OLD CENTRE

“Well has it stood the ravages of time”

ENTRANCE TO
MAIN BUILDING

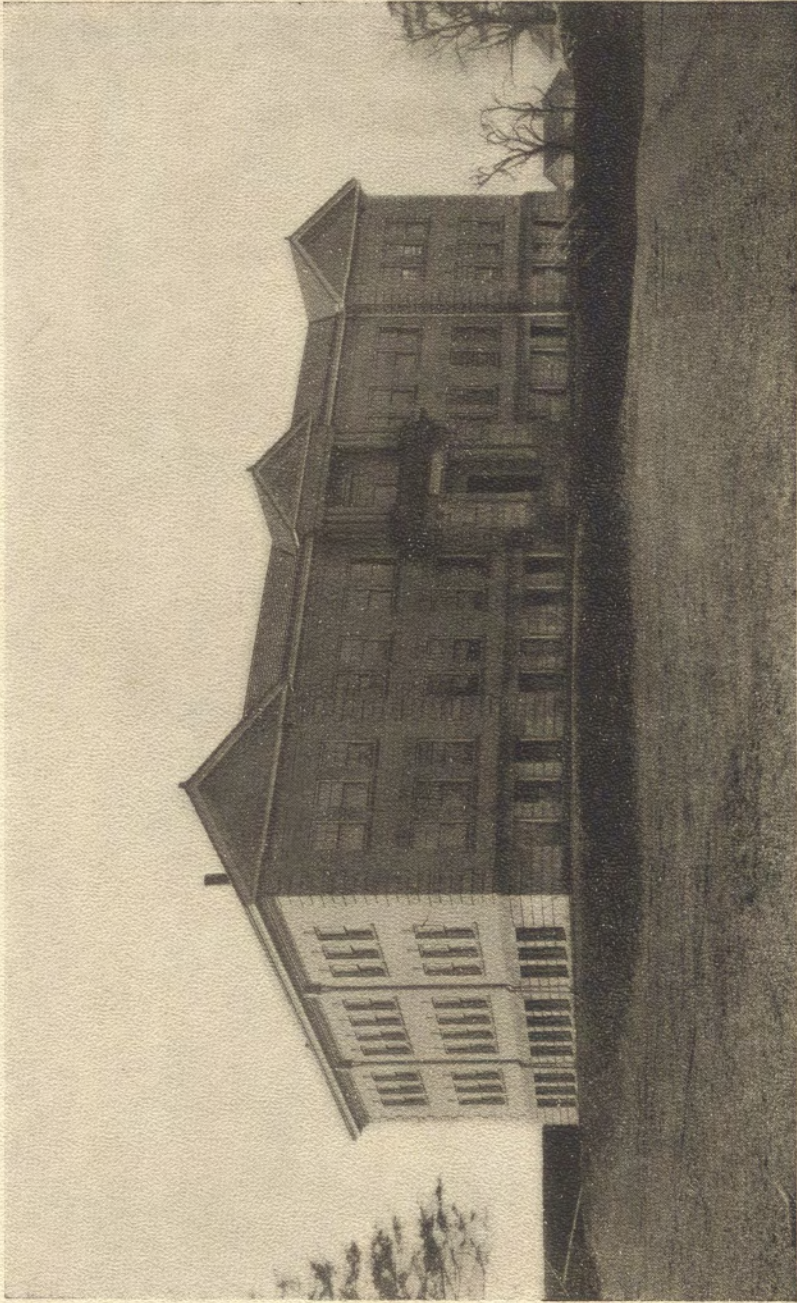

"Thither continual pilgrims
crowded still,
From all the roads of earth
that pass there by;
For as they chanced to breathe
on neighboring hill,
The freshness of this valley
smote their eye,
And drew them ever and
anon more nigh."

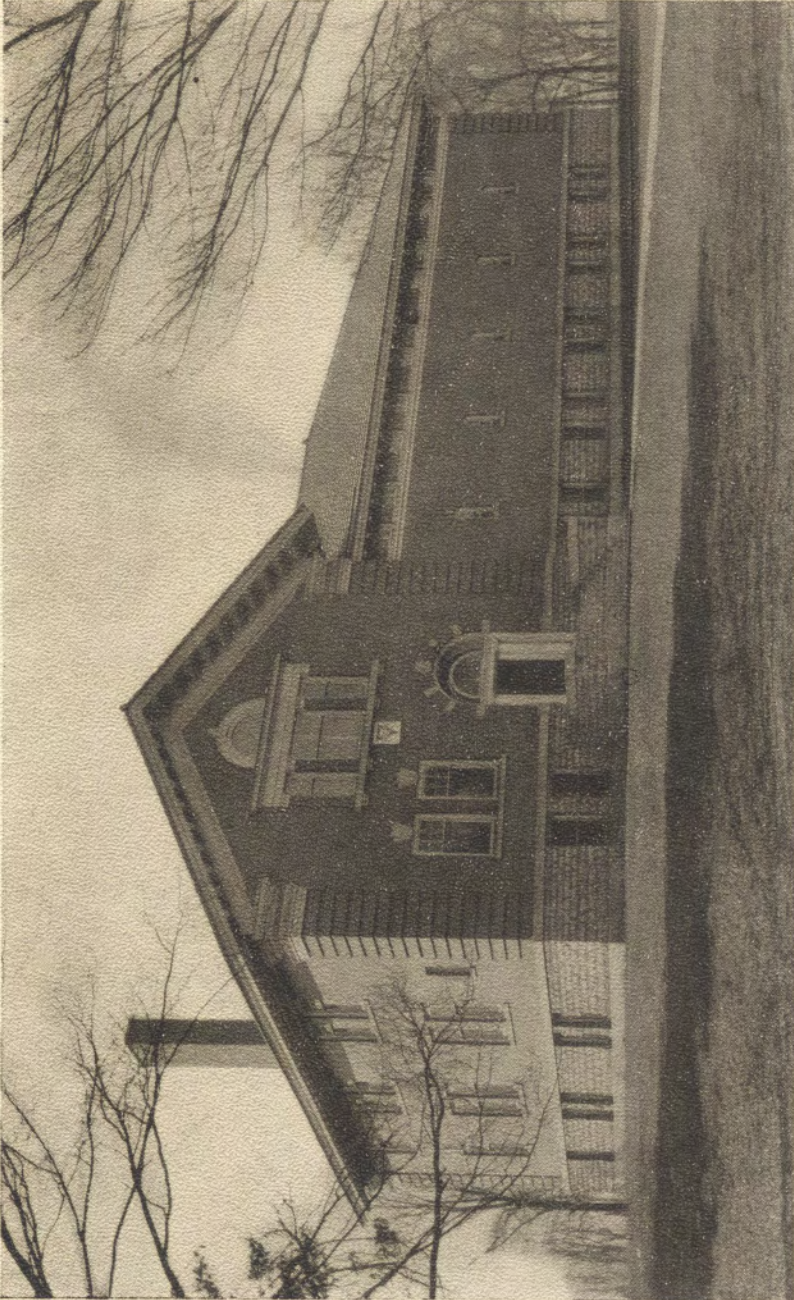

CENTRE COLLEGE LIBRARY

“A good book is the life-blood of a master spirit”

YOUNG HALL
"Science crystallizes or dissolves our theories"

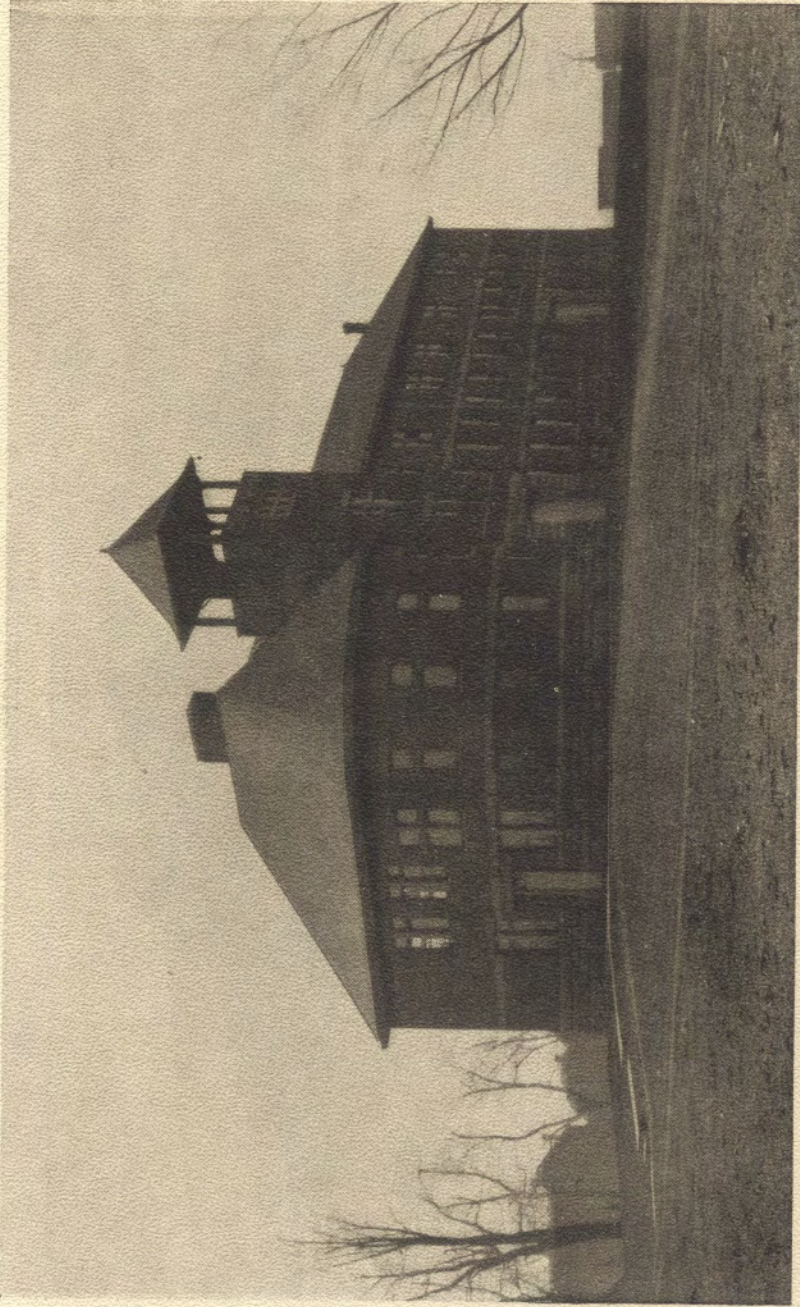

BOYLE-HUMPHREY GYMNASIUM

"A strong physique should accompany a sound mind."

MAIN BUILDING

“With them the seed of wisdom did I sow,
And with mine own hand wrought to make it grow.”

PHILLIP NORRIS ARMSTRONG

Beta Theta Pi
 Fort Smith, Ark.
 Fort Smith High School;
 Football, '17, '18, '19, '20;
 All-State Half Back, '19, '20;
 Captain-Elect for 1921;
 Basket ball, '18, '19, '20, '21;
 All-State Guard, '20;
 Captain Basket ball, '20;
 Class Baseball, '18;
 Track, '18, '20;
 Class President, '17-'18;
 Social Committee, '20.

"ARMY"

"Still waters run deep"

"Army" is a very appropriate name for Norris, as he is a regular old war-horse. He has always attended to no one's business but his own, but when called upon to perform any task (and they have been many), he has been right there with the goods. As an athlete, he is a steady, consistent, dependable man. None can find the "holes" in the line better than "Army," and on the basket ball floor he is tireless. Along with this he is somewhat of a student, which goes to prove that he is a versatile man. There are few men on the campus more popular than Armstrong, and his host of friends will distinctly feel his loss when he leaves for other fields.

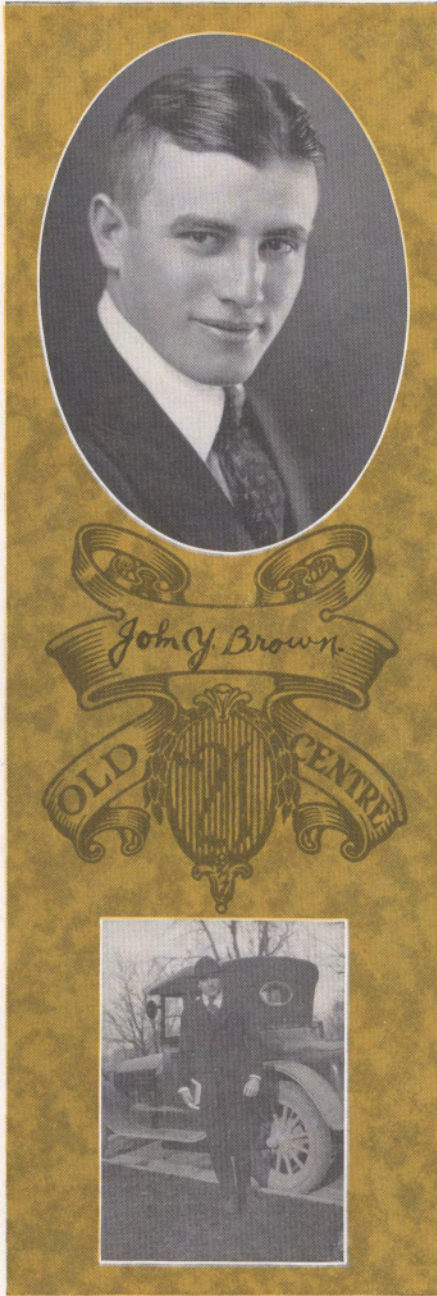

WALTER BRASHEAR, JR.

Sigma Chi
 Louisville, Ky.
 University of Pennsylvania, '18;
 Mask and Wig,
 University of Pennsylvania, '18;
 Secretary Sophomore Class, '19;
 News Editor, Centre College Cento, '20;
 Editor, The Cento, '21;
 Vice President, Sock and Buskin, '21;
 Leading role, Carnival Play, '20;
 Press Club, '21;
 Carnival Committee, '21;
 Ye Rounde Table.

"WALTER"

"A witty writer is like a porcupine; his quill makes no distinction between friend and foe."

Brashear is the shining light of Centre's literary activities. He has a gift of gab that might come in handy for anyone with a hankering after the ladies, but his ambitions have never inclined toward spell-binding K. C. W. His daring editorials in "The Cento" have shocked the faculty, and his practice of shouting from the house-top, as it were, that which was hitherto whispered around, has gained him the appellation of "News-Hound." In dramatics last year he played the leading roles in the two big productions of the season. Walter is a natural leader, with initiative, executive ability, and a knack of making friends.

JOHN YOUNG BROWN

Phi Kappa Tau
Sturgis, Ky.
Sturgis High School;
Track, '17, '18, '19;
President Junior Class, '19-'20;
Winner of Ernst Debate, '17, '18, '19, '20;
Twenty-second Oratorical, '19;
President of Deinologian Literary Society.

"JOHN"

"Whene'er he speaks, Heaven, how the listening throng
Dwell on the melting music of his tongue."

When Demosthenes performed the feat of making a concrete mixer out of his mouth in order to pave the way to fluent speaking, little did he dream that his self-made fluency would crop out in John Brown, thousands of years later, to the dismay of the good people of the Blue Grass. John's lodging house ran on a very small supply of coal last winter because of the hot air that he provided. John is as yet undecided whether to become a President or a hobo. He had always been a peach of a track man, but this year he broke a world's record by going 1,200 miles to Boston in 48 hours. People say that the track was fast, but it must be admitted that John did train for this event. He can be characterized by the word "fast." He is fast becoming noted as an orator, he will always be fast on the track, and he holds fast to his money when he gets it.

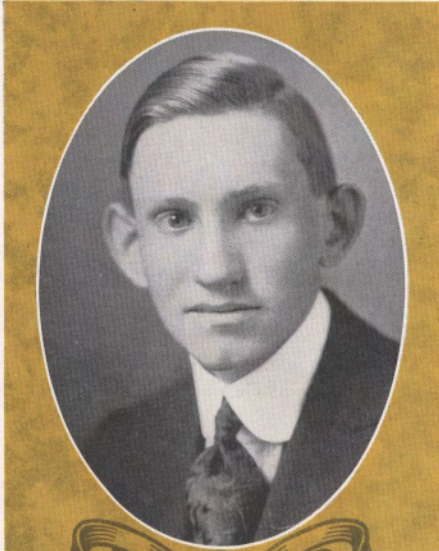

MARSHALL WALTON BROWN

Beta Theta Pi
Newbern, Tenn.
Castle Heights Military Academy;
University of Missouri;
University of Michigan;
Athanean Society (Mo.);
Carnival Play, '20;
Deinologian;
Vice President, '21;
Ye Rounde Table.

"BROWN"

"And yet your fair discourse hath been as sugar,
Making the hard way sweet and delectable."

The boy from sunny Tennessee has sampled them all, and Old Centre looked best. With a line of conversation as mellow as an over-ripe pear, he hypnotizes each member of the faculty some three times each week. Yes, he has barely managed to squeeze through with the A's which he has been collecting for souvenirs. Marshall is pretty well informed on any subject, and is willing to let you know about it any old time you ask him. Some day, when Dr. Allen gets to be Chief Secretary of the League of Nations, Brown may be delegated to translate the League into Yiddish, so that the Yiddites may know what it is all about.

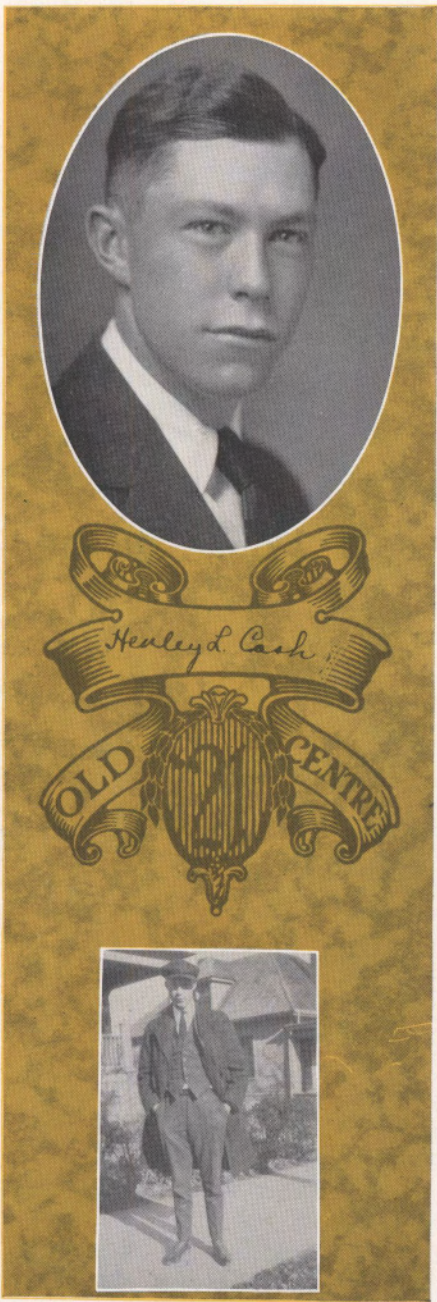

WILLIAM LOREN CASE

Springfield, Ky.
 Springfield High School;
 President of Deinologian, '20-'21;
 Deinologian Debating Team, '21;
 Assistant in English, '20-'21;
 President of Ye Rounde Table, '20-'21.

