Traditional Cambodian Wedding

The groom has to go to the bride's house and ask the bride's parents for permission to marry their daughter. If they say "yes" the groom and the bride will marry.

The marriage will be in a house or a restaurant. Some marriages are in a church. When Cambodian people go to the wedding they bring presents to the groom and the bride. When they get married they already buy their own home and they have a honeymoon.

When they come back from their honeymoon sometime they buy two cars. One for working and one for going somewhere. If they have children they might trade one car and they might
