

POLITICAL TREND

Editor, The Tribune:

I am not tired of the democratic way of life, only very disappointed by the trend that has developed.

Our society has allowed the political arena to become infected with the suspicion that all politicians are hired by the size of donations even before being elected to office. Considering cost of campaigns, how else could a politician eat without bestowing favors in return. . . . The power of the President is truly too great but only owing to the fact that our House and Senate are filled with senile, apathetic, seat-warming political party eccentrics who care nothing for "all the people" statesmanship. The non-policy of these old goats got us in this predicament in the first place. . . . Any time one of our Presidents is suspected of any transgression his impeachment proceedings should be conducted thoroughly but in private until indictments are warranted. . . .

Also if any single judge from any court can tell any President, present or future, what to do or when to do it, then we, as a country, no longer need the office of the presidency. . . .

Dear Mr. Neal:

Your letter arrived while Congressman Jones is out of the country. As you may know, Mr. Jones was appointed to a special subcommittee of the House Armed Services Committee to gather facts about the Middle East with which to report back to the House of Representatives. The Congressman is presently in Egypt and Israel.

I am taking the liberty of acknowledging receipt of your letter, and I will bring your correspondence to Congressman Jones' personal attention immediately upon his return to the United States in late November.

Sincerely yours,

Stephen Kaplan
Legislative Assistant