"CASE"

"The inward pleasure of imparting pleasure—that is the choicest of all."

"Preacher" has adorned the classic beauty of Breck Hall for four long years. Just how nicknames ever start, no one knows, but Case is a regular fellow. He is an all-around scholar and one of the beacon lights of old Deinologian. In English he has the enviable job of grading Freshman papers. One cannot imagine a more horrible job, can one? Just whether he intends to edit Snappy Stories or to devote himself to the attention of prohibition, he has not fully decided. We salute him as a Kentucky gentleman and a rare judge of the ponies.

HENLEY LEWIS CASH

Kappa Alpha
Stanford, Ky.
Stanford High School;
Transylvania University;
Cento Staff, '20;
Carnival Committee, '20;
Secretary-Treasurer Senior Class;
Ye Rounde Table;
Carnival Committee, '21.

"CASH"

"It is better to wear out than to rust out."

Ready cash is desired by all for its power, while Henley Cash is just as desirable for his power to bring comfort and peace to those lost in the bewildering intricacies of their books. Cash came to Centre in 1918, entering as a Sophomore. During his last three years he has won fame and renown as an "A" student. The latest turn in his passion for knowledge has been in the field of education, where, under the guiding hand of Dr. Ervin, he has been studying the condition of the Kentucky schools. The only thing that can be said against him is that he hails from Stanford.

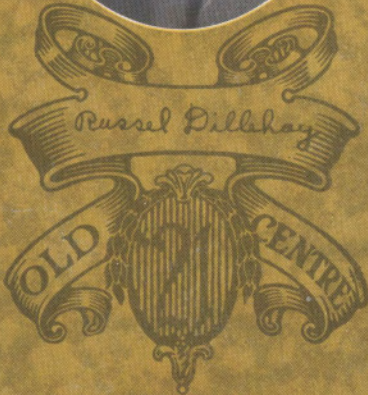

JAMES WILLIAM DANIEL

Sigma Alpha Epsilon
Mt. Sterling, Ky.
Mt. Sterling High School;
Vice President Freshman Class, '17-'18;
President Sophomore Class, '18-'19;
Baseball, '19, '20;
Manager Baseball, '19;
Sock and Buskin;
Social Committee, '19-'20.

"BILL"

"Or leave a kiss but in the cup,
And I'll not look for wine."

You have gazed on plenty of wrecks, but here is the original. See what women and flag rushes will do for a man. Bill is a sterling youth from Mt. Sterling. He is making wireless telegraphy a life work, being already an expert in dashing after Dots. Bill majored in biology, and has introduced the Frog Wiggle and the Angleworn Glide at the various dances. He is vamp of the first degree, and gets 'em all through the hypnotic effect produced by his auburn roof. Bill is a cruel cynic, a hard drinker at the Shop, and a man whom to know is to like and admire. He's a darn good man to have hang-in' around.

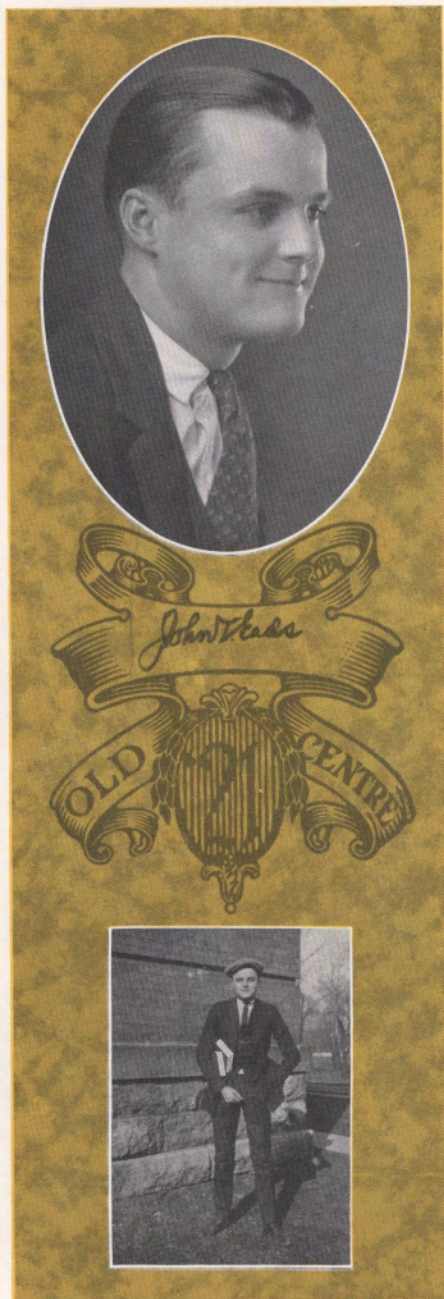

EDWARD RUSSELL DILLEHAY

Danville, Ky.
Centre College Prep, '17;
Assistant in Chemistry, '20-'21.

"PICKS"

"Beware you be not swallowed up in books."

Dilly used to lead a fast life around Danville on his motorcycle, but somehow he abandoned the wild life and began devoting himself to toil. When he was a Junior, he was suspected of having a part in the Great Mystery of the Vanishing Alcohol, but the sleuths on the case were unable to get any incriminating evidence against him. This year you could find him pacing up and down the Freshman chemistry lab, vainly trying to remember the formula for water. At the end of four years he is able to pour carbon disulphide from one test tube to another without breaking both tubes. He has a mighty cheerful disposition, including a grin that would make girls leave home.

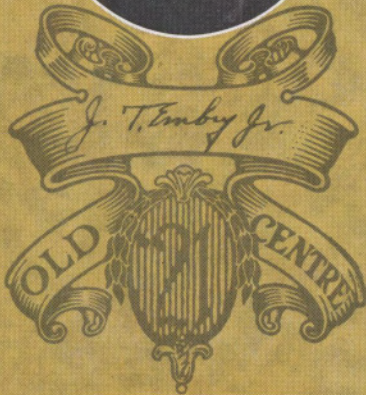

JOHN TRIMBLE EADS

Phi Delta Theta
Decatur, Ill.
Centre College Academy, '17;
Milliken University, '18-'19;
Centre Five.

"JOHN"

"Honest good humor is the oil and wine
of a merry meeting."

It seems as if all our own dear Seniors were Al with the women. Here is one who us particularly so, and when they hear him moan and groan on his saxophone, oh boy! The grin on his face in the picture is just a sample of the good nature that's always evident in John. He goes around all time looking like a million dollars, and it is whispered that the Arrow Collar people want to run his picture in the Saturday Evening Post for their advertisement of "Before and After Taking." When asked to hand in his list of accomplishments, John wanted to know if Y. M. C. A. was an accomplishment.

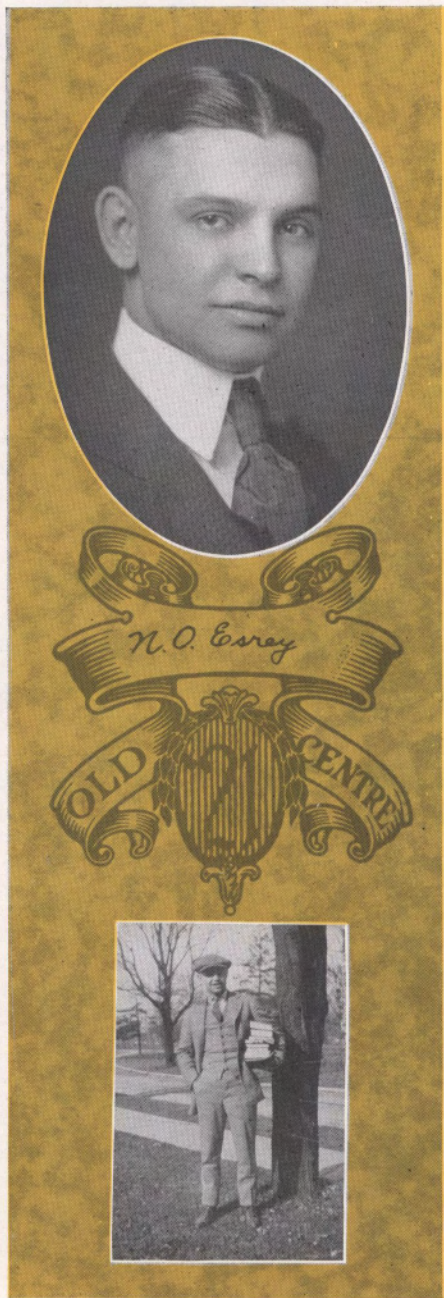

JOEL THOMAS EMBRY

Kappa Alpha
Stanford, Ky.
Stanford High School;
Baseball, '19, '20;
Track, '19;
Y. M. C. A. Minstrel, '19;
Friendship Council, '20-'21;
Summer Quarter,
University of Chicago, '20;
Ye Rounde Table.

"JOE"

"Little pains in a due hour employed great profit yields."

Joe came to Centre in the fall of 1918, and by doing a lot of extra work that most of us would shrink in horror from, he has managed to be "among those present" in the Senior Class this year. He is a student and an athlete, a combination which is mighty hard to beat. His capacity for the mastery of foreign languages cannot be surpassed, and on the field we rank him among the best in baseball and track. Joe has a disposition that has made him many friends since he has been with us. Whatever vocation he chooses for his life work, we predict a bright future for him.

NILES ORR ESREY

Phi Delta Theta
Columbia, Mo.
Columbia High School;
Centre Five.

“ESREY”

“A likeable fellow, one who will succeed.”

The expression, “little but loud,” must have been especially created for Esrey. For ages and ages we heard him pounding the slats out of his drums down at Doc Stout’s Theatre, that is, until the pipe organ came to town. Then, for the first few days, he could be seen looking disconsolately over the rail down into the pit, thinking of the good old days of the past. Esrey’s being there was why K. C. W. was always so anxious to go to the movies. He says, “Ah, when I smile, I am beautiful.” Orr had rather argue than eat. Turn the spotlight on “Israel.” He’s one of the best in town. How? Oh, lots of ways.

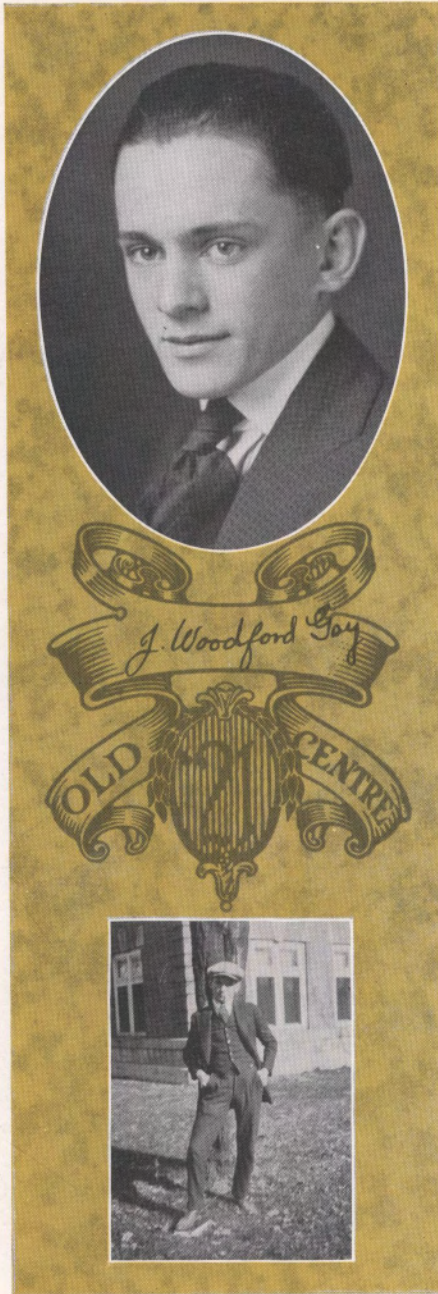

RAYMOND TYE FAULKNER

Phi Kappa Tau
Campbellsville, Ky.
University of Louisville, '17-'18;
Hampton-Sidney College, Virginia;
Assistant in Chemistry at Centre, '20-'21;
Chamberlain.

"TYE"

"One science only will one genius fit,
So vast is art, so narrow human wit."

Tye's chief ambitions since coming to Centre seem to have been: To break up as much of the chemistry lab as possible, thereby acquiring a reputation as a scientist; to appear in chapel with a dignified expression on his mug; and to impose upon his associates a number of his amusing, not to say excruciating, practical jokes. In public he has a quiet, serious, and dignified air, but only in public. Sprinting to class to beat the last bell seems to have been his only diversion. It is rumored that he aspires to become a doctor, in order that he may find a more extensive field for his jokes on the unsuspecting public.

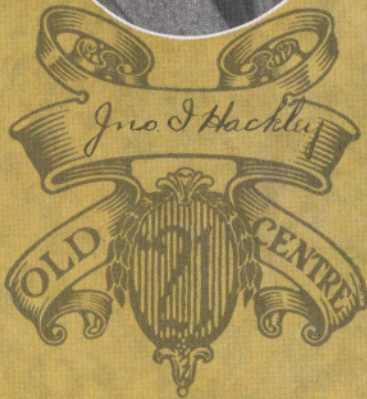

JOHN WOODFORD GAY

Sigma Chi
Winchester, Ky.
North Middletown High School;
Treasurer Sophomore Class, '19.

"WOODIE"

"Hence, loathed Melancholy."

Behold Woodie, student, bridge expert extraordinary, connoisseur of blends, and shark de Espanol. Do not get the wrong impression about Woodie from the accompanying snap. He is to all appearances spurning his books and abandoning himself to the vile weed, but you know that it is natural for a fellow to try to look hard when he gets before a kodak. When not climbing the tree of knowledge, trying to lower Willie Hoppe's record, or discussing with his friends the high cost of sweet potatoes in Peru, he may be found in some secret nook, worrying over Eddie Polo's mishaps. Woodie, the recipient of candy, "mailed with loving care," will long be remembered at Old Centre for his amiable disposition.

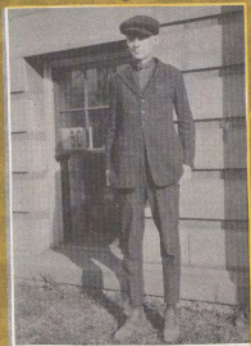

JOHN IMMEL HACKLEY

Sigma Alpha Epsilon
Versailles, Ky.
Versailles High School;
Football, '16;
Overseas Service, '17-'19;
Carnival Committee, '20;
Ye Rounde Table.

"HACK"

"There is a tide in the affairs of men,
Which, taken at the flood, leads on to Fortune."

Like a well known brand of cigarettes, Hack is distinctly individual. He was an overseas lieutenant during the struggle, but as soon as he got loose, he came back to Centre like a homing pigeon. A leader, whether at penny ante or hearts, he expects to enter the Consular Service. His personality makes him an amiable Romeo, and always he takes Taurus by the horns. Sometimes he is thrown, but more often, Taurus. Fighting under the handicap of being from Versailles—Kentucky—he has managed to get along mighty well in school; and, wonder of all wonders, managed to squeeze into Ye Rounde Table. Hack leaves us this year, and although among the dear departed he will never be forgotten here at Centre.

GEORGE FORREST HAMBLETON

Springfield, Ky.
Springfield High School;
Deinologian;
Treasurer and Steward, Ye Rounde Table;
Henry Barret Boyle Prize;
Assistant in Physics.

"JAP"

"Yon Cassius has a lean and hungry look.
He thinks too much, such men are dangerous."

We take pleasure in introducing to an admiring audience a young man who has not been marking time during his four year stay here at Centre—Jap Hambleton, patent applied for. His favorite pastime is making A's. In days of yore he was wont to be a mighty water thrower, and he fought many a valiant fight within the confines of Breck Hall. He long ago separated from the cap and bells, however, to don the cap and gown. By hook or crook he managed to become Physics Assistant during his Senior year, and the knowledge which emanated from his countenance has prompted many a student to ask him how to work an experiment—result, a grade of D on the experiment. Hambleton is a leading accomplice in the notorious class of '21.

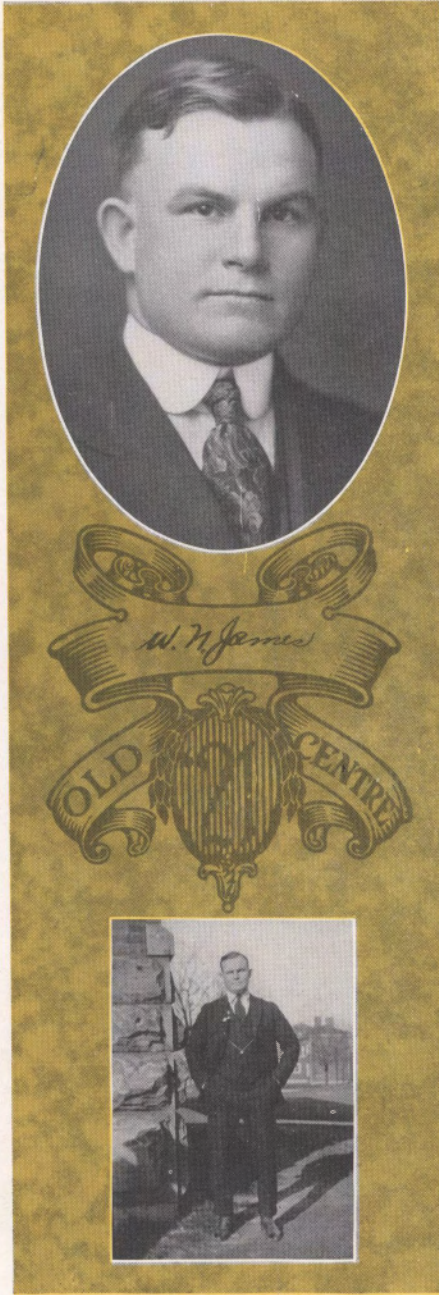

CHARLES EUGENE HOGE, JR.

Delta Kappa Epsilon
Frankfort, Ky.
Virginia Military Institute, A. B., 1920.

"CHARLEY"

"He drank the nectar from her lips,
As under the moon they sat,
And wondered if any man before
Ever drank from a mug like that."

