Dear Congressman

The Constitution of the United States says that when serious charges are raised against a President, it is up to the House of Representatives to examine these charges and determine whether there is sufficient evidence of wrongdoing to bring the case before the Senate for a verdict of guilty or not guilty.

The impeachment procedure was designed by the founding fathers to provide a President with every man's Constitutional right to his day in court.

*I call upon you,
as my representative in Congress,
to undertake the impeachment proceedings —
The only method by which President Nixon can be cleared of the grave charges against his administration or be removed from office.*

*We cannot go forward divided and in doubt.
Our nation's hope lies in the Constitution and conscience.*

Dear Mrs. Van Dasen:

Your letter arrived while Congressman Jones is out of the country. As you may know, Mr. Jones was appointed to a special subcommittee of the House Armed Services Committee to gather facts about the Middle East with which to report back to the House of Representatives. The Congressman is presently in Egypt and Israel.

I am taking the liberty of acknowledging receipt of your letter, and I will bring your correspondence to Congressman Jones' personal attention immediately upon his return to the United States in late November.

Sincerely yours,

Stephen Kaplan
Legislative Assistant
