

Jan., 1991

I miss my Country very much. When I grow up, I might go to work, and then go to visit my Aunt, and uncle in Cambodia. They got married all ready. They married in July or August.

In my village in Cambodia we had no electricity. And no indoor plumbing. We had to wash our clothes in the river or streams.

Now in America we go to the laundromat and use the washing machine and drier. This is much, much easier.

I like indoor plumbing too.
Have a happy New Year.

Sincerely
Trob Chhoun