"Charley Pig" came to us from the Virginia Military Institute, where he had spent four miserable years, and although he had reached a ripe old age by the fall of 1920, he had not really started to live until his entrance into Centre College. "Cupid" is one of the "big" reasons for D. K. E., and he has also been one of the "weighty" subjects of conversation at K. C. W. We predict that "Arbuckle" will eventually go into the fertilizer business, for he seems to know a great deal about the bones, and we are certain that he will some day place the metropolis of Hoge Station on the map.

WILLIAM NELSON JAMES

Sigma Alpha Epsilon
Fort Worth, Texas

North Fort Worth High School;

Football, '17, '18, '19, '20;

All-State Tackle, '18, '19, '20;

All-Southern, '20;

Track, '17;

Deinologian;

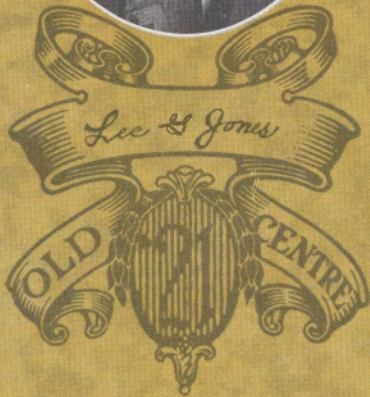

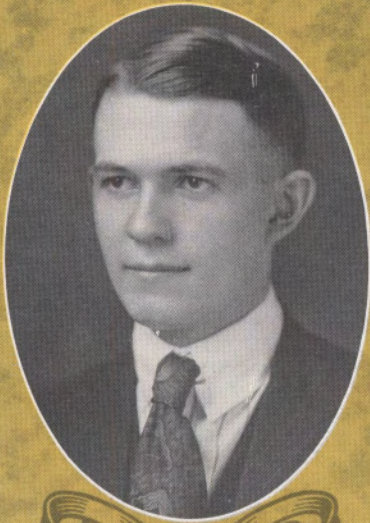

President Senior Class;

Carnival Committee.

"BILL"

"Firmness is great; persistency is greater."

No, this is not Caesar or Al Jolson, but our own beloved Bill James, alias "Sorghum." He was captured in the wilds of Texas near Watauga (who ever heard of Watauga?), and sentenced to a four year term at Centre. Bill is an all-around good scout and one of the best fellows that Old Centre has turned loose. Bill is a good example of how a fellow can gain his objective if he keeps on hammering at it. His football ability during his four years may be classed as pretty good, good, fine, and nothing like it, respectively. Bill started out by being a sub on the team, and now he is one of the foremost tackles in the country. Meanwhile Sorg has known all the raptures of an A. B. course, and he is right there in his studies. A prince of good fellows and a perpetual optimist, all salute him as one of the noblest Romans of them all.

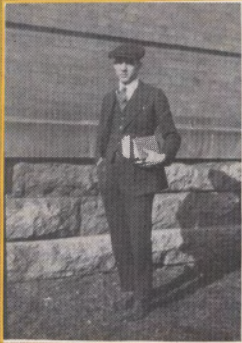

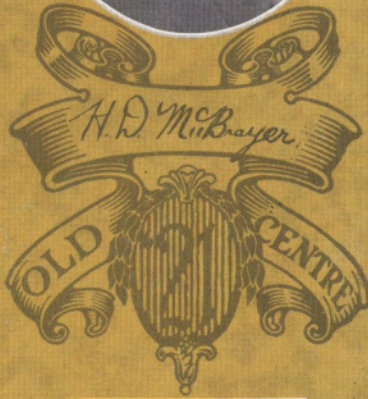

LEE GOEBEL JONES

Campbellsville, Ky.
Taylor County High School;
Vice President
Chamberlain Literary Society;
Assistant in Modern Languages;
Ye Rounde Table.

"JONES"

"What is the end of study?
Let me know."

Lee has proved during his stay in Danville that Campbellsville deserves a place on the map. His favorite Indian is Sitting Bull. He expects to enter the movies, and is as yet undecided whether to join the Pie Throwers' Union in the slapstick stuff, or to try a heavier role with Katherine McDonald. Lee knocks 'em cold in the class rooms, at times even existing on Latin roots and Greek stems. As an enthusiastic member of the Christian Endeavor and the African Polo Club, he is right there with the goods. Jones is O. K. and a mighty good scout.

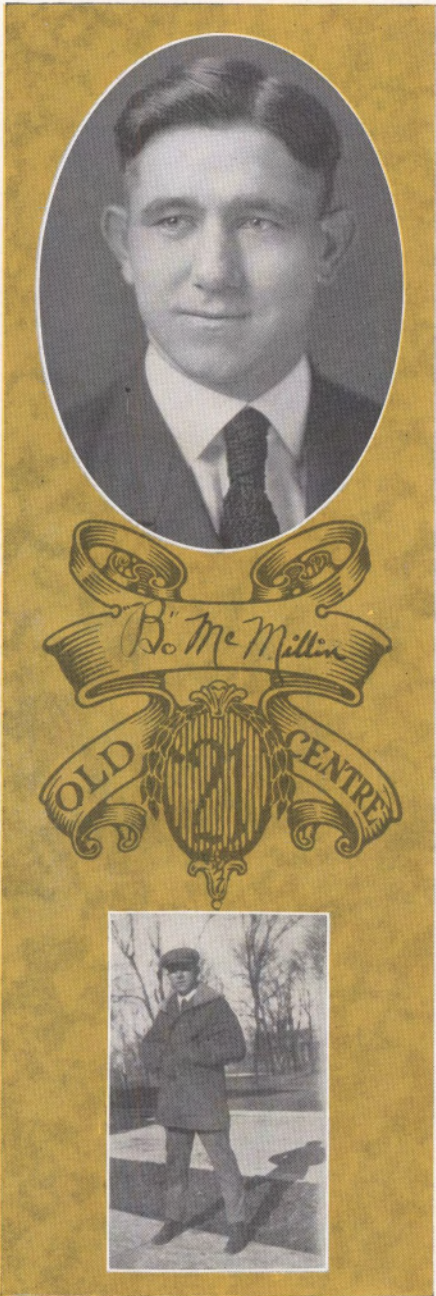

HARVEY DEWEY McBRAYER

Lawrenceburg, Ky.
Anderson County High School;
Deinologian,
Vice President, '20;
Ye Rounde Table.

"MAC"

"Love seldom haunts the breast where learning lies."

Mac is very quiet and rather shy, but he is an all-around man in his studies. He is dignified, but nevertheless a good fellow as well as a good student. He is intemperate in his habits, as he drinks heavily—Coca Cola—and was once seen in a pool room. Whether he was there to play pool or to study the convolutions of a spherical body on a plane surface, we cannot say. While in Danville he professes an antipathy for all girls, but it is rumored that when he is at home in Anderson County, such is not the case. For dependability, capability, and scholarship, Mac is a genius. He goes to chapel and classes ten to fifteen minutes ahead of time to keep from being tardy. Mac may be classed among Centre's few "intellects."

ALVIN NUGENT McMILLIN

Beta Theta Pi
Fort Worth, Texas.
North Side High School;

Football, '17, '18, '19, '20;
Captain U. S. Champions, '19;
Captain Football, '20;
All-State Quarterback, '17, '18, '19, '20;
All-Southern Quarterback, '18, '19, '20;
All-American Quarterback, '19;
Second All-American Team, '20.

"BO"

"Act well your part; there all the honor lies."

Is it possible to say anything flattering about Bo, that somebody hasn't already said ages ago? The Lone Star State has produced many stars, but none more famous in their particular line of endeavor than our own "Nuge," a Kentucky Colonel, if you please, and a man who, as a leading newspaper has said, is better known than many a member of the President's Cabinet. Besides his natural born athletic ability, Bo's clean sportmanship and fair play have been a shining light to the men whom he has led on the gridiron and on the basket ball floor. Bo has had enough honors heaped upon his head to have spoiled a king, but his classmates and associates know that he still wears the same size of hat as he did when he first blew into Danville. Good luck to you, Bo. Play the game as squarely in the future as you have in the past, and you're bound to come out on top.

JAMES WESLIE RANDALL

Phi Delta Theta
 Kansas City, Mo.
 Richmond High School, Richmond, Mo.;
 University of Missouri, '16-'17;
 Minstrel, '18;
 President of Sock and Buskin, '20-'21;
 Editor "Old Centre," '20;
 Centre Five.

"JIMMIE"

"The man that hath no music in himself
 Is fit for treasons, stratagems and spoils."

Slatz is our own prize fat lady and pianist. He loves his bath robe and other people's Fatimas. Jimmie, the man with the butler side-burns and artistic temperament is the blue ribbon interior decorator from Missouri. He has been mixed up in everything since his three-year sojourn in Danville. He was brought into prominence long ago by appearing on the stage in female garb. If he ever takes up this line of work for a living, Julian Eltinge had better hunt himself another job. As a member of the Centre Jazz Hounds, he gives us the latest out in music. When he sings, oh, daddy! His most notorious accomplishment was editing the 1920 Annual. Jimmie, shake your shimie for me.

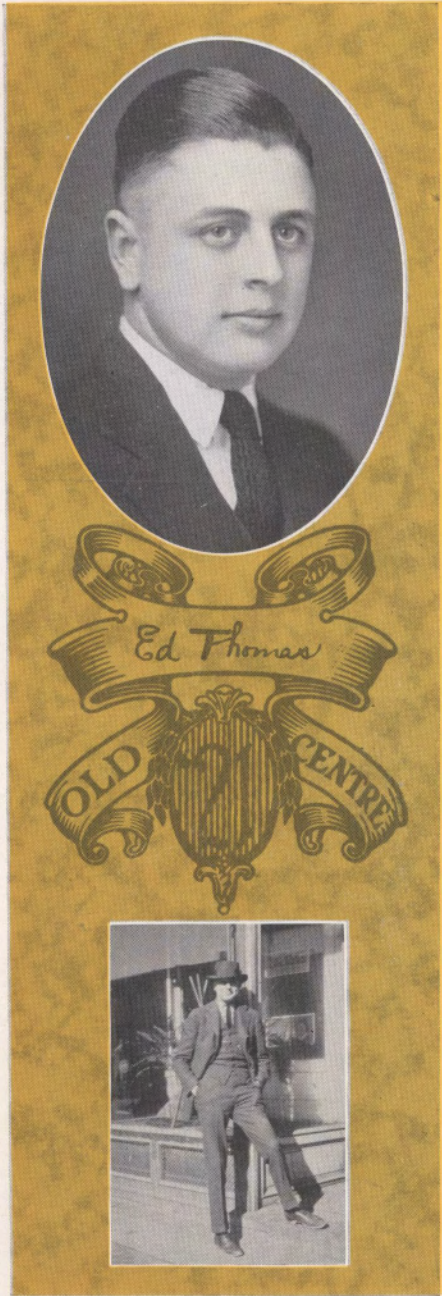

JAMES REID STERRETT, JR.

 University of Kentucky, '20.

"JACK"

"Push on, keep moving."

We would like to introduce him as Rev. James R. Sterrett, Jr., but alas, the fates decreed otherwise. The Jack has successfully fooled an innocent congregation in the heart of the Blue Grass for several summers, it seems as if he has shut his eyes to the dazzling possibilities of such a future, and has turned to pedagogy as a career. Whether this change was influenced by the bewitching smiles of the country lasses, we have been unable to find out. After demonstrating to the people of Hodgenville what a high school principal ought to be, in 1920 he repaired again to Centre's Classic Halls, with the conclusion that "A little learning is a dangerous thing," and with the intention of entering Princeton to drink deeper of that "Pierian Spring."

"ED"

"It's all right to take things as they come,
but it's better to go after them."

Ed has been a fixture around Centre for many, many moons, but now he has his credits and has gone on his way rejoicing. The swish of skirts as K. C. W. rounds the corner of Third and Main has smitten the heart of many a Centre man, but Ed turns a deaf ear. Once it was different. Then he—but that takes us too far into the past. Dramatics have claimed a fair share of his attention, and he probably would have become a great actor if his fraternity brothers had let him alone. His most famous appearance was in "Food," a Sock and Buskin product of last year, in which his clinch with the heroine was one of those endurance contests that would make a Thomas Meighan-Gloria Swanson fade-out go way back and sit down. In addition to these activities, Ed has upheld the Cento as assistant business manager and sporting editor, and has gotten by with it. We don't know his plans, but whatever he does, the chances are that he will be a millionaire at forty.

"JUDY"

"There is nothing half so sweet in life
as love's young dream."

As a professional vamp and athlete, Judy Walden has come to be almost an institution at Centre. His natural born sentimental nature is only turned loose now and then, however, for his heart and thoughts are in the far away Virginia mountains. From running the financial part of the Centre College "parties" (so called by Doctor Rainey) to throwing the basket ball all over the lot, and pole-vaulting to outlandish heights, Judy is an adept. He is not entirely asleep above the ears, however, for like other well known characters he wormed his way into Ye Rounde Table. Goodbye, Henderson Kid, and good luck.

"RED"

"Flirtation is a circulating library in which we seldom ask twice for the same volume."

K. C. W. is shrouded in black; all the eligible females in Danville and vicinity are downcast, and why? Why ask such a foolish question, Oswald? Don't you know that Red Weaver is getting ready to pull his freight. The weaker sex is not the only crowd who thinks a lot of Red. We are all for him strong, and Walter Camp must have thought a lot of him in 1919 when he gave him a place on the first All-American. We'll all miss you, Red, on the grid-iron, in the class rooms, and at the Shop. Here's hoping we meet in the future many times.

Senior History

IT was a bright, sunny day in the fall of 1917 when the Class of '21 entered Centre, about fifty-five strong. There were among the motley group of unsophisticated Freshmen, students, athletes, good fellows—all bouyant and eager to make achievements.

We began our college life in truly conventional style, registering under our friend and protector, Dr. Crooks. It was only a few days later when we received an invitation from the Sophomore Class to attend an informal reception given in our honor.

This reception was much different from any that we had ever attended. The affair was cordial enough, but it lacked the conventional handclasp. Every Freshman had to fill a place on the program staged for the benefit of the Sophomores and the admiring villagers. We had to perform various stunts on Main Street, such as rolling peanuts with our noses to the tune of a paddle, paging George Washington, and the like. Our entire class was then marched into Stout's Theatre and compelled to give to the audience a free exhibition of dancing and singing. We were then taken to that place of all places, K. C. W., and there made to demonstrate how little we knew of music and proposing. After this we were compelled by the supercilious and probably jealous Sophomores to stage the comedy of "Running the Gauntlet" before a whole bevy of girls. This seemed to win the sympathy of the fair sex for us rather than to gain favor for the Sophomores. Every member of our class remembers the stinging sensations he received when he ran this gauntlet. It is a sad, sweet memory.

After this eventful night the Sophomores posted several trivial rules which we were to obey or undergo a second and more terrible initiation at their hands. It was only a few weeks until we donned the skull cap of Gold and White, with the numeral "21" in bold relief on the side, front, or back, according to the manner in which we placed the said skull cap on the head. Now we were full-fledged men of Centre.

The history of a Centre College class would not be complete without a record of the flag-rushes in which it participated. In the spring we were told that the flag-rush would be staged. It occurred on a rainy night in March. We got our revenge on the Sophomores in this tussle. When the first light of day dawned on the little city of Danville, the flag of '21 floated in the morning breeze, while the Class of "'20" was bound hand and foot on the sod.

It was an eventful day for Old Centre when the Class of '21 entered her classic halls. The nucleus of the football team of 1917 was furnished by the Freshman Class of that year. In the Centre-State fracas, it was a member of our class who drop-kicked, scoring the only points of the game. Thus the Class of '21 had its share in the defeat of the University of Kentucky which had defeated Centre the year before by an overwhelming score.

The next fall, when college opened, the ranks of the Class of '21 were depleted. Some had dropped out for various reasons. We as a class had the duty and the honor of initiating one of the largest classes that has entered Centre College. Though outnumbered almost six to one, we put the Freshmen through the usual rites.

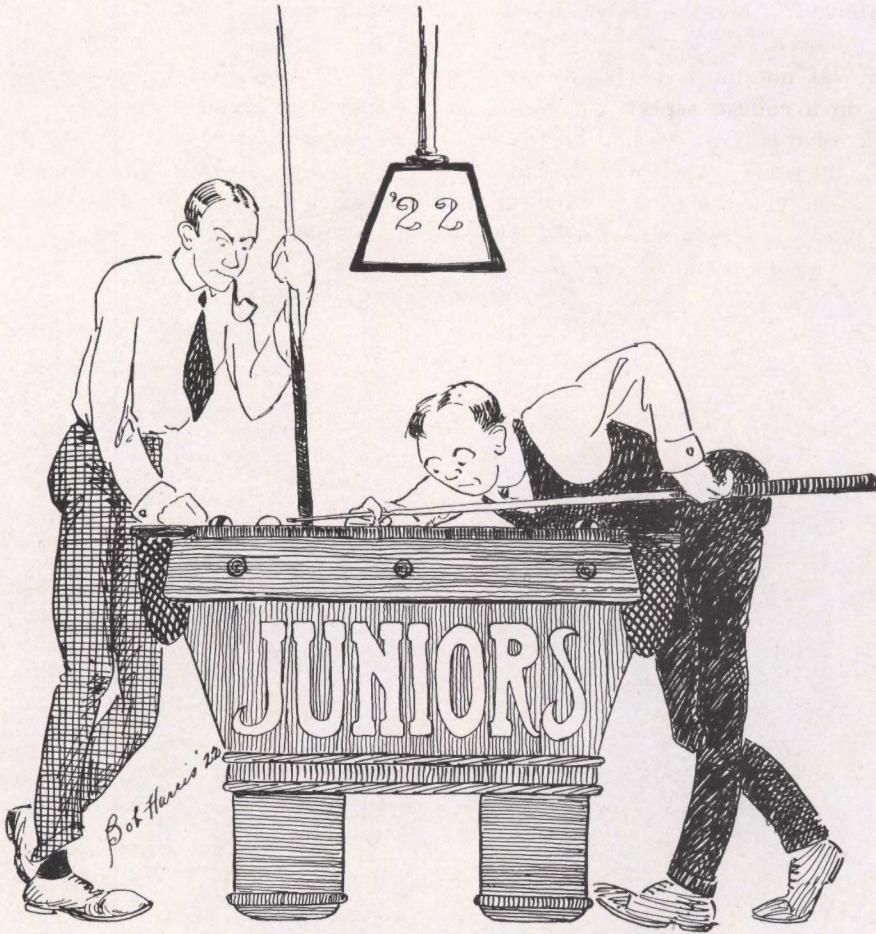

In October all of us who were eligible were enlisted in the Students Army Training Corps, and for two and one-half months we "carried on" to the best of our ability. Then the armistice was signed, and demobilization of the S. A. T. C. soon followed.

