

Yankee Mill Girls

The Lowell mill girls were daughters of Yankee farmers. About 1824, the young girls came from all over New England to work in the mills. Their job was to take raw cotton and make it into calico cloth.

