

PTA Honors Teacher At Slater School

Lolita Mead, second grade teacher at Slater School, has been selected as "outstanding teacher of the year" by the Slater PTA.

Miss Mead was selected by a vote of students and PTA members. The award was presented at a reception last week sponsored by the PTA.

Four other awards for outstanding contributions to Slater School also were presented at the reception.

Receiving the awards were Charlotte Kincheloe and Frank Robinson, outstanding members of the senior class, Dr. Fred Gupton, supervisor of education, and Billie Baxter, a teacher at Vance Junior High School.

Dr. Gupton was recognized for "constructive work with the teachers and students of Slater School." Miss Baxter received a gift in appreciation of her assistance with various school activities.

Mrs. Lillian Newton, a teacher at the school, thanked PTA members for their support and presented a gift to Arthur Henderson, president of the PTA.

Miss Kincheloe, one of the outstanding seniors, entertained guests by singing several numbers.