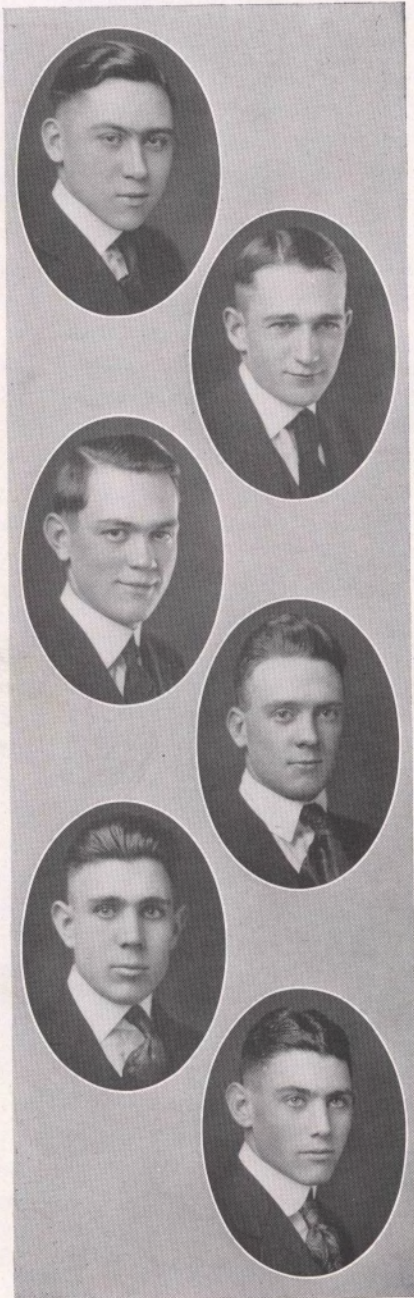

It was not until the beginning of the next semester that Centre once more took on a college aspect and began to maintain her regular schedule. In the spring of this year we had our flag-rush with the Freshmen. Although greatly outnumbered by them, we won the victory by a clever stratagem, in leaving our flag closely guarded by a few men on the borders of the campus, while the others withstood the attack elsewhere. This same year the basket ball team, composed of three of our number, won the championship of the South.

The next year when college opened our class was still supreme. This was an eventful year for the college and for our class, the year that our football team won such renown, placing Centre in the limelight. Our team won a national reputation, and the Class of '21 contributed its share to winning it. Two members of our class, McMillin and Weaver, were placed on Walter Camp's first All-American Team. The remaining portion of our third year was uneventful. We spent our time in the pursuit of knowledge.

At the beginning of this our last year we received three welcome additions in Walter Brashear, Marshall Brown and Joe Embry, all fine scholars and good fellows. By way of conclusion we wish to express the belief that it has been some time since Old Centre has turned out a better class. We are not egotistical, but we are proud of the achievements of our class. Our class has been one of achievement, not only in athletics but in scholarship also. It has been one of achievement in all the activities of college life. Our gridiron gladiators are McMillin, Weaver, Armstrong and James; in basket ball we have McMillin, Walden and Armstrong; on the diamond we are well represented by Bishop, Daniel and Embry; and in track by James, McMillin, Irwin and Embry. Brown is our orator and debater; Faulkner and Dillehay are our scientists; Jones is our language shark; McBrayer is our math prodigy; Brashear is our literary man. Meanwhile, Thomas, Esrey and Randall hold up our rep in society.

Let us hope that when our college days are over and we lay aside the cap and gown, we may look back and say that our work was not in vain. In the lives of all of us there will come a time when we will look back upon our college career with a regret that it is gone forever; and when this time comes for us, may we link together memories of Centre and of the Class of '21. Junior History

OUR class will always be remembered as the War Class. When the war clouds were blackest, we gathered together at Centre with one purpose in view—to help win the war. On the cinder path east of Breck Hall, the long line of the company front, between little Lacy Byron on one end and Bo Williams on the other, was composed mostly of the men of '22. There on that cinder path, we helped Centre do her bit towards licking the Kaiser. Now for us the thoughts of the greasy Russian rifles, the frosty morning flag salutes and setting-up exercises, the flu and the barrack life at Old Centre bring back memories of an experience that we do not care to repeat. That experience, however, lasted but a short time, and those of us who had resolved to get some learning and a diploma soon settled down to the college life that Danville offers.

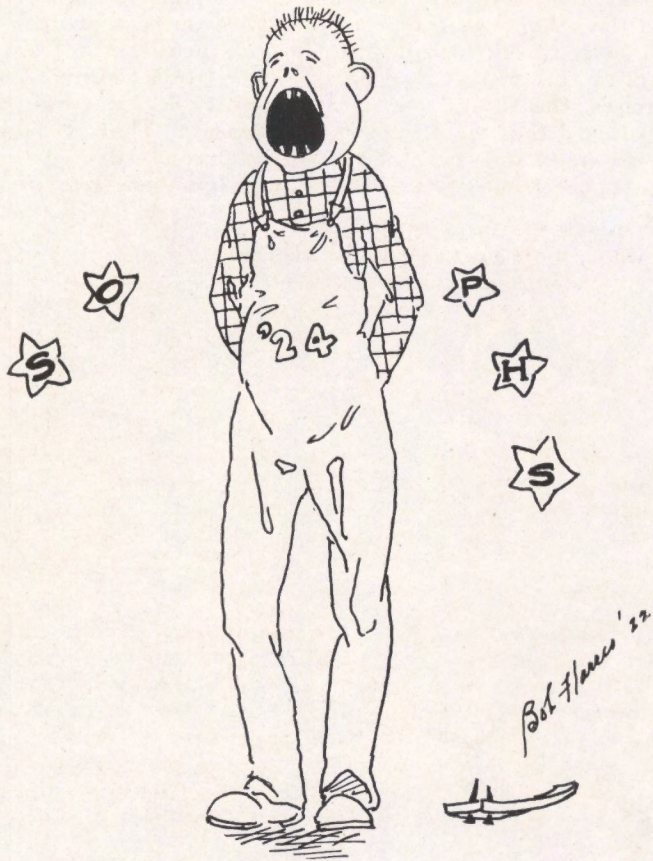

Having come to a maturity of college existence, the flag-rush scuffles in our Freshman and Sophomore years seem childish, but we remember with satisfaction our strength, unity and victory in these then vital struggles. In football, ah, here we will ever have pride. Our class furnished the backbone for the "Wonder Team." At Harvard last fall, Sully Montgomery, the Cow; Murphy, the Calf; fleet-footed Lefty Whitnell; Red Roberts; Daddy Ford; Ben Cregor, all did wonderful work. In basket ball, track and baseball the Class of '22 has more than done its share. No further back than last year we won the Inter-Class Track Meet.

What man of the other three classes and what member of the faculty has not turned an envious eye and expectant ear towards the stove in the corner, to listen to the closing harmonious strains of a grand old chapel hymn as they issued from the throats of the Stove Singers, the Junior songsters. Actors, students, cartoonists, contortionists, hypnotists, budding orators, men of literary promise—you will find their names on the Junior roll.

To go into the individual prowess of the members of our class, although it would be highly instructive, would take up entirely too much space. Red Roberts' valiant struggles in Greek are to be commended. Hynes has done great work as a debater and orator. Lefty Whitnell makes a hit with a widow as far away as London because of his football ability. In physics and chemistry Teddy Sanford has become an authority nearly equal to the professors in these two subjects. Martin bids fair to take the place of Enrice Caruso when the latter expires. The names of those Juniors who, because of their charms, have a strangle hold on the fair sex, would make a tedious list.

It grieves us that so short a time remains in which to enjoy the congenial comradeship of our class. We can scarcely realize that only one short year remains before separation from the classis halls of our Alma Mater. For three years we have joyously feasted on the benefits she could give us, and all too quickly the final year has rolled around. Let us be resolved in the year left to win for the Class of '22 the laurels of success in all college activities, and to reflect the highest credit upon Old Centre.

Sophomore History

OLD SOL has looked down upon this fair campus of ours several times since the last history of the Class of '23 was written; consequently the same writer will add a few lines to keep fresh in your memory the doings of this renowned class.

The Freshmen this year were certainly a motley crew, numbering about one hundred and twenty-five. This is where history always repeats itself—the Freshman initiation. We herded the yokels through the post office and for a couple of hours had plenty of fun, although no one was killed or wounded. We certainly do seem to be out of luck when it comes time for the annual flag-rush. Last year when we were Freshmen we had to fight such brutes as Red Roberts, Sully Montgomery, Don Royce and Pap Ford. This year we are battling Rice, Major General Allen, Newell, Flippin, McCall and other huskies who number well over a hundred. Hard on old '23, eh what?

Now let me tell you about the Sophs on the Wonder Team. Three of our boys made that coveted football "C" this year—Hump Tanner, Terrible Terry Snoddy and Gus King. You should have seen those boys "git" at Harvard. At Georgia Tech our own little "Humpty" was the hero of the day. This trio worked consistently all the season and gave the Gold and White all they had. When it comes to loping off the mile and the half-mile in track uniform, our own president, Dewey Kimbel, is right there with the stuff. Judging from what he did at Cincinnati and at Louisville, Dewey is one of the best in the country.

Initiation, flag-rushes and athletics do not by any means constitute our entire history. Every member of the class is prominent in some school activity. We have specialists in class work, vamping K. C. W., and pool-shooting, and many of our class are well known to have kept the Shop from going bankrupt. Seriously now, we are real proud of our class. How about it, Prexy, aren't you?

Freshman History

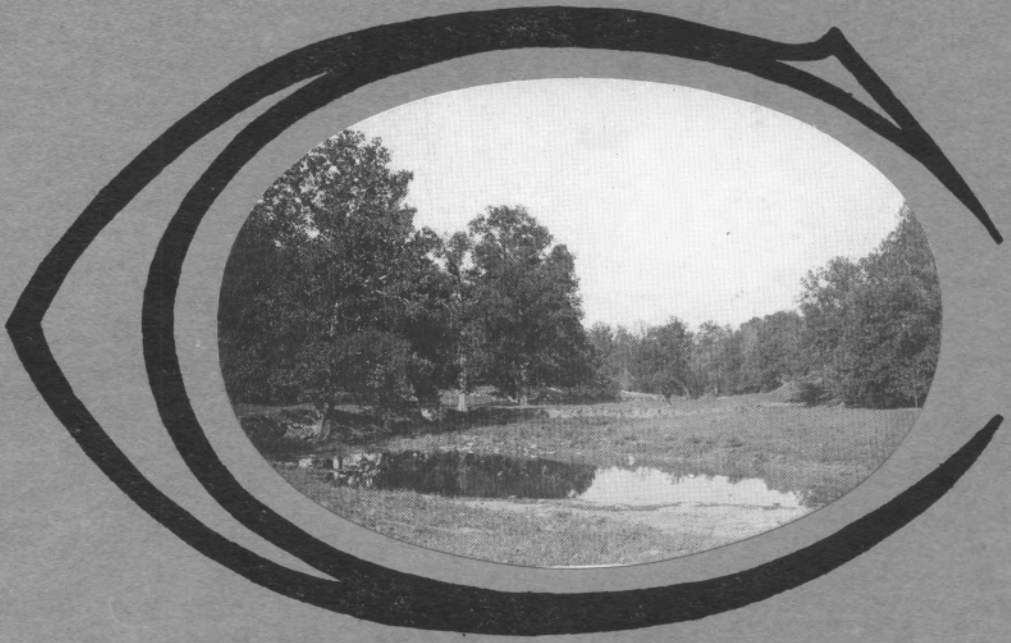

AS some poet didn't say, "Classes may come and classes may go, but Old Centre goes on forever." This is most likely true, but Old Centre herself pauses in her onward march to greet the Class of '24. Well may she pause, for the advent of such an illustrious body would give the noblest cause to think and admire. Predictions of fame, honor and glorious achievements might be made with a degree of certainty of their fulfillment by these men. Embryo statesmen, senators, and presidents are among our ranks. Give us room and watch us ramble!

In the early part of September, 1920, knowing how unsophisticated we were, and how little we knew of the city of Danville, the Class of '23 condescended to show us around the town. They chose a beautiful night to point out the landmarks to us, but I fear the beauty was not appreciated, at least not by us. First, as a recompense for their trouble, they told us to fork over a dollar. This was presumably for caps, but as yet we have not received them. Then lining us up, they pointed out various points of interest to us, the Shop, Stout's, etc. They permitted us the utmost freedom in exercising our vocal chords, nay, even urging it. The management of Stout's was most courteous in giving us the stage for conducting sundry experiments in calisthenics. Then the word in the air seemed to be K. C. W. This we welcomed with cries of C. C. K. Y. The road was long, but we tarried not, for on the campus the entire student body was awaiting us. After trying in various ways to show that we appreciated their interest, we hastened back to the city through a double line of our guides who were holding staves in lieu of swords.

Thus the school welcomed us; we will return the compliment to the Class of '23 by holding a reception especially for them on the campus. There we will gambol until tired. If our guests so wish, they may lie on the greensward to their hearts' content. At eleven p. m. there will be a flag raising done by us in the honor or dishonor of our visitors. This will be appropriately accompanied by a salute of one gun. So be it.

Athletics felt the impact of the Class of '24 as shown by recent records. Two members of this class started in the Harvard game; one man was an All-Kentucky forward on the basket ball team; and there are several men on the track and baseball teams. Likewise in scholastic work the Class of '24 has shone. Bigger, brighter, better than any before is our boast. Far be it from us to wax egotistical, but we say in parting that the things accomplished by the Class of '24 will live long in the memory of Old Centre.

J. E. Green, '24.

The Press Club is a new institution on the campus. It was founded by the six present members for the purpose of bettering student publications of Centre College. Although it has been too recently organized to produce any marked effects, it has brought to life a new publication which seems assured a long and prosperous life. The Press Club takes pride in its only exclusive publication, the satirical but well-meaning "Paris Green."

Membership to this organization is invitational, and is limited to such students as are actually interested in the aims and purposes of the club.

The Sock and Buskin is the youngest of Centre's organized school activities, having been founded in 1919 by Samuel R. Cheek, Howard Van Antwerp, Jr., and Burwell K. Marshall, in an attempt to correlate and control dramatic activities of the college. It was founded in response to a long-felt need for some organization to take over the supervision of dramatics.

It proved its need with immediate success. Two one-act plays, "The New Word," and "A Girl to Order," were produced in April, 1920, and were well received. The Carnival Play last June, "Jack Straw," was an unqualified success.

Two productions each year are presented by the society. The mid-year production this year consisted of two one-act plays, "Ring Around Rosie" and "A Telegram from Dad." The Sock and Buskin's second production each year is the Carnival Play. The club fills a needed want at Centre, and its future prosperity is already laid in its present successes.

The ancients believed that "Whom the gods love, they destroy." If we concur in this opinion, we certainly believe that Chamberlain is at deadly feud with the whole Olympic tribe, for, though she was born in 1837 and is the oldest literary society west of the Alleghenies, the fiercest blasts of the winds of time serve only to sink her massive roots deeper into the strata of college life.

Chamberlain numbers more men today than she has for years past; the bearers of her standards, though young in years and in college experience, are not inferior in ability; and they have yet enough college years before them to be scarred veterans of many contests and victors of many hard-fought forensic fields. Onward, Chamberlain!

Nearly nine decades have come and gone to see but constant increase in the progress and usefulness of the Deinologian Literary Society. So hurried are we, however, in our present day, that we perhaps neglect to remove the dust from the archives containing the early history of our society. What a privilege it is for us to delve into old records and conjecture, as we turn the musty leaves of the minute books, how wonderful it must have been in those old days to have mingled in college with such men as John C. Breckinridge, later Vice President of the United States; W. E. P. Breckinridge, Kentucky's most famous orator; Thomas Crittenden, Young, Yerkes, Humphrey and Boyle, whom Deinologian numbers among her sons. Just sixty-seven years ago John Young Brown, whom his State honored both as her chief executive and as her representative in the Hall of Congress, was president of Deinologian. Now, another John Young Brown, whom nature has endowed with the mighty powers of debate, leads the society. It cannot but inspire us, the present members, to see the long and unbroken line of illustrious and distinguished men that have once graced our hall, and to realize that we have equal if not greater chances for greatness than they had.

The motto of Deinologian is "Vita sine literis mors est." Yes, life without letters is little better than death. But we like to look to the meaning of our euphonic sounding name for another truth. It has a Greek derivation and is made up of two Greek words, together meaning "skillful speaker." The word "Deinologian" thus has the significance of a strong, skillful and finished speaker.

Not only do we glory in the recollections and traditions of the past, but we are proud of Deinologian's present record. In the last term the society grew so large as to necessitate a division of its members into two groups. Deinologian's members have worked well. Brown and Case downed Chamberlain in the classic inter-society debate. Brown won the February 22 Oratorical Contest. Each member is beginning to realize the golden opportunities that are his to be a part of this ancient and cultured organization. With the new start she is getting now, Deinologian's future lot, we hope, will be to turn out statesmen, orators and writers that will surpass those of the past.

The Carnival

The Carnival is distinctly Centre, and it has come to stay. No Centre man who has partaken of its pleasures can ever forget it, one of the sweetest memories of his college days. School is out and it is a carefree collection of joyous individuals who stay to enjoy Carnival times. The King and Queen are supreme and it is right that they should be, for they are the choice of Centre men. The Carnival Play, Gala Night, the Carnival Dance, all leave indelible impressions. No certain event can be pointed out as being distinctive. It is the Carnival as a whole, the very spirit of the times, that makes it unforgettable; and as a Centre man has so admirably expressed it once before:

“A shifting expanse of Carnival, gay gowns and rainbow costume, kaleidoscopic in swift dash of color; music that melts into the dancer’s soul; eyes that pass with naughty challenge of flashing smile; eyes—gray, brown, blue—and all happy; a thousand voices eagerly piping inanities; dances and dinners and dream-laden nights; taxis and flowers; shady nooks and stolen kisses; soft fragrance of summer nights; myriad whisperings of gossiping breezes; speeding over the gleaming ribbon of open road, until one wishes to drive on and on, humming the drowsy lullaby of that last waltz, toward the new day and the land of never-forgetting.”

ATHLETICS

Charles Barthell Moran, Coach—"Uncle Charlie," as we affectionately call him, has been with us for four years—four of the greatest years in the history of Centre College. His wonderful ability as a coach is so well known to lovers of football in America that we need scarcely pause here to make mention of this. The interest and enthusiasm of the entire country has been won for Centre men because of their splendid, clean, vigorous athletics. Praise for the wonderful victories has been equaled only by praise for the clean sportsmanship and fine play, which is just what Coach Moran stands for. He has helped to win for Centre a "place in the sun," and he has won for himself a place in the heart of every son of Centre.

