet you were mad when you caught that skunk."

'34: "you bet. i was highly incensed."

dr. porter: "what is the latin for 'he pretended he wanted to ride?'" chamberlain: "hitch, hike, hokum."

dr. talbot: "well, well, are you in college for good now?"

student: "no, i'm in a fraternity."

fraternity man's motto: "if the shoe fits, borrow it."

note on danville theatre screen the screen will be darkened for two minutes to show a lapse of morals.

"honey", he said at the end of the first five minutes, "will yo' all marry me?"

"why", she gasped, "this is all so southern."

henry taylor: "do you serve crabs here?"

waiter: "certainly, we serve anyone; sit down."

bradshaw: "when do you graduate?"

quisenberry: "end of this semester."

bradshaw: "surprised?"

quisenberry: "no, i've been expecting it for years."

martha bell: "aren't you getting hank and e. j. confused?"

elizabeth c.: "yes, i get e. j. confused one night, and hank the next."

centre college

founded 1819

danville, kentucky

centre college has been educating young people for one hundred and thirteen years. there have been no departures from the two primary purposes of the foundation of the college. the first was that the building of christian character should be the primary objective. the second was that a broadly cultural education in the liberal arts and sciences should be offered. both of these principles are accepted by the present administration as correctly defining the attitude of the small college of liberal arts. it aims to develop character. it is cultural and not vocational.

centre college has always been concerned more with training for life than with increasing earning power, with scholarship for its own sake rather than for its financial returns, if any; with character of heart as well as with strength of intellect. centre college, in 1932, presents an ideal of education that for more than a century in countless colleges has given to the nation its finest spirits and that ought not to be surrendered over night for a purely utilitarian view of school and life.

on the basis of one hundred and thirteen unbroken years of service in the south and in the nation, centre invites a consideration by young men and young women seeking to find the best in college training.

the acquisition by centre college in 1926 of the property and assets of kentucky college for women gave to kentucky its only system of co-ordinate education. the two colleges are under one administration and faculty, but with separate buildings and campuses and separate student bodies. this plan of organization provides the advantages of separate colleges for men and for women without the disadvantages of complete separation. it is the plan adopted by columbia and barnard, by harvard and radcliff, by brown and pembroke hall, and by tulane and sophie newcomb. it has worked with complete success at centre college for the past five years.

the woman's department of centre college is the only four-year woman's college in the state. like the men's college it is fully accredited by the association of american universities, and the association of the colleges of the southern states and is on the approved list of the american association of university women. the same broad cultural education is now offered to the young women of the south that centre college has offered to young men for more than a century.
