

IRISH IMMIGRANTS

In 1822, Irish immigrants came to Lowell to begin building the mills and to deepen and widen the Pawtucket Canal. The water from the canal was used as water power. The years 1845-1850, as a result of a potato blight in Ireland, brought thousands of people to the United States and great waves of IRISH people came to Lowell for jobs in the mills.