Robert L. Meyers, Athletic Director—As people begin to know more about the history of the wonderful development of our athletics, the parts played by Robert L. Meyers will be more and more appreciated. It has been "Chief" more than any other man who has discovered material for Wonder Teams, and who has brought this material to Centre. "Chief" has the organizing ability of a campaign manager, the fighting spirit of a Garibaldi, the contagious enthusiasm of a Billy Sunday, and the heart of a father toward every man on the team. It is small wonder that the "Praying Colonels" stick together like brothers and fight like wildcats when they are playing under the inspiration of such a leader.

Thad McDonnell, Trainer—As student manager, Thad is a real card, an ace. He'd act as trainer, manager, fixer, go-getter, nurse, go-between, go-ahead, and nearly everything else. He gave up sleep entirely about the first of October. Thad put sense and brains into his job. He spent most of his time at it, and counted no work too hard, or no sacrifice too great for the good of the team. He was just as necessary to the success of the cause as any of the bunch, player or coach. He had a hard job, and filled it well.

ALVIN NUGENT McMILLIN (Bo), Fort Worth, Texas, Quarterback.

Age, 23; height, five feet, 9½ inches; weight, 175; Captain, '19, '20; All-Kentucky, '17, '18, '19, '20; All-Southern, '18, '19, '20; All-American, '19; Second All-American, '20. The average football player, like the average man, is more or less of a quitter. He soon reaches the limit. He is familiar with the last straw. But there is something about Bo's playing that bespeaks a finer quality. Bo is a thoroughbred. When we see him run through a championship Harvard team for big gains and bear the brunt of stopping a crushing attack time after time until forty thousand people spring to their feet and cheer him to the echo, we know that he is one of the greatest players in the game today. But when we see him and his boyish teammates battered and smashed to the limit of human endurance, till flesh and blood can go no farther, still keep on and on, fighting all the harder, and under the magic of his matchless leadership carry on to victory in the end, we realize that Bo is one of the greatest quarterbacks of all time, and a thoroughbred. A wonderful player, truly, in every department, but it is the rare quality of unconquerable courage, of sincerity, of unselfishness, of self-denial that numbers him among the game's immortals.

JAMES R. WEAVER (Red),
Fort Worth, Texas, Center.

Age, 23; height, five feet, ten inches; weight, 162; All-Kentucky, '17, '18, '19, '20; All-Southern, '19; All-American, '19. A thorough veteran at the vital pivot position.

Backing up one side of the line on defense, his uncanny ability to diagnose and smear an attack was a thing to wonder at. Red was injured badly at Cambridge, a fearful blow to the team. A hard fighter, active, wise to all the ins and outs of the game. Red stands out as a leader in his position.

WILLIAM N. JAMES (Bill),
Fort Worth, Tex., Tackle.

Age, 22; height, five feet, 9½ inches; weight, 170; All-Kentucky, '18, '19, '20. A bulwark of strength both in the games he played and in his fine gentlemanly example. One of the very best tackles of the year, fearless, wise, experienced, Sorghum Bill was a solace and inspiration to his coaches and teammates when things looked dark. Centre stands to lose Bill by graduation this year, and it is a loss indeed. Where will we turn to find such another? Not only a first-class, but one of the best students in college, and one of the finest, truest gentlemen. Bill, we surely hate to see you go.

TERRY SNODDY, Owensboro, Ky., End.

Age, 21; height, five feet, ten inches; weight, 175; All-Kentucky, '20. Fast, powerfully-built, experienced and shifty, Terry is a peach of an end. He can catch a ball from any angle and take it somewhere after he catches it. He's just as good a halfback, which, by the way, is his old position. Terry is one of those players a team has to have, the kind you can't do without. He loves the game, and they can't be too big and strong and ugly to suit him. Terry's playing was sensational at times.

NORRIS ARMSTRONG (Army), Fort Smith, Ark., Halfback.

Age, 22; height, five feet, 10 inches; weight, 162; All-Kentucky, '18, '19, '20; Captain-elect for '21. You might call Army the "gentleman" of the team. He's the only pastimer we have who can play through a game and never get the part out of his hair. Army is a really great halfback in all departments. He has a way of looking half dead and all in, and then all of a sudden he'll cut loose and you'll see him down under the goal-posts with the ball in his arms. So finished is Army's playing that the average spectator doesn't appreciate him, he does the hard things so easily. Captain-elect for next year. He'll be a great one.

EDWIN A. WHITNELL (Lefty), Fulton, Ky.
Halfback.

Age, 21; height, five feet, 9½ inches; weight, 163; All-Kentucky, '20. The most famous play Lefty ever made was to catch a long forward pass from Bo, and gallop through the midst of a Harvard backfield for a glorious touchdown. It took a football player to do this, and that is Lefty. He is as fast as a streak, big enough, is a good south hoof punter, twists and turns in a broken field or smacks into 'em head-on, and does most everything a football player ought to do—on the football field. He is known all over the country as one of the most brilliant backs of the season.

JOHN P. TANNER (Hump), Owensboro, Ky., Fullback.

Age, 22; height, five feet, six inches; weight, 155. For a little fellow like Hump to fill the shoes of Red Roberts at fullback is a fair-sized assignment, but Hump did it well enough to win a name for himself all over the country. He goes in hard, both on the offense and defense, and loves football so much he's in pain most of the time. He's a broken field runner, too, of real ability, and one of the finds of the season. He showed up well in every game, and in most of them he starred.

RALPH MONTGOMERY (Sully), Fort Worth, Texas Tackle.

Age, 19; height, six feet, two inches; weight, 215; All-Kentucky, '18, '19, '20. Sometimes Sully scared them to death, and sometimes he ran over them in the usual way, but whatever way you take him, that big boy is a football playing piece of furniture. A splendid offensive and defensive tackle, as big as a male bovine with the epidermis peeled off, the sight of him makes a coach want to rear up and shout hallelujah. His loyalty to the team and the ideals of a gentleman's game never faltered. Sully is one of those fellows you can count on. He is always in there fighting to the last ounce, and then some.

STANLY ROBB, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, End.

Age, 19; height, six feet; weight, 180; All-State, '20. Any man who can play guard, tackle, end or fullback is more or less versatile at football. After a lot of experimenting and shifting, Stan ended the season at end, playing a bang-up game. When he fits into our machine and becomes one of us in aims and devotion, he will be whirlwind. With a splendid physique, big, strong, fast and experienced, he looks mighty good from every standpoint.

THOMAS MCGEE MORAN (Tom), Horse Cave, Ky., Halfback.

Age, 24; height, five feet, 8½ inches; weight, 155. Dago helped out a bad situation from the punting standpoint. He was in fine form this year, getting off in games good long spirals that gave safety men the fan-tods. Tom isn't the biggest fellow in the world by a long shot, but he's a dandy halfback just the same, and he did his share of ball-toting whenever called upon. On defense he tackles hard and clean.

TOM BARTLETT,
Owensboro, Ky.

Halfback.

Age, 23; height, five feet, 10½ inches; weight, 154. Tom staged a comeback this year, endearing himself to Centre men everywhere. Out of the game for two years, weakened fearfully by three sieges of flu, Tom put the old will power to work and more than made good. He's an A-1 halfback, has fight enough for three men, and is as smart as they make 'em. Tom is one of the fellows that make coaching worthwhile. He got better in every game, and by the close of the season was in old-time form, which means one of the best backfield men the South has produced.

JAMES B. ROBERTS (Red), Somerset, Ky.
Guard and Fullback.

Age, 21; height, six feet; weight 210; All-Kentucky, '18, '19, '20; Third All-American, '19. Overweight at the start of the season and weakened by rapid training, Red was not the wonderful fullback of former years. He put his all into that first touchdown against Harvard, winning deathless glory that day. Suffering from serious injuries, the team was deprived of the services of this really great player most of the season, an irreparable loss. When Red is right, no man in the game is his superior, either on the offense or defense, or anything else for that matter.

BEN W. CREGOR (Baldy), Springfield, Ky., Guard.

Age, 22; height, five feet, ten inches; weight, 178; All-Kentucky, '20. "Good old Baldy, he's a fightin', football playin' fool," is what they said about him on the sidelines; and they are right. Playing there in the line, Ben was counted on to pile up any steam roller attack, and he did it. Ben's football knowledge is deep, well-grounded and thoroughly a part of him. Not a big man as linemen go, he has a murderous, sweeping charge that few teams have been able to stop. Getting better every year, and good enough for anybody's team right now.

JACK CONVERSE (Jabby), Somerset, Ky., End.

Age, 23; height, five feet, six inches; weight, 158. Jack "arrived" in a playing sense about mid-season, and when he did, he arrived with a whoop and to stay. Jabby plays an altogether superior game at end, knows what's going on all the time, and they never catch him flatfooted. He can cut down and clip till it's a joy to watch him. He just comes out of nowhere, and little as he is musses a big mass play all over the ground. He catches forward passes too when you throw them in his direction.

GEORGE CHINN,
Harrodsburg, Ky., End.

Age, 19; height, five feet, 11 inches; weight, 183. When George gets a little more experience and balance to his playing, he will be one of the very best men in the country. He is a terrific line-plunger, on defense charges like a runaway horse, and when he hits, something has to give, and does. Severe injuries kept him back this year. He was played at fullback, guard, and end, and showed great natural ability. Let him develop the scientific side of his game, and he will be a world beater.

ASHBY BLEVINS (Blev), Mount Sterling, Ky.
Guard.

Age, 23; height, five feet, ten inches; weight, 160; All-State, '18. How in the world a comparatively small man like Blevins can play such a corking good game in the line is a mystery, but he does it just the same. They all look alike to him, large or small. Blev is an example of what the old fight can do when it gets started. This boy has almost the finest spirit going. You ought to see him work for the good of the team and get in there and stop those big fellows when they have to be stopped.

CLAYTON R. FORD (Pap), Danville, Ky., Guard.

Age, 21; height, six feet; weight, 193. Considering his active experience in football, Pap's game is very much worth while. These days it takes more stuff to play a line position than it does the backfield. He is mastering fast the fine points of modern line play. He gave fine, loyal and dependable service all through the season. Just a little more confidence on his part, and Centre will have one of the best guards in the business.

W. E. BEDFORD (Blink), Dallas, Texas, End.

Age, 23; height, five feet, ten inches; weight, 164. An end of the fast, slashing type, and as sure of catching a forward pass as if it were handed to him on a silver platter. Blink worked hard all the time in practice and in games. Not a bit of loaf in him. He is an excellent tackler and defensive man. His extraordinary ability at handling passes made him an exceedingly valuable player. He will continue to grow in effectiveness.

FRED CAUDILL,
Blackey, Ky., Guard.

Age, 20; height, five feet, 11 inches; weight, 175. When you're talking about loyalty, faithfulness and team spirit, here's a boy you'll never overlook. He's been out on that field, day after day, has stood and shivered, watched and listened, and waited his chance. He's getting to be a good lineman, and will be very good in another year. Experience is all he needs. He has the size, the strength, and the fighting spirit. Watch Caudill. He's a comer.

JOE MURPHY (Murph), Columbus, Ohio.
Quarterback and Halfback.

Age, 23; height, five feet, 5½ inches; weight, 130. He's a tiny tot, but he's a football player. He's as hard as nails, fears nothing that wears hair, horns, or feathers, and if you give him the ball with a fair chance to get started, he'll run some team ragged. As good a halfback as Irish Joe is—and he is mighty good—the best thing about his connection with the team is his absolute unwavering loyalty. It takes a pretty hard case not to be cheered, inspired, or shamed by his example. Joe is the goods, and he is as clean as a hound's teeth.

HARRY Y. LIPSCOMB (Shanks), Dallas, Texas, Center.

Age, 23; height, six feet; weight, 155. Shanks played center on short notice and that's the toughest job in football. He did a good job of it, too. Though very slight of build, and apparently not at all robust, he certainly was a bear on defense. His passing got better and better every game in which he played. He was in there fighting all the time. They couldn't whip him unless they killed him, and he is still alive.

GEORGE MAVER, Long Island, New York.
Halfback.

Age, 20; height, five feet, 10½ inches; weight, 160. A newcomer to the football team, but a young player of very great promise. In the backfield he instinctively does the right thing. He put up a fine brand of football in several important games, and everybody knows he will be a star in a year or so. George is a high class gentleman, a fine athlete, and has won a secure place in all our hearts.

CARLTON RICE (Cot),
Seattle, Wash., Guard.

Age, 19; height, six feet, one inch; weight, 180. Although a center by training and experience, Cot showed up in fine style when called on to play tackle or guard in emergency. While new to the team and the Centre style of play, he showed that he was a player of great ability, and in another year his name should be up in the big type. Cot is naturally a fighter. He'll even fight the coach if he tries to take him out of the game. Good boy, Cot. You've brought a lot of fine stuff all the way from Seattle, and we wish we had a dozen more like you.

LEE MCGREGOR (Mac), Fort Worth, Texas.
Fullback.

Age, 24; height, five feet, 11½ inches; weight, 188. Here's a boy who deserves the prayers of the saints. He'd been out of football and college for several years working in an office, and this fall he resolved to "come back." He worked like a Turk and took off enough weight to make another Joe Murphy. It was a long hard pull, but he got there and is still going. Lee will be right next season, and then he'll show the football what's in him. The old-time speed and drive will show the folks something. He took part in a good share of the season's games, and showed up like a wheel horse.

1920 Football

After feasting on the delicacies of victory for three seasons, the Centre College Colonels tasted defeat on October 23 when downed by the Crimson football aggregation of mighty Harvard, in the Cambridge stadium. The score was 31 to 14. This heroic battle fought by the Gold and White will long live in the memory of Kentuckians and some forty-three thousand spectators who were fortunate enough to secure admission tickets. By holding the Easterners to a 14-14 tie during the first half of the game, Old Centre gained imperishable fame. Injuries and a lack of experienced substitutes told, however, in the final sessions of the intersectional contest. Captain Bo McMillin on that day won the admiration and respect of the football world through his masterful play. Time after time Bo would sift his way through a mass of Crimson players, and Centre would register another first down.

The most sensational play of the game was when Lefty Whitnell, speeding down the field at a ten-second rate, received a long pass from McMillin, and with two crimson men on his heels, "carried the mail" over the line for the second touchdown for Centre. This play was cheered until the very stadium seemed to sway with emotion. Bruce Dudley, sporting editor of the Louisville Herald, says:

"Centre leading Harvard by 14 to 7! Imagine, could it be possible? The ant had the rhinoceros on the run. The mountain was moving toward the sea of defeat. The plodding tug-boat had the Leviathan in deadly alarm. Centre had fired another shot to be heard around the world. The pop-eyed fans barely could realize that Centre not only had actually scored on Harvard once, but had planted the ball behind the Harvard goal twice.

"The bulky weight of the Crimson line, however, began to tell on the courageous Colonels in the latter moments of this period, and a series of crashes against Centre's guards enabled Harvard to make the score 14-14 before the half ended. The break of the game went to Harvard early in the third period when Murphy, the 128-pound halfback and the smallest man who ever played against Harvard, permitted an attempted punt to slip off his toe with the result that the ball went but a wee ten yards. Harvard turned this slip into a touchdown, and toward the close of the period Horween added three more points to the Harvard total by contributing an inspiring drop-kick from the 35-yard line.

"The last points were scored early in the final period, when Horween plowed through the line after a forward pass had been intercepted by Havemeyer and carried into scoring territory. Centre, in this period, showed the world the kind of stuff of which men are made when, though worn by exhaustion, it kept hammering away until the five-yard line had been reached, but the physical bodies were unequal to the task of advancing the ball further against such a brawny barrier."

Never will the Centre team nor the three hundred Kentuckians who made the jaunt on the Centre Special forget the reception or the many courtesies of the Harvard student body and the Boston people, and next year on the 30th of October perhaps the Colonels will pack a few more thrills into the Stadium when they "strut their stuff."

Perhaps the writer is giving too much space to the Harvard contest, but anyone who was present at Cambridge that day or who stood nervously on some street corner back home and listened to the announcer call the plays, will agree that a couple of volumes would not give the tilt its due.

Early in September, ten days before the opening of college, football gladiators began to arrive in Danville from all over the country. Centre's fame had gone broadcast and all were anxious to land a berth on the first squad and get a crack at Harvard. Through weather that would have made Florida jealous, they sweltered and got into condition. Chief Meyers, the greatest athletic director that ever graced a college roll, and Bo McMillin led the chargers through the early paces. Uncle Charlie Moran doped his umpire togs the latter part of the month and seized the reins of guidance. October 2 drew a large opening crowd and the Colonels experienced little difficulty in downing the Morris Harvey team from West Virginia, 66 to 0. With the second team opposing them in the third quarter the Mountaineers essayed a couple of passes that netted them first downs, but this was the sum total of their offensive.

Coach Moran, seeing the many faults of the players, labored early and late with Chief Meyers in correcting them. On the following Saturday three thousand fans saw the greatly improved team go into action. The Howard College eleven, of Birmingham, Alabama, was smothered by a 120-0 count, the visitors failing to make a single first down. Terry Snoddy who had been nursing a dislocated shoulder, got back into harness and nabbed a couple of long twisters from Bo.

With only a week remaining before the Harvard game, Kentuckians were on their toes, and several thousand assembled to watch the Colonels in their final workout. Transylvania was the victim, and with Bo holding down a seat in the Cambridge stadium following the Crimson's play against Williams, Humpty Tanner led the Gold and White band. Hump's playing was a revelation in this encounter. His efforts, however, cost him the long-cherished opportunity to oppose the Easterners on the following week. A torn hip ligament put him out of commission near the close of the Transylvania setup, which ended in favor of Centre.

On October 30 the Colonels stacked up against the Golden Tornado of Georgia Tech. The Tornado lived up to its name, and Atlanta went wild when the crippled Moran men were defeated 24-0. The Southerners outclassed Centre in every department that afternoon, but had the two hooked up on the Saturday previous, we confidently believe that the Colonels would have retained the Southern championship for the fourth consecutive season. Weaver and Roberts were both out of the line-up in this fracas, while others had not recovered from the Harvard test and were weary with fifty hours of travel in six days. Tech, however, deserves credit for having a well-balanced eleven.

The spell of defeat was broken at Indianapolis on the following week end when the formidable Depauw team was downed 34-0. Despite numerous injuries the Colonels looked like the Centre team of old and displayed the characteristic old fight. The Blue and White wildcats were next on the card, and before the largest turnout that has ever crowded into a park to witness a gridiron classic in this State, Centre managed to run up a 49-0 score. The Wildcats fought courageously, but failed in every effort to shadow the Centre line. McMillin, Tanner, Armstrong and James were the outstanding luminaries of this bout.

Giving Louisville her annual taste of big league football added another victory to the Centre ledger. Virginia Poly, with a record that classed with the best on the South Atlantic was defeated 28-0. Bo, Robb and Bartlett drew the big ovations on this occasion, while the play of the entire line was superb. Georgetown was no match for the Praying Colonels on Turkey Day and in a listless engagement was downed 103-0. Sacrificing all chances to lead the country in scoring, the versatile McMillin gave every backfield man on the squad an opportunity to carry the ball across the enemy's chalk-line. The first team worked in only the first and third periods.

January 1 found the Colonels pastiming at Fort Worth, Texas, in the first post-season match ever arranged for a Centre team. The Lone Star State boasted of a team that had not met defeat in three seasons. The "Ever-Victorious" Texas Christian University aggregation lost their title when they were given a rough 77-7 jolt. With 8,000 Texans looking on, the Moran men exhibited everything they had in store. The curtain was rung down in the final period when Bo sprinted eighty yards for the final score.

When the final All-Kentucky selections were made, Centre was given eleven out of eleven places by four of the six sport writers. The other two named a Kentucky State man. Bo McMillin was the unanimous All-Southern choice for quarterback. Bill James, Red Weaver, Terry Snoddy, Red Roberts, Sully Montgomery and Lefty Whitnell were named by a large number of the Southern critics in their mythical selections. McMillin, who won first All-American honors at quarterback in '19, was named Second All-American quarter by Camp last fall. Mr. Camp was not present at the Harvard match. It is a significant fact that every sport writer who attended that historic engagement placed Bo as captain of his first All-American team. Mr. Camp gave Roberts, Weaver, James and Whitnell honorable mention in his all A. A. write-up.

Centre has a right to be proud of her 1920 record, of that loyal band of Colonels who gave everything they had to uphold the traditions of Kentucky's manhood. It battled as nobly as any band ever led by Daniel Boone. It asked or gave no quarter. It brightened Kentucky's star in the Grand Old Flag. With many of the Colonels returning, Centre is looking forward to an even greater season in 1921. Coach Charlie Moran will be back in the harness, and with Moran on hand the sporting world will look for the Gold and White banner to rise to even greater heights. At this date Athletic Director "Chief" Meyers has not yet agreed to return. For four seasons Chief has played a leading role in placing Centre on the map, and it is the keen wish of every Centre man and alumnus that Chief will again cast his lot with us. Norris Armstrong will lead the band next fall, and in Army, who has been a main cog in the backfield for three campaigns, the Colonels made an admirable selection. Bo McMillin will return, having turned down a number of bids to enter the professional ranks. Red Weaver, who has kicked 99 consecutive goals from touchdowns, will be back at his old station at center. Thus everything is set for the curtain to rise on another season.

Bo McMillin Lands on Second Team of First All-American Picked

GIVEN PLACE AS HALFBACK

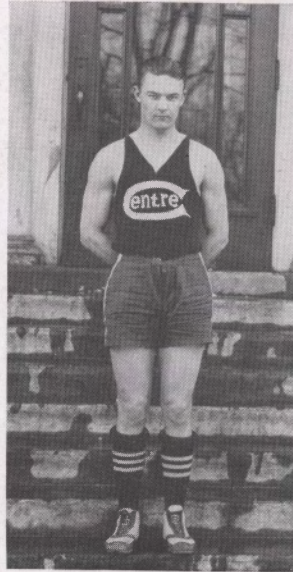

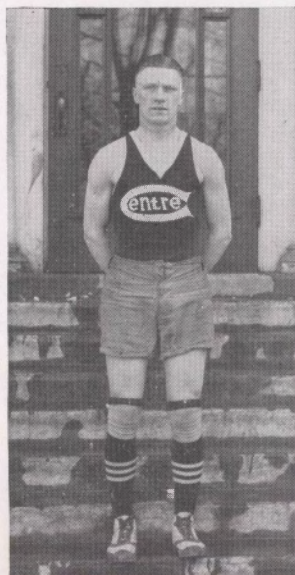

Charles Rice McDowell

Norris Armstrong

Charles Rice McDowell—"Professor Charlie" is a Centre graduate of only four years back who got himself on the faculty and then turned to coaching basket ball and track. "Charlie" was pretty much of a sensation when he used to play basket ball here at Centre, and he proved he hadn't forgotten all the tricks of the game when he piloted the team through one of the most successful basket ball seasons that Centre has ever known. He introduced several new tactics into the repertoire of the Colonels, which were in a great measure responsible for many of Centre's victories. "Charlie" is a favorite with all Centre men, and we hope he will stay with us a long while.

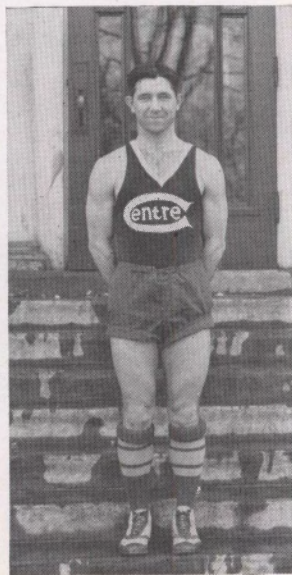

Norris Armstrong—Armstrong has proven himself to be an ideal captain. He has the qualities of personality and character that make him a natural leader, and his influence on the team has been all that it should have been. His example in staying back like a faithful watch dog, guarding the goal, foregoing all attempts to gain individual honor by scoring, is largely responsible for Centre's strong defense. "Army" is tireless on the floor. He has the fighting spirit that is Centre's, and then some. He can be thrown all over the floor and be back on his feet in a second ready for business. He is an exceptional guard and will be hard to replace.

George Maver

Julian Walden

Alvin Nugent McMillin

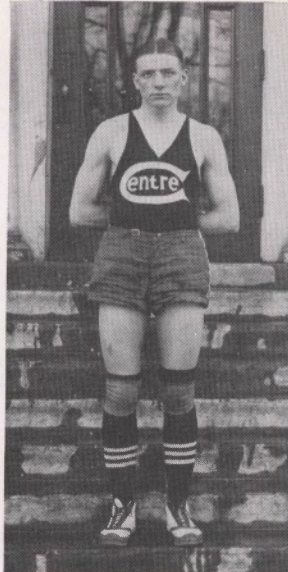

George Maver—If someone were to ask us whom we considered the best all-around basket ball player in Kentucky and probably the South, we would answer without hesitation, George Maver. He shoots with an almost uncanny accuracy from any angle, and is as clever as a professional juggler in handling the ball. It is a pretty safe bet that Maver will make the majority of points in any game. He is only a Freshman and has a great future as a basket ball player.

Julian Walden—“Judy” is generally considered one of the best running guards in the South. He is fast, shifty and an artist at handling the ball. He combines the ability to do close guarding and floor work at the same time. He is also a consistent scorer. Such star forwards as King, of Kentucky; Palo, of Harvard; and Albright, of Brown, have found scoring almost impossible when guarded by this lithe Centre guard. It will be difficult to fill his place next year.

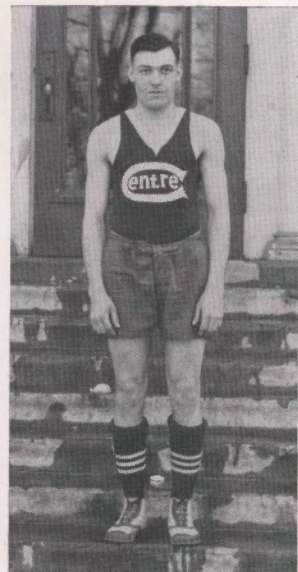

Alvin Nugent McMillin—McMillin is a remarkable floor man. Wherever the ball is “Bo” is either there or thereabouts. His clever foot-work and shiftiness which make him the exceptional football player that he is, are his greatest assets in the indoor game. His exhaustless energy and fighting qualities are worth a great deal to the morale of the team. His shoes will be hard to fill in the making of next year’s team.

Eugene Bedford

Ches McCall

Royce Flippin

Eugene Bedford—Bedford is a clever forward and a consistent scorer. He has a faculty of getting into peculiar positions when being guarded, and his unique methods of getting loose from the ball are deceiving to his opponents. "Blink" is aggressive and a hard fighter, which is evidenced by the vicious manner in which he charges in for the tip-off. He is expected back with the team next year.

Ches McCall—McCall is a versatile player. He has played in the majority of Centre's important games in spite of the fact that he is a Freshman. He has done creditable work at both center and guard positions. He was a real star in the Kentucky State and Harvard games. Ches is young, and we predict for him a bright future as a basket ball player.

Royce Flippin—Flippin is the man on the squad who deserves more credit perhaps than any other one man, because he came to Centre this year as a Freshman knowing almost nothing about the game, but by hard work and conscientious training he has made himself a valuable asset to the team. He played in nearly all the games in the latter part of the season, and rendered good service in the games on the Eastern trip. With a little more experience "Andy" will be a real star.

1921 Basket Ball

Centre's 1921 basket ball season was one of the greatest experienced in many years. Not only did the team tie for the State honors and probably the championship of the South, but the Colonels invaded the East and defeated some of the best aggregations in that section of the country.

At the call of Coach McDowell for pre-season practice, a host of promising material turned out. All of last year's varsity squad returned to regain their old positions. The unusual show of class among the recruits made every man put his best into the game. Variety may be the spice of life, but competition is the key-note of athletic success, and this factor went a long way toward paving the way for a successful season.

January 8 saw the Boyle-Humphrey gymnasium packed to the rafters, with restless fans eager to see the squad in action for the first game of the season. Kentucky Wesleyan was the victim of a 46-14 slaughter. As is usually the case early in the season, the game was marked by slow play and numerous fouls. The fans, however, got their money's worth in witnessing the performance of Rabbit Maver, the find of the season, who tossed the ball through the basket with unerring aim. Maver is a Long Island product, and if this is the way they play ball up there, we want more men from that section of the country.

The second game of the season was a tight contest played at the Louisville Y. M. C. A., in which the varsity cage-men registered a 34-20 defeat over the fast University of Louisville five. It was a battle from start to finish, but thanks to Maver's superior markmanship Centre managed to get a lead which could not be overcome.

With Captain Armstrong back in cage togs, and with the squad gaining in speed and team-work, it was comparatively easy to hang a 42-24 defeat on Auburn. The first half saw the Gold and Black lads holding their own, but in the last period Centre stepped out with a genuine burst of speed, leaving them lagging far behind. Bo McMillin showed great form in his aggressive playing, and he found the net for markers with remarkable accuracy.

In the encounter with the fast Kentucky State five, Centre for the first time experienced the thrill that comes when a game is hanging in the balance. Happily the varsity squad wasted no time in starting to score, and piled up a substantial lead in the first half. Roberts at guard baffled the visitors by his bulk, and it took them a good while to learn how to get away from him. Maver showed a burst of speed in netting baskets that is seldom equaled on any floor. During the first half he netted three field shots within thirty seconds. It was all the score-keeper could do to mark them down. It might have been that Centre felt that they had gained a lead too great for the Blue and White lads to overcome, for the defense seemed to break down, and the State boys staged a rally in the last five minutes of play that almost wrested victory from Centre's hands. The score stood 29-27 in Centre's favor when the pistol gave the signal that the game was over.

Georgetown proved easy picking for McDowell's net artists. It was almost at will that the home squad tossed the leather through the ring, and they totaled 62 points allowing the visitors only 23. It was in this game that the coach introduced a combination that worked so effectively that it was maintained through the greater part of the remaining season. With Walden and Captain Armstrong in the guard positions and McMillin as forward, Maver was placed at center and Bedford played at forward.

The first defeat of the season was sustained at the hands of the Kentucky State five in the return game with them on February 18. It is not as an alibi, but justice demands the consideration that Captain Armstrong was out of this game. Ches McCall played an excellent brand of defensive basket ball, but a familiar working unit was destroyed. State won by a score of 20-13. The end of the first half saw the score standing 11-11. Both teams, despairing of breaking through each other's defense, cast their lot with Lady Luck and resorted to long passes. The lady smiled on the U. of K. boys, giving them nine points and awarding Centre but two. Armstrong sustained his injury in dealing out a 55-23 score to Transy two days before.

Vanderbilt and Georgetown offered no serious resistance, bowing to Centre with scores of 44-18 and 69-20 respectively. Carrying fifty per cent of the stock for the State championship laurels, the team composed of eight men left, with Coach McDowell, to tackle the best in the East. Although defeated 40-27 in the first encounter, March 5, by the University of Buffalo, the Colonels finished up the remainder of the trip in fine form, defeating Harvard, Brown and Johns Hopkins. In this first game the strange floor and different interpretation of rules offered a serious handicap. Fourteen points were scored against Centre on fouls. Scoring power picked up after the men had become familiar with the floor, but they were unable to overcome the lead. Walden and Maver shared the scoring honors. McMillin was the recipient of much attention from this football-loving section. Robb and McCall shared the center berth with Bedford.

At Harvard the cage-men evened up the defeat suffered on the gridiron last fall by gaining a 41-36 victory over the Crimson. Hemenway gymnasium was kept in an uproar throughout the hotly contested game.

The following night Brown was humbled by the tune of 40-28. "Rabbit" Maver scored 24 points, keeping the Rhode Island boys bringing up the rear. Flippin, McCall and Robb each got into action during part of the game.

The final contest with Johns Hopkins proved to be the thriller of the schedule. Centre winning by a narrow three point margin. The Medics kept the varsity squad working at top speed in order to emerge at the head of a 26-23 score. Throughout the trip the boys were extended a cordial reception. Maver and Walden have justly been mentioned for All-State and All-Southern honors.

Natural ability, hard work, competition, good coaching, and the whole-hearted support of the school were the dominant factors in the success of Centre's 1921 basket ball season.

Although Centre did not cover herself with any particular amount of glory in baseball during the spring of 1920, the season may be considered a very successful one owing to the fact that the Colonels won nine out of fifteen games played. Many of the old stars were back on the diamond as soon as the call was issued for recruits for this particular form of athletics, and there seemed to be an abundance of new men who were anxious to be given a trial. The team played under one handicap during the whole season on their out-of-town games. Coach Green was unable to make any of the trips, but the team was handled very successfully on the road by Manager Joplin and Captain Davis.

Centre opened the season by playing a game with the town team, composed of players of Danville and surrounding towns and Cincinnati. The pitching of McKenzie, one of the new men, and the hitting of Whitnell were the features of the game. It was a walk-over for Centre.

The next game was the annual clash with Ky. State. The Wildcats had gotten quite a start of the Colonels and were in real mid-season form by the time this game took place. McKenzie was hit hard, and our rivals had eleven runs to Centre's three by the end of the ninth. Centre did remarkable fielding in this game, and hit pitcher Slomer hard, but State managed to get a lead in the early part of the contest which it was impossible to overcome.

The next game on the schedule, with Transylvania, was a pitching duel between Chandler, of Transy, and the veteran Bishop, of Centre, who was beginning to come into his own. It was a struggle from start to finish, with the final score 3-2 in Centre's favor.

Centre next won a 5-4 victory over Georgetown in a close, hard-fought game. Bishop was again on the mound for Centre, and Bailey pitched for Georgetown. The University of Louisville played Centre on Cheek field and won by a score of 2-0. Centre really deserved this game, but lost on a fluke.

Soon after this the Colonels took their first Southern trip. The team went to Knoxville and from there out to Maryville, where it lost by a score of 6-3. Bishop pitched good ball, but received poor support in this game. To help the cause along, Whitnell managed to get a home-run in the seventh inning.

The team then journeyed back to Knoxville and out to Jefferson City to play Carson Newman. McKenzie pitched his best, and Davis managed to get four hits out of five times up to the plate. The final score was 10-1 in Centre's favor.

Returning home, Centre went up against Kentucky State for the second time. This game was played in Lexington, and Centre was defeated 6-1. Bishop was in good form, but had loose support. Cooper, of State, pitched air-tight ball, allowing only three hits.

The next game was with Transylvania in Lexington. Several of the regular team, who were at the track meet at Atlanta, were missing. Davis and Cord filled the shoes of Embry and Murphy. Transy's pitcher was hit hard, and the Colonels secured a six run lead. Toward the latter part of the game, McKenzie began to weaken, and Transylvania came within one run of tying the score. Bishop was rushed to the relief and succeeded in holding Transy helpless. The final score was 7-6 in Centre's favor. Next in line was a return game with Maryville on Cheek Field, which Centre won 3-0.

It was now time for the second Southern trip. Stopping at Louisville, Centre met the Camp Taylor nine at Eclipse Park, and romped on them to the tune of 14-7. Embry and Bruner were the star hitters of the game. Cord pitched the first four innings and was relieved in the fifth by McKenzie, who pitched excellent ball for the remainder of the contest.

On the following day the Colonels took the University of Louisville into camp by a 4-3 victory, with Bishop in the box. A. C. Bruner, of Centre, hit a home-run in the sixth inning.

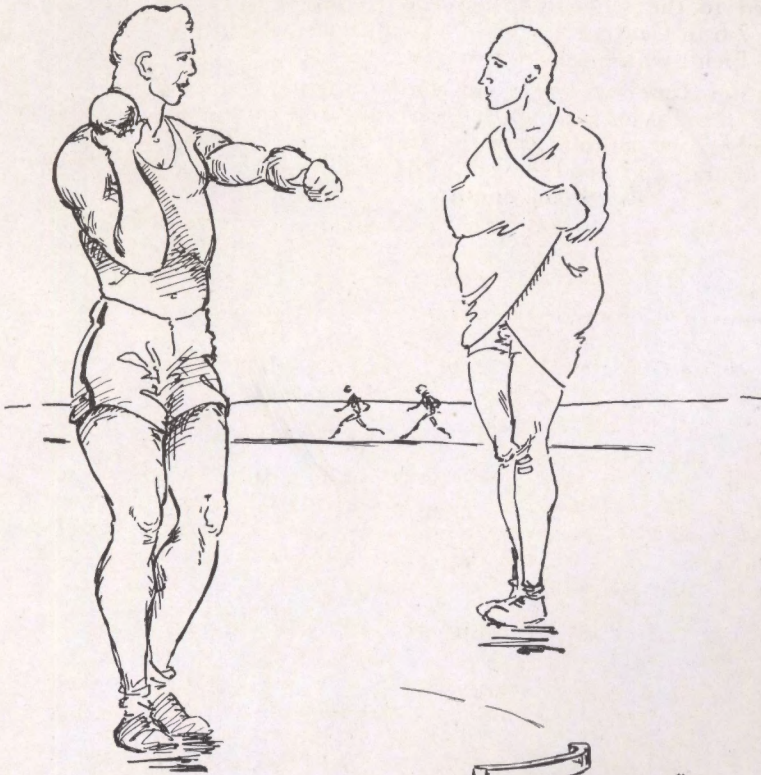

The team then proceeded to Nashville where two games with the Commodores were played. In the first game Centre did remarkable fielding, but McKenzie was hit hard, and Vanderbilt won, 6-3. Bishop pitched air-tight ball in the second game. Vandy got all the breaks of a hard-fought game, and after thirteen innings managed to win by a score of 3-2.

The last game of the season was the Carnival game which was played with Camp Taylor. Centre's battery was especially strong with Bishop in the box and Daniel behind the plate, and these men did more than their share to win this contest which was drawn out to thirteen innings. Daniel did exceptional batting, and Bishop did not slack up in his delivery at any time. It was an endurance contest, and the final score was 3-2 in Centre's favor.

TRACK

Bob Hamer '22

1921 Track

Although the prospects of track at Centre are just beginning to develop by the time Old Centre goes to press, we believe that Centre is going to be away out in the swim by the time the real track season gets here. Some of the men on the preceding page have taken part in preliminary meets at Cincinnati and Louisville, and performed nobly, and these men are getting better every day.

Kimbel, of course, is our most famous product. At Cincinnati, running against some of the best men of the East, he won first place in the mile and half-mile events, and broke the local track records in both races, bringing home a silver cup as large as a milk bucket. Kimbel was already a runner of reputation before coming to Centre. He received his first training at Louisville High. Mountjoy is a very versatile athlete and comes to Centre as a Freshman with a reputation already made. He was the individual track champion of the Kentucky High Schools last year and a high-point winner in the All-Southern meet. He can do about six feet in the high jump when he's in form, and he does the broad jump and pole-vault almost as well. Robb is the weight man and the quarter-miler. He is big and powerful, a natural athlete, and a product of good coaching in Prep. School. As a quarter-miler and a relay man, Brown promises to be one of the consistent point-winners of the coming season. Walden glides over the bar in pole-vaulting with the same easy, graceful form that makes him the star that he is in basket ball. His events are the pole-vault and the javelin throw. Captain Murphy is about the fastest man in Centre College. He has not only shown individual ability in sprinting but real leadership in generating interest in track work. Whinnell is another one of our "light foots," as well as a good high-jumper. He is a sprinter of ability, and although he has been unable to take part in the preliminary meets, he is expected to help "bring home the bacon" in the future. Embry has all that it takes to run the hurdles and the relay. He is light, but is fast and active. Burres is a dark horse that we are expecting much of. McMillin is a four-letter man, a species that is extremely rare at Centre. While he isn't a star at any single event, he can do anything on the list pretty well, from the pole-vault to the shot-put, and from the fifty-yard dash up to the mile. He is the type of track man that is a good point-getter in a dual meet. With these prospects Centre should have an excellent track team.

METHODS OF OYSTER EATING

(An almost identical copy of a Freshman theme, written by K—.)

Probably the bravest man in the world was the one who ate the first oyster, but now oyster eating is fast becoming one of the most popular of indoor sports in America. There have been many books written on this excruciating subject. Some of these merely give the rules of the game, while others dwell on the principles and technicalities of applied and advanced oyster-eating. Those who aspire to become proficient in the art may be assured of no breach of etiquette if they have one of these handbooks constantly at their disposal.

There have been many modes of oyster-eating devised, but one of the latest of these methods is one which was devised by an escaped student in Business Administration, who, after he had obtained his freedom, lectured in Greenland for the benefit of the starving bus-drivers of Africa.

The method as set forth is as follows: Sit down at a table with the fork in the right hand, after having procured the oyster, which is, of course, the first pre-requisite of oyster-eating. Oysters can be obtained anywhere where oysters are sold. When the oyster seems to be napping, give it a rather severe thrust on its tail. This should keep it from ever ending its nap, but in case the oyster has suspicions of your conduct and will not expose itself to a rear attack, be patient. Patience, dear reader, is the keynote of oyster eating. If the oyster persists in looking you in the eye, move around to the other side of the table where from a more advantageous position you can give it a one-way ticket over the Great Divide, with the utmost neatness and dispatch. Then place the oyster in the mouth, preferably your own mouth. Now focus your gaze on some horrible picture such as the Reign of Terror, a street scene in Danville, or a group picture of the faculty. This will cause your hair to stand on end; that is, if you have any, and your heart will come up in your throat. Then take the picture away, and as the heart slips back into place tilt the head backwards. The force of gravity will cause the oyster to take the place vacated by the heart. But as the heart goes down, a partial vacuum is formed in the esophagus. Now open the mouth, and the air pressure will do the rest, and the oyster will take its maiden voyage down the Alimentary Canal.

There is a great objection to this method, however, for it does not overcome the smoothness or the slickness of the oyster, thus making it difficult to control the specimen while in the mouth. Theda Bara has taken great interest in oyster eating, probably because the oyster is a little barer than any of the rest of our wild animals. She has, therefore, brought forth a method whereby one may eat an oyster as easily as a cactus plant.

Theda learned from the Constitution of a certain oyster colony, Section 146, Article 999999, that oysters can be easily eaten by applying sand to their exteriors, but as sanding oysters is a slow and tiresome process, she devised a method combining enjoyment and work. Two dozen oysters, two pints* of sand, and a checkerboard are needed for this scheme. The sand is sprinkled over the checkerboard, great precaution being taken not to apply the sand too heavily, which might obscure the squares on the board. When this is done, place the oysters on the board in checker position, and challenge your partner to a game of oysters. As the game progresses, the oysters will gradually become coated with a layer of sand. After fifteen minutes lay them aside until they regain consciousness. They are now ready to eat. Non-skidding is absolutely guaranteed if you use this method.

*Pint. An obsolete word; a measure which formerly stood for a quantity of liquor.

“Would it be improper for me to kiss your hand?”
“It would be decidedly out of place.”

THE GENTLE ART OF HYPNOTISM

A Short Excursion into the Psychic with Professor J. Tipton Cottrell, B. S.,
S. O. L., HNO3

In this article I will try to demonstrate the psychic powers of supernaturalism, the passing from the normal state into the cataleptic, into the lethargic, and finally into the somnambulistic. This power was formerly held to be one of the agencies of the devil, but I have taken up this great work to prove to suffering mankind that hypnotism is a great life if you don't weaken. The most excruciating results of this great power manifests itself in the ardent desire of the operator to hypnotize everything in sight. There has been much criticism of the extensive work that I have been doing in these parts, but I feel that none of my endeavors have been in vain.

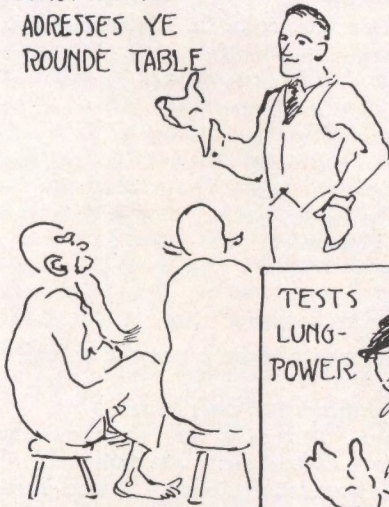

In approaching an individual whom I wish to influence, I first ask, "Were you ever hypnotized?" or "Were you ever under the influence of an anaesthetic?" On a negative answer, I produce a silver-tipped wand, which I first wave before the eyes of the subject and then let come to rest at the tip of his nose, with his eyes still focussed upon it. After this, I place him in a comfortable position, and proceed to murmur the following words to him, soothingly: "You are now beginning to see the original object and several imaginary objects floating about it. Do not be excited. You are not drunk, but are merely being hypnotized. And now your eyelids are getting heavy, as if they had little weights on them. You are beginning to feel as though you have been on a long drive, and your eyelids have small particles of dust under them. That clinging, drowsy sensation increases. Sleepy, sleepy, sleepy! That sinking sensation! Your eyelids are getting heavier and heavier. You are sinking down into a most alleviating and soothing sleep. You are sinking into a pit of darkness. The light is becoming fainter and fainter. There! It is gone. You are now fast asleep, in a deeper sleep than you have ever been before, a sleep from which you will not awaken until I tell you." If the subject at this juncture opens his eyes and grins at you, produce the black-jack which you have in your hip pocket, and rap him once over the head. After this he will be insensible to pain. This last resort, however, is not advised if you wish the subject to awaken on the count of three.

If the patient has been under the influence of an anaesthetic, stand him in a straight line perpendicular to the ground, with his head slightly bent backward and his eyes closed. Now gently rub the bridge of his nose, suggesting to him the effects of ether. If he does not flop at once with this treatment, get behind him and let him fall back into your arms, murmuring at the same time, "You are beginning to lose your sense of equilibrium. Darts of multi-colored lights are shooting around on the inner side of your orbits." Now let him drop suddenly to the floor, and if he is not asleep by this time, use the black-jack as specified above.

I have prepared a series of lessons on this engrossing subject, in which all the whys and wherefores of hypnotism are fully elucidated. This course is the only one of its kind in existence, and by means of it I guarantee to teach any amateur the fundamental principles of the subject. If you cannot, within a week's time, have your victims standing on their heads and jumping through hoops for you, you must be a half-wit. I am offering this complete course for the trifling sum of $49.99. Order now before the first edition runs out. Your money back if you are not satisfied.

 Phi Alpha Alicazee,
 S. O. L. for I.

X. Shh. I hear noises. Get down quick, Bill. (Z climbs down and falls into a chair.) Gee, I hope the boys have bumped into something promising. (Knock at the door.)

Y. What ho, the guard. Methinks we have another victin. Fair is foul and foul is fair. (Goes to the door and opens it. A, B, C and Mr. Blank enter.)

A. Gentlemen, gentlemen, how is everybody? Mr. Blank, I want you to meet Mr. X here. This is Mr. Y, and this is Mr. Z.

Mr. Blank—Pleesta meetcha.

X, Y and Z in unison. Charmed. (All sit down but A and X. They walk to one side and converse in low tones.)

“When were you born?”
 “April 2nd.”
 “Late again.”

- X. Who is this guy?
 A. Search me. We took him from the O. K.'s. Isn't that enough?
 X. So you know nothing at all about him. He looks pretty rare to me. Well, I'll give him the old line for a while, and maybe I can extract something about himself from him during the process. You'd better watch out front, in case some of the O. K.'s track him down and try to bust up our party.
 A. Aye, aye, sir. (Exit A.)
 X. (Turns to the others who have been discussing the weather with some vigor.) Mr. Blank, how do you think you are going to like our wonderful little school, or have you been here long enough to form any opinions on the matter?
 Blank. Well, sir, to tell you the truth, I haven't had a look at the school yet. The young gentlemen of this neighborhood have been so kind as to take all my time for the past few days. I hope some time in the near future to at least take a look at the famed institution which has educated twenty-six college presidents, more than fifty college professors, ten governors of States, two vice presidents, etc., ad infinitum. Nevertheless, I appreciate all the courtesies you fellows show me, and I assure you—
 Z. Hoshpitality, sir, Southern hoshpitality. That is what you have run up againsht.
 X. Are you from anywhere around in this part of the country?
 Blank. I am from the Fiji Islands, where I was born and reared. My parents are, of course, Americans. I saw your Centre College advertised in the Police Gazette and in other prominent periodicals, and so I decided to give it the once over.
 Z. Fizhi Ilan, Fizhi Ilan? Wherezat? Sure, I know. Capital Nebraska, eh Jim?
 Blank. Surely the fellow is not making fun of my birthplace.
 X. The last thing he would do. (Motioning violently to Z behind Blank's back.) Just feeling a little happy, eh Bill?
 Z. 'At's all. Vera, vera happy.
 X. Speaking of fraternities, is your father a fraternity man, Mr. Blank?
 Blank. Oh, my goodness, no. He hates 'em; says they destroy school spirit, and all that. I feel the same way about it. (The others exchange meaning glances.)
 Y. Haven't you any relatives who are fraternity men?
 Blank. An uncle and a brother-in-law are members of the Omicron Kappa or O. K. fraternity. A brother and a cousin are Mu Kau Mu's, while my grand-father—
 X. Are any of them S. O. L.'s?
 Blank. S. O. L.? Never heard of it. What's that, an old ladies' union?
 Y. The best fraternity in existense, sir, and I am unprejudiced in saying so. WE are members of that organization.
 Blank. (Confused.) Oh, I beg your pardon, —I—
 Z. Thash aw right. No hard feelin's. Ign'rant Freshman liable say anything.
 X. Did you know, Blank, that General Lee and General Grant were both S. O. L.'s, and that they gave the grip at Appomatox?
 Blank. My word!
 Y. Tell him about Daniel Boone.
 B. Don't forget Andrew Jackson.

"Was it you I kissed in the car last night?"
 "About what time?"

- C. And George Washington, by all means.
- Z. Sure, George Wash'ton. Firs' in war, firs' in peace, firs' in the hands of the city police.
- Blank. Can it be possible?
- X. Not only possible, but a fact. These few insignificant characters which have been named are the least of those members of S. O. L. whose names have been inscribed in the Hall of Fame.
- Blank. Gentlemen, all this is very remarkable, but I should tell you beforehand that it is not my intention to join any college fraternity, and— (He starts to rise, but X rises quickly and pushes him back into his seat.)
- X. Don't be in a hurry, Blank. Far be it from me to force a man to do anything against his will, but surely you cannot object to me presenting you with a few facts, and if we consider it a pleasure to enlighten you—
- Blank. Oh, certainly, certainly, go right ahead.
- X. First, do you have a preference for any fraternity?
- Blank. Quite so. Just before I left home, my uncle called me to him and said—
- X. Never mind what he said. It must have been the old line. I got a bunch of it from a cousin before I came to Centre, but I promptly forgot it.
- Z. Sure, great-grandfather tried to pull same stuff on me. I says t' 'im, O. K.'s nothin' but a bunch of sots. Me for S. O. L. and the old straight, narrow path.
- X. As I was saying, it's always better to leave this family tie business out in the cold.
- Blank. Maybe you're right. But there's another thing. I may not be in this school but one year. I have the soul of a wanderer, Mr. X, and I like changes. Now, if I should join any fraternity, I say, if I SHOULD, I would want it to be one that is represented in any college to which I should go. Now, I happen to know that the O. K.'s—
- X. My dear boy, you make my heart sing with gladness. Waxing eloquent, I might say that from the rock-bound coast of bleak New England to the waving plains of Texas, from the towering forests of the far Northwest to the sunny expanses of the solid South (minus Tennessee), you will find the banners of S. O. L. flung to the dome of the heavens.
- Z. (Rising and gesticulating.) From Greenland's icy mountains—
- Blank. My word, I believe the gentleman has been inbibing some of the products of alcoholic fermentation.
- X. Oh, no. He had a bad cold and the doctor advised him to take a little toddy now and then.
- Z. Thag you Jib. Bad gold, yes, vera, vera bad gold.
- Blank. Don't mind me, fellows. I am not as strict a teetotaler as you might imagine. In fact, down in Fiji, I won a medal, once, as the champion home-brewer.
- Z. (In stage whisper, very loud.) Mus' have this man, b' all means.
- Y. Interested in athletics, Mr. Blank?
- Blank. I was on the crew at Fiji.
- X. We happen to control that part of athletics here, as well as football, basket ball, baseball and track. Then there's—
- Blank. What? Do you have a Crew here at Centre College? Impossible.

"How much did you pay for your dress suit?"
"Fifty cents an hour."

X. Have you never heard, then, of the famous Dix River, that wide and beautiful stream which bears on its bosom each year the craft of competing colleges. It is a gala day for us all. I can see the scene now, the rhythmic beat of many oars, the supple bodies bending to their task, the fair onlookers on the riverside waving approval with their tiny handkerchiefs, while all around—

Blank. That is fine. And you say some of your men are on the Crew?

Z. 'Gainst State law for anybody but S. O. L. to try for team.

X. In the four other leading sports we are head and shoulders above the rest.

B. In scholarship we lead the school, even Ye Rounde Table.

C. Willy Hoppe has nothing on us when it comes to making the billiard balls click. (Telephone rings. Y answers it.)

Y. Hello. This is 184, S. O. L. apartments, Y talking. What's that? Who is it that you want? No, he's not here. I said, NO HE'S NOT HERE. Oh, you think he is, do you? What makes you think so? You say you'd like to smash my face in? Well, well, isn't it a pity that I can't accommodate you. I'm awfully busy right now, but I'll see you tomorrow. Don't get so violent, the operator might hear you. Aw, go on, you can't get well. I say, YOU CAN'T GET WELL. I like your nerve, anyhow. What right have you to call me up about such a matter? You make me want to laugh. Well, so long. See you in the Sunday Supplement.

Blank. Did they want me?

Y. Oh, no. Just one of the boys wanted to see Bill over there (nodding to Z.) I didn't think he was in the proper condition, so I was just giving the other fellow a little sass.

Blank. But I thought—

X. Never mind, Blank; let's get back to the subject. I hope that I have convinced you by now of the standing of S. O. L. in this school. As to our national rep, there are ten or fifteen volumes over there (motioning to the bookcase) pertaining to the subject, which you may peruse at your leisure.

Z. (Gesticulating wildly.) Lemme say on closing, we got best jazz band in town. Music so sweet, it draws flies.

Blank. And is this all your chapter? Surely not.

X. This bunch represents about one-fifth of our chapter. The others are—

Blank. Oh, but I like small chapters. When they're not snobbish, they're so—so distinctive.

X. Wait just a moment. I spoke too hastily a while ago. Not so many of our old men are returning, after all. Let me see. (Counting on his fingers.) I'll declare. I believe we have the smallest chapter in school this time, eh fellows?

B, C, Y and Z, in unison. Even so. (Knocking heard on outside door. X motions to B and C, who leave the room.)

Blank. Who is that, I wonder?

X. Can't imagine. The boys will find out. But Blank, we have beat around the bush long enough. I believe that I have convinced you of the utter desirability of becoming a member of the S. O. L. Fraternity and that anything which you considered an obstacle before has been removed. Let me offer you, then, this pledge button (takes button from pocket), which is about the biggest thing I can do for you. The color of this button is red, signifying the warm heart blood

“Have you any soup entrees?”
“No, sir, only in cups.”

that any brother will gladly pour out for your inspection, provided he be given two weeks' notice. The shape of this button is that of a brick, for our fraternity, as the brick, is composed of many elements.

Blank. (Rising.) Gentlemen, I give you credit for having a fine organization, if all you say is true, which I have cause to doubt, as the O. K.'s told me the same things about themselves only an hour ago. However— (X, Y and Z rise.)

X. But my dear sir, let me explain.

Y. This is too much.

Z. I'm vera, vera non plushed. (Battering at outside door becomes very loud.)

Blank. I have an O. K. pledge button in my pocket now, but as matters stand, I will not pledge to any fraternity. I hear the members of that other organization outside. I will go out and tell them the same that I have told you. (He places his hand on the door knob.) Gentlemen, au revoir.

X. Wait just a minute, Blank, I have something to tell you. (Blank pauses with a question on his face.) Can I have a few more minutes of your time? You surely cannot object to me presenting you with a few facts, and if we consider it a pleasure—

Blank. (Grinning) No, you cannot do that, but stick your button on my coat lapel, you son-of-a-gun. A man with your persistence ought to be selling ice skates to the people of Peru. (X puts the button on him.)

X. Congratulations, old man. Hope you never regret your choice.

Y. Ditto.

Blank. Thank you.

Z. 'Gratulations, fella. Speakin' with el'gance, el'quence I mean, I wanna say you make me happy, vera, vera happy. And now, goat, drag out that home brew reshipe, and make it schnappy, vera ,vera schnappy.

(Curtain)

(Applause)

The curtain is dropped very quickly at the close of the play, in order to save the actors from any cruelties at the hands of the audience.

Unless you happen to be Opportunity, for God's sake don't knock.

Number One—"Why can't an Indian shimmy?"

Number Two—"I don't know. Why not?"

Number One—"Because his quiver is in the wrong place."

Fresh—"I can't find a single pin. Where do they all go, anyway?"

Soph—"It's hard to tell. They're pointed in one direction and headed in another."

When Greek meets Greek, they open a fruit store; but when Irish meet English, they open an uproar.

She—"Why do you insist on calling me your little cold cream?"

He—"Because you're so nice to a chap."

"There is nothing new under the sun," sighed the fond mother as she sewed another patch upon the pants of her offspring.

Bilas—"Lend me a dollar and I'll be eternally indebted to you."

Imboden—"Yes, I'm afraid so."

Mrs. Kenney—"What part of the chicken do you wish?"

Peter—"Some of the meat, please."

First Voice—"Say, how far are you in Bible?"

Second Voice—"We're in the middle of original sin."

First Voice—"That isn't far. We're past redemption."

Bedford—"I thought you took Algebra last year."

Cregor—"I did, but the faculty gave me an encore."

My skin is all bloated,
It wrinkles, it sags,
I'm stewed to the limit,
The last of my jags.
My heart is as gay
As a songbird in June;
I feel no remorse
For I'm only a prune.

Dr. Allen—"Why did James the Second and his wife, Mary, flee from England in the night?"

Whitnell—"Because they had lost their supporters."

Not long ago a gentleman from France who was in chapel listened to the strains of "Old Centre Marches Ever On," which has the same tune as the "Marseillaise," after which he rose and sang the latter song. After chapel, Gus King was heard to remark, "I guess that guy don't know his stuff. I want to ask you, which one of you could go to France, listen to one of their college songs if they've got any, and then get up on your hind legs and sing it off in English."

Daughter—"Well, he was so nice about it."

Mother—"The idea! Haven't I told you you must learn to say 'no?'"

Daughter—"That's what I did say. He asked me if I would be very angry if he kissed me."

Benevolent Old Lady—"What do you want to be, my little fellow, when you grow up?"

Little Boy—"I wanna be a man an' wear long pants like dad."

B. O. L.—"And what do you want to be, little girl?"

Little Girl—"I wanna be a lady an' wear short dresses like mama."

Hogue—"That was some skirt that just went by."

Burres—"Dresses are getting so short you can hardly refer to a girl as a skirt, nowadays."

Hogue—"Have it your way. She was some ruffle, then."

Evelyn—"Do you find short skirts really more convenient to walk in?"

Ellen—"Well, I find them great for getting up stares."

Dr. Biles—"Yes, as I have said before, black bodies are good radiators and absorbers." (Yeager laughs loudly.) "Well, what is the matter with you?"

Jake—"I was just thinking what a good joke old nature played on the nigs."

Mr. Cecil—"My boy, what do you expect to be when you get out of college?"

Charlie—"An old man, dad."

"Why are you angry with me," said the nose to the chin.

"Words have passed between us," was the reply.

Two imbibers were enjoying life on the train. Said one, "I shay, Bill, what time is it." His companion pulled a cigarette case from his pocket and for a long time gazed at it intently. "Thurshday," he finally replied. Number One reached for the bell-cord and his hat simultaneously. "My Gawd," he said, "I must get off here."

He (to lady in stylish gown)—"Do you like evening dresses?"

She—"I am sure that nothing is more becoming to me."

He—"Probably so, but don't you think that would be going a trifle too far."

Bill—"Darling, will you marry me?"
Dot—"Yes, Bill dear, I would love to marry you." (Ten minutes elapse.) "Bill, why don't you say something?"
Bill—"I have said too much already."

"I suppose you are the defendant?" asked a man in the courtroom, speaking to an old negro.

"No, boss," he replied, "don't call me names like that. I've got a lawyer here who does the defending."

"Well, who are you?"

"I see the gentleman what stole the chickens."

The Girl—"I don't like to ride with you. Your driving is too reckless."

Rowe—"Yes, we have had some tight squeezes, haven't we?"

How often have I twined my arms about thee!
How often have I gone to thee in vain!
How often have I stood before thee waiting,
And hoping thou wouldst ease my cold and pain.

Alas! A frigid touch, a cheerless welcome,
That brings no loving warmth into my heart;

Oh, wretch, O, silent thing, devoid of mercy—
My radiator—how cruel thou art.

HUDSON & DAVIS

Kentucky College for Women

Danville, Ky.

KENTUCKY COLLEGE FOR WOMEN is a standard Junior College. The College Preparatory Course corresponds to the four years' course in an A class high school. By this course a student is prepared for the comprehensive examinations required by Wellesley, Vassar, Mt. Holyoke and Smith, and from this course any student who has a satisfactory record may enter without examination the Freshman year at Kentucky College for Women, at Chicago University, and other Northern Colleges, as well as Kentucky State University, and other colleges in the Southern Association of Women's Colleges.

Excellent work is done in all the special departments, art, music and expression. To the student in music whose work, in the judgment of the department, merits it, a diploma is given after a prescribed course has been completed.

For the student who is a high school graduate and who does not wish to take up college work, a domestic science course is given. This is a two-year college course in Home Economics and comprises the same work that is offered in the Freshman and Sophomore years at Kentucky State University.

In the college course two full years of college work are offered. Graduates from this course may receive, for this work, advance credit without examination, at various Northern colleges, such as the University of Wisconsin, University of Chicago, Oberlin College, also at Kentucky State University and other colleges in the Southern Association of Women's Colleges.

To keep up the high standard of work at Kentucky College for Women an excellent faculty is necessary. The faculty at Kentucky College have been trained in the best colleges and universities in the country, and have personality and intellectual ability without which even the fine equipment of the college would be useless.

The broad campus at Kentucky College for Women affords ample opportunity for tennis, field day sports, plays and pageants, while in the gymnasium the student may bowl, play basket ball, swim, etc.

THE CALENDAR

September

15. Opening day. Freshmen pour into town from all directions. Frats get ready for slaughter.
16. And still they come! Pitched battle between frats at R. R. station narrowly averted. Few pledge buttons displayed. Many Freshmen want to know what it's all about.
18. Prexy gives annual oration on what he has spent on Breck Hall during the summer. Freshmen appear interested; upper classmen seem bored.
20. Football practice begins. Ninety per cent of students appear in football togs the first day.
21. Rushing season still with us. Crack Reid dresses up to make good impression on new men.
23. First scrimmage of season. Dr. May looks happy.
25. Freshmen begin to learn more about town. One goes to D. and D. looking for K. C. W. No insinuations intended.
27. New men begin to tremble at thoughts of future. Various rules and regulations in evidence.
28. Freshmen tapped lightly on wrist and palm during initiation, after donating dollar apiece for skull caps. We wonder whose way through school these dollars will help pay. Stout has record-breaking crowd which is entertained by Lipscomb's clog, Anderson's solo, and Keller's St. Vitus Dance.
29. Thurman calls out extra force to remove splinters from streets.
30. "All's well on the Potomac."

October

2. Centre 66, Morris Harvey 0. Sweet papa!
3. Sunday. K. C. W. passes in review. Many cases of love at first sight reported.
5. More bovines than usual anchored on campus. Students lay in supply of paint.
7. Red Roberts decides to enter college.
9. Centre 120, Howard 0. Spectators kick on being given track meet instead of football game.
11. Chapel Chimes, featuring Johnny Redd.
12. Freshmen begin to wonder about skull caps.

13. Republican grand stand mysteriously disappears from athletic field during night. WHO DID IT?
14. Prexy has new grandstand erected. Senator Harding comes to Danville to have picture taken with football team; speaks while here.
15. Sully officially announced Dean of Breck Hall. It's a great life.
16. Centre 55, Transy 0. Hump Tanner becomes speechless from calling signals. K. C. W. renders song selection.
18. Privette and Lowe seen apart. Must be a feud in the family.
20. Big pep feast for football team. Thad McDonnell is most violent speaker.
21. All-aboard the Harvard Special! Danville looks like the original Deserted Village.
22. Gus King gets lost in Boston; pays $12.00 taxi fare to go two blocks to depot.
23. Harvard 31, Centre 14. Danville gets sad news play by play. Many declare bankrupt law.
24. Day spent reading about game. Boys put up whopper of fight, anyway.
25. Holiday. Team returns; is met by all inhabitants of Boyle County; promises to get revenge on Harvard next year.
27. Sanford dissects League of Nations in Comparative Anatomy Lab. Doc. Rainey interrupts discussion at close of period, and is not so enthusiastic.
28. During rainy night, team leaves for Atlanta to tackle Tech.
29. Terhune gets hair-cut.
30. Tech 24, Centre 0. Say!!!!!!
31. Day spent in gnashing teeth over treatment of team at Tech.

November

1. "Rambling wrecks from Georgia Tech" return to school; give first hand report of massacre. Sully's face mutilated.
2. Daniel buys package of Chesterfields; is given rising vote of thanks by fraternity brothers.
3. Charley Crooks holds forth for fifteen minutes in one of his famous prayers.
5. Team leaves for Indianapolis; Flippin demonstrated how to enter upper berth on Pullman. For particulars see "Doings of Andy Gump."

6. Centre 34, Depauw 0. Prexy greatly pleased not to see cows decorated.
8. Comparatively Anatomy class aspires to become Glee Club. Cregor's bass mistaken for thunder.
9. Johnnie Redd rattles keys during Prexy's prayer. Freshmen highly amused; upper classmen want something new.
10. RED LETTER DAY! Hugh Gunn writes good check.
12. Everybody ready for Wildcat chase tomorrow. Prexy gives warning against evil influences of Lex.
13. Centre 49, State 0; Wildcat's tail sadly twisted.
15. Roberts meets Political Science Class; Dr. Allen faints but recovers under influence of smelling salts.
16. Bo Williams spends afternoon surveying on corner of Third and Main; gets credit for this, but not credits.
17. Sun shines very brightly today.
18. Imboden caught telling truth.
19. Team leaves for Louisville all set for Virginia Poly. Cregor, Chinn, Moran and Caudill succumb to mumps.
20. Centre 28, V. P. I. O. Sully's wife comes from Fort Worth to see the fracas. Sully announces marriage. Rah, rah, rah!
22. Flippin in wanderings discovers Ye Rounde Table and decides to become member. For particulars see "Doings of Andy Gump."
23. Monk Meier sings solo in chapel; is applauded vigorously.
24. Turkey Day. Centre 103, Georgetown 0. Thanksgiving dance after game. Lipscomb introduces "Texas Shimmie."
26. Dillehay discovers composition of H₂O.
27. Weaver and Roberts strut their stuff at K. C. W.
29. Key-holes in main building get full of Plaster Paris during night. Johnnie Redd and janitor force work hard all day to remove same.
30. Football banquet; Bo made Colonel on governor's staff.
4. Roberts seriously considers attending classes.
5. Many students attend Christian Church services. Sour looks when K. C. W. fails to appear. STUNG!
6. Bo and Prexy leave for New York. Look out Wall Street!
7. Cregor fails to get announcement that Doc Rainey will not meet classes during rest of week; regrets it later.
8. Prof. Hart proves himself worthy rival of Charley in chapel prayer. First basket ball game of season. Freshmen defeat Sophs 10 to 7; Centre defeats Danville by large score. Looks like we have a team.
9. Doc Rainey leaves for Florida; much rejoicing among his students.
10. Dr. Ervin leads in chapel; proves his wind is growing better all the time.
12. John Brown takes usual nap in Political Science; disturbs class while snoring.
13. Seniors hand in lists of achievements for annual; Eads wants to know if Y. M. C. A. is an achievement.
14. Stove Singers hold last note of chapel hymn almost too long; Martin's high tenor much in evidence.
15. Flippin demonstrates lung pressure in Physics; "Happy" Biles has hysterics. For particulars see "Doings of Andy Gump."
16. Elementary Chemistry class disappointed when Doc Coolidge fails to show up. Mumps rumored to be the cause. Sanford leaves for home on mumps excuse. Say, is this a frame-up?
17. French ossifer speaks in chapel. Cregor and Bishop give galloping dominoes slight work-out in Anatomy. K. C. W. gets loose for holidays. Deke Dance!!!!
18. Betas give athletic dance in gym. All invitees dance very athletically.
19. Sammie Cheek goes to sleep in church; congregation mistakes snoring for pipe-organ playing Xmas anthems.
20. Prexy announces liberality of faculty in closing down Tuesday at noon instead of Wednesday. Said liberality much appreciated.
21. Everybody pulling up for home. raH! rAH! RAH!

December

1. Members of faculty decide to have new pictures made for annual. Will wonders never cease? Now, prospective Centre men can see how faculty really looks.
3. Basket ball practice begins to get into swing. New men show class. Wonder how long it will last.

January

6. Back again; effects of holiday season noticeable. Many, many vacant seats in chapel. Nary a sight of those football players.

7. Bishop and Sanford think they discover distant relationship; family reunion takes place with much rejoicing. Holiday to celebrate event talked of.
8. Johnnie Redd attends Janitors' Council in Breck Hall; fails to meet elementary German class. Peter gives short talk on "Why German should not be taught in college," and dismisses class. Centre 46, Wesleyan 12.
11. Prexy talks at length about those who must be cast into outer darkness at end of first semester.
13. Roberts returns from Texas and pays visit to friends in Danville and Centre College.
14. Bo unable to attend classes because of snow and ice.
16. Prexy and Doc Rainey challenge debating team to debate on Irish Question. John Brown accepts challenge and remarks that he doesn't even think the faculty members have a chance.
17. Mr. Ralph Paine, well known writer of the East, in Danville to get material for college novel. "Army" shows him around—must be trying to get a description of himself in the book.
18. President Bill James fails to call meeting of Senior Class.
20. Robb and McMillin come to German class.
22. Everybody wears mournful expression on nearness of exams.
- 24-29. Exams this week. "United we stand, divided we fall."
31. School reopens; Prexy looks sad at sight of so many vacant seats.
10. Johnnie Redd gives short talk on "How Jangling Keys Improve Chapel Devotions."
11. Colonels 29, Wildcats 27. Maver tries to miss basket, but finds it impossible.
12. Doc Rainey and James manage to appoint Carnival Committee.
14. Miss Dorothy Mahan elected Queen of 1921 Carnival; Bo elected King. Daniel, attendant to the Queen, starts savings account.
16. Fair and Warmer!
17. Nick Carter seen in chapel. Hines and Sullivan report large decrease in income.
18. State 20, Centre 13. Black is favorite color now. State doesn't crave third game on neutral floor.
19. Day spent in telling how it happened.
21. Vanderbilt snowed under, 44 to 18. Snappy little game.
22. George's Birthday. Truthful Imboden says he hopes they will celebrate him this way some day.
23. Gregor unable to awake in Carnival Committee meeting; Doc Rainey greatly vexed.
24. Doc Coolidge arranges for social hour during chemistry lab period; says mental strain is too great without it; thinks cigarettes and soft drinks will be served.
25. Stove Singers let glad tidings ring out in chapel hymn.
27. Record breaking church attendance. Collins mistakes sermon for one of Doc Allen's lectures and begins to take notes.

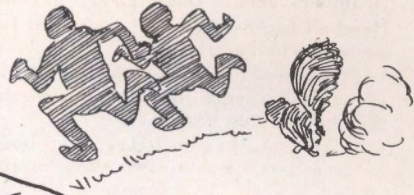

March

- February
1. Social Committee takes charge of chapel with a few things to say about our "parties." Many new leaves turned over, although it is not January 1.
 3. First bunch of Freshmen have pictures taken for annual. We wonder when the last bunch will have theirs made.
 4. Roberts proves himself eligible for Stove Singers by holding last note of chapel hymn one minute after everybody else stops singing.
 6. Centre parks in front of Second Church to watch K. C. W. file in.
 7. Charley Crooks waxes eloquent on vacancy of chapel seats.
 8. Georgetown cage-men battle Centre at the gym; left at short end of 62-23 score.
 1. Annual staff working hard; Sanford has exhausted look.
 2. Breck Hall quiets down; Prexy in town.
 3. Rumors of flag-rush begin to float around. Freshmen remain in rooms at night.
 4. Colonels start on Eastern trip; McDonnell leaves for parts unknown(?).
 5. Centre plays in hard luck at Buffalo; Eastern rules a bit too strict. Brace up, boys, we're back of you.
 6. Prexy shows up in church with fresh hair-cut. Stay in there, Doc!
 7. Harvard goes Titanic; nothing quite as sweet as revenge on the Crimson. Score, 41 to 36.
 8. Monk and Stove Singers render exceptionally good selection; Charley Crooks greatly inspired.

9. Centre 40, Brown 28; Maver again unable to miss goal.
10. Johns Hopkins Medics unable to dissect Colonels' play before final whistle. Hurray for the dole hammed team!
11. Comparative Anatomy class convenes in the vault of the underworld to see one of Doc's picture shows. Exceptional good picture today, Miss Minnie Bones featured in "The Fambly Skeleton."
12. Brumback gets to Bacteriology on time.
14. Baseball begins; Weaver aspires to become baseball star.
15. Mr. George Colvin speaks in chap.; tell of days of yore, including a few good ones on Johnnie Redd.
16. Prexy in chapel again today; everybody surprised to see him two days in succession.
17. Cottrell gradually going crazy on hypnotism; interrupts Doc Rainey in class to give short lecture on "Why Hypnotism Benefits the Human Race."
18. S. A. E. dance: snappy affair. Daniel brings Queen but is unable to dance with her because of intense rushing.
19. Snoozing it off!
20. Sanford appears with derby; is barely saved from assassination by friends.
21. Robb wanders back into fold. Charley Crooks has difficulty in recognizing him after long absence.
22. Red flag mysteriously appears on flagpole; must mean that Bolshevism is in our midst.
23. McGee drags out kodak and takes one or two delayed snaps for annual.
24. "Paris Green" makes first appearance in reading circles of college; is much enjoyed, especially by faculty. Faculty and trustees have special meeting to read publication to one another.
25. Tanner's Yannigans make good showing against Varsity Nine.
27. Easter. Centre holds true to form as in past years and gets no vacation.
28. Whitnell answers question in history of great war; getting to be an A student. Caudill and Flippin have slight bout over question of food supply at College Home.
29. Coach Tannehill gets hit four times with baseballs and bats during practice; wants to know if team has anything against him.
30. The editor has been hollering at me about a week for this, so here goes. See you next fall.